THE TENDER SHEPHERD: He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: He shall gather the lambs with His arm, and carry them in His bosom.—Isaiah 40:11.

ANOTHER SMILE: Every day is a fresh beginning. Every morn is the world made new.

Now for fifteen thousand population. Get ready for an exceptional busy winter season.

Senator Couens of Michigan, in seeking re-election, declares he has no boss. Evidently the senator isn't married.

When the canal from the St. Johns to the Indian River is constructed Sanford will double in population many times.

Bank statements show another enormous gain over last year. The substantial character of any community can be judged by the statements of its banks.

The man who doesn't pay his bills is holding back good financial conditions. He keeps the other fellow from paying what he owes and before long money gets tight.

Carroll will quit if beaten by Tunney, says a headline. He would have shown better judgment if he had quit three years ago when Jack Dempsey put him in the hospital.

Sanford has more than ten thousand population, but yet it has no steam laundry of its own. Why should it be necessary to send our money to Orlando?

In 1920 there were fifteen thousand radio sets in this country. Now there are about five millions which enable about twice that many people to listen in every day.

A canning factory in Sanford utilizes much of the produce now going to waste. There is a wonderful opportunity for an industry of this kind in this part of the state.

Sanford's athletic field will be second to none in the whole state. With a big league baseball team practicing here next spring this city should receive much favorable publicity and become known throughout the whole country.

The railroad crossing on West First Street, near the freight station, is in abominable shape and is the cause of much unfavorable comment not only from Sanford people but from tourists passing through the city. If the railroad company doesn't wish to repair it perhaps the city should take a hand.

Linens valued at $171,743, and manufactured in the Irish Free State, were bought for the United States Lines Liners. The contractors found that the type of linens tough enough to withstand the steam laundries of New York and Southampton was not available in America. Perhaps this will result in some people who know buying their clothing for the same reason.

Twice the Sanford Kiwanis Club has defeated the Orlando Kiwanis at baseball. This leads us to inquire why it wouldn't be a good move to organize a county baseball league to provide amusement for Thursday afternoons during the summer season. With the Kiwanis Club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Orlando and perhaps other Seminoles, twenty towns for picking teams, the people of this county could spend their half-holidays at home instead of going to other cities.

Several months ago announcement was made that work on the two hundred room hotel would be started June first. It was said at that time that the plans were being prepared and bids would soon be opened for it. A big sign was placed on the location where the hotel was to be erected. But June has come and gone, July is passing rapidly and still the people of Sanford fail to see any activity in the hotel. Was all this announcement a mere bluff for the purpose of selling lake front

Let's Have The Truth

Why not more publicity concerning the condition of the detours on Florida roads?

Why not an attempt at telling travelers the truth relative to the abominable conditions they will find in their endeavor to get out of Florida on their summer trips?

In sending out dispatches from Tallahassee reporting the progress of road-building work in the state, is the State Highway Commission imagining that it can fool the stay-at-homes in sufficient numbers to keep down the dissatisfaction that would remove its members from office?

The State Highway Commission has been dealing in "futures" just about long enough. The road conditions that are "going to be" corrected; the bridges "it is proposed to build"; the completion of such and such project "recently resumed"—this is the kind of progress that the people of Florida put up with year in and year out. Why not an open rebellion on the part of every citizen in the state that is suffering from the delay and inefficiency?

On State Road Number 4, the East Coast Highway, there are miles and miles of detours absolutely unfit for travel. Between Vero and Daytona, the road is abominable; and, so far as The Herald can learn, travelers are permitted to take that route with no warning as to the discomfort and damage they will probably encounter.

If the State Highway Commission has no power or inclination to require contractors to keep detours in good condition it can at least provide means of telling the public which road to avoid.

Take, for instance, the Jacksonville-Waycross road. One day last week the twelve-mile detour was so bad, it took a good driver four hours to take his car that distance. But before the man went on to the road, he was not warned. In fact he was told by a Jacksonville garage man that the detour was maintained by the State Highway Department.

Between Ocala and Gainesville is another badly kept detour. And from Lake City north to the Florida-Georgia line, it has been a case of plowing through ruts and mud for every automobile that attempted the trip.

Until the roads of Florida are hard-surfaced, and while the roads of Florida are being built, detours will be necessary, of course, but there is no excuse for the kind of detours provided by the majority of the contractors now at work in the state. And there is no excuse for the apparent attempt on the part of the road builders to keep the public from knowing the kind of road trouble they may expect in trying to get from one part of the state to another, or in trying to get comfortably across the Florida-Georgia line.

Full and relentless publicity concerning road conditions in Florida should be demanded and secured.

Enthusiasm Is Contagious

Is Sanford worth selling? Is it worth boasting? Is it worth offering to the world as a most desirable place in which to live? If these questions can be answered in the affirmative then it is the duty of every citizen to assume the task of selling Sanford to the outsider who knows nothing about this city.

There is a great deal of truth in the fact that anything worth selling is worth boasting. In fact, boasting one's line of goods means the sale of them. A good salesman, who believes in what he has to offer and then boasts it for all it is worth, will sell with success.

An inventor endeavors to sell his idea to a manufacturing concern upon the merits which he knows his discovery possesses. So should every citizen sell his city. If the citizen has any degree of civic pride he should also have the desire to see that the whole world knows what his town has to offer as a place to live and as a place to engage in business.

That city which grows and prospers is composed of wide-awake residents. The enthusiastic citizen will do all within his power to tell his friends in other places about his town. He will attempt to entuse them. He will try to make them believe as he believes. He will do everything to get them to see the advantages of coming to his city and in fact will really sell his town to the world.

The remarkable growth of Miami may be attributed for the most to the fact that its citizens believe in its future and then proceeded to tell the world of their faith. And that is not all. The larger Miami gets the more they continue to tell about it. Today, one cannot engage in conversation with a Miamian for five minutes without hearing him say something of a boasting nature about his city. Miamians are selling Miami at every opportunity.

Before endeavoring to sell his city a citizen must believe in the city himself. Sanford people cannot convince others about the merits of Sanford without believing in them themselves. The man who wishes to boost his town will make himself acquainted with the advantages it has to offer over other cities.

If Sanford is to grow into the big city it is destined to be, its people must make themselves salesmen. They must analyze the situation thoroughly. They must know everything to be known about Sanford. They must be able to talk intelligently about the developments already made and under plans. And when they feel they know all they ought, then it is up to them to go out and convince others.

Enthusiasm is contagious. Let's develop even more enthusiasm until this section has an epidemic of progressiveness that will make this city grow as never before.

I HAVE SEEN that Man moves over with each new generation into a bigger body, more awful, more reverent and more free than he has had before.—Gerald Stanley Lee.

PROSPERITY CAN CHANGE man's nature; and seldom is any one cautious enough to resist the effects of good fortune.—Quintus Curtius Rufus.

VIEWPOINT BALTIMORE SUN

There was a certain man who had a high brow, a good vocabulary, and a great reputation as a dramatic critic. His pet abomination was something he called "hokum," and he defined this as an unnecessary appeal to the emotions by means of tricks old enough to be retired. When some gray-haired mother placed a light in a window, or some child lay dying for want of a brother's love, or the villain repented in the last act, he writhed in agony and his criticism fairly assailed. Much reviewing had made him cynical, and the old stuff gave him a pain. Well, he fell in love, as the best of men will, and one day as he walked abroad with his beloved she pretended to sprain her ankle because he hadn't yet proposed. And he picked her up and carried her in his arms, with his heart thumping very hard, and he said to her: "Bessie, my little heart! Such a tiny, wee girlie! Dreat big man's love his darlin'!"

The title promised fine costumes and a bedroom scene and enough sex stuff to afford a thrill, he could not have been tied at home with a log chain. Many times he was disappointed, for the censors had clipped the thrill from many a naughty bit of reel, and at such times he would curse all censors and howl for freedom. Well, he got married also, and in the course of time his daughter by this union became twelve years of age. She enjoyed the movies, and her father selected those she might see. Once in a while he would see, as all parents will, and then he would say: "It's an outrage to show that filthy stuff without warning parents what to expect!"

A third time he was a doctor, and many times he sent children to a surgeon to have their tonsils removed, as in duty bound, and never once did he hesitate if an operation seemed necessary. Then his own small son developed bad tonsils, and the doctor treated the case himself. "They should come out," he said to his wife, "but I can't bear the idea of having any more whittling in my boy's

Sanford Forum

July 10, 1924. Editor The Sanford Herald:

With the recent heavy rains it is shown again what a great benefit a canal or good wide ditches would be if they followed a very apparent natural water way from Lake Jessup to Lake Monroe running almost on a line with north and south. They have been talked of and the right of way for such ditches has been surveyed two or more times and all fallen through with either no funds available or for some other excuse.

The colored settlements of Canaan and Midway lay directly in the path of this so-called natural water way and in wet weather they are a menace to the whole community with surface toilets and uncleared ditches all going to make very unpleasant things to think about. The farmers depend on the people living in those colored settlements to do their work and will not go after the necessary drainage to make these places healthy and decent.

All the undrained land also causes damage to the brick and hard surface roads, the people around Sanford are so proud of. After such a wet period with conditions as they are and together with the rotting vegetation serious things may result. The health officers in town are sending notices to the inhabitants of Canaan and Midway to clean up and to open up ditches and to do what they can to make things better. They have no chance though for drainage without help to put through a system of drainage ditches.

Respectfully yours, Mabel C. Ellsworth.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION HOMES

Those familiar with the practical operations of properly conducted building and loan associations know that they are of immense advantage in the matter of promoting the construction and ownership of individual homes. They are more than an advantage; they are a positive blessing, in that they provide the ways and means by which many families are enabled to establish their own homes, and, in time, become the actual owners of the roofs that shelter them, of the structures that are more than a mere abiding place.

The Charlotte (N. C.) Observer in a brief paragraph has been practically and to what extent the building and loan associations in that state are operating. "The Observer says:

"The building and loan exhibit sheet for the year 1923, on file at the office of Stacey Wadley, insurance commissioner, shows that during that year as many as 6,000 homes were constructed through the agency of the building and loan, in this state. The aggregate cost of these homes was $17,297,569.70. The assets of the companies were $45,007,853.46 at the beginning of the year. At the end of the year the assets had increased to $56,811,457.57. The assets of the three associations in Charlotte at the end of the year foot up the handsome total of $9,148,851.23. The building and loan money should be properly credited to the banking assets of a community, for these associations operate in practical sense in the nature of savings banks."

It is entirely proper to credit the assets of well-managed building and loan associations as banked and bankable assets are credited. Such associations are "in the nature of savings banks," with this very important added feature—that the money invested in building and loan certificates is so invested with a definite and very commendable specific purpose in view, that of home-building, something that, financially, is made easy, comparatively, through the medium of these associations. Loans can be secured and their repayment made to extend through a period of years. It is not necessary that the intending home-builder shall wait until sufficient money has been saved, or accumulated, to finance the building of a home, otherwise, in many instances, the home, self-owned, never would become an accomplished fact. With the aid and co-operation of the building and loan association home-builder, it is encouraged and made possible, and without delay or without entailing any particular hardship, only economy and thrift, on the home-builder.

Florida has a number of these building and loan associations. There ought to be many more of them. They encourage thrift; they provide homes for the people who want to live better because of living in their own homes. Financially, these associations add to the assets of the state; civically they make for better citizenship. In every way they are advantageous and altogether to be encouraged.

IS THIS ALTRUISM? MIAMI HERALD

A physician in Chicago the other day advertised for a part of a human ear. A patient had lost half of one of his ears and wanted it patched up so he could marry. It appears that either he or the proposed bride objected to having only an ear and a half. The physician sought to find someone else with an especially large ear who would be willing to spare part of it for a consideration, in order to help the young man out of his matrimonial plight.

From many people came offers to sell all or parts of ears. The expressed motives differed widely. One man, an Englishman, was willing to give part of his ear. He had already given away much blood in transfusions, and a number of people were wearing patches on their heads which had been grafted on. He wanted no money for his ear, but was willing to give it in order to bring about the happiness of two people.

A mother, the sole support of six children, offered to sell her ear in order to provide for her little ones. She said she needed the money, and could spare her hair over the place where the ear belonged. A man whose son had tuberculosis was willing to sell his ear in order to send the boy to the west. A hungry man offered his ear or any other part of his body in order to get something to eat. A sailor came to the office and offered to contribute an ear, just for the fun of it.

It is rather strange that a request of this kind nearly always brings forward a considerable number of people who are willing to make the sacrifice of something they could never regain. There seems to be either a foolish streak or an altruistic streak in almost everybody. In fact, altruism seems foolish to many.

Whatever folly there might be in selling an ear or some other important part of the anatomy it is a kind of folly that rather arouses the admiration of folks. It looks a good deal like unselfishness of the highest type.

There is, however, really a lot of fun in making other people happy. Here is the case of this Englishman. If he gave up his ear to help two young people win their happiness, even though they might not know it, he would make his own life brighter. There is an element of selfishness in all altruistic endeavor. Jesus suggested several kinds of people who would be blessed, and in every case it was someone who would do what to the world seemed unselfish. If a person can purchase happiness by sacrifice he would be foolish not to do it, for happiness is hard to get.

This is the usual method of a mother. The happiest mothers in the world are not those who devote themselves to the pursuit of pleasure, but those who live their lives in devotion to their children. The pain and the suffering of motherhood is the price of happiness, and most mothers do not consider it too high a price.

MISS KATHLEEN BRADY IS HONOREE AT SHOWER GIVEN BY MISS STRONG

One of the loveliest showers given in honor of Miss Kathleen Brady, a bride-elect of next week, was that of Miss Winifred Strong at the attractive home of Mrs.
M. S. Wiggins, Thursday afternoon.

The guests found upon entering the spacious living room that appear webs of lavender and pink streamers completely covered the walls, causing much curiosity.
Pink hibiscus with lavender asters and petunias were used throughout to carry out the color scheme of pink and lavender.

After a program consisting of readings by Mrs. E. C. Maxwell and Miss Rosamond Radford, Mrs.
Maxwell read a most unique story. In her story she explained how the gods had changed a mortal into a spider and that this spider had woven the web found in the living room. Each guest was given an end of the web and after following it, a fortune was found for each. Miss Brady followed hers for some time and found at the head of the stairs a smaller web with a spider on it just finishing its task of placing the lovely gift.

Another contest was enjoyed and when finished the guests were invited into the dining room to eat the large wedding cake banked with pink cream. Much excitement was caused by the cutting of the cake in trying to avoid the dis-table.

Dainty refreshments consisting of pink and lavender brick cream and coconut cookies were served.
In the plate of each guest was placed an exquisite pink and lavender basket filled with lavender-colored candy.

Miss Brady was lovely in a brown dress with brown lace trimmed in rainbow ribbons.
About 20 enjoyed the hospitality of Miss Strong and wished Miss Brady happiness.

NURMI RACES TO VICTORY IN TWO HEATS THURSDAY

Fin Shows Superiority in Races—Finland Adds 31 Points and United States 4 1/2 During Day.

OLYMPIC STADIUM, COLOMBES, France, July 11.—Within two hours Thursday afternoon Paavo Nurmi, Finland's great distance runner, raced to spectacular victories in the 1,500 and 5,000 metre events, breaking the Olympic records at both distances and winning an Olympic triumph such as no individual has ever achieved.

Nurmi captured the 1,500 metre run against a fine field in three minutes 53 3/5 seconds, chipping off 3 1/5 seconds from the old record but falling by 2 1/2 of a second to equal his own world record. He won the 5,000 metres from his fellow countryman, Willie Ritola in 14 minutes 31 1/5 seconds, beating both the Olympic and the world record by several seconds.

But even this super-triumph of Finland's greatest ace could not check the onward march of the United States for the Americans demonstrated vast superiority in the pole vault and hammer throw, the remaining finals of the fifth day of the Olympic competition and lengthened their mounting point and over the rival Scandinavian nation in the duel for international athletic supremacy.

Two Americans Crowned
The glory which went in double measure to Nurmi was also shared for the day by two young Americans, Erad Totell, Boston A. A., who captured the hammer throw by a decisive margin from his countryman, Matt J. McGrath, New York A. C., veteran of four Olympics, and Lee Barnes, the 17-year-old California high school boy, who won the pole vault laurels in the jump-off with his coast rival, Glenn Graham, after they had tied for first place at a height of 3.95 metres (12 feet 11 1/4 inches), which equaled the Olympic record.

U. S. and Finland Up Victory Pole
These feats sent Finland's emblem and the Stars and Stripes exultingly up the victory pole of the day. In the hammer sprang the front in Joseph Imbach, unassuming and unheralded Swiss whirlwind, who won his heat in the second trials of the 400 metre run in the world record time of 48 seconds, a performance which came with startling suddenness.

25,000 Witness Battles
A crowd of nearly 25,000, the largest since the opening day, assembled in the expectation of witnessing the greatest of struggles for honors in the Olympic battle and they were not disappointed. They saw and paid deferring tribute to probably the greatest single day's athletic achievement in memory, when Nurmi swept over the line winner, in his second effort of the day, of the 5,000 metre run after a thrilling race with his countryman, Ritola, who earned no small share of the glory himself, when competing for fifth straight day, he pushed his more illustrious teammate to a record in a finish which saw the two Nordic stars only one yard apart.

Nurmi's 1,500-metre victory was no declaim as to rob it of the spectacular elements of the longer race. Nurmi slowed up crossing the line, looking over his shoulder at Scherer, another Swiss star, who came from the back to take place in the last few strides from Stalard, Great Britain, who collapsed at the tape just as his teammate Lowe, the 800 metre winner, came through to capture fourth place from the pair of Americans, Ray Rucker and L. Loyd Hayne.

5,000 Run, Three Cornered
The 5,000 metre run was a three cornered affair for nearly two thirds of the distance with Elven Wild, the Swede, keeping paces with Nurmi and Ritola far ahead of the rest of the pack. But through the final two Finnus fought it out alone, while Wild, thoroughly beaten for the second time in the Olympics by his Scandinavian rivals, was lucky to save third place from the brilliant closing rush of the American, John Romig, who conquered Sipla, another Finn, for fourth place.

These triumphs saw Finland's fortunes in high tide, but though the chief competitor against America for Olympic laurels ran up 31 points this afternoon, the wearers of the shield, tallying in all four events and monopolizing the pole vault and hammer throw, added 4 1/2 to their score.

U. S. Total 17 1/2 Points
Thus with three days left the United States holds the formidable total of 17 1/2 points to 10 1/2 for Finland. Great Britain is third with 4 1/2 and Sweden fourth with 2 1/2. These are the outstanding competitors among the dozen who have been placed in the 16 finals so far.

The sensational world record in the 500 metre race by the Swiss sprinter, Imbach, was costly for the United States, one of whose main hopes, Eric C. Wilson, University of Iowa, was unequal to this astonishing speed, and was thrashed by the Swedish "flying Finn" along to the victor's flying home and finished second. The previous record, 45 1/5 seconds, was made by C. D. Ralston, United States, in 1921. Wilson was the second American to fall by the wayside in these trials, for Ray Thompson, Boston A. A., who had won the 400 metre race at 4:10 on July 4, was disqualified for leaving the track.
