Hull Mission Said Success By Roosevelt

Purpose Of Russian Conference Defined As Bringing Peace, Ending Aggression

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29, (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that the Moscow conference has been a great success and indicated it was in the final phases where formal documents of agreement are being drafted.

He also said at a press conference that the overall objective was peace in the world and an end of aggression. He added he was very much in favor of a Senate declaration that, to avoid war in the future, this country will cooperate with others, but he did not say that the (final) resolution in the Senate was adequate.

Meanwhile, sharply critical of moves to commit this country now on post-war policies, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) told the Senate the passage of the Connally resolution will be interpreted by Russia as backing her demands for invasion of Poland, the Balkans and the Baltic states.

And Senator George (D-Ga.) charged advocates of strong international commitments are destroying the effectiveness of any Senate declaration on post-war policy by dragging over words and phrases.

The Ukrainian, who helped draft the Connally resolution plauding the United States to join with other nations to prevent aggression, told an interviewer he thought half the punch of the proposal was lost by seemingly "indefinable" terms. "I don't see any critics of the resolution among whom Senator William H. (D-Ala.) are doing anything but discrediting the impression in the country that it is meaningful and indicative."

Marine Corps Group Beats Shooters Of West Coast League

U.S. Marines at Quantico, Va., who were formerly outpointed in a monthly postal pistol shooting competition with members of the West Coast Pistol League of the National Guard, avenged things up on Oct. 17, by out-pointing the Florida teams shooting 100 yards away by a score of 6736 to 6634. It was reported today by Byrd Goods, president of the Seminole Gun Club.

The Marines won in Class AA, A, and C, shooting, while the Floridians won in classes B and D. With the series now even with a match apiece, the annual rubber will take place on Nov. 21, when the West Coast marksmen will make a special effort to boost their Class C average. This proved to be their weakest class of shooting as it was found necessary to put in two substitutes in the annual ranking in losing the match by more than 120 points.

The following scores were made by members of the Seminole Gun Club who took part in the match:

Class	A	B	C	D
J. Wolfe	AA	800	725	680
J. Williams	A	725	680	650
J. Allen	B	800	740	700
P. Dowling	B	800	740	700
W. Graham	B	740	700	680
G. Mawn	C	700	680	650
N. Wright	D	680	650	650

The Seminole Gun Club has just overhauled its range on the lakefront, and has put new roofs on the shooting sheds, and has covered the sides with palmetto leaves to keep out the wind during the cooler season.

Ammunition is sold to members at cost, and the annual dues of the Club are one dollar a year. The Club is anxious to attract men interested in pistol shooting who had three hours time per month devoted to it after work.

RCAF Student Confesses To Wife's Murder

New York Heiress Is Beaten To Death In Row Over His Effort To See Baby

NEW YORK, Oct. 29, (AP)—Pale and shaky after hours of police grilling, Wayne Loneragan finally cracked yesterday and confessed he had strangled his beloved wife with his hands after he had beaten her over the head with a brass candlestick.

Loneragan, a 25-year-old Royal Canadian Air Force student, said in his confession, announced by District Attorney Hogan that he left the lifeless body of his wife Patricia Burton Loneragan, 22, and returned to the apartment of a friend where he ordered breakfast.

In his confession, which came after the grilling and circumstantial evidence had shredded the alibi he claimed since his arrest Monday in Toronto, Loneragan outlined his movements on the fatal Sunday morning.

He said he called at his wife's studio furnished flat in Rockwood hill at 8:45 in the morning and was admitted.

Hit Her In Bed

After some words, he confessed he hit her as she lay on the bed with a brass candlestick. When she scratched and tore at his face, he said he hit her again and then strangled her.

The motive for the killing was not revealed by the district attorney.

Loneragan, twice rejected by selective service for perversions, was serving his first tour which began at 2:40 this afternoon and continued until 5:10, that he left his wife's lifeless and naked body where it was found Sunday night by Capt. Peter Elser, USMC, who called to escort her to dinner.

Loneragan admitted that his wife had threatened him with a revolver, threatened to kill an American soldier who found him, stole his uniform and released him of his ready cash was all fiction.

He said he threw his uniform to which police instituted an extensive search for the gun. It was less than two miles from the home of John Frederick Foye where he was a weekend guest.

Capt. F.M. Hughes Talks On Navy Day In St. Petersburg

Says Initiative Ours; We Will Pick Our Own Battle Fields"

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 29, (AP)—A Navy day audience in Williams Park, Web City afternoon card, Capt. F. M. Hughes, director of three naval naval battalions in the Pacific, command officer of the Sanford Naval Training Center, said today we are well on our way forward.

We can say with complete confidence that this initiative is ours. We will pick the battlefields from on high.

The naval officer, lauded for outstanding action at Pearl Harbor and Midway, told his audience, "Our way through the Pacific Ocean is clear enough for both the United States Fleet and the Japanese Fleet if each keeps to its part,"

Farm butter is raised from 10 to 12 points to reflect a season of production, and price is hiked from four to six points.

Margarine widely used as a butter substitute, is raised from four to six points to stabilize demand which threatens to out run supply.

OPA said the increase from 10 to 12 points in cheese of various kinds (cheese, neufchatel, creamed cottage cheese and cream spread) was designed to check disproportionate flow of milk and cream into these products.

Meat Points Cut

Forty-two pork, veal, lamb and mutton items are cut one to two points in most possible a six percent increase in the consumer allowances of all rationed meats next month. Only boned and bonless, sliced ready-to-eat ham shows an increase—up one point.

Beef is the sole major category in which no point reduction is made. It is expected to show a further moderate decline of five percent next month and military purchases will continue heavy.

Shortening and both salad and cooking oils are increased on points to five points a pound.

Sample reductions in meat point values:

Veal: 10 lbs., down two points; lamb chops, down one; center pork chops, down one; pork roasts, down one; Canadian-style bacon, pieces or sliced, down one.

The generally brighter rationing outlook contrasted with the latest cost of living report of the U.S. government's bureau of labor statistics which showed a rise of four-tenths of one percent from August to September, chief increases of higher clothing and food prices. In the previous three months the index had declined 1.1 percent.

Perekop Endangered Last Escape Hatch From The Crimea; Japs Pushed Back

LONDON, Oct. 29, (AP)—A total of 1,200,000 German civilians have been killed or reported missing and believed killed in an eight-day period beginning Oct. 21 to Oct. 28, the British贴士 quoting official German government statistics, said today. Casualties are said to be 18,252 killed, 10,000 reported missing and believed killed up to Sept. 30.

On Associated Press Threats of a crippling disaster heightened for the German Army today as the Russians cut the last north-south railway east of the Bug River and pushed swiftly across the open Noginsk steppe to within 60 miles of Perekop, the last escape hatch of the Crimea.

Meanwhile, the Germans recovered in the battle for Rome, and one German division concentrated today near Monte Cassino. The Fifth and Eighth Armies made shore advances in the early morning. Japan, the other U.S. army, moved back under the impact of General MacArthur's offensive which swept up the Treasury Islands, 200 miles southeast of key base of Rabaul.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Oct. 29, (AP)—Defying a steady rain and deadly concentrations of German artillery, Gen. Mark W. Clark's American troops drove深入敌军 from more important high ground along both sides of the Tunisian Volturno River, according to reports received here.

"Our progress is astounding," an Allied communiqué announced yesterday in reporting the capture of Rivaldo, 11 miles northwest of Capua by Clark's troops and the continued success of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army in throwing bridges across the Taro and the Arno.

The Germans have massed great numbers of tanks and men to defend their mountain bases from Monzambano on the Enza to the Apennines, and the Adriatic. Intended to well camouflaged positions and a numerable 48 million tons and 100,000 men, the Germans' two of the enemy's most effective weapons, as well as many other types of field pieces, machine guns and mortars.

Mole Cricket Bait Is Distributed To Seminole Farmers

A total of 40,000 pounds of mole cricket bait has been distributed to vegetable and dairy growers during the past week and the supply is growing fast.

County Agent J. R. Dawson stated today. Applications for the bait may be made at Mr. Dawson's office in the Court House, and an entomologist from the Bureau of Entomology has been sent to the area to assist the farmers.

Mr. Dawson, who is a member of the Seminole County Agricultural Extension Service, said the bait will be distributed to the Seminole and Lake Wales areas.

Claude Watts was found guilty of unlawful possession of a semi-Hawaiian gecko which had faced the same charge was acquitted. These cases concluded the docket for the Fall session of county Court.

Other highlights of the Navy day celebration was a dinner reception tendered Capt. Hughes and marine corps officers in the area and representatives of the city government and member of Congress.

Following the afternoon rally Capt. Hughes was the guest of the National Aeronautics association of the Chamber of Commerce. The movie film, "Battle of Midway," in which Capt. Hughes appears, was screened during the meeting.

Four offered to the Army must pass a physical test and they frequently are turned down for defective teeth, eyes or ears.

The U.S.O. was chartered in January, 1941, with $10,000,000 in funds to operate government-built centers.

The man leaving are: Parker Van Nees and George Andrew Spear of Sanford, Leon Chester Oliff of Orlando and Wayne Edward Polk of Lake Monroe.

"Timely use of these poison baits has saved growers in the state millions of dollars annually," he added, "and eliminated the necessity of plowing over many fields of celery that had been destroyed by pests."

TRAFFIC VS WAR

CHICAGO, Oct. 29, (AP)—War-time driving restrictions are reducing the traffic toll but the total since Pearl Harbor is twice the nation's battle losses, the National Safety Council said today. There were 21,940 who died in combat, 45,000 in traffic accidents.

John Paul Jones Back, Sailed In Salerno Fleet

Kin Of Revolutionary Hero, On Liberty Ship, Under Attack

NEW YORK CITY, Oct. 28.—John Paul Jones, second great-grandson of the famous Revolutionary naval hero, has returned to New York from a four-month voyage to Oran and invasion shores carried out in the Bonhomme Richard, the name of his ancestor.

John Jones told his story of how America has just begun to fight at the recruiting office of the War Shipping Administration, 15 Broadway. Later he went to Denver, Colo., his home, where another John Paul Jones, his two-month-old son, awaits his acquaintance.

He sailed from New York in the second of a series of convoys sent by the South African Line.

"A few days after the convoy left port a companion tanker was skipped by the South African Line.

Mr. Jones alternated in standing in the engine room and manning a 20-mm gun throughout the voyage. After arriving at Oran the ship shuttled back and forth to the front needed by our troops "but the trips were quiet," according to Mr. Jones. "There was an air raid in each of the towns just after we left except the third one. We weren't touch-

Leaves Oran for Salerno
On Sept. 3 the ship left Oran on its biggest adventure—the invasion of Italy via the beaches of Salerno. Salvoes from the attack of the second wave of invasion forces came at Barretto Point, a mile offshore. "The first to hit the fighters, we saw two or three come down. Those that were left came down but anything bad we heard they were all destroyed and destroyed on the way back," Mr. Jones said.

Two days later the Liberty ship, loaded with bombs, gasoline, demolition charges, other materials and a few troops, stood five miles offshore from Agropoli in the Gulf of Salerno, watching a huge air raid against the beaches.

"The closest we came to getting hit was just after we got under way to leave the Gulf of Salerno," he continued. "I was in the engine room when a bomb grazed our bow. The ship sat up on her stern for a minute. Then another bomb grazed the bow and she sat up on her bow. Athletes and other things went flying in the engine room. We were sure we were sinking. As it turned out there was damage but we got under way again in a hour."

"For the next few days until we left we were the constant target of air raids by waves of eight to nine planes. We could hardly tell when one raid was over and another was in progress. We just kept our guns trained on the ground, lay down and started shooting when the dive bombers came out of it."

During one of the raids a hospital ship was hit by a bomb. Another hospital ship moved around the horn of the gulf and helped evacuate survivors. On the way back this second ship was struck by a torpedo and sank like a rock. Three of the Liberty ships accompanying the one Mr. Jones was on were sunk.

"There were no stevedores available, so for three days in between fighting and bombing, all the officers and crew members pitched in to unload the ship. We all got an average of four hours sleep a day," said the mild-mannered, twenty-seven year old former machinist's mate.

The return trip was without incident except for a false torpedo alarm at Gibraltar.

Montana Camp Is Training Dogs For Sled Work

By DICK O'MALLEY

CAMP RIMINI, MONT.—Tech. Sgt. Johnny Eslick kicked off the wreke, slipped "All right take it up," and we were bounding along a mountain road behind nine Siberian huskies.

Johnny is one of the dog experts training teams for Army sled work at the Camp Rimini war dog reception center. Purchased at the cost of a stripped-down Arctic automobile, used in summer training, he talked about his

No. 13 dog team.

"No. 13 dog team is the country's only team to put up with the South," he said.

He said men from Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia think they know all about rifles. Most of them know nothing about either alpinism or sled work.

"They realize this. As soon as they realize it, they become good students."

But do the men actually soak up much of the firearms instruction they receive during their five-week course here? "Hell knows," he added. "The proof of what the school is doing can be found in the daily headlines. They'll take their places in the harness later on."

Camp Rimini, commanded by Major E.J. Purfield of the quartermaster corps, has some 500 sled teams, such men as Sgt. Richard Wilson, Capt. Marshall, Capt. John W. Byrd, Capt. John W. Byrd, Capt. Edward Moody and Malcolm Douglas of East Orange, N.J., both on Byrd's last South Pole expedition.

A lot of dogs which normally would have been born in kennels have been born in the wild and require a whole new set of skills.

Puppies are born with their eyes closed. They're born in holes dug quickly; seven enemy planes shot down for every pupping.

Gray, a crack shot, knows plenty about firearms and has the gift of imparting his knowledge to others. He said, "I think plenty he would not have been invited in 1941 to Camp Perry, Ohio, as range officer and instructor at the Army's pistol school."

During the necessary one week of classroom work and the four weeks of range work, Gray emphasizes the same with endless repetition: "Lead that target!"

DAM NECK, Va.—Chief Specialist (Gunner) Barney Gray squinted over the firing ranges here, U.S. spruce sprouts near the Atlantic Ocean south of Virginia Beach, pondered a moment and replied:

"No. No section of the country has a monopoly on good shooting."

"Of course," he added. "The guys from the South think they have all about pistols, and those from Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia think they know all about rifles. Most of them know nothing about either alpinism or sled work."

Free gunnery A free gun, which is one mounted on a flexible mount, either in a turret or in the cockpit of a fixed gun, in contrast to fixed guns used as base in the sky.

Chief Gray took a tremendous amount in instruction into the classroom after which comes shotgun instruction where the students fire at clay pigeons on a modified shoot course.

"In instruction," says Gray, "proves to the men they won't hit targets if they don't feel like it."

Later comes machine gun practice with 30 and 50 caliber weapons on three ranges, each progressively more difficult.

And in coaching the men, Lt. Rogers constantly echoes Chief Gray's growl: "Lead that target!"
