valuable than jewels or money-"the right to vote in a free election." The hearings began 11 months to the day after five men were arrested in side Democratic headquarters on a wiretapping mission.

In his opening statement, Ervin recited the record of Watergate, and the published charges of broader political surveillance and sabotage He said the scandal has "cast a black cloud of mistrust" over American government, and promised candid and intensive investigation to uncover all the facts.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, RTenn., said in his opening statement that the American people "must be the final judge of Watergate

"The very fact that we are now in volved in the public process of cleaning cur own house before the eyes of the world is a mark of the greatest strength," Baker said,

Sen, Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., said the story to be unfolded before the Senate panel has its significance not in the acts of breaking, entering or bugging, "but in the acts of men who almost stole America."

Even as the long-awaited Senate investigation took center stage, Watergate inquiries proceeded on other fronts.

Gen. Robert E. Cushman said Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. lied to him about why Hunt wanted help from the Central Intelligence Agency two years ago.

Cushman, then CIA deputy director, talked to newsmen before entering a closed hearing of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Council struck from the ordinance all references to "row houses", which will now be termed "cluster homes."

Getting a council no was a requirement governing thickness of concrete slabs in mobile homes be specified.

Another deletion was a recommendation that density of multi-family dwellings not exceed eight units per acre plus 20 per cent. Council struck the 20 per cent requirement.

Residents having travel trailers on their grounds are advised not to take extended trips. A new requirement of the ordinance stipulates that such trailers removed from the premises for 90 days may not be returned. Mobile home parks also came under consideration with a stipulation that the first space cannot be rented until 40 spaces are provided. Council also okayed a mandatory requirement that skirting be required on all mobile homes, and that not more than 40 per cent of a lot can be covered by a trailer.

Rooming and boarding houses are required to provide one parking space per bedroom. A special exception was added to the professional office district category which provides for public utility buildings and facilities necessary to serve surrounding areas. The most controversial item considered by council was a P-Z recommendation that Maitland Avenue be retained as a basically residential area, with some neighborhood commercial zoning. Mayor Lawrence Swofford pointed out that many residents have objected to a counterproposal made by council that the street have professional zoning. Other changes in the zoning structure are

Chef Murder Suspect Taken To Judge

> By GARY TAYLOR Herald Staff Writer

A 15-year-old New Jersey boy, charged in the shooting death of an Orlando chef, whose bullet-riddled body was found Sunday in a wooded area near the Lake Mary exit of Interstate-4, appeared before Judge Wallace

Hall for a first hearing Wednesday afternoon. A preliminary hearing had been set for 9:30 a.m. Saturday, but Sheriff's Capt. L.J. Kriz said the case is scheduled to go before the Seminole County Grand Jury Friday. The youth's name is being withheld because of his age.

The boy was arrested Tuesday while hitchhiking on I-95 near St. Augustine by a Florida Highway Patrolman and charged by Kriz with the murder of Charles Newell, 31, of Orlando, who was slain sometime early Saturday afternoon, according to authorities.

Newell's body, with five .32 caliber bullets in the head and four in the body, was discovered about 11 a.m. Sunday just off Lake Emma Road. His car, splattered with blood, was recovered by Pemberton, N.J. authorities less than three hours later.

Authorities in New Jersey, where the boy's hometown is located, had been looking for him for about six weeks after he escaped from a juvenile detention center about 20 miles north of his home

A New Jersey juvenile judge sentenced the teenager to an indefinite term in Highfields Project, a statewide juvenile work, consultation, and detention facility in Hopewell. N.J., but the boy walked away the first day.

Authorities said the boy had been sent to Highfield Project on a juvenile delinquency sentence and had not been found guilty of any specific crime.

Prior to that time the boy was student at a middle school in Pemberton Township, but was taken out of school when sentenced. Pemberton Police said the boy is wanted. along with another suspect, in a May 9 abduction of one of his teachers after allegedly pistol whipping and robbing her husband. He explained that housing was so expensive because of escalating construction costs, and the high price of land. "? can remember when we would give away plots to anyone willing to build. ## One Way To See Las Vegas

By WILLIAM DICKE Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) trip to Las Vegas is expensive for most people, but for some it's free - free food, free lodging, free drinks and free entertainment. Even the roundtrip air fare is free.

These are the big money gamblers, those willing to risk $2,500 to $5,000 over three or four days.

Most of the resort hotels lining the glittering Las Vegas Strip compete strenuously for the heavy rollers, sending scouts across the country to find them and offer them free junkets to the gambling capital. Although there are no official figures, one junket manager estimates more than 2,000 guests arrive on junkets here every week.

In recent years the hotels have been building a "family" image for the Strip, offering all sorts of package plans for the family, A typical $34.95 twonight, three-day package for two persons includes lodging, meals, a dinner show, two cocktails and inexpensive gifts. But the hotelmen haven't forgotten that much of their success has been built on big stakes

The hotels figure it costs them an average of $600 to give a gambler a free trip here. The hotels also figure the house claims 20 per cent of every dollar_gaml.led_That means, on the average, that a gambler must put up at least $3,000 for a hotel to break even.

An All-Voluntary Military

Army Association Is Yet Skeptical

The Association of the U.S. Army, taking a dim view of the prospects for an ali-volunteer force, has warned against lowering personnel standards in order to fill up the ranks and what it calls "too much emphasis" on race.

In a new position paper on "Manpower for Defense," the 95,000-member organization. which frequently reflects the opinions of top Army generals, asserted:

"The problems we encounter with lower category people are insidious and infect the whole system not only in training difficulty, but in discipline, morale, elan and the whole range of intangibles on which pride and accomplishment are based.

"Thus far in the all-volunteer effort, the standards have been maintained. "But, now, as the recruitment grows more difficult, we must not take the slippery downhill path of lowering standards to meet our numbers Last November, after racial brawls aboard several of its ships, the Navy upgraded its standards for recruits. It had been accepting a significant number of individuals from the Category IV (low) mental group and this was widely seen as one of the major causes of its disciplinary protlems.

The Army association expressed doubt the all-volunteer effort could be sustained and said. if it can not, the only course of action left would be to reduce the size or quality of the armed forces.

It called this too great a risk and a needless one at that. It urged Congress to extend the authority of the President to induct personnel under selective service. This authority is due to expire June 30.

'Once this happens, our only source of military manpower is from pure volunteers." the Alish paper associed. "Thereafter, an act of Congress will be required before anyone can be drafted, no matter how great the emergency."

It pointed out that maintenance of the President's induction authority would not cost a cent nor would a single person need be drafted if

Japan Must Not Isolate Self

Since the emperor in modern Japan is a national symbol more than a wielder of power, it is hard to avoid reading symbolic significance into the abrupt cancellation of Emperor Hirohito's planned visit to the United States of America this year. The vague explanation from Tokyo is reminiscent of the circumstances when Japan canceled an invitation to President Eisenhower to visit that country in 1960 during a period of anti-American street demonstrations.

Japanese leaders may have concluded that the political atmosphere is not quite right for the emperor to be visiting Washington as a prelude to an exchange visit to Tokyo by President Nixon. We can only regret that Emperor Hirohito's trip, rather than being the victim of political tensions, could not have served to clarify and strengthen U.S.-Japanese relations and thus perhaps help relax those tensions.

While Communists and Socialists in Japan have traditionally made the United States a whipping boy in the political arena, the current strain in our relations arises as much from within the ruling Liberal Democratic Party as from the far left. The Japanese business community appears reluctant to come to terms with the new realities confronting Japan's relations with her trading partners, particularly the United States. Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka's cabinet finally has taken positive steps toward relaxing restrictions on U.S. investment in Japanese industry which can help offset the U.S. balance of payments deficit-the crux of the economic problem to be solved. The new policy does not go far enough, however, since American investors would still be excluded creating the kind of trade and monetary problems that now beg for solution. A streak of isolationism is evident in Japan's apparent determination to amass wealth from exports and use it for investment abroad-in Hawaiian hotels and Alaskan mining claims, for instance-without opening her own doors more widely to foreign capital and competitive foreign products.

There is still evidence of Japanese resentment over being "left out" in the formulation of the new U.S. policy toward China. Significantly, Henry Kissinger included Japan among the nations invited to consider a new approach to the Atlantic Alliance-an invitation to the Japanese to accept more of the responsibility that the United States and Western Europe share on a mutual basis to solve economic and

It is possible that health or family circumstances are keeping Emperor Hirohito at home. If his canceled trip is a diplomatic maneuver, we can hope it does not reflect a turning inward by Japan. This is a time when the Japanese should realize that their continued economic growth, prosperity and security can best be served by recognizing the interdependence of friendly nations in the give-and-take of the marketplace.

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Neither the low tones of Watergate nor the high tones from President Nixon on the decentralizing "new federalism" seem likely to halt the flow of power to Washington - with perhaps still more for the White House that is already thought to have too much.

Before Watergate dampened all other news, U.S. lawmakers talked soberly - if only half-convincingly - of reasserting their acknowledged but inadequately used power over the national purse. The President's impoundments of money and cutbacks of some social programs enraged many.

In theory, the Watergate mess, illustrating the perils of concentrated power secretly employed, should strengthen the hand and the resolve of Congress. You'd never guess it had, however, by listening to a cluster of politicians and scholars gathered recently at the Woodrow Wilson Center to discuss the "new federalism" under sponsorship of the National Journal.

Waspish Alexander Bickel, well known Yale law professor, cut the argument over Congress to its soft core when he described it as "the hope of the past." He suggested that earlier American appraisers had misconceived the power potential in Congress as a coequal branch of government. In fact if not in intent, the Constitution gives superior weight to the presidency and its bureaucracy.

First in wartime and then in eras of peace, the reality sank home. Presidents cut a wide discretionary swath, sometimes cautiously, but sometimes arbitrarily and even arrogantly. Congress yielded, and steadily lost will even where it still in theory retained power.

Many Americans troubled at the centralization of authority in Washington tend more and more to see it as mostly a presidential thing. Much of it clearly is. Yet Bickel reminds us that the U.S. Supreme Court long has been a huge force for nationalizing power in this country.

Said the professor: "Every court decision which expands human rights expands the federal, centralizing power." He could see nothing beyond the grasp of the national government today, with a compliant or Willowy Congress bowled over by a muscle-flexing White House. He added:

"The commerce clause (the Constitution's famed area of widest failude) reaches as far as human ingenuity can go to accomplish any ends.

Thus equipped, the national government (meaning of course mostly the presidency and the high court) is constantly tempted to stretch its mandate to new fields, to act on what Bickel cails "moral imperatives" to do more and more.

If I heard him straight, self-restraint is the hope of the future. He put it in a kind of subtle, back-handed English from the college round table, but the message is clear: "A certain economy of moral imperatives is needed to contain the centralizing impulses of the national govern-

That struck me as a plea to the people not to ask for too much, not in the short range anyway, in peril that an over-reaching government may become grossly overbearing.

Sirica Pressure Broke Watergate

(Last of two related articles.)

WASHINGTON (NEA The more hours this reporter spends reading Judge John J. Sirica's opinions the more certain the conclusion that this is a most remarkable man.

Perhaps more than any other man this lifelong Repub lican judge, an Eisenhower appointee, pried the lid off Watergate when, as presiding judge at the original trial, he kept the pressure on until one man broke. "Talk to one man of liberty," noted Sirica, "and he understands you. Talk to another and his idea of liberty is the freedom of the wolf to pillage the fold."

Sirica is a believer in excellence. He holds that men of education, wealth and power hold a greater responsibility for upholding moral standards than other men and therefore must be punished more severely for their transgressions.

He is annoyed, perhaps angered, by intellectual conformity, by men who are content to be average, by mental stagnation. He is a believer in the uncommon man. "Government," says Sirica, "is our business and we get the kind of government we ask for. If we are to have good government, and preserve our freedom, the lawyer (judge) must be in the lead . . . The corruption of governments the world over is caused by the failure of the ... citizen to meet his responsibilities

In a speech to students and graduates: "So I urge you, therefore, to search your souls and ask yourselves what you really think your goals are in life. If you feel the motivation to become a champion of good causes, however unpopular, then don't put the courtroom off limits . "Get in there and fight. We have too many spectators in this country already," he tells young lawyers. And deplores the lack of strong advocates to espouse great principles of law. Sirica is a blunt and pragmatic man, on one occasion deciding that the testimony of one particularly well-informed witness would "not be ruled out by carping technicalities." . . . (For, as he said on another occasion) "a trial is nothing really but a studied search for the truth.

"How can you say your mother and I have nothing i common with you any more? We all like Bette Midler don't we?"

Statutes Apply To Males

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)- The 1st District Court of Appeal today ruled rape statutes may apply to males as well as females.

The 3-0 opinion written by Chief Judge Sam Spector said the Florida Supreme Court had left men without protection against forced sodomy with its December 1971 ruling overturning the state's "crime against nature" law. "Males are entitled to the same protection for degrading ravishment and sexual assaults...as are females," Spector wrote The opinion ordered new trials on charges of rape and forcible carnal knowledge of two Raiford prison inmates who had appealed convictions on the crime against nature statute

The two, Bernard Brinson and Linten Edward Wilson, were accused of sexually assaulting another Raiford inmate on June 2, 1971. They were convicted Nov. 31, 1971. Brinson who was serving a six-year term for breaking and entering was sentenced to an additional 20 years, and Wilson who was serving two life sentences on rape and robbery convictions in Leon County was given an additional 15 years. Spector wrote that the only alternative to rape charges, without the crime against nature statute, were charges of committing an unnatural and lascivious act which carried punishment of only a $500 fine and six months prison sen-

Spector wrote that the Supreme Court decision and "the Legislature's unwillingness to bridge an obvious void in our criminal laws has made Florida the only state in the country, and perhaps in the world, where forcible sodomy ... is only a misdemeanor punishable by 60 days in the county jail." "It is clear that the law is not in harmony with the demands of our society," he wrote. "It is our unmistakable duty to reestablish that harmony.

Famous brand names.

He said the rape statute forbids carnal knowledge and that carnal knowledge "extends to the gratification of animal appetites or lusts upon the body of another ... it means bodily

Rape carries a life sentence. Although the rape statute has been traditionally applied only to forcible penetration of the female sex organ, it contains no restriction on including the oral or anal orifice, the court ruled

"In either case, it is a gross invasion of the privacy of one's body which cannot be tolerated by a civilized society," said the opinion.

Spector spent much of his 10-page opinion in attacking the Supreme Court ruling which found the crime against nature statute was unconstitutionally vague. The first ruling in December 1971 was believed to sanction only sodomy between consenting adults, Spector said, but the court later expanded it to throw out the conviction of a "a vicious animal who forcibly, under threat of death, made a middle-aged woman submit to a depraved and degrading as-"It became apparent that citizens of this state were no longer protected from deviant forcible sexual assaults by the only felony statute theretofore generally invoked for that purpose," he wrote.

The chief judge also criticized the 1972 Legislature for failing to pass a bill which detailed the forbidden conduct in more modern language. The bill passed the Senate but failed to pass the House in a dispute over whether sodomy between consenting adults should be banned. The 1973 Legislature is considering a criminal code revision which makes forcible sodomy punishable by a life sen-

Tribe Diamond Mentor Tops In Loop

By J RICHARDS

We've recently learned that one of the area's most successful baseball coaches is planning to retire from high school athletics to pursue his academic career more fully. Steve Stevenson, who coached Trinity Preparatory baseball teams to three consecutive District Class A baseball crowns only to see his charges fall in the Regional finals by one run each year, is expected to announce his retirement soon. Under Stevenson, the Saints, only in existance for four years as a school, displayed such a dominance in Class A diamond play that many local small schools refused to even schedule them and Stevenson's teams were thus forced to play tougher AA and AAA competition, usually winning. The past year, the Saints, with two freshmen starters and very young team overall, went 19-4, bowing to Tampa Temple Heights, a surprise winner in its district play-off, 2-1 in the regional finals. The loss of Stevenson as Trinity's baseball mentor comes when they will be entering Double-A competition next year and will surely be felt. We have a personal sense of loss, for many were the mornings at 7 a.m. (or earlier) that our "cheerful" voice azzine the Trinner Coacie, who always had a fory to give us and made every game we attended an added pleasure.

EXCITING BASEBALL

Baseball, sometimes a secondary sport - at least for the spectators - rarely, if ever, put anyone to sleep as "franity games. At least in the stands.

While some, including friends of Stevenson in the coaching fraternity, frown on some of his spurious tactics, the young mentor has put a touch of "Gas House Gang" buseball back into the game. It's called the three-ball walk. Imagine, if you will, runners on first and second with the happental and a two-and-one count, the score tied at two-all in a top of the alath. The Trinity batter starts jogging towards first at the end of the next pitch, just as if it were the fourth ball.

The Umpire calls, 'Come back, that's not four balls, while the catcher still holds an horsehide in his mit.

Meanwhile both runners have been casually walking along the base paths towards second and third - the basi still being in play, legally, anyway - and there you have it. The three-ball walk. Stevenson has used the tactic against area opponents in tight situations for the past three years, much to the pleasure of both players and fans, alike. From there on, the tide turns Trinity - way. Here are the Stevenson three-ball walk statistics. In three years, he has used the play in 19 games, all of which he won, scoring 21 runners from the advancement. Once, an "alert" catcher tried to make the throw to third and the ball sailed into left field, allowing two men to cross home plate, as the Saints' have been coached to go into the full gallop steal when they get near the bag in tight situations.

Sometimes, as a variation on the tactic, Stevenson will get in a brief yelling match with the umpire on whether or not it was actually the fourth ball. He has, the coach laughingly reported, even convinced two umpires it was a walk and the base was awarded Unfair? Maybe. Illegal? Hardly. In our opinion, that play, and several others which require consummate skill as an actor as well as a baseball player, have long made the game interesting, and we will surely miss the fun of it all.

HOME FIELD FOR RAIDERS?

Coach Jay Bergman, who has seen his Seminole Junior College Raiders play at the Seminole Little League baseball complex near Five Points for too long now may be finally getting the OK to use an already constructed baseball diamond at the school' campus.

The Raider coach, who has taken his squad to the state play-offs for seven consecutive years recently was heard by the school's Student Government Association, which funds a major share of his - and all other athletic department expenses and hoepfully has convinced the students of the desirability of having the Raiders play on home ground.

With attendance figures rarely reaching 100, we can foresee several large crowds of students joining the faithful following of older fans who flock to see Bergman's crew play during their afternoon match-ups. One season, because of lack of a home field, the Raiders even made DeLand their home stands.

BERGMAN LIKES LOCAL HURLERS

The Raider coach is currently casting envious glances at least a pair of Seminole County hurlers for his eighth straight drive to the state play-offs next year, and he has a Leesburg pitcher on the line too, that could give the SJC nine of the most potent pitching staffs in the state if he can sign them. Lyman leftie Bob Meadows and Seminole product David Brown, along with highly rated Jim Busby of Leesburg are high on the Bergman recruiting list, the acquisition of any of the three could be a big plus for area diamond action. However, the local mentor will also have to contend with FTU and probably Valencia Community College, as well as a few other offers, for the services of these young men. Another local ace moundsman, Trinity Prep's Bobby Ficquette has made known his plans to stay in the area and perhaps catch on with either Valencia or Seminole

QUOTABLE QUOTE DEPARTMENT

The daughter of a friend of ours informs us "that it was an "earrend triple," no matter what we (always nit picking) say about a double and a one-base throwing error. Michelle Masterson, the short fielding daughter of Bill Masterson, Student Activities Coordinator at Seminole

Junior College, refutes the idea of not calling it an "earrrned (emphasis, hers) triple," when she got to third during one of her games, "Besides, it's not my fault the other girl dropped the ball," Michelle says, completely destroying adult logic as she munched her post game hamburger.

activities It is expected that these three subsidiaries, Arcata Communications, Inc., Arcata Leasing Corporation and Voycall, Inc., will become a part of General Dynamics' communications systems operations, along with Stromberg-Carlson Corporation, its wholly-owned telephone manufacturing subsidiary. The price of the acquisition is dependent upon an audit of Arcata National's three subsidiaries and the terms and conditions of the purchase are subject to approval of the Boards of Directors of General Dynamics and Arcata National. It is expacted that the transaction will be completed by May 31, 1973.

Southeast Corporation

Acquires Venice Bank

MIAMI, Fla .- Southeast Banking Corporation an-Linounced that it will seek to acquire the outstanding shares of Peoples Bank of Venice, Venice, Florida. In a joint statement, Harry Hood Bassett, Southeast chairman, and Frank C. Walther, chairman of Peoples Bank id Southeast would propose to offer two shares of Southeast common stock for each of the outstanding shares of the Peoples Bank of Venice.

Bassett said that Southeast would anticipate issuing, on a fully diluted basis, an aggregate of approximately 108,000 shares of Southeast common stock in acquiring all of the outstanding shares of the Venice bank.

The acquisition is subject to approval of state and federal regulatory agencies and to certain other conditions. If approved, the offer would be made to all shareholders of the bank by prospectus only under terms of a registration statement filed with and declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The parties contemplate that the offer would be subject to acceptance by holders of at least 90 per cent of the outstanding shares of Peoples Bank.

f "business" each year. What's good for his husines sn" always so for smaller companies. In fact, says Lewis snattuck, an especially clear articulator of its views; "there s some doubt that some busiessmen ever would have gone nto business if the same envionment today existed 10 to 20 years ago."

Shattuck is executive vice president of the Smaller Business Association of New England, for 30 years one of the ost active small-busines groups, and formulator of a presentation to be presented to ongressmen May 16.

Joining in the presentation this year are the Independent Business Association of Wisconsin, and the Smaller Manufacturers Council, Pittburgh, and other groups from Ohio and New York. More are expected to join next year.

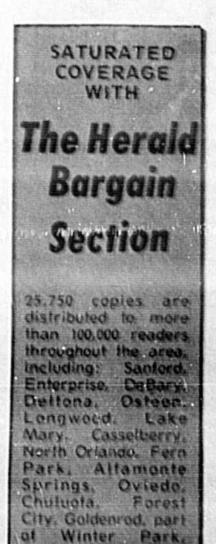

One of the four major proposals to be presented concerns paper, the usage of which once was supposed to suggest the advanced stage of society but which now threatens to clog government, the stock market, small business and other institutions.

"We ask for recognition of the fact that the paperwork requirement thrown on small business by the federal government is in some cases the extra margin that threatens to drive a small business under," SBANE

"The average small-businsss man spends some 200 hours a year completing forms, calculating and paying his taxes, and responding to various government questionaires," the presentation continues. The moral: Cut the paperwork. Cut taxes too, say the smallbusiness men.

'If a hypothetical small business earned exactly $100,000, its present taxes would amount to $41,500," the businessmen state, arguing that such a bite causes financing problems for businesses secking to expand. "If the surtax exemption were to be raised to $100,000." they continue, "that same small business would then pay income taxes of only $22,000, giving it a 33.5 per cent increase n after-tax income."

trases Polly's Problem and and and

DEAR POLLY - Last month a bad fire in our home damaged a cabinet full of beautiful china. I hope some of the readers can recommend a method for removing the black marks left on my fragile china. Only a few pieces remain intact. I also would like to attempt to piece some of it together if possible. I am afraid to tackle the dainty fragments including one bone china floral arrangement. A big china dealer had no advice to offer me. I have great hopes that some readers who may have had a similar experience can offer some suggestions .--BERNICE

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is having a clerk who is helping me, leave to take care of a telephone customer. I have inconvenienced myself to make the trip to the store and then someone calls and takes the clerk away for from five to ten minutes, which is most exasperating. I think the telephone caller should be asked to call back or hold the call. This has happened to me countless times and to my acquaintances who complain about this, too .- MRS. L. J. C.

DEAR POLLY - Mrs. L. S. can make an attractive holder for her daughter's yarn pony tail ties by using a decorative folding hat rack which can be bought at most variety stores. Spray it any desired color and designate the rack's use by tying bows of different colors around the knob ends. This also makes an inexpensive and useful gift for young friends .- KAY

DEAR POLLY - To keep pony tail yarn ties tangle free Mrs. L. S. could use egg cartons. Remove the tops but leave the bottom egg compartments intact. Roll each yarn length into a neat ball and place one color yarn in each compartment. These cartons fit and stack nicely in a drawer and do not tumble when the drawer is opened.-BONNIE

DEAR POLLY - When my daughter takes off a hair ribbon which is wrinkled, she puts it in my ironing basket instead of hanging it back on the hanger in her closet. Her ribbons are never hard to find nor wrinkled when she wants to wear them .-- MRS. J. A. F.

DEAR POLLY-My Pet Peeve is with the poultry producers who put the heart, liver, neck, etc., inside the frozen bird and then we housewives cannot get them out for cooking to make dressing. They would thaw so much faster if put in a bag that was attached to the outside of the bird. I have written to the national association of poultry producers and it might help if some more of the girls wrote, too .- MRS, M. K.

As Riggs and Lockwood explain it, today's hand gliders are descended from models NASA created, as part of the early space program. At the time, space capsules were designed to come down on land, rather than in the ocean, and reentry parachutes were built inpush that

WASHINGTON (AP) - James W. McCord, the burglar who blew the lide off the Watergate case, took the witness stand at the Senate's televised hearings today to tell his inside story of political intrigue "I will try to be as accurate as I can," McCord said McCord, convicted of burglary, wiretapping and conspiracy in the case, promised to testify fully, although he said his memory may have faded about some of the events from a year or more ago. And he said he is sorry he'd ever been mixed up in the affair. "Whatever reasons I may have had at the time, whatever rationale I may have had at the time, was in error, was a mistake, a very grave mistake, which I regret," he said.

Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr. testified today he was told President Nixon was aware of offers of clemency made to him.

Before McCord began his testimony the Senate select Watergate committee heard 23 minutes of testimony from police officer Carl Shoffler, one of three casual-clothes policemen who arrested McCord and four other men inside the headquarters of the Democratic Party in the Watergate building in the early hours of last June 17. Shoffler, saying nothing that hadn't been made

Seminole County sheriff's detectives said today that they now feel Mary Lane Pipkin, 25, of 912 W. 11th St., Sanford, was the only one involved in the theft of a $2 million train from the Sanford depot Wednesday. "More and more I'm inclined to believe she was by herself," commented Detective Tom Hennigan, commenting, "all indications lead to her being the only one involved."

By John A. Spolsk

Look, let's give you a break, O.K.? I mean how much Watergate can any of us take

So, a couple of political statements - probably meant with all sincerity at the time they were made - but absolutely ludicrous when you take the time to study 'em.

How about Senator Gurney's aides "revealing" all of those many phone calls (from all parts of the country ??) indicating they were so impressed with the Senator's opening remarks as a member of the Watergate investigation committee that he "should run for President."

Sorry ... but I can't help but remember those other surveys supporting President Nixon's mining of Haiphong (which were paid for by the Republican zealots - forgetting that this is nothing more than being fraudulent with the public).

longressman Gunter (see we show no partisan partiality) writing to Governor Askew that he should support the University of Florida in their quest for a $50,000 grant in studying the eradication of the love bugs.

Item ... about two years ago, made a formal request of the Orange-Seminole delegation on this same item. ONE KILLED AS TRUCKS HIT HEAD-ON

GERALD NOLAN SPARKMAN, 30, of Sumterville, was killed in an accident near his home early Thursday morning. Florida Highway Patrol Troopers C.C. Hall and Sam Jones said the man was southbound on U.S. 301 about .3 mile north of Sumterville and was traveling on the wrong side of the road at a high rate of speed, according to witnesses. The truck hit a semi-truck head-on, after the semi driver swerved to the left to avoid a collision and Sparkman reportedly cut right to the center of the road. It was Sumter County's ninth fatality of the year.

that McCord's testimony would proluce some new disclosures.

McCord, a retired 19-year veteran of the CIA broke the wall of silence that protected the high levels of government from being drawn into the scandal

He had held his tongue with the others after being caught in the act of burgling and bugging Democratic headquarters in the Watergate office building last June 17, But, as McCord stood before the bench in March to be sentenced for his crimes, Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J Sirica read a letter from the convicted man with three terse paragraphs of allegations.

McCord said political pressure was applied to the defendants to plead guilty and remain silent; perjury was committed by witnesses, and others involved in the spy mission had not been identified when they could have been during the trial.
