FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Governor, Cabinet appoint Revenue Department director

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez and the Cabinet voted Tuesday by a 4-3 margin to appoint veteran state employee and Coast Guard Reserve officer Katie Tucker as the new director of the Department of Revenue. "You're kidding," Tucker said when told of her appointment. "The last conversation I had it was up in the air with all four of (her supporters). I had just written my letter thanking them all for their help making the final four."

Tucker won the $43,260 a year post over state Rep. Winston "Bud" Gardner, D-Titusville, the influential House Rules Committee chairman.

The final four candidates also included lobbyist Pamela Davis and governor's office analyst Karen Walby.

Tucker was supported by Martinez, Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter, Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner and Comptroller Gerald Lewis. Martinez originally voted for Walby, but switched his support to Tucker when the vote was narrowed to the top two vote-getters.

Doctor reunited with husband

CHANTILLY, Va. (UPI) — A Soviet immigrant now working as a doctor in Florida was reunited with her dissident husband Tuesday after eight years of separation by superpower politics.

Pyatras Pakenas, 55, who received his Soviet passport last Wednesday, arrived at Dulles International Airport near Washington, D.C. at 4:50 p.m. EDT.

His wife, Dr. Galina Vileshina, said upon being reunited with her husband, "God bless America."

After the reunion, Pakenas and Vileshina both kissed an American flag that hung on a pole near a podium in the airport terminal, and Pakenas thanked Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., and Rep. E. Clay Shaw, Jr., R-Fort Lauderdale, for "the happiest day of my life."

"I really don't believe right now that it's happened," Vileshina said. "But when I saw him I said, maybe it's real, maybe it's not a dream."

Vileshina and Pakenas were scheduled to spend Tuesday night in the nation's capital and be guests of honor Wednesday at a reception on Capitol Hill.

The couple planned to return to south Florida Thursday.

Officials seize illegal fireworks

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Almost half a million dollars in illegal fireworks from China have been seized at four southern ports in the past two months, officials of the Consumer Products Safety Commission and U.S. Customs announced Tuesday.

Terrence Scanlon, chairman of the product safety commission, said more than 2.78 million retail units — representing several million individual fireworks — were seized by inspectors at Tampa, New Orleans, Savannah, Ga., and Mobile, Ala.

The seizures were conducted as part of "Operation Southern Thunder," the fourth major joint effort between the safety commission and Customs around the country in recent months aimed at stopping the importation of dangerous fireworks.

Scanlon said this is the first year a concentrated effort has been made to stop the flow of illegal fireworks before they get to the consumer. He said past crackdowns were at the roadside stand level.

"It's up to us to stop them at dockside rather than at roadside," he said.

Unions denounce Teamsters takeover

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor leaders nationwide are denouncing the federal lawsuit to take control of the Teamsters, with some deploring dominance by organized crime and all protesting the government's "shameful attempt to destroy a democratic union."

"The government should not be allowed to interfere in the internal affairs of this or any other union," argued Weldon Mathis, general secretary-treasurer and acting president of the Teamsters, after the civil suit was filed in New York and announced by the Justice Department Tuesday.

"This international union is not now, and never was, controlled by organized crime," Mathis declared in Montreal, where leaders of the 1.7 million member confederation were meeting.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani, who filed the government action, maintained at a New York news conference, "The 18 member (Teamsters) executive board has allowed itself to be corrupted by the Mafia. This is an attempt to take away from the Mafia assets it has been able to attain."

Giuliani said the government is "not seeking overall control of the Teamsters union" but a court-appointed trustee with power over the leadership.

"This would last only for so long as necessary to eliminate organized crime's influence over the Teamsters, to put permanent reforms into place and to return control of the Teamsters to (its) many honest working men and women," the prosecutor explained.

Other labor leaders sided with the Teamsters bosses, however.

"In a democratic society, labor unions must be controlled by their members and not by the government," said the AFL-CIO in a written response. "If the Justice Department has evidence sufficient to prove that officers of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters or any other union have committed federal offense, it should proceed against those individuals directly under laws which forbid convicted criminals from holding union office."

The labor federation — which readmitted the Teamsters in November after expelling the union for corruption in 1957 — said, "The civil racketeering suit filed today against the Teamsters is a clear abuse of the government's prosecutorial power and is based on legal theories which, if sustained, would undermine a free trade union movement."

Agreed William Wynn, president of the 1.3 million-member United Food and Commercial Workers Union, "Government control of unions is evil, no matter how the government rationalized its action."

And Mathis, whose union supported Ronald Reagan in both the 1980 and 1984 presidential elections, concluded, "It marks the lowest point of a Republican administration in attacking the working men and women of America. It's a vicious attack — a shameful attempt to destroy a democratic union."

John Chinaco, general counsel for the Teamsters, vowed without elaborating that the union would defend itself in court.

"We're not going to litigate it in the media," he said. "We'll litigate it in the courts. As Mr. Giuliani surprised all of us, we'll surprise Mr. Giuliani."

The government's 100-page complaint, based on an investigation of more than two years, seeks to prove a pattern of corrupt activity rather than individual guilt on specific criminal charges. It nonetheless identifies 44 people as defendants, including the top 18 Teamsters officials.

Sept. 4 shuttle launch target date

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Running behind schedule, engineers are working through a series of tests to ready the shuttle Discovery for its trip to the launch pad Sunday and blastoff on the first post-Challenger mission in early September.

A NASA statement said Tuesday Rear Adm. Richard Truly, associate administrator for space flight, "updated the target for the upcoming shuttle launch to early September" after a "major review" of the shuttle program. Launch had been targeted for around Aug. 22.

A specific date was not announced but as of Monday, internal planning schedules showed Sept. 4 as the current target for blastoff based on the amount of work completed so far in Discovery's launch processing.

But the schedule has been changing on a daily basis and a firm launch date is not expected to emerge until well after the orbiter reaches the launch pad.

Top NASA managers, meanwhile, planned to meet in Washington today to discuss the agency's budget and to review the overall status of launch preparations.

Discovery, bolted to its external fuel tank and boosters, is "stacked" on a mobile launch platform in the Kennedy Space Center's Vehicle Assembly Building undergoing final checks before the trip to launch pad 39B.

Roll out to the pad is scheduled to begin at one minute past midnight Saturday. But the move, already running two days behind schedule, is in jeopardy because of delays starting a five-day "interface test" between the many shuttle components.

The interface test did not get under way about 4 p.m. Tuesday and it probably will not be completed in time for a midnight Saturday-Sunday morning roll out. But engineers were studying whether parts of the test could be completed at the launch pad. In that case, roll out could take place Sunday on schedule.

Otherwise, NASA managers might have to consider rolling on the Fourth of July or delaying the move past the holiday to give workers time off.

President visits state to endorse Bush, Connie Mack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, with a quick flight to Miami today, saw a chance to campaign for Vice President George Bush and for Rep. Connie Mack of Florida, who suddenly is in a Republican primary to run for the Senate.

Mack is seeking the seat being vacated by retiring Democratic Sen. Lawton Chiles, and while the president has a longstanding neutrality policy in any GOP primary, the situation in Florida caught him off guard. He already had endorsed Mack before U.S. Attorney Robert Merkle entered the race this week.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater tried to play down the intraparty partisanship on the eve of today's campaign trip, saying the president's appearance on behalf of Mack will be followed by many for GOP candidates.

The congressman's $500- and $1,000-a-plate luncheon in Miami is the first of a series of upcoming Reagan appearances nationwide in which the president will sound familiar themes about the state of the economy and its recovery under his administration. Fitzwater explained Tuesday.

"The theme of the speech will be why Connie Mack should be elected, why George Bush should be elected and why all Republicans should be elected," he said. "And it will speak to the record of the Reagan administration and why we're proud of it and why we expect Americans to want to continue Republican leadership in this country."

Fitzwater discounted suggestions that Reagan is concerned about the state of Bush's campaign to succeed him and dismissed public opinion polls showing the vice president trailing his prospective Democratic challenger, Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

"The polls are wrong," Fitzwater declared.

The White House spokesman reiterated that Reagan supports the Bush campaign but "is not going to be involved in trying to tell anybody how to run their campaign. It's just not his role."

Drive-through service

Firefighters clear debris from the scene of an accident at the 7-11 convenience store on S.R. 434 between Interstate 4 and Raymond Lane on Tuesday. William C. Scisiani of 325 Woodstead Lane, Longwood, was the driver of the Toyota van that lurched through the front door of the store. The driver said the van was lurching when he put it into reverse, so he shifted to drive and the vehicle accelerated suddenly and crashed through the glass storefront. Officials estimated damage to the store at $5,000 while the vehicle sustained $1,000 worth of damage. No charges were filed in the incident.

Confession solves Alabama murder

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A confession from a Key West produce clerk helped Alabama police solve the murder of one woman and prompted them to look for other graves near the scene of that crime.

Thomas Poole, 46, cooperated with police after his alleged partner in the rape and murder was arrested last week, said Key West detective Sgt. Gary Armstrong.

"He told us everything," Armstrong said.

Poole said he and landscaper Curtis Grantham, his former employer, raped and killed Marie "Rose" Medley after picking her up in a bar in Phenix City, Ala., called Porky's.

He said Grantham reassured him after the murder, telling him "not to worry" about the crime being discovered because, "I've done this before."

Armstrong called Alabama police, who arrested Grantham Friday in Phenix City and sent two investigators to Key West to pick up Poole.

Both men were charged with capital murder, said Phenix City detective Capt. A.D. Lee Tuesday. He said Grantham refused to talk, but Poole has given them reason to suspect Grantham may have buried other victims in the area.

Medley, 25, of Phenix City, was the mother of a 12-year-old. She had a tattoo with her name "Rose" on one arm, Lee said.

She was separated from her husband and seeking a divorce when she went with a girlfriend to Porky's at the end of March 1987, said Lee. Medley's estranged husband became a prime suspect in her disappearance because of their "heated" relations at the time, he added.

Marina program rates second look

The Sanford City Commission has postponed the implementation of fees for the use of the boat ramp facilities at the city's marina until after the Fourth of July holiday period at the request of the chamber of commerce. The fees, which are to be paid by non-residents of Sanford, have been set at $5 per day, or an annual fee of $100.

It is with mixed feelings that we view all of the ramifications of the new marina program. The commissioners hastily adopted the budget providing for personnel and other expenses attendant to the program and assessed the fees. We feel the daily fee is too high but cannot definitively defend that position since no one, including the city manager, city employees or the commissioners really knows how much income any particular fee will generate. The effective day of the ordinance saw the imposition of controls but without the fees which were to be started July 2. It has now been postponed until July 9.

The most troublesome part of the entire matter falls into the question of why and the answer seems apparent. The fees were adopted to fund the launching and parking controls deemed necessary at the marina principally because too many boaters neglected basic tenets of courtesy. They saved that spirit for the waterways. Too many felt no compunctions about parking their vehicles and trailers diagonally across parking spaces to provide for their own quick getaways upon return. General confusion reigned in the marina parking area due to the meanness of too many. Something had to be done and the recently adopted program seemingly was the best the city officials could develop. The intent was apparently to fund the necessary controls to correct the disharmony at the marina. It would also serve as a deterrent to increased usage.

Now commissioners must cope with requests for exemptions. Certainly the exemption given to the Citrus Bowl Regatta was a wise decision due to the tremendous economic and publicity benefits Sanford derives from the event. However, others were denied exceptions and, as might be assumed, they are unhappy. One group is even considering boycotting the Fourth of July boat parade due to the waiver denial.

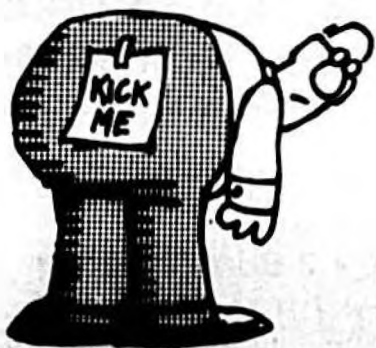

Since the budget adopted by commissioners was designated as a tentative budget, perhaps the fee schedule could also be considered tentative. And in the interim, perhaps boaters who have been guilty of parking and launching discourtesies in the past could sharpen up their acts. Perhaps then, a program based on facts rather than assumptions can be developed and fee-payers, even if unhappy, will know exactly why. It might ease the pain.

Great Smoky Mountain feud hits Senate

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Never will it rival the legendary feud between the McCoy and the Hatfields, but there's a dandy war raging on top of ol' Smoky.

And it's not all that hard to imagine Terry Sanford, Jim Sasser and young Al Gore closing in on old Jesse Helms in the pristine wilderness of the national park that straddles the North Carolina-Tennessee border.

Mercifully, their shotguns are loaded only with words of umbrage, the scene of battle is the stuffy Senate chamber and the rules prohibit both mortal and superficial wounds.

But believe it, this is a feud.

The bitter dispute evolves from an agreement made in the middle of World War II, some 45 years ago, when thousands of acres in western North Carolina were flooded to create Fontana Lake. Some 44,000 acres acquired for development of the lake but not flooded were added to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Unfortunately, this electricity-producing lake took with it the only road that led to some 30 ancestral family cemeteries and, as part of the agreement, the federal government promised to build a new road.

That road has never been completed and those who wish to visit the cemeteries can do so only by pontoon boats or embark on a long hike over rugged mountain terrain. About 7 miles of the 26-mile road have been built and that stretch is now known in Swain County, N.C., as "The Road to Nowhere."

In 1974, the Interior Department proposed designating some 400,000 acres of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park as wilderness and the first efforts to carry out the proposal go back to the late 1970s.

Although the battle lines are badly drawn and quite fluid, the sides in the feud shape up something like this.

Those who favor the wilderness designation, plus a payoff to Swain County for loss of road of $9.5 million, are Tennesseans like former White House chief of staff Howard Baker, Sens. James Sasser, D-Tenn., Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and the Smoky mountain congressmen and North Carolinians like Sen. Terry Sanford, D-N.C., Rep. James McClure Clarke, D-N.C., the area congressman who introduced the bill in the House, and the commissioners of impoverished Swain County.

Those on the other side are willing to go along with two conditions — give back 44,000 acres north of the lake and build the road.

They are led by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., and include North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin, the Cherokee Nation, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, 6,800 people in western North Carolina, including 3,700 in Swain County.

There is no indication of an amicable settlement between the sides and open warfare is under way.

"Developing the park on the North Carolina side of the lake is the only hope for a tourism industry in western North Carolina," Helms said. "The bill will end all development and will devastate the tourism in western North Carolina." Well, not if Jesse keeps firing away.

Drug bill may reduce the demand

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Despite predictably bellicose election-year rhetoric on the war against drugs, it now appears that major new legislation slated for passage this summer will be moderate in tone. But it could go a long way to strengthening the federal anti-drug effort.

In 1986 Congress passed a multibillion dollar omnibus anti-drug bill with about 70 percent of the money earmarked for enforcement and interdiction efforts. But while the number of drug seizures and arrests has risen to record levels, so too has the amount of drugs available on America's streets.

This has led to the growing realization on Capitol Hill that the real answer lies in reducing demand and making drug treatment programs more effective.

Recently, the General Accounting Office, Congress' investigative arm, released a major new study of the drug situation in America. The GAO concluded that the best way to attack the drug problem is to reduce demand rather than trying to cut supply.

"Many drug experts, including law enforcement officials, believe that drug-supply reduction efforts are, at best, a 'holding action' in the war against drugs and that more needs to be done to reduce the demand for drugs in this country," the report stated.

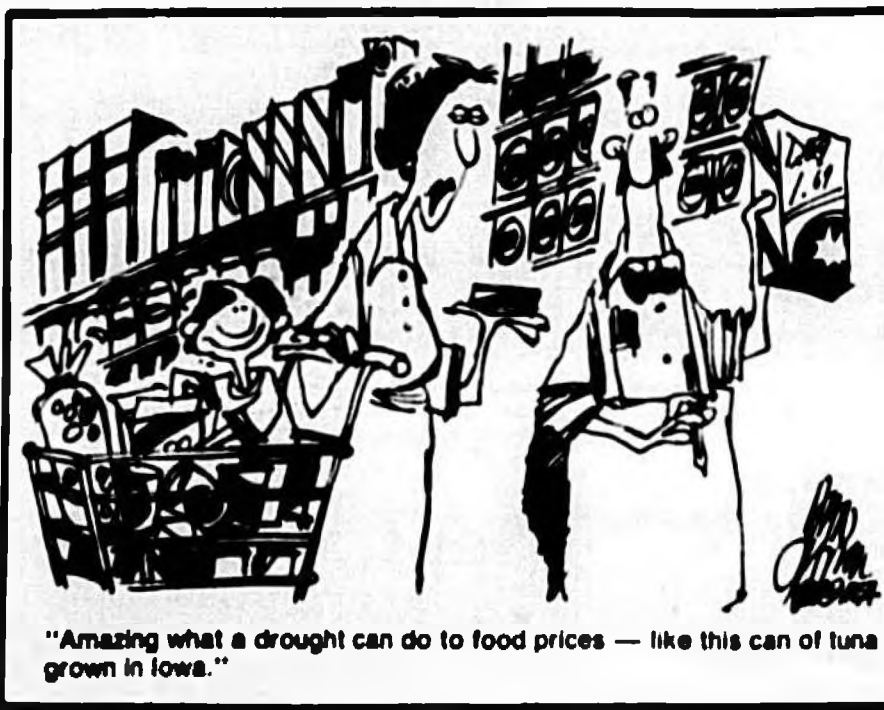

The GAO investigators were critical of current demand-reduction programs.

"State and local drug abuse prevention and treatment programs funded by the federal government have not been effective in reducing demand," the report said. "We need to find ways to educate and prevent people from abusing drugs; increase our ability to provide effective treatment for all those in need; and conduct greater research on why people use drugs, how drug use spreads among the population, and the consequences of drug use, especially among our youth."

The legislation being drafted will carry a price tag of about $2.5 billion. About half will be earmarked for demand-reduction and treatment programs.

The House and Senate are taking different approaches in drafting what will end up being called "The Omnibus Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988."

Most of the work in the Senate is being done separately by Democrats and Republicans at the staff level. Leaders of the two parties have appointed task forces, and their staffs are drafting two separate bills.

Teens urged to vote

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When author and television producer Cynthia K. Samuels asks a group of high school students why so few of them vote in elections, the young people respond with complaints about the quality of contemporary politicians.

"If people like you are not very demanding, they're going to stay the same," Samuels gently but firmly tells the teenagers. "You get what you pay for."

That same theme is emphasized in her new book, a slim but important contribution to the cause of enhancing the democratic process titled "It's a Free Country! A Young Person's Guide to Politics & Elections."

"People who don't vote get what they deserve," the book bluntly tells an audience notorious for its non-participation in elections. "If we don't keep an eye on things and help to elect the people who will do things the way we want them done, then we deserve to be disappointed."

Notwithstanding the struggle to secure suffrage for young people between the ages of 18 and 21 that culminated in the 1971 ratification of the 26th Amendment to the Constitution, those in their teens and 20s vote less frequently than any other age group.

The Census Bureau reports that in 1984, the year of the most recent presidential contest, only 40.8 percent of all potential voters aged 18 to 24 cast a ballot.

In even-numbered years without a presidential race, fewer than 25 percent of those in the 18-24 category vote, while the participation rate for the rest of the population is about twice as high.

The executive director of the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, Curtis B. Gans, says even those numbers are too high. Only 16.6 percent of all 18- to 21-year-olds participated in the 1986 election, he asserts.

Among the reasons cited by Gans for those statistics: The substitution of television viewing for discussions of public affairs in the home, the rise of negative campaigning and the growing inclination of politicians to run against the government.

Written for junior high and high school students, Samuels' book is noteworthy because it constitutes a rare attempt to ameliorate a problem widely acknowledged but seldom the subject of remedial efforts.

Especially creative is her portrayal of the extent to which politics directly influence so many aspects of the lives of the secondary school students who mindlessly dismiss the process as irrelevant to them.

"The people who decide which textbooks you get in school are either elected officials or are hired by an elected official. And who do you think decides if your town or city will have curfews for kids under 16? People who run for office and get elected. They may even have gotten elected by promising to impose curfews on kids."

"Most of the things in your life that your parents don't decide are decided by lawmakers or school officials. School boards are elected and hire principals, who hire teachers. City councils are elected and decide the rules for drinking age, drivers' licenses and work permits."

Clue to eye disease, diabetes

By Warren Perley

MONTREAL (UPI) — Canadian researchers have discovered an antibody that could lead to a treatment for the characteristic eye bulging associated with the hyperthyroid condition known as Graves' disease. It could also hold a clue for a cure to diabetes.

About 1 percent of the North American population suffers from Graves' hyperthyroidism, which is treated by drugs. Symptoms of the enlarged thyroid condition include nervousness, weight loss, fatigue, breathlessness and heat intolerance.

The newly discovered antibody appears to cause an accompanying condition known as exophthalmos, or bulging of the eye. Although the antibody in question does not cause the hyperthyroidism itself, it is found in people who have that disease.

More than 75 percent of those suffering hyperthyroidism develop exophthalmos, for which there is no treatment.

The Canadian scientists, who work at the Montreal General Hospital, feel their discovery could lead to a cure for the eye disorder.

"Now that the antibody has been isolated, scientists can work on producing an antigen which could inactivate the antibody which causes the eye disease," team leader Dr. Jack Wall said in a recent interview.

An antigen is a foreign molecule, usually a protein, which elicits an immune response in an organism. Bacteria and viruses are examples of antigens. An antibody is a protein produced to destroy an antigen.

An autoimmune reaction occurs when antibodies mistakenly attack their own tissues, as occurs in the thyroid and eye diseases studied by the Canadian scientists, as well as in diabetes.

A synthetic antigen would draw antibodies away from tissue and neutralize them.

The Canadian scientists believe that the antibody they discovered is produced in the thyroid gland and travels to the eye, destroying tissues in both organs.

"It's also possible that the same antibody could cause other autoimmune diseases, such as diabetes," Wall, an immunologist, said.

The scientists presented their findings at the annual meeting of the American Federation of Clinical Research last April in Washington, D.C.

Was Bush ineffectual warrior on drugs?

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — A confidential memo commissioned by Gov. Michael Dukakis suggests that Vice President George Bush's eight years as drug czar of the Reagan administration were window dressing.

The 16-page memo was secretly prepared for Dukakis by one of Congress' top oversight experts on anti-drug programs, Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla. It cites example after example in which the rhetoric of Bush and the administration was never backed up by results.

Reagan repeatedly created anti-drug programs for Bush to oversee, but English's investigation found little substantive action.

For example, in a speech on Feb. 16, 1982, Bush urged greater cooperation with the government of the Bahamas to combat drug-smuggling activities there. One year later, English's oversight subcommittee asked the State Department a simple question about the cooperation promised by Bush: What had happened? A bit sheepishly, the State Department was forced to report that the cooperation included the following equipment provided to the Bahamian government:

- Twelve radios that dated back to the Korean War. Only one worked.

- A 40-year-old plane to which the Bahamians said, "Thanks, but no thanks."

- Three boats that were too slow for chasing drug smugglers and couldn't be used on the open water between islands.

- Two Huey helicopters that could not be flown over water, were too slow for a chase and had an inadequate fuel capability.

Other promises were broken or produced disappointing results. The Defense Department promised in May 1982 to give drug enforcement units radar data from a facility on Cudjoe Key, Fla., and to build another radar facility for the drug war. But by August, according to English's report, the Pentagon had to admit it was woefully behind schedule. It took until January for the Air Force to begin passing radar data to the Customs Service from Cudjoe Key — seven months late, at a low reliability rate. And that was only after English's subcommittee called a hearing to find out if the promised radar coverage was being delivered, the memo says.

English and his investigators were unimpressed with another Bush project, the National Narcotics Border Interdiction System (NNBIS), which began in March 1983. NNBIS was supposed to coordinate anti-drug efforts with many agencies, but its actions were redundant. NNBIS apparently had to take credit for the work of others to prove its own importance.

The memo refers to a non-partisan report by the General Accounting Office, which investigated NNBIS' claims about the role it played in 11 cases where airborne drug smugglers were caught. The GAO reported that:

- In one case, the only job of NNBIS was to move the narcotics that were seized.

- NNBIS took credit for another operation that had been planned months before NNBIS existed.

- Customs and Drug Enforcement Agency people did the bulk of the work for two drug seizures that NNBIS included in its portfolio of wins.

- One seizure for which NNBIS claimed credit came about because of a tip from an informant six months before Bush announced the formation of NNBIS.

- Two cases for which NNBIS took credit resulted from routine Customs Service patrols.

- Another dealer was caught because of a radar facility that pre-dated NNBIS.

English concluded that NNBIS had "accomplished some good (but) in practice (appeared) to have some difficulty living up to its mission."

Dukakis is certain to use English's report to make mince-meat of Bush's mission as drug czar.

IN BRIEF

AMA delegates delay vote on major drug war realignment

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Medical Association's house of delegates delayed a vote on a major realignment of the nation's war against drugs, but rose to rhetorical heights passing a resolution against socialized medicine.

The doctors were scheduled to consider Tuesday a report from their trustees that called for a huge expansion of drug treatment and education programs to accompany what it deemed an insufficient national effort to fight drug abuse.

But debate on other issues — such as a call for banning plastic handguns, realistic toy guns, tobacco crop subsidies, and the resolution opposing nationalized medicine — forced the 419 members of the AMA's policy-making group to put off until today a proposal that urges less emphasis on interception of illegal drug supplies and more emphasis on drug treatment and education, including treatment on demand.

Police seek cult leader's sons

HOUSTON (UPI) — Police investigating the shooting deaths of a child and three men who defected from a violent polygamist sect sought the three sons of the cult's late leader for questioning.

Houston police Tuesday distributed pictures of Ervil LeBaron's three sons, wanted for questioning in the deaths Monday of Duane Chynoweth, 31, and his brother, Mark Chynoweth, 35.

The Chynoweths were once followers of LeBaron, who until his 1981 death led a violent Mormon polygamist sect known as the Church of the Lamb of God. Duane Chynoweth's daughter, Jenny, 8, was killed along with her father.

GOP modifies plant-closings bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republicans managed to modify but failed to alter substantially a plant-closing notification bill, prompting Democratic leader Robert Byrd to try shutting off debate today.

Byrd, of West Virginia, noted the Senate had spent five days on the bill when he expressed dismay Tuesday over the debate's slow progress. He scheduled a cloture vote for this morning, conceding he was not sure he could gather the necessary 60 votes to bring debate on the measure to a close.

The bill, opposed by business leaders and President Reagan, would require employers to give 60 days' advance notice of plant closings and big layoffs. Democrats adopted the labor-backed legislation as a key election-year issue.

Haiti's military rulers release three U.S. citizens, Canadian

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Haiti's new military rulers released three U.S. citizens and a Canadian who were members of the deposed civilian government of former President Leslie Manigat and indicated they would have to leave the country.

The four officials, held along with about a dozen other supporters of Manigat after his ouster in a bloodless coup June 20, "were handed over to representatives of their respective embassies," a government statement said.

Frederic was former Social Affairs Minister Harry Carrenard, who took Canadian citizenship during the 29-year Duvalier family dictatorship, and three U.S. citizens of Haitian origin — Robert Benodin, Frant Jean-Louis and Jean Borgart.

Information Minister Col. Acedius St. Louis said on state television the four were released "at the request of their respective countries who had expressed the desire to repatriate them."

U.S. Embassy spokesman Jeffrey Lie confirmed that the embassy had pressed for their release but denied that it would repatriate them. "This is not something we would do," he said.

South Africa troops repel attack

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African troops inside Angola repulsed an attack on a vital dam near the Namibian border in fierce fighting that killed 12 South Africans and some 200 Cuban and Angolan soldiers, defense officials said.

The fighting — the heaviest reported by South Africa in nearly a year — came some 48 hours after the conclusion of a third round of U.S.-sponsored talks aimed at ending Angola's 13-year-old civil war, officials said Tuesday.

Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha condemned the coordinated ground and air attack and warned that if the trend of military confrontation continued, "it will serve no purpose to hold further discussions."

The peace talks, involving U.S., Cuban, South African and Angolan negotiators, are due to resume July 11 in the United States.

There was no immediate comment from the Angolan capital of Luanda on the reported attack, which coincided with a trip to Washington by U.S.-backed Angolan guerrilla leader Jonas Savimbi.

An estimated 50,000 Cuban troops are currently stationed in Angola in support of the Marxist Luanda government.

Prankster may have caused train wreck that killed 59

PARIS (UPI) — Officials suspect a prankster pulled an emergency brake handle 30 minutes before a runaway commuter train rammed another train in an underground station, killing 59 people in France's worst rail disaster in 10 years.

Rescue teams in the Gare de Lyon, a major subway and rail terminal, worked steadily since the Monday evening rush-hour accident to reach the bottom of the wreckage created when the brakeless train hurtled at 50 mph into a stopped train.

In a tangle of metal, rescuers found 55 bodies, a fire department spokesman said. Public health officials said four more people died Tuesday of injuries in hospitals.

Authorities said 43 people injured in the crash, 29 were hospitalized late Tuesday, 12 of them in critical condition. Their names and nationalities were not released.

Philippe Rouvillois, president of the National Railway Co. that operates the commuter trains, said the brakes on the inbound train failed after an unscheduled stop at the Vert de Maisons station five miles outside Paris. The train stopped when someone pulled the emergency brake.

"There is a link ... between the use of the alarm signal (emergency brake) which halted the train in the Vert de Maisons station ... and the catastrophe," he said.

Rouvillois cited three possible causes: a technical failure, a breach of regulations by operators or "fool play — always a possibility."

After the emergency brake was pulled, engineer Daniel Saulin, 43, walked back to the car in which it was activated, reset the handle and pumped air into the brake system, a common procedure on the suburban train system, Rouvillois said.

The train set off again and a mile from the station, Saulin realized something had gone wrong with the brakes and told passengers on the intercom to move to rear of the train.

About 650 yards from the station, the train ran through a red signal, setting off alarms as it sped along at about 50 mph on the downgrade running into the station and ramming into the commuter train stopped at the terminal.

The moving train jackknifed and rode up and over the waiting cars, splitting the light aluminum bodies of the lower carriages open and dismembering some passengers, witnesses said.

The French National Assembly observed a minute of silence honoring those killed in the wreck and in a passenger jet crash Sunday in which three people died.

Assembly Speaker Laurent Fabius said the country was "in mourning." President Francois Mitterrand, at a European summit in West Germany, said he felt "pain and pity."

The accident was France's worst rail disaster since the June 16, 1972, derailment of the Paris-Marseille express at Chateaubourg in the southern province of Ardeche in which 108 people died. More recently, a train derailed at Argenton-sur-Creuse in the central province of Indre Aug. 31, 1985, killing 43.

Transport Minister Louis Mermaz appointed a commission of inquiry to investigate the cause of the rail disaster.

The Paris prosecutor's office opened a "judicial information against X," a legal procedure used to bring charges when an offender's identity is not known.

Immediately after the accident, about 250 firefighters and rescue workers sped to the Gare de Lyon, a major interchange for the Metro subway system and the suburban and main rail lines. Rescuers labored with buzzing metal saws to cut through crushed train walls, and crawled over the dead to reach injured passengers. Inside, trapped men and women waited

Ku Klux Klan TV show ready

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS (UPI) — The grand wizard of a central Florida chapter of the Ku Klux Klan says he is ready with the first segment of a Klan public access cable television show, and now it is up to the station to air it.

"I've showed it to a couple other cable people and a friend who's in Orlando TV, and they said there's nothing wrong with it. The quality is good enough," Tony Bastianzo said Tuesday.

Bastianzo, the 32-year-old leader of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan 87, revealed his television plans three weeks ago. He said he submitted the tape to Storer Cable Communications in the south Seminole County community of Altamonte Springs and is waiting for a response.

Storer's operations manager, Tony Pupo, has been out of town and had not yet decided whether to air "Florida Klan News," his secretary said Tuesday. She declined to confirm the 30-minute tape had been submitted.

Storer has some 18,000 subscribers north of Orlando. Local government, not federal broadcast regulators, controls public access stations and requires them to provide time for local productions as long as they are up to technical standards.

Bob McMillan, assistant county attorney, also is out of town this week, but he indicated earlier there is probably nothing illegal about the proposed Klan broadcast.

Poisonous gas kills workers

AUBURN, Ind. (UPI) — The metal plating plant where four men died and 20 people were injured by poison gas from the accidental mixing of two chemicals has been closed pending an investigation of the incident.

DeKalb County Coroner Dr. William Hathaway and Auburn Police Chief Buck Kessler ordered shutting down the Bastian Plating Inc. plant where the workers were killed Tuesday when they mixed two chemicals that produced deadly hydrogen cyanide gas.

There is "no evidence of foul play, or possible criminal conduct," Hathaway said in a prepared statement.

ASU track program put on probation

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI)—Arizona State's track program was placed on probation for two years Tuesday for 11 rules violations under Coach Clyde Duncan, who was dismissed this spring.

Athletic Director Charles Harris said the sanctions, announced by Pacific-10 Conference Commissioner Thomas Hansen, meant the Sun Devils can compete in track and field in 1988-89, although they cannot compete off-campus.

"We will extend our home meet schedule next season to include more competition than we normally have," Harris said. "We certainly intend to give every student-athlete the broadest range of competition within our new limits."

The violations included allegations Duncan gave money to athletes for personal travel, falsified qualifying times for the 1987 NCAA Track and Field Championships and illegally provided transportation for athletes.

Mims new coach at Barry University

MIAMI (UPI)—Billy Mims was named head men's basketball coach Tuesday at Barry University.

Mims, a former assistant coach at Chowan College in Murfreesboro, N.C., which finished ninth in the national junior college division last year at 28-6, replaces Nick Creola, who resigned after two years at Barry with an 18-34 (8-21 last year).

Mims coached Burgerland International, of Cork, Ireland, and finished 32-11 to win the Irish National League Championship in 1986-1987. He also was an assistant coach at Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S.C., for three seasons, and is a graduate of Baptist College in Charleston, S.C.

The Barry Buccaneers have not had a winning season in their 4-year-old basketball program.

Murchison wins N. Florida PGA shootout

LECANTO (UPI)—Bill Murchison won the inaugural North Florida PGA Section Shootout Tuesday, winning a "chip-off" after he and Rich Dingus of Dunedin were tied after nine holes.

The shootout featured 10 players who started play at the 10th hole of the Black Diamond Ranch Country Club. One player was eliminated at each hole, either by posting the highest score or by a chip-off, in which players hit from near the green and the player who hits his ball farthest from the pin is eliminated.

Murchison, 32, the head pro at Cypress Creek Country Club, and Dingus, 38, head pro at Dunedin Country Club, both bogied the 18th and final hole of the shootout.

Raines put on disabled list

1st time in eight-year career

ST. LOUIS — Montreal Expos outfielder Tim Raines, a Sanford native and Heathrow resident, was placed on the disabled list Tuesday for the first time in his eight-year Major League career.

Raines, batting .270 with seven home runs and 30 RBI, went on the 15-day disabled list retroactive to June 24 with a right hamstring pull. Raines has had hamstring problems in the past but never sat out for an extended period of time.

In his previous seven seasons, Raines has missed games due to minor injuries, but it was never serious enough to put him on the DL. In seven seasons, he averaged 153 games per year.

To replace him, Montreal recalled Herm Winningham from Indianapolis of the American Association (AAA), where he had been since June 21.

So far this season, in 70 games, Raines has 75 hits in .277 at bats with 11 doubles, six triples, seven homers, 45 runs scored, 30 runs batted in and 22 stolen bases. He is tied for third in the National League in triples and is sixth in steals.

The injury will also hurt Raines' chances of making the NL All-Star team for the first time in his career.

As of last Friday, Raines was the fourth-leading vote getter among NL outfielders in the All-Star balloting. He had 509,170 votes, less than 30,000 behind St. Louis' Vince Coleman. The top two vote getters among outfielders were New York's Darryl Strawberry and Chicago's Andre Dawson.

Even if he did not place in the top three in the balloting, Raines was a virtual shoe-in to be chosen for the All-Star team by manager Whitey Herzog based on his performance of a year ago. Raines was the Most Valuable Player of the 1987 All-Star game as he was 3 for 3 at the plate with a game-

Heat makes Seikaly first draft choice

NBA DRAFT

MIAMI (UPI)—The Miami Heat made 6-foot-11 Syracuse center Rony Seikaly the first college draft choice in team history Tuesday, eagerly grabbing a player they believed would be taken by the time they chose.

The Heat, which will begin play this fall in the Midwest Division, then used its second pick in the first round, the 20th choice overall, to select DePaul shooting guard Kevin Edwards. Seikaly, a native of Athens, Greece, was the ninth player chosen in the draft.

With three second-round selections, Miami took three forwards: 6-7 Grant Long of Eastern Michigan, Memphis State's 6-6 Sylvester Gray and 6-7 Orlando Graham of Auburn. In the third round, the Heat opted for another forward, Tampa's Nate Johnson.

"I think in our ability to get Seikaly, someone was looking out over us," said Heat managing partner Lewis Schaffel. "The ability to get a player with the athletic skills, the ability, and the character, that's what an expansion team must have."

"There are very few centers in college basketball. To get a player like this at nine, it's very lucky."

Seikaly was a four-year starter at Syracuse, and finished his career with an average of 12.6 points and 8.0 rebounds per game, including 16.3 points and 9.6 rebounds per game his senior year.

He runs the court well and at 230 pounds, is strong enough to play inside. Seikaly's weaknesses are his passing and free throw shooting. He had only 88 assists in four years as an Orangeman, and shot 57 percent from the free-throw line.

He is the school's career rebounding leader, is second in blocked shots with 319, and fourth in scoring.

"It's like a dream come true," said Seikaly, 23. "I'm ecstatic at being picked by Miami. I think that in Miami I will really reach my potential because I'm going to get a lot of playing time. They're going to spend a lot of time working with me."

Edwards, 6-3, did not play high school ball until his senior year at St. Joseph's High in

Tyson's troubles continue

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Mike Tyson's knockout of Michael Spinks proved to be a mere 91-second break from the heavyweight champion's troubled personal life.

Even before he entered the ring Monday night, Tyson's manager was served with papers on a lawsuit initiated Monday by the champion. Tyson wants to break his managerial contract with Bill Cayton and deny Cayton his cut of Tyson's estimated $22 million purse against Spinks.

"As far as I'm concerned, things aren't working out so well," Tyson said of his relationship with Cayton. "Our relationship is downhill."

"I'm outraged by this," Cayton said of the lawsuit.

Tyson said his former manager Jim Jacobs failed to tell him he was dying when they signed a new contract Feb. 12. Jacobs died after a 10-year bout with leukemia March 23.

Under terms of the new contract, Cayton assumed managerial duties after Jacobs' death. Tyson has not been happy with Cayton since the champion married actress Robin Givens Feb. 7.

Givens has accused Cayton of trying to split the couple, which Cayton denies.

The legal battle could delay Tyson's next fight. Cayton had arranged for a Sept. 3 title defense against Frank Bruno in England but Tyson is not keen on fighting that soon.

"I'm just going to go away for a while and take some air," he said after the Spinks' bout.

When Tyson does fight, he hopes to have a new manager.

A Tyson-Bruno bout would not excite too many people, nor would any Tyson fight in the near future. With Spinks out of the way, there are few viable

Altamonte's T.J. Hamilton follows through after firing in Tuesday's Top Team district final game against Windermere. Hamilton fossed a three-hitter as the Senior Mets defeated the Orioles, 5-1.

Mets claim district title

By Mark Blythe
Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE — The Altamonte Mets, backed by the three-hit pitching of T.J. Hamilton and a solid defense, captured the Top Team Senior Division title with an impressive 5-1 victory over the Windermere Orioles Tuesday night before 251 fans at Eastmonte Park.

Hamilton finished the night with seven strikeouts and just two walks as he dominated the Orioles with his fastball and offspeed pitches. It was the second consecutive game the Mets had a brilliant pitching performance to help carry them to the title.

Hamilton was backed by by errorless defense, the second consecutive game the Mets have helped their pitching staff with sound glove work.

Altamonte used key performances in the final two games by Daniel Hench at third who made several fine stops in both the semifinal and championship games. Tanner Morrison was equally tough on both offense and defense for the Mets.

Hamilton, who plays shortstop when not pitching, was brilliant in the semifinal with Marty Horwitz filling in nicely in the finals. Jay Kane led the Altamonte outfield as he played flawlessly in center during the tourney.

Altamonte came out strong and picked up a quick run to take the lead for good as lead off batter Kevin Morro blasted the second pitch over the left field fence to give the Mets a 1-0 advantage. After two outs Jeff Ostle lined a double to the right center field gap but Altamonte could not get the run in.

Windermere pitcher Dave Litz shut the Mets down over the

Connors upset — Cash meets Becker

WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—The grass is always greener if you're a winner.

Jimmy Connors, hailed as the grand old man of Wimbledon last week, said after his five-set fourth round defeat at the hands of West German 22-year-old Patrick Kuehnen that the grass courts of the All England Club were rotten for him, anyway.

"It depends what you think tennis should be played like," said Connors, who won the Wimbledon title on the same grass in 1974 and 1982. "If you think tennis is a serve-and-volley, hit-and-miss, one-shot game, then keep (grass)."

"If you've come to know tennis as something else, then don't keep it. A hit-and-miss type game has never been one that I really enjoyed. Just serve and hit the ball in the fence or serve and volley one ball — even my style when I won here has not been that."

Connors, who turns 36 in September, fell to Kuehnen 5-7, 7-6 (9-7), 7-6 (7-2), 6-7 (4-7), 6-3 in a match that was interrupted Monday night by poor light and rain, then delayed for hours Tuesday by a dismal drizzle.

He admitted that the All England Club wasn't likely to dig up center court at his suggestion, although the Australian Open was switched last year from the grass courts of Kooyung, Melbourne, to the new indoor Flinders Park complex.

"I don't think they'd ever change the surface here," Connors said. "They started out on grass, they're going to end on grass."

Boris Becker, All England Champion in 1985 and 1986, faces title holder Pat Cash in a battle that both players admit will come down to serve and nerves.

Before the men get started, defending women's champion Martina Navratilova, a victim of the rain-disrupted schedule Tuesday, seeks a semifinal berth when she plays unseeded South African Ros Fairbank on court No. 14.

Second seed Mats Wilander, seeking his third Grand Slam victory this year and his first Wimbledon title, was to open play on center court against ninth seed Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia.

Wilander's compatriot Stefan Edberg, the No. 3 seed, faced Kuehnen. The two have never played before.

The other men's quarter pitted world No. 1 Ivan Lendl, a two-time Wimbledon finalist but never champion, against 10th-seeded American Tim Mayotte.

Lendl has won all of their 11 meetings, including a 1986 Wimbledon quarterfinal but the tall American was trying to keep a positive attitude.

Clippers get best of draft

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Los Angeles Clippers gave up the league's best rebounder in their quest to someday run with the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Clippers traded forward Michael Cage in a complicated three-team deal to obtain a third first-round pick. As expected, Los Angeles selected Danny Manning of Kansas the No. 1 pick overall. In addition, they obtained Charles Smith of Pittsburgh, the No. 3 selection, and Gary Grant of Michigan the 15th.

But the latter two selections did not come about before the Clippers, Philadelphia Sixers, and Seattle SuperSonics completed the deal of the day.

Los Angeles gave Cage to Seattle and obtained their No. 15 pick (Grant). Philadelphia gave Los Angeles Smith and obtained the Clippers' No. 6 pick, Bradley guard Hersey Hawkins. In addition, the Sonics gave Philadelphia one of its three first-round picks next season.

Everybody was asking me about the trade, about Michael Cage," Smith said. "Am I supposed to be the guy to go in there and do all the fierce rebounding? They said we have a running team and everybody is going to divide everything and we're going to win some games."

The Clippers won a league-low 17 games last year and owned the worst record in the NBA the year before as well. In addition, they suffer the unfortunate fate of playing in the same town and in the same division as the league champion Lakers.

In order to combat that image problem, the Clippers have decided to build with youth.

Indiana took 7-foot-4 Rik Smits of Marist second and Philadelphia selected Smith. After New Jersey followed with Chris Morris of Auburn and Golden State with Mitch Richmond of Kansas State, the Clippers named Hersey Hawkins of Bradley.

The draft placed a premium on small forwards and big guards. One center meriting great attention was Smits, a Dutchman, Richmond, the No. 5 choice, was the first guard taken.

The first round reflected the ascension of the Big Eight. Months after conference rivals Oklahoma and Kansas played in the national title game, five Big Eight players were taken in the first 16: Manning, Richmond, Harvey Grant of Oklahoma (No. 12 to the Bullets), Jeff Grayer of Iowa State (No. 13 to Milwaukee) and Derrick Chievous of Missouri (No. 16 to Houston.)

The Miami Heat began its building process by taking Syracuse forward-center Rony Seikaly ninth. Georgia guard Willie Anderson was chosen by San Antonio and rounded out the top 10.

Miami took Kevin Edwards of DePaul 20th, Portland picked Mark Bryant of Seton Hall 21st and Cleveland took Randolph Keys of Southern Mississippi 22nd.

Wallace shoots for bonus

DAYTONA BEACH — Rusty Wallace and Dale Earnhardt have a friendly rivalry going on the NASCAR Winston Cup circuit.

While Earnhardt, courtesy of a can of sardine juice deposited under the seat of Wallace's Kodiak Pontiac at Darlington Raceway prior to the March 27 TransSouth 500, leads in the practical joke department, Wallace has a decided edge in the financial category. And he could have even a more decisive edge should he win a $150,000 bonus for leading the point standings at the midway point of the series.

"I'll owe Rusty $100 after Daytona," said Earnhardt of Saturday's Pepsi Firecracker 400, the midway point of the 29-race Winston Cup Series. "We had a little bet on that halfway point deal, and it looks like I'm a loser."

red-hot streak that's seen him win two out of the three races leading up to the 400, and finish third in the other, has a 130-point lead on Earnhardt, and a 150-point edge on Bill Elliott.

The important thing to remember is that series sponsor R.J. Reynolds has offered a $500,000 point fund based on the top 10 in the point standings at halfway. The leader gets $150,000 and, in the two previous years, it's been offered, Earnhardt is the only one who's collected the top prize.

Earnhardt has admitted that the bonus, of which the lion's share has been his property for two years, is a moot point.

Strange triumphs at Classic Skins

GOLF

TORONTO (UPI) — The Cadillac Golf Classic Skins Game became the Curtis Strange Benefit Tuesday when the defending U.S. and Canadian Open champion captured $165,000 of the $200,000 total purse.

In the two-day tournament held at Oakville's Glen Abbey Golf Course, only Arnold Palmer, who produced a par 4 on the 17th for $30,000, and Lee Trevino, with a birdie 3 on the first hole worth $5,000 Monday, prevented Strange from sweeping the round.

The other member of the foursome, Canadian Dave Barr, was kept off the money board. Strange's final shot Tuesday was worth $35,000 when he chipped in a 30-footer from the fringe for an eagle 3 on No. 18.

"I was surprised I drove so far on my first shot, and then I used a 9-iron to the green that caught the fringe," Strange said of the final hole. "It was a simple third shot really, but it's still one you have to execute, and one you can't take lightly."

Strange's biggest payoff came on 13th when he sank a two-foot putt for birdie 4, worth $55,000 with the carryover. He also sank a difficult 18-foot putt on No. 15 for a birdie 2 that was worth another $30,000.

Strange began play Monday by pocketing $45,000 of a possible $60,000 that was available on the front nine.

On course for a $1 million season, Strange immediately returned home to Kingsmill Va. to prepare for the Anheuser-Busch Classic, July 7-10 followed by the British Open, July 14-17.

"I think $1 million is within reach, but of course it depends on how much and how well I play," continued Strange. "Right now I need time off."

"I can get in more trouble than do good if I play too much I get into bad habits and down mentally."

"Right now I have an opportunity for a good year, and I'm going to take advantage of it."

"I think Tyson's marketability is made much more difficult," said Mark Etesa, president of Trump Plaza Hotel and Casino, which paid $11 million to host Tyson-Spinks fight.

"Mike Tyson is now conceived by the public as this indestructible force."

"I don't see any big fight in the near future," added Shelly Finkel, the closed circuit coordinator for Monday night's fight.

Tyson dropped Spinks twice in the most impressive performance of his unbeaten 35-bout career. He defended his International Boxing Federation, World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association titles and ended Spinks' claim to the heavyweight title. Spinks fell to 31-1.

Spinks, 31, has yet to decide if he will fight again, but he is expected to retire.

"If he asks me if he should fight again, I would ask him, 'Why?'" Spinks' trainer Eddie Futch said. "What is the purpose?"

"He's been the champion, he's made enough money to be comfortable for the rest of his life. What else is there for him to do?"

Tyson, who turns 22 Thursday, was hardly in a celebrating mood when he flew from Atlantic City to Albany, N.Y., Tuesday morning despite the biggest victory of his career and a $22 million payday.

Tyson was upset at newspaper stories involving a rocky marriage between him and Givens.

"I'm not really appreciative of what you reporters did to me before this fight," Tyson said after knocking out Spinks. "As far as I know, this might be my last fight."

From a financial standpoint, the Tyson-Spinks bout was a success. Finkel Tuesday morning proclaimed it the richest in boxing history.

"More people paid and more money was generated than in any other fight," Finkel said. Finkel said the closed circuit and pay TV sales were close to $50 million. Promoters also received $11 million from Trump Plaza, $3 million from HBO for delayed TV rights, $2 million from foreign TV and $1.25 million for a soft drink sponsor.

Spinks was paid $13.5 million and Tyson was to receive all profit over $18 million.

Mark Etesa said his casino's "drop" was in excess of $10 million Monday. According to Etesa, Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev., had a drop of $9.8 million April 6, 1987 on the night of the Ray Leonard Marvin Hagler bout.

Casino drop is the amount of money cashed in for chips. Casinos' average a profit of 16 percent of the drop.

is my best surface. I'm just going to go out and play him," Mayotte said.

The real interest, however, is on the Cash-Becker confrontation, though both players have stressed that for them it is only a means to an end — the final.

"I think it's only natural that I'll be pretty keyed up for this match, but I'm not going to be treating it any differently to my last match," said Cash. "I'm going to try my best, trying to serve well and return well, and just try and play as well as I've been playing — hopefully a little better."

He said he would rather not fight a war with Becker, preferring to conserve his strength for the semifinal and final that would follow a victory.

"I hope I win easily," Cash said. "But whatever happens happens. We'll both be trying as hard as we can. I'm obviously not to keen to give away my title, so I'll be trying my best, as I do in every match."

Becker, who put Connors' comments down to post-defeat disappointment, said he was approaching the quarterfinal with caution.

The 20-year-old West German, who beat American Paul Annacone in straight sets Tuesday, said he thought victory would go to the man who "takes a chance when he has to."

Mayotte predicted the match would go to the stronger server.

"It's such a toss-up," Mayotte said. "It'll depend on how they serve. Whoever serves well will win."

"I'm not really familiar with them at all," Edwards said of his new team. "I know they've got (Dwayne) Pearl Washington (in the expansion draft from the Nets) and they picked Rony Seikaly. That's about it. It's a good feeling to be picked by anybody and I should get a real chance with an expansion team."

Heat part owner Billy Cunningham said he believed the team had a solid first draft.

"We're trying to build a very sound foundation for the ball club for the future," Cunningham said. "We're very pleased with what we've done. Rony Seikaly is not going to come in here and take over the franchise and dominate the league, but with time and coaching, he will become a very good player."

The pressure of being the first player selected in franchise history did not seem to faze Seikaly, who said he was looking forward to the more physical style of play in the NBA, as well as looking forward to playing in a league that outlaws zone defenses.

"One thing you know for sure is no team has ever come to the league and won a championship the same year," he said. "The only way for us to go is up."

Jones leads Reds to comeback win

United Press International

Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott addressed her slumping warriors before Tuesday night's game, urging them "not to quit, to work hard with dedication and come back."

And like any good soldier, Tracy Jones followed his orders to the letter.

Jones didn't quit and worked hard with dedication, leading to a Cincinnati comeback victory, 4-3 over the San Diego Padres.

Pinch hitter Jones came to the plate with the bases full and one out in the ninth inning, the score 3-3.

But first, the Reds, who were favored to win the Western Division last season only to fall into a second-half slide, were riding a six-game losing skid entering Tuesday and had crept within a game of the fifth-place Padres.

Manager Pete Rose, who for years has been Cincinnati's favorite son, was beginning to lose his luster with the impatient fans.

"People have been saying, 'The Reds are out of it now,' and 'Fire Pete Rose,'" Danny Jackson said. "It's not Pete's fault. We're the players."

And while the players were getting a Patton-like speech from Schott, where was Rose, the trusted field sergeant, who led his team to the battle field?

"I listened," Rose said, "because I've been in that situation, standing in front of the team. You never know how they (the players) will react, and you don't know how soon, either."

The Reds reacted by allowing the Padres to score three runs in the first, not exactly the stuff that pep talks are supposed to elicit.

Still, starter Jackson, "felt good out there."

Cincinnati responded, somewhat, in its half of the first. Barry Larkin singled and eventually scored on Eric Davis' single.

And when Larkin drilled his ninth homer of the season off the left-field foul pole (a little luck never hurts), one out after Jeff Treadway had singled, the Reds had pulled even at 3.

All the while, Jackson was in a groove, retiring 18 straight batters before Keith Moreland's one-out single in the ninth. Jackson pitched his sixth complete game of the season.

Davis opened the ninth with a single off Mark Grant, 1-6, and took third on Leon Durham's single. Dave Lelper relieved and intentionally walked pinch-hitter Dave Concepcion to load the bases.

Lance McCullers entered, and pinch hitter Dave Collins, flied to short center for the first out. That brought up Jones.

The count was full, the Reds were down to their last strike. Jones fouled off one pitch, a second. A third McCullers' delivery was hit foul, then a fourth. Jones wouldn't quit, and on the fifth 3-2 pitch, he walked to send home Davis with the winning run.

Jackson, who improved to 6-4, had visions of a title.

"The (first-place) Dodgers aren't going to play this way all year, and I think we're better than Houston and San Francisco," he said. "I still think we're going to win it. This team will bounce back."

Elsewhere in the National League, New York downed Pittsburgh 5-2, St. Louis edged Montreal 5-4, San Francisco walloped Atlanta 13-7, Houston shaded Los Angeles 4-3 and Chicago tripped Philadelphia 6-4.

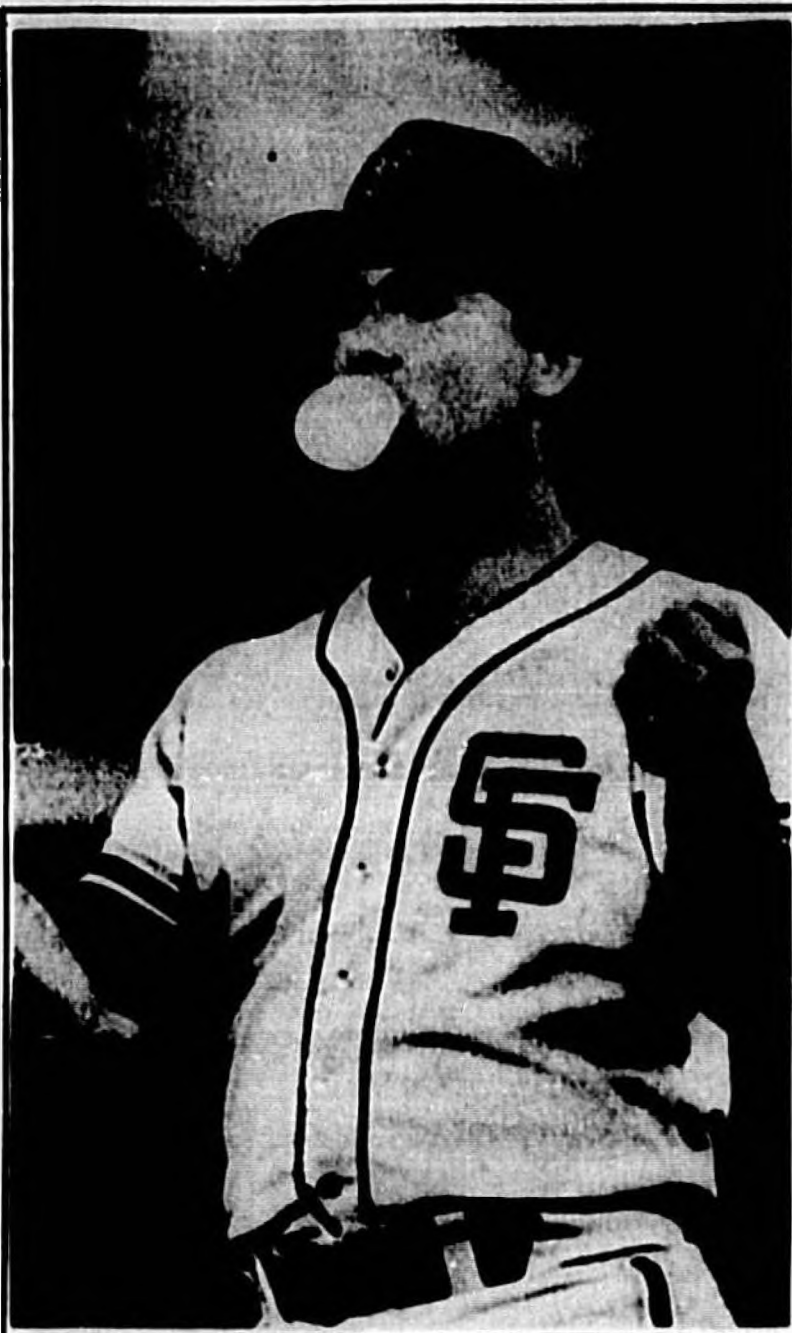

In the American League, it was: Detroit 6, New York 1; Baltimore 7, Toronto 0; Boston 6, Cleveland 1; Chicago 4, Kansas City 3; Texas 6, Seattle 0; Minnesota 8, California 2; and Milwaukee 4, Oakland 1.

Mets 5 Pirates 2

Gardner pitches Bosox over Tribe

United Press International

The way the Boston Red Sox are hitting, all they need from a starting pitcher is an adequate performance. Tuesday night, Wes Gardner, normally a reliever, more than filled the requirement.

"I just tried to relax and keep my mind on what I had to do," Gardner said after allowing three hits over seven innings in Boston's 6-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians. "It's definitely different from coming out of the bullpen."

Gardner, thrust into the starting rotation because Jeff Sellers suffered a broken finger when hit by a line drive last week, could not have become a starter at a better time. In their last 10 games, the Red Sox have won eight, scoring a total of 79 runs in those victories. In its last 14 games, Boston is hitting a collective .326.

With their fourth straight victory, the Red Sox pulled within one game of the third-place Indians, who have lost four straight in the American League East.

"I mentioned before we started playing these guys that we'd played well against Baltimore and Cleveland," second baseman Marty Barrett said. "I said everybody in the division had played them already and we'd get going when we had our chance."

"I think the things that happened with Wade (Boggs) $6 million plimphony suit and stuff has brought us together."

Tuesday night, Cleveland's shabby defense contributed to Boston scoring five unearned runs in the second inning. Dwight Evans hit a two-run homer to cap the decisive five-run inning.

"We haven't played well defensively the past two days," said Cleveland manager Doc Edwards. "But we'll come out of it. Defensive slumps are like hitting slumps or any other kind of slumps."

Boston's Mike Greenwell extended his hitting streak to 19 games.

Indians starter Scott Bailes, 6-7, allowed six runs, one earned, in 6 1/3 innings.

In other games, Detroit whipped New York 6-1, Baltimore blanked Toronto 7-0, Chicago nipped Kansas City 4-3, Texas clipped Seattle 6-0, Minnesota clobbered California 8-2, and Milwaukee downed Oakland 4-1.

In the National League, it was

At Baltimore, Fred Lynn drove in three runs with his 13th homer and a two-run double, pacing the rout. The Orioles, a major-league worst 22-54, won the first two games of a series for just the second time this season. Jay Tibbs, 3-4, and Mark Thurmond combined on a seven-hitter.

Tigers 6, Yankees 1

At New York, Frank Tanana combined with Mike Henneman on a five-hitter, and Pat Sheridan drove in four runs to lift Detroit to its fifth straight triumph over the Yankees in the last two weeks. New York has lost 10 of its last 14 games. Tanana, 10-4, allowed five hits. Rick Rhoden fell to 3-6.

White Sox 4, Royals 3

At Kansas City, Dan Pasqua hit two home runs and Greg Walker added another, powering Chicago Starter Bill Long, 3-3, allowed Kansas City four hits over seven innings. Bobby Thigpen relieved in the eighth and earned his 15th save. Long and Thigpen combined to retire the last 16 Royal batters.

Brewers 4, Athletics 1

At Oakland, Don August threw a four-hitter. Rob Deer slammed a two-run homer and Robin Yount added a two-run triple to pace Milwaukee, August, 4-2, carried a two-hitter into the eighth. A's starter Storm Davis, 5-4, retired 18 of 19 Brewers in one stretch.

Rangers 6, Mariners 0

At Seattle, Jose Guzman hurled a four-hitter for his first career shutout, and Larry Parrish and Steve Burchette homered to help Texas halt a three-game losing streak. Guzman, 7-6, struck out six and walked three in his fifth complete game of the season. Steve Trout fell to 3-4.

Twins 6, Angels 2

At Anaheim, Calif., Gene Larkin homered and drove in three runs and Bert Blyleven pitched an eight-hitter to end the Angels' three-game winning streak with Minnesota's third triumph in its last four games. Blyleven, 7-6, struck out seven and walked one in his fourth complete game of the season.

Giants hope to reap trade benefits

By RICHARD L. SNOOK
UPI Sports Writer

The San Francisco Giants hope to repeat in the National League West without a repeat trip to the trading table.

The Giants swung a major deal with San Diego a year ago July 5 that brought them left-handers Dave Dravecky and Craig Lefferts to. They picked up reliever Don Robinson from Pittsburgh July 31 and added right-handed starter Rick Reuschel from the Pirates Aug. 21.

That gave them two new starters plus a pair of relievers and new life. San Francisco was 38-38, four games behind, through June 30 last year and was only 52-51, three games out, at the end of July.

"We feel we made some good trades last year," San Francisco Manager Roger Craig said. "We're not really contemplating major things now. We hope to stay close until Dravecky gets back."

Dravecky underwent arthroscopic surgery on his pitching shoulder earlier this season and Craig says any return before August would be a big surprise.

Craig is getting by without overwhelming starting pitching for the second straight season. His top winner, Reuschel, has 10 wins but everybody else is 4-5 starts away from double figures.

SCOUTING REPORT

He's using Mike LaCoss, Kelly Downs and Mike Krukow behind Reuschel and may turn to reliever Scott Garrelts for his fifth starter soon.

A year ago LaCoss was the Giants' big winner at 13-10, although Reuschel won 13 games combining his Pittsburgh and San Francisco records. Downs won 12, Garrelts 11 and Robinson 11 with the Pirates and Giants.

"I don't think there's any chance of us making any big deals right at this moment," Craig said. "Our pitching hasn't been that bad. Our staff ERA is right around 3.40."

"There have been times when our bullpen has been a little tired. But overall, if we've had a problem it's been our overall offense. And we're starting to hit the ball now."

St. Louis unmasked San Francisco's offense in the final two games of the NL playoffs last year. The Cardinals came from a 3-2 deficit to gain the World Series by holding the Giants scoreless the last 22 innings and SF has struggled at the plate again this year.

"We've got 18 home runs and 59 RBI from (first baseman Will) Clark," Craig said, "but outside of that, we haven't had any run production. (Second baseman Robby) Thompson was doing a good job until he got hurt."

Thompson missed a half-dozen games with a sore index finger but is just about ready to return full time.

The acquisition of Ernest Riles from Milwaukee for Jeffrey Leonard has paid off in that Riles has done an excellent job subbing first for shortstop Jose Uribe and then for Thompson.

"He played second base, a position he's unfamiliar with, and has done a real good job," Craig said. "He's hitting the ball well."

A year ago, Cincinnati had trouble putting distance between itself and San Francisco and ultimately the Reds faded in the summer sun.

"We're fortunate nobody has really run away with it this year," Craig said. "The (Los Angeles) Dodgers are playing well. They look like the club to beat. If we can get our stuff together, we'll make a run at it."

"We hope we can stay two-three games back until the All-Star break. Then we hope to get Dravecky back and make a run for it. I want to play Sparky Anderson in the World Series this year."

next two innings before giving up another run in the top of the fourth. Litz was relieved after the run and finished with six strikeouts and one walk while giving up three hits and hitting a batter.

Altamonte came up with a run in the fourth as it capitalized on a Windermer error. Shortstop Horwitz led the frame off with a single to left, Kane then dropped down a nice sacrifice runner to send Horwitz to second. After an out Horwitz stole second and scored when Hench reached on an error to give the Mets a 2-0 lead.

Altamonte then took command of the game, taking advantage of another error, with two runs in the top of the fifth inning. Morro led off with a walk and advanced to second when Hamilton reached on an error. Morro and Hamilton then pulled off a double steal and both scored when Morrison singled up the middle to up the lead to 4-0.

Hamilton was strong through the middle innings as he allowed just six base runners all game. Hamilton also picked a runner off after giving up a single in the fourth inning.

Mets' Johnson holds big powow

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Mets Manager Dave Johnson held a closed-door meeting with his team following Monday night's 2-1 loss to the Pirates.

"There were some things I just had to get off my chest," said Johnson. "I thought the other guy (pitcher Mike Dunne) didn't have that much. He walked eight and I don't consider that good pitching. We got a lot of balls to hit. I don't know what we're thinking."

"We're the best offensive team in the league," Johnson continued. "We proved that the first third of the season. I don't know what we've been doing the last 30 days. Our concentration level has gone wherever. It's not on the ballfield."

Dwight Gooden thought the meeting was needed.

"I thought it was overdue," Gooden said. "I thought we needed it a couple days ago. Hopefully, everybody paid attention."

"I don't know if we're trying too hard or if everyone's in a funk at the same time. I don't know the answer to that."

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Orioles Manager Frank Robinson filed a protest Tuesday against Toronto, claiming Blue Jays starting pitcher Jim Clancy applied a foreign substance to the ball.

Robinson halted the game in the first inning with the Orioles at bat, saying Clancy had smeared the substance on his right uniform pants leg.

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston Astros pitcher Charlie Kerfeld was recovering in a Houston hospital after undergoing arthroscopic shoulder surgery to repair a small tear in his right rotator cuff, a team spokesman said Tuesday.

Kerfeld, who has not won a game in the major leagues since posting a 11-2 record 1988 in his rookie season, was 2-7 in 1988 while pitching for the Astros Double-A club in Columbus, Ga. Kerfeld is expected to begin rehabilitation immediately and is expected to begin throwing in August.

"If there were any undue risk in his pitching, I wouldn't allow it, even if he wanted to," Pappas said.

JENNINGS ON DL

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics Tuesday placed infielder Doug Jennings on the 15-day disabled list and recalled pitcher Jim Corsi from Tacoma of the Pacific Coast League (PCL).

During batting practice before Monday's Oakland-Milwaukee game, a Dave Parker line drive hit Jennings in the back and inflicted a deep bruise. Jennings is hitting .186 in 38 games with one home run and seven RBI. Corsi, a right-hander, is 2-3 with 11 saves and a 2.44 ERA at Tacoma.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Toronto third baseman Kelly Gruber cited a positive attitude for helping him lead the Blue Jays in batting average, RBI, hits and doubles.

"I had confidence," Gruber said. "I knew from spring training the third base job was mine. I was going to be there and could concentrate on playing."

"Batting coach Cito Gaston has helped me. I have an idea each at bat and go to the plate looking for one pitch. I'm hitting the breaking pitch to right field."

Tuesday's Blue Jays battery, Jim Clancy and Ernie Whitt, are the only remaining players from the 1976 expansion draft that stocked Toronto's original roster.

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Oriole Jim Traber, listed at 215 pounds, has been dubbed "Meatloaf" by his teammates.

After going hitless in 16 at bats last week in Toronto, Traber said he "couldn't hit in a foreign country," to which teammate Rene Gonzalez quipped: "But you can cut there."

Sixers deal for Hawkins

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers took a round-about route to get the shooting guard they need.

The 76ers had the third pick overall of Tuesday's NBA draft and could have taken Bradley's Hersey Hawkins to immediately bolster their backcourt.

Instead, Philadelphia selected Pittsburgh forward Charles Smith and later consummated a three-team deal that ended with the 76ers in possession of Hawkins, plus a first-round draft pick in 1989.

"Hersey is the best of the guards and the best able to fit in on the Sixers," Philadelphia General Manager John Nash said.

Albert King, David Wingate and Andrew Toney, the 76ers' three off guards last season, hit only 40 percent of their shots from the field, making a perimeter shooter Philadelphia's main target in the draft.

Hawkins, the UPI College Basketball Player of the Year, should certainly fill that need. He led the NCAA in scoring with an average of 36.3 points per game in his senior year and sank 52.4 percent of his shots.

Hawkins shot 53.9 percent in his four seasons and never was below 50 percent in any season. He set a Bradley single-game scoring record as a senior with 63 points against Detroit.

MAXWELL TO DENVER

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Former Florida guard Vernon Maxwell was selected in the second-round of Tuesday's NBA Draft by the Denver Nuggets and then traded to San Antonio for a draft pick in next year's draft.

Maxwell was the 47th player chosen overall.

"I feel real good about where I went and am happy to be with San Antonio," said Maxwell, Florida's all-time leading scorer. "I feel I will get a fair shot with the Spurs. I am looking forward to playing for Coach (Larry) Brown."

Maxwell, a Gainesville, Fla. native, ended his four-year career at Florida as the Southeastern Conference's second all-time leading scorer (2,450 points), trailing only Pete Maravich.

Stocks open slightly higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened slightly higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 22.11 Tuesday, was up 2.31 to 2133.18 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 376-243 among the 1,018 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,680,000 shares.

The stock market Tuesday broke a three-day slide and sent prices sharply higher in moderate trading as investors drew encouragement from the dollar's refusal to relinquish recent gains.

The Dow had fallen about 44 points since last Wednesday, when it established at post-collapse closing high of 2152.20.

David Kalman, technical analyst with W.H. Newbold's Son & Co. in Philadelphia, said the dollar was one of "those near-term things" that can impact the market, but the market's strength went beyond the dollar.

Dollar hit 6 months high in Tokyo; gold opens down

By United Press International

The dollar climbed to a six-month high in Tokyo today and opened sharply higher on other major world money markets in moderate trading. The price of gold was lower.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar rallied sharply against the Japanese yen in heavy trading on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange, closing at 132.40 yen, up 1.45 from 130.95 yen on Tuesday.

Wednesday's close was the highest level for the dollar against the yen since Dec. 8, when the dollar closed at 132.78 yen.

factors to change the current trend.

In early New York trading, the dollar was slightly higher against key foreign currencies following intervention in Europe by two central banks to slow the dollar's rise from its close in Tokyo.

Currency traders in New York said that Deutsche Bundesbank and the Swiss National Bank sold dollars for West German deutsche marks and Swiss francs in the open market.

Market watchers said the Bundesbank jumped into the market when the dollar was trading above the 1.82 mark level.

Analyst said however, the central banks were simply smoothing out the dollar's advance.

In Europe, the dollar began the day trading in Frankfurt at 1.818 West German marks, up from 1.8045.

Currency dealers in Japan said the dollar came under a rush of buying amid reports that the Central Bank of Japan was not likely to step in to check the yen's fall.

Dealers predicted the dollar would continue to rise for the time being as there were no

New home sales in slump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sales of new one-family houses dipped 0.3 percent in May as the effect of higher interest rates began to eat into the real estate industry, the government reported Wednesday.

Sales of new single-family houses dropped to seasonally adjusted annual rates of 65,800, down 0.3 percent from April.

The April rate of 66,000 was 1.1 percent above March, the Commerce Department and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development said.

Before seasonal adjustments, an estimated 62,000 new homes were sold at a medium sales price of $110,000, meaning half the homes in the country sold for more than that, and half for less. The average sales price in May was $135,000.

At the end of May, 371,000 new houses remained on the market, and after seasonal adjustments, that represents a 6.9-month supply.

Through May of this year, 294,000 new single-family houses sold, compared to 319,000 houses through the same period last year, a decrease of 7.8 percent.

to maintain and improve county roads. A Volusia County circuit judge has decided in order for counties to maintain and improve their roads, they can collect funding county-wide to pay for road work.

The Volusia impact fee decision is currently under appeal in the 5th District Court of Appeals. Seminole County commissioners voted Tuesday to appeal a Seminole circuit judge's decision saying the county can't impose the fees in cities.

Committee members Susan Lipton and Barry Miller voted against the measure. Lipton said the county should govern over pollution matters which aren't restricted to city-county boundaries, and Miller said the measure might prevent the county from conducting its normal day-to-day governance over county-wide issues.

The committee also decided initiatives can be placed on the ballot if five percent of the county-wide voters registered during the last general election sign a petition.

The five percent of the voters seeking an initiative must come from at least three of the five county commission districts to assure no one district with a large population can get a local-interest issue on the ballot opposed by other districts, and petition drives should have no more than six months to gather names, the committee decided.

In future changes to the charter itself, committee members decided 7 1/2 percent of the registered voters from at least three of the county commission districts must seek an amendment to assure the charter cannot be easily changed.

The committee also decided that both initiatives and proposed charter changes could only be brought to the voters for approval in general elections to prevent costly special elections. Voting on those issues would be limited to two-year periods of general elections to reduce emotional, spur-of-the-moment ballot members decided.

The five percent rule should also be required of county commissioner recalls, members decided. Committee attorney Harry Stewart said the recall would not affect current commissioners elected under state laws, only subsequent county commissioners elected under the charter.

The committee also decided unanimously an autonomous charter review commission should meet every six years to review and recommend changes for voters to decide. County commissioners should not be able to make changes in the proposals before they are placed on a ballot, members decided.

The charter review commission, appointed by county commissioners, should be made up of 15 members, including a resident from each city, a person living in the unincorporated areas of each county commission district and three at-large members.

Stewart and committee consultant Bill Neron will draw the charter by July 8 based on the committee's decisions, and the committee will make final decisions on its wording July 14. Following two public hearings on July 19 and 21, committee members will hold a workshop with county commissioners on July 28 and present the final charter recommendation to commissioners Aug. 8.

County commissioners will make any changes they feel are warranted and present a final charter proposal to voters on the Nov. 8 general election.

counties.

Clayton said the Volusia County appeal decision would decide whether counties can impose county-wide impact fees on developers to help them meet the requirements of state statutes and pay for county road improvements caused by new growth.

Clayton is confident Seminole County can win the appeal using Volusia's argument of state-mandated county road maintenance requirements, should the appeals court uphold the Volusia circuit judge's decision.

City Administrator Gene DeMarie said, "We waited for the latest technology and it will take three months to go on line and rebuild an entire year of financial contracts."

Cost figures include: IBM equipment, $65,965 plus a one-time fee of $11,701 for IBM licensed operating programs; and ITE software, $41,275.

Payments won't start until late September. The projected annual lease/purchase payment at 7.56 percent interest over five years would be $28,896. The annual ITE Software license fee maintenance for the same period would be $6,350. The annual IBM Hardware Maintenance for the first year would be $765 with the other four payments being $5,124 a year.

Ledford said the city will be able to start inserting file data immediately at the IBM facility in order to meet the fiscal year deadline of Sept. 30.

Acting Finance Director Mary Triplett said the new system will replace two separate computer systems — one for utility billing and payroll and the other for the general ledger — as well as software throughout the city. She said having a fully integrated system will be time saving.

Ledford said the city spent more than $16,369 last fiscal year on the two existing computer systems for software maintenance and modifications, not including more than $1,200 in long distance telephone charges.

Installing cabling and fiber optics between city hall and the annex and wire in walls will cost an additional $3,800.

DeMarie said he wants to find money in the budget to hire temporary data processing personnel to help input data into the software programs. Software will include programs for government management and budgetary accounting, payroll/personnel, utility billing, purchasing, inventory, building permits, occupational licenses and fixed assets.

The IBM equipment has all necessary hardware, including the central processing unit, personal computers, terminals, keyboards, monitors, printers and multi-station access unit.

...Budget

As is usually the case, each department's requested budget was trimmed for the final proposal to commissioners.

Fatson has proposed a $3.3 million budget for the police department, the largest among the city's departments. Fatson's proposed police budget is approximately $400,000 less than Police Chief Steven Harriet proposed.

Fire Chief Tom Hickson proposed a budget of $2 million for his department, and Fatson trimmed it to $1.8 million. Hickson requested five additional personnel, and Fatson proposes an increase of just one.

Jim Kelly, public works director, proposed a $2.2 million budget for his department and Fatson's proposed budget recommends $1.8 million, with the biggest reductions in the maintenance and ground maintenance divisions.

Fatson has proposed a $450,000 budget for the Recreation and Parks Department, with the bulk going to recreational activities.

On the revenue side of the budget ledger, Fatson estimates that more than $6 million will be raised by taxes and franchise fees during the fiscal year and another $2.3 million from state and county shared revenue, with $1.2 million coming from the half-cent sales tax.

COOK OF THE WEEK

Grandma taught her to cook for Dad's appetite

By Jane Hale
Herald Correspondent

Sharon Rader, our Cook of the Week, is grateful to her father's appetite for her cooking skills and to her cooking skills for her husband.

Sharon was born in Akron, Ohio, but grew up in New Smyrna Beach, Florida, moving there when she was 10. She started school in Akron, but graduated from New Smyrna Beach High School. "I really enjoyed growing up in New Smyrna Beach, because I love the beach so much," Sharon said.

Her father owned a gas and service station in New Smyrna Beach. "My father is now deceased, and I miss him a lot," Sharon said. Her mother worked as a licensed practical nurse and still lives in New Smyrna Beach, seeing Sharon as often as she can. Sharon has one sister who is younger.

"My dad really loved to eat, so I learned to cook at an early age," Sharon said. "My grandmother, my father's mother, taught me how to cook. Grandma was an excellent cook, who believed that everything should be made from scratch."

Even if the stomach is not the way to a man's heart, Sharon's food forte did nothing but enhance her husband's affection. "My husband, Fred, married me because I was a good cook. He is always telling everyone this," she said. On one of their first dates Sharon made spaghetti for Fred and "he said it was the best he had ever eaten."

Sharon has passed her spaghetti recipe on to my daughter, who she says is a better cook than she.

"I have never won any cooking contest," Sharon said, "but have entered a few and been in the run offs for first place several times in the dessert division."

Sharon works full time at the First United Methodist Church of Sanford as the secretary. "I really enjoy my job," she stated.

Sharon's husband is the post master general of the post office in Sanford, Fred grew up in Deland and met Sharon on the beach at New Smyrna while on leave from the United States Marine Corps. They were married while Sharon was a senior in high school. "We were allowed to do this and still graduate," Sharon said. The wedding took place at the First United Methodist Church in New Smyrna Beach.

The Raders' children grew up in Brandon. From there, the family moved to El Dorado, Ark., in 1981, where they lived for six years. Their son, David, graduated from high school in El Dorado, where he met and married his wife. "I am now trying to teach her how to cook long distance over the telephone," Sharon joked.

The Raders' daughter, Pamela, lives with her family in Brandon. "She enjoys cooking and taking care of her family," Sharon said. She also has three adorable grandchildren who she enjoys taking care of and visits as often as possible.

The Raders moved to Sanford about a year ago. Sharon loves going to the beach anytime she gets a chance to just lie in the surf, sand and sun.

Sharon's philosophy in life is "Love and happiness for everyone." Another saying Sharon likes and often looks at on her refrigerator door is, "Count your life by smiles not tears. Count your age by friends not years."

Listed below are some favorite Fourth of July recipes the Raders enjoy:

1 ripe avocado
8 ounces cream cheese
1/2 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 cup shredded lettuce
2 medium tomatoes
1 small onion
4 ounces or more shredded cheese

In blender combine avocado, cream cheese, sour cream. In pie plate, arrange in layers with lettuce, tomatoes, and cheese. Serve with tortilla chips.

BEEF BRISKET BAR-B-QUE
4 or 5 pounds boneless beef brisket

Fare for firecracker Fourth adds sparkle

There's something for everyone on the Fourth of July. The Independence Day weekend is filled with fireworks, music and holiday get-togethers. It's the time for All-American cookouts, from Texas barbecues to New England clamcakes.

Here is a sampling of great Fourth of July recipes for a backyard cookout or a bring-a-dish holiday picnic gathering. And to finish up the meal, there's even a Stars and Stripes red white and blue dessert.

STARS AND STRIPES RICE PUDDING
1/2 cups cooked rice
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup milk
1 cup whipping cream
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 cup fresh blueberries
Toasted sliced almonds for garnish (optional)
Whipped cream for garnish (optional)

In a 2-quart saucepan, combine rice, sugar, milk and cream. Cook over medium low heat until thick and creamy (about 20 to 30 minutes), stirring frequently. Remove from heat, quickly whisk in butter, egg yolks and vanilla. Cool.

Alternate rice pudding, blueberries and strawberries in parfait glasses or clear dessert dishes. Garnish with almonds and whipped cream, if desired. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

BIRLOIN RIBBONS AND PINEAPPLE CHUNKS
1 1/2 to 1 3/4 pound boneless beef sirloin steak, cut 1 inch thick
1/4 cup each soy sauce and water
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cloves garlic, minced
24 cubes 1-inch by 1-inch fresh pineapple or canned pineapple chunks

Partially freeze beef sirloin steak for 30 minutes until firm.

slice into strips 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick. To make marmalade, combine soy sauce, water, lime juice, sugar and garlic.

Place beef strips in plastic bag or utility dish, add marmalade, turning to coat. Tie bag or cover dish and marinate for 20 to 30 minutes, turning occasionally.

Meanwhile, soak eight 12-inch bamboo skewers in water for 10 minutes.

Four off marmalade. Alternately thread an equal amount of beef strips (weaving back and forth) and three pineapple cubes on each skewer.

Place kabobs on grid over medium coals. Broil for 4 minutes, turning once. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.

GRILLED VEGETABLES
2 tablespoons sesame oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/2 teaspoon minced fresh ginger
1/4 to 1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper

MICROWAVE MAGIC

Squash works well as main dish or sidekick

Squash, that versatile vegetable that is low in calories and sodium, can be prepared and enjoyed in so many different ways. It comes in several colors, shapes, and sizes.

A number of varieties exist of the two main types, summer and winter. Local gardens are producing winter and summer squash now. The acorn squash is a winter type squash, with a hard shell that can stay on the vine until it is fully ripe. The orange flesh is sweet and moist.

When selecting this vegetable at grocery store, roadside stand, or from your own garden, look for firm, well-shaped squash without soft spots. Both summer and winter squash should be heavy for their size.

A quick and easy method of preparing an acorn squash: Prick the squash with the tines of a fork several times. Place on a paper plate. M/W on 100 percent power 5-6 minutes per pound. Allow to stand 5 minutes. Cut in half. Remove seeds and season with butter, salt, pepper or butter and brown sugar.

Meat loaf and acorn squash in the same main dish make a quick and easy dinner.

SAUSAGE MEAT LOAF

ACORN RINGS

2 medium acorn squash
1 pound ground beef
1/2 pound pork sausage
1 small onion, chopped
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup orange marmalade or apple jelly

Pierce squash several times with fork to allow steam to escape. Place squash on paper towels in microwave oven. M/W on 100 percent power for 13-15 minutes or until just about tender, turning squash over twice. Let stand 5-10 minutes. Cut thin slice from pointed end of each squash. Cut each squash crosswise into 3 slices, remove seeds. Place slices in 12-by-8-inch glass baking dish.

Combine remaining ingredients except marmalade, mix well. Divide into 6 portions, shape each into a ball. Place in center of each squash slice, pressing into hollow area. Cover with wax paper. M/W on 100 percent power for 9-10 minutes or until meat is no longer pink. Spoon marmalade onto meat, spreading evenly. M/W on 100 percent power for 2-2 1/2 minutes or until meat is glazed.

Butternut squash has a cylindrical shape. The skin is smooth and buff colored. The flesh is orange colored, sweet and moist.

Brown sugar and marshmallows sweeten this squash side dish.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH CASSEROLE

3 pound butternut squash

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

DEAR ABBY

'Esquire' is legal in U.S.

DEAR ABBY: I feel sure that you often run letters containing information you know to be incorrect just to stimulate mail. After all, responses to such items serve to demonstrate that your column has a large readership.

For example, in today's column, some guy by the name of Dale Evan Rogers said that no female could sign her name "Esq." Perhaps neither you nor Mr. Rogers ever employed an attorney. Surely you are aware that all the attorneys in the United States, male and female, are addressed in writing as "Esq." I cannot imagine that you did not know that.

CHARLES IRVIN ODELL, WESTMONT, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but I read you faithfully and have never seen a problem like mine printed. I am a 19-year-old female who, like many other women, is suspected to be gay because I don't wear makeup, worry about a hard-to-fashion like most women do. I like myself the way I am.

Most people think I'm a lesbian because I am not feminine. Some ask, "Do you like men?"

brown sugar, butter, and salt. M/W on 100 percent power for 6-7 minutes or until heated through, stirring once. Sprinkle with marshmallows and a little cinnamon. M/W on 100 percent power for 1-2 minutes or until marshmallows are puffed.

This squash dish looks pretty and is a good accompaniment to turkey, chicken or pork.

ACORN SQUASH WITH CRANBERRY
4 small acorn squash
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 (16-ounce) can whole cranberry sauce
Cut squash in half and remove seeds. Place in baking dish and sprinkle brown sugar and cinnamon. Fill squash with cranberry sauce and cover with plastic wrap. M/W on 100 percent power for 9-10 minutes or until squash can be pierced with a fork easily.

Diced, peeled apple can be added with the cranberries if desired.

2 tablespoons chicken broth or water
4 to 6 medium zucchini, halved lengthwise
3 to 4 medium red peppers, quartered and cored

In a small saucepan, heat oil. Add garlic, ginger and crushed red pepper, stir-fry for 30 seconds.

Stir in chili sauce, vinegar, soy sauce, and broth or water. Heat just to boiling. Remove from heat.
Brush vegetables with the sauce, arrange in grill basket, and close the top. Grill 4 to 5 inches above hot coals, turning once, for about 8 minutes, or until zucchini is crisp-tender. (Vegetables can also be placed directly on the cooking grid. First, brush grid with oil to prevent vegetables from sticking.) Do not over cook.
Arrange vegetables on serving plate. Brush or spoon remaining sauce over. Serve hot or warm. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

Get qualified physician to check your vertebra

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is an unstable vertebra?

DEAR READER: An unstable vertebra is a doughnut-shaped bone in the back (or neck) that is not securely attached to the bones above and below it. Ordinarily, most vertebrae are firmly anchored to their neighbors. They become unstable as the result of a major accident or from the normal, progressive slippage that comes with age as our tissues and ligaments lose their elasticity. They also are caused by inherited weaknesses. However, the usual term "unstable vertebra" refers to an uncommon post-traumatic condition that requires therapy or attention from a neurosurgeon. The normal cracks and pops made by our moving spinal column do not indicate instability. Before you accept the diagnosis of "unstable vertebra," make sure that it is given by a qualified M.D., not by a non-medical practitioner.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I need to have a tooth pulled and will have gas to put me to sleep. What are my chances of dying?

DEAR READER: Several types of inhalational anesthesia can be used during tooth extraction; therefore, the word "gas" is a very general one. Your dentist may choose to give you nitrous oxide to dull the pain without putting you to sleep, or he may prefer a general anesthetic if the surgical procedure is difficult and particularly uncomfortable. With appropriate backup systems, as are found in most hospitals, your chances of a serious anesthetic reaction are slim. However, the risks depend on the type of anesthetic used, the depth of anesthesia and the skill of the operator.

I suggest that you discuss your concerns with your dentist before undergoing surgery. This way, you can learn more about the procedure, its risks and complications. In other words, you need to give informed consent for tooth extraction, as well as for any surgical procedure. To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had acrylic nails put on. Then my girlfriend told me it wasn't healthy to keep the nail from breathing. What do you think?

DEAR READER: Nails do not

need to "breathe" in the way that other body tissues, such as skin, do. I think that your new acrylic nails are safe.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
South was one of those players reluctant to make a pre-emptive bid with an outside ace, so he passed originally. The auction continued with a bizarre weak two-bid from West and a forcing three-diamond bid from East. Now South came in with three hearts, which East doubled eagerly. The 10 of diamonds was the opening lead, covered by dummy's jack and won by East with the king. East next played the spade king and was surprised when declarer won the ace. South played a heart and East won the king. East now figured out that West must hold either the K J or the K Q of clubs for his opening two-bid, so he shot back the six of clubs. Does it not now seem apparent that when declarer plays a second heart, East will win the ace, play another club to his partner and get a spade ruff to set the contract? If that is what occurs to you, think again. Declarer countered this strategy by leading the queen of diamonds from dummy. When East covered with the ace, declarer discarded the jack of clubs. There was now no way for East to get his partner on lead for the needed spade ruff. Eventually, after drawing trumps, South took the spade (line) against West's jack to make his doubled contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharus Books. (C)1988, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
