2 CONVICTS DIE IN ATTEMPTED PRISON BREAK

Carpenter's Shop Is Destroyed By Fire
In Sudden Outbreak
In N.Y. Penitentiary

ALBANY, N. Y., July 22.—(INS)—Two prisoners were shot dead, two guards wounded and the carpenter shop destroyed by fire when 1,000 convicts at Clinton prison at Dannemora, 20 miles from Plattsburgh, revolted today and made an unsuccessful attempt at a general prison attack.

Shortly after noon state prison officials announced they had received word from Warden Harry M. Kaiser that the "situation was in hand."

Before the rioting was quelled, however, a detachment of federal troops, soldiers from Plattsburgh and between 50 and 75 state troopers had been rushed to the prison.

The outbreak started while the prisoners were marching out of the cell block after they had finished their breakfast. In five minutes, according to word received by state prison officials at Albany, the prisoners were acting in the prison yard, fighting among themselves and with the guards. For a few minutes, there was every indication of general prison delivery.

Warden Harry Kaiser, realizing the situation was serious, telephoned to the Plattsburgh barracks for detachment of soldiers. He too telephoned State Prison Department which in turn asked the state police to send out 100 troops at once to the prison.

Several hundred federal soldiers were sent to the prison. The Plattsburgh barracks, of about 30 miles from the prison, part of northern New York, recall the prison a short distance from the cell block where the help came from Warden Kaiser.

"There is no danger now of a general escape and things will quiet down as soon as the guards and all the state police are there," said Charles Jones, state prison commissioner.

There are 1,360 convicts, many of them serving life sentences, in prison. Warden Kaiser, who sent to state officials here, however, only about 1,000 of the convicts were participating in the riot.

There are 100 armed guards at the prison. Only two of the 100 that the guards were heavily armed and that they did not hesitate to shoot when the convicts started climbing in the wall, it was said, that all of the prisoners might have escaped.

Warden Kaiser left prison of field he had not seen what instigated the riot. Kaiser said the inmates were peacefully marching out of the main hall when suddenly two or three voices were heard to yell:

"Now is the time to make a break for freedom."

Within a minute, it was said, the riot was in full swing. The prisoners, hurling their guards to one side and literally trampling over each other, rushed into the prison yard, yelling and screaming.

"Run the walls and shoot to kill," Warden Kaiser ordered the guards as the convicts moved about the prison yard.

A second later two shots rang out and two convicts, who had been trying to scale the walls, fell apparently mortally wounded. Other convicts dragged their wounded comrades to the prison yard where they were picked up by the guards and taken into the hospital.

Clinton is one of the state's older penal institutions. Prison officials said this was the first time that a serious riot ever had occurred in that institution.

Sumner, chief of staff of the army, may make the dedication speech. Several other national figures have been invited to be present during the celebration. Eddie Stinson, famous aviator, has written here and signified his intention of being present.

BEWARE OF THE RUMOR MONGER!

HE IS THE FOE OF PROSPERITY!

Rumor-mongers are at work in Sanford. Their office is the sidewalks of the city; their clientele, the public; their business, that of spreading malicious gossip about the soundness of our stores and industries, of seeking to undermine the substantial character of our trade, of trying to destroy our credit.

The closing of the First National Bank has naturally given unusual opportunity for the rumor-monger to exhibit his wares. There may be business failures in the coming months, just as there may be business failures in any other Florida city, in any other city anywhere, but the epidemic is nowhere near as widespread as these rumors would seem to indicate.

Within the past few days there has scarcely been a merchant in Sanford who has not been reputed to be in bankruptcy, or about to go into the hands of a receiver. Actually the summer has seen comparatively few failures and with the coming fall and winter months, made bright with the prospects of unusually good prices for celery due to the National Advertising Campaign, we believe that Sanford is in for a season of exceptional prosperity.

But the rumor-monger is still with us. Like a venomous snake, he will remain with us until he is stamped out of our midst. Stand together, citizens of Sanford, and fight this treacherous creature!

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY.

"A MODERN BRILLE."

Some of the people who are everlastingly criticizing the down to date "Slapier" should read the following, handed by Ernest B.
Emmons of Luis to the Tampa
Times. It first appeared in Harper's Monthly of April, 1925:

The Girl in a fashionable parlor,
And rocks in her easy chair;
The girl is clad in silks and satins,
And jewels are in her hair;
The winks, and giggles, and simpers,
And simpers, and giggles and winks;

And though she talks but little,
'Tis a good deal more than she thinks.

The girl is abed in the morning,
Till nearly the hour of noon,
Then comes down snapping and snarling;

Because she was called too soon,
Her hair is still in papers;
Her cheeks still "fresh" with paints; Remains of her last night's blush.

Before she intended to faint,
Her feet are so very little,
Her hands are so very white,
Her jewels so very heavy,
And her head so very light;

Her color is made of cosmetics,
(Though this she will never own);
Her body's made mostly of cotton,
Her heart is made wholly of stone.

The girl falls in love with a fellow,
Who swells with a foreign air;
He marries her for her money,
She marries him for his hair;
One of the very best matches—

Both are well made in life;
She's got a fool for husband,
He's got a fool for a wife!

A man may be down, but he's never out until he's through.

Slaying of Man by Woman Held Justifiable—headline. Of course it was. A chivalrous jury could not have held otherwise.

Four men have been arrested for the murder of the filling station operators in Lake county, but the Murff case still remains a mystery.

Alyde Brisbane points out that both Russia and China signed the beautiful Kellogg peace pact so of course there can be no war between these countries.

Eleven million dollars in new capital is being invested in industrial and commercial enterprises in Tampa and immediate vicinity. Growth, not growth!—Tampa Tribune.

Now that dancing has been absolutely forbidden by the officers of the Antioch Missionary Church of Little Rock, we presume the boys and girls out there will take up fiddlywinks.

Add absent-minded yawns: The sea-cick passenger who threw up the steward and sang for his dinner.—Tampa Tribune. Reminds us of the famous American naval hero who cried: "Don't throw up the ship, boys!"

Biff Pringle will be the first white man in the state of Florida to die for the murder of a negro. And he will die.—Sanford Herald. He isn't dead yet.—Palm Beach Independent. Yes and it begins to look as if maybe we had better take back what we said.

According to the plant board seventy-two percent of next winter's citrus fruits will be allowed to move. At the same time substantially higher prices are predicted. People who can live through the summer will find it easy going after next winter.

Crimson investigators point out that bootleggers and their cohorts spend hundreds of millions a year on bribery. When do they bribe? The ministers. Highly. They bribe federal prohibition agents, stateiffs, judges, and prosecuting attorneys. That's why they get protection.

This writer regrets particularly the death last week of Johnny A. Costa of Jacksonville. For we have frequently seen him gear upping football teams. When Howard sometimes drove a truck across his neck, we used to think "Here is a man who can't be killed," but when his car turned over in a ditch last week, he died.

Thursday Half Holidays

We were particularly interested in the announcement Saturday that Tampa merchants who have always made it a policy to close their stores on Thursday afternoons during the summer months had decided to abolish the custom after August 1.

The reason advanced was that many people who live in neighboring cities had requested the stores to remain open Thursday afternoon so that they could do their shopping. Many of these people come into Tampa practically every day, every afternoon, to make purchases, and during the summer months they find it very inconvenient when they are compelled to do their Thursday shopping in the morning.

But we imagine that there are far greater reasons than this for the Tampa merchants doing away with the Thursday half holiday. It is altogether probable that perhaps a most important reason is that they are bound to lose a certain amount of trade when they are not on the job Thursday afternoons, and in these days every dollar counts. Vacations and holidays are all right in their place, but this apparently is not the place.

It isn't so much the Thursday afternoon trade that is missed; it's Thursday morning, and Friday morning, too. When a clerk is preparing to go swimming Thursday afternoon, and to make whoopee Thursday night, naturally his feelings of salesmanship are not up to par. Thursday morning. On Friday, the morning after the night before, it takes him a half day to wake up and get back on the job. It's in the same way that Sunday holidays ruin Monday's business.

It seems to us that such reasons as these must have had much to do with the Tampa merchants' decision to keep their stores open Thursday afternoons this summer. We wouldn't be surprised if our own merchants would profit by their example. These are days when every dollar counts, and there is as much profit in a sale made Thursday afternoon as one made any other time. Sanford merchants should not overlook any opportunity to stimulate trade.

At the same time we believe it would be possible to recognize the rights of clerks as well as customers. It might be practical still to give each clerk one half holiday a week and yet keep the stores open all the time anyway. Why not let one clerk off on Monday, another Tuesday, another Wednesday, and so on? Everyone then would get a rest during the week, and yet there would be no curtailing of trade.

Timely Suggestions

Somewhere in Florida is the little town of Moprop. There the Enquirer preaches the gospel of good will and cheerfulness, often producing something which is applicable to any city in any time of stress. Recently we saw something in that little paper which might just as well have been written for Sanford as for Monroe. We reproduce it here, hoping that everyone of our readers will carry out its suggestions:

"Put a peg of prosperity into your community by staying with it. Always greet your neighbors with a grasp of confidence.

"Criticize in the spirit of Godspeed.

"Say a good word if it hurts. Remember that those who insist on hanging themselves will do it if given enough rope.

"Give your neighbor a right to an opinion as long as he keeps it to himself.

"Discuss questions involving your better welfare instead of arguing with him.

"Apply the Golden Rule regardless of consequences.

"Back up your churches and relative affiliations. You will feel better and besides are setting a good example for the young people.

"Give the young people plenty of pleasure.

"Failure reflects on the entire town. See what you can do to keep your neighbor on top of the water. Don't let him drown.

"Let's have more handshakes and arm in arm confidences with a good will parting. It adds to that day's events.

"Let's break the shell and step out. Let's show 'em."

DOING SOMETHING FOR AGRICULTURE
OCALA STAR

Commissioner of Agriculture Nathan Mayo arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, after having made a 4,000-mile automobile trip through 13 states, covering a period of three weeks. Mr. Mayo was accompanied on this trip by J. M. Rhodes, head of the marketing division of the department of agriculture, and the purpose of their tour was to visit the department of agriculture in other states and confer with state officials to secure "data to be used in setting up the new marketing divisions for Florida authorized by the 1929 legislation."

They visited state capitals in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia, South and North Carolina and Tennessee and many creameries, poultry and egg storage plants and meat packing plants in those states, all of which were inspected and much information obtained which the Florida officials will utilize in extending the activities of our agricultural department.

Mr. Mayo says he was appalled when he learned how many barrels of creamery and dairy products are shipped out of Tennessee. In Florida points Florida is one of Tennessee's largest customers, and though he told state officials there that this state was making preparations to care for its own needs in the dairy and poultry field, he was shown every courtesy and assistance in obtaining the data he sought.

Commissioner Mayo is anxious to see Florida produce all the milk, butter and eggs consumed in this state, and believes that with four experts placed in charge of our marketing problem, rapid strides will be made in that direction. Mr. Mayo says it is the intention of his department, after its new marketing commissioners have been installed, to work through and with the county agents in every county of the state in assisting the

With a choice between expenditures of $16,000 for the construction of a new tubercular unit and $5,000 for remodeling of the existing isolation quarters at the county home, the county commissioners have decided in favor of the latter, and have retained Henry H. Dugan of St. Petersburg, to prepare plans for the proposed alterations which will fit the building for hospital use should a new unit be constructed at some later date.—Largo Sentinel.

"Ah for the weapon, wistful and subtle,
Whose lifted point reeks naught of woe or weal..."

Disregard of "woe or weal" seems just the thing for Democrats these days in the unpracticed pronouncements of Republicans. President Hoover, it is reported, has called upon the tariff commission for a list of all Democratic members of the Senate and House who have asked for increases in tariff rates under the flexible provisions of the 1922 act. Presumably this is to be used to suggest some sort of Democratic two-facedness on the tariff question.

Yet it is hard to believe that Mr. Hoover will seriously contend that there is nothing contrary to Democratic low tariff principles in the insistence of Democrats that so long as there is to be a high tariff at all it should cover the products of Democratic states as well as those of Republican ones.

Florida's representatives in Congress, for example, are not far from any tradition of their party when they ask for tariff rates on Florida fruits and vegetables. They are not accepting the Republican tariff philosophy all in doing. They are merely making protection against the evils that result from that philosophy. If it were not for the high tariff on things Florida farmers and fruitmen use or consume they could probably produce their vegetables and fruits at a cost which would enable them to compete easily with Cuba and Mexico in American markets. But so long as high tariff keeps their production costs high they have every right to demand a high tariff to keep their selling prices high too. The protection they ask is a protection against protection. They are against the whole system but they are not Quixotic to the point of wanting their state to suffer any more need than from it.

Another advised the voters: "If you're for bread and butter, vote for Clonius Pirus." This, of course, referred to the Roman custom of furnishing free bread and gladiatorial games to lower citizens.

A third somewhat rhapsodic, implored: "Vote for Julius Polit, as a man as handsome as the god Apollo."

In such manner did the politicians of the age of Augustus seek to move the votes of the citizenry.

There is a childish quality to these electioneering slogans that brings a smile. One candidate an-

ABOUT BASEBALL
MIAMI HERALD

Baseball players have many troubles and about this time of year one of them is trying to decide what positions are hardest to play and which offer the greatest advantages to an aspiring athlete. The arguments are generally concerned with the infield and outfield.

Some players insist that the first baseman has nothing to do except to catch an occasional ball tossed in his direction or let it go past if it is not within easy reach. He stands with one foot grace fully placed on the bag. They even insist that the man who plays first base ought to be made to pay the bill they try to earn their money.

Babe Ruth, who has achieved some fame as a writer on baseball, its theory and practice, has recently cited young players for insisting on playing infield positions and has tried to convince them that the outfield is important. Mr. Ruth ought to know for he was a first baseman for some time before he was transferred to the distant, wide open spaces where he has less to do when his side is not at bat, so he has had experience in both fields of endeavor. What he says should receive attention from the embryo Cobb, Speaker, Collins, Wagner and Hornsby.

To the casual student of box scores the truth seems to be that it really takes nine to make a team and the outfielder is important.

When Babe Ruth or any of his rivals are swinging a menacing club and are making the pitcher wonder what he shall do to be saved. When the outfielder does not function as the ball returns from its effort to establish an altitude record trouble follows.

A nuffed fly or failure to be under it when it comes down is a serious matter to all concerned.

But Mr. Ruthman deserves credit for his frankness in saying that other players are needed if games are to be played and won.

THE CITY SUBSTANTIAL
OCALA BANNER

It may not be ethical for one features were more than weighed.

The boom brought us a seven-story hotel that shall years be an asset to the city, brought a five-story structure steel office building, a spur office building, smaller buildings and many substantial residences. It brought miles of paved streets to the city, as we as a network of paved roads leading out in every direction.

Besides this, it brought a prevailing spirit of liberalism and progress, and drew the town of a lethargy that had enveloped it for many years. Of greatest importance, perhaps were the citizens that came in.

Even now there are plenty of thorns to make travel over the path of progress difficult.

MISS KATHRYN LAWTON'S BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED AT PARTY IN OVIEDO

The engagement of Miss Kathryn Lawton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lawton of Oviedo, to W. Harold Varn, was announced last Friday at a rainbow bridge party given by the former's sister, Miss Elizabeth Lawton, at the Woman's Club of Oviedo.

After several progressions of bridge, prizes of dainty orangey powder cases were awarded to the winners of high, second high and low scores. The hostess presented her sister, Miss Kathryn Lawton, a pot of gold, found at the end of an improvised rainbow, which when passed to the other guests, was found to contain the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Varn. Miss Lawton also received a crystal boudoir lamp as a momento of the occasion.

The club house was decorated with quantities of cut flowers, palms and shrubs, developing a rainbow color scheme. The tallies and crepe paper table covers were in pastel shades further accentuating the rainbow color scheme.

At the tea hour the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. J. Lawton, her aunt, Mrs. B. F. Lee, Mrs. Z. B. Ratliff, served a salad course.

ONCE in a Blue Moon

In every walk of life, in every manner of work and play, we find, Once In a Blue Moon, an individual or a mass of individuals, who rise above seemingly insurmountable obstacles and carry on to a glorious succession of triumphs.

Edison • Ford • Lindbergh • Texas • Ireland • Cuba • and now history repeats itself, and we find Florida, breaking the shackles of seeming disaster, meeting emergencies resourcefully and turning possible misfortune into an agency for permanent prosperity.

Since 1925, mankind and the Elements have showered numerous handicaps upon the progress of this State. Figuratively speaking, its people have undergone a most intensive struggle for existence but they have emerged from it vigorously and with inspiring enthusiasm.

Emergencies have been met with fortitude and the light of purpose is leading the people of Florida to greater and greater attainments.

Industries and new commercial ventures are opening in every city and town. The outside capital of big business is being released within the borders of this state. Economic conditions are stabilizing and improving, and the millions and millions of dollars of tourist wealth are preparing for the march to Florida resorts.

It is a happy outlook which Florida is facing, one which should bring encouragement to every commercial, industrial and travel enterprise within the state.
