Miscellaneous Shower

One of the prettiest entertainments being given for Miss Mabel Hand was the miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Eva Walker Tuesday afternoon, at which the young ladies of St. Agnes Guild were hostesses and guests alike.

The color motif of pink and green was beautifully carried out with quantities of roses, hibiscus, Love's sweet and the graceful vine of the star jessamine. In the reception hall the balustrade was entwined with vines and Love's wreath while the mantel was festooned with masses of the pretty flower, trailing sprays of asparagus fern giving a relieving touch of green. The doors and windows were festooned with vines, potted plants and cut flowers over which the pink shaded lights casting the roseate glow of the early dawn completed the artistic effect.

In the dining room a beautiful Battenburg tea cloth covered the table, centered by a green basket of pink roses and hyacinths.

Over a bank of ferns in one corner of the parlor a pink spider web had been woven, to the cords of which the gifts were tied and concealed in various parts of the house, creating much merriment as the unwinding progressed, and Miss Hand was followed from place to place by the merry group of girls, in her search for the gifts. When opened each package contained an original little rhyme telling Miss Hand what was expected of her.

Upon her arrival she was met by the guests and escorted by Miss Madeline Hill, impersonating the groom, into the parlor, to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Lucille Aspinwall. Before the spider web, a mock marriage ceremony was performed by Miss Frances Aspinwall, to the delight and merriment of the gay young people.

There were many lovely gifts and delicious refreshments of pink and white ice cream bricks and white cake tied in pink.

Those invited were Misses Mabel and Charlotte Hand, Madeline Hill, Lucille and Frances Aspinwall, Agnes Renfro, Saidee Williams, Josie and Junie Stumon, Ruth Mettinger, Zoe Munson, Genie Wicker, Ruby Betts, Linda Lessler, Elizabeth and Anna McLaughlin and Eva Walker.

New Smyrna Club Meeting

Mrs. Henry Wight, Mrs. L. W. Dickins and Mrs. A. W. Fitts, Jr., went over Monday to New Smyrna to be present at the meeting of the Woman's Club, where Mrs. Hocker and Mrs. Wight have been invited to take part on the program. The ride through the country in the early morning, to Daytona was a joy and delight. At Daytona, Mrs. William Hocker, president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs joined the party and the pleasant drive was continued to New Smyrna, where they were delightfully entertained by Mrs. L. P. Bouchelle and the New Smyrna Club. Mrs. Bouchelle was the gracious hostess at a very charming luncheon in honor of Mrs. Hocker and the visiting ladies. The table with its handsome crochet luncheon set, centered by a beautiful silver vase, filled with autumn leaves, its gleaming silver and sparkling cut glass was very attractive and lovely. A delicious six course luncheon was served. Enjoying Mrs. Bouchelle's hospitality were Mrs. Wm. Hocker of Ocala; Mrs. H. L. Hood, president of the New Smyrna Club, Mrs. Cora Wilson of New Smyrna, Mrs. Hopkins of Jacksonville and Mesdames Wight, Dickins and Fitts of Sanford.

Repairing to the club rooms after luncheon the visitors were cordially welcomed by the New Smyrna Club. Mrs. H. L. Hood conducted the meeting and introduced the speakers of the afternoon in a most gracious and pleasing manner.

Mrs. Hocker made a very fine talk on the "State Federation Work, as a Part of the Individual Club" that was bright and inspiring.

The "Sphere of the Woman's Clubs in Small Towns" was the interesting subject of a splendid paper given by Mrs. Wight.

Upon request Mrs. Dickins told of the rose meetings and the City Beautiful Ball and touched upon the binding together in a common interest the club women of Sanford in these social gatherings.

Mrs. H. H. Sams gave a resume of the work of the New Smyrna Club, since its organization, showing a splendid activity.

Mrs. E. L. Greer rendered a number of fine selections on the piano and the meeting came to a close with a most enjoyable social hour. The Sanford ladies returned home with the conviction that the New Smyrna Club, officers and members are royal hosts and are quite appreciative of the cordial welcome, the kindly hospitality and courteous attentions showered upon them.

For Visitor

Among the very pleasant social affairs of the week was a delightfully informal neighborhood party, at which Mrs. Ray Butts was the gracious hostess, in honor of Miss Pearl Stallings of Leesburg.

Amusing and entertaining guessing contests were greatly enjoyed. In the flower contest, Miss Pearl Stallings won first prize, a handsome box of fine chocolate bonbons. Mrs. Terheun won the consolation prize, a box of fine stationery. The hooby prize fell to Mr. John Minnerick, who failed to guess even one question. Mr. Robt. Walthour made highest score on his original hits at the newspaper fraternity.

Vera Terheun assisted in serving the delicious pineapple sherbet and dainty cakes. Enjoying Mrs. Butts' hospitality besides Miss Stallings were Mesdames Anna Walker, R. A. Terhoun, Misses Eva Walker, Elizabeth Strange, Vera Terheun; Messrs F. P. Strange, Bob Walthour, Harry Walker, John Minnerick, Joe Matthews, Frank Adams, W. V. Hull and Fleetwood Joiner.

A Pretty Luncheon

Miss Ruth Mettinger, who is home on a vacation from St. Timothy's Hospital, Philadelphia, was the attractive young honoree at a beautiful luncheon given by Mrs. W. L. Morgan Thursday afternoon. Red and green featured the decorations, confined to the dining room which was very lovely with its ferns and flowers, and silver candelabra and red shades, placed about the room.

Resting upon a dainty crochet centerpiece was a basket of ferns and red hibiscus, surrounded by silver candelabra with their red shades, the green and red blending harmoniously with the handsome white cover. From the ceiling were ropes of blossoming asparagus fern reaching to the corners of the table. The electric lights shaded in red shed a soft radiance upon the table. The place cards were hand painted red roses and the favors were Japanese green woven baskets filled with coral flower and ferns, tied with red satin bows.

A tempting five course luncheon was served, the tones of the color motif being carried out effectively in the menu.

Invited to meet Miss Mettinger were Mesdames R. C. Bower, Eugene Laramote, George Bishop, D. C. Marlowe and Misses Martha Fox, Mabel and Charlotte Hand.

Pretty Home Wedding

A home wedding of unusual beauty was celebrated on the 21st of Miss Forrest Gatchel, which took place last evening. The plan of the lower floor with the rooms opening one into the other was beautifully adapted to such an occasion.

The colors of the wedding were green and gold, charmingly carried out in rich masses of goldenrod, ferns and the graceful vines of the starry white jessamine. In the large reception hall, where the beautiful gifts were displayed, vines and goldenrod-entwined the balustrade and festooned the windows and doors, masses of goldenrod placed here and there completing the effect. Across one corner of the drawing room, a lovely arch had been erected, graceful and lovely with its trailing sprays of jessamine, behind which a bank of ferns formed the altar. From the center of the arch hung a big white wedding bell from which was suspended a gold ring. The dining room was particularly beautiful. From the center above the table, ribbons of gold entwined with green extended to the corners of the room, which was aglow with masses of yellow daisies. The center of the table was adorned with a bowl of the bell shaped almander. The handsome punch bowl was placed in an alcove of the reception hall, festooned in vines and goldenrod.

Preceding the coming of the bridal party Miss Margaret Davis at the piano rendered very beautifully, "O Promise Me" and "Traumerel" and softly played "O Perfect Day" during the ceremony.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus the bridal party descended the stairway. The bridesmaids, Miss Edith Stewart with Miss Mary Gatchel, Miss Ruby Betts with Miss Mary Simms entered, first passing through the reception hall to the drawing room. They were followed by two little flower girls, Virgie Horne Hyman and Helen Chapman, carrying pretty baskets of rose petals which they scattered in the path of the bride and groom, entering together. The party grouped about the arch and the beautiful ring ceremony was performed by Rev. George Hyman. Immediately preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Ernest Betts sweetly sang, "I Love You Truly."

The bride was very lovely in her wedding gown of white charmeuse, which she wore over a long dress, the bodice arranged at the neck with full soft lace, the drapery and bodice garnitured in pearl beads. Over the gown fell the long veil of tulle which was becomingly arranged to fit closely about the face in cap effect and confined with a wreath of lilies of the valley. The bride carried an arm bouquet of white roses and asparagus fern.

The four bridesmaids were gowned alike in pink crepe de chine over a skirt of white lace flounces. The bodices had short sleeves and were cut low at the neck. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

The dear little flower girls wore dainty white frocks and pink ribbons.

The bride's mother was gowned in a grey crepe de chine.

An informal reception followed the ceremony and the bride's cake was cut at the prettily decorated table.

Miss Marie Stewart presided at the punch bowl and those assisting in serving were Mrs. Lovell, sister of the groom and Misses Minnie Stewart, Jimmie Laing and Clara Millen.

Mr. and Mrs. Gatchel left last night on their wedding trip to North Carolina. The bride's going away gown was a tailored suit of Copenhagen blue broadcloth. The smart little hat was black velvet, trimmed with blue wings.

The wedding presents were of cut glass, silver, dainty china and linens, and attractively displayed in the reception hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Gatchel will spend several weeks in the mountains and will begin housekeeping upon their return.

Mrs. Gatchel is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Stewart. Mr. Gatchel is a successful young business man, a member of the firm of Gatchel & Son.

Heart Shower

Marked by a beautiful simplicity, attractive and charming was the heart shower given by Mrs. Robt. Holly for Miss Mabel Hand yesterday at her pretty home on the Heights. Festoons of pretty drooping ferns were used effectively with strings of red hearts, joined together with red cords, prettily carrying out the green and red tones of the color scheme. Outlined by small hearts on the window draperies were larger hearts, while the shades over the lights were made of red hearts. Portieres of red hearts draped the doors and hung in the alcove of the reception hall.

The round table in the dining room was covered by a beautiful tea cloth of linen edged with crochet, the centerpiece of crochet being worked in, over a red silk lining. Ropes of ferns amidst the foliage of which red hearts peeped here and there. In the center of the table was a lovely basket of ferns and red hibiscus, surrounded by red shaded candelabra.

An artist contest was delightfully amusing. The guests were handed white cards to which were attached red pencils and told to draw the article named at the top of the card. These were articles of the bride's trousseau and members of the bridal party. Bursts of happy laughter followed the efforts at drawing. To Mrs. Geo. Davis Hart fell the prize, a lovely vase, whose drawing of the bride's trunk was voted by the guests to be the best.

The favors were red hearts with fortunes written upon them and clipped from a string by the blindfolded.

DRAINAGE DISTRICT IS ESTABLISHED

TRACT OF LAND BONDED CONTAINS 265,000 ACRES AND INCLUDES UPPER ST. JOHNS RIVER

Judge Daniel A. Simmóha yesterday signed the decree formally and legally forming, establishing and organizing the Upper St. Johns Drainage District, a public corporation of Florida, to exist for the term of thirty years from the date of the decree.

The new drainage district contains 265,000 acres of land, more or less, being a tract 42 miles long from north to south, and some 22 miles wide, situated, lying and being in the counties of Orange, Osceola and Brevard.

Vans Agnew and Crawford were the solicitors for the petitioners who constituted practically every land owner in the district.

The decree was granted after fulfillment of the conditions prescribed in chapter 6458, of the Laws of the State of Florida, Acts of 1913.

An election will be called for October 28, at which time property owners will vote on the selection of trustees for the upper St. Johns Drainage District. Votes will be allowed, one for every acre owned, making a total of 265,000 votes to be cast.

Isham Randolph, consulting engineers, Jacksonville-Chicago, made the surveys and prepared the report on which the drainage district was finally established.

Valuable Acreage

By the formation of this drainage district a large and valuable acreage in Florida between lines drawn westward from Hardeville and from Sebastian, and from the eastern rim of the St. Johns watershed, westward to the St. Johns river, will, by drainage, become available for habitation and cultivation.

The plans call for main canals from three great basins to the ocean, namely from Lake Winder, Lake Worthington, and Lake Poinsett, with connecting and lateral canals covering the territory in such manner as to dry permanently and successfully the lands within the district.

The estimate of the cost is not yet worked out, but the preliminary investigations and figures show that it can be done at a figure less per acre than almost any other such project yet undertaken in this country. Bonds will, of course, be voted later, and issued as money is needed to prosecute the work, but it is not proposed in the immediate present to undertake this, owing to financially unsettled conditions because of the European war. The whole matter will be left to the trustees of the drainage district to be elected in October.—Times-Union.

Free Trip to Frisco

Mrs. Hazel Powell Stevenson was in Sanford Saturday in the interest of the sale of the Florida Dollar, the souvenir coin which is being sold by the Florida Panama-Pacific exposition commission to obtain funds for a Florida exhibit at San Francisco. Four young ladies, one from each congressional district of Florida will be given railroad and Pullman tickets for selling the largest number of these coins. The young lady of the four who sells the largest number will be given a hundred dollars in cash besides her fare. In addition to these inducements a commission of ten per cent is paid on all sales. Mrs. Stevenson thinks that this should be sufficient to induce young ladies to take an interest in the contest to say nothing of the real object of the contest, which is to have a Florida exhibit at San Francisco.

THE SANFORD CITY SCHOOLS OPENED YESTERDAY MORNING

WAS A MOST AUSPICIOUS OCCASION WITH NEW PRECEPTORS AND THE LARGEST ENROLLMENT OF PUPILS IN THE HISTORY OF THE SCHOOLS—ADDRESSES BY PROMINENT CITIZENS

Yesterday was an epoch in Sanford's history not only with the school children but with the parents and all the patrons of the schools, marking as it did the beginning of another school term. All of the schools opened on time and the scholars were assigned to their respective places, the teachers working with precision and with no confusion of any kind.

Promptly at ten o'clock a goodly number had assembled at the auditorium of the high school where appropriate exercises were to mark the opening of the schools.

The teachers and scholars of the high school and several grades of the grammar school were present besides many parents and patrons of the school. On the platform were D. L. Thrasher, county superintendent of Public Instruction, Prof. Ezell, superintendent of Sanford City Schools, F. P. Forster and S. C. Dickson of the County School Board, B. F. Whitner, S. Range and H. R. Stevens of the District School Board, C. R. Walker, former member of the School Board, R. J. Holly, Rev.

Mr. Thrasher then announced that on account of the late appearance of Dr. Thackston who was to address the audience that he would call on several of the gentlemen who were on the platform and began with Rev. Steinmeyer of the Methodist church who gave a short talk on the schools, followed by Rev. Peck, rector of the Episcopal church, Rev. Strong of the Congregational church, Dr. Brownlee of the Presbyterian church and Rev. Hyman of the Baptist church.

Prof. Ezell was then announced and the new superintendent of the city schools created a most favorable impression as he stepped forward and gave a brief outline of his past and future endeavors in the educational field and his work in Sanford schools as he saw it. Prof. Ezell remarked that as Dr. Thackston had not yet arrived that he wanted to hear from other gentlemen present and suggested Hon. F. P. Forster of the county school board. Mr. Forster is never at a loss for words and his address demonstrated that his best efforts will be was not disappointed. Space will not permit giving the full text of this stirring appeal to pupil and teacher and parents made by a man who has given many years of his life to school work.

One of the strong points of Dr. Thackston's address was the idea that a pupil in school should make up their minds at least after they reach the high school as to their future career and not seek an education with no definite plans in their minds or have no idea of their chosen profession or life work. That they should not waste their time in wanting this position or that position already filled but create their own positions and only with a good education could they hope to create a position in the world and succeed in life. It is to be regretted that more of the patrons of the school were not present to hear this able exponent of the schools and those present were sorry that his time was limited and he was forced to cut his address short.

After Dr. Thackston's address Dr. Brownlee dismissed the meeting the eighth grade and finally the high school proper, for pupils through the twelfth grade.

The primary building is of wood construction, conveniently arranged and located, with a valuation of about $4,000. The grammar school building is of brick, fairly well equipped and amply able to accommodate about 500 pupils. This building is valued at from $25,000 to $30,000. This high school building itself is a thoroughly modern buff brick structure, equipped with all of the most up to date conveniences of the 20th century school house and is valued at about $35,000.

HON. D. L. THRASHER Superintendent of Public Instruction of Seminole County

Thirty-five teachers are employed in the various white schools of the county at salaries ranging from $40 to $225 per month, a very excellent showing in this respect.

Eight colored schools are maintained in Seminole county, with an attendance of 586 pupils and giving employment to 17 negro teachers at a salary of from $30 to $90 per month.

The cities of Sanford and the towns of Oviedo, Chuluota, Longwood and Geneva are all special school districts, with a 3 mill tax which is used locally for school purposes, thus enabling these communities to maintain better school buildings than would otherwise be possible, but on the whole the standard of excellence throughout the county is highly satisfactory.

The personnel of the Board of Public Instruction is as follows: F. P. Forster, chairman; S. C. Dickson and J. T. Jacobs, while the supervision of the entire educational department of the county is in charge of D. L. Thrasher, superintendent of Public Instruction.

used in building up the schools of Seminole county.

He was followed by R. J. Holly, editor of the Sanford Herald and before he had finished Dr. Thackston arrived and was escorted to the platform. Although he was late he was better than ever and being introduced by Mr. Thrasher launched into his address with a vigor that awakened interest in an audience that expected something good and with a prayer and the exercises closed upon a most auspicious opening of the Sanford City Schools.

Eleven white schools with a total attendance of 892 pupils are in operation in Seminole county, three of these, including a high school, being located in the city of Sanford. NEWS FROM THE THEATRE OF WAR

London, Tuesday, 11 a. m.—Report from Ostend right wing of Germans in retreat, leaving dead and wounded. Allies centre holding firm.

Rome, Tuesday 11 a. m.—The fall of Tarnow reported. Budepest menaced.

Summary of War For three days without cessation the Germans have hurled their masses against the French and English along the entire front in Northern France. The French official view is that these operations, the fiercest yet that have taken place, are by high command, meaning possibly direct instructions from the Emperor himself. Their purpose has been to break through the allied lines, but both French and British official reports say they have failed. From Paris it is announced that not only have the Germans been able to achieve their object, but they have lost a flag, guns and men in the attempt.

The British as usual are laconic. "The situation is satisfactory," the report reads, "and the counter attacks on the British front have been beaten back with heavy losses to the enemy."

The bayonet has played an important part in these engagements, where men in the trenches on the one side or the other, only a few hundred yards apart, come to grips with steel after the positions have been shelled and raked with rifle fire.

The French claim appreciable progress on the left wing and a decisive victory over the famous Prussian guard in the center. Of the Woevre district, where the Germans have made gains in the last two or three days, little is said. One of the remarkable things in this great battle which has entered upon its sixteenth day, is the spirit maintained by the troops. British, French and Germans have withstood the most terrific shelling the world has ever known, an almost constant rain of rifle bullets and hand to hand encounters with gun and bayonet, but all reports agree that they are fighting with the same determination and tenacity as in the beginning and that even the commanders in some cases are having difficulty in holding their men back.

The German general staff, by way of Berlin, reports that the allies are using their railroads in a general attack on the extreme end of the right flank of the German army. The general staff also reports slight gains on the center of the battle front and an engagement with artillery south of Verdun.

The German casualty list, as adopted officially from Berlin, numbers 104,689 up to date, of whom 16,674 are dead; 65,907 wounded and 23,007 missing.

In the Far East according to Japanese reports the Japanese have defeated the Germans on the outskirts of Tsingtau, capital of the German protectorate of Kiaochow. Though the battle lasted only fourteen hours the losses so far as known were small.

German Zeppelin have dropped bombs on Belgian towns, a German aeroplane has paid another visit to Paris, dropping explosives in its flight, while a Zeppelin also has appeared above the city of Warsaw.

The German Emperor is reported suffering from inflammation of the lungs. Only a day or two ago, his fifth son, Prince Oscar, was obliged to withdraw from his regiment and is being treated for a heart affection, the result of over exertion.

FOOD LAW AMENDED AND NOW IN EFFECT

ALL PACKAGES OF FOOD MUST GIVE CONTENTS, WEIGHT AND DATE IN FUTURE

Hereafter all packages of food packed in the United States and sold to the public must bear on the outside a statement of the quantity of contents in terms of weight, measure or numerical count. The law requiring this is an amendment of the food and drug act and was passed March 3rd, 1913, with the provision that it should not become effective for eighteen months.

Thus, September 3 was the date on which the packages were to be given their labels, and the purchaser who wants fresh stock can readily see by scrutinizing the information on the packages he buys he will be able to see whether they are packed before or since that date.

Goods packed previous to September 3 are not to be thrown out of stock, but when they are sold or disposed of there will be no more unmarked packages to take their place and the public will be protected better against false weights and false counts of the "original packages."

It pays for housewives to know something of these laws. It pays for housewives to keep reliable scales in their kitchens and a standard quart cup and other measures. There are few merchants who are either dishonest or impolite enough to give short weight, but sometimes the concerns from which the "original packages" come, need watching.

To Equalize Railroad Rates

Congressman Frank Clark has introduced the following bill, which was referred to the committee on interstate and foreign commerce and ordered to be printed:

Section 1. To equalize transportation rates on vegetables, citrus fruits and other fruits transported from one state to another state of the United States.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that immediately upon this act becoming a law it shall be the duty of the Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States to fix as entirely new schedule of rates for the transportation of vegetables, citrus fruits, and other fruits, from one state to another state of the United States on a mileage basis. That is to say, the said commission shall fix a uniform rate over all the common carrier railroads of the United States on packages of certain dimensions or of certain weight as the case may be for the same distance carried from the initial point of shipment.

Section 2. That the said commission shall likewise fix rates for express companies, steamship lines, and other common carriers of freight between the different states of the Union.

Sec. 3. That the Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby given full authority and it is hereby made the express duty of said commission to make and promulgate all necessary rules, regulations, and orders to carry this act into effect, it being the intent and purpose of this act to so equalize transportation rates on vegetables, citrus fruits and other fruits by railroads, express companies, steamship lines, and other common carriers, as that the rates on such products will be the same in all parts of the country for the same distance carried.

Sec. 4. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act shall be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 5. That this act shall take effect immediately upon its passage and approval by the President, or upon becoming a law without such approval.

Ivey—Goodson

The following announcement has been received by several Sanford people. George Ivey is well known in this city where he has resided several years:

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Goodson, 14 Bullock Street, Montgomery, Ala., announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Ida Azalea Benton to Mr. George Barnett Ivey, manager Postal Telegraph Co., Tuskegee, Alabama. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Ivey at home, 209 W. Church St., Tuskegee, Ala., October, 5th, 1914.

THE SIN OF SICKNESS

To the average mental capacity the classification of sickness as a moral offence against society must appear the product of a disordered brain.

Certainly illness is a misfortune, some of it is more than that; some diseases catch us by accident, unpreventable accident which no precaution can guard against, and some are clearly avoidable. Our grandmothers used to regard a rather long list of children's diseases as inevitable, and they deliberately tried to time the period of their visitations to their young broods at such intervals in their busy lives when they themselves might most conveniently nurse the youngsters. The more serious diseases, which sometimes resulted fatally, they considered as visitations of an all-wise but mysterious Providence.

They didn't know any better. We do. Medical science in those days hadn't advanced to the stage where the doctor's mission was quite as much to prevent as to cure disease. The idea of advising with the family to preserve health, when it was already perfect, would have seemed a shocking waste of time and money. The science of keeping clean, medically clean, the science of sanitation, hadn't been born then. Now we realize that it is the most efficient weapon for the preservation of physical strength and health.

To be well, to stay well, is a moral duty in so far as it can be accomplished through an acquaintance with recognized laws by which we know disease is spread from an infected source. Such knowledge is available even to the ignorant from authoritative investigation.

We moderns have learned that it is not necessary for any one to have typhoid fever, malaria, smallpox, even tuberculosis, because we have learned how these diseases are communicated, and how they develop. Knowing these fundamental facts we may, all of us if we will, avoid them. We have no infallible cures for the advanced stages of these diseases, but we have methods that ward them off altogether, and who can dispute the assertion that it is a moral obligation to use them?

It is a duty that we owe ourselves, our families and those with whom we are intimately associated, for our comfort and theirs. We owe it to the neighbors, the community and the state, for every man owes it to all the rest that he shall always be at his highest point of efficiency as a producer. The prosperity of the community depends upon the best efforts of each individual and it becomes a patriotic debt.

Even the measles and the whooping cough and those other plagues of childhood may be, avoided and if we will we may avoid them. They are not necessary and it isn't playing fair with the youngsters to permit or enforce the ordeal upon them. They can't help themselves. We can protect them and we should.

The sick man is the useless man—yet not quite useless for he serves as an example to the community of the result of neglecting a plain duty. He who is disabled by illness is no longer a producer, he becomes an expense, a drag upon his friends, an actual drawback to the general prosperity.

The gospel of good health is next to the gospel of Christianity—even a part of it. Ill health is not ordinarily or often conducive to a lofty morality and as a part of our code of ethics, if we will not admit it as a part of our practical every-day religion, it should guide us to better living.

The basic fact remains, whether we make it a part of our religion or merely a matter of economics, that we have no right, no need, to suffer from preventable diseases.

An Ohio Farm in Florida Representative Frank Clark of Florida never loses an opportunity to impress his colleagues in the House with the great resources of his state, the superior climate, and the many opportunities offered for the investment of capital. Whenever Mr. Clark is visited by a constituent, says the Washington Post, he encourages the latter to talk in glowing language of the greatness of Florida. Recently Mr. Clark was conducting about the city J. D. Rooney, secretary of the State Board of Trade and chairman of the Florida Vegetable Marketing Bureau.

At Congress Hall Mr. Clark and his constituent joined a party of members, among whom was Representative Bathrick of Ohio. Mr. Rooney took the first opportunity to launch into a panegyric of his state. He addressed the conversation particularly to Mr. Bathrick.

"Now, in Florida we can produce the finest Irish potatoes in the world," said Mr. Rooney.

"Oh, so can I, on my farm," returned Mr. Bathrick.

"We can raise the finest oranges in the world," continued Mr. Rooney. "So can I on my farm," said Mr. Bathrick.

"There is no grapefruit on earth that can compare with the grapefruit raised on my farm in Florida," persisted Mr. Rooney.

"Not any better than I can raise on my farm," averred Mr. Bathrick. Mr. Rooney was beginning to get nettled. That a member of Congress from Ohio should insist that he could raise in his farm the same quality of tropical fruits that could be produced in Florida was amazing him.

Mr. Rooney began to sputter and get angry, when Representative Clark moved quietly up behind him, and pulling his cocktail remarked in a low tone:

"Lay off, Rooney, and shut up—Bathrick owns one of the finest farms in Florida."

EXPRESS RATES PROHIBITIVE

FLORIDA GROWERS CANNOT REAP ANY BENEFITS WHILE RATES ARE UNREASONABLE

(J. F. O'BERRY, IN ST. CLOUD TRIBUNE)

As the shipping season for fruits and vegetables approaches it makes us sit up and take notice.

First, we must consider the material to ship in, and the cost of it; then we must consult the express man and he tells us he is sorry the rates are nearly double what they were last year but that he is powerless to help; that the Interstate Commerce Commission fixes the rates and there is no redress. So we find ourselves up against it good and hard.

Now, in order to know where we are let's go to the express office. Say you ship a crate of eggplant to New York. The express on the crate is $1.42 1/2. Say it sells for $2.50; the commission is 25 cents; crate, nails and paper is 25 cents more (which is a low figure for this item) and with a cost of 50 cents to grow and pick and paper is 25 cents more (which is cost of $2.43. Where is your profit?

Some will say that 50 cents is too high an estimate of the cost to produce, pick and pack that crate; yet you have the extra cost of hauling to the shipping point, which we did not consider, and this year it will cost more to raise a crate of vegetables than it ever has, as the price of fertilizer is much higher than ever before with chemical contents lowered.

And don't get fooled by this new express rate. Some people think it is by the hundred pounds instead of by the crate. The old rate to New York was 87 cents, and only a few cents difference to all of the eastern cities. Now it is $1.42 1/2 per crate and a crate has always been rated at from 40 to 50 pounds.

It seems that the express companies are killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

Some say let's ship in carload lots. That is all right where it can be done, but what are we going to do with the fruits and vegetables up to a time that a sufficient quantity is grown to do this? We find the little farmer all over the country and we find him with from one to a dozen crates of fruits and vegetables when his fruit first commences to mature. At the same time there is still in the northern markets the "home grown" produce—probably not nearly so good as the Florida grown because the first crop on the vines are always the best, but that old "home grown" stuff depreciates the market to some extent. In other words, the northern trucker has a frost warning from the government then he goes to work and picks all he can, big and little, and rushes it on the market. That has to all be cleaned up before we can get much for our vegetables, so you can readily see that with the exorbitant express rates it is impossible to ship our crops until the market prices get very high.

The railroads send out all sorts of literature and inducements to get people to come to Florida, and the papers all over the state are boosting Florida and urging people to come, but the question is; what can the farmer do, with these things confronting him?

The stuff can be grown in Florida—more than the roads can handle—but the question arises: "What can we do with it when we raise it?" The result is that a lot of the new people come in, spend all they have for a farm, then can't get anything for what they raise. They go back north and knock Florida. We have the finest country the sun ever shone on, as healthful as any state in the Union, so why this dissatisfaction?

Let's look at it in a sensible way. There are millions of people in the north who want our fruit and vegetables but can't eat them. Why? Because of the exorbitant express rates. If we could get a crate of beans to New York for 50 cents express that had cost 60 cents to grow, pick and pack, allow the commission man 25 cents and you have the cost of $1.35. If the rate sold for $2.50, that would be a reasonable figure and would give the grower $1.15 profit. But we can't do that. If we could put vegetables and fruit in the market at a reasonable price so the masses could eat them we could not raise enough to go around. If we could sell tomatoes or eggplant for $2.50 to $3.00 we could sell four or five times as many as we can at $4 or $5; because only the rich can afford to eat them at that price. So you see if we had a reasonable express rate, we could grow more, the roads would get four times as much to haul, and the consumption would be greater because the stuff would be cheaper.

The only thing, as I see it, is for the growers to ship in refrigerator cars and make up car load lots of mixed vegetables, consigning them to the various commission houses in the same city, and making sure that the product is put up in neat, well-filled and graded packages, as it does not pay to ship shoddy goods to the northern and eastern markets. That is going to be one difficulty with car lot shipments. There are so many people who don't know how to pack and grade their stuff. If a package or crate leaves here three-fourths filled, what can it be expected to look like when it reaches New York? It is impossible for your commission man to get a good price for stuff that does not show up well, but a good well graded package makes a satisfied customer who will call for your brand again.

What we farmers want now is for the papers all over the state to take up this rate business, go after it tooth and tongue, and have the nerve and backbone to stand up for the man who tills the soil. Think of it—the king on the throne as well as the lowest serf, must go down to the farm for what he eats and wears. Remember that when the farmer is in hard luck the whole country feels the effect of it. Take a city with a prosperous farming element around it, and you will see a prosperous city every time.

Resolutions of Respect Castle Hall Phoenix Lodge, Knights of Pythias, Sept. 22nd, 1914

Whereas, Our well beloved brother George H. Fernald has been taken from us by the hand of death and our lodge room has been turned into a place of mourning, be it

Resolved, that in his death this lodge has sustained an irreparable loss and Pythianism has lost a bright exponent of the virtues we profess, for in his life we had always before us the embodiment of Friendship, Charity and Benevolence, which are the pillars of the Order.

Resolved, that we adopt as our example the cheerful, manly fidelity which our departed brother always exemplified during the twenty eight years of his membership, which he began as a charter member in 1886; Resolved, that we hereby tender to Mrs. Fernald our heartfelt sympathy, with the assurance to her that in this lodge she shall always have a band of friends who will gladly serve her at all times.

Resolved, that as a testimonial of esteem a copy of these resolutions be properly inscribed and sent to Mrs. Fernald; a copy be sent the press and a page in our record book be inscribed to his memory and these resolutions spread upon our minutes.

Always Easy to Get Spies.

It is an international law, but an unwritten one, that a sovereign cannot lawfully require a subject to serve as a spy, except in a singular case, and that of the last importance. Nevertheless, no country will ever lack spies, for the work that is required of them is so adventurous and so well paid that thousands of men would jump at the opportunity to become a secret service agent.

HERBINE

For the Bowels

A Cure for Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver and Irregular Bowel Movements.

Constipation is the most common disorder of the bowels. It affects both sexes and all ages but is more prevalent among women because their duties in the household require less physical exercise than the occupations of men; therefore women suffer most from its baneful effect.

A constipated person is an easy victim when exposed to any serious disease—Pneumonia, Typhoid Fever, Malaria, Rheumatism, Small Pox, Yellow Fever and Bright's Disease gather their annual harvest of death among those who are habitually constipated. Even though they escape these diseases, such persons are always ailing more or less. They have headaches, bad digestion, dizziness, vertigo (blind staggers), sallow complexion, flatulence, loss of strength; and no energy at all. Herbine has a most admirable effect in the bowels; it is cooling, purifying and regulating. It puts a prompt check on biliousness, wind in the bowels, nervousness, heartburn, bad breath, low spirits, drowsiness in the daytime and nervous wakefulness at night.

Wireless Telegraphy In the European War Plays Important Part

IT would be difficult to estimate the part wireless telegraphy is playing in the European war. The destruction of telegraph lines and cable lines which crippled communication in previous conflicts and isolated vast sections no longer counts. When proper toll shall be taken of the results of the present collision of nations the creditable of the ledger will carry the service to commerce of the wireless messages which have been flashing to steamships and from steamships to land since hostilities began.

The huge stations capable of sending messages 400 miles and more are controlled by the nations engaged in the conflict. Of these Germany has three—at Helgoland, from which Germany is in communication with its fleet; Danzig, Norddeich and Swinemünde. There are a number of German stations of smaller range—the Bremerhaven, Barkum, Bulk, Cuxhaven and Sassnitz, averaging about a hundred miles of range and having been servicable in saving many German boats from capture when war seemed imminent.

France has a station of tremendous range in the Eiffel tower, which was ideal from the first for the transmission and reception of messages. It is a means of communication with the French fleet in the Mediterranean. In addition there are at least six locations with a range over 350 miles—at Brest, Cherbourg, Dunkerque, Rochefort, St. Marles de la Mer and Quessant.

Little can be gleaned regarding the range of Russia's stations. These are scattered over Baltic sea points, the gulf of Riga and the gulf of Finland. The average range is believed to be 100 miles.

Great Britain's important naval and commercial interests have forced the installation of numerous and powerful stations. Twenty have a range of over 60 miles; thirty more can transmit 300 miles. Her warships carry apparatus with 300 miles' capacity.

Austria-Hungary's four stations at Pola, Castelnuovo, Sebenico and Trieste average about 400 miles.

Communication is going on constantly between France and Russia through the Eiffel tower and Moscow and St. Petersburg. Attempted interference by one hostile nation with another's messages have proved futile because it has seriously interfered with its own service. In the case of the Eiffel tower apparatus its electric waves are so peculiar that only special instruments can harmonize with them.

The stealing of messages by the enemy is, in the case of most stations, rendered impossible by a process called "dining." An apparatus is turned on to receive and send electric waves of certain rapidity and length. Just as a tuning fork can be made to sound when a tuning fork of the same pitch is sounded near it. This, supplemented by an arrangement of codes, eliminates the dangers of tapped messages.

The value of the Marconi equipments in this direction was proved in the Balkan war. In all Marconi stations secrecy is secured by a change of electric wave length at stated periods, so that any one who is cutting in would be utterly confused.

In the present war the portable wireless has been of use in keeping various points of the armies in constant contact, no matter how separated. This has resulted in quicker and more certain movements of bodies of men. The portable apparatus can be secreted, and spies have put it into tree tops at night and wireless to awaiting commanders at distant points.

Ancient City of Malines; Cardinal Mercier, Primate, Deplores Bombardment

CARDINAL MERCIER, primate of Belgium and archbishop of Malines, one of the cities devastated by the German forces, had a difficult time in returning from Rome to Belgium.

Because the cardinal had refused to give a denial to the charges of German atrocities in Belgium the Kaiser's envoy in Rome had rejected his request for a safe conduct back to his archdiocese after the papal conclave, so he was compelled to return through England.

In England the Primate showed the occasion of showing their sympathy for Belgium by inaugurating a huge procession which was reviewed by the cardinal, who sat on a balcony with John Redmond on his right and T. P. O'Connor on his left. The procession numbered more than 50,000. Later the cardinal was warmly welcomed upon his arrival at Malines by the burgomaster and citizens of the town. He expressed great grief at the sight of many damaged houses.

It was during the cardinal's absence from Malines and while he was attending the conclave for the election of a new pope that Malines was attacked by the Germans. The city in a sense is the religious capital of Belgium and is situated on the Wye river about halfway between Antwerp and Brussels. It has a population of about 70,000. It gave the name to mechin lace, for the making of which Malines was once famous. It is one of the busiest railroad centers of Belgium, the lines from Antwerp to Brussels and from Ghent to Liege crossing there. It has had a somewhat troubled history. During the religious troubles of the sixteenth century it was sacked. During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries it was captured in turn by the French, Dutch and English. The French finally removed the fortifications in 1804, since which time the city has been unfortified.

The city is also called Mechlin. Its ancient walls and most have been replaced by a wide boulevard and canal, the streets are wide and regular, and the city has the squares and public buildings of its numerous fine churches St. Rombaud's is the most noteworthy—a vast Gothic structure adorned in the interior with many fine paintings. The manufacture of lace and cloth which flourished in the former centuries has been largely transferred to Brussels.

It was at first reported that Malines had been greatly damaged by the recent bombardment it suffered, but later reports have corrected this impression. It has been visited by a correspondent of the London Chronicle, who sent the following dispatch to his paper:

"On reaching the gates of Malines we first realized that all accounts of recent events were grotesquely exaggerated. No doubt thousands of windows were smashed and a large number of houses were nearly destroyed, but not a single public building had substantially suffered.

"The towers of St. Rombaud hardly showed any damage or traces of bombshells. Only its large stained windows had been shattered. It was at once obvious that the moral effect of the German raid had been out of all proportion to the material destruction, and the revelation was made that a city can be bombarded for three days with heavy artillery without any decisive result.

"As we moved through the town we found the streets deserted. I went down into a number of cellars and there saw the most uncanny scenes I have witnessed during these eventful war weeks. Underground passages extended in every direction, and everywhere the earthen floors and walls were oozing with moisture. I perceived through the darkness the shadows of about 200 old men and women stretched on mattresses, shaking in all their limbs.

"They stared at me in a frenzy of terror. In vain did I try to reassure them. They only asked: 'Are they coming?' 'Are they here?' 'Are they coming to kill us?'"

Germany's Big Guns, Engines of Destruction, New Features In Warfare

ONE of the outstanding developments of the great war in Europe is the terrible efficiency of the German artillery. On the stubborn battlefields of Mons and during the continuous rear guard fighting of the retreat to La Fere the German artillery was up at the front harassing the forces of the allies at every stand.

The Germans first developed the idea of massing their artillery close to the front where it could get into action early and by its shells cut up the enemy's troops so as to shake their morale and thus make easier the success of the German attacking infantry columns.

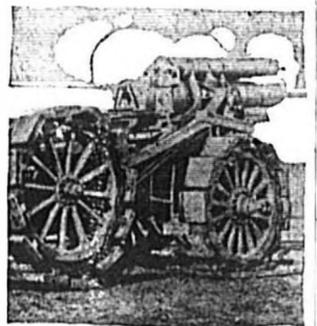

Artillery had been considered a cumbersome, slow moving weapon, of great value in battle, but so defenseless against an enemy's surprise attack that large bodies of infantry called supporting troops were always attached to the artillery to protect it. Similarly to guard against surprise it was placed well to the rear of the columns when marching.

The Germans in 1870 brought forward the new tactics of shooting the artillery up to the front, even at risk of surprise and capture, and thus they gained the advantage of a powerful artillery fire on the enemy while the latter was waiting for his artillery to come up.

After a long series of tests Germany in 1880 adopted the revolutionary expedient of building the gun loose from the carriage so that on firing the gun recoils without dragging the carriage with it. In 1900 it adopted a still further improved gun which allows a longer recoil. Every effort had been made to keep secret the details of its construction, but they gradually leaked out.

France adopted this general type in 1897 and the United States in 1902. All the nations of the world have now armed their artillery with this long recoil gun. Each country has also invented various modifications to improve the service of the gun.

The big improvement of our day is that, instead of being made fast to its carriage by the trunnions that permit only a swinging up or down in elevation, the gun now rests freely in a trough, called the cradle, that guides the gun in its sixty inch recoil. To hold the gun to the guides it has clips near the front end, and at the rear, or breech, it has a lug to which is attached a buffer to stop the recoil.

The general technique of the artillery service in battle is not to delay to get the exact range of the target, the enemy exposes himself too long a time to permit this. The method is to fire at ranges changed by 200 yards each time until one shot falls short and one goes over. Then the intervening ground is swept by a storm of bullets, delivered by firing eighteen shrapnel aimed to cover the district on each side of, beyond and short of the estimated range. In this way quick results are obtained, though at large expenditure of ammunition.

So great has been the improvement in artillery fire that the present guns can entirely destroy any body of men that is reached by their fire. Security is obtained only by concealment. Even the opposing guns must be concealed behind hills or grooves and are directed on the enemy by being aimed at a given angle with some definite visible object. This requires a special sight and a rapid determination of the necessary angle, making the artillery a very technical branch of the service.

The greatest surprise to military men of the world has been the rapid success of the Germans in capturing the forts of Liege, Namur and Longwy by means of their heavy artillery. These were constructed at great expense and were provided with every known device for strengthening the defense. Infantry assaults resulted in terrible slaughter without effect. The immense shell fired by Germany's heaviest guns weighs 700 pounds and carries a charge of high explosives that blasts out an enormous hole. Well aimed, the fire of these guns will reduce any fort to ruins.

The field gun shell is a pointed cylinder three inches in diameter and nine inches long, total weight fifteen pounds, filled with a powder charge that when exploded will blow a hole in an enemy's parapet and will send the fragments of the steel shell flying in every direction. The projectile used against men and animals is the shrapnel, which is a shell filled with balls that on explosion send a shower of bullets over the troops within range.

Summer Manners. Johnstone Frewen, the well known after-dinner speaker, said at a banquet in Pittsburgh:

"Summer is coming again. Summer manners, especially at the seaside, are dreadfully free and easy. But what will they be this summer, with the increased daring of the frocks and the increased popularity of the terrible South American dances?"

"Motoring one morning with a pretty girl I saw a grocery clerk speak to her from the shop door, but she cut the young fellow dead.

"The impudence!" she said. "Don't you know him?" said I. "Of course I don't know him," she replied, "except at the seashore—and last summer I even refused to be engaged to him again!"

Pawnbroker's Shop. The origin of borrowing money upon the strength of pledges deposited with the lender is supposed to have been in Italy some time in the fifteenth century. It was at first of a purely charitable nature, no interest being charged on the amount loaned, the pledge being simply a security for the amount loaned. But very soon (and quite naturally) interest began to be exacted, and in due time the business spread all over Europe. "Sharks" were not slow in appearing, and severe statutes were in most countries passed against them.

Worth Knowing. The laurel was much in vogue in olden days, as it meant "love triumphs." The Greek bride wore a wreath of myrtle. A bride of today may choose her own flower if she wishes, stamping it with her individuality. Some girls take the flower allotted to the month, especially if the time happens to be June, with its wealth of roses. Widows usually wear violets, either white or purple, or a combination of both.

SCHOOL YEAR BEGINS

The opening of the public schools yesterday may serve to remind citizens that they have an admirable and thoroughly well organized department of education. They have a right to be proud of the state system, of which the city is a part, but they have a right also to be proud of the success which attends the efforts of the school officials and faculty in our own city.

Since such is the case, it is well that the head of the department and all his assistants be given cordial public support in their work of training the youth of the city for future usefulness.

There is in many communities a disposition to complain of how the schools are run, to criticize the officials and complain of the authorities. That is a policy that is justified only in cases where there is a real basis for it and where the critic has knowledge of something that ought to be done in a better way or that ought to be removed entirely as an obstruction to the work of teaching.

Our city is giving the citizens splendid school houses, sometimes even too fine, but at any rate, they are admirably planned and fitted up for their purpose and in every respect the material and the intellectual equipment is of the best quality.

Parents must hope for the sake of their children and of their peace of mind that the lessons of obedience submission to authority, of discipline in the best sense and the only true sense, may attend the work of the schools during the coming year, even to a higher degree than in the past.

Progress should be made, and progress is made, but it helps the teachers, it helps the school department a great deal to have a cordial public support. The most surprising thing about schools on the whole is that the parents pay so little heed to them, visit them so seldom, know so little about them, trust so completely to the teachers for the training of their children.

This is due in part to the excellent results that attend the teaching, so that a fund of confidence has been gathered, and is due in part of course to the occupations of parents that do not allow them time often to visit schools. But a closer cooperation will be good for all, teachers, pupils and parents.

Every one notes the opening of the schools with the cordial wish that they may have a very prosperous year.

THE AUTUMN IN FLORIDA

Those who are not in Florida during October and November lose the most pleasant time of the year. To produce heat, rain and wind requires energy, but during the time mentioned the year rests from its labors. It is then cool and but little wind and rain. The upper air is so exceeding clear that the shadows thrown from trees and from the ever falling leaves are very dark, and the contrast creates a haze that exaggerates elevations and depressions and makes things delightfully unreal.

The heavy dew in the early morning makes the grass and leaves glisten like diamonds in the rising sun and the birds lying near the ground look like spirits. When the land was covered with primeval forests, the landscape was uninteresting, and the view limited. Now it is parklike; patches of dark green pines alternate with glades of yellow grass; here a cypress pond with russet leaves and blueish moss, there a white farm house surrounded by trees of various hues.

The lakes lie like mirrors in frames of mosaic of more colors than Joseph's coat, composed of trunks, leaves, berries, grass and moss. The reptiles have gone into their winter sleep, the only thing left of their kind being the turtles that stick their heads out of the water. Silence reigns over this whole scene. The heron stalks silent about; the duck is mute; the red bird's chirping can hardly be heard; only the rattle of the kingfisher and the tattoo of the woodpecker can be heard at times.

While the sun sinks into a glory unknown to other climes, the blue smoke from the clearing goes straight up and the coloring of the landscape is ever changing as the light recedes.

The crack of the farm boy's whip as he drives the cows home, the blows from the axe chopping wood for the evening meal, echo from point to point, and even the harsh lowing of the cattle sounds musical. When the tallest tree tops have lost their gliding, the children of the dark begin to move and mysterious sounds come from the world, which now looks like a hazy wall. Then it lightens up again and the big red moon ascends from the dark depths. Fog obscures the nether world, enhancing the sublimity of the queen of the night.

The days are charming, the nights bewitching. This is Florida in late autumn. Starte Telegraph.

POT-SHOOTERS

Farmers from various parts of the county are complaining to the Sun that pot-shooters are killing quail by the hundreds, and that there will not be a quail left if some one in authority does not make an example of these wanton murderers of the farmer's best friend. One of the informants declares that pot-shooters drive out in automobiles and traversing thirty or forty miles of roadway are bound to run across from fifty to one hundred birds—covey after covey—which they shoot from the machine while the birds are in the roadway—literally tearing some of the quail into shreds with the shot.

Oscar Barnard says he is waiting for a commission as game warden and when he gets it he will exercise the authority vested in him to the fullest extent of the law.

Quail should not be shot at any season of the year. There should be a closed season for at least three years in Florida, and also a closed season against pot-shooters. The quail is one of man's best friends.

Five hundred and sixty-eight mosquitoes, one hundred and nine potato beetles, two thousand, three hundred and twenty-six plant lice, one hundred chinch bugs, thirty-nine grasshoppers, twelve squash bugs, twelve cut worms, twelve army worms and eight white grubs all these, says the state game warden of Tennessee, have been found in the stomach of a common quail. "What would that bird and its mate have been worth to you," he asks, if they had reared their little brood on your farm?"—Clearwater Sun.

EDITORS ARE HUMAN

We often wonder if it has ever occurred to some people that editors are human, and not super-beings gifted with second sight.

An editor is constantly on the hunt for news of interest to the people who read and pay for his paper, and he never intentionally omits an article of any importance. The success of his paper depends upon his impartiality in this respect.

And yet often some person conceives the erroneous idea that the editor has purposely left out some item concerning them or their families.

Has it ever occurred to them that the editor may not have heard of that particular item, although he searched diligently in his efforts to secure all of the news?

There is a very effective remedy for these isolated but inadvertent omissions. The next time you have a piece of news concerning yourself, or your family or your neighbors, or of your community, give it to the editor yourself, or phone or write it in to him, and do not depend upon others to do it. They may be more interested in affairs on their own side of the fence.

The editor will thank you for your thoughtfulness in enabling him to secure news that will add to the value of his paper and make it of interest to all of the people, for that is his mission in life.

He is human, as well as you.

George Goolby of the Wauchula Advocate is always just a few days ahead of the rest of the craft in Florida. Not content with having the most beautiful location, the neatest and best printing office in the state, he is now installing a Miehle press, a typesetting machine and other improvements. We are sorry to see George put in the typesetting machine. Somehow his bungalow type of office seemed to need the services of several rosy checked Hebes to set the type while they intermittently picked oranges from the trees that grew alongside of all the cases in the Advocate office and to come down to mere mechanical machinery will break the charm and lose the romance of the office. We congratulate George upon his good fortune in having such a fine plant, but then there is nothing too good for George Goolby and his good wife.

Dade City Star has big headline in Friday's issue, "The Star Is Ten Years Old Today." To which we can add that it certainly shows its

CAUGHT ON THE WING

The following appeared in last Monday's Buffalo News:

Not every poetic epistle elicits such spontaneous hospitality as did "A Migratory Friend," that appeared in these columns the other day. The friendly outburst comes from Sanford, Fla., where, if this column continues to circulate for another year, we propose to go on the lecture platform and corral some Confederate specie. Listen:

An Invitation

Howdy, Mister Gravy, howdy and good morning, Summertime is passing and winter is aborning.

You, squire, of the blackbird flying toward the south Is also true of you'uns who feel down in the mouth.

Why don't you trail the blackbird on his southward way To where it's always Summer and sunshine every day?

Where blackbirds and mockingbirds, and every bird that lives Are always singing praises of the blessings that He gives,

For the south is next to paradise, the place for boys grown old, Just like you and I, John, and the rest that fear the cold;

Then howdy, John, and all the rest that "hack" upon the News, Come south to spend a day or so to change your Yankee views;

Hang up the pen and scissors and throw the paste away, For down in sunny Florida there's sunshine all the day;

Forget the Kolm of Kicks and Knocks and take the steamer line For azure skies and silver moon and water that is fine—

Go soak your gloves and overcoat, and bring your linen clothes, 'Tis Summer down in Florida while in Buffalo it snows;

Cut the whole blamed colm, John, and we will spend a week Boating, fishing, hunting, on the lake and crooked creek.

Bob Holly, Sanford, Fla.

CROWDED SCHOOL ROOMS

Discussing school problems as the new school year comes on, the Pensacola News takes up the usual complaint of too many pupils to the teacher. "In a crowded room, discipline alone is a big proposition," says the News. "Then in a five hour session there is only about seven minutes per pupil for instruction. The public school child gets his education largely by hearing others recite."

That this is too bad is easily admitted, but then the News says: "Taxpayers everywhere say the schools have reached the limit of expense. More teachers cannot be afforded. Yet somehow many towns afford buff brick and stone buildings where once wood was pointed at with pride as an ornament."

The Times-Union has gotten itself unpopular more than once by talking about the $40,000 buildings with $40 teachers inside. The public school teachers in Florida get very poor pay and have unwieldy classes to handle, but they do good work nevertheless and hope for better things.—Times-Union.

Editor Bob Holly of Sanford, as president of the Florida Press Association, has by proclamation designated Saturday, October 17th, as Florida Newspaper Day, and urges the press of the state to give all the space possible to boosting Florida. This is in line with the press of California, which sets aside a day when all editors unite in a boost for their state. The idea is a good one, even though borrowed from a sister state, and the News trusts all Florida editors will heed this call to service. The News will try and do something, though when the proclamation was issued its managers were already bending every energy towards a tremendous booster edition which they propose to issue early in November, and which may interfere with our doing all we should.—Palatka News.

Anticipating the winter rush to Sanford the editor is moving from his suburban home to the apartments over The Herald office, and if there are any letters upside down this week let them pass, for after wrestling with all kinds of articles from stoves to beds, and a few pianos thrown in, our fingers feel like they belonged to some one else and the brain refuses to act. But there is satisfaction in knowing that when the phone rings we can just fall down stairs and tell the anxious subscribers all about the progress of the war or the time of night or any other important question that can only be answered by a newspaper man. We expect to put in twenty-six hours per diem now instead of twenty-five as heretofore and this new Miami time will have nothing on us.

The newspapers of Orlando cordially invite the editors of the Lake Region Press Association, comprising the counties of Lake, Volusia, Osceola, Seminole and Orange to meet in this city the first Wednesday in October.

Advertising Paid

Nearly $1,000 in checks and post-office money orders has been, it is alleged, received so far by the United States authorities who have been taking charge of the letters still coming to R. A. Brooks of Hilliard, alias W. W. Ward of Lake City, the man who advertised for sale ninety-eight five-pound hens at 50 cents each, and 108 friers averaging two pounds each at 25 cents apiece, all of any part, that he might get a college education. "It is surprising what a little want ad will do," said an official of the United States marshal's office. "That man is getting letters yet from distant states, and practically every one of them is sending the equivalent of cash."

Brooks, himself was visited yesterday by his wife in the Duval county jail. He is taking his incarceration philosophically, and seems confident that he will be released when the case comes to trial. "I have not intentionally done anything wrong," he declared to a representative of the Times-Union yesterday. "When the letters began to pour in on me I realized at once I was in trouble that I had not counted on, and immediately I began returning the checks and the money orders. The postmaster in Lake City will bear me out that I never attempted to cash an order, and the banks know I never presented a check. My first and only concern was to get that money back to the people from whom I had never expected to get a cent."

I have had a good deal of experience in the poultry business, and my sole aim in inserting the advertisement was to get a possible reply from some poultry raiser, who would be attracted by the offer of hens and fries of a standard breed at a low price. Then I expected to write my own name and try to secure a partnership or employment in some good poultry farm or business.

"I realize that the mistake I made was in giving another name than my right one; but I felt that in being so well known in my own town that I could not openly apply for such a position."

"My wife is busy trying to raise the bond, and I trust and believe when the authorities see and realize that I have not attempted to take advantage of the technical fraud I perpetrated on the people, that my bond will be reduced."

"If I have caused anybody any inconvenience I am willing and ready to suffer punishment for the deed; but I assure all that I never thought of what the charge implies, that is using the mails to defraud the people of anything of value."

"I regret the action I took more than I can express; but I am content in the knowledge that I have done no wrong, more than the technical one with which I am charged."

Brooks says he is not only a former mayor of Hilliard, and Democratic nominee for justice of the peace there; but that he is also chairman of the board of public instruction, and president of the Starberry Growers' Association of the place.

He seems to be a man of intelligence and says his father is a lumberman of prominence in Duluth, Minn., and that he, with his brothers is interested financially in the lumber company from which he receives dividends regularly.

His persistence that his father and mother in the west be kept in ignorance of his escapade is strong. He does not want his mother to be worried over him when, in all his life he has never before been in any kind of trouble. Times-Union.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of instructions received from the City Council of Sanford, Florida, that I will begin collecting October 1st, 1914, institute suit to enforce collection of all delinquent taxes, paving liens, and sidewalk liens, due the City of Sanford, which have been certified to me for collection.

Those owing any delinquent tax, sidewalk or paving liens should adjust same with me, and thus avoid the accumulation of further costs.

GEORGE A. DECOTTES, City Attorney.

The Call of the Farm

There never was a time in the history of our country when agriculture was as inviting as it is today, when brains and brawn would bring as satisfactory results from the farm. With the trades and professions in cities greatly overcrowded, the farm becomes more and more the bright and beckoning star of hope to millions of young men.

Surplus energy of the cities would do well to turn its attention to the farm, and the wise youth of the country will stay right where he is—where opportunity is always before him.

Keep your eye upon the green fields of the country for there is no better place.

Notice to Automobile and Motorcycle Owners

Bought a Bale of Cotton

A bale of cotton in front of N. P. Yowell & Co., yesterday attracted considerable attention from the public and it was discovered that the firm of Yowell & Co were assisting the general movement to start the cotton in the southern states held up by the European war. Everybody is buying a bale to help the cotton growers and Yowell & Co. joined the crowd and bought the bale. The cotton came from a grower named Johnson in Leon county and Yowell & Co will hold the bale until the war is over when they expect to dispose of the same. The philanthropists who are buying a bale are paying ten cents a pound for the same and this bale weighed 500 pounds, bringing the grower the sum of $50, which will go a long way toward helping him to pay his winter bills. The war is holding up all the cotton as there are at present no vessels to transport it to foreign countries and as long as that work lasts there will be no men work the mills in the countries involved. The buy a bale movement was inaugurated to start the cotton moving and give the cotton farmers a chance to pick and house the crop.

PLAY BALL.

Philadelphia Americans vs. Boston Nationals Star Theatre

Friday, Oct. 9th, 1 p. m., reproduced on electric diamond. Direct wire from field. Every play and decision will be flashed on diamond by electric lights and then called by Telegraph Empire Hurst.

The diamond same as last year will be fifteen feet square, location of each playing position will be shown by electric bulb which will flash when ball enters that players ground, the board will indicate whether it is a hit, foul, error or safe at first.

On left side of home plate will be three red bulbs for put outs. Right side of home will be three blue bulbs for strike and directly under the strike bulbs will be four white bulbs for balls.

Each side of diamond will be players' name with bulb opposite. When man is called to bat his light will appear and stay until he scores or is put out, the base lights appearing as he advances around.

At any moment during game at diamond, lights will indicate exactly the situation, balls, strikes, outs, men on bases, man at bat. Box score will show total hits, runs and errors and innings played.

This reproduction of games for the world series in our national pastime should certainly be worth the small amount of thirty-five cents for men, twenty-five for ladies and children, to bear the heavy expense, time and trouble, the promoters are obligating themselves.

Note the time, 1 p. m. sharp. The inside dope, line up, batteries, and what the predictions are and attendants will be, starts coming about noon.

Sanford was the only city in Florida, Jacksonville and Tampa included, last year that reproduced the world series on electric diamond and the fans are urged to give the promoters their support in their efforts to give you some real live sport, fifteen hundred and more miles from scene of action.

If base ball interests you, come and we will assure you of two hours of amusing excitement.

Bad Fact.

Age cannot wither nor custom stale the infinite sadness of entries on the light-hand page of the bank book.—Ohio State Journal.

TEACHERS IN SCHOOLS

The following assignments have been made:

High School Department: Miss Guild, principal and teacher of Latin; Miss Tetherly, Mathematics; Miss King, Science and Language; Miss Flora Walker, Science and History; Prof. Ezell, English.

Grammar School Department: Prof. Wildman, Principal and teacher of Seventh and Eighth grade boys; Miss Harris, Eighth grade girls; Mrs. Dickinson, Seventh grade girls; Mr. Christopher, Sixth grade boys; Mrs. Luke, Sixth grade girls; Miss Plant, half of Fifth grade; Miss Hunter, half of Fifth grade; Miss Ensminger, half of Fourth grade; Miss Higgins, half of Fourth grade; Miss Milten, half of Third grade; Miss Moore, half of Third grade.

Primary Department: Miss Salome Hampton, Miss Edith Stewart, Miss Edith Walker.

Another teacher is badly needed and the board have taken the matter under advisement. There will be some changes in the different grades, as the school promises to be the largest in the history of Sanford and the superintendent and board think it is the best plan to have more teachers and not crowd the grades.

The teachers for the other districts of Seminole county are as follows:

Prof. Burdick will have charge of the Oviedo school and will be assisted by Misses Mary Aulin and Maggie Hope. Chuluota school will be in charge of Miss Kate Mathers, who will be assisted by her sister Lula. These young ladies are residents of Gabriella, a settlement in the southern end of the county. Geneva school will be conducted by Miss Agnes Clark, who will be assisted by Misses Gussie Tillis of Sanford and Miss Gresham of Geneva. Longwood school will be taught by Miss Sarah Crawford, who will be assisted by Miss Lillian Waites. Altamonte Springs will be taught by Miss Avery, a teacher who comes to Seminole county from Indiana. Lake Mary school will be in charge of Miss McLean of Geneva, while the school at Monroe will be taught by Mrs. Cora Williams, who will be assisted by Miss Maggie Kilgore of Geneva.

Especially employed conveyances will be used to bring the children into Sanford from the rural districts to the west, south and east of town.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of instructions received from the City Council of Sanford, Florida, that I will begin on October 1st, 1914, institute suit to enforce collection of all delinquent taxes, paving liens, and sidewalk liens, due the City of Sanford, which have been certified to me for collection.

Those owing any delinquent tax, sidewalk or paving liens should adjust same with me, and thus avoid the accumulation of further costs. GEORGYIA DECOTTES, City Attorney.

"Made in America"

Be a patriot! Let it be America first! When we go to the stores to part with our money let's demand goods of American manufacture, for by this means we will assist in keeping American mills and American workmen busy, and will keep American money in circulation at home, where in time it may find its way back to us.

We of America may do much for our own country in this way, and without additional expense or inconvenience.

Let's all be patriots! America first!

Miami's new street lighting system will be installed about the first of October and then the moonlight schedule will be done away with and the lights will burn all night. There will be high power lights on every corner and in the middle of every block. These will range from 100 to 1,000 candle power. About fifty of these high power lights will be placed in service at once and more as the demand requires. The lights will be suspended over the middle of the streets and, it is claimed, will illuminate them with a brilliance equal to a "great white way."

Opening of Stetson

The thirtieth annual opening of Stetson University occurred Friday, September 25. For days prior to the formal opening the offices of the president, dean of women and dean of men were full of students registering for the work of the various departments of the University. They came from all parts of Florida and from many of the northern states. Stetson University is prepared to offer better advantages than ever before. The endowment has been greatly increased recently by gifts which has enabled new departments to be opened and the old ones to be strengthened, additions to be made to the faculty and a marked improvement in facilities. Stetson's graduates are ranking along with the graduates of the best known colleges and universities in the country.

Money invested judiciously in roads adds so much to the value of the property in a community that every dollar invested comes back to the treasury in the form of additional taxation. Good roads attract new settlers, encourage improvements and enrich a community. They bring in more people to help pay taxes, and reduce that rate as taxation while increasing the aggregate amount collected. Money paid merely for salaries of officers of a dead and non-progressive county organization never comes back in any form. Good roads are the arteries of trade, the promoters of the value and the basis of prosperity Orlando Sentinel.

Social Asset of Good Memory.

"What do you do," said a woman the other day, "when somebody greets you, cordially and you haven't the least idea who it is?"

"Why, I usually try to be as diplomatic as possible and discover who it is I am talking to before I give myself away," replied the social mentor. "Nobody is so humble minded that he likes to be forgotten. Every one of us resents the fact, even if it is only unconsciously."

"Yes, but after you have felt around as cautiously as possible and still fail to get a clue then what do you do?" "Well, if I don't get even a tag to hang a shred of memory on I think the best thing is to be frank or at least partially frank, for socially absolute frankness degenerates sometimes into brutality. So I usually say something like this: 'I can't quite recall your name, although I know it should be very familiar to me.' And then, of course, I get the desired information."

"I think we should train our minds to remember both faces and names when we are young," said an advising friend. "It seems to me the woman who is always forgetting names and faces is in a way guilty of a breach of good manners. The faculty of remembering people often makes all the difference between success and failure in holding friends."

"I agree with you absolutely," replied the questioner. "How often do we hear people say: 'Oh, I never can remember faces; it's no use for me to try. I am always offending somebody by cutting him dead because my memory is so bad I didn't know him from Adam.' And yet these same women, for it is usually a woman you hear talking in this way, do not seem to realize that this sort of memory, the lack of which they are deploring, can be and should be cultivated. I used to be a great offender in this respect once upon a time, when all at once I began to realize that I was making myself unpopular by my heedlessness, so I took measures to correct it."

"How did you go about it? I have often longed to cultivate a better social memory, but I didn't know quite what to do."

"I decided that the chief reason that makes most of us forget people we have met is indifference. We do not pay sufficient attention to what we are doing. Nowadays whenever I meet anybody I study his features, and in the course of my conversation with him I try, if I can do so without making it conspicuous or sounding in any way queer, to repeat his name several times, and usually when I have done this both face and name will return to my memory the next time we meet."

Capt. John A. Herring

Captain John A. Herring, one of the most prominent citizens of Rockingham county, died at his home near Bridgewater Saturday evening about 6 o'clock. Pneumonia developed Friday and his death followed after an illness of twenty four hours.

Two weeks ago Captain Herring fell while working in the garden at his home and broke his leg. There was no one near at the time except Mrs. Herring who is an invalid, and she was unable to summon assistance for some time. Several years ago Capt. Herring had fractured the same leg.

Captain Herring rallied from the shock, but on account of his advancing age his condition was regarded as serious. He appeared to be doing well, however, until Friday, when pneumonia developed. In his weakened condition the end came rapidly.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from his residence near Bridgewater. Services will be conducted by Rev. H. B. Northwick, pastor of the Bridgewater Presbyterian church. Interment will be in the cemetery at Bridgewater by the side of his daughter, Josephine, who died twenty years ago.

Captain Herring was born on the Herring estate near Bridgewater in August, 1837. He was in his 78th year. The farm on which he has lived all of his life has been in possession of the family for more than 200 years. He was born in the house which is now the residence of his son, Thomas G. Herring, the structure having stood for 150 years. His father was the late John A. Herring.

In 1857 he entered the academic department of the University of Virginia, where he received his education. At the outbreak of the war between the states he enlisted in the Confederate Army and became a lieutenant in Company I, First Virginia Cavalry, the company commander. After Captain Vance's death, Captain Herring remained at the head of the organization until the spring of 1862, when he was transferred to the artillery, becoming an officer in McClannahan's Battery.

After the close of the war, Captain Herring returned to his estate in Rockingham. He was active in Democratic politics for nearly half a century and since the creation of the County Electoral Board in 1884, he had been a member of that body. He also served as land assessor two or three terms.

Surviving him are his wife, who was Miss Kate Griffith of Salem, Va., and five children—Henry G. Herring of Kentucky; George G. Herring of Sanford, Fla.; Charles G. and Thomas G. Herring of Bridgewater; and Mrs. Mary Eichelberger of Lexington. He also leaves one brother, William Herring of Rockbridge county.

Captain Herring was a Virginia gentleman of the old school and a fearless soldier. He was a large land owner and an extensive farmer. His manner was kind, gentle and he had a large circle of friends, by whom he was held in the highest regard. He was true to his political, business and social obligations and his home was noted for its hospitality. His death was unexpected and will be a distinct shock to his many friends. Harrisburg (Va.) French Idea in a Tennis Costume

A PLEASING and practical costume for the tennis court must of necessity be plain. As a concession to present modes a few models are shown having a short close-fitting tunic, but the majority of tennis gowns are quite plain as to the skirt. In the matter of the bodice one may choose between the middie blouse made of a fabric like the skirt, the plain silk or lingerie blouse, or a waist made in one with the skirt like that shown in the picture.

White wash fabrics, including many of the new rough weaves in cotton, afford the player a wide choice of cotton materials. The coarser weaves in linen are always dependable for the tennis costume. Ratine has proved its worth for this kind of gown. Almost no models of other than wash fabrics are shown.

The picture given here shows a departure from all-white in a French tennis gown, from Lamaguere, in flannel of a very light gray color. It has a plin- stripe in red. The plain skirt is in two pieces joined with an overlapped seam at the left side. It has a considerable split at the bottom. This is provided with flat buttons and buttonholes on the inside of the skirt by which the slit may be closed when the wearer is not playing.

The blouse is cut with kimono sleeves and a little fullness over the shoulders. The sleeves are lengthened by a wide strip of the material, with stripes running up and down, set on in the manner of a cuff. The blouse is finished with a sailor collar of red satin. The sleeves are bordered with the same material, and it is also used to furnish the narrow belt. A silk scarf, in red, is placed under the collar and tied in a simple bow at the front as a finishing touch.

White canvas slippers, fastened with narrow straps, and a white felt hat complete the pretty toilette. The model can be recommended as to design, but for real practical use wash fabrics of cotton or linen are better than flannel, and white is a better choice than any color.

FANCY HAND BAGS.

Gay Plaids and Roman Stripes Used in Their Construction.

Fancy hand bags are still popular. One made to wear with a taffeta gown was designed of plain silk, the lower part of the bag being of figured silk ribbon. A silk tassel was fastened to it below and a moire band was attached for carrying it.

Black moire purses are seen. A square bag made of black moire had a clasp of German silver and a moire ribbon handle fitted with silver slides. The bag was cut square, lined with gray moire and fitted with a mirror and change purse.

A novelty is the small bag of Roman striped ribbon or plaid. Bags of this sort are chic carried with plain dark suits.

Lace bags, especially those of Irish lace, are smart for wear with white gowns.

Scorch Stains.

To remove scorch marks on linen (unless they are very bad) cut an onion in half and rub the scorched part with it; then soak in cold water. The marks will soon disappear under this treatment if they can be remedied

Cookery Points

Stuffed Eggplant.

This is an excellent dish. Cut a fine eggplant in half lengthwise. Do not peel it, but scoop out the interior to within about three-fourths of the edge. Use a large silver spoon for the purpose, and hold the vegetable under water as much as possible while doing so. This prevents discoloration. As the interior is removed put it also under water, and when the whole is finished cover with new cold water, adding to every quart of water a tablespoonful of salt. Put the eggplant, both shell and scooped out portion, in this salted water for two or three hours, or until the water turns dark. This is to remove its rankness.

After soaking put the vegetable into fresh cold water and let it come to the boiling stage. Boil until tender, salting the water slightly. It will take about half an hour's boiling, but it is well to cook the scooped out pulp longer than the shells, so as to have it very soft. The shells should be tender, but not so tender that they will lose their shape. Set the shells aside on an earthen plate.

It is well not to let them come into contact with tin. Now mash the piece of scooped out eggplant to a pulp with a wooden potato masher, and to every cupful add two or three cupfuls of soft breadcrumbs. Mix the two together, and if they need moistening in order to make them cohere add a little milk. Season with a tiny minced onion, a scant teaspoonful of salt and a scant half teaspoonful each of thyme, sage and white pepper.

A scant quarter of a teaspoonful of sweet marjoram may also be added. Mix the seasonings thoroughly with the stuffing and fill the prepared shell with it. Spread soft butter liberally over the top and set the shells with their contents in a buttered baking dish. Bake in a brick oven for about half an hour, or until done.

Pumpkin Custards.

Cut enough pumpkin into pieces to make a pint of pulp after being cooked. Place in a kettle, add half a cupful of water, cover the kettle and allow the pumpkin to steam until tender; then take off the lid and allow the water to evaporate. Drain in a colander and press through, rejecting every particle of seed. Beat the pulp with a fork, separating, add to them a pint of rich milk, then the pumpkin and half a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of cinnamon and half a teaspoonful of ginger. Mix and turn into small custard cups. Set these in a pan of hot water and bake in the oven for half an hour. When done turn out of the cups and serve with a spoonful of cranberry jelly on the side of each mold.

Chicken Hash.

Chop fine the leftover bits of cold chicken and chop with them an equal quantity of cold boiled potatoes. In a frying pan melt a tablespoonful of butter and one-half tablespoon of chopped onion and let cook till soft, but not brown. Turn in the chicken mixture, season lightly with salt and pepper and a dash of Worcestershire sauce and add, if at hand, a tablespoonful of very finely chopped green pepper. Let cook till well heated, add one-fourth cupful of cream, remove the pan to the back of the range and let cook slowly till well browned on the bottom. Fold on a hot platter and serve at once.

Pickled Onions.

Use the small white onions peeled and boiled in equal parts of milk and water for ten minutes. Take out and drain in a colander. Put two quarts of vinegar in a porcelain lined kettle with a teaspoonful of alum, half a tablespoonful of whole mace, a dozen whole cloves and two and one-half tablespoonful of salt. Scald well all these ingredients. Pack the onions in glass jars and pour the spiced vinegar very hot over them and seal.

Bran Muffins.

Two cupfuls coarse unsifted bran meal, one cupful flour, one teaspoonful baking soda, one-half teaspoonful salt, one egg, one-half cupful molasses, one cupful sour milk. Do not have the batter too stiff or get too soft. Bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven. These biscuits have such a medicinal value that they should be more generally used. As made by this rule, they are delicious.

New Way to Cook Turnips.

Pare, slice thin, cut into dice as many turnips as required. Cook in slightly salted water until done. Drain and turn into hot vegetable dish. Season with salt and pepper and put a generous piece of butter into them and toss with fork until every piece is well buttered. When you serve at table put a spoonful of nice cream sauce on each portion.

Baked Salmon Fishballs.

One quart of potatoes, one pint of canned salmon, one beaten egg, salt and pepper to taste. Dip the hands in cold water to form the balls. Melt some butter and dip each in the melted butter. Place in a tin pan and put in the oven instead of frying the usual way. When brown on top turn them over.

WILL STICK TO WHITE SOX

Ray Demmitt Admits He Gazed on Federal League Gold, but Was Weaned by President Comiskey.

Ray Demmitt will cavort about in the uniform of the White Sox in 1915 and 1916. He will not play with a Federal league team as planned, having changed his mind after a conference with President Comiskey.

Demmitt admitted he had Federal league aspirations and that he was negotiating with the outlaws, but said these faded before the eloquence of the Old Roman, who convinced him that his dollars would go just as far as those of a Federal league magnate.

The Sox regular left fielder admitted the lure of Federal league gold had no fascination for him now and that he was bound to play for Comiskey by an iron clad contract that was binding. The ten-day clause is eliminated from Demmitt's new contract.

"I can play just as well for Comiskey as for the Federal leaguers," said Demmitt. "I like Comiskey and I like the Sox club, and after thinking it over carefully I've decided to stick to the Sox."

Ray Demmitt.

sign with a Federal league club for the same money.

"Comiskey and Callahan have treated me fairly and given me the chance to make good, which I did not get in Detroit, and that is another reason why I should tie to the Chicago club. We have a binding contract and I want it to be binding."

He was one of the most promising outfielders in the minor leagues when he played for Montreal in the international league.

He was signed by Hughie Jennings and accompanied the Tigers on the spring training trip of 1914 and waivers were asked on him because he couldn't hit.

The Sox left fielder was formerly a member of the New York Highlanders and turned back to the minors.

As a member of the Sox, to which he came because Manager Callahan refused to waive him out of the league, Demmitt has made good as a fielder, batter and all-around player.

He is said to possess the greatest throwing arm of any player coming to the big show from the minors in several years.

Was a member of the Montreal club for four years and played a star game, but failed to impress the big leaguers until he came to the White Sox.

Filtred with the Federal leaguers, but was signed this week by President Comiskey at a salary said to be $5,000 a year.

TO SUCCEED BULL FIGHTING

Game of Baseball Will Civilize Mexico, Declares Captain Leonard of United States Navy.

Capt. John C. Leonard, United States navy, who is in command of the battleship Virginia when Vera Cruz was taken, declared the other day that "the great game of baseball will civilize Mexico."

"Besides having a great influence in that direction," said Captain Leonard, "baseball will supplant the brutal bull fighting."

"In Vera Cruz boys are now playing the game.

"The bull fighting was not relished by the Americans, and General Funston put a stop to it."

Bull Players Fluctuate. Birdie Cree illustrates the fluctuating value of baseball players. At the end of last season no team would pay the Yankees the waiver price for his services, and he was sent to the Baltimore International league club.

Cree has hit around .400 with Baltimore and has shown such general good form in his work that the eyes of all scouts are already fixed upon him. Four National league clubs have bid for his services, and one manager, believed to be Fred Clarke, is said to have offered $12,000 for the release of the former Yankee.

Among the Baseball Players

They say the only thing the Naps can hit is the bottom.

Charley Comiskey has appealed the Chase case. What he should have done was to send Judge Bissell a letter of thanks.

If the government ownership of baseball becomes a reality all the ambitious players would have to get in politics.

Any man can hit the Naps the Joe Glims of baseball? What team has more punishment than they this season?

Bob Heacher has picked up in his work for the Glants. He is showing more speed than at any time during the season.

It's a poor magnate who can't stand in deep center field and distinctly hear each click of each turnstile across the park.

The baseball races are so close this season it hasn't been necessary for the magnates to hand out any interviews on next year's race.

Lathrop is getting to be the regular rescuer for the White Sox. He has been called on to finish the several games of late, since Faber fell down on the job.

Jack Leary is doing brilliant work for the Browns. Leary is the likeliest-looking first baseman to break into the big show since Stuffy McInnis came into the limelight.

The Braves have shown this year how easy it is to turn a loser into a winner. A rank tail-end combination at the start, the Boston men are now safely in the first division.

Some few months ago George Stalings declared he had a ball team. Managers, scribes and fans, as well, gave him the merry ha ha. But now—"he who laughs last laughs"—etc.

President Gilmore of the Feds says the talk of a third big league in organized baseball is bunk. But that reminds us of what Johnson and the others said about the Feds last spring.

Stallings still thinks a lot of Bill Swenney even if he has traded him away. The leader of the Braves says that the Cub second baseman is the best player he has ever known around the club house.

Bird Never Sang Again. There are few birds which adapt themselves so readily to captivity as the nightingale remarks a writer in the London Telegraph. Although in nature the song of the nightingale does not extend later than the middle of June, yet in captivity the bird will sing up to the time of the autumn moult and will begin again at Christmas. The one drawback from the merits of the nightingale as a pet bird is its individuality. Some birds will sing only when no one is in the room with them, some will sing under any condition and some will be silent for ever if they change ownership. At the earnest solicitation of a friend I once parted with a nightingale which was the finest singer I had ever heard, and in its new ownership, although it was kept in the same cage and was fed in exactly the same manner as that to which it had been accustomed, it never uttered a note during the remaining seven years of its life.

NOTICE OF ELECTION Whereas the legislature of 1913, under the constitution of 1905, of the state of Florida, did pass three joint resolutions proposing amendments to the constitution of the state of Florida, and the same were agreed to by a vote of three-fifths of all the members elected to each house, that the votes on said joint resolutions were entered upon their respective journals, with the yeas and nays thereon, and that the same joint resolutions be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election in November, 1914.

Now, therefore, I, H. Clay Crawford, secretary of state of the state of Florida, do hereby give notice that a General Election will be held in each county in Florida on Tuesday next succeeding the first Monday in November, A. D. 1914, the said Tuesday being the Third day of November for the ratification or rejection of the said joint resolutions proposing amendments to the constitution of the state of Florida, viz:

Proposing an amendment to Section Six (6), of Article Eight (8), of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to county officers.

Be it ordained by the Legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to Section Six (6), of Article Eight (8), of the constitution of the state of Florida, is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state at the general election to be held on the first Tuesday in November, A. D. 1914, for ratification or rejection:

Section 6. The legislature shall provide for the election by the qualified electors in each county of the following county officers, to-wit: a clerk of the circuit court, a sheriff, a constable, a county assessor of taxes, a tax collector, a superintendent of public instruction and a county surveyor. The term of office of all county officers mentioned in this section shall be for four years, except that of county assessor of taxes and county tax collector, who shall be elected for two years.

Their powers, duties and compensation shall be prescribed by law. The legislature shall provide by law for the care and custody of all county funds and shall provide the method of reporting and paying out all such funds.

Provided, county treasurers elected in general election held in 1914 shall hold office for the term elected.

A Joint Resolution Proposing an amendment to Section 16 of Article IV, of the constitution of the state of Florida, relating to the appointment of commissioned officers of the state militia.

Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to Section 16 of Article IV of the constitution of the state of Florida is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state for adoption or rejection at the next general election hereafter, that is to say, that Section 16 of Article IV shall be amended as to read as follows:

Section 16. The Governor shall appoint all commissioned officers of the state militia, including an adjutant general for the state, with rank of brigadier general, who shall be chief of staff. The duties and compensation of all officers so appointed shall be as fixed by law. The terms of office of all commissioned officers of the organized militia shall be continuous during the pleasure of the Governor; subject to such laws as may be enacted by the legislature providing for their retirement for age or other causes.

Proposing an amendment to Section 1 of Article V of the constitution, relating to the judiciary:

Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Florida:

That the following amendment to Section 1 of Article V of the constitution is hereby agreed to and shall be submitted to the electors of the state for approval or rejection at the next general election hereafter, that is to say, said section 1 of said article shall be amended, so as to read as follows:

Section 1. The judicial power of the state shall be vested in a supreme court, circuit courts, county courts, and such other courts or commissions as the legislature may from time to time ordain and establish. The legislature may prescribe the compensation of the justices and judges of the several courts, but no court heretofore established under the constitution and laws of Florida shall be hereby abolished.

The votes cast in compliance with said proposed amendments, and the canvass, declaration and return thereof, shall be subject to the same regulations and restrictions as are provided by law for general elections in the state of Florida.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the great seal of the state of Florida, at Tallahassee, the capital, this twenty-fifth day of July, A. D. 1914.

For County Judge. For Sheriff. For Clerk of the Circuit Court. For Justice of the Peace. For Tax Collector. For County Treasurer. For County Superintendent of Public Instruction. For County Surveyor. For Five County Commissioners. For Three Members of the County Board of Public Instruction.

For Justices of the Peace in and for the following Justice Districts, viz: Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4. For Justices in and for the following Justice Districts, viz: Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4. In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the Great Seal of the State of Florida, at Tallahassee, the Capital, this the twenty-fourth day of August, A. D. 1914.

CURBSTONE GLEANINGS

BUDGET OF OPINION "JUST BETWEEN YOU AND ME."

EVEN THE GATE POST NOT IN IT

A CHIEF IS AMONG YE TAKING NOTES AND FAITH. "HE'LL PRENT 'EM"---SO SAYS SAUNTERER.

How would you like to have this said about you, when the time comes for the newspaper fellows to write something to make an article of reasonable length, after you have finished—here below?

"The world has found a good place to live in. Perhaps there were certain persons in it who fell somewhat short of what might be desired. But he was always able to atone for their deficiencies, and he was sure to know some unsuspected virtues in them."

This old world is a good place in which to live. Only in the event you are able to point out excuses for the deficiencies of others—only in the event you are able to recognize some unsuspected virtue in those with whom you associate. It is another way of saying that we get out of life exactly what we put into life.

The trouble with a good many people is they do not play fair with themselves. They try to cheat themselves. They seem to think they can put mud into their lives and take out virgin gold. They act as if it were possible to find fault with others, and enjoy the world in which others live at the same time.

It isn't satisfaction with one's self that makes life worth while; it is satisfaction with other people. Life becomes unbearable when it has to be lived with those who are avaricious, with those who are malicious, with those who are not virtuous, with those who are undeserving. So if that is the way you see others, that is the way they are, so far as you are concerned. Hence, if you look at people through such uncharitable eyes, then, indeed, are you living your life in a world that isn't fit to live in.

But if you can see in others the virtues that within them lie—for there are virtues in the worst of men; if you can find excuses for the shortcomings of others—and there is ever an excuse for any man's shortcomings; if you can forgive, and forget, and help, and encourage, then will you live in a world that is full of delightful associates, and your life, like theirs will be worth while.

Old Socrates, as wise as any of them, used to pray, "O grant me, O God, all I need and no more." And his prayer was answered, as all prayers are that ought to be.

How many prayers at this day and age are as modest? How many of us—or how few—desire only that which we need? Whose prayers would not be answered if he prayed as wisely and proceeded to do the best he could?

And, to continue the questioning, who among us would not be better off if he had only the things he needs. Nearly every man's troubles are due to the things he does not need. Nearly all heartaches, and most of the headaches among the women are due to striving for things which they do not need, or obtaining them, in riotous use thereof.

It is not meant that one should aspire only to a crust of bread and rough clothing. One can exist upon such food and protect himself from the elements with such clothing. But he needs more—much more. He needs education and music and art—and pleasant surroundings at all times. He needs the conveniences of modern life, quite as much as primeval man needed a chunk of flesh. But no man needs as much as he thinks he needs, and few men can handle more than they need with profit to themselves or anybody else.

No one gets out of life all there is to be gotten until he can sincerely pray the prayer of Socrates. Until he comes to understand that which is good for him, and learns to use it temperately; until he has banished the desire for things which he does not need; until he can forget himself as soon as his necessities have been served, man does not begin to live.

The several churches in Sanford that have been forced to use the theater buildings while the churches are in course of construction may be doing a greater work this winter than if they were housed in their new buildings. The theaters are close in and the services ought to attract a lonely man on Sunday evening who is in the city for a few days. In fact one of the ministers last Sunday night touched on this subject and stated that the congregation should become more active in looking after the stragglers within our gates and make them feel at home and that while the services were being held in the theater the strangers should be made more welcome and brought into the house of God. This reminds me of the great movement now being inaugurated by Mrs. Mustain in St. Louis and called the Anti-Lonely Club. The following dispatch from the daily paper tells of her plans:

"A movement originating with Mrs. Ambie H. Mustain of St. Louis several years ago, having for its object the amelioration of the oppressive loneliness of strangers in a great city, has been revived and is spreading rapidly over the south. It now looks as if the ambition of its founders to see the movement developed into a national organization is about to be realized.

In many cities of the south and east organizations have been formed for the purpose of affording an opportunity for strangers of both sexes to meet for social intercourse. It has been suggested—and work to that end is now in progress—that these several organizations in various localities be united under one general head, the purpose being to extend the links in the chain until the whole nation is included.

These organizations, known variously as the "Lonely Social Clubs," which is the name applied by Mrs. Mustain to the original organization, and "Less Lonely Leagues," or "Anti-Lonely Leagues" are becoming vastly popular among the thousands of men and women who find themselves within the gates of strange cities. Some of them now have hundreds of members upon their rolls. Old people are even more eager to join than the young ones."

Medical statistics are authority for the statement that a large percent of children attending school are afflicted with curvature of the spine or other bodily imperfection which could be easily corrected by a simple method of physical exercise.

And this brings to my mind a suggestion for local application.

Why not let our school boards, or teachers prescribe such a course for the pupils in our public schools? Fifteen minutes a day of time could be easily found, and a careful system of physical exercise in which all pupils be required to participate would create a healthy circulation of the blood, develop the physique, correct mild forms of spinal curvature, and serve as a general physical tonic. And the mind would become clearer and brighter and in better form to sustain the strain of the class room.

Training of the mind is essential, but a proper regard for the demands of the body is also necessary. That sluggish feeling which retards the advancement of so many pupils would gradually disappear under proper physical exercise, leaving both mind and body in a healthy state.

With all deference to our school board and teachers, we make this as a suggestion.

It is worth a trial.

A splendid presentation of the American patriot's point of view in the present European crisis is given in President Wilson's letter to Frank E. Doremus, chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee. Declaring his belief that the responsibilities of office will keep him at Washington, when leaders of his party throughout the country desire him to visit their sections in the interests of the fall campaign, the President sounds a high note of patriotic purpose which will find an echo in millions of hearts.

"Every patriotic man," observes Mr. Wilson, "ought now to stay on his job until the crisis is passed and ought to stay where his job can best be done. We must do whatever is necessary and forego whatever is necessary to keep us in close and active concert in order to relieve in every possible way the stress and strain upon our people during the continuance of the present extraordinary conditions. My job, I know, can be done best only if I devote my whole thought and attention to it and think of nothing but the duties of the hour."

Thus, argues the President, he will probably be unable to take part in the fall canvass. That task must be left to others.

Men of all parties will approve what the chief executive says. Nor, if one look at it from a partisan point of view, should the President's

Perkins-Leffler

One of the prettiest home weddings solemnized in Sanford recently was that of Miss Linda Leffler and Mr. Braxton Perkins, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. A. S. Peck, rector of Holy Cross Church officiating.

The attractive home was pleasantly decorated for the occasion. In the parlor white and green were the color motif, and on one side of the room was arranged an altar, with candles in crystal holders and a profusion of handsome white carnations. In the rear of the altar the ceremony, after the arrival of the guests, Mrs. F. S. Munson, one of Sanford's finest musicians, played softly, "Every Soul Has Its Song," followed by "Traumerel." As the strains of the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin sounded, the bride entered with her brother, Mr. William Leffler. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. J. D. Roberts. Miss Penches Leffler, a sister of the bride was a charming maid of honor.

The bride was very lovely in a modish going-away gown of Copenhagen blue, and chic hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of absence from the campaign injure the party's chances at the polls.

The administration has done splendidly. Congress has performed services entitling the present session to rank very high. By every fair argument, the House is entitled to re-election in November; House, Senate and President merit the endorsement which such re-election would imply.

And the rule of stalling to his job which the President lays down for himself should control every member of Congress. This is no time for fence fixing at home. The commission given men elected in 1912 does not expire till March, 1915, until then their duty is to their country, and their own private fortunes are of no weight in the balance.

beautiful bride roses. Only the relatives and intimate friends were present at the ceremony.

The punch bowl was arranged on the veranda which had been transformed into a beautiful bower. The dining room was effectively decorated in pink and green, and after congratulations, the guests were served delicious block ice cream in pink and white, and the small cakes were iced in white with a pink rose in the center. The bride's cake was a triumph in the culinary art, the white icing being adorned with a beautiful design. The bride and groom had cut the first slice, the unmarried guests were invited to try their fortune. Miss Belle Smith securing the ring, Miss Annie Higgins the dime and Miss Ruth Mettinger the thimble.

The bride and groom took the afternoon train for Jacksonville, where they left via Clyde line for New York and other northern cities. Upon their return they will go to housekeeping.

The bride has spent her life in this city, her parents being among Sanford's earliest residents, and she has a host of friends by whom she is greatly beloved. She is an accomplished musician and has a most attractive personality. The groom is a genial member of the firm known as the Sanford Shoe & Clothing Company, and has made a large circle of friends, among whom he is very popular, since coming to Sanford from Virginia several years ago. The best wishes of all follow Mr. and Mrs. Perkins in their new life.—Tampa Tribune.

White Gallagher

Telegrams received in the city announce the marriage of Miss James Margaret White of Sanford to Mr. Edward H. Gallagher of Asbury Park, N. J., at Baltimore, Md., Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. After an extended wedding trip of several weeks, Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher will reside at Asbury Park, where they will begin housekeeping in a beautiful home, the gift of Mr. Gallagher's parents. Mrs. Gallagher has been for three years the popular and efficient saleswoman of Caldwell & Sons'. Mr. Gallagher is a successful commission merchant.

Straw Ride

Mrs. Geo. Fox chaperoned a gay party of young people Friday evening on a most enjoyable straw ride to the home of Mr. P. M. Elder, where the happy crowd enjoyed the chicken pillow and other good things served by Miss Nellie Elder, their young hostess. Those in the party were Mrs. Geo. Fox, Misses Nellie Evans, Kate, Gertrude and Jane Brown, Annie Lee Caldwell, Addie Neal, Virginia Brady, May Thresher, Fern Ward, Elizabeth Stafford, Ruth McDaniel, Agnes Bothamly, Alice Caldwell, Fred Wight, Allan Jones, G. W. Spencer, J. D. Woodruff, Harold Washburn, Dixie Brown and Ed. Betts.

Music and Missions

Mrs. Henry Wight was hostess to the members of the Missionary Union of the Congregational church and their friends Monday afternoon from 3 to 5. A large number responded to the "At Home" invitations, for Mrs. Wight is a popular and charming hostess.

After the regular business meeting, which was conducted by Mrs. C. E. Walker, a most enjoyable program of music and missions was well rendered, and dainty refreshments served, completing an afternoon of delightful pleasure. To those who were not accustomed to attending missionary meetings, it was a revelation and delight, a number signifying their intention to become members at the close of the afternoon.

Mrs. F. P. Strong's paper on "What the Missionary Societies of our Church Stand For" gave an interesting, brief outline of the missionary societies and their work in home and foreign fields, touching upon the specific work of the Sanford Union. In the Florida field, the local society contributes to the West-Tampa mission and the support and education of Empiro, a little Cuban girl; and the Florida Gospel Navy, the splendid work being done by Rev. Nell McQuarrie on the southern coast of Florida.

In the Foreign field the society contributes to the work in China and Turkey. Mrs. Strong very beautifully expressed the use of missionary societies when she said that "Our missionary societies are just a great beautifully organized motherhood for the world" and in conclusion summarized by stating,

"We stand then, for deeds of mercy and love, and for the education, emancipation, and salvation of women and children at home and abroad and any work we can do to advance the kingdom of God."

Miss Lucille Aspinwall sang in her usual excellent style a charming little song "Jenny," and responded to the encore with "Cobwebs." Mrs. Terheun gave a humorous reading entitled "Mrs. Purdy's Parquillies."

Miss Adelaide Higgins delightfully rendered a piano number "Norwegian Bridal Procession" followed by "A Curious Story" for the encore.

And then came the most delightful surprise of the afternoon when three little maidens, Isabel Strong, Florence Wight and Sarah Wight rendered a beautiful violin number "Engleman," with Miss Margaret Strong at the piano. It was rather a novel experience to see the rather a novel experience to see three little girls at one time playing the violin and with such perfect execution.

Miss Carrie Ensminger presided at the punch bowl and was assisted in serving by Miss Nona Wylly and Mrs. Findlay Munson.

Rose Meeting

Mrs. John Meisch entertained the rose makers, members of the Woman's Club, very delightfully Wednesday afternoon last, with one of the largest meetings yet held, for the purpose of making roses. Although the attendance is good it is requested that more of the club members attend these meetings.

The meeting tomorrow, Wednesday, will be held at the home of Mrs. Daene Turner at 3 o'clock.

Book Lovers' Club

The Book Lovers' Club held its first fall meeting at the home of Mrs. R. E. Tolar Thursday afternoon, with six members present.

After the transaction of business refreshments were served by the hostess and a delightful hour enjoyed. Those present were Mesdames John Brady, Geo. Fox, Morton Hopson, Chas. Polk, E. N. Luke and R. E. Tolar.
