BRIEFS

Lawton first to go year round

OVIDO — Lawton Elementary School, 151 Graham Ave., Oviedo, will be the first school in Seminole County to put their students on a year round school calendar beginning next July, the school district announced yesterday.

While the students will still attend classes 180 days a year, the modified calendar calls for them to attend classes 60 days and have a 15-day break and then begin the cycle again.

The Seminole County school district is experimenting with the concept of year round schools as a way of dealing with overcrowding, which is most intense in the Oviedo area. Lawton and Stenstrom elementary schools in Oviedo are both over-capacity and it will be at least two years before a new school, planned for the Twin Rivers section of Oviedo, will be ready for students.

Plans to put more than one school on the modified calendar were put on hold while the district works on educating the public about the year round school concept.

According to surveys done by the school district, opposition to the year round calendar is very low at Lawton Elementary School, due in part to the enthusiasm of principal Michael Mizwicki, an ardent supporter of the concept whose recent doctoral thesis was a study of year round schools.

Year round schools allows for continuous learning throughout the year, which research shows improves a student's performance on tests. The modified calendar also allows vacations to be planned at several times throughout the year instead of only in the summer.

Remaining employees to get pay increase

By J. BRADLEY DILLING
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The mood in the city manager's conference room was somber and subdued yesterday afternoon as the commission agreed 4 to 1 to cut 14 clerk-typist employees from the city payroll in order to keep the ad valorem tax rate from going up one mill.

The commission also agreed to give remaining employees a three percent cost of living and adjustment increase.

Immediately after reaching the agreements, commissioners told city department heads to contact their employees, so they would hear the news from the city before learning of it from the media. The department heads quickly filed out of the room.

"I deeply regret what we have to do here today," Mayor Bettye Smith said.

Commissioner Bob Thomas dissented, saying that if the commission could cut some higher paid personnel, fewer city employees would have to be laid off.

"The plan which is being proposed by staff to eliminate the clerk-typist positions is indiscriminate," Thomas said. When we are talking about dollars, the clerk-typists get paid less, anyway."

Commissioner A.A. McClanahan said the decision was a recommendation from City Manager Frank Faison and that the commission should not be telling Faison how to do his job.

SANFORD — Before heading to the fireworks on the Fourth of July, you might want to stop by Fort Mellon Park to see Col. Allen Nelson of the Third Maine Regiment.

Nelson, 72, whose father actually fought in the Civil War, will be presenting an exhibit featuring replicas and authentic pieces from the Civil War period. But the real show is Nelson himself.

"Did you fight in the Civil War?" asked a youngster from Sanford's summer recreation program at Fort Mellon, where Nelson made an advance.

Zoning variation may halt theater opening

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Friday the 13th may or may not be a lucky day for Bill Korenbrot, Central Florida division manager for Litchfield Cinemas.

Finishing touches are being put on the new Litchfield Theatres at Victoria Square, 3850 N. U.S. Highway 17-92. The grand opening has been set for Friday, July 13. But the Lake Mary City Commission may ruin Korenbrot's day.

In order to place the theater's name on the front of the building and have a separate area for a marquee, Litchfield Theatres has requested a variance to the city's sign area requirements. Litchfield wants to place its name in block letters 24 inches high, across the front of the building. Because of the lengthy name, the sign would end up to be a total of 56 square feet. Additionally, the theater has asked for permission to display a marquee, 12 feet high, 20 feet wide, on the face of the structure.

The Lake Mary Planning and Zoning Commission has already said no, by a 4 to 0 vote, claiming Litchfield wants an extra 196 square feet beyond what the sign ordinance allows in a commercial zone. The question now goes to the City Commission for a final decision.

Korenbrot said, "With the sign space they would allow us, we wouldn't have room to advertise more than three of our theaters, and we have 10. I don't see how we can operate that way." He added that the new theater complex is the only one within the city limits of Lake Mary.

46 apply for animal control official's post

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Five directors of animal control departments, two veterinarians and a former Seminole County commission candidate, are among the 46 applicants for the Seminole County Animal Control, Division official position.

The application period ended Monday to replace Ronald Lefebvre, who resigned May 3 to avoid possible firing by Public Safety Director Gary Kaiser. Kaiser said Lefebvre was too lax in carrying out his responsibilities. Lefebvre said Kaiser was too militaristic.

Kaiser, who has not reviewed the applications, said he hopes to interview prospects in August and have a new animal control official on duty by September.

Two Florida animal control directors are among the applicants. Alan C. Davis of Fort Lauderdale has been director of the Broward County Animal Control department since August 1987. Previously, he served as chief of animal control in Prince George's County in Maryland and manager of animal control in Pittsburgh.

Catherine English has served as director of the Leon County Animal Care and Control department in Tallahassee. Previously, she served as shelter manager and animal control officer in Mills, Wyo., and shelter manager for the Casper Humane Society in Casper, Wyo.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Consumer confidence plunges
GAINESVILLE — The federal budget battle and the magnitude of the savings and loan bailout caused Floridians' confidence in the U.S. economy to plunge in June, according to a survey released Tuesday.
 But residents remain optimistic about their own finances, according to the Florida Consumer Confidence Index compiled by the University of Florida's Bureau of Economic and Business Research.
 Confidence in the health of the national economy over the next 12 months has dropped nearly 13 points since April, from 86 to 73.2, said David Denelow, interim director of the bureau. There was no survey in May.

Shuttle leak check delayed
CAPE CANAVERAL — Tiny blemishes on a seal in the shuttle Columbia's leaky 17-inch fuel line disconnect prompted engineers in California to delay a critical leak check one day to Friday so the seal can be included in the test, officials said Tuesday.
 While it was not known whether the blemishes could have contributed to the leak that grounded Columbia last month, NASA is leaving no stone unturned in an around-the-clock program to resolve an apparent problem with the shuttle's 17-inch disconnect assembly.

Wilderness groups discuss changes
SALT LAKE CITY — Operators of nine rigorous wilderness therapy programs for troubled teenagers vowed Tuesday to do everything they can to minimize health risks following the deaths of two girls, including one from Florida, since May.
 State officials and representatives of the wilderness therapy groups met for hours in an emergency meeting to discuss a lengthy agenda of improvements for the desert-based treatment programs.
 Specific changes have not been agreed upon yet, he said. Christen Chase, 16, of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., collapsed last Wednesday and died after hiking in triple-digit heat about 240 miles southeast of Salt Lake City with counselors and other teens in the Challenger Foundation program.
 The exact cause of death is unknown pending results from the state medical examiner.

Contractors angry about revisions
PALATKA — Florida's revised worker-compensation law has angered small contractors around the state, and some sympathetic state lawmakers are calling for a special session to consider revision of the new law.
 The central complaint about the new law — signed only last week by Gov. Bob Martinez — is that it defines officers and sole proprietors in the construction industry as employees, forcing them to obtain worker comp insurance.
 Prior to the new law going into effect Sunday, small contractors had to provide coverage for their employees, but they themselves were exempt.
 Some contractors who said they did not learn about the new provision until late last week contend that the requirement will cost them thousands of dollars and could force some out of business.

Judge approves $4 million settlement
MIAMI — A federal bankruptcy judge approved a $4 million settlement Tuesday for 102 people who claimed they were defrauded by General Development Corp., a lawyer for the plaintiffs said.
 The settlement was the first to be approved by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Jay Cristol since General Development filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection in April, said attorney Doug Lyons.
 The settlement, reached prior to the bankruptcy, had been put on hold because of that filing. No other settlements are awaiting approval, he said.
 General Development, one of the state's oldest developers, pleaded guilty in March to a federal conspiracy charge for inflating the value of the homes it sold in its nine Florida communities.

Lab-grown skin grafts speed healing
GAINESVILLE — Scientists at University of Florida's Shands Hospital are growing human skin in a laboratory to help speed the healing process for severe burn victims, doctors said Tuesday.
 Long Dinh, 18, of Jacksonville, is one of 16 severe burn victims whose unharmed skin has been used as "seed stock" to reproduce itself in a lab.
 Dinh received burns over 60 percent of his body in February when a gasoline can erupted as he was starting a barbecue fire.
 Doctors at Shands removed a 1-inch-square patch of unburned skin from Dinh and Dr. Ammon Peck, a pathology and laboratory medicine professor, grew new sheets of skin in his lab at the UF College of Medicine.

Group: Water regs watered down

By JEFF SCHEWINSKI
 United Press International
TALLAHASSEE — Florida's Department of Environmental Regulation is allowing the continued pollution of the state's drinking water by systematically weakening water controls, an environmental group said Wednesday.
 Recent rule-making decisions by DER and a lack of regulatory enforcement threatens to contaminate groundwater, a source of 92 percent of Florida residents' drinking water, the coalition of environmental groups said.
 "We'd like to put all citizens on notice that their drinking water is not being protected and they are living under a false sense of security," said Suzie Ruhl, an attorney with the Legal Environmental Assistance Foundation.
 LEAF joined with several other local and statewide groups, including the Florida Public Interest Research Group and the Florida chapter of the Sierra Club, in accusing DER of being more interested in protecting polluters than Florida citizens.
 Their goal, Ruhl said, is to document and share evidence of DER's systematic weakening of environmental regulations "before it is too late."
 But John Gentry, deputy director for the DER division of waste management, said the rules have actually gotten tougher.
 "We've gone to more stringent requirements, the idea being to protect the groundwater," he said.

But the coalition said DER made no effort to block a measure approved by the Legislature this year that lifts a one-year ban on underground injection of hazardous waste into aquifers, and it urged Gov. Bob Martinez to veto the bill.
 Gentry said there is no underground injection into aquifers in Florida and there never will be.
 "Anyone who wanted to inject hazardous waste into the aquifer would be laughed out of here so fast it would make their heads spin," Gentry said.
 The group also criticized DER's failure to clean up more than a handful of the 490 identified toxic waste sites, and said the DER's newest rule on the disposal of incinerator ash would further threaten drinking water.

2 Live Crew members face charges

By REBECCA KOLBERG
 UP Science Writer
WASHINGTON — Increasingly optimistic NASA scientists Tuesday estimated the Hubble Space Telescope can achieve half its early scientific goals despite mirror flaws, and ground-based computer imaging may salvage the first pictures of Pluto.
 Hubble project scientist Ed Weiler said the initial gloom surrounding last week's discovery of crippling errors in the $1.5 billion telescope's main mirror is lifting, and scientists are now trying to wring pictures out of Hubble even before a shuttle repair mission is sent up in 1992 or 1993.
 "The Wide Field/Planetary Camera (WFPC) is still about 10 percent to 20 percent usable. Reports of the early death of WFPC were greatly exaggerated," Weiler told a telephone news conference. "Scientists are fairly optimistic and feel roughly 50 percent of the science originally proposed for the first one or two years can be done."
 Even when scientists thought

NASA may aim Hubble at Pluto

WFPC's picture-taking ability would be virtually nil during the first few years of Hubble's 15-year life, NASA had emphasized the big observatory would still produce "world-class science" by tracking non-visible energy like ultraviolet light.
 Now, Weiler and other NASA officials are holding out promise that with the aid of computer-guided image reconstruction on the ground, Hubble may soon be able to crank out some of the "pretty pictures" the American public was told to expect.
 "We may not be as bad off as we thought. In some cases ... we probably could process an image to get back to our original one-tenth of an arc second resolution," or clarity, said Weiler.
 Weiler announced formation of a team of computer experts from NASA, the University of Rochester, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory and elsewhere to see if clear images can be reconstructed from the blurry pictures taken by the telescope in its current state.
 "We're going to let the experts play with the images and see what they can do. People who know field say there is a lot of hope," said Weiler, who conceded generating pictures by such a route probably would take more observation time and be more expensive due to computer costs.
 Image reconstruction would likely succeed best on cosmic objects that are fairly bright and not close to other objects, Weiler said.
 For starters, NASA is considering pointing the Hubble at Pluto — the smallest and usually the most distant planet in our solar system and an object with a surface never viewed by ground-based astronomers.
 "If Pluto is available (in the telescope's viewing range), we probably will go up and take pictures of Pluto in the next three or four months," Weiler said. "It's worth a try to see what we can do on it."
 Ellie Lange, a spokeswoman for the Space Telescope Science Institute in Baltimore, said Pluto and its satellite Charon appear reasonable targets for Hubble.

HRS fires two for leaking secrets

BARTOW — Two state welfare workers suspected of leaking confidential information to a Lakeland newspaper regarding a child abuse complaint have been fired, a state official said.
 Denerva Boyd and Gwendolyn McKenzie have been given notice of their termination, which is effective July 13, said Tom Jones, state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services spokesman.
 The women have the option of appealing the decision and trying to convince officials to change their minds, Jones said.
 Boyd, an HRS child protection investigator in Bartow, and McKenzie, an HRS community control counselor, were accused of giving The Lakeland Ledger confidential information about a Winter Haven child abuse case.
 The HRS Inspector General began a probe into the incident May 10, following a story that appeared in the Ledger about Ryan Rooney, a 20-month-old cerebral palsy victim who died Feb. 13.
 Included in the paper were reproductions of confidential HRS reports.

Longwood considers tax hike

By NICK PFERPAUF
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — City staff has recommended the city commission consider increasing taxes by one mill, added to the present ad valorem base, and call for an optional one-cent sales tax increase.

The one-cent sales tax would provide the city with $666,200 per year which could be used to retire the debt on the police station, while the one mill increase would bring in an additional $455,000 per year. The millage in Longwood is presently 4.15 with 1 mill of that as the dedicated transportation tax.

City Administrator Mike Abels and Budget Director Rick Holt presented an overview of the 1981 Longwood budget message to the City Commission Monday, recommending a fundamental change in programs supported through the city's general fund.

The budget is aimed directly at pursuing the needs expressed in the recently completed Longwood Citizens Attitudinal Survey, as well as the strategic planning visionary process followed by the City Commission through various public meetings.

In the base budget, with the existing tax base, Abels is proposing a reorganization of the Community Development Department, the addition of three firefighters for the fire department, the addition of a secretary to the finance department, a parts storage addition to the fleet maintenance building, the implementation of a dirt street reconstruction program, the initiation of a limited street-sweeping program, and the addition of two part-time employees to provide supervision at Candyland Park during the evenings and weekends.

In the attitudinal survey, citizens expressed low levels of satisfaction, less than 25 percent, in dirt street maintenance, planting of new street trees and cemetery maintenance.

Abels said, "The budget I am submitting proposes the City implement a ten year plan to pave all dirt streets in the city." Property owners along the streets to be paved will be assessed for part of the construction costs, with their homes or property appreciating through the paving. Regarding the new street trees, Abels' budget request calls for $230,000 for street seeding along part of Church Street and along Milwee, as well as an additional $50,000 for beautification of County Road 437.

Holt said in preparing the budget, they had attempted to go into the program form of budgeting, but will use the zero-base budget for the final time during this new fiscal year.

As for revenues, Abels said, "The Fiscal Year 1980-81 budget is prepared projecting a five percent growth in total revenues but only a very small three percent growth in our primary revenue source, the ad valorem tax. Growth revenues that allow us to meet our revenue projection include a 30 percent increase in the local option gas tax, increases in franchise fees, growth in utility taxes as well as increasing the user fees we charge for City related services."

Holt explained that there were four categories of revenue, the general fund, the cemetery fund, police education fund and water and sewer fund. The cemetery fund however would only produce an expected $10,900 and the police education fund would draw $30,000. The rest would come from money received in the general fund and water and sewer fund.

The first official review of the budget is slated for a 5 p.m. meeting at the Longwood City Hall July 9, with subsequent hearings with department heads scheduled for 5 p.m., July 11, 12 and 17. The proposed budget would then go to a public hearing in August.

Woman robbed of jewelry

FERN PARK — A 53-year-old Orlando woman was robbed of $2,100 in jewelry as she sat in her car in front of Walgreen's store on U.S. Highway 17-92 at about 5 p.m. yesterday.

Thelma Satter told Seminole County deputies she was sitting in the back of her car with her grandchild in her lap when a man reached into her car, pushed her, grabbed her purse and took a watch from her wrist before fleeing. Satter told deputies the man who she described as a white male, approximately 25 years old, thin build and shoulder-length, straight, blond hair, drove away in a older model Ford Thunderbird. Satter was able to get the tag number on the vehicle, which was found a few minutes later on U.S. Highway 17-92.

Deputies discovered the vehicle had been stolen June 19 from and Altamonte Springs man.

An investigation is continuing.

Man robbed at gunpoint

LONGWOOD — An Orlando man was robbed at gunpoint this morning after leaving a local lounge with two strangers.

Brad Tipton, 21, told Seminole County deputies he met two men at the Post Time Lounge, at U.S. Highway 17-92 and Dog Track Road, Tuesday night. At about 1:45 a.m. Wednesday, Tipton said the two men suggested going to an all-night club.

Tipton said he accompanied them in a red 1972 to 1975 Chevrolet Camaro. He said after about 30 minutes, the passenger pulled a "piece" from under the seat and demanded his wallet. Tipton said he gave him his wallet containing an unknown amount of cash and was ordered from the car.

Tipton described the suspects as white males in their early 30s with sandy brown hair. Tipton also said he was intoxicated.

Escaped convicted killer turns himself in to police

By VICTOR GALVAN
United Press International

TAMPA — A convicted killer who escaped from a minimum security facility a day before he was scheduled to return to state prison turned himself in to police late Tuesday.

Wille Howard Hickman, 43, convicted of killing two people in Sarasota, turned himself in at about 5:45 p.m. EDT Tuesday after 21 hours of freedom, said Florida Department of Corrections spokesman Bob Macmaster.

Hickman was scheduled to be sent back to a state prison following Gov. Bob Martinez' crackdown on inmate work release.

"From what I understand he was scheduled to return to (Raidford State Prison) in Starke (Tuesday morning)," said Tampa police spokesman Wiley Howell.

Hickman walked out of the Tampa Community Correctional Center at about 6 p.m. Monday, Macmaster said. He turned himself in to Tampa police in front of the center.

Tampa police issued a statewide advisory to law enforcement agencies about Hickman Tuesday morning. It was unclear late Tuesday whether Hickman, who has family in Tampa and West Palm Beach, ever left Tampa, authorities said.

The governor's crackdown on the state's work release program came after killer Donald David Dillbeck escaped a minimum-security work detail and, police said, stabbed a Tallahassee woman to death June 24.

A man who said he was Hickman telephoned a Tampa television station Tuesday afternoon and said he fled because he did not want to be pulled from the work-release program.

"I've proven that I belong here and I'm worthy of being here," Hickman said as Tampa police officers handcuffed him.

Hickman had told an aunt he was hesitant to go back to state prison after having been at the correctional center for three years, authorities said.

The inmate drove a van at the facility, Macmaster said. "He had trusted status. He walked out of the center. ... He met the criteria for placement there. We are surprised he did this."

Macmaster said Hickman was serving two life terms on separate second-degree murder convictions in 1968 and 1973. Hickman also was convicted in 1973 of carrying a concealed weapon and was sentenced to 10 years in prison, to run concurrently with his second murder conviction.

"For 17 years he's had a good record," Macmaster said. "He's only had one DR. (disciplinary report) in 10 years. ... And that was for carrying too much money."

Ray seeks county judgeship

By NICK PFERPAUF
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Attorney Chris Ray has announced his candidacy for the post of Seminole County court judge, Group 1.

Ray, 46, was born in Mount Dora, and has been a lifelong resident of Central Florida.

Ray said Tuesday, "Because I have lived here all my life, I feel that I have the best barometer to determine the standards in Seminole County."

Ray graduated from the University of South Florida in the top 10 percent of his class, and received his law degree at Stetson College of Law. He was admitted to the bar in 1970. He has been involved in private practice with the firms of Robert D. Melton and Associates, Orlando, and Strimboer and Logan, Sanford. From 1973 to 1977 Ray was Assistant public defender as well as maintaining his own private practice. From 1977 to 1983 he served as chief assistant state attorney for Brevard and Seminole counties, and has been in private practice in civil and criminal cases since 1983.

In stating his qualifications, Ray said, "I have handled a myriad of cases ranging from minor traffic violations to first degree murder cases. In fact, I have handled capital punishment cases on both sides of the fence. That is to say, I have both prosecuted and defended in capital cases."

Ray and his wife Cindy have two children, Dana and Chris. Daughter Dana will serve as Ray's campaign manager.

The official judicial qualifying period runs from noon July 16 until noon July 20.

Federal agents seize handguns, arrest four

United Press International

MIAMI — Federal agents arrested four men and charged them with violating federal gun laws after discovering a small cache of semi-automatic handguns bound for South America, officials said Tuesday.

Agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms seized 101 Glock semi-automatic pistols and 21 Beretta semi-automatic pistols from a home in Miami's exclusive Bay Point neighborhood.

Bruce Snyder, a spokesman for the ATF in Miami, said agents believe the suspects previously had smuggled weapons out of the country.

"We know this is not the first shipment of guns out of here," he said. "They have been doing it before. We don't know how long."

The guns seized Monday had been purchased at a local gun shop for $46,500, Snyder said. The suspects planned to ship the weapons by boat to Venezuela and Colombia, where they could be re-sold for an estimated $200,000, he said.

Federal agents identified the four as Geri Ben-Tov, 27, and Shlomi Ben-Tov, 25, both of Miami, and Ilio Ulivi, 21, and Rodrigo Fernandez, 23, both of Caracas, Venezuela.

Snyder said all four men were charged with conspiring to violate the federal gun control act, dealing in firearms without a license, and with making false statements on gun purchase forms.

The four are also charged with violating the federal arms export control act, which prohibits individuals from exporting weapons without prior approval, Snyder said.

All four made an initial court appearance Tuesday. Bond was set at $350,000 apiece for Geri Ben-Tov and Shlomi Ben-Tov. The two Venezuelans were held pending a bond hearing Friday.

LONGWOOD — Many clubs, groups and organizations using the city recreation community center, 184 Wilma Ave., will find new rental fees in place following the city commission's passage of Ordinance 985 Monday night.

According to the city's criteria, the community facility is intended primarily for recreation and civic use by the general public. In the past, a flat charge of $25 was made for daily rental of the building, for private or community sponsored events, while there was no charge for city sponsored or sanctioned events. Now, however, there are four categories with three levels of user fees. Only specific city sponsored activities will be able to use the community center without charge.

City Administrator Mike Abels said, "We need this income in order to maintain the building. We need to clean the tiles, and fund other cleaning and maintenance."

The new charges for city-sanctioned use is $2 per hour or $10 per day; for civic or non-profit groups, $6 per hour or $30 per day; and for private use, $10 per hour, $50 per day. All rentals will be a minimum of 2 hours. In some cases, depending on the nature of the rental, damage deposits may also be required in addition to the regular $25 deposit charge which must be paid at least 72 hours in advance.

City Clerk Don Terry said, "This isn't any drastic change in charges. It's just that we needed to establish set usage fees in order to be assured that we will have money for the cleaning and maintenance that building needs."

Washington attacks mortgage deduction

Once again the big Washington spenders who have never found a tax they didn't like have their eyes on a deduction that touches the heart of American society — the home mortgage deduction.

Staff members of the Joint Committee on Taxation, a body that gives advice to the Democrat-controlled Congress, have issued a report declaring that the complicated federal income tax law could be simplified if steps were taken to reduce the deduction that homeowners take on their mortgage.

Congress revised the federal tax law in 1986. Lawmakers said at the time that one of the reasons for the change was to simplify the law and make it easier for people to fill out those tax forms. The 1986 tax law has been called many things by taxpayers, but "simple" is not one of them.

The Joint Committee on Taxation has recommended, in the name of simplification, that all non-business interest — including mortgages, consumer debt and investment borrowing — be lumped together and that only a certain percentage of it, say 75 percent, be allowed a deduction.

For the person whose primary income tax deduction is based on a home mortgage, that proposal would represent a 25 percent reduction in that critical deduction.

To put the matter another way, that would represent a tax increase.

In approving the 1986 tax law, Congress took away from taxpayers the capital gains break they received on the profit resulting from a sale of their home. President Bush has fought to have this capital gains break restored, but stubborn Democrats have refused to go along with the president. They would rather grab the increased taxes now available to them than pay for their pet projects.

But the additional money they have received from taxpayers as a result of the 1986 tax law is not enough for the Democratic spenders in Congress.

Now they would love to take a bigger slice of our income by reducing and perhaps eventually eliminating the home mortgage deduction.

It is amazing that Democrats, who claim to be concerned about the homeless problem, should be considering adopting a tax increase that could lead to a reduction in the number of Americans who can afford to own homes.

The tax deduction homeowners receive because of their mortgages is what enables many people to own a home. If that deduction were removed, fewer people could afford to purchase homes or pay for the homes they now own.

Home ownership is a vital part of the American dream. Home ownership provides stability for both the individual family and for the general community. Home ownership gives people a stake in their community and leads to more civic participation and lower crime rates.

To eliminate the home mortgage deduction to obtain more money for pet projects for politicians would be socially and fiscally irresponsible.

It is time for voters to write their congressional representatives to say "Read our lips — keep the home mortgage deduction."

Boomers and geezers

When Nolan Ryan of the Texas Rangers pitched an unprecedented sixth no-hitter of his long and distinguished baseball career the other day, it wasn't only baseball fans who stood up and cheered. Anyone who has seen the shady side of 40 knows how hard it can become to do even the simplest things, never mind stifling the Oakland Athletics and striking out 14 of them in the process. Nolan Ryan at 43 is something else, one of a kind; they don't make 'em like that any more.

Or do they? A few days ago, George Foreman, a 41-year-old one-time heavyweight boxing champion who at 263 pounds looks more like a clubhouse wrestler, took only two rounds to put away the 22nd victim in his comeback campaign, further calling into question the collective wisdom of a sports-writing fraternity that howled with laughter when Foreman came out of retirement a couple of years ago. If he doesn't get too old while waiting, he may even get another shot at the title.

Then the other day, after 91 grueling holes, 45-year-old Hale Irwin became the oldest person ever to win the U.S. Open golf tournament, his third such title stretching back to 1974, the year George Foreman lost the heavyweight title. Can this plethora of post-40 prowess — and don't forget catchers Carlton Fiske and Bob Boone, the American League's oldest and most accomplished receivers — be mere coincidence?

Spymaster weighing his options

EAST BERLIN — For decades, Markus Wolf was the brilliant spymaster of East Germany. He was so good at it that he inspired the character of the fictional communist spymaster "Karl" in John Le Carré's espionage novels.

But with the historic unraveling of the Iron Curtain, Wolf's flamboyant career seems to have caught up with him, leaving him only three choices: prison, defection or permanent exile in the Soviet Union.

Our U.S. and West German intelligence sources say German police are building a case against Wolf that might charge him, in effect, as an accessory to terrorist assassinations.

The 66-year-old Wolf doesn't know how much the West Germans have on him. But he's gotten the hint, and took an extended family vacation to the Soviet Union in February, where he's spent much of his time since.

In 1967, Wolf mysteriously retired after 33 years as the head of East Germany's HVA foreign espionage service, part of the Ministry of State Security. He cited ill health for his departure, though he was healthy.

Within two years, the canny Wolf had donned sheep's clothing. He published memoirs in which he criticized hard-liner chief of state Erich Honecker and sided with the reforms of Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev.

He became a champion of the East German opposition that eventually ousted Honecker last October and, following a Nov. 4 rally in which Wolf was a speaker, brought down the Berlin Wall five days later.

Wolf had good reason to side with the winners during the struggle; he harbors political ambitions. Privately he reckoned that if Yuri Andropov, a former KGB chief, could become head of the Soviet Union, and George Bush, a former CIA director, could become president of the United States, then there is a place for him as the leader of a unified Germany.

But Wolf has overestimated the value of his latter-day reformist credentials. American and West German intelligence officials told us.

He was so good at it he inspired the communist spymaster 'Karl' in Le Carré's novels.

For one thing, the officials say his commitment to communism is "very deep." He is the son of a communist doctor who fled Nazi Germany in 1933 to settle in Moscow, where the younger Wolf picked up fluent Russian. As a Jew and a communist, Wolf had twice the reason to fear and hate Hitler. Soviet intelligence officials trained him and made him a spymaster in the postwar East Germany. He sent about 80 percent of his secret service's information and defectors to the KGB. "He was always the KGB's main man in the Ministry for State Security," a West German intelligence official confided.

All of this makes Wolf's most viable option exile in the Soviet Union as a hero of that state, whose citizenship he's never relinquished. For the same reasons, he is unlikely to defect to Western intelligence agencies, even though the extent of his knowledge of East German and Soviet intelligence operations is breathtaking.

A change of heart could be worth his while. One U.S. official said that if Wolf were a sincere defector, brought files with him and allowed round-the-clock debriefings for months, the U.S. would pay "millions of dollars" for the information.

Living will is extra baggage

BOSTON — If you are headed for Missouri — a layover in St. Louis, a weekend in Kansas City — let me suggest that you pack a little something extra in your baggage. A Living Will for example.

Better yet, a signed and notarized Durable Power of Attorney. Or perhaps a checklist of 30 life-sustaining treatments and your personal attitudes toward them.

You might be wise to send copies of these to a lawyer and to a member of your family. And be sure to tell them that if they get sick or have an accident in Missouri, they'd better get your body out of the state as quickly as possible.

This traveler's advisory comes to you courtesy of the Supreme Court. On Monday, the Court ruled that people do have the right to stop medical treatment, but only if they are conscious and competent or have left "clear and convincing evidence" of what they want. Otherwise, you may have no more rights than a museum exhibit, a comatose testimony to some state's definition of "life."

If you are like Nancy Cruzan, for example, 25 years old at the time of a car crash, you could end up in a permanent vegetative state for 10, 20, 30 years with no way out. If you are struck down without leaving behind a full record of your attitudes about the major bioethics questions of the day, you could become, as Justice Brennan put it in his eloquent dissent, "a passive prisoner of medical technology."

This is the bottom line in the case of Joe and Joyce Cruzan's daughter. She has spent seven unconscious years in a Missouri hospital being fed what the nurses call "supper" through a feeding tube. It's the case as well for Christine Busalacchi, a 20-year-old patient in the same hospital, who is wheeled in the same unconscious state to "music therapy" where they play gospel to the former fan of heavy metal.

The court ruled that Nancy had not made her wishes known clearly enough. She had only talked about life and death the way most of us do, conversationally, casually. She "wouldn't want to live that way." She "didn't want to live as a vegetable."

Without more certainty, the majority ruled that Missouri's right to protect "life" was greater than the family's right to defend her "liberty" from medical treatment. In a striking passage, Justice Rehnquist said that there is "no automatic assurance that the view of close family members will necessarily be the same as the patient's."

In short, the state was more trustworthy than the family. Especially the state of Missouri, which has set itself on the extreme end of the pro-life spectrum.

"Once you become incompetent, you're out of it, and your family's out of it," says Boston University's bioethicist George Annas. "The view of the court is that Nancy Cruzan should exist to protect the state's unqualified interest in life. That it's always better to be alive than dead. You can treat someone without her consent, but you can't STOP treating her without consent."

This decision cannot help but raise the anxiety of Americans who have come to regard the end of life, the hi-tech "twilight zone," with fear and loathing. For the overwhelming majority of Americans, some 70 to 80 percent, death comes after a series of decisions between patients, families and doctors about treatments to begin, try, end. For each American in a Cruzan-like condition, there are many more who are or will become incompetent before they die.

"I think it is important for people to know they will not lose control at the end," says Susan Wolf, an ethicist at the Hastings Center. "That knowledge allows people to keep going."

Indeed without that assurance, we may see more pre-emptive suicides by people like Janet Adkins, who sought out the so-called suicide machine before she would lose her mind to Alzheimer's. We will also, surely, see doctors who hesitate to try experimental treatments out of fear they can't be ended.

Missouri is so far the most intrusive state, but the Court gives the green light to others. In the meantime, the Cruzans' only hope for an end to the intrusive treatment is to move their daughter, perhaps down the road to Arkansas.

Once, in the '70s, there were families that took a brain-dead child from one state to another that recognized this death. In the 1980s, we may have to shop again for a state that will allow patients and families to end treatment without a suitcase full of documents.

For now, however, a recommendation. The Living Will. Don't leave home without it.

You may have no more rights than a museum exhibit.

River project a political issue

Recent newspaper articles concerning impending plans to return the Kissimmee River to its original path by pushing back the embankment of the 60 mile long canal have provoked some very disturbing thoughts in my mind.

First, it is a concern over the cost. The $380 million the Army Corps of Engineers estimates it will cost to complete this project is staggering by itself. Many times estimated budgets fall short of meeting the actual dollars needed to complete projects of this magnitude.

For example, much of the Kissimmee embankment has eroded and washed out to sea or into Lake Okechobee. If the proposed project is not yet completed and more dirt is needed, where will they buy it and how much will it cost?

Throughout history, man has devised a variety of ways to retain water for use in arid weather. During rainy seasons Florida allows its excessive water flow into the sea. As an alternative to the Kissimmee River project, I propose building a series of reservoirs across the state in proximity to our fresh water streams.

Each reservoir would be several thousand acres in size with embankments of 25 to 30 feet in height. During rainy seasons the reservoirs would be filled and the stored water drawn as needed during the dry seasons.

Multiple benefits would be gained from this plan: the aquifer would be supplemented, ample irrigation for land would be available, our lakes would be replenished and fresh water recreation (the mainstay of Florida's appeal and future economic growth) would be protected for future generations of residents and tourists.

We find ourselves standing on the brink of a crucial water shortage. Please don't allow the army corps of engineers waste precious time and money on the ill-fated Kissimmee River project. Instead, let's start a project that will work.

Make sure that your political candidate has "water" at the top of his political priorities.

Dr. O.A. Spiegel
Sebring, Fla.

Capitalism's critics, victims at 'TOES'

By Wally Summers
United Press International

HOUSTON — The leaders of the world's leading industrial nations are not the only people who will gather next week to talk international economics — capitalism's critics and, some say, its victims, will meet as well.

And organizers of "The Other Economic Summit," or TOES, say it will be more intellectually stimulating than the official summit and provide a voice in the international economic debate to the often voiceless from the world's poorest nations.

TOES will convene July 6-8, just before the July 9-11 International Economic Summit that will bring to Houston the leaders of the world's biggest industrialized powers: the United States, Canada, Great Britain, West Germany, France, Japan, Italy and the Commission of the European Community.

On the agenda for the presidents, prime ministers and central bankers are the pressing issues of the changes in Europe, Third World debt, the global environment, economic growth and international trade problems.

Many of the same subjects, addressed from a bottom up rather than top down perspective, will be the focus of TOES and the first "Popular Leaders Summit," featuring speakers such as Jesse Jackson and grass roots leaders from Brazil, Mexico and Colombia.

"The purpose is to provide an opening for voices that are not heard at the official Economic Summit, such as people from the Third World and people with environmental perspectives on economic issues," said Prentiss Riddle, coordinator of TOES' Houston site committee.

"There are a lot of people out there finding solutions to many of the problems that we know we face," he said. "Yet their work is not getting the attention it deserves. The purpose of TOES is to get the word out about not just theories, but concrete achievements, and broaden the debate on economic issues."

Food product claims rankle Congress, deceive customers

By Wally Summers
United Press International

WASHINGTON — As Sen. Joseph Lieberman sees it, food manufacturers want the buying public to believe even the cookie aisle at the local supermarket is a health food aisle.

"My staff went into one of the local supermarkets and found that of the 250 different kinds of cookies that were being sold, all but 37 had some kind of health or nutrition claim on the label," said Lieberman, D-Conn. "People are getting deceived."

With public concern over the link between diet and certain diseases, the food industry increasingly is using product labels and advertising to boast of health and nutrition benefits of virtually everything from goopy cakes to fatty steaks.

And a new army of buzzwords, such as "light," "lean," "natural," "reduced calories" and "high fiber," has marched into the marketplace, as industry tries to persuade consumers that products can help prevent such conditions as heart disease, colon cancer and high blood pressure.

Concerned about the misleading claims made by some in the food industry, lawmakers are scrutinizing the federal government's scatter-shot regulations pertaining to food labeling and advertising and are pursuing legislation to correct the problem.

At the same time, consumer groups, health organizations and attorneys general from individual states have called for a more coherent federal policy toward food labeling and advertising. They have demanded that the three responsible U.S. agencies, the Food and Drug Administration, the Department of Agriculture and the Federal Trade Commission, produce uniform food labeling and advertising standards.

The FDA regulates all nutrition and health information on food labels excluding meat, poultry and egg labels, which are controlled by the USDA. The FTC regulates all nutrition and health claims made in television, radio and print advertising for food products.

Due to this fragmented regulation authority, food manufacturers often can make health and nutrition claims in advertising that would be illegal on a food label. In addition, meat companies can make claims that a producer of a non-meat product with an identical nutritional profile could not make.

"If properly regulated, health claims can be used to inform consumers about diet and disease," said Bruce Silverglad, director of legal affairs for the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a prominent consumer group. "In practice, however, health claims have led to a marketplace free-for-all of false and misleading claims reminiscent of an 1890s medicine show."

WORLD BRIEFS

Government suspends seal slaughter

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government today acknowledged international disgust and temporarily suspended plans to club and pierce the hearts of 30,000 seal pups, only hours after rejecting appeals and threats from animal rights lobbies.

The seals this month were to be stunned by clubbing and then killed by a stab to the heart for their genitals to be used as an aphrodisiac, the meat as pet food and the skin for gloves and bags.

Doe agrees to resign

MONROVIA, Liberia — President Samuel Doe has agreed in principle to resign under pressure from close associates and advancing rebels battling his troops in Monrovia's suburbs, political sources said.

Doe was last seen staying near the U.S. Embassy, the sources said Tuesday.

U.S. State Department spokesman Richard Boucher repeated an offer to help Doe leave the country if he asked, but said Doe had not yet requested such help. Boucher also declined to say whether Doe could come to the United States.

Sandinista negotiation offer spurned

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The government said it will not negotiate collectively with Sandinista strike leaders for a settlement of a 2-day-old walkout that has hit agriculture and industrial production.

Labor Minister Francisco Rosales said Tuesday each ministry and government-run industry was willing to discuss wage issues and other demands, but he said the government as a whole would not negotiate with Sandinista leaders over a nationwide strike.

He also rejected Sandinista demands for negotiations over President Violeta Chamorro's plans to privatize many of the government-run industries built up during more than a decade of Sandinista rule.

U.N. chief planning trip to Iran and Iraq

GENEVA — Iran and Iraq have agreed to renew the search for a permanent peace settlement to the Persian Gulf War with mediation by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Talking directly to each other for the first time since the August 1988 cease-fire in their eight-year conflict, foreign ministers Ali Akbar Velayati of Iran and Tariq Aziz of Iraq reaffirmed the support of their governments in U.N. mediation.

Perez de Cuellar said Tuesday there was "an improved atmosphere" at the meeting — the first since the last indirect session in April 1989, when Velayati and Aziz refused to address each other directly.

Pilgrims didn't follow safety rules

CAIRO, Egypt — Saudi King Fahd and an official overseeing the area where 1,426 Moslems on a pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca died in a tunnel said the tragedy may have been averted had the pilgrims followed safety rules.

In statement broadcast Tuesday by Riyadh Radio and monitored in Cairo, Prince Nayef Ibn Abdul Azziz said the deaths occurred shortly after about 50,000 pilgrims jammed in the tunnel that leads to Mount Arafat near Mecca.

The tragedy was triggered Monday afternoon when seven pilgrims fell from a packed bridge near one end of the tunnel. The accident caused a panic as some pilgrims retreated into the air-conditioned tunnel and collided with waves of others pushing through the other end. Reportedly, the tunnel's ventilation system failed, further aggravating the scene.

Shevardnadze vows not to hamper German unity

By GERALD NADLER
United Press International

MOSCOW — Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze pledged the Soviet Union will not drag out the unification of Germany, saying, "We will live in a new Europe."

Shevardnadze Tuesday defended his five-year foreign policy before more than 4,500 delegates at the 28th Communist Party Congress, warning against any Soviet version of a McCarthy-like witch hunt about who "lost" Eastern Europe to democracy.

Rather, he said the Soviet Union foresaw developments in the repressed Eastern bloc and allowed liberalization to proceed to prevent "a tragedy."

Shevardnadze, 62, went directly to the most burning question of foreign policy — how to contain the military potential of a united Germany.

He said a united Germany would have a vastly smaller army than the current West Germany, which is a key link in the NATO bloc.

"What is better for us: to have against us a 500,000-man Bundeswehr (West German army), or the army of a united Germany, which would be half of that?" he asked rhetorically.

In Bonn, senior West German government sources said West German leaders agreed Tuesday that a united Germany would have fewer than 400,000 troops. The officials, who asked not to be identified, said the proposal was likely to be presented to a NATO meeting in London this week.

The West German military currently has 480,000 personnel under arms, and the East German army 173,000.

Instead of an adversary, Shevardnadze said a united Germany would be a partner for the Soviet Union.

"I am sure that the U.S.S.R. will cooperate with the united Germany on a broad scale, and it will be mutually beneficial to both (countries) in politics, the economy and in other fields," he said.

"I will say openly and honestly, with full responsibility: It is not our intent to delay further the solution of the foreign aspects of German unity within the framework of the general settlement."

The foreign aspects of German unity of which Shevardnadze spoke refers to whether it should be in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Western military alliance.

His statement was a direct message to Washington of the sincerity of the Soviet Union's search to find a solution over NATO membership for the united state in the heart of Europe.

The Soviets have opposed such NATO inclusion, but have suggested Germany can be a member of NATO and associated with the Warsaw Pact. The idea has been rejected by Washington.

"We will live in a new Europe, in a new military-political environment where a repetition of 1939 (the outbreak of war) will not be possible," Shevardnadze said.

Shevardnadze said that as a Soviet citizen — his brother died on the first day of World War II — he understood the losses the country took at the hands of the Hitler's German army.

Those loss of 8 million soldiers and more than 12 million other citizens during the war led the Kremlin under Josef Stalin in 1949 to keep Germany divided by creating a puppet East German state, the German Democratic Republic.

And Shevardnadze stressed, "The settlement of the German question is going on with our direct participation and no decision can be taken without the agreement by the U.S.S.R."

He also pledged that any agreement by the four World War II victors and the two Germans on a unified Germany will have to be approved by the Supreme Soviet.

Shevardnadze, who in 1985 took over from Andrei Gromyko's three decades at the helm of foreign affairs, explained that almost all states now trust the Kremlin.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Tigers crush White Sox

CHICAGO — Cecil Fikler hit his major league-leading 27th home run and added an RBI single while Lou Whitaker matched his career RBI high with five, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 13-7 rout of the Chicago White Sox.

The White Sox lost for the second time in 12 games.

Edwin Nunez, 3-0, won in 1 1/3 innings of relief. Jerry Don Gleaton pitched four innings for his second save. Eric King, 8-2, gave up eight hits and seven runs over 3 2/3 innings, ending a personal four-game winning streak.

Whitaker hit a three-run homer, his 11th, and a two-run triple to lead the Tigers' 17-hit attack, which tied a season high. It was his third career five-RBI game and first since Aug. 10, 1982 against New York.

In other AL action Tuesday, Cleveland beat Seattle 9-4, Toronto edged California 5-2, Minnesota stopped Boston 7-3, Oakland shutout Milwaukee 8-0, Kansas City whipped New York 6-1 and Texas knocked off Baltimore 7-2.

Seles upset at Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England — Monica Seles' 36-match winning streak ended Tuesday when Zina Garrison survived an early case of nerves and a late match point to defeat the 16-year-old French Open champion 3-6, 6-3, 9-7 and advance to Wimbledon's semifinals.

Seles, the third seed, had won her six previous tournaments and had not lost a match since March.

Garrison, the No. 5 seed, next plays defending champion Steffi Graf. The top seed, who has yet to lose a set, ousted No. 13 Jana Novotna 7-5, 6-2.

Also reaching the semifinals was No. 2 Martina Navratilova, who routed No. 7 Katerina Maleeva 6-1, 6-1. The 33-year-old former champion won her 97th singles match at The All England Club, breaking the match set last year by Chris Evert.

Navratilova's opponent will be No. 4 Gabriela Sabatini, who downed No. 11 Natalia Zvereva 6-2, 2-6, 8-6, despite trailing 5-3 in the third set.

On the men's side, top seed Ivan Lendl, dependent for his first Wimbledon crown, ousted Alex Antonitsch of Austria 3-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4.

The other men's pairings: No. 2 Boris Becker vs. No. 7 Brad Gilbert, No. 3 Stefan Edberg vs. Christian Bergstrom and Goran Ivanisevic vs. Kevin Curren.

WORLD CUP

Argentina wins shootout

NAPLES, Italy — Argentina didn't need any luck this time.

The defending World Cup champions finally played their best match in the tournament Tuesday night, stunning Italy 4-3 in a penalty-kick shootout, after drawing 1-1 in extra time.

Argentina is one victory away from becoming the first back-to-back World Cup champions since Brazil won the 1958 and 1962 titles. Argentina moves into Sunday's final against the winner of the Wednesday night West Germany-England match.

Maradona also put himself in position to become the first person to captain consecutive World Cup champions.

Argentina had struggled throughout the tournament, losing to Cameroon, beating the Soviet Union, and playing to a draw with Romania.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Browning, Myers lead Reds

MONTREAL — Tom Browning and Randy Myers combined on a three-hitter and Glenn Braggs hit a home run Tuesday night to lift the Cincinnati Reds to a 2-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Browning, 8-5, walked two and struck out four over 8 1/3 innings. He pitched a perfect game for 5 1/3 innings before Spike Owen singled. After Browning walked two batters in the ninth, Myers came on for his 18th save — but not before hitting Tim Wallach with a pitch to load the bases with two outs. He finally got Mike Fitzgerald to ground to second for the final out.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off Zane Smith, 4-6. Barry Larkin doubled into the left field corner with one out and charged all the way home when left fielder Marquis Grissom misplayed the ball for an error. Braggs homered with one out in the fourth to make it 2-0.

Elsewhere in the NL on Monday night, New York hammered Houston 12-0 Philadelphia stopped Atlanta 5-1, Pittsburgh shamed by San Diego 5-3, San Francisco topped St. Louis 4-0 and Los Angeles trimmed Chicago 7-6.

SBA Magic faces must-win situation

From staff reports

The second day of pool play proved to be unlucky for the Sunshine Basketball Association Magic as they dropped a 45-31 decision to North Carolina Silver at Oviedo High School in the AAU/Carrier Boys' 11-and-Under National Basketball Tournament.

The last pool game for the Magic was today at 10:20 a.m. when they took on Virginia Silver. The Magic needed a win to have a chance to advance to the championship round.

The tournament field is broken down into eight pools playing at four sites. The two teams with the best record in each pool moves into the double-elimination championship round, which starts Thursday.

Fireworks, flags and 'Salmon Wiggle'

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

Pam Waldron, our Cook of the Week, arrived from Lake Helen along with her husband Dennis and children Jamie, 8, and Heather, 4, to visit Waldron's sister's family, the Alan Myers of Sanford.

Waldron's sister Penny, brother-in-law, Alan, and 4-month-old nephew, Marlon, were all ready for a Fourth of July holiday treat. Aunt Pam tended the steaks on the old grill for an outdoor feast. Festivities got off to a bang when the children were put in charge of balloon blowing for the yard decor.

Waldron says that she learned to cook "by guess or by golly."

However, she does remember that at the age of three her dad held her every Saturday morning while he fixed the family breakfast: pancakes, bacon and eggs.

"My dad was a Navy man and I guess he thought girls should eat just as heartily as he did," she laughs and says. "Mom never said anything, she just enjoyed the break in the routine."

Waldron remembered inheriting a well-worn cookbook from her paternal grandmother, a Yankee.

"My maternal grandfather, Jack Browne and great-grandfather, Frederick Taylor, were both chefs and they each owned restaurants in New England. I don't think that I inherited any great knowledge of the culinary arts. I would rather read a book than cook."

One particular recipe that stands out in Waldron's mind is one in which her grandmother Margaret Taylor Browne of Boston passed down to be used traditionally on the 4th of July. "It's called Salmon Wiggle and New Englanders everywhere serve this on the 4th. It's a tradition," she emphatically says. "On the 4th we must have fireworks, flags and Salmon Wiggle."

Pam Waldron tends to the steaks on the grill as Jamie and Heather assist.

SALMON WIGGLE

1 can pink or red salmon, save liquid (whatever type affordable)
1 can English peas, save liquid (may use frozen, cooked)
1 cup milk
3 Tbs. cornstarch (may use flour, cornstarch has less calories)
7 Tbs. butter or margarine
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. black pepper
Drain salmon. Retain liquid, clean fish of all skin and bones. Try not to break up fish too much. Heat salmon in 1 Tbs. of butter or margarine on low heat. In a separate pan heat all liquids and butter or margarine. Make a runny mixture with the cornstarch and cold water. Start with two times the water as to cornstarch and mix in a cup until smooth and soupy. When the milk, peas and salmon liquid are hot, add the cornstarch mixture and stir as it thickens, remove from heat, add salt and pepper, salmon and stir in peas. If the white sauce is too thick, thin with heated milk and stir in gently. Be sure not to break up the chunks of salmon too small and be careful not to scorch the milk. Serve over toast points, top with parsley flakes, dot with butter, sprinkle lightly with black pepper.

CORN UNDERCOVER

1 ear of corn per person
Pull down husk, remove outer layer of husk (save for later) and remove silk, replace husk. Soak in salt water for about 1 hour. When coals in the grill are glowing, shake each ear and place on grill for 20 to 30 minutes, slow cook. Serve in the husk.

VEGGIE WRAP

Potatoes, 1 per person, sliced, raw

Onion, 1 large, sliced, med. thick
Green tomato, 1 large, sliced
Eggplant and/or zucchini, sliced (leave skin on)
Mushrooms, ½ lb., sliced
Oil
Salt and pepper
Cajun seasoning or hot sauce
Lay out 12 x 12 sheets of foil. Coat all veggies with oil, salt, pepper and Cajun or hot sauce. Place corn husks that you saved on top of foil. Place several pieces of each vegetable on husk, roll up, seal with a pinch, place on grill for about 20 min. or until potato is tender.
Waldron says, "These simple but delectable recipes go well with any meal or cookout whether its steaks, burgers or hot dogs. They compliment each other and allow easy cleanup. Happy 4th."

Don't fall for prey to ineffective therapy

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was very interested in your column regarding KM tonic. Since M.D.s have failed me many times, I fall prey to those who sell tonics, etc. A man sold me a bottle of KM tonic, and I took one spoonful. A couple of hours later, I awoke with severe cramps and diarrhea. It reactivated my colitis, which had sent me to doctors in the first place.

A local doctor failed to help and finally a friend referred me to a chelation doctor who helped remedy my condition. As for the KM manufacturer's guarantee to refund my $35 if not satisfied, my chelation treatments came to $3,000 — my life savings. I assume you would debunk chelation therapy, but nix is the word for KM products.

DEAR READER: You're right. I would debunk chelation therapy for the purpose you describe.

I'm surprised you depleted your savings account in such a way, especially since you realize you "fall prey" to health practitioners' claims. Sounds like other people are being set up to fall you, while you keep coming back for more — even paying for it.

KM is a medically unproved tonic marketed for various illa. I cannot comment on the medical condition that prompted you to purchase KM, but I am struck by your repetitive behavioral pattern.

I wonder if some psychotherapy could help you give up the "chronic victim" aspect of your life. I suggest you investigate the mental-health facilities in your community, where you might qualify for low-cost counseling.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffered a recent stroke and have been in a wheelchair. On several occasions while attempting to walk to a portable toilet, I've fallen for no apparent reason. My doctor blames it on low blood pressure. What can I do to prevent this from happening again?

DEAR READER: I assume from your question that the stroke left you handicapped and confined to a wheelchair because of leg weakness. Under these circumstances, you ought not to attempt transferring from wheelchair to toilet without help. With time, your strength may improve. But, for now, you need to be patient and work with your

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Declarer put up dummy's queen of hearts, the first key play in three no-trump. When East played low, indicating that West had led away from the ace of hearts, it was apparent that South must develop the tricks to make game without letting East gain the lead. Should East win a trick, he would play through the declarer's king of hearts, and the defenders would run the suit. If diamonds divide 2-2, or if three diamonds are held by West, it is easy to establish sufficient diamond tricks without giving East the lead. Unfortunately, if East holds Q-J-10 of diamonds, he must win a trick. But declarer needs to prevent East from gaining the lead in those cases where West holds a singleton 10, jack or queen. So how do you play? It's not really so hard. Having won dummy's queen of hearts, declarer should play a low diamond from dummy. When East follows small, declarer can cover with a low spot. West wins the 10 in the diagrammed layout, but the safe hand is on lead, and the subsequent play of the A-K of diamonds will bring in the rest of the suit for nine tricks. And what if East had played the jack or queen of diamonds when the suit was first led? Declarer would win that trick, return to dummy with a high black card, and then play East for honor-deuce. That would be no diamond tricks for the defense and an overtrick for declarer. See tomorrow's deal for an interesting variation on keeping the dangerous hand from gaining the lead.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Beale Osof
YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 5, 1990

A number of important new allies might be won over to your positions in the year ahead. There could be two alliances in particular who could turn out to be beneficial for you in unique ways.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are too set upon having your own way today you might fail to cooperate as you should with others in ways that could turn out to be highly advantageous. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't let your ego induce you to take on responsibilities today that are beyond your talents. You won't lose points with others if you honestly appraise them of your limitations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You must be on your very best behavior socially today if you hope to make a favorable impression on a person you are anxious to have like you. This individual is extremely critical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Competitive developments must be evaluated wisely today or else you might underestimate your competition and come out in second place instead of first.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone who has a rather forceful personality but does not think as clearly or logically as you do might induce you to alter your plans today. Be careful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It could prove wise not to get involved in joint ventures at this time where you are required to put up more money than your counterpart. Even if it's only temporary. It could be a bum deal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your independence will be of importance to you today and you won't appreciate being linked up with an individual who always likes to tell others what to do and when to do it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to perform effectively today you must be strongly motivated. Lukewarm interests are not likely to receive your most earnest efforts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful today if you get involved with an acquaintance who seldom has anything nice to say about others. Keep in mind this person might talk about you the same way when you're not present.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There's a possibility you might be unduly influenced by the wrong people today, especially in matters that pertain to your reputation or career. Strive to use your best judgment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's best to avoid serious discussions today if you don't know your subject and are hoping to bluff your way through. Unfortunately, your lack of knowledge will be easily perceived.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Business conditions are pretty tricky today, so be on guard in all of your commercial involvements. You might think you have the upper hand, but the opposite could be true.
