School board wants survey to clarify year-round school issue

By VICKI DESORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

Editor's note: This column is part of a series on the year-round school issue.

After a year of discussion, the school board decided to postpone a decision on whether to implement a year-round calendar until after a survey is completed.

Board members and public discussed the issue last week, decided to postpone the decision to the better part of a year and modified the calendar would mean to them. The board decided to conduct a survey.

But the board didn't have anything more than a broad focus. Therefore, they brought in Dr. Richard Dailey, district director of research, planning and evaluation, to look at the results.

"I feel like Moses at the Red Sea without my staff," Dailey said. "I need to focus."

The idea of a telephone survey was discussed, but the board decided a full written survey would be more effective.

In the end, the board was able to point Dailey in a general direction they hoped the survey would go and set a timeline for setting another meeting to discuss the results.

According to the plan, the survey will be ready for board approval by July 1. It will be sent out at the end of September and results will be compiled by November.

County saves a bundle

Altamonte special meeting helps Seminole meet grant requirement

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SAMMORD — Thanks to the quick action of Altamonte Springs commissioners Wednesday, Seminole County and its cities won't have to put up about $400,000 to receive a state solid waste grant in the same amount.

Without the agreement from Altamonte Springs city officials approved in a special meeting Wednesday morning, the county and cities would have to spend a $400,000 to receive that same amount from the state, said Cindy Wright, acting county environmental services director.

Under the state grant requirements, the county and the cities must sign mutual agreements to work together to form a solid waste management plan that will meet the state requirements to reduce the amount of garbage sent to landfills by 40 percent by 1994.

To assist counties and cities to develop the plans, legislators appropriated $25 million last year for the grants. Cities, representing a total of at least 75

Martinez road budget would pave 60 miles

From staff and wire reports

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez proposed transportation budget would build only about 60 miles of new roads, although he claims the spending plan would meet Florida's needs for the next year, it was reported Wednesday.

The governor's plan would not affect the proposed Seminole County Expressway and apparently would have little effect on other Seminole County projects, local road officials said today.

Firefighters estimate $75,000 damage was done to this house.

Lightning hits big home; $75,000 damage reported

From staff reports

ORLANDO — Lightning struck the front door of a Seminole home in mid-morning yesterday, causing extensive damage to the building.

The damage amounted to about $75,000 in damages.

The lightning struck the front door of a two-story, single-family residence located in the 100 block of Palmer Mills Drive.

Firefighters responded to the scene at 10:15 a.m. and found the entire front door had exploded.

Neighbors reported hearing the noise moments earlier and then had difficulty reaching the nearby utility company.

The firefighters made an initial assessment of 18 feet of damage to the exterior of the home.

The damage is nearly half-a-mile long along street with 10 other homes.

All of the neighbors said this morning that the other houses on the well landscaped street did not appear to be damaged.

A spokesperson for the Seminole County Department of Public Safety said there was light smoke damage to the entire home and heavy fire and smoke damage to the attic.

Debris and water were left in a few rooms.

The owner was identified as Palmer Mills. He could not be reached for comment this morning. One person was at home when the fire broke out.

Five engines, one squad unit and an ambulance were at the scene, but no injuries were reported.

There were quite a few firetrucks, the neighbor said. They still had fire trucks out there at midnight. We finally went to bed.

One said that each home has its own alarm system which automatically dispatches to the fire department. Heathrow Security

New commissioner draws support

By SANDRA BOUCHAINE
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — Despite the stormy circumstances surrounding yesterday's special election, commissioners said Jeffrey R. Morton will gain their support. Morton, 41, defeated Perry E. Faulkner for the District 3 commission seat with 90.5 percent of the electorate's vote.

It was the second time in six months Faulkner was defeated for the seat. In November, he ran against Carol Odum, who defeated both he and incumbent Lynette Dennis.

Odum was removed from the seat last month by commissioners after she allegedly violated the city charter by investigating a city employee complaint. A civil suit is pending against the city, city attorney and three commissioners for that action.

Deputy Mayor Gene Farach was the only commissioner who opposed Odum's removal from office on Feb. 27. Farach said he still intends to support Morton as long as he is commissioner.

First of all, I think Jeff Morton is a bright and very good individual. He will make one fantastic commissioner. But I'm still a firm believer that what took place on Feb. 27 was wrong, uncalled for, and as far as I'm concerned Carol Odum is still my commissioner, Farach said Wednesday.

Commissioner Ted A. Poelking, who made the motion to remove Odum, said yesterday that Morton's election expresses the will of the voters. I hope Morton wins in what he thinks is right for the citizens and doesn't go for those special interest groups, Poelking said. They (the citizens) voted him in. They want harmony and they feel he's the best one for the job. Hoy, 90 percent of the votes. You can't get any better than that.

Poelking said the special election was necessary because there should be five commissioners, not four.

I'm sorry to see it happen the way it did, but it happened, Poelking said. Odum has said the special election was not valid and that she was Hysell, who was charged with burglary, dealing in stolen property, theft by obtaining a credit card by fraud and petty theft, was arrested at the police station after questioning. Bond is $2,100.

He is accused of stealing the bank card in a burglary at 220 S.E. Lake St., Longwood. The card was used Jan. 21 to withdraw $100 from the account of John Oliva at the Sanford bank, police reported.

Mother hurt in family fight

Lake Mary man sentenced for batteries

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD - A Lake Mary man was sentenced to a year in jail followed by a year of probation Wednesday as a result of a November conviction on charges of attempted abduction, two counts of child abuse, two counts of lewd and lascivious acts on a child, and one count of delivery of a controlled substance.

Judge C. Vernon Mizell ordered DiSantis' probation to seven 216 Washington Ave., Longwood, pleaded guilty in Seminole Circuit Court Wednesday to the battery and marijuana charges. The state attorney's office dropped three counts of child abuse, two counts of lewd and lascivious acts on a child, and one count of delivery of a controlled substance.

Judge C. Vernon Mizell ordered DiSantis' probation to seven upon completion of his jail term. He also ordered DiSantis not to be alone with any child under the age of 18 years during probation and if he is employed around children, he must inform his employer of this conviction.

DiSantis was arrested June 4 on a charge of attempted abduction after a Longwood woman reported to police her five-year-old daughter had said a man tried to get her to enter his car.

DiSantis was released from the Seminole County jail on $25,000 bond and turned himself in at the Lake Mary Police Department a few days later and was booked on the previous accusations.

Several girls, ages 9 to 14, from the Lake Mary neighborhood, where DiSantis lives, reportedly to police they were fondled by DiSantis in his home between September 1987 and June 1988.

P&Z members not to be fined for filing errors

SANFORD - Former Seminole County Planning and Zoning Commissioners Joe Creanions and James Weinberg won't be fined by Seminole County commissioners for failing to file their 1986 financial disclosure forms on time, the commission decided Tuesday. Neither Creanions or Weinberg have been been P&Z commissioners for more than a year.

The Florida Commission on Ethics found Weinberg had filed his 1986 financial disclosure form more than 2½ months after it was due Sept. 1, 1987. Creanions never filed his 1986 financial disclosure form in 1987, the commission found.

The commission in April recommended county commissioners fine Weinberg $100 and Creanions $200 because of the state ethics violations.

Tuesday, county commissioners said they didn't have an internal notification procedure in place in 1987 to alert their appointees of late reports. So they decided not to punish the two former P&Z commissioners.

County manager Ken Hooper is now contacted by the Supervisor of Elections office if a county commission appointee is late in filing a report. Hooper, in turn, telephones the appointee to notify him the report is due.

Lake Brantley to build gymnasium

By VICKI DESORMIER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD - The school board has approved a Lake Brantley High School plan to build a 100 by 200 foot multi-purpose building on their campus to alleviate the overcrowded conditions in their gymnasium and cafeteria.

"I don't see how we can go on without this building," said Brantley principal Darryn Boothe. "We're running basketball practices until 10:30 at night and we have to move $25,000 of gymnasium equipment in and out of the gym every day."

To be built at a cost of $115,000, the shell of the building will be able to accommodate practices of at least two athletic teams at one time in a practice gym that will include a basketball court, a wrestling area, a gymnasium, sauna and a volleyball court.

Lake Brantley has asked the district for a $15,000 loan from the county which will be repaid at a rate of $10,000 a year.

The school's booster club has pledged $70,000 to assist with the project and $10,000 has been added to the pot from money raised by SunKist in the name of Chris Frank, a recent essay winner in SunKist's Trendsetter contest.

Additional money will come from proceeds from vending machines in the school.

but now must pursue other options.

During yesterday's meeting the board gave their approval to accept bids from financial advisors and a bond counsel in case they decide to pursue a $200,000 bond issue later this year. Gary Ferrell, Assistant Superintendent for Business and Finance, will conduct the search.

The advisor and counsel are not paid unless the bond is approved by the public. Also the charge for their services is the same no matter when they begin work on the bond project.

The school board also gave the go-ahead to consultants to draft the necessary legal paperwork to collect impact fees. The paperwork must be presented to the Seminole County Commission and the commissions of the county municipalities before any impact fees can be collected.

An educational plant survey recently conducted on the Seminole County school district predicted 27 new schools would need to be constructed in the district during the next two decades.

The school board has stated they need to explore all options.

Morton's challenge is settle Longwood

Jeffrey Morton will have his hands full after he is sworn as the newest commissioner in Longwood, a city dominated by selfish cliques and wracked by political dissension.

Morton won by a landslide but he lacks a clear mandate because it was an election where only a sliver of the eligible voters turned out after a campaign where virtually nobody showed up for the only public debate between Morton and his opponent.

But that should not deter him from moving quickly to establish himself as a leader in ameliorating the factional self-interest that has made a mess of politics in Longwood.

What the city needs is a consensus builder, a person willing to seek compromise focused on the best interests of the community at large.

That, after all, is the true art of politics.

How to de-sleaze the U.S. government

Americans properly resist trusting public servants who exploit their jobs for personal gain. But cashing in on government ties has become commonplace.

Some officials take in thousands of dollars for giving speeches or serving on private boards; others jump straight from public posts into jobs lobbying old colleagues. And some lawmakers pour leftover campaign funds into their own pockets.

A new bill offered by President Bush would mop up some of the sleaze, but it overlooks some of Washington's muddiest ethical swamps. To restore faith in government, Congress should expand on the president's promising start.

Much of Bush's ethics package mimics the one that his predecessor vetoed just before leaving office. It would oblige lawmakers and top government aides to wait a year after leaving office before lobbying former colleagues. Executive-branch officials — already subject to such a ban — would be barred from lobbying not just their old agencies, but any executive-branch department.

Bush also favors tougher financial-disclosure rules and sharper limits on outside income for many federal officials. And his plan urges an array of changes that could foster quality in government service: an overdue 25 percent pay raise for judges; a ban on using surplus campaign funds for personal use; a tax benefit for appointees who must sell off assets to avoid conflicts of interest.

Praiseworthy as it is, Bush's plan fails to unsnarl some of Washington's knottiest ethical tangles. Though his own ethics commission urged a ban on speaking honorariums for members of Congress, the president insisted a ban should only be discussed in the context of a congressional pay raise. But without a presidential nudge, lawmakers may never muster the political will to forgo special-interest cash.

The president's ethics plan may indeed keep many public servants from milking their jobs for personal profit. But the milking can be further reduced by severing other lucrative links between policymakers and special interests. If Bush and Congress are serious about de-sleazing government, they should improve the cleanup scheme.

Oliver North at the Pearly Gates

It is the distant future. Trumpets blare at the gates.

"Oliver North, this is a preliminary hearing prior to meeting your maker. Are you ready?"

"Yes, sir."

"You lied to Congress. Not just to congressmen, whom you may scorn, but to the U.S. Congress and its majesty."

"Yes, sir."

"You destroyed evidence. That was wrong and illegal."

"Yes, sir."

"You did stupid things. Not the fence to protect your family from terrorists. That wasn't stupid. But you violated the first commandment of covert work: separation. You let Iran be linked to contra. When Iran was uncovered, so was the diversionary funding to the contras. Click! You were over your head."

"No excuse, sir."

"And you violated the laws of the land regarding helping the contras."

"Well, no sir. Perhaps I don't really know."

"You don't know?"

"There were so many different amendments, so many Boland amendments and others, too. They were worded ambiguously on purpose, as a political compromise within the Congress. There were zealots in the Congress, too."

"Suppose it was never done. All of it — the dumb money diversion, and the other things, too, the third country help, the quids and the quos — all of it never done. What would have happened?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean, suppose the whole executive branch had decided to follow the letter and spirit of all the laws — as the liberals interpret that letter and spirit?"

"But I don't agree with the liberal interpretation. Lots of people don't. Get family not on third country and quids and quos."

"Don't argue with me, Colonel North," I said.

You did stupid things

suppose the liberal interpretation had been followed, what would have happened?"

"The contras would have been in terrible trouble."

"Would they have collapsed? Disappeared?"

"With no money, no American political muscle to back them up, no third country help, yes sir, they might well have collapsed and disappeared."

"But later on, in 1986, when the U.S. Congress did vote money to the contras, wouldn't they then have been all right?"

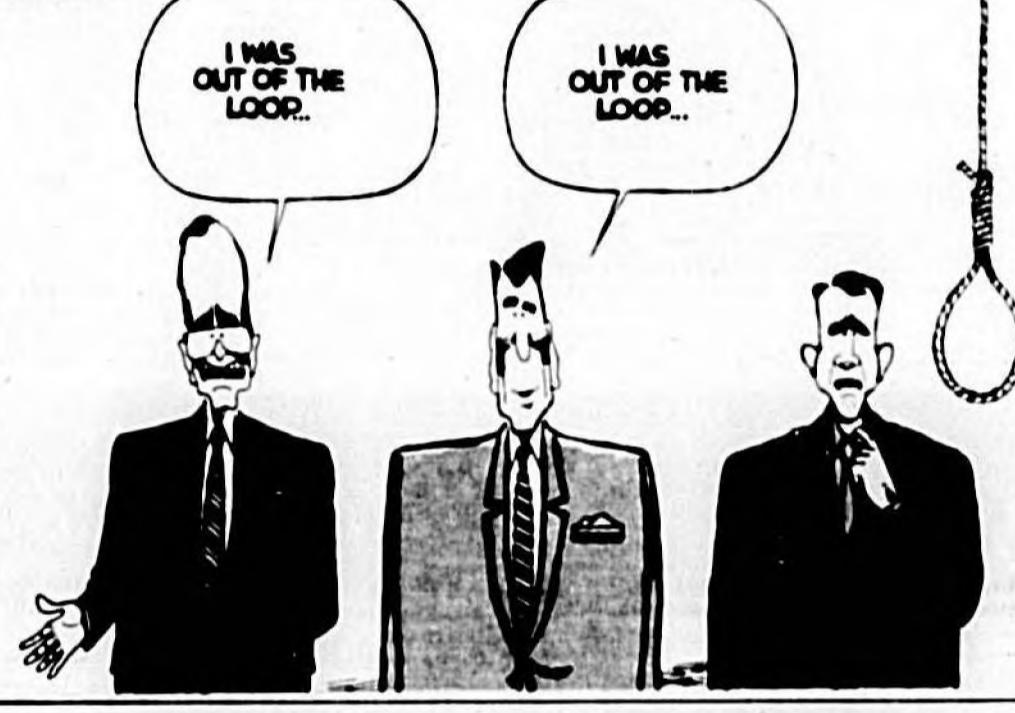

"With respect, sir, no. That's not the way a military force runs. It takes years to put together. It's disbanded, it's chaos. It could take years to resuscitate. It might not have worked at all. Probably not."

"So the contras might have gone out of business. They might never have been around in 1986 and 1987 to put military pressure on the communist government in Nicaragua."

"Correct."

"Very interesting. Stop smiling, Colonel. A very interesting case. Did stupid and illegal things. Lied. Probably helped freedom flourish. Very interesting. You can go to the main hearing now, Colonel North," I said, stop smiling.

SPEECHES

GEORGE F. WILL

Germany as agent of disintegration

WASHINGTON — The century will end as it began, and as it was in much of its middle part. Wary about Germany. Suddenly "das Land der Mitte" is back in the middle of Western worries.

The government of Helmut Kohl, its political support evaporating, has panicked and pandered to anti-nuclear and pro-Gorbachev sentiment by falling away from a NATO decision to modernize short-range nuclear forces. But much more is at stake than those weapons.

The supposed utility of those weapons is three-fold. By being there, those weapons would prevent the Soviet Union from concentrating conventional forces for the blitzkrieg NATO fears most. Because any ban on short-range weapons would be utterly unverifiable, NATO must assume the Soviets will retain such weapons, so NATO weapons are needed to deter Soviet use of them. And in an extreme situation, NATO could use such weapons — the lowest rung on the escalation ladder — to alter the nature of the conflict. Small nuclear weapons are linked to larger ones.

However, all arguments establishing the utility of battlefield nuclear weapons may be refuted by this question: Could an alliance that is paralyzed and sundered by the prospect of modernizing those weapons ever agree to use them? In March, a NATO military exercise was aborted when German and Turkish participants objected to a U.S. proposal for hypothetical use of battlefield weapons against aggressor forces on German and Turkish soil.

Nuclear-weapons systems decay, so the alternative to modernization is obsolescence — unilateral disarmament in this category of weapons by the mid-1990s. If modernization is deemed inconsistent with the latest detente, the solicitude for Gorbachev means giving him a veto over any changes, other than unilateral reductions, in NATO's military dispositions.

But if he really wants to lighten Soviet defense burdens so that there can be a great leap forward in living standards (forward to the standards of, say, Portugal in 1930), he can reduce the burden on his own. If he feels menaced by battlefield weapons that would reach only battlefields west of the Soviet Union, and primarily in das Land der Mitte, his policy is not defensive.

U.S. policy has already conceded too much to Kohl by agreeing to delay modernization until after German elections next year. Kohl's additional demand, for immediate negotiations with the Soviets about such weapons, raises this question for U.S. policymakers: Why sustain Kohl with concessions so that he can implement policies not substantially different than those of the German opposition parties?

U.S. policy is to delay negotiations on nuclear forces in Europe until there are negotiated reductions of the enormous Soviet conventional-force advantages that made deployment of NATO's nuclear forces necessary. Strategic nuclear negotiations also are relevant. And it is U.S. policy that, even with conventional-force reductions, nuclear weapons must be components of deterrence in Europe for the foreseeable future.

Kohl says he only seeks equal ceilings on short-range nuclear systems, not elimination of them. But there are only 88 short-range Lance missiles (the focus of modernization) in Europe. There is no military logic to any particular level between 88 and zero.

Aside from the Lances, there is a large NATO inventory of nuclear artillery and other nuclear weapons. The political pull of zero — not just zero Lances, but the longstanding Soviet goal of a de-nuclearized Europe — might be irresistible.

There is in Europe a crystallizing conviction that nuclear deterrence is now incompatible with detente. U.S. policy has fed anti-nuclear thinking.

At the Reykjavik summit, only Gorbachev's overreaching rescued us from our imprudent agreement to get rid of nuclear weapons. Ronald Reagan defined SDI as the program for getting rid of nuclear weapons.

One rationale for the INF treaty was that it was homeopathic medicine, treating a disease (arms-control fever caused by the anti-nuclear virus) with small doses of the disease. It may have worked briefly, but intervals between bouts of the fever are becoming shorter.

"The Germans," said one of the greatest of them, Goethe, "make everything difficult, both for themselves and for everyone else." History's worst calamity began in August, 1914, when Germany went to war. It has been truly said that if in July, 1914, the Kaiser had been given a blank page on which to describe the world as he wanted it, he would have been hard put to list significant changes.

Germany wanted to be important, but had no clear idea of what that meant. Today Germany is acquiring new importance — as the agent of disintegration of the security system that has kept the peace.

NATO must assume the Soviets will retain such weapons

U.S.-Mexico relations are at a pivotal point and need a real ambassador,

The new findings shouldn't surprise anyone who has followed Negroponte's diplomatic career. He is widely regarded as the mastermind behind the Honduran government's efforts to help the contras. U.S.-Mexico relations are at a pivotal point and need a real ambassador, not a holdover cowboy from the Reagan years.

Mexican sources told our associate Scott Sleek that if Negroponte gets the job, his influence will be diluted because of the revelations from the North trial. Two Mexican newspapers have been dutifully reporting all the details — La Jornada, a publication left of center, and El Financiero, considered to be Mexico's answer to the Wall Street Journal.

The readers of both have cause to worry about what kind of ambassador the Bush administration will send to shore up relations between the two countries. The whopping Mexican debt and the country's drug-interdiction efforts have been major points of contention. Mexico has traditionally resented U.S. meddling in Latin America and it seems Negroponte was born to meddle.

He has never acknowledged the accounts of his escapades in Honduras, which we began reporting in 1983. That year Negroponte was involved in a plan that had all the appearances of using Third World development funds to help the contra military effort.

Negroponte asked the Agency for International Development to put up $7.5 million to build a road to a remote region of Honduras near the Nicaraguan border, ostensibly to help isolated Miskito Indians. But AID sources told us that they quickly figured out the road would be used to train troops and supplies to a staging area for contra raids into Nicaragua. AID was sick of being used for political causes and refused to put up the money.

Negroponte is suspected of organizing covert operations to train the exiled contras. Some news reports said Negroponte even had the Honduran military commander, General Gustavo Alcalde Alvarez, answer to him like an aide de camp.

Negroponte has refused to talk to us while his confirmation is pending. The State Department says it is unfair to blame him for carrying out Reagan administration policies.

The new revelations from the North trial centered on a secret plan to reward Honduras with U.S. aid in exchange for the Honduran government providing a friendly base for the contras. Documents coming out of the trial indicated that Negroponte and Bush met with then-Honduran President Robert Suazo Cordova in 1985. Bush and Negroponte have denied that they discussed any trade-off for U.S. aid.

Nominee's ties to contras in question

WASHINGTON — New Iran contra secrets marred their ugly heads in the Iran contra case and once again Americans are asking: "What did George Bush know?"

But in Mexico the more important question is: "What did John Negroponte know?"

Negroponte is Bush's nominee to be U.S. ambassador to Mexico, a choice that went over like a lead balloon south of the border. Negroponte having been suspected of using his last diplomatic post, as ambassador to Honduras, to carry out the Reagan administration's policy of covert support for the Nicaraguan contras. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has held up Negroponte's confirmation because of newly released documents from the North trial putting Negroponte in the thick of the action.

The new findings shouldn't surprise anyone who has followed Negroponte's diplomatic career. He is widely regarded as the mastermind behind the Honduran government's efforts to help the contras. U.S.-Mexico relations are at a pivotal point and need a real ambassador, not a holdover cowboy from the Reagan years.

Mexican sources told our associate Scott Sleek that if Negroponte gets the job, his influence will be diluted because of the revelations from the North trial. Two Mexican newspapers have been dutifully reporting all the details — La Jornada, a publication left of center, and El Financiero, considered to be Mexico's answer to the Wall Street Journal.

The readers of both have cause to worry about what kind of ambassador the Bush administration will send to shore up relations between the two countries. The whopping Mexican debt and the country's drug-interdiction efforts have been major points of contention. Mexico has traditionally resented U.S. meddling in Latin America and it seems Negroponte was born to meddle.

He has never acknowledged the accounts of his escapades in Honduras, which we began reporting in 1983. That year Negroponte was involved in a plan that had all the appearances of using Third World development funds to help the contra military effort.

Negroponte asked the Agency for International Development to put up $7.5 million to build a road to a remote region of Honduras near the Nicaraguan border, ostensibly to help isolated Miskito Indians. But AID sources told us that they quickly figured out the road would be used to train troops and supplies to a staging area for contra raids into Nicaragua. AID was sick of being used for political causes and refused to put up the money.

Stocks open higher

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher Thursday in moderately active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues, extending gains won in the last session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 3.12 Tuesday to post its first gain in nine sessions, was up 7.15 to 2381.00 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 407-267 among the 1,123 issues crossing the NYSE tape. Early turnover amounted to about 9,728,000 shares.

Dollar and gold mixed

United Press International

The dollar was mixed Thursday in overseas trading on major foreign currency markets. Gold prices were also mixed.

In Tokyo, the dollar rallied against the Japanese yen in quiet trading, closing at 134.50 yen, up 0.11 yen from Wednesday's close.

Dealers in Japan said bullish sentiment towards the U.S. currency pushed it higher after a low opening.

The dollar was also higher in Singapore, at 1.9540 Singapore dollars, up from 1.9537 Wednesday. In Hong Kong the U.S. currency was traded at 7.7885 Hong Kong dollars up from 7.7845.

The dollar began the day mixed in Europe.

In Frankfurt, the dollar opened lower at 1.9000 West German marks, off from 1.9075 at Wednesday's close. The dollar was lower also in Milan at 1.0885 Italian lire, off from 1.0890 lire; and in Paris at 6.4300 French francs, off from 6.4435.

The dollar was higher in Zurich at 1.6982 Swiss francs, up from Wednesday's close of 1.69735. The U.S. currency was unchanged in Brussels at

Before the market opened, the government reported that April retail sales rose a modest 0.4 percent, showing a third consecutive mild monthly performance and more evidence the economy is slowing down. The data was slightly weaker than market forecasts had called for.

Stock prices closed broadly higher Wednesday as futures related buying helped to set the stage for a modest rebound from the market's recent slump.

Aside from the programs, however, trading activity was relatively subdued.

NASA spokeswoman Terri Sindelar said had the two winning groups suggested different names, Bush would have picked a winner.

residents wouldn't meet the required 75 percent rule. Approval by Altamonte Springs commissioners was the key. But Altamonte Springs had recently rescheduled their May 17 meeting to May 23 because of vacation scheduling problems, according to Mark Butler, city aide.

To assist the county and cities in getting the grant — without matching grant strings attached — Altamonte Springs Mayor Dudley Bates and commissioners Edward Rose and Edward Titen held a special meeting to approve the agreement, Butler said. Commissioners Lee Constantine and Pat Fernandez were unable to attend, he said.

Even if Longwood and Casselberry councilmen don't approve the agreement, the required 75 percent was met Wednesday morning. "We certainly appreciate Altamonte Springs for helping us," Wright said.

The funds may be used for operation of the solid waste program and to educate residents about recycling. The county will also share another $66,489 state grant with the cities who sign the agreement for recycling programs.

The agreement places responsibility for waste disposal with the county, which it currently does. Each city will collect garbage and recyclable materials to deliver to the county.

A task force, similar to one currently studying recycling proposals, will complete the solid waste disposal and recycling plan for the county later this year, Wright said.

One of Odom's attorneys, Michael A. Kramer, said yesterday the election has no bearing on the civil lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court on April 3. "We will proceed with the lawsuit and bring it to a resolution," Kramer said.

Kramer said he and Ned N. Julian Jr., also involved in the Odom case, will answer several motions filed by attorneys representing the city to dismiss the suit and to disqualify Kramer and Julian from representing Odom.

The motions were filed April 25 in U.S. District Court by Jeffery & Thomas, P.A. of Maitland. The motion states that because both Kramer and Julian were former Longwood commissioners, they "took part in the preparation, and/or interpretation of the city charter" specifically those sections upon which Odom's lawsuit is based. The attorneys also want the suit dismissed because they contend Odom's allegations are "vague and confusing," and for other reasons.

"We will, of course, answer the motions, and then we will prevail. After all these delaying motions are over, we'd like to see them answer to (our) complaint," Kramer said.

In a related matter, former mayor David Gunter has sharply criticized the commission for ousting Odom and has called for their resignation because he said they violated the Florida Sunshine Law. Gunter said he was involved with the "lame-duck" meetings at which some city commissioners discussed matters that were scheduled for commission meetings. Gunter filed a formal complaint to the Seminole Brevard state attorney's office, which is investigating the matter.

Bullington said that "without a shadow of a doubt" the election was fair.

Mayor Hank Hardy also said he has high hopes for Morton and does not see him as a replacement for Odom, but as an independent person.

"I welcome Commissioner Morton and I think he'll do an excellent job," Hardy said. "I think he'll be a good addition to

Budget

Martinez has called for $1.7 billion in spending for transportation in the fiscal year beginning July 1. But $1 billion of that amount is pledged for salaries and operating costs, leaving only $628 million for new construction.

Rep. Art Grandine, R-Altamonte Springs, said the proposal is reasonable, but he is uncertain what the outcome of road spending will be since the House voted not to issue bonds to raise money for roads this year, a tactic that is critical to the success of governor's road-building plan.

Jack Homan, Sanford aide to Sen. Bud Gardner, D-Titusville, said the road spending picture is too unclear at this time to predict any outcome.

The spending package and proposed bond sale are separate from bonds that will be sold backed by Florida's Turnpike tolls. That money would be used to build the Seminole County Expressway from State Road 426 to U.S. Highway 17-92.

Most of the money in the governor's proposal would be spent on a bridge in Jacksonville and improvements to the Florida Turnpike in south Florida. Only $180 million is left for the rest of the state — about enough to build a single two-lane road 60 miles long, one Florida newspaper reported.

The governor says that he sees no indication that the people are supportive of more transportation, said Ben Watie, assistant secretary in the Department of Transportation. "We're supportive of the governor."

The figures do not include about $1 billion in already approved projects being completed in the new fiscal year. They do reflect about $700 million in cuts to the DOT's 1989-90 road-building program.

Do to the tightened road budget, money for at least one Seminole County project won't be available, said Steve Homan, spokesman for the DOT District 5 office in Deland. Homan said the proposed new bridge over the St. Johns River at U.S. 17-92 will go unfunded.

However, if the Legislature chooses not to issue bonds, as the House has recommended, several local projects would be delayed or eliminated from the five-year work plan for Seminole County, including the widening of SR 434 between State Road 419 and Tuskailla Road, Homan said.

Patricia Woodworth, the governor's budget adviser, said the Martinez budget fits a road-building plan to Florida's pocketbook. Peter Dunbar, Martinez's top lobbyist, said the governor considered, but rejected, shutting down the road building program while the agency straightens out financial mismanagement outlined in an outside audit.

Instead, the governor supports giving the state Transportation Commission more oversight over how the agency spends money, Dunbar said.

The $628 million includes $105 million from the proposed sale of $500 million in bonds to purchase right of way for future roads. The voters approved the bond issue last November, but leading lawmakers are reluctant to shift the money to construction.

Retail sales slow

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Commerce Department today released more evidence that the economy is slowing, reporting that retail sales in April rose a modest 0.4 percent, the third consecutive weak monthly performance.

Sales for the month, adjusted for seasonal factors, stood at $139.9 billion compared with $139.3 billion in March, despite a much anticipated boost from stronger automobile and clothing sales.

Sales of durable goods — those designed to last three years or more, including automobiles — increased a sluggish 0.1 percent during the month, while sales of non-durable goods were up 0.6 percent.

The nation's financial markets, which were expecting a bigger increase in sales, likely will see the report as good news that the economy is indeed slowing as indicated in recent months.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Bush considering anti-crime push

LOS ANGELES — President Bush is considering declaring a national crime emergency and plans to propose a combination of prison construction, a crackdown on criminal gun users and wider use of the death penalty to cope with lawlessness, it was reported today.

But Bush has not yet resolved a deep split within his administration on the sensitive issue of how, or even whether, to regulate assault weapons as part of the effort, the Los Angeles Times reported, citing government sources.

The crime package, shaped principally by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh and Roger B. Porter, White House domestic policy adviser, is scheduled to be unveiled by the president on Monday at a peace officers memorial ceremony on the Capitol Steps.

However, administration officials, noting that announcement of the package already has been postponed, repeatedly pointed out that Bush has yet to sign off on some key elements and that it could be delayed again.

Seal pups doomed by oil spill

VALDEZ, Alaska — Wildlife experts say they are resigned to the fact that seal pups born on beaches fouled by the Exxon oil spill are going to die.

Having failed to meet Wednesday's deadline for cleaning oil from the nation's worst spill off island shores where thousands of seals bear their young every spring, Exxon got a five-day extension, but bowed to Coast Guard pressure and agreed to strip up the pace of the cleanup.

Prince William Sound, where the supertanker Exxon Valdez ran aground March 24 and spilled 10.9 million gallons of oil, is home to 10,000 harbor seals, one third of which haul themselves out of the water every May to give birth on islands in the spill area.

Exxon had been given until Wednesday to clean the beaches of five of the islands in preparation for the anticipated invasion of pregnant seals May 20.

"The deadline has not been met, and it's been extended to May 15," said Joe Bridgman, spokesman for the state Department of Environmental Conservation.

"The actual pupping is not expected to start until the 20th of May, but biologists have seen pups born prematurely," he said.

Arms negotiations will resume

MOSCOW — Secretary of State James Baker met today with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, and a senior Kremlin official announced the superpowers have agreed to resume strategic arms negotiations in June.

Gorbachev met Baker in the ornate office of St. Catherine in the Kremlin. When they sat down to their first round of talks a reporter asked if it was too early to plan a summit with President Bush. Gorbachev answered, "after meeting with the secretary of state, maybe then we will be able to say."

But the Soviet leader, referring to the continuity of Soviet-American relations, added: "I think everything is on the right track."

Impeached judge fights back

WASHINGTON — Convicted federal judge Walter Nixon of Mississippi, ignoring a unanimous House vote to impeach him, is pinning his hopes for vindication on the Senate, his lawyer said.

House members, acting as prosecutors, planned to present three articles of impeachment today to the Senate, which then must decide when to hold a trial for the imprisoned judge.

By a 417-0 vote, the House impeached Nixon Wednesday for making more than a dozen false statements to a grand jury and a federal prosecutor — some of the same charges that led to his 1986 perjury conviction.

The House action — similar to an indictment — sets in motion a lengthy and once-rare constitutional procedure for removing a federal judge from the bench. Nixon still must be tried and convicted by two-thirds of the Senate to lose his lifetime judicial appointment.

"He's looking forward to the trial," said Nixon's lawyer, David Stewart. "He doesn't think he committed any impeachable offenses. This was an unjust conviction."

But the House, tackling its second impeachment in less than a year, left convinced of Nixon's guilt.

Doctors urge widespread AIDS testing

BOSTON — Two infectious disease experts "vigorously" recommended that all American adults under 60 volunteer to be tested for the AIDS virus.

Widescale voluntary testing for the AIDS virus would inform those infected that they are carrying the virus, which would enable them to get appropriate medical care and take steps to avoid spreading the disease, the researchers said Wednesday.

"We have concluded that HIV testing provides a net benefit to both the public health and to persons infected with HIV," said Dr. Frank Rhamie of the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis and Dr. Dennis Malone of the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

"We are recommending HIV testing vigorously to all U.S. adults under the age of 60 regardless of their reported risk history," they wrote in a special article in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Budget negotiators near agreement

United Press International

WASHINGTON — House and Senate budget negotiators, facing a possible snag on how to direct congressional committees to save money, hoped to complete work today on a $1.16 trillion spending plan for fiscal 1990.

The House-Senate budget conference committee heard opening statements Wednesday but dealt with no attempts to resolve the relatively minor spending differences between the two budget outlines for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1. Those efforts were expected Thursday when talks resumed.

"We are poised to complete action on the budget resolution at the earliest time in this decade," said Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee and head of the conference committee.

"We'll do it quick," said Sen. Pete Domenici of New Mexico, ranking Republican on the Senate budget panel.

They and other negotiators predicted the committee would reach final agreement Thursday.

Heading into today's talks, differences existed between House and Senate proposed spending levels for education, science, criminal justice and transportation and in each chamber's directions to congressional committees on how to achieve necessary savings.

Negotiators said the savings instructions — known as "reconciliation" to budget parlance — might be the hardest difference to resolve.

"We are facing some tough problems on reconciliation," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

The two budget resolutions passed last week implement a compromise fiscal 1990 budget agreement announced April 14 between the White House and a bipartisan group of congressional leaders.

Critics said the pact relied too heavily on accounting gimmicks to achieve artificial deficit reductions to bring the fiscal 1990 deficit below the $100 billion level required by the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law.

Bahamas punishment rejected

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate, accepting President Bush's certification, rejected a bid to punish the Bahamas for being lax in the war on drugs, despite claims traffickers in the islands are protected by official corruption.

The Senate killed Wednesday as it did in 1987 and 1988, a resolution disapproving the administration's formal declaration the Caribbean nation is cooperating fully in the battle against illegal drugs. The vote was 57-40.

The certification by Bush was needed to keep foreign aid flowing at current levels to the Bahamas.

The move against the Bahamas was led by Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., who called for a crackdown on the island government for refusing to indict people implicated in drug corruption and failing to extradite those under indictment in the United States.

Painkillers may damage kidneys

United Press International

BOSTON — Heavy use of certain popular over-the-counter non-aspirin painkillers appears to sharply increase the risk of suffering kidney damage, researchers reported.

A new study involving 554 kidney disease patients found people who took acetaminophen every day for at least a year had more than triple the risk of developing chronic kidney disease.

The researchers stressed that the study found no significant increased risk for kidney damage from taking Tylenol and other acetaminophen-containing pain relievers occasionally, but they warned against overusing such drugs.

The take-home message is that we tend to think of aspirin-like medicine as safe without risk," said Dale Sandler, an epidemiologist at the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in Research Triangle Park, N.C., who led the study. "If they are taken improperly they are not without risk."

Sandler and her colleagues compared the use of non-prescription painkillers by 554 adults who recently were diagnosed with kidney disease with 516 people of similar ages who did not have kidney disease.

No increased risk for kidney disease was found for aspirin use, the researchers reported in Wednesday's edition of The New England Journal of Medicine.

But the researchers found people who took a pain reliever known as phenacetin daily had about a five-fold increased risk for chronic kidney disease.

Phenacetin was removed from most pain relievers after studies found the drug was associated with kidney disease and urologic cancers.

Acetaminophen has replaced phenacetin in many pain relievers, even though phenacetin turns into acetaminophen in the body, Sandler said.

The researchers found the risk for kidney disease was increased more than three times for those in the study who took daily doses of acetaminophen for at least a year.

Most of those chronic acetaminophen users in the study had taken the drug daily for at least five years, Sandler said.

The majority of people do not take acetaminophen on a daily basis for extended periods of time, but many people do because they suffer from chronic pain or have gotten into the habit, she said.

Acetaminophen appears to cause kidney damage by accumulating in the kidney and killing certain types of kidney tissue, she said. The kidney filters toxins from the blood.

In an editorial accompanying the study, Dr. William Bennett of the Oregon Health Sciences University in Portland, Ore., said the findings "must be considered tentative until it is confirmed by other studies."

But Bennett said in a telephone interview that people should avoid taking painkillers that contain acetaminophen for long periods because of the danger of kidney damage.

Bennett said the risk appears to be highest in painkillers that contain a combination of several drugs including acetaminophen.

Bennett cited a yet-to-be-published West German study of 517 kidney disease patients that found a similar association.

"The message is that daily use of these sorts of things over a number of years can be damaging to your kidneys," Bennett said.

WORLD BRIEFS

Jalalabad tour reveals scarred town

JALALABAD, Afghanistan — The strategic town of Jalalabad is scarred by repeated rocket and artillery attacks but there is no evidence of the massive devastation officials claim has been inflicted since the provincial capital was besieged by U.S.-backed rebels two months ago.

The Moscow-backed Afghan government flew the first Western reporters to visit the eastern town bordering Pakistan since the rebels launched their drive to capture it for the seat of a provisional government they selected to replace President Najibullah.

The guerrillas met with initial success but their inexperience in conventional combat, the lack of coordination among the divided rebel alliance and the Afghan military's Soviet-supplied air power blunted their bid, turning the offensive into a bloody siege that has sapped their prestige and undermined their ability to dictate a settlement to the civil war.

The military's success in holding the town, which controls a major highway into the capital city of Kabul, has boosted the morale of the Afghan government that many experts had predicted would collapse soon after the Kremlin ended its 10-year occupation and completed its withdrawal Feb. 15.

U.N. force in Namibia deployed

WINDHOEK, Namibia — With little fanfare and no certainty of finishing their task, U.N. officials in Namibia have quietly marked one success — full deployment of a peacekeeping force to oversee Namibia's rocky transition to independence.

U.N. logistics planners ticked a green mark on the yearlong independence calendar Wednesday to close off a complex phase of the multimillion-dollar plan that brought in some 3,000 soldiers and police, 11,000 tons of cargo and 700 vehicles.

"That in itself is an accomplishment," Canadian Lt. Col. Jean Robert Hines said Wednesday.

Some 4,500 peacekeeping troops, 500 police, their vehicles and equipment were marshalled from all corners of the world and moved by sea and air to Namibia between March 8 and today.

Drug cult suspects may face 50 years

MEXICO CITY — Authorities say they will seek the maximum penalty of 50 years in prison for Sara Aldrete Villarreal, the alleged "witch" of a drug smuggling cult blamed in at least 23 deaths in Mexico City and along the U.S. border, and two other suspects.

Marco Antonio Diaz de Leon, director of Mexico City Attorney's Office Trials Department, also announced the arrest of another suspect, Juan Carlos Fraguoso, Wednesday and said the seven suspects were expected to be arraigned Thursday.

"We are asking for the gravest penalties our legal system affords," Diaz de Leon said. "That is to say, 50 years in jail" for the three people suspected of taking part in a "suicide pact."

U.S. ambassador's house shelled

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Shells hit the home of the U.S. ambassador to Lebanon during clashes between Christian forces and Syrian-backed Moslem militias as an Arab League diplomat negotiated to cease fighting that has left 378 dead in two months.

The shelling Wednesday caused extensive damage but no injuries at the house of Ambassador John McCarthy in the Christian suburban village of Yarze, security sources said. McCarthy was not home at the time, the sources said.

It was the third time the house has been hit in two months. Previously, the dining and living rooms and the garage were destroyed.

The shelling occurred during clashes in and around Beirut that raged for a fifth day despite the Arab League peace plan crafted last month.

The undersecretary-general of the Arab League, Lakhdar Al Ibrahim, arrived late Wednesday in eastern Lebanon and held talks with the Shiite Moslem head of Parliament, the first of at least three scheduled meetings with rival Lebanese leaders, officials said.

Al Ibrahim, accompanied by the Kuwaiti ambassador to Syria and the head of an Arab observer force, met with Hussein Al Husseini to end the fighting that erupted March 13, killing 378 people and wounding more than 1,650.

The Arab delegate was to meet in Beirut Thursday with the heads of Lebanon's rival governments, Moslem Selim Hoss and Christian Gen. Michel Aoun.

Recent Arab League-mediated resolutions — stipulating a cease-fire and lifting of blockades imposed by both sides — were scheduled to take effect April 28 but have not been implemented.

The truce collapsed Saturday as Moslem forces kept up the land-and-sea siege of the Christian enclave even though Aoun lifted a sea blockade around three Moslem-run ports south of Beirut.

The siege by Aoun, appointed in a military Cabinet by outgoing President Amine Gemayel, was the primary cause of the fighting that erupted March 13. Moslem leaders opposed Aoun's appointment.

The Moslems have been trying to prevent the Christians from using harbors north of Beirut — their only outlet to the world.

Police sources said fighting erupted Wednesday after shells and rockets fell at a rate of three or four every 30 minutes on the military headquarters and ports in the Christian enclave.

The violence, which was less fierce than the previous four days, killed 12 people and wounded 50, police said.

Military sources said Syrian artillerymen, using field cannons and mortars in west Beirut and in Druze-held mountains southeast of the capital, took part in the fighting, backing Druze and Shiite Moslem militias.

IN BRIEF

NHL PLAYOFFS

Flames advance to Cup finals

CALGARY, Alberta — Two players who drew little attention from opposing defenders combined for the game-winning goal that propelled the Calgary Flames into the Stanley Cup Finals.

Left wing Brian MacLellan redirected a wrist shot by defenseman Rie Nattress through the legs of Chicago goalie Alain Chevrier from 15 feet out 5:19 into the third period Wednesday night, snapping a 1-1 tie and helping Calgary to a 3-1 victory over the Blackhawks.

The triumph enabled the Flames to win their third straight game over Chicago and capture the best-of-seven Campbell Conference Championship series in five games. The Flames will be making their second trip to the finals in four years.

Calgary, with the best record in the league during the regular season, will play either the Montreal Canadiens or Philadelphia Flyers in the Stanley Cup Final. Montreal leads that series 3-2 with Game 6 Thursday night in Philadelphia.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Another no-hitter by the boards

For the third time this season, the Toronto Blue Jays played the role of spoilers, ending yet another pitcher's no-hit bid Wednesday. This time, however, the culprit was somebody other than Nelson Liriano.

Mark Langston of Seattle thumbed with a no-hitter until the ninth inning, but not only lost his no-hitter but also the ballgame as the Blue Jays rallied with three runs in the ninth to edge the Mariners 3-2.

Earlier in the season, Liriano broke up no-hit bids by Nolan Ryan of Texas and by California's Kirk McCaskill in the ninth inning. This time it was pinch hitter Tom Lawless, who led off the ninth with a bloop single to left that ended Langston's bid.

Entering the ninth, only an error by shortstop Omar Vizquel stood between Langston and a perfect game.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Brunansky uses his knowledge

Tom Brunansky used his knowledge of Walt Terrell's pitching to rip a homer off Terrell and break open a tie game Wednesday night.

"I probably know him better than anyone in the ballpark," Brunansky said after his two-run homer in the seventh inning broke a 1-1 tie and lifted the St. Louis Cardinals to a 3-1 victory over Terrell and the San Diego Padres.

Combined with the effort of Joe Magrane, 3-2, who allowed only two hits in 8 2/3 innings, the Cardinals remained in a first-place tie with the New York Mets in the National League East.

Brunansky, who watched the former Detroit pitcher for three years in the American League while with Minnesota, said he has a good idea of how Terrell pitches.

NBA PLAYOFFS

Teams win in different ways

The Detroit Pistons are relying on pressure defense to win in the playoffs while the Los Angeles Lakers are blowing opponents away with their high-flying offense.

The latest defensive stand for the Pistons came Wednesday when Detroit held Milwaukee to 11 points in the fourth quarter to overcome a 13-point first-half deficit. The result was an 85-80 victory over the Bucks in Game 1 of their second-round series.

The Lakers, who used a 16-4 third-quarter burst to race to their 113-102 Game 1 victory over Seattle, led 77-68 with 4:30 left in the third quarter Wednesday night before assuming control in their 130-108 triumph over the SuperSonics.

In each of their four playoff games, the Pistons have had one stellar defensive period to key their victories. Detroit swept Boston in three games in the first round, holding the Celtics to less than 100 points in each game.

Taking a run at the title

Lyman boys looking to capture top track prize

By MARK DLYTHE
 Herald sports writer

Lyman High School boys track team will concentrate on what it has to do to bring home a state title this Saturday when its seven qualifiers take to Showalter Field in the Class 4A state meet.

The Greyhounds are in the hunt to win the state title and all seven athletes are capable of scoring well for them. Lyman could pull an upset (since it's not the favorite) if all goes well.

"On paper it's Vero Beach with 35 points and us with 34," Lyman coach Fred Finke said. "Everyone on our team knows what to do, and if they can all give a little extra, we have a good shot to win a state title."

Senior Darren Marshall, owner of nation's second fastest time in the 330 hurdles and ranked as the top hurdler going into the event, leads the Greyhounds. Marshall is also tied for the second best effort in the state in the pole vault, having cleared 13-6.

"Darren is running real well in the 330's right now, he's come on in the past few weeks in the event," Finke said. "He didn't run well over the final two hurdles in the regionals and if he does this week, I think he can break 37."

"What people don't know about Darren is that he can clear 13-6 in the vault," Finke added. "If he clears that height on his first jump again, I think he'll be in the top three."

Teddy Mitchell goes into the state finals ranked on top in both the mile and two mile. Mitchell has run outstanding races in both events in the district and regionals and would like to put the closing touches on his season with a strong state meet.

"Teddy needs to accept his leadership role," Finke said. "He's one of our leaders now and he knows exactly what he has to do. I think he has a real good shot of winning the double Saturday."

Senior Nick Radkewich, another strong distance runner for the Greyhounds, will also be closing out his high school career. Entered in the two mile with the second fastest time in the field, Radkewich has a habit of coming alive in the state meets.

Lyman will hope he can run along with Mitchell and the two can take the top two places in the two mile. The tandem gave the Greyhounds 12 points in the regional meet as they finished first and second and 12 points in the state meet could really boost their team's chances.

James Flint, who has qualified in the 440 dash, is a key for Lyman. He has steadily improved all season. Flint is ranked eighth going into the event but has the ability to break in the top five.

"He's ranked eighth but he's only two tenths of a second out of third," Finke said. "He's only entered in that one event Saturday and if he can run below his time last Friday, he could be in the top three."

Lady Patriots ready the second time around

By TONY DODDRELL
 Herald sports editor

On the eve of the Class 4A slow-pitch state semifinals, Lake Brantley High School coach Renny Betris likened playing in the state tournament to becoming a parent.

"When my first child was born, I was so in awe of everything. I didn't know if it was a boy or a girl until 10 minutes after it happened," said Betris with a laugh. "But the second time, I was more alert. I was in control of my emotions and I was able to pay attention."

Betris is hoping that his Lady Patriots will similarly benefit from their second trip to the state tournament in three years. In 1987, Lake Brantley lost to Tampa-Gaither 2-1 in the championship game.

"The first time, the girls were in awe of everything," said Betris. "We were happy if we won, but if we lost, it wasn't a big deal because it was our first time there."

"But this time, some of these kids have been here before. There are different faces on those kids and it's rubbed off on the kids that are new to it. They're really loose and ready to play. We haven't done anything different than what we have all year."

What the Lady Patriots have been doing all year is putting together a very impressive 24-1 record. Among those 24 wins is a victory over Palm Beach Gardens, the team they are to meet tonight at 8:30 p.m. in one of the semifinal games.

Second baseman Michelle Davis is one of just two freshmen on Lake Brantley's state semifinalist softball team. The Lady Patriots play Palm Beach Gardens tonight at 8:30 p.m. at Merrill Park for the right to advance to tomorrow's championship game.

While he believes that any team that gets this far automatically looks ahead to the championship game, Betris is confident that his team will take care of the business at hand.

"I don't think the girls will be over-confident," said Betris. "They (Palm Beach Gardens) are the best defensive team we've played all year. We had 15 solid rocket base hits and we only scored nine runs. I don't think we scored from second on a single all night. They're always in position to make plays and all outfielders have good arms."

"They didn't hit that night and we did, that's what it amounted to. There was only one error in the game and we made it."

In fact, Betris believes that having beat Palm Beach Gardens will be to the Lake Brantley's advantage, not so much in building the Lady Patriots' confidence as in creating doubt for Palm Beach Gardens.

"Palm Beach Gardens has been in finals three of last four years," said Betris. "But this time, there's something new to them in that they're playing somebody that beat them. There's that doubt. 'Can we beat them?'"

Conversely, there's never been any doubt about Lake Brantley's confidence level. All season long, when the Lady Patriots were faced with a big game, they rose to the occasion.

"When we went and played in Palm Beach, everyone was in awe with the way we handled ourselves," said Betris. "That's what special about these kids. I do most of my motivating in practice but when it's time to play, they come to play. I know they'll be ready to play and do what it takes."

"You can't ask for more than that. Sometimes we play to the level of our opponents, but I believe that's human nature. It's very unusual for high school kids, but we've been fortunate enough to be able to turn it on when we've needed it in some cases. I know they'll pump for (tonight)."

Betris points to Lake Brantley's

Ken Rummel blasts Sun Bank; Moose, Kiwanis win

From staff reports

SANFORD — Catcher Tommie Thompson slugged a two-run home run to highlight a 10-run third inning rally for Ken Rummel, as they blasted Sun Bank 18-1 in a Sanford Little Major Baseball League game Wednesday night at Fort Mellon Park.

Terrance Jenkins picked up the win for Rummel, striking out four and allowing just three hits in three innings pitched.

After a scoreless first inning, Rummel put together a four-run rally in the top of the second to take control of the game. After Jenkins walked and was thrown out trying to steal second, the next eight batters for Rummel reached base on a hit or walk.

Terrell Jackson started things by drawing a walk. Then Khalia Addison singled and Virgil Hillsman walked to load the bases for Thompson, who stroked a two-run double.

Alfred Harris followed with another walk to load the bases again before Joshua Watson hit into a fielder's choice, Hillsman being retired at home. The final two runs of the inning scored when Ivory Peterson and Richard Budget drew RBI walks.

Rummel blew the game wide open with the 10-run explosion in the third. Along with Thompson's home run, Jackson hit a triple, Addison hit two doubles and Hillsman, Watson, Budget and Jenkins all contributed singles in the inning.

In the fourth inning, Jenkins and David Hayes both singled as part of another four-run rally for Rummel.

Sun Bank's only run came in the third inning, when Adrian Knight singled and came around to score.

Leading Rummel's 13-run attack was Addison, who was 3-for-4 with two doubles. Watson and Jenkins each contributed a pair of singles while Thompson finished with a home run and a double. Ten of the 11 Rummel players scored at least one run during the game.

The only hits for Sun Bank came off the bats of Knight, Walter Gaines and Darrell Riggins.

Junior League Baseball

Moose came up with a pair of three-run innings to take a tough 7-6 victory over the Knights of Columbus, its first loss in two years, in Junior League Baseball action Wednesday night at Chase Park.

In other action it was Harders taking a forfeit victory over Rotary.

Lawrence McIntyre led Moose with a two-run triple in the third inning. Don Hunt had two runs scored with Reginald Braxton scoring a single run. Both Hunt and Braxton drew walks before McIntyre's hit.

Tyrone Montgomery had a single, two stolen bases and a run scored. Adreas Key reached on an error and scored a run with J.D. Bell and

Pining for their old Kentucky home

Club keeps alive bluegrass roots

By DAVINA BURCH
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — May 6th found many people in front of their television sets viewing the Kentucky Derby. One special group crowded together to cheer on the racers and, at the same time, capture a piece of "home."

The Kentucky Society of Central Florida is composed of former Kentuckians transplanted in Florida, according to Louise Jackson, one of the original members and organizers of the group.

Jackson explained that the club was officially begun on March 16, 1986, when former Kentuckians responded to an ad in the newspaper and attended their first meeting at the Eastmonte Civic Center in Altamonte Springs.

It so happened that Margaret Robertson and Rosemary Prather (two transplanted Kentuckians) were visiting Jackson one Sunday afternoon. They were discussing, as they had many times before, the need for an organized social group of Kentuckians in the Seminole County area. Deciding to take the task upon themselves, they called two more former Kentuckians, Betty Kline and Barbara Williams.

Their first meeting had an attendance of approximately 100 people, according to Jackson, and was a huge success.

Currently, membership runs at about 30 people.

Purely social in nature, the group meets only three times a year—in May for "Derby Day," in July for a picnic and in October for their auction (an event that raises money to pay the rent for their meeting places.) Bill Bailey and his bluegrass band perform at some of the functions.

The club always opts for a covered-dish dinner, because "Kentuckians are the best cooks in the world," Jackson said.

Since the annual fees are only $5 per person and this is used to pay for extras for their dinners (paper plates, coffee, tea, etc.),

Club president Vance Rogers (left) and other members of the Kentucky Society of Central Florida watch pre-race TV coverage on their Kentucky Derby Day.

Proudly displaying their certificates of colonelship are new colonels Viola and Maurice Aube.

She did. She ran into the now-Floridian parents of a friend with whom she used to work in Kentucky.

Erik said she was unable to attend the club's Derby Day event this year because she was actually in Louisville at a Derby Day party.

Betty Kline was reunited with a high school friend through the local Kentucky Society. She and Margaret Robertson (the current club treasurer) "share a lot of memories" growing up.

Erik felt that this group would provide a "connection with home" and that she might meet "somebody that knew somebody."

The Kentucky Society of Central Florida's Kentucky Derby Day activities included the usual covered-dish dinner, meeting and then, of course, watching the televised races. According to Kline, "It was a lovely event."

Through the newsletter sent out by Georgia Anderson, correspondence secretary, the members were instructed to be able to sing "Old Kentucky Home" on Derby Day.

"We failed miserably."

STRIKING OUT IN FLORIDA

DEAR STRIKING OUT: I don't need a survey to tell me that decent women want decent men. I also know that virtue and virginity don't necessarily go hand in hand. There are virginal eads and experienced people with hearts of gold.

Since by your own admission you are shy with a capital "S," get some counseling to overcome your shyness, and the rest will fall into place. There are singles groups, square dancing, cooking classes, workout gyms. Get going. The longest march in the world starts with one step.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column every day, but I never thought I'd be writing to you. I just want to comment on the subject of underage drinking that is supervised by adults.

Abby, you must be nuts if you think teens aren't going to find some way to drink. Which would you rather have: An underage kid driving drunk after a beer bash and ending up dead? Or that same kid drinking at home under adult supervision, and not being allowed to leave until sober?

The answer should be very clear.

BETTER SAFE THAN SORRY

DEAR BETTER SAFE: Must I choose between two evils? I'll pass. I would not "supervise" underage drinking at home or anywhere else because I do not approve of underage drinking. And if kids are going to "find some way" to drink, they will have to do it without my help.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 60800, Los Angeles, Calif. 90060. All correspondence is confidential.)

Peri-rectal abscesses may require surgery

DEAR DR. GOTTL: I suffer from peri-rectal abscesses. Following a dose of antibiotics, everything returns to normal, but my doctor indicates there is a 50 percent chance the problem will occur again. Is this your experience?

DEAR READER: Like abscesses elsewhere in the body, infections near the rectum (peri-rectal) tend to recur. They are helped by antibiotics; however, once the drugs have been withdrawn, the infections start up all over again. In my experience, peri-rectal abscesses often require surgical drainage; the collections of infection have to be opened so that pus can drain out—and be kept open to prevent re-infection.

Ask your doctor to refer you to a surgeon for advice regarding an operation to solve your problem. Once recurring abscesses are drained, they seldom cause continuing difficulty.

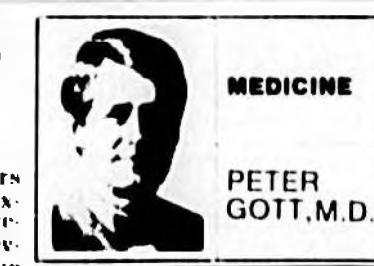

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-9369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTTL: I suffered from constant cold sores until I tried Lysine tablets. Since these can be purchased without prescription, why aren't doctors telling their patients about them?

DEAR READER: Cold sores are recurring infections around and in the mouth, probably caused by herpes viruses and often triggered by stress or minor injury, such as sunburn of the lips.

Lysine is an essential amino acid, one of the substances needed by the body to build protein. In some patients, supplemental doses have been shown to help prevent or heal cold sores. The reasons for this are unknown. However, Lysine frequently works and can be tried by cold-sore sufferers because it is safe and inexpensive. Many doctors do recommend this therapy. However, they usually prescribe acyclovir, a prescription anti-viral drug, which has shown promise in the treatment of patients with widespread, frequent bouts of cold sores.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Declarer played the queen of diamonds from dummy and ducked when East played the king. He played low on the return of the 10, but West overtook with the jack and cleared the suit. South then banked the success of the contract on the favorable location of the king of clubs and a normal club split. He cashed A-Q of spades and two more spades, then led dummy's 10 of clubs and passed it. Next he played a club back to his jack. Alas, West showed out, and declarer was left with only eight tricks. Was there any remedy for this sad state of affairs?

A competent defender is accustomed to giving correct count when partner may need to know when to take a key card in a side-suit. Suppose declarer were to attack the play of today's hand by leading the queen of spades from his hand after he had won the ace of diamonds. West would follow with the four, and declarer could well assume that this lowest card would be showing an odd number of cards in the suit. (It is standard to start an echo or high-low with an even number of cards.) Since it is quite unlikely that West holds one spade or five spades, declarer could assume three and overtake the queen with dummy's king. He now plays clubs as before, but after winning the second club he plays ace and a spade to the jack, cashes the last spade and takes another club finesse for nine tricks.

Sure, a defender could cross South up by not giving true count, but that is not likely to happen.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Beda Odeh
YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 12, 1968

A larger than usual amount of opportunities are likely to come your way in the year ahead. One half will be of a material nature and the other half will pertain to your social interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you hope to lead and inspire others today it will have to be done by setting the proper example. Don't ask anyone to do something you wouldn't do. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences which are governing you in the year ahead. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-91428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There could be a conflict today between your positive and negative imagination. Take control for your thinking and don't let self-doubts crowd out your optimistic thoughts.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Consider any situation you manage for someone today as a sacred trust, especially if there is money involved. Strive to live up to the faith others have in you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard against tendencies today to jump into situations where the odds favor others more than you. Impulsiveness could set you up for a fall.

VENUS (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A friend will resent it today if your curiosity gets out of hand and you probe too deeply into a confidential matter. Mind your own affairs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Try to limit your shopping expenditures to essential items today. This is not a good time to take on long-term obligations for something you can do without.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Don't waste your time jousting with windmills today. Establish pragmatic priorities early in the day and don't allow yourself to go off on unproductive tangents.

A tan is hazardous to health

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Americans should wear sunscreen when they go out in the midday sun and shun tanning parlors to protect themselves from dangerous ultraviolet radiation, a group of medical experts warned.

A committee convened by the National Institutes of Health to study sunlight's impact on the skin concluded that no type or degree of tanning is safe.

"Tanning is visible evidence of injury to the skin and in that sense it is a potentially hazardous practice," said Dr. David Bickers, the committee chairman and director of the Skin Diseases Research Center in Cleveland.

Exposure to harmful ultraviolet rays from natural sunlight and artificial sources "is increasing substantially in the population in the United States," the 14-member committee said in its report Wednesday.

Prolonged exposure to ultraviolet radiation is known to cause wrinkles and increase the risk for the two leading types of skin cancer.

"Over the past several decades, the average American's exposure to ultraviolet B radiation has increased considerably due to changing lifestyles, more outdoor recreational activities, more emphasis on tanning, sunburn clothing and a population shift to the Sun Belt," the report said.

Depletion of the earth's protective ozone layer and the growing popularity of tanning salons are other major factors behind the ultraviolet increase, the panel said.

Ozone, a gas formed high in the atmosphere, screens out much of the sun's damaging ultraviolet radiation before it reaches the earth's surface. However, scientists have found the protective layer is thinning due to pollution.

If people do not develop ways to reduce such pollution or to better shield themselves from ultraviolet rays, the panel said, studies indicate there will be an additional 1 percent to 3 percent annual rise in the two most common forms of skin cancer — basal cell and squamous cell carcinoma.

More than 500,000 new cases of such skin cancer are reported in the United States each year.

To protect against the increasing ultraviolet threat, Americans should try to stay out of the sun between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. — the hours of peak sun exposure, the panel said. If that is not possible, the committee recommended daily use of sunscreens with a sun protection factor of 15.

Although there have been no scientific studies about the long-term health effects of the chemicals found in sunscreens, Bickers said his panel concluded "the benefits of sunscreens outweigh any hazards."

The best types of sunscreen, the committee said, are those that not only protect against the ultraviolet B (UVB) energy, but also against the less intense ultraviolet A (UVA). Lotions capable of protecting against UVA contain the ingredient benzophenone, committee members said.

Although UVA is 1,000 times less potent than UVB in producing sunburn, up to 10 times more UVA reaches the earth's surface than UVB. That predominance means UVA probably plays "a far more important role in contributing the harmful effect of sun exposure than previously suspected," the panel said.

UVA is the prime radiation used to artificially tan more than 1 million Americans daily at 20,000 or more tanning salons nationwide, the panel said.

"Some UVA lamps generate more than five times more UVA per unit time than solar UVA radiation reaching the earth's surface at the equator. At these doses, even 'pure' UVA is likely to have adverse biologic effects," the panel warned.

Pauling debunks fusion theory

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Nobel laureate Linus Pauling set forth an explanation Wednesday that may debunk Utah researchers' claims of creating nuclear fusion at room temperature.

In a letter published in the British scientific journal Nature, Pauling contends chemical reactions, rather than a nuclear process, may account for the heat reportedly generated by the Utah team's simple, table-top device.

If such fusion could be achieved, it could provide a cheap, safe and virtually inexhaustible energy source.

Pauling, who won the 1954 Nobel prize in chemistry and the 1962 Nobel peace prize, suggested conventional chemical bonding of heavy hydrogen with palladium can explain many of the phenomena reported in the Utah device.

Meanwhile, a spokesman at the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico Wednesday said officials were "getting a little frustrated" because the Utah researchers had failed to agree to a proposal to study their experiment.

Spokesman James Breen said the government laboratory sent an agreement to the University of Utah about 10 days earlier outlining a plan to have Los Alamos scientists study the Utah experiment and then test a replica of the device at Los Alamos.

"The university has not yet fit to sign off on the agreement. We're in a hold position. We're anxious to get on with it," Breen said.

"We're getting a little frustrated on this end. It's our understanding that they are concerned with intellectual property rights. We're anxious, willing and we've been put on hold," he said.

Stanley Pons and Martin Fleischmann stunned scientists around the world March 23 when they announced they had created "cold" fusion in a flask of water at the University of Utah. Past efforts to generate fusion have centered on mimicking the high heat and pressure found on the sun, a natural fusion reactor.

The Utah device consists of palladium and platinum electrodes inside a jar filled with "heavy water" — a liquid characterized by an extra atom of hydrogen and easily derived from sea water.

When a current passes between the electrodes, the water splits into oxygen and deuterium and the deuterium is absorbed into the palladium, essentially undergoing fusion, Pons and Fleischmann claim.

But Pauling, a theoretical chemist and biologist noted for his work on intramolecular forces, argues fusion is probably not taking place.

When deuterium chemically combines with the palladium electrode, the bonding creates an unstable compound, palladium deuteride, which is likely to break down, Pauling said.

"This unstable deuteride may begin to decompose either slowly, resulting in an increased liberation of heat, or explosively, as Fleischmann and Pons observed when a 1-centimeter (0.4 inch) cube of the deuterated palladium disappeared," Pauling contends.

The Nobel laureate first voiced his suspicions about the Utah work in April at the meeting of the Materials Research Society in San Diego.

However, another letter in Nature holds out a glimmer of hope for the Utah claims, and offers a reason why many other scientific teams have not been able to duplicate the experiment.

James Bockris of Texas A&M University and John Gittins of England's Atomic Energy Authority said they think it is essential to make sure palladium electrodes are free of impurities before the experiment begins.

"We suggest that prior accumulation of hydrogen in defects in palladium electrodes may prevent the build-up of deuterium, and that this could explain why cold fusion is hard to replicate," they wrote.
