Sanford Approves Plan For Ending EDB Contamination

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Faced with the contamination of three of 15 city wells and the possibility that even more deadly EDB will be found in the future, the Sanford City Commission has unanimously approved a series of actions intended to rid the city water system of the cancer-causing pesticide.

Late Friday afternoon, commissioners approved an open-ended contract (cost and duration unspecified) to retain the Sanford engineering firm of Conklin, Porter & Holmes as consultants to coordinate and develop plans and actions for dealing with the EDB crisis. No set cost was placed on the contract.

In order to take up the slack from the three contaminated wells which have been taken out of service, commissioners also instructed the city staff to drill one well in a 12-acre park in Hidden Lake subdivision, off Airport Boulevard, near the city's auxiliary well field at Airport Boulevard and U.S. Highway 17-92. Staff members will also test the site to determine if more wells can be drilled there.

At the same time, pumps in the auxiliary well field are to be boosted to increase capacities of the eight wells there. It had been estimated that it could take up to a year to get the new well on line, but City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles reported two state agencies have promised to expedite the approval process.

Knowles said officers of the state Department of Environmental Regulation (DER) have pledged to cut the usual three months' permitting time for a new well to 24 hours and the St. Johns River Water Management District is also promising cooperation to speed up the permitting process.

Knowles said state approvals are also pledged for "pumping to waste" — flushing and disposal of water — of the three EDB contaminated city wells at the Mayfair Golf Course as soon as a suitable disposal site is found. A privately-owned orange grove near the wells or nearby ponds could serve as such a site, Knowles said.

Knowles said he expects this "pumping to waste" will rid the wells of much of the contamination.

Consulting engineer B.C. Conklin said there will be no danger of contaminating the aquifer by dumping the tainted water on land or in the ponds. He added that the process will be monitored and approved by the DER and state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

"If the water is sprayed on land, it (EDB) will be filtered out by the soil before it reaches the aquifer," Conklin said. "If it is dumped in a ditch, it will be diluted with rain water."

Dr. Jorge Deju, director of the county's Department of Health and Human Services which found the ethylene dibromide contamination of the wells Nov. 15, said he approves of the city's disposal idea. The county department is continuing weekly sampling of the four city wells still operating at the golf course on a weekly basis. Tests of the water samples are conducted at the state Department of Health and Human Services laboratories in Jacksonville.

Among the actions approved by the commission Friday to be undertaken by Conklin, Porter & Holmes are:

- Engaging Environmental Science and Engineering (ESE) in Gainesville, a hydrology engineering firm, to study and recommend solutions to the EDB problem.

- Working with Dr. James Taylor of the University of Central Florida to use his granulated activated carbon filter equipment as a pilot program on the city's contaminated wells to find if such filtering will remove the

EDB May Have Been Present In Water Supply For Years

While Sanford officials and county and state health authorities are only now beginning to worry about a water crisis because of EDB (ethylene dibromide) contamination of three city wells, the deadly pesticide has been used by Central Florida farmers for more than 30 years and could have been tainting water supplies during all that time.

And, scientists say, EDB may still be causing trouble 20 years from now.

At least two area scientists say it is not beyond the realm of possibility that EDB used at some distant point years ago is the actual source of the current contamination problem rather than the chemical's injection into the greens at the golf course five months ago as has been suspected.

Dr. John Darby, head of the University of Florida's agricultural research and educational center in Sanford, says farmers used EDB in all the fields east of Sanford right after World War II at the rate of 4½-to-6 gallons per acre. And just recently it was used on cantaloupes because of its effectiveness in killing nematodes.

"Growers have used EDB for years. All the east side has wells and there has never been a problem," Darby said. "If the EDB got into the three wells from an application of 2½ gallons per acre last July (at the golf course,) I don't understand why one well would be contaminated and not another one."

State testing of three of Sanford's seven wells at the golf course last month found levels of EDB ranging from two to five times above the state accepted level of .1 part per billion. Those wells have been shut down.

Darby said he finds it hard to believe that the EDB could have traveled 480 feet (the depth of the most shallow city well at the golf course) from July to November.

"Thousands of gallons of EDB have been used on farming fields and in orange groves over the years," Darby said, adding it is obvious research must be done to discover what happens to EDB after it is applied to the soil.

He said the University of Florida is forming a center for toxicology and will investigate the problem, but the answers won't be available for years. "The research will take a lot of money and time," he said.

Polk Fighting Lenient Concealed Weapons Law

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County sheriff John Polk is up in arms over one of two gun bills set for consideration by the Florida House of Representatives when it reconvenes this spring.

Polk said that House bill 65, which would give just about anyone the right to carry a concealed firearm, is something law enforcement officials, not to mention the general public, can't live with.

"I strongly oppose gun registration and the outlawing of firearms. I think that right is guaranteed by the Constitution," Polk said. "But I am working to defeat this bill that will allow anyone over 21 who hasn't been declared an alcoholic, mentally incompetent, a drug abuser, or who has had their civil rights restored after a felony conviction, or who doesn't have a physical handicap that would keep them from properly handling a gun, to apply for and receive from their county commission a permit to carry

Judge: Quadraplegic Has No Right To Die

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — An attorney for the cerebral palsy victim who lost the first round in her fight to die rather than live out her life in abject pain says his client still intends to starve herself to death — with or without court sanction.

Superior Court Judge John H. Hews refused to grant Elizabeth Bouvia an injunction Friday to prevent Riverside County Hospital from force-feeding the 26-year-old woman, ruling her right to choose whether to live or die was superseded by the interests of the state and society.

Are Florida Convicts Getting Off Light?

By Deane Jordan
Herald Staff Writer

Florida convicts, it appears, are getting off lighter these days.

New sentencing guidelines intended to relieve stress on an overcrowded prison system have, at first glance, actually reduced the length of time a criminal will spend behind bars in many cases.

But since the new guidelines went into effect Oct. 1, at least one local public defender says sentences really haven't changed much.

But the potential is certainly there. Which of these two jail sentences would you rather serve — 4½ or 15 years? The answer seems obvious.

Prior to the implementation of the new guidelines, a guilty verdict on a charge of strong arm robbery, for example, could have netted the offender a maximum sentence of 15 years in state prison. Since Oct. 1, however, the maximum sentence a judge can impose for the same crime, with rare exception, is 4½ years, according to Assistant State Attorney Steve Brady.

Defendants charged with a felony before Oct. 1 have the option of being tried under the old sentencing system — gambling on the judge's decision — or participating in the new definite-sentence system.

According to Brady, the majority of defendants eligible for the option choose the new system.

The new sentencing guidelines were adopted for two reasons, Brady said. The first was to make sentencing uniform throughout the state. The other was to keep the prisons from becoming even more overcrowded than they already are.

Brady said that prior to Oct. 1, there were sentencing discrepancies from one part of the state to another for similar felonies and from one county to another. Even judges within the same judicial district sentenced differently for similar crimes, he said.

To solve the problem a Sentencing Guideline Commission reviewed the situation and established nine categories of felonies based on severity. They are: murder; sex offenses; robbery; violent personal crimes such as aggravated battery; burglary; theft, forgery, and fraud; drugs crimes; weapon offenses such as carrying a concealed weapon or possession of a firearm by a convicted felon; and, all other felonies not covered in the first eight categories such as kidnapping, arson, and child abuse. The new guidelines do not apply to misdemeanors.

When a person is charged with any of the aforementioned crimes now, a point value is determined giving the defendant a score which coincides with a recommended sentence. The formula used to determine a sentence takes six factors into consideration — the primary offense, nature of the offense, prior convictions and convictions for similar crimes, the legal status of the defendant such as whether he or she was on probation at the time of the crime, and whether the victim was physically injured.

If, for example, a man was convicted of rape and robbery, Brady said, the sentence would be determined as follows:

Rape, a second-degree felony in this theoretical case, would receive 132 points, as indicated by the sentencing guideline. To that score is added 26 points for robbery and 26 points for a theoretical prior conviction for burglarizing a pharmacy. If the woman was injured during the sexual assault or there was penetration, 40 more points is added to the list for a total of 224 points.

The tally of 224 points falls in a sentence category of 208-229 total points which carries with it a recommended sentence of between 3½ to 4½ years. Under the old system, the same defendant could have received up to 30 years in prison, 15 years for each crime, according to Brady.

If the theoretical defendant had committed just robbery and had no prior convictions, the maximum sentence the judge could have imposed would be 360 days in the county jail. Before Oct. 1, the sentence could have been 15 years in prison, according to Brady.

A judge can give a sentence different from that recommended by the guidelines but if he does, a written explanation as to why must be made, Brady said.

According to Brady, the new system was a subtle way of telling judges they could no longer sentence people to as lengthy a term as they wanted.

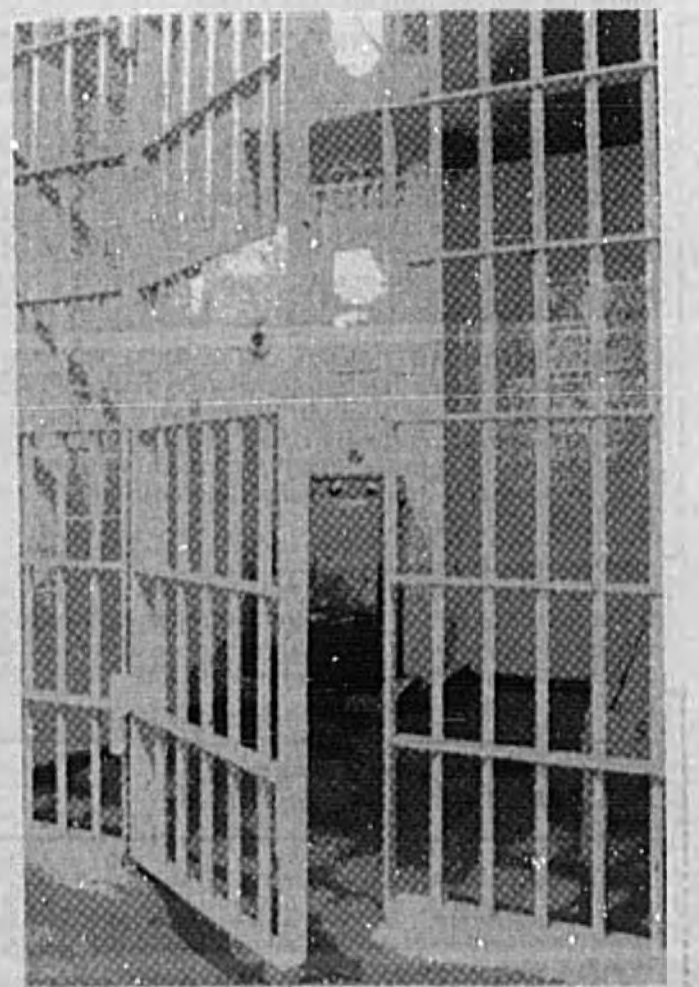

"When it gets down to reality, where are you going to put them all?" he asked.

"I imagine that one of these days that there will be enough criminals going through the revolving door so fast that the public will be willing to have their taxes raised in order to build more correctional facilities," Brady said.

While the new system — which also provides a day off for every day spent on good behavior (called gain time) — may be appreciated by felons, it is not popular with state prosecutors, the majority of whom were opposed to the change.

Assistant Public Defender Steve Herman disagrees that sentences under the new system are more lenient than in the past.

Drug Abuse Group Needs More Help

Well, a community effort to create an organization to combat alcohol and drug abuse among Sanford youth is off ... to a slow start, to be sure, but off nonetheless.

The group met last Tuesday at the Sanford police department where it was decided to incorporate the organization, whose main purpose will be to bring awareness of the problem to public view, establish guidelines for parents, alert parents to symptoms of drug and alcohol abuse, and to provide information for professional referral services.

We say the group is off to a slow start because Sanford Police Sgt. Bill Bernosky sent out 100 written invitations to civic and business leaders, educators and the clergy, but only 3 showed up. The other 21 or so interested persons on hand came because they were telephoned and invited.

We'd like to think the other 97 who received written invitations didn't show because of the busy holiday season.

Surely there is more concern than that in Sanford over what law enforcement and those who work with youth describe as a major problem, but one which can be solved through community effort.

Bernosky said he got the VIP list of names from the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and mailed out the 100 invitations more than a week before the scheduled meeting.

And he's not about to give up. Sgt. Bernosky said he plans to mail the same 100 persons another written invitation for a meeting to be held Jan. 17, well after the holiday festivities have passed.

One of the main points made at last Tuesday's meeting was that public apathy is often responsible for the flourishing of societal problems.

You don't need a written invitation to attend these meetings, and we're confident those involved with the group would welcome input from any citizen. If you'd like to know more about alcohol and drug abuse among Sanford's youth and what you can do to help, give Bernosky a call at the Sanford police station and give him your name. He'll see to it you're contacted on the time and location well in advance of the Jan. 17th meeting.

Leave It Alone

Americans have been pocketing green-colored paper currency since the Civil War. The original "greenbacks" weren't always popular. Acceptance of the notes at any particular time depended largely on public confidence in the war effort. But when state bank notes backed by government bonds became the principal currency after the war, people continued circulating the greenbacks. When the Treasury Department tried to call in all the green dollars in 1879 with a promise to back them with gold, Americans hoarded them.

We also suspect that many of us would hold on to the green, intaglio print currency in use today if Uncle Sam made a major design switch, such as the pink and blue colors reportedly considered. That is a compelling reason for the Treasury Department to stick with what has worked so well over the years.

As travelers outside our borders can attest, many foreign nations use paper currency containing different colors for different denominations. Odd-shaped coins also are widely circulated.

That is no guarantee such practices will work here. Americans like their currency the way it is. The two most recent attempts to change it, the $2 bill and the Susan B. Anthony dollar coin, were expensive flops.

There are good reasons why currency design changes are considered. Printing currency in more than one color could make it easier for the Treasury Department to cope with counterfeiting. The bills also could contain metallic strips to enable detection of large sums being taken out of the country.

Another currency change under discussion would have the face side of bills printed by the familiar "three-dimensional feeling" itaglio method and the back printed by faster and cheaper offset. This practice also is widespread in other countries.

But once again, any benefits from such changes would be lost if the public doesn't like touching the new currency. So why tamper with success?

BERRY'S WORLD

DICK WEST If Human Answers, Hang Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Because of the impending breakup of the Bell system, telephones have become hot gift items for the dialer who has everything.

You can buy — I swear I'm not kidding about this — phones that look like comic strip canines, gumball machines and soft drink bottles. I suppose some phones resemble Cabage Patch dolls, although I haven't seen any advertised. Yet.

Why, some of the new devices of a more radical design even look like telephones. If you can imagine such a thing.

Whatever the shape of the instrument, owning your own phone, as opposed to leasing it from Ma Bell, is going to take some getting used to.

Most of the seven new independent phone companies created under an antitrust agreement have been trying to acustom subscribers to their way of doing business.

I particularly admired the foresight displayed on an instruction sheet telling how to check out faulty equipment.

In some circumstances, I gather, you can still report trouble to the company, just as you always did with Ma Bell. But first, the new management would like you to make sure the problem is in the line, and not in one of those fancy new phones you got from Santa Claus.

To help make the determination, it suggests borrowing a phone from a neighbor to see if it works when plugged into your line.

There is, of course, no need to borrow trouble, too, but, anticipating an equipment breakdown at my house, I decided to determine in advance which neighbors might be more likely to lend phones.

The first one I tried was Phizbeam next door.

"May I borrow your telephone?" I asked when he answered my knock at his door.

"Certainly," Phizbeam replied. "You are welcome to make a call just as soon as my wife hangs up. And it won't cost you a cent. My telephone doesn't even have a pay slot."

"No, no," I said. "You don't understand. I don't need to make a call here. I want to borrow your phone to take home with me."

Phizbeam began to shuffle his feet nervously, probably remembering the time I had knocked at his door to borrow a cup of gin.

"Let me see if I've got this straight," he said. "You are asking me to unplug my telephone, thereby cutting off all contact with the outside world, so you can borrow it?"

He paused here a moment, as though trying to grasp the enormity of the request.

"When were you planning to pay me back?"

Recovering a borrowed telephone apparently requires more diligence than forcing the repayment of a cup of gin. Within half an hour, Phizbeam was knocking on my door, demanding the return of his phone.

IRS Vet Not Lured Into Wrongdoing

WASHINGTON — Here's a story you might want to mull over as you brace for your annual income tax packet from the Internal Revenue Service week after next.

Government agents tried to test the ethics of a respected IRS official who refused to go along with a deal to cut millions of dollars off the delinquent tax bill of Joe Conforte, a former Nevada bordello operator. They tried to lure the troublesome official into a bribery scheme supposedly aimed at cutting Conforte's taxes — the very thing the official had refused to do.

The trap came up empty. The honest official, Gerald F. Swanson, declined to be suckered into the bribe scheme. Yet Swanson was subsequently handed an official reprimand on the nebulous charge that certain of his actions posed "a potential embarrassment" to the IRS.

My associate Tony Capaccio has seen an independent examiner's report that attests to Swanson's honesty. The examiner concluded that Swanson is "a

Along with all the fun, games and merriment associated with Christmas, the celebration carries a tremendous amount of responsibility.

There's gift buying, shopping for special foods, polishing the premises and decking the halls.

Then there's the activity and festivity. Besides all the parties, there is that special musical concert you drag yourself to knowing full well the yawns will set in when the soothing music starts. But we wouldn't miss it for the world.

Let's see now. How many times have we seen The Nutcracker? But the traditional ballet is just as much a part of Christmas as ambrosia with freshly grated coconut.

There are parades, a host of Santas to be heralded royally, and church on Christmas Eve.

Then there's the school play which most parents and grandparents wouldn't miss for the world. They better not. This is the season when Suzy and Junior better watch out, better not pout and better be dramatic thespians in their roles of shepherds. Wise Men, Mary or Scrooge because Santa Claus is coming to town.

Thursday night, All Souls School presented its annual Christmas program. All eight grades performed and there was some fine acting, singing and music by the small school band.

Although there was not an elevated stage and we couldn't see too well, the production on a shoe string budget was amazing. The large room where the program was held serves as the cafeteria, gymnasium and social hall. It is utilized to the fullest daily. There is no gingerbread and the hard metal chairs are certainly not as comfortable as the posh seating arrangement at the Kennedy Center. But talent is talent and the Christmas program would have been super-special in a cornfield.

Principal Ellen Vienotte, the teachers and all students are to be commended for an excellent performance.

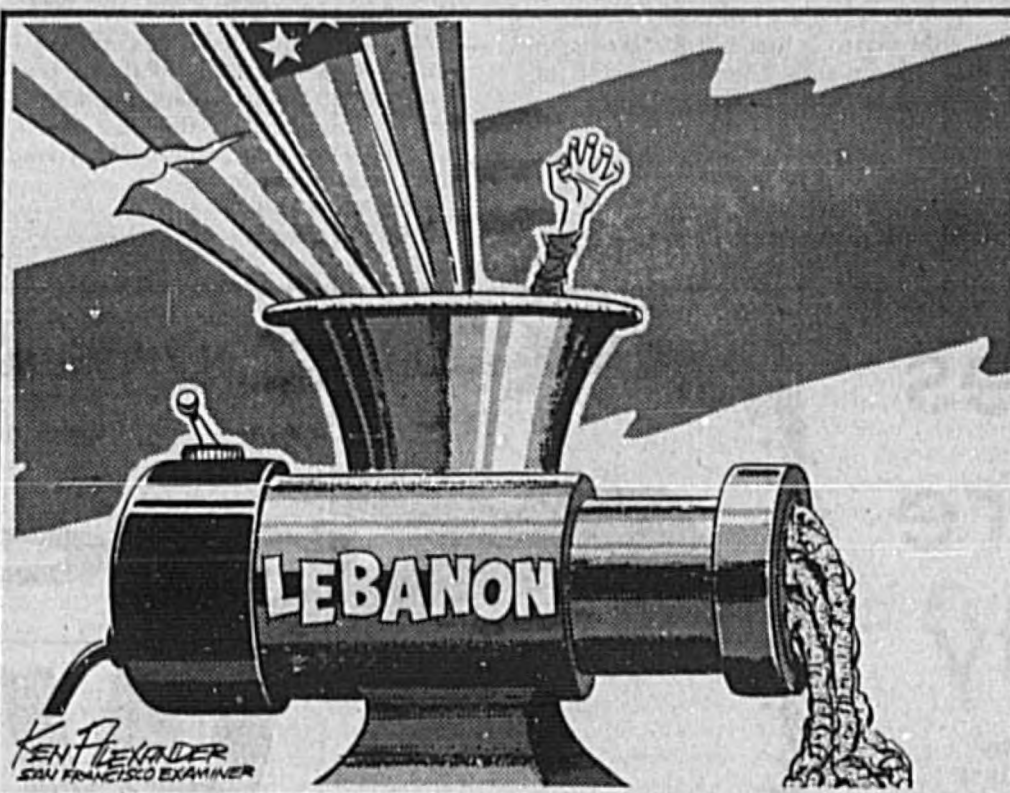

Another annual event not to be missed is the Businesswomen's Luncheon sponsored annually by the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, and this year, co-sponsored by Rich Food Plan and Flagship Bank of Seminole.

About 310 businesswomen lunched at the Sanford Civic Center while being entertained by pianist Grace O'Brian and exercise specialists from the Total Fitness Center of Sanford.

The frosting on the cake was that more than 200 door prizes from local merchants were awarded as shrieks of delight echoed through the vast auditorium.

During the luncheon, Duke Adamson, president of Rich Food Plan of Florida, announced the company will award four scholarships annually (one of $1,000 and three of $500) beginning this year. Karen Coleman is chairman of the scholarship committee which will select four recipients from Seminole's 38,000 students.

It was a great day for the ladies — and a handful of men.

RUSTY BROWN A Woman Of China

SHANGHAI (NEA) — One woman's life can sometimes be a story of the times. We cannot separate Joan of Arc from the Medieval church, just as we cannot think of Annie Frank apart from the Nazis.

Though she's not a world-class heroine, the same can be said for Zhang Wen Ying, 28, of Shanghai. Her life reveals as much about the Peoples' Republic of China today as it does about her.

Friendly and easy to talk to, she is a guide with the Shanghai Youth Federation Travel Service, and she has acquired — from Americans — the nickname "Kate."

She interprets for our group when we talk with Chinese in their homes or at work.

Her clothes are an outward sign that China's Communist Party has eased the dress code requiring both men and women to wear proletarian blue jackets and trousers. Jewelry and makeup were long banned as "bourgeois evils."

While the asexual, uniformed look is still the norm in dusty, bleak Peking, Shanghai women are breaking away and wearing bright suit jackets. On this day, Kate is wearing a tweedy white blazer and a red blouse that ties just below her neck to reveal a strand of beads.

She also wears one of the young's most coveted accessories — a pair of fashionable sunglasses.

She married a professional singer in October. He is 34 and their ages are compatible with China's policy of late marriage as a means of postponing childbearing. "Ours is not an arranged marriage, as was the custom," she says, "but a mutual friend did introduce us."

Kate tells me she will wait two years before having her first, and only, child. She intends to comply with China's policy of one-child families, "because we must do something about our overpopulation."

When she graduated from high school 10 years ago, she was assigned to work in a nylon manufacturing plant, 28 kilometers (about 17 miles) from Shanghai.

Young people in China are not free to seek jobs on their own and to decline an assignment requires a wait of five years for another.

Our guide worked at the looms five years. "One day," she recalls, "the plant announced openings for interpreters and translators. Those who applied had to take an examination in Chinese, math, politics, written and oral English. I passed and was given 18 months of foreign language training." Then she became an interpreter for the foreign engineers who came to explain or install machinery. She also translated technical papers from English to Chinese.

More than a year ago, however, she suffered a detached retina. After a 40-day hospital stay, she was assigned to the Youth Travel Service.

Kate feels she has as much opportunity for advancement in her job as her male colleagues. She earns 45 yuan a month (about $23) with a regular bonus of 12 yuan ($6) because she's good at her job.

When Kate was making plans to marry, she, like most brides, wanted "24 legs." "That's the number of legs on essential furniture newlyweds used to think they needed to set up housekeeping," she says, laughing. In her case: a bed, a bedside table, two chairs, a table and chest.

But today's couples are also caught up in the wave of unabashed consumerism sweeping the country with the blessing of the government. After years of spartan living under Chairman Mao, people are now encouraged to buy.

So most couples want more than "24 legs." "I bought a sewing machine," says Kate, "and my husband bought us a sofa, bookcase, TV and tape player." Now she's eyeing a "White Cloud" brand refrigerator, but her husband wants a piano first.

She expects to combine motherhood with working. "In China, all women work," she says. She is surprised that this is not always true in America. "I have heard that some women there don't work and are supported by their husbands," she says. "I don't think I would like that. Then I would have to listen to my husband all the time."

Even with her modern outlook on marriage and work, she chose to respect an ancient tradition: She lives with her husband's parents.

Zhang Wen Ying is confident about today and ambitious for tomorrow. Yet she keeps her respect for the past. To me, she epitomizes the young women of China.

DON GRAFF It's A Matter Of Credibility

You know of course that Lech Walesa was not in Oslo to receive his Nobel Peace Prize.

Did you also know that he heard every word of the ceremonies in which his wife accepted the prize for him?

Walesa, I read in The New York Times, was back home in Gdansk tuned in to a broadcast of the proceedings.

On Radio Free Europe.

The incident says a lot about present-day Poland and about RFE, which has long been unique among Western broadcasters to the communist world.

That is because RFE programming, as stated in a declaration of policy, "emphasizes reportage on developments within and affecting its audience area — reporting denied by censored domestic media. Other Western shortwave stations as government stations broadcast worldwide primarily to promote understanding of the sponsoring country and its policies."

In short, RFE is first and foremost a Polish — and a Czech and Hungarian and Rumanian and Bulgarian — station. It is a surrogate for national radios which do not exist because freedom of information does not exist.

Before we get any deeper into this, I should tell you that I have — or did have — a connection with RFE. I once worked there.

I thus find not only the Walesa story of particular interest, but other news out of the Munich RFE headquarters which does not speak so well for the cause.

Deepening differences over policies and personnel led earlier this year to the resignation of the director of broadcast operations. The immediate issue was the appointment of a new chief of the Czech desk.

Very briefly, the choice was complicated by a generational conflict between more recent Czech emigres, many of whom had been participants in the "Prague spring" of 1968, and an older guard which has been in the West much longer and sees itself as more certifiably anti-communist.

Director James Brown's choice as chief was attuned to the younger Czechs who, it was argued, could better communicate with audiences back home in contemporary terms.

The Board of International Broadcasting, the government agency that has supervised RFE since CIA ties were severed a decade ago, thought otherwise. It sided with the old guard.

Brown, who is British and was with RFE for 26 years in various capacities, resigned, citing "political differences" over the direction the radio should take.

The affair might be dismissed as simply another internal dust-up — not unknown in my time — if it were confined to Munich.

But it is not. It is one consequence of a harder ideological line being laid down in Washington. The intent is to make RFE a more aggressive voice in the war of words between East and West and to give more emphasis to American affairs and views — or shall we say "to promote understanding of the sponsoring country and its policies."

memo noted. But it added that Swanson, then in charge of the IRS district office, "advised that part payment arrangements are generally not acceptable unless the taxpayer is in current compliance with tax laws."

To see if Conforte's testimony was worth several million dollars, Swanson sent an investigator to Brazil to interview him. Swanson decided it wasn't worth the cost and opposed the tax deal.

So from February to April 1982, federal agents recorded conversations between Conforte's attorney and an intermediary who was supposed to offer Swanson a bribe.

The only evidence that turned up was that Swanson had given tax information about Conforte to a non-government source who was involved in the case. But the information was publicly available.

Nevertheless, Swanson was reprimanded, transferred and demoted. When he filed a grievance, the independent examiner ripped the IRS case to shreds, pointing out that the three months of tapes had been selectively edited.

"If the rest of the taping is included, it clearly shows that Swanson is an honest person, above board in all matters," the examiner wrote, adding: "It is beyond my comprehension that an investigation would only include taped interviews from the middle of the sequence Dealing with half-truths and not whole truths is very dangerous, misleading and poor work."

But the IRS said the fact that the tax information Swanson disclosed was public record and that no embarrassment had actually resulted was "irrelevant."

Footnote: Swanson's case has been the subject of numerous articles in the feisty Las Vegas Sun, and is now being examined by a Senate subcommittee staff under Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa.

Cabbage Patch Mania

Clinic Delivers Fantasy With Original Soft-Sculpture Dolls

By Charles S. Taylor

CLEVELAND, Ga. (UPI) — On a busy day hundreds of people troop through the carpeted halls of Babyland General Hospital to see what mountain artist Xavier Roberts has wrought.

For one thing, it's a business empire already worth $100 million by some estimates. Some think the fortune the 28-year-old Roberts has amassed with his Cabbage Patch Kids is only the beginning.

There is no plush office building in the two-stoplight north Georgia mountain town of Cleveland (population, 1,578) and no giant factory or other trappings of financial power.

That is perfectly in keeping with the fantasy of Roberts' soft sculpture dolls, says public relations director Laura M. Meier.

They are called babies, not dolls, "born," not manufactured, and "adopted," not sold.

When each doll's first birthday rolls around, the hospital sends it a birthday card.

This whimsy has captured the imagination of millions of shoppers — so much so that near riots have occurred in retail stores where supplies could not meet demand.

Roberts launched his empire with a $5,000 bank loan that he used five years ago to handsew the first dolls and sell them at craft shows.

Earlier this year his firm, Original Appalachian Artworks, Inc., signed a marketing agreement with Coleco Industries to mass manufacture the Cabbage Patch Kids.

The empire built on a foundation of soft, decidedly unhandsome dolls is, by some estimates, worth $100 million. Its base is in a two-stoplight north Georgia town where whimsy is turned to gold...

The smaller, vinyl-faced dolls (his handmade ones are all cloth) are made in Hong Kong and Amsterdam, N.Y., by the West Hartford, Conn.-based manufacturer. They sell for about $22 in the United States.

The problem is finding one to buy. At Babyland General, there are no angry crowds and no waiting lines for the handmade dolls whose prices range upwards from $125.

"Dr." Robin Davis, 25, and "nurse" Mary Daniel, 41, greet visitors in the lobby of the single-story, white-painted "hospital," once a real doctor's clinic.

A sign says, "We are practicing planned parenthood. Only two babies per parent."

Ms. Davis conducts a free tour of rooms filled with bassinets containing the dolls.

The Grand Edition dolls, in evening clothes, are $1,000 each. A doll with the personal signature of Roberts and a reddish "rash" on its rump is $250.

Large scrapbooks containing clippings about the dolls are strategically placed along the tour route.

Ms. Davis identifies a doll named Justin Heath as the first baby that learned to stand. Price, $3,000.

"This is the newborn nursery," she says, stopping at a room with shelves of baby food and play blocks. "This is where they are brought from the delivery room."

The charade continues at the "delivery room." A loudspeaker announcement says a "baby" is about to be "born." Visitors rush to witness the birth.

"Dr. Davis" gently lifts a doll from one of several fabric cabbage heads in a make-believe cabbage patch adjoining the delivery room.

"It's a boy," she says, after injecting the head with a shot of "imagincillin."

She asks several visitors to help name the dolls. Two women quickly say, "Grant Benjamin."

The tour ends in a large room full of stuffed animals that opens onto a gift shop.

"This isn't a small time operation anymore," Ms. Davis said, citing visits by television crews from West Germany, Italy, Australia, Canada and Britain.

Roberts, who always travels with a doll, Otis Lee, left recently on a promotional trip to Britain.

"We will distribute our Cabbage Patch Kid products all over the world," Ms. Davis said.

Accessories include clothes, backpacks and lunchboxes.

"I hate to see the children disappointed if they don't get a Cabbage Patch Kid this Christmas," she said. "But Christmas can come all the year and I think they will be just as popular after Christmas as they are now."

Not all visitors share the Babyland fantasy.

"Ya'll got a lot of baloney," said one man.

Another, asked if he planned to "adopt" a doll said,

"No, sir, I've got a better use for my money."

Ms. Meier defends the fantasy.

"If anything, we're trying to help children escape.

This is an alternative to sitting in front of a TV set and the computer games. This uses your imagination."

Bids To Be Accepted At Herald

Young Cabbage-Patcher Available To Good Home

Are you still looking for a Coleco Cabbage Patch Kid to give to a special son or daughter, grandchild, or other deserving youngster? The Evening Herald might just be able to accommodate you before Christmas.

I managed to get my hands on one of the adorable little creatures a few days ago. Actually, I set out to get one to adopt it myself.

He's the cutest thing I've ever seen. Reggie Oscar, that's his name, was born in a cabbage patch in Cleveland, Ga., Oct. 1, 1983.

I thought at first a northerner of Italian extraction might find it difficult to communicate with a southern child obviously not of the Latin persuasion.

I'm happy to say, however, we hit it right off. I could tell Reggie was happy beyond words when I first held him to my chest and vowed to find him the best parent a child could ever have.

Where did I get Reggie at this late date?

That's what several of my green-with-envy colleagues wanted to know as I carried him from department to department at the Herald, recording the varied reactions of the men and women as they first set eyes upon my new-found son. Some were agog, their jaws dropping ... their mouths transformed into gaping caverns revealing a cavity here and there.

Some were skeptical: "That's not a real Cabbage Patch Kid is it?" When I said he was, indeed, a Coleco Cabbage Patch Kid, one of the younger girls begged, "Oh, can I hold it? ... Just for a few seconds!"

I granted her wish, but cautioned her not to squeeze Reggie too tight. Babies eight weeks old are fragile, you know.

"Wherever did you come across this beautiful child?" one of the envious women asked. "You aren't going to keep it, are you? I know a nice little girl who'd really flip over that doll this Christmas."

Editor's Choice

Tom Giordano

No, I'm not going to keep him ... and he most certainly is not a doll. Where'd I get Reggie? Well, I have these friends in New Jersey ... one of them promised to see to it I got one.

Later that afternoon, a long, black limousine pulled up at the office. When I got into the back seat the giant sitting next to me placed a black hood over my head. We drove around, oh, I guess for an hour and a half. In the hope I could return to my mysterious destination, I tried to record the sounds I heard ... the shrill train whistle in the distance, some children shouting game-playing instructions at each other, a woman yelling for her child to come into the house. I tried remembering the number of stops we made, either for traffic lights or stop signs. But, try as I might, I became totally disoriented.

The car finally stopped and the two men sitting in the back seat with me helped me out of the car. One of them removed the hood. I blinked momentarily as my eyes rejected the bright light. When they adjusted to the light, the ominous-looking weather-worn barn in front of me came into focus.

The giants escorted me inside where I was greeted by a woman attired in a stiffly-starched white hospital gown and surgical mask.

Before I could take Reggie into my arms, I too had to put on a surgical mask.

Then we dressed him: in a tiny red cap to complement his dark, red hair; a red plaid shirt, blue denim overalls and tiny white shoes that resemble sneakers.

Then, before I could leave, I had to raise my right hand and repeat the nurse's words, vowing to find him a loving and caring parent ... swearing to get a commitment from his new parent that Reggie would be hugged at least once a day ... making the parent promise not to discard him in some dark corner of the house.

I know ya'll (there, the kid's got me talkin' like a southerner already) think I'm being silly. But all I can tell those of you who can't find one is, it wasn't hard to strike up an immediate attachment for this kid. It'll be tough to turn him loose.

An editorial writer praising the toy manufacturer for producing the soft-sculpture children, noting it's good to see the creator remembers what it was like to be a child, describes them this way:

"They are a wondrously uncomely bunch — floppy of limb, freckled and pudgy of cheek, with hair, when it's there, that would drive a Hollywood stylist bonkers."

I agree with most of what he said ... However, although he may think they're all an uncomely bunch, I know he wouldn't say that if he saw Reggie.

Tell ya what. On a more serious note, and because we're confident Reggie would be proud of what I'm about to suggest, the Herald's going to relinquish custody of this magnificent doll ... to anyone who wants him for a deserving and loving child. We'll accept telephone bids at 322-2611 during normal working hours Dec. 19 through Dec. 21, and turn Reggie, complete with his birth certificate and adoption papers, over to the highest bidder on Thursday, Dec. 22. We'll donate the proceeds to a charity of our choice.

Evening Herald employees or their relatives are ineligible to bid.

'We All Need To Belong To Somebody'

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Cabbage Patch doll craze is a phenomema that can be partly explained by a song popular during World War II, "I'm Gonna Buy a Paper Doll," an Atlanta psychiatrist said.

"You remember that song a few years ago, 'I'm gonna buy a paper doll that I can call my own ... a doll that other fellows cannot steal?'" said Dr. Alfred Messer. "The punch line is that the paper doll is mine. It belongs to me and I belong to it."

"That's part of the fascination of the Cabbage Patch dolls. We all need to belong to somebody. We look for anything we can call our own."

Messer, a family psychiatrist, said another part of the psychology of the Cabbage Patch craze "is that the doll itself is not a bright sparkling, well-groomed creature. It is quite ordinary and this is partly a revolt against the idea that everything around us has to be perfect."

"It's a touch of the ordinary. This is something we can associate with, it's something we can identify with. There is imperfection in all of us and no one is perfect. The dolls make us feel that everything doesn't have to be perfect."

Messer also said he believes a lot of people are tired of electronic games and are turning to the Cabbage Patch dolls because "here is something that is cuddly and soft and something that you can hold onto and attach yourself to. It offers the chance to get away from electronic gadgetry."

"This man (doll maker Xavier Roberts) recognizes that people want to have something they can be very personal about. There is something different about them. No doll is like any other. The adoption papers tell you it belongs to you and that it's different and not like any other doll you buy in a department store."

Messer said that "of course behind all of this is a brilliant marketing tool. He's taken some of the basic human emotions and has marketed them in a very brilliant way."

But Messer said "I have to be honest and tell you that this is truly a fad and it will pass." It will last probably a year, Messer said, "until the next fad comes along."

He said there was nothing harmful in the Cabbage Patch Kid phenomema. "I would much rather people develop a relationship with other people, but barring that, the doll is a good thing. It's an interesting phenomema to me and there's nothing wrong with it."

Messer noted the computer was used to make each doll unique and he predicted the technique in toy-making will grow in the future.

Messer's comments were similar to those made by Dr. Joyce Brothers, a nationally-known psychologist. Ms. Brothers recently commented in her newspaper column that there were a lot of reasons for the Cabbage Patch doll mania, the main one being "the dolls' clever blend of fantasy and reality."

She said it was time for a return to a toy that doesn't do anything, away from battery-operated toys.

You in your fantasy can make it do anything. It's also soft and cuddly ... it's there to love you when you wake at night, afraid of noises or shadows.

"What do I think of the phenomema of the Cabbage Patch Kids? I think it's wonderful. In a time of increasing alienation to encourage kids to feel warmth, attachment and love, it is a healthy sign."

'Pepper's People'

Seniors Add Spice To Political Arena

G. I recently read that you are traveling around the country encouraging senior citizens to become politically active, to mobilize and help draft an agenda for meeting the needs of America's rapidly growing elderly population. I further understand that senior citizens who are interested in assisting you are enlisting in your grass-roots army called "Pepper's People." Is this true? If so, how can I join?

A. In recent months, I have been traveling across the country to encourage our nation's elderly to become more politically active. I am encouraging them to structure a platform for the elderly for consideration at both the Republican and Democratic Conventions in 1984, and to flex their electoral muscles on behalf of the presidential candidate who truly cares for them. Our grass-roots army of individuals building a better tomorrow for our nation's elderly has become known as "Pepper's People."

Demographic trends indicate that the proportion of elderly Americans will double within 40 years. By 2030 — when those now 18 will turn 65 — there will be 64 million elderly Americans, a 150 percent increase from 1980. This will create a crushing burden on society unless intensive planning begins now.

It is critical that the nation develop a course of action responsive to the current and future employment, retirement, housing and medical needs of the elderly. I am urging senior citizens and others to encourage candidates to commit themselves to an agenda that will improve these conditions.

I believe that no group in our society deserves our commitment and respect more than the 25.5 million citizens aged 65 and older. They built the factories and mills of our nation. They fought to defend our country and our freedom. They worked and sacrificed — and paid taxes — for a lifetime to give us the advantages we have today.

And yet no group is more at risk. One out of four senior citizens lives in poverty or near-poverty. In 1980, half of our elderly households had incomes of less than $248 a week. More than 80 percent of older Americans have at least one chronic health condition. What is truly tragic is that our government — at least in recent years — just doesn't seem to care. Billions of dollars have been slashed in food stamps, Medicare, housing and energy assistance.

If seniors mobilize their support for candidates who support their cause, we know they really can make a difference.

Another goal of "Pepper's People" is to elect some 500 delegates to the 1984 Democratic Convention who are over the age of 65, which is about 12 percent of the total, and roughly the proportion of the elderly in the United States today.

If you are interested in joining "Pepper's People," you can write to PEPPER'S PEOPLE, 516 Constitution Avenue, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002.

IN BRIEF

Building Bullet Train May Be Uphill Battle

MIAMI (UPI) — Despite a $500,000 federal grant awarded to study the feasibility of a "bullet train" linking Miami, Orlando and Tampa, officials say government funds to build the train may be scarce.

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Winter Park, coordinated joint grant signings Friday in the three cities.

Rep. William Lehman, D-Fla., said he is optimistic about the train, but only if private funds are used to pay for it. He said there is no way to get federal funds for land acquisition or construction.

"This is a very intriguing idea, but the proof of whether it's feasible or not is whether the private sector will put its money where its mouth is," said Lehman, who heads the House appropriations subcommittee that must approve funding for transportation.

Nude Dancing Ban Upheld

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — An appeal court says counties have a legitimate governmental interest in regulating topless and nude dancing at nightclubs.

In a 3-0 ruling Friday, the 1st District Court of Appeal affirmed the constitutionality of a Leon County ordinance banning topless and nude dancing from licensed establishments serving alcoholic beverages.

In making its ruling, the three-judge panel cited a U.S. Supreme Court decision last year upholding the authority of states to regulate nude entertainment in connection with the sale of alcoholic beverages without proving it obscene.

Sewage Plan Dumped

TAMPA (UPI) — Orlando officials say an ambitious proposal to inject highly treated sewage into Florida's largest underground drinking-water supply is dead after two years of planning and $5 million.

The proposal died Thursday when the Environmental Regulation Commission adopted new rules at a meeting in Tampa governing underground injection of treated sewage.

Officials said the rules made the project nearly impossible technically and too expensive.

10 Students Tapped For National Honor Society

In recognition of their outstanding academic achievements, 10 students were selected for the fall tapping into National Honor Society.

These students, Keri Albright, Mellanie Boyd, Geoffrey Giordano, Valerie Hartung, Rebecca Haug, Tina Larson, Tracy McNeill, Shelly Moak, Mark Outlaw, Eric Urena, previously filled out membership applications and were chosen for acceptance by the club sponsor, Anna McCarthy, and co-sponsor, Ken Brauman.

Before the proceedings began, parents of the students to be tapped were escorted to the ceremony room by some of the junior members of NHS — Rod Alexander, Rebecca Baker, Diana Croslyn, Joseph Flannery, Dawn Fraley, Janet Hauck, Rita Hemsath, Keri Lake, Beth Nelson, Jeffrey O'Neal, Dana Ray, Anita Smith, Strickland Smith, Michael Wheelchel, Judy White, and Jo Ellen Witt.

Meanwhile, the official tapping was carried out by the senior members — Lila Baker, Katie Barbour, Brett Bateman, Michael Brooks, Bonnie Clark, James Cohen, Lori Cox, Debbie Dudley, Dee Goebelbecker, Susan Mann, Melissa Moore, Penny Morris, Genene Stallworth, Tisha Tipton, and Kaylyn Witherow.

The traditional ceremony of admitting the new members was led by Rita Wesley, NHS president, with the assistance of the other officers — Susana Huaman, vice president; Pamela Williams, secretary; Jill Janak, social chairman; and Sherri Duddles, chaplain. Sam Luke, the treasurer, was not present for the ceremony.

After the new members received their certificates and cards of membership, assistant principal James Thompson led them in the NHS pledge. A small reception was then held for the purpose of congratulating the honored students.

The math problem for this week is: Two sportsmen A and B went out shooting and brought home 10 birds. The sum of the squares of the number of shots was 2,880, and the product of the numbers of shots fired by each was 48 times the product of the number of birds killed by each. If A had fired as often as B and B as often as A, then B would have killed 5 more birds than A; find the number of birds killed by each.

Prestigious Scholarship Awarded

Lake Mary's Junior Class President, Robert Greenstein, has recently been named one of only two representatives from the state chosen to participate in the prestigious Youth Senate Program.

After passing the many rigorous qualification procedures, Robert won a scholarship plus a fabulous trip to Washington, D.C. during which he'll meet President Reagan.

Robert also exemplified his standing as one of Lake Mary's finest students as he scored a 1540 out of a possible 1600 on the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT) — Lake Mary's highest score.

This exam, known as a qualification test for the National Merit Scholar Program, bases its choices on a score called the selection index. If last year's selection index remains the same this year, Lake Mary will have an unbelievable 15 National Merit Scholars.

This number is unheard of for high schools, and Lake Mary High School has certainly proven itself academically.

Marine Cited For Saving Life

Cpl. Robert W. Kelly

Former Marine Cpl. Robert W. Kelly, 26, of 701 W. 24th Place, Sanford, son of Robert and Helen Kelly, has just received a Navy Achievement Award citation for saving another Marine while stationed at Cherry Point, N.C. on Feb. 4.

Kelly was discharged from the Marine Corps on Feb. 25 and is now employed by Palmer Electric Co.

He entered a smoke-filled room where a Marine, who had gone to sleep with a cigarette, which caught his bed covers on fire, lay unconscious. The Marine had locked the door in his barracks room and Kelly got the door open and entered the room and rescued and revived the man who had been overcome by smoke and kept the fire from spreading.

Kelly joined the Marines in spite of a leg injury he received playing on the soccer team. He had undergone surgery for a severed ligament. He hurt his leg again while in the Marines and had to undergo another operation.

Seminoles Use 'Force' To Hold Off Lake Howell, 48-40

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Seminole cage coach Chris Marlette fulfilled every coach's fantasy Friday night against the Lake Howell Silver Hawks. He figured if he forced the ball into his leading scorer enough times Willie Mitchell would eventually lead the Seminoles past the Hawks.

So, the Seminoles forced, and forced, and forced and finally Mitchell blew the Hawks' house down, 48-40, in a sloppy Five Star Conference basketball game at Seminole High.

The victory improves Seminole's record to 4-1. It is the fourth straight win after an opening-season setback to Lake Mary. The 10th-ranked 'Noles play Mount Dora in the opening round of the Oviedo Outlook Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Seminole Community College Health Center.

Lake Howell, coached by former Seminole High and SCC cage standout Greg Robinson, turned in a strong performance despite being outmanned. Robinson said he knew the Hawks had to stop Mitchell and they gave it their best shot.

"We tried to front Mitchell with fresh people," said Robinson. "You can hold him down for only so long, though. Then, he's going to hurt you."

Mitchell, averaging 18 points going into the game, finished with 16, but the last six were crucial.

Using a collapsing zone defense, the Hawks took advantage of sorry Seminole foul shooting (10 of 20) to stay close. Seminole used a Steve Grey layup to pull ahead, 34-25, with four minutes left in the third quarter, but Lake Howell pulled back into the game behind Keith Woodridge who dropped in three free throws and a bucket to make the tally, 34-30, heading into the final eight minutes.

Efrem Brooks then grabbed the tip and raced in for a short jumper to pull the Hawks within two with 7:50 to play. Mitchell, though, took a nice pass from Tommy Stiffey and scored to put Seminole up by four.

Prep Basketball

Hayward Beasley countered on a rebound bucket for the Hawks, but Mitchell came back with a rebound of his own to put Seminole ahead, 38-34, with 5:40 to play.

The Hawks then worked the ball inside to Jeron Evans, who was fouled. He hit both free throws to pull the Hawks within 38-36 with 5:24 to play, but Mitchell struck again, turning another good feed from Stiffey, turning and hitting a short jumper for a 40-36 lead.

"Every time we closed within two, Mitchell would hit one," said Robinson. "He wants the ball, and he knows how to work for it. You don't see that too much in high school."

And Stiffey knew how to get it to him. "Mitchell was open all night," said Marlette. "But (James) Rouse and (Kenny) Gordon couldn't get him the ball. When Stiffey went in, he didn't have any problem."

Seminole salted the game away in the final three minutes as point guard Bruce Franklin hit five free throws and Rouse hit two for the final eight-point victory margin.

Despite the win, Marlette was displeased. "That's the worst effort I've seen since I've been here (two years)," said Marlette. "There was just too much partying at school today. We had two good days of practice, the we come out and play like this. It must be the holidays."

He was, however, impressed with Lake Howell. "Lake Howell did a good job," said Marlette. "They were patient. They hustle and get back on defense. We just didn't play very well."

Mitchell added 12 rebounds along with his 16 points. Franklin, who was hampered by foul trouble, finished with 10 points and six assists. Stiffey turned in three steals and three assists. Gordon had all of his nine points in the second quarter.

Crockett BeHannon led the Hawks with 11 points, but he was limited to two in the second half. Brooks finished with eight and Woodridge had seven.

LAKE HOWELL (40) — BeHannon 11, Woodridge 7, Anderson 2, Brooks 8, Evans 6, Beasley 4, Banyacksi 2, Totals 16 9-12 40.

SEMINOLE (48) — Mitchell 16, Gordon 9, Gilchrist Franklin 10, Rouse 6, Grey 2, Stiffey 2, Holloman 0, Totals 19 10-20 48.

Halftime — Seminole 28, Lake Howell 23. Fouls — Lake Howell 14, Seminole 18. Fouled out — BeHannon, Technicals — none.

Daryl Williams tossed in 18 points while Alvin Jones and Robert Hill dominated the boards as the Seminole junior varsity won its fourth game in five outings with a 39-31 victory over Lake Howell.

Williams got several breakaways and hit some corner jump shots for his 18 points. Jones pulled down 11 rebounds, and led both teams and added six points. Hill finished with eight boards and eight points.

"The way we shot free throws in the final three minutes, I thought we were going to give it away," said coach John McNamara. "But, Jones and Hill controlled the boards, that helped."

Likens, Davis Collide At 114

Strength vs. quickness.
Savvy vs. speed.
Lake Mary vs. Edgewater
Jack Likens vs. Eugene "Dap" Davis.

Prep Wrestling

That's the matchup and look for it to be one of the greatest wrestling encounters in Lyman Christmas Tournament history Saturday night at 8 p.m. at Lake Mary High School.

Likens, the 3A 109-pound champion last year for the Rams, and Davis, a 4A 100-pound champ last year for Edgewater, come together at 114 pounds in the Lake Mary gymnasium Saturday night. Both advanced to the finals Saturday morning despite tough matches.

Likens edged Bishop Moore's Jim Syvertson for the fourth straight time over the past two years, 3-1. The heady senior and Syvertson were scoreless after one period. In the second two minutes, Likens picked up a penalty point and then reversed Syvertson with a "switch" for a 3-0 lead. In the final period, Likens rode Syvertson out, but lost a point for locking his hands.

Davis, meanwhile, relied on his endurance to claim a 6-2 victory over Oviedo's Shawn Knapp. Both wrestlers were tied going into the third period, but the lightning-quick Davis picked up four points to take the win.

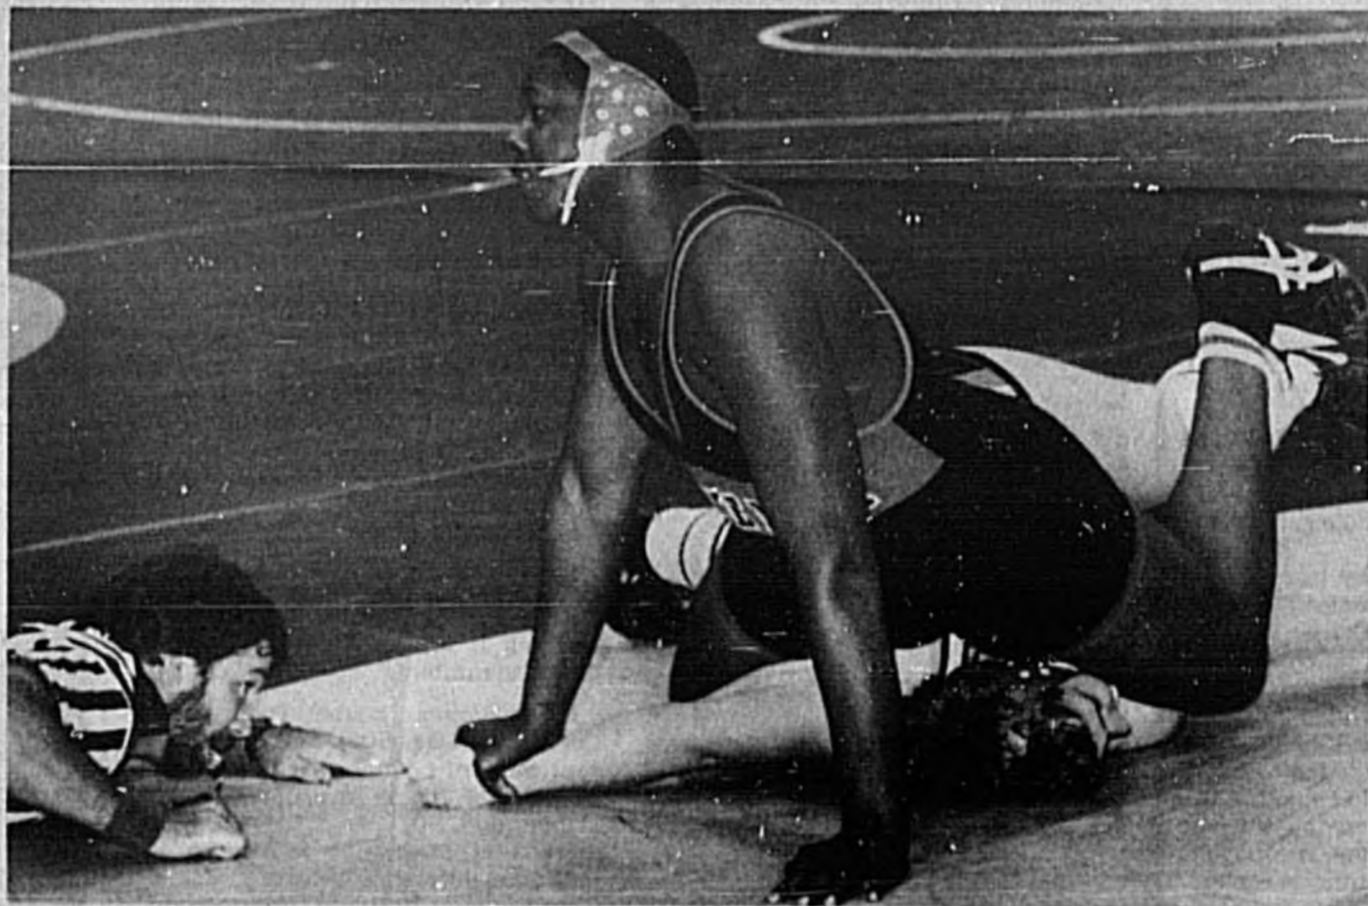

Brown Charges Into 140 Finals

Seminole's Tony Brown charged into the finals at 140 pounds with a solid 18-6 victory over Oak Ridge's Curt Semerik.

Brown started quickly building a 7-1 lead with takedowns and escapes in the first period. He then went up, 13-4, on the strength of two near falls and finished with a 12-point victory.

Brown, a senior with an 8-0 record, breezed through Friday's first two rounds by whipping Donald Oswald of Winter Park, 10-4, and pinning Carlos Suarez in 3:30.

Brown's opponent for Saturday's final will be Tony Perazzola of Brandon. Perazzola blanked Lake Mary's tough 140-pounder Bob Olson, 4-0. "He got a takedown with two seconds left in the period, then reversed Olson," said Schwartz. "But Bob really gave him a helluva go. Perazzola is a great wrestler."

Robert Rawls (above) has little trouble squashing Colonial's Allen Dubrey in the first round of the Lyman Christmas Wrestling Tourney Friday night at Lake Mary High School. The Rams' 300-pounder pinned Dubrey in 27 seconds. Below, Lake Mary coach Frank Schwartz loosens up 107-pounder Ivan Carbia before his match. Carbia came away with two pins Friday to move into Saturday morning's semifinal round. Championship finals are Saturday night at 8.

"Davis is just so quick it's unbelievable," said Lake Mary coach Frank Schwartz. "But I think strength-wise Likens can take him. Davis is fast, but Likens is stronger. It will be a great match."

It won't be the only great match either. Lake Mary's junior standout Ivan Carbia pulled out an 11-6 victory over Oviedo's Chuck Harmon and will meet Pedro Esquerre, a state-place finisher last year from Brandon, for the championship at 107 pounds. Esquerre pinned Karl Ziegenbrien in 3:40.

Although the Oviedo Lions were whipped at 107 and 114, tough 100-pounder Jerry Jordan turned in a strong performance by pinning Colonial's Chuck Hastings in 3:42 to advance to the finals against Ben Hendrickson, who defeated Lyman's Chad Dubin, 12-4.

In the next two weight divisions, coach John Horn's Oviedo team went 1 for 2. Brian Smith dished out Donald Winter of Winter Park, 7-1, to move into the 121-pound championship final against Brandon's Art Artolona, who disposed of Bishop Moore's Mike McKenna, 11-7.

Seminole freshman Troy Turner joined teammate Brown in the finals when he roared back from a 6-4 deficit to top Mark Folger of Astronaut. Turner put together a reversal and a near fall in the final two minutes to pull out an 8-6 victory.

Turner will meet Lyman's Derek Smith, a 7-4 winner over Winter Park's Steve Corn, in Saturday's 157-pound championship.

Although Lake Mary and Oviedo have kept pace individually, neither can make the team strength of Brandon, runnerup in the 4A State Meet last year, and state champs in 1982.

Brandon had 77 points after two rounds while Lake Mary was next with 53 1/2 and Oviedo was third with 47.

Big Phelps, Little Payton Pace SCC Win

By Chris Flster
Herald Sports Writer

While big Luis Phelps kept the fire burning for Seminole Community College Friday night, little Jimmy Payton ignited the Raiders when they needed it most.

J.C. Basketball

Phelps, a 6-6 center-forward, poured in a game-high 29 points and pulled down 10 rebounds. Payton, a 6-0 guard, came on strong in the end with eight points in the last two minutes to guide the Raiders to a 91-81 victory over Manatee CC's Lancers at the SCC Health Center.

"Luis (Phelps) had a great night," SCC coach Bill Payne said. "When he concentrates, he can do it."

"Jimmy (Payton) took over the game there at the end," Payne said. "He came through when we needed it most."

SCC, which has won its last two games, now stands at 9-5 and will be back in action after the Christmas break. Manatee, the fifth-ranked team in the state, fell to 8-3.

"It's hard to believe they (SCC) have lost five games," Manatee coach Harry half as the Raiders took a 43-38 lead at the intermission.

The Raiders never lost the lead in the second half, although the Lancers came back to tie it twice. The last time it was tied was at 55-55 with 12 minutes remaining. SCC then reeled off six straight points and went on a 18-7 scoring surge to take an 11-point lead, 73-62, with six minutes left.

Manatee then came roaring back and pulled to within three points, 77-74, with 3:37 remaining. Manatee stayed within four points, 82-78, with two minutes left, but Payton then took charge.

The flashy sophomore made a twisting layup and was fouled in the process with 1:40 left. Payton converted the three-point play to put SCC up by seven, 85-78. After Manatee cut it back down to five, 85-80, Payton made another pretty move to the hoop for two points with one minute left. After Manatee failed to score on its next possession, Payton came back with 43 seconds left to hit one of two free throws and ice the victory for the Raiders.

Phelps put the finishing touches on the Lancers with a slam dunk at the buzzer.

Phelps' performance Friday night not only impressed the fans and his coach, it also caught the eye of Bill Wright, the assistant coach at the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga. UT-Chattanooga is just one of many teams recruiting the former Spring Hill Springstead High standout.

"From the letters and pamphlets they've sent me, UT-Chattanooga sounds pretty nice," Phelps said.

Although he is definitely major-college material, Phelps feels he has his work cut out for him the rest of this season. "I was satisfied with my performance tonight," he said. "But, I still have a little ways to go yet."

Patriots' 3-Minute Lapse Aids Spruce Creek Victory

PORT ORANGE -- Three minutes isn't a very long time. But it must have seemed like a lifetime to Lake Brantley coach Bob Peterson Friday night against the Spruce Creek Hawks.

Peterson's Patriots were putting together their best effort of the year against the tall and talented Hawks until three minutes remained in the first half.

Spruce Creek, 6-1 overall and 4-0 in conference, was clinging to a 24-20 edge when, suddenly, the Patriots fell apart. Led by senior Rod McCray, the Hawks blitzed the Big Blue, 18-2, and then held off Lake Brantley in the second half for a 71-62 Five Star Conference victory.

"That spurt just killed us," said Peterson who watched his team lose for the fifth time in six games. "We made bad passes and we stopped rebounding. We just had a mental lapse."

"Except for those three minutes, we outplayed them the rest of the game."

The Patriots received another good scoring night from Eric Trombo, who filled up the nets for 24 points. Trombo hit 11 of 28 floor shots and totaled 14 points after halftime.

"Eric was a little intimidated by their height the first half and he was trying to just get the ball over them," said Peterson about Spruce Creek's gigantic front line. "Austin Hodges did a helluva job on the boards. Those guys (6-10 Mark Nichols and 6-8 Fedor) make Greg Courtney (6-7) look like a shrimp."

Brantley battled Spruce Creek to a 28-28 standoff on the boards. Hodges hit 5 of 8 floor shots for 10 points and added six rebounds. Peterson also cited Rex Black and Mike Evans for strong showings off the bench. Junior Dennis Groselose chipped in 10 points.

McCray, a senior guard, tossed in 30 points to lead both teams, many from long range. Nichols had eight and Fedor added six.

The Patriots play Oviedo Saturday night at home.

three more field goals than the Lions.

Oviedo bolted to a 31-17 first-half lead as Cohen hit several outside jumpers.

Bowie Bites Bullet, But Fehr Explodes Over Harsh Penalty

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bowie Kuhn bit the bullet. He should've done it even before this, but better late than never.

Now he has to stand back and catch the flak for being "too harsh" on Willie Wilson, Willie Aikens and Jerry Martin over the one-year suspension he handed each for his involvement with illegal drugs. You think he was that harsh? I don't.

The Major League Players Association has started firing at Kuhn already, which was predictable. Don Fehr, acting executive director for the Players Association, says it seems to him "at first blush that the action he took was not helpful to anyone. It doesn't seem to serve any beneficial purpose."

No? Maybe Fehr should blush again. If he doesn't know by now that punishment is intended to be a deterrent, then maybe someone should explain it to him. And as for his saying Kuhn's action wasn't helpful to anyone, Fehr sets an all-time record for gathering up this kind of vital information in such a hurry....

Dusty Baker's "return" to the Dodgers is only temporary. They're going to trade him again because they're dead beat on going with one of their 23-year-old kids in left field. Either Candy Maldonado, hitting the ball well now in Puerto Rico, or R.J. Reynolds, who showed he could play after being brought up from San Antonio the second half of the year. Baker, who'll be 35 next season, turned down last week's deal to the A's because they planned to use him as a DH and only part-time in the outfield. Even if all efforts fail to deal him again, the Dodgers have no plans to use him regularly or give him a two-year extension on his contract the way the A's were ready to do. When he turns all that over in his mind, it wouldn't surprise me too much if Baker, a 10-and-5 man, says OK to playing for Oakland the second time around....

Statistics don't always tell the whole story. For example, Cliff Stoudt, backup man to Terry Bradshaw of the Pittsburgh Steelers, leads all the quarterbacks in the NFL in rushing with 450 yards. Makes it sound as if he's a whale of a runner, right? But that isn't the case at all. Actually, he's rather average. This is his seventh season with the Steelers and he had started only one game for them before this year. What that sizeable yardage total of his shows more than anything else is his inexperience plus all those injuries among Pittsburgh's offensive linemen. Watch the veteran quarterbacks when they can't find their receivers. They rarely run, preferring to eat the ball instead. Quarterbacks with limited experience push the panic button much quicker. When they're trapped and don't know what to do with the ball, they merely follow their first basic instinct and run the best way they can....

Chuck Tanner, about to start his eighth straight year managing the Pirates, looks as if he could go on handling them forever if he wants. When someone asked him the secret of his managerial success not long ago, he laughed and said, "I keep only one eye and one ear open." That doesn't mean he falls asleep on the bench. What it means is that he doesn't automatically over-react to every little minor infraction by the Pirate players....

I don't know if the Russians are coming, but the Canadians obviously are going into other lines of endeavor besides professional hockey. For the first time in its history, the NHL now shows more than one-fifth of its players who are non-Canadian. This year's figure is 79.2 percent. I can remember when it was 99.9, and it wasn't that long ago....

When someone came in with the news the other night that the Detroit Pistons beat the Denver Nuggets 186-184 in the highest scoring game in NBA history, John Halligan, the NHL's director of communications, never blinked an eye. "That's what happens," he dead-panned, "when they let Gretzky loose on a basketball floor..."

Birdie Tebbetts, now scouting for the Indians, has grown fond of the city of Cleveland down through the years, having played and managed there before taking his present job with the Tribe. He tells the story about the time he was managing the Indians and his son, George, Jr., came out to the game.

As each Cleveland batter came to the plate, Tebbetts' boy, only 6 at the time, called him by his first name and roared loudly for the player to get a hit.

"You know the players personally?" an older fan nearby asked Birdie's boy.

"Yes," he answered.

"Do you have some connection with the team?" was the next question. "Is some relative of yours out there on the field?"

Young Tebbetts nodded, saying his father was with the Indians.

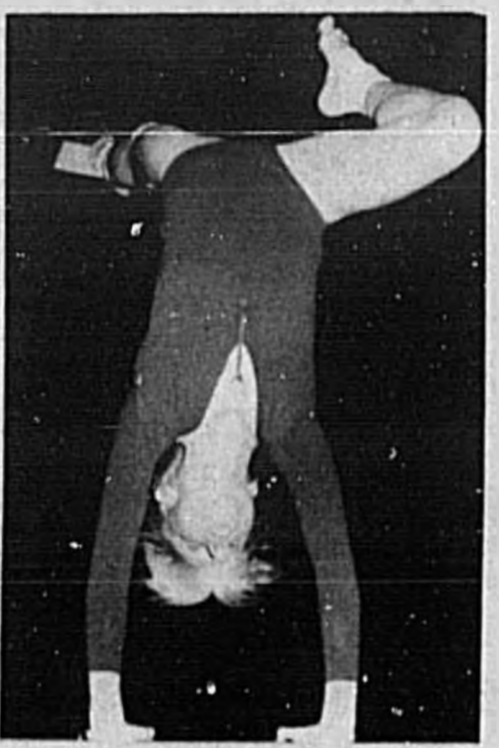

"What does he do?"

The boy mulled the question over a while before answering.

"Nothing," he replied finally.

Sanford Gymnastics Needs Floor, Building To Continue Its Program

Sanford Gymnastics Association, a non-profit organization established in 1977, is in need of a permanent floor and building. For the past three years, Timatha Kelly placed sixth overall while competing for the state meet last weekend. Ms. Kelly was fourth in the balance beam and eighth in the vault.

Sanford Gymnastics has resided in three or four different places. The permanent floor is 42'x42' and the building should be 100x100 or 10,000 square feet and 18 or more feet high.

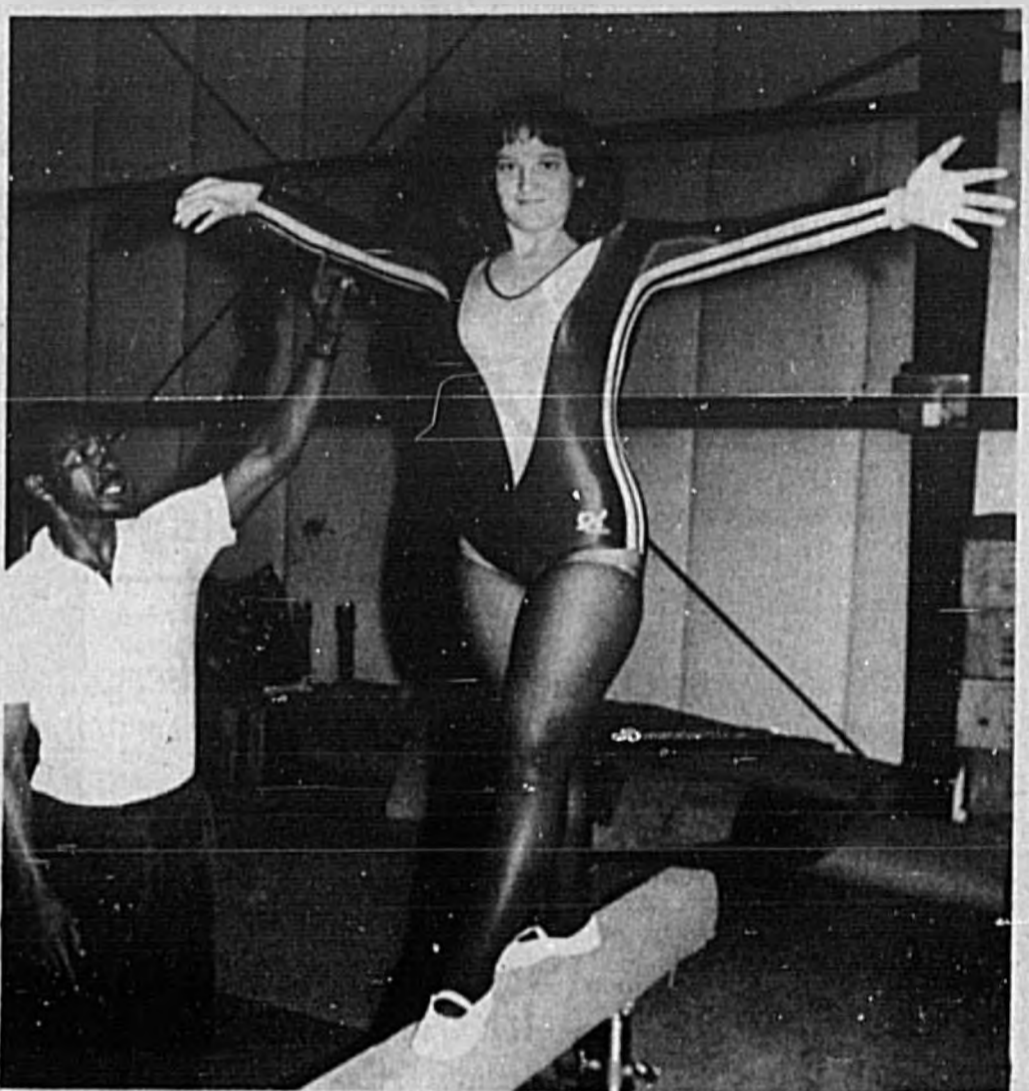

If anyone has a such a building to rent, lease or donate, please call Jeannette Stiffley at 322-8234 or Eugene Petty at 322-8823.

Sanford Gymnastics has students from four years old and up. Three of the association's Class III students competed to qualify for the state meet last weekend and Kimatha Kelly placed sixth overall (eighth on the vault and fourth on the balance beam). Cherie Van Camp and Shari Siegrist also qualified for state.

Linda Arent went to districts last weekend for the Special Olympics and took a first place on the balance beam and on the floor exercise. Lorenzo Morrow also represented Sanford Gymnastics at the Special Olympics and received a first in floor exercise and placed in tumbling.

Cindy Fletter, Heather Todd, Heather Cooper and Demetria Petty will represent Sanford Gymnastics this weekend at Lake Worth in the Class IV State competition.

Margaret Siegrist is in charge of a patron sponsorship program. For $50 per year, any business, professional or individual can become a patron or sponsor and receive a plaque for the office. This is a tax-deductible contribution. For more information about Sanford Gymnastics contact Stiffley or Petty at the numbers above.

Sanford's Linda Arent works on her specialty, the balance beam, with the help of coach Eugene Petty. Ms. Arent, who took first place in the district competition of the Special Olympics last year, and her fellow gymnasts are in need of a permanent facility.

George Kicks Martin Upstairs — Berra Takes Over

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yankee fans may be saying "Oh no! Not again!" But very few people seemed surprised at the team's latest announcement Friday.

Manager Billy Martin, fired twice by Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, was sent upstairs to the front office as "top advisor" when he was relieved of his duties as manager for a third time and replaced by his old friend, Yogi Berra.

"My relationship with Billy Martin never has been better," Steinbrenner said. "My friendship has never been stronger. We've never been closer as friends. I talked to him by phone today and I talked to him yesterday. Billy congratulated Yogi. He said we made an excellent choice."

"But he accepted it beautifully. You fellows (newsmen) will write that Billy has been fired. I don't like to talk about firing. I don't think Billy has been fired. I think what has been done is in everyone's best interests."

Berra, a member of the Yankees' organization for 30 years who served as Martin's first base coach last season, was given a 2-year contract.

Steinbrenner said the remaining four years of Martin's managerial contract, at $450,000 per year, will be honored.

Steinbrenner said Martin will assist in all trades and player evaluations as well as participate in the Yankees' expanding minor-league program.

"This is a great opportunity for Billy," said Eddie Sapir, Martin's lawyer. "This isn't like he's been fired, see you later. Sure this is disappointing to Billy, but we just talked to him over the phone and he thinks the naming of Yogi is an excellent choice. He says whatever is best for the Yankees, that's what I want."

No matter what terms Steinbrenner uses, the switch represented his 11th managerial change in 10 years. In those changes, eight other managers were involved besides Martin, and one of them, Gene Michael, was among those present at the news conference today. Also present were second baseman Willie Randolph, catcher Rick Cerone, coach Jeff Torborg, outfielder Steve Kemp and announcer Phil Rizzuto.

Michael, it was announced, will replace Don Zimmer as third base coach next year and Torborg will return as pitching and bullpen coach. Roy White will coach at Berra's previous first base spot.

Baseball

will replace Don Zimmer as third base coach next year and Torborg will return as pitching and bullpen coach. Roy White will coach at Berra's previous first base spot.

Steinbrenner revealed he had previously offered the Yankees' managerial job to Berra but had been turned down. The 58-year-old Berra, a Hall of Famer and three-time Most Valuable Player of the American League, said he took the job this year because the "one thing I haven't achieved is winning a world championship and I think we've got a ballclub that can do it."

Berra, a 15-time All-Star, was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1972 and holds the AL career record for home runs hit by a catcher with 313.

Martin was first named manager of the Yankees in mid-1975 and then led them to their first pennant in 12 years the following season. He was let go by Steinbrenner the first time on July 25, 1978 and replaced by Bob Lemon, who he in turn replaced during an emotion-packed switch made on the club's Old Timers Day July 19, 1979.

Steinbrenner fired Martin again after the Yankees finished fourth in 1979 and Martin managed Oakland three seasons. He was fired by the A's in Oct. 1982 and hired by Steinbrenner last Jan. 11. He guided the Yankees to a third-place finish this season in the AL East, but their 91-71 record represented a substantial improvement over the 79-83 mark of 1982.

Berra guided the Yankees to the AL pennant in 1964, but New York lost a seven-game World Series to St. Louis. In one of baseball's most bizarre managerial moves, Berra was dismissed by the Yankees and replaced by the late Johnny Keane, who had led the Cardinals to that World Series victory.

Berra also won a National League pennant as manager of the New York Mets in 1973. The Mets were beaten in seven games by Oakland in the World Series.

Steinbrenner would not completely shut the door on yet another return by Martin as Yankee manager.

"There's nothing sure except death and taxes," said Steinbrenner, who added he reached a decision about Martin on Thursday night. "I have no criticism of Billy's style; in a way it's a lot like my own."

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Major League Players Association sharply criticized Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's one-year suspension of four players for cocaine abuse and warned it may take legal action to reinstate the players.

Acting executive director of the association Don Fehr Friday called Kuhn's action "unfortunate and regrettable."

"It is the government's responsibility, not the commissioner's, to administer the law," he said in a lengthy statement.

Kuhn Thursday suspended three members of the 1982 Kansas City Royals — first baseman Willie Aikens and outfielders Jerry Martin and Willie Wilson — and Los Angeles Dodgers' reliever Steve Howe for one year without pay for "use of illegal drugs."

Kelly, Sanders Adhere To McCorkle's Theory, Lake Mary Boots DeLand, 4-1

DELAND — Lake Mary soccer coach Larry McCorkle feels that the first five minutes of the second half are when most of the goals are scored.

Friday night against the DeLand Bulldogs, his team adhered to his theory as Don Kelly headed in a goal off a corner kick in the first minute of play, then three minutes later scored on a breakthrough to lead the Rams to a 4-1 victory over DeLand in Five Star Conference soccer.

Lake Mary, 4-2, doesn't play again until the Pizza Hut tournament at Bishop Moore. The Rams take on Daytona Beach Seabreeze at 6 p.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 27.

"Our forwards (Kelly and Andre Sanders) are really looking good," said McCorkle. "And the defense did a super job tonight, too. Mike Dunlap, Jose del Rosario, Eric Zimmerman and Vinay Jotwani all played well."

Lake Mary gave up just six shots on goal as keeper Joe Dalton stopped five and didn't allow a goal until the 23 minutes into the second. "And then," said McCorkle, "it just made it into the corner."

While Kelly took care of the second-half offense, Sanders, who had three goals in the Rams' win over

Prep Soccer

Seminole, got Lake Mary off to a flying start in the first 40 minutes.

In just the second minute of the game, Jerry Meyers crossed the ball to Sanders near the DeLand goal. Sanders, timing his hit perfectly, got the ball at the height of its bounce and rammed it into the goal for a 1-0 lead.

Twenty-one minutes later, Sanders struck again. Jotwani initiated the action with a long pass to Kelly, who dropped it off to Sanders. Sanders drilled in an 18-footer for a 2-0 lead.

Holding a 2-0 lead entering the second half, Lake Mary didn't waste any time. In the opening minute, Paul Holmes gave Kelly a perfect feed for a corner kick and Kelly headed the ball past the goalie for a 3-0 lead.

Three minutes later, Kelly took a pass from sophomore Durrand Richards and outran everybody to beat the goalie for a 4-0 lead.

"Richards did an excellent job. Everything is coming together," said McCorkle. "We're starting to click. We should do well in the tournament."

In the junior varsity game, Rick Broenne scored two goals, but the Rams lost a 3-2 shootout decision to DeLand. The JV Rams play Bishop Moore in the Bishop Moore Junior Varsity Tournament at 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 22.

In the only county soccer action Saturday, coach Jim Buckman's redhot Lyman Greyhounds come to Sanford to take on coach Howard Hawkins' struggling Fighting Seminoles. The Tribe, 0-5, is looking for its first victory — Sam Cook

Lions Need Win Over Bucs To Qualify For Playoff Spot

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — For the second time in three years it all comes down to a victory over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers to put the Detroit Lions in the playoffs as NFC Central champions.

Detroit enters the game Sunday at the Silverdome with an 8-7 record, tied for first in the division with Green Bay.

The Packers play the Bears in Chicago Sunday but regardless of how they fare, the Lions will represent the division as champions in the playoffs — if they can beat the Bucs.

Detroit defeated Green Bay twice during the regular season so if the two teams tie, the Lions earn the edge on the tie-breaker. The Packers have to defeat the Bears and the Lions must lose for Green Bay to win the division.

The Lions have not won a championship at any level since 1957, when they won the NFL title.

The situation for Detroit was identical in 1981, when the Lions needed only to defeat Tampa Bay to earn the division championship. The Bucs stopped the Lions, 20-17, to claim the title for themselves and leave Detroit second with an 8-8 record.

But there's a big difference between that year and this. Tampa Bay entered the final game of 1981 with the same record Detroit had, 8-7, and Coach John McKay was smugly confident of winning.

"Everybody's aware of what happened a couple of years ago," Detroit Coach Monte Clark said. "Hopefully, that'll be an incentive not to let it happen again."

This year McKay's Bucs are 2-13 and only a stout defense gives them a chance to upset the favored Lions.

Pro Football

Detroit struggled through an 11-0 victory at Tampa to open the season, lost four in a row but then bounced back to take command in the division when everyone else faltered.

The Lions could have wrapped up the division championship last week at Cincinnati but dropped a 17-9 decision to the Bengals.

Tampa Bay could have eliminated Green Bay on Monday night, but didn't, losing in overtime, 12-9.

The Bucs have missed more than Doug Williams at quarterback. Their "skill position" players have not provided them with big plays.

The injury to running back James Wilder has helped defenses to clamp down on wide receiver Kevin House and tight end Jimmie Giles.

Jerry Golsteyn, a Lions' castoff who won the quarterback job in training camp, lost it during the season to off-season acquisition Jack Thompson but the "Throwin' Samoan" hasn't had a whole lot of time to do his thing.

Detroit's comeback has been sparked by the resurgence of Billy Sims, who missed more than three games with a broken hand but was ineffective before the injury.

Cincinnati stopped Sims' streak of 100-yard rushing games at four but he still got 80 and now needs just 16 yards to get his third

1,000-yard season in his four with Detroit.

Rookie Jeff Chadwick has emerged as Detroit's leading receiver in the absence of injured Leonard Thompson. Three weeks in a row the rookie from Grand Valley State has topped the Lions in receiving and he now has caught 38 passes for 571 yards.

If Thompson's broken jaw heals, there's a good chance Mark Nichols will find himself the No. 3 receiver in the pecking order.

Detroit has an outside shot at a home game for the first round of the playoffs. It must win while both San Francisco and the Los Angeles Rams lose.

Elsewhere Sunday, Denver is at Kansas City, Houston at Baltimore, New England at Seattle, Pittsburgh at Cleveland, San Diego at the Los Angeles Raiders, Buffalo at Atlanta, Green Bay at Chicago, the Los Angeles Rams at New Orleans and Philadelphia at St. Louis. Dallas is at San Francisco Monday night to close out the regular season.

Dolphins Satisfy Shula With 34-14 Rout Of Jets

Pro Football

MIAMI (UPI) — Miami Dolphin Coach Don Shula likes the way things are shaping up going into the playoffs in two weeks and he isn't afraid to say it.

"With this win we have the best or will be tied for the best record in the AFC, and I feel that's where our team is right now," Shula said after Friday night's 34-14 victory over the New York Jets.

"When we were 3-3 we had a lot of questions to be answered, but I feel we've come on strong and just got better and better," he said.

The victory gives the Dolphins a 12-4 record and the home-field advantage in their first NFL playoff game on New Year's weekend against Pittsburgh, Denver, Seattle or Cleveland. An upset of the Los Angeles Raiders by San Diego Sunday could keep the Dolphins home right up to the Super Bowl if they keep winning.

"We're in the best possible position to be in," said nose tackle Bob Baumhower, who had five tackles and three sacks. "We have to remember what got us here, and we will."

It was the Dolphins' fifth straight victory, their ninth in the last 10 games and their fifth in a row over the Jets, who finished the season at 7-9. It also was the first time in 10 years the Dolphins won 12 games during the regular season.

The game was close well into the fourth quarter when reserve safety Mike Kozlowski picked off two Richard Todd passes over a one-minute span and returned them for touchdowns of 35 and 38 yards.

"I thought I was dreaming when the second ball came at me because it's a defensive back's dream to score a touchdown," Kozlowski said. "It's unbelievable I got two in one game."

"I never had two TDs in a game, not even when I was a running back at Colorado."

Kozlowski normally serves as the fifth defensive back in passing situations, but on Friday night he came in at free safety when starter Lyle Blackwood went down with an ankle injury.

"I have to be pretty happy and proud of the way Kozlowski came in for Blackwood and was able to make the big plays when the game was in doubt," Shula said.

The coach also was happy for second-year wide receiver Mark Duper, who caught four passes for 71 yards to give him 1,003 yards for the season, breaking the Dolphin record of 996 set 12 years ago by Paul Warfield.

"I'm so proud of Mark Duper. It's pretty exciting," Shula said. "It has been a joy to watch him grow."

Olajuwon Tips Hat To Hatters, Houston Romps

United Press International
Houston is ranked No. 3, but according to Cougar forward Michael Young, the best is yet to come.

"I think we are getting on the right track," said Young, who scored 24 points to lead Houston to a 92-71 rout over previously unbeaten Stetson in the first game of the Kettle Classic. "The young players are learning and I think it will all come together by the second half of the season."

"I didn't shoot my jump shot too well tonight, but if you keep on shooting and keep on rebounding you're going to get some points. We came out in the second half playing hard."

Akeem Abdul Olajuwon added 22 points to help the Cougars advance to the championship game against Princeton, which beat Santa Clara 75-53.

"I was surprised," Olajuwon said. "They were a very good team. I think I played OK. Coach (Guy) Lewis told me to take them to the basket. I was very impressed with (Rick)

College Basketball

Winslow and (Greg) Anderson. They played very well. When we come out to play against a team we never heard anything about, it's hard to get up for them."

The Cougars led 42-35 at halftime behind a balanced scoring attack paced by Olajuwon with 13. Anderson and Winslow, both freshman, and Young all contributed eight points each in the opening half.

"I tell you, we beat a good basketball team," Lewis said. "They got some inside stuff early but we finally adjusted and did a good job in the second half. We really played good defense in the second half."

"I think everybody would rather play more experienced than that but I'm proud of those two guys. They grew up a lot tonight. I really liked the hustle tonight. It was a good win over a good a team."

Jorge Fernandez led Stetson with 17.
In the second game, Princeton was led by Kevin Mullin with 23 points and Howard Levy added 13.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 1 Kentucky trounced Wyoming 66-40 in the opening round of the Kentucky Invitational. No. 14 Oregon State defeated Utah 62-49 and No. 15 Texas-El Paso downed St. Mary's (Texas) 64-57.

At Lexington, Ky., Melvin Turpin scored 14 points and Sam Bowie contributed 13 to lead Kentucky, Brigham Young, led by Devin Durrant with 23 points, defeated Virginia Commonwealth 81-77 in the opener at Rupp Arena. Kentucky, 3-0, will meet Brigham Young in the title match tonight.

"Our zone helped us in the second half and it took a little pressure off us man to man," Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall said. "When we went to the zone, it loosened us up and we got some runouts. It seemed to help our game."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Police Arrest Three In Computer Smuggling Ring

LUEBECK, West Germany (UPI) — West German police have arrested three suspects believed to be part of an international plot to smuggle advanced U.S.-built computers to the Soviet Union, officials said.

The prosecutor's office in the Baltic port of Luebeck said Friday that police raided places in Hamburg and the states of Lower Saxony and Schleswig-Holstein this week. In search of evidence against the smugglers.

A prosecutor spokesman did not identify the suspects or say if they had been charged, but added that a West German believed to be the mastermind of the smuggling ring was not among those arrested.

The investigation in West Germany came after the seizure of sophisticated computer equipment in Britain and Sweden believed to be en route to the Soviet Union, where computer technology lags behind the West.

U.S. sources said some of the equipment could have applications in guiding or tracking missiles and troop movements.

Dance Hall Fire Kills 78

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Fire broke out in a packed Madrid dance hall today, engulfing the building in black smoke that sent panicked patrons stampeding for exits. Authorities said 78 people died, most from smoke inhalation.

Several witnesses said emergency exits were locked, preventing people from escaping until employees arrived with keys. Other stairs leading to the theater above the disco were reported blocked by an iron railing.

The blaze at the recently remodeled "Alcala 20" began shortly before 5 a.m. (11:00 p.m. EST), a spokesman for the city government said. The cause of the fire was not immediately known. Survivors and police said it appeared to have started near the stage and spread to plastic curtains, creating toxic fumes blamed for most of the deaths.

Twenty-four injured survivors required hospitalization, with three listed in critical condition, police said.

Police Tough On Solidarity

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Police used a massive display of force to prevent Poles from joining nationwide demonstrations called by the Solidarity underground to mourn protesters killed under martial law two years ago.

Police firing water cannons and swinging clubs fought thousands of Solidarity demonstrators Friday in the southwest city of Wroclaw and outbreaks of violence were also reported in Warsaw, Gdansk and Ursus.

But Solidarity's appeal for nationwide protests appeared to have misfired.

...EDB: Very Little Is Known About It

Central Florida, who has been involved in research on the use of granulated activated carbon in removing pollutants from water supplies, also questions whether the EDB application at the golf course contaminated the city's water supply.

"It is entirely possible that the contamination came from some distance from an (EDB) application some years ago," Taylor said.

Taylor also said it is difficult to believe that the EDB migrated downward so rapidly into the city's deep wells.

"But then there is no measure of the rates of migration of EDB and we really don't know much about the migration of contaminants," he said.

"EDB didn't become a major problem in the state until a year ago," Taylor said.

And now the state Department of Environmental Regulation is considering a rule requiring new wells be tested for EDB before they are put into operation, according to Bill Bostwick, district engineer for water and solid waste for the DER.

"But at this time EDB is not a standard test on new wells," he said. "We don't even have an idea of the number of chemicals one could find in the water. There are so many chemicals in the universe that we never heard of before. We couldn't possibly require that water be tested for everything.

"We are learning the hard way. We now have knowledge to test for EDB and we are looking at much more extensive testing of public wells in the future," he said.

Bostwick admitted that DER is not certain that the EDB contamination of the three Sanford wells came from the golf course, but it seems the most likely source, he said.

"There may be filled sinkholes in the area and the speculation is that a sinkhole might provide a direct route into the aquifer. It is also possible that the EDB contaminating the wells was used a long time ago," Bostwick said. If that's the case, the problem could be around for years because EDB use is only now coming under tight restrictions and scrutiny, he said.

"The only thing we know is that it was used on golf courses. We can't rule out anything. Apparently EDB was quite effective and everyone was using it. Bostwick said.

...Gun Control Bills Subject Of Heated Debate

a concealed weapon for a period of two years.

"Under current laws you can have a gun in your home, your vehicle or your business, but you can't conceal that weapon and carry it around with you. I have no problem with that, but if a person is going to be carrying a concealed firearm we want that person to be a law enforcement official or a private investigator who has been licensed by the state."

Bert Nelson, owner of A&N Sports of Sanford, disagrees. "I'm not a reactionary, but I believe law-abiding citizens who feel they have a need should be able to carry a concealed weapon. I don't believe everybody should have one, but if the law provides for it and you can show a need you should be able to carry a concealed gun," Nelson said.

"Unfortunately, current laws only restrict 'good guys' who need a weapon. There are many people like bankers, retired policemen and businessmen who now carry illegal weapons. These people should be able to receive a permit to arm themselves legally. They aren't going to go out and shoot a policeman."

"The criminals are going to arm themselves anyway, without a permit, so as the laws are now law-abiding people are left defenseless. There are a lot of people who are breaking current laws or skirting them," Nelson said. "I don't know if that makes them criminals or just smart."

A lifetime member of the NRA (National Rifle Association), Nelson does agree with Polk that a second proposed gun bill would benefit both gun users and law enforcement officials. Bill 64, passed by a House subcommittee on criminal justice earlier this month, would bar cities and counties from passing ordinances regulating guns and ammunition and void those already on the books.

If passed into law, the bill would void numerous local gun control ordinances and also prevent any city or county from trying to ban guns entirely as some localities outside Florida have attempted.

It would also make it possible for the gun owner to travel from county to county with firearms without worrying about breaking local laws.

Florida International University criminal justice professor William Wilbanks said both measures would weaken gun control in Dade County and Miami's tourism could suffer as a result.

"I'm concerned about our image," Wilbanks said. "We have a nickname today of Dodge City. If these bills pass, it won't be a joke."

Rep. Carl Selph (R-Casselberry), a co-sponsor of bill 64, said he couldn't support the more lenient restrictions on concealed guns because, "as it is presently written, the concept is good, but the standards need to be more carefully drafted. We need to be more cautious about who we permit to carry concealed weapons than this bill calls for."

Selph said he sees little chance of bill 65 becoming a law, and he would not support it unless it was rewritten into a form that would be acceptable to the Florida Sheriff's Association of which Polk is legislative chairman.

But Selph said: "The other bill has a 50-50 shot at passing and if both of these bills aren't approved in the upcoming legislative session we will continue to take a shot at it until the gun laws are changed."

Rep. Art Grindle (R-Altamonte Springs) said he believes the concealed weapons bill will be rewritten and the restrictions will be clarified and made more acceptable than they are now.

"I do see merit in having a state-wide approach to gun laws, but I am concerned that a person who has been denied a permit to carry a concealed gun in one county could go to one of the other 66 counties and receive a permit that would also be valid in the county that denied the initial request for a permit," Grindle said.

Nelson said that "the legislators who push for gun restraints are from high-crime areas, but restricting the rights of law-abiding citizens from owning and carrying guns doesn't prevent crime."

He cited the 89 percent drop in burglaries in Kennesaw, Ga. after a city law was passed that required local citizens to own a gun.

Polk countered that the figure reflects a national decrease in crime, not just in Kennesaw.

Polk said he believes having a firearm in your home is a deterrent to burglars, but he said most burglars strike when no one is home to use that gun. A Florida State University professor, Gary Kleck, who surveyed criminals, said about 80 percent of the 1,800 burglars he questioned said they avoid occupied homes, because they are afraid of being shot.

Polk said the state should do a complete background check on anyone permitted to carry a concealed weapon.

...Sentencing Guidelines Criticized

"When you initially look at the sentences, there does appear to be a substantial decrease," said Herman adding that in the two months the system has been in effect the length of sentences actually issued have not changed much.

"I don't think in 90 percent of the time it has changed the sentence," he said.

Herman said while the system would now prevent a robber in Miami from getting a 3-year sentence, it will also prevent a robber in Pensacola from getting a 50-year sentence for the same infraction.

In fact, he said, the new sentencing system has had a positive effect on defendants' mental attitudes.

"In the past the defendant had no control over the outcome in court," he said. The defendant now feels better going into the courtroom knowing the judge is restricted and that his case won't be adversely affected because the judge "got up on the on the wrong side of bed."

Another effect the new system has had on the court system is to increase jury trials, said Herman.

There is an old belief among lawyers, he said, that harsher sentences are given by juries than judges. Now that the sentences will be the same, defense attorneys have no fear of going to trial, he said.

One area Herman thinks the new guidelines may be too lenient is in the area of sexual assault, or rape.

Under the guidelines, it is possible in some cases that the maximum sentence possible for simple rape is 360 days in a non-prison facility such as a county jail.

This Old House

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford's oldest house is still a home. And because it has been the home of the H.B. McCall family since 1949, there are no clues of decay or neglect that might reveal that it's 113 years old.

Lillian McCall said when she and her late husband, H.B., were searching for a Sanford home there wasn't much available. Their adult sons Glen and H.B. Jr. convinced them that although the house needed some loving care, it would be worth the work. Mrs. McCall is happy to be living with that decision today.

The house is sheltered from Mellonville Avenue, at 24th Street, by the sparse remnants of an orange grove that was planted by Dr. A.C. Caldwell, who built the house in 1870.

Mrs. McCall has a faded photo from 1881 that shows Caldwell standing on the cobblestone walk that still leads from 24th Street to his front door. The palms and oaks that shade the house are a bit more mature, but the exterior of the white, two-story, clapboard house is basically the same today.

A silver-colored metal roof shines above two gables, which flank a centered, peaked arch. A somewhat subdued gingerbread of scallops, points and hearts, skirts the roof. Yellow cross-hatch supports flank the screened porch, which spans the front of the house. The windows are trimmed in yellow, although Mrs. McCall said they were originally trimmed in green.

The front porch, which houses a collection of wooden rockers, a swing and an array of houseplants was Mrs. McCall's pride and joy of her husband. "He loved this porch. People don't use porches like this any more. He spent a lot of time out here."

In addition to the front door, which leads to the center of the house, there are two French doors, which flank it on each side. One leads to the livingroom, the other to the sun-filled master

The 113-year-old H.B. McCall home on Mellonville Avenue is reported to be the oldest house in Sanford bedroom. Behind the master bedroom there is a small study.

In the livingroom, the fireplace, which served the Caldwells is still in use. Behind the livingroom is a diningroom, part of which Mrs. McCall believes was originally a kitchen.

The kitchen is now where the back porch used to be. Mrs. McCall said it had been partially converted when they moved in and a bathroom had been squeezed into a first-floor storage area.

Up the sturdy staircase there are three small bedrooms, with walls that slope with the peaked roof. The walls have been replaced and repapered with floral pastels that recall 19th Century tastes.

The McCalls' two younger sons, Emmett who was six and Dan who was two when they moved into the house, shared one of these bedrooms as children.

Replacing the hardwood floors throughout the house was a major project for the McCalls. They also added and altered some of the windows in the rear of the house. But Mrs. McCall said the basic structure of the house is the same.

In addition to piecing the house together over the years, Mrs. McCall has pieced together a history of her home:

Dr. A.C. Caldwell came to Sanford from North Carolina. He hoped to recover his health through a change in climate and he originally lived in a tent on the home site.

After his health improved he built a log cabin and sent for his family. Around 1870 he planted an orange grove and chartered a boat to import building materials and hardware for the house from Jacksonville. The foundation of the house was built using sand from the site.

Mrs. McCall said, "It seems like Dr. Caldwell may have built this house one room at a time."

In addition to the Caldwells, Mrs. McCall said that a Stewart and a Walker family had owned the home. The McCalls bought the house from the Walkers.

Mrs. McCall said: "I've enjoyed this house and fixing it up. I keep doing things. We've done most of the work ourselves."

Mrs. McCall moved to Oviedo from South Carolina to teach first grade in 1925. She married her husband, an Oviedo native, in 1926, and they moved to Sanford. McCall, who died in 1978, at the age of 78, worked for the Seminole Monument Co.

Mrs. McCall, 77, said: "I seldom think about my age. I just keep on going and doing what I can. People say old age is terrible, but there's only one alternative. You either get old or you die."

"One of my grandmothers lived to be 96, so maybe I'll follow in her steps. I've got 20 more years according to her."

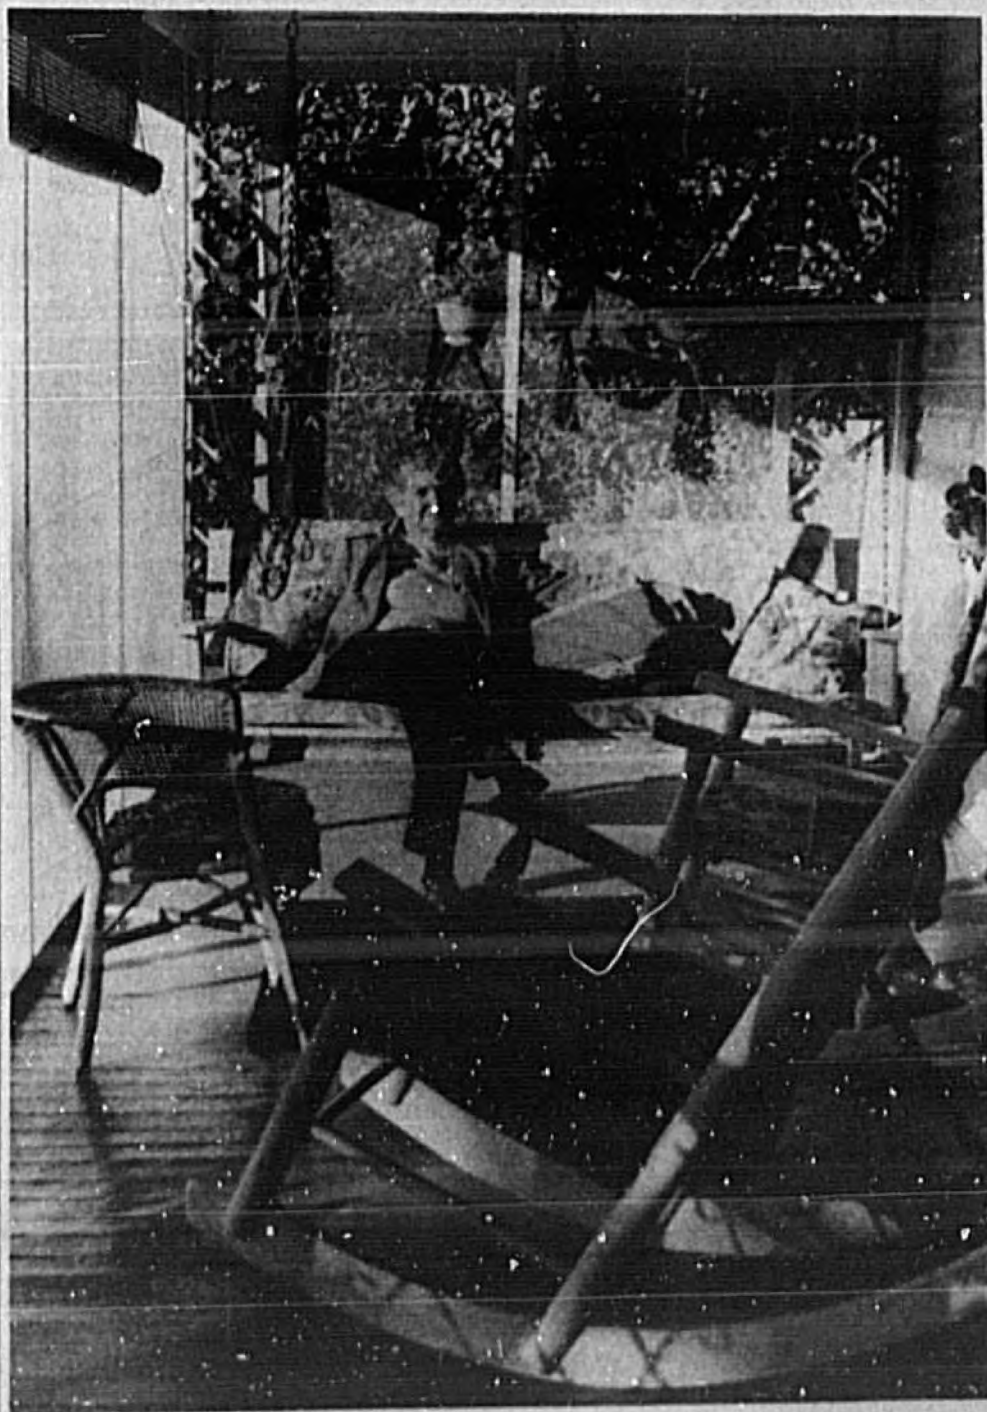

"I don't want to leave this house. I want it to be here for my children to come home to. I would have to give up just about everything if I moved to an apartment."

And Mrs. McCall would be giving up a lot. Her home is filled with massive, carved-oak beds, antique chests, desks and washstands. In her kitchen are handmade, ladder-back chairs with cowhide bottoms and her mother's red metal coffee grinder brightens the wall by the door—a collection from both her and her husband's

Mrs. McCall (left photo) relaxes in the swing of her old-fashioned front porch shaded by oak trees that extends the full width of the house. An assortment of rocking chairs, colorful pillows and a variety of potted plants create an inviting atmosphere. Mrs. McCall said the porch was her late husband's pride and joy. In right photo, the original fireplace is still functioning. Family artifacts and cherished antiques surround the fireplace.

The Footsteps of St. Paul

Where Christianity Began To Thrive

By Tom Tiede
(Second of six parts)

ANTIOCH, Turkey (NEA) — It's always been common belief among Christians that both the bud and blossom of their religion was in Palestine, what is now called Israel. Jesus Christ was born in Bethlehem, after all, he was raised in Nazareth, and he was crucified on a blood soaked hill in Jerusalem.

But the fact is that Christianity was barely out of its shell when Christ died. It had no name, no church, not even an independent structure. Christ left a set of orders and rules, but his followers were tied fast to convention and constituted little more than a tiny schism of unorthodox Jews.

It wasn't until years later, actually, that the radical new order began to grow in an organized way. And the organization was conducted in large measure here in Antioch, far from the traditional Holy Land. This is where Christianity got its name, its first church, and its sense of direction.

This is also where Paul the Apostle began his bold, remarkable crusade to deliver the gospel to the gentiles and the outside world.

Antioch, in biblical times it was called the "Golden City." It was also a most unlikely Christian cradle. The Romans built it into the third largest metropolis on earth, and perhaps the most decadent. It was wealthy and blatant, sexy and sensuous, it was the amoral crossroads of the period.

Gods were a drachma a dozen, for one thing. Everybody had one of his own. When a plague was reported in Palestine, for example, the people of Antioch put up a statue of Charon, the ferryman on the River Styx. The idea was that if death were already the diety here, the plague might bypass the city.

And yet the paganism served something of a handy purpose for Paul and others in the church. It gave them cover and a bit of protection. The followers of Christ were still considered heretics by mainline Jews, and subject to abuse, but the attitude in laissez-faire Antioch was that one more god hardly mattered.

So the people from Galilee began the formalization of their creed with a new name. They had called themselves "saints" in Jerusalem, and were known as "Nazarinnes" by other Jews; now they borrowed from the disciples of Caesar, who were named Caesariani, and called themselves Christiani, or Christians.

At the same time they established what is generally regarded as the first church of the religion. It is a cave in a mountain that still exists in Antioch. The origins of the cave are obscure, but ancient tradition suggests that it was a place to meet, to pray and to plan the future.

It might also have been a place to be careful and circumspect. The Christians had enemies even in free thinking Antioch. The Rev. Robert Ferrary, a priest who looks after the monument, says the Christians built an escape tunnel in the back of the cave through which they could flee in the event of danger.

The cave today is wonderfully preserved. Father Ferrary says pilgrims come often to burn candles on the limestone walls, and to drink the water that seeps under the floor. The water is captured by a cistern. Father

Dying Girl's Gift Of Beauty

It is hard to believe that, had she lived, she would be 40 years old today. To me she will always be "my little Margie."

She was 12 when she came into my life briefly in 1955. Less than a month later she was gone.

I was a radio broadcaster in Boston. A news story datelined Philadelphia came across the teletype. A little girl named Marjorie Lee Elder was about to undergo a delicate brain operation. She was facing the ordeal without a whimper. But she told her nurse in the hospital that she hoped some people would send her cards so she could make a scrapbook.

"But I suppose nobody will send me any," she said. "We will take care of that, won't we?" I told my listeners when I broadcast Marjorie's story. Within a week 3,000 get-well cards for Marjorie's scrapbook had arrived at the radio station.

Marjorie didn't get well. She died on the operating table. But she got to see all those expressions of love for a little child. While she was still in the hospital, we put them in a big mail sack and flew them from Boston to Philadelphia.

In my letter to Marjorie, I told her that our lives are like the most beautiful autumn sunsets. We never see the real beauty of them in a cloudless sky. "But when the light of God shines through the clouds and dark places in our lives, then we see a beauty like we have never seen before."

That of course is true. When God comes into human lives (and that is the story of Christmas), it is not to clear away the clouds but to shine through the clouds and add an irrepressible beauty to life.

We often find that beauty in places we would least expect it.

Quite a few years ago there was a Baptist pastor in Cleveland — Dr. Edwin McNeill Poter — whose church ministered to the people of the inner city. He once wrote a poem entitled, "I Who Love Beauty." It went like this:

I who love beauty in the open valleys, tinnings of

Saints And Sinners

George Plagenz

sunset and the swallow's flight. Must breathe the air of squalid city alleys, shut from the cool caresses of the night.

Wistful of fragrance where the springtime dallies, sharing with sordid souls a city's blight.

He too loved beauty but a city drew him, flowers he found in little children's eyes.

Something of grace in lepers stumbling to him, fragrance from spikenard spill in sweet surprise....

I who love beauty in the gale of children found it in the courage and hope of a little girl who was dying.

Marjorie Lee Elder missed much of the beauty that is reserved for childhood and growing up. Twelve years is not a very long time. But she gave a gift of beauty and now is enjoying it forever in heaven. So God rewards those who make his world a little more beautiful.

There is nothing the world needs right now more than beauty.

In its recent series on morals on today's campuses, The Christian Science Monitor quoted a college student who said he would never take his mother into the campus library because the lewd drawings in the stairwell are offensive. The student is also concerned about the crude language and cartoons in the college newspaper.

Ugliness abounds in our adult world as well. It was God's gift on Christmas that set all the world to giving. What gift shall we bring to him and to others in our life this Christmas?

There is nothing greater we can give than the gift of beauty. God's great gift to us.

Gospel Concert

The Gordon Sears Family will present a concert of Gospel music at the Victory Baptist Church, County Road 427, Sanford, this Sunday at the 9:45 and 11 a.m. services and at 7 p.m. on Monday. It is open to the public.

Second Program Set In Church Music Series

First United Methodist Church of Sanford, 419 Park Ave., will present the second in its current church music series at 7 p.m. this Sunday.

She has done work on her PHD at Washington University of Saint Louis in historical practices. Devane Shapes Up

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If a movie or TV series fails, don't blame the actor. Or should you?

Either way, Bill Devane's promising career wound up in the outhouse after two consecutive failures — the $35 million movie bomb, Honkytonk Freeway, and the disastrous 1981 From Here to Eternity TV series.

Devane, who had been an up-and-coming leading man, became an instant pariah.

The strong-jawed, hawk-nosed actor made a powerful impression on Hollywood, and viewers, with his John F. Kennedy performance in TV's Missiles of October. He was on his way to apparent stardom.

After a half-dozen movies and six TV films, Devane was poised for the jackpot. Then he hit the wall.

Paul Newman, Warren Beatty and other established stars — even a Tom Selleck — may survive two or three consecutive disappointments. Their track records and popularity carry them over. But for a newcomer like Devane, one disaster following on the heels of another can spell fiasco. It very nearly did for Devane.

"From Here to Eternity" was Fred Silverman's last hurrah at NBC," he said. "It began as a hit six-hour miniseries and was converted into a weekly hour drama. We only did 12 episodes and the ratings were terrible.

"No matter what anyone says, it hurts an actor to be associated with a failed series because the blame is put on the star.

"I got a lot of negative publicity and entered a period of pure purgatory. I became an untouchable. The worst part of it was getting down on myself. It's common enough, I guess. You blame yourself for letting people down.

"Word gets out, as if you had a rancid smell about you. People actually avoid you. They don't return your calls. Offers quit coming to your agent.

"Matters got worse with Honkytonk Freeway. It was just a picture that didn't work."

Neither did Devane, at least not for a full year.

As he puts it, "I was not a hot property."

Instead of selling real estate or moving to New York to tackle the theater, Devane sat around waiting for the telephone to ring. It didn't.

Then, shaking off the lethargy of despair, Devane did the unthinkable — lowered his asking price for movies and TV and let it be known he was available for any acting work at all.

"As Jason Robards once told me, 'The secret to acting success is to outlive 'em.'" Devane said, grinning. "And George C. Scott's advice was right, too. 'Don't turn down anything. Actors have to act.'"

In the past year Devane worked for next to nothing in the hit movie, Testament, currently in release, followed by Hadley's Rebellion which will be seen next year. He did the documentary, Wilderness, for literally nothing. Not a cent.

Finally, the producers of Knots Landing signed him at a bargain price, hoping to add macho machinations to the weekly soap opera with a guy not quite as sinister as Dallas' J.R. Ewing, to be sure, but equally ambitious and ruthless.

Devane's career is back on track. His self-esteem has been restored and he is looking to a sunny future — perhaps even a future where he can make two bombs in a row and remain an employable actor.

CFS Citrus Groves Sold Out In 6 Weeks

LONGWOOD — Certified Financial Services, Inc. (CFS), has announced the sell-out of 3,000 interests (totaling $2.1 million) in CFS Citrus Groves, Ltd., the first limited partnership in citrus groves ever registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as a public offering, six weeks after the first sales began.

George Noga, CFS chairman and chief executive officer, attributes the strong demand primarily to "the offering's combination of tax advantages and solid economic merit, as well as to the low minimum investment requirement which allowed many mid-income investors to participate in the tax advantages of a citrus grove partnership for the first time."

The citrus property, located in La Belle, consisted of 504 acres of Valencia orange groves. The majority of investors were from the states of Florida, California and Virginia (the Washington, D.C. area). The average investor purchased 18 units for $12,600, with $4,500 payable in 1983.

Huskey To Sell Glen Abbey

Diversified Land Corporation Inc., the developer of Glen Abbey in DeBary, announced that Huskey Realty, REALTORS, has been given the Exclusive Right of Sale on their development located just twenty minutes north of Winter Park via I-4. Glen Abbey is a planned unit development with a beautiful rolling 18-hole golf course, a large clubhouse and racquet club. Glen Abbey consists of several hundred single-family golf course and golf view homesites, as well as golf villas.

Huskey said that he is delighted to be the Exclusive Agent for this very fine development as the developers have done everything in a first-class manner and are offering homes and homesites many thousands of dollars below the Orange/Seminole County market. Half-acre homesites on the golf course will be priced at $39,900.

Huskey is planning on having some of the Central Florida area's finest builders participate in the building program in the multi-million dollar community.

Hacker Builders' President

ORLANDO — The Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida has installed Seminole County builder E. Bing Hacker as its 1984 president. Hacker is president of Hacker Homes of Lake Mary.

The 1,400-member association also honored its builder and associate members of the year and installed a slate of senior officers to aid Hacker throughout the year.

The associate of the year was Fran Dunn, a local leader who was the HBA's second vice-president in 1982. Dunn was cited for her work on the association's building committee as well as her participation on numerous HBA councils and committees through the years.

An associate member is any member-firm other than a builder. There are around 1,000 associates in the HBA.

In addition to Hacker, the other 1984 HBA senior officers will include:

First vice-president, Simon Snyder, Greater Construction; second vice-president, Emily Traficante, Window Works of Central Florida; treasurer, Terry Eckert, Sandpiper Homes; and secretary, Ken Levitt, Rollingwood Homes.

CNN Does It Better, Survey Finds

By Sydney Shaw

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The best coverage of business and economic news on television is by Cable News Network rather than the three major networks, according to a recent study of nightly news programs.

However, if only CNN and ABC-TV are considered, it's a toss up.

CNN does a better job than the three broadcast networks in covering business and economic news, but ABC-TV News outperforms NBC and CBS, the Media Institute said.

The institute, a non-profit research organization that aims to encourage better business and economic news reporting, ranked the three major network's half-hour nightly news programs and then compared them as a group to CNN's "Prime News 120," a two-hour show.

CNN did a better job overall than the combined networks, but if the comparison had been only between ABC-TV and CNN "it would have been really close," an institute spokesman said.

The study, which the institute said was the first of its kind, found CNN was "more balanced and less sensational" in its presentation of economic news than the broadcast news programs. The survey was based on 37 hours of news programming in the summer and fall of 1982.

In two other categories the institute considered — depth of coverage and the priority given financial stories — CNN and the networks were more closely ranked, with the networks doing slightly better in the depth of their stories.

"Everyone might have assumed that CNN does a better job because it has more time, but that isn't really the case," the spokesman said. "There are other reasons."

The study showed the networks allocated 23 percent of their news time to business stories, compared to 20 percent for CNN.

Deduction

Investment Expenses Can Be Taken Off Tax

By Gerald Lewis, Comptroller of Florida

Although it is December, it is not too late to begin arranging the deductions you are planning to take on this year's taxes. In fact, it is advisable to begin now. People who wait until April often find they have too little time to itemize deductions and find it's too late to take special tax breaks.

The key to successful deducting is saving every receipt and keeping your own records. Don't rely on your broker to do it for you. He or she may keep records in such a way that it makes deducting more difficult for you.

Here is a partial deductions list compiled by columnist Susan Bondy of deductible investment expenses:

- The cost of investment books, newspapers, magazines and other financial periodicals.
- All tax publications.
- Safe deposit box costs, if you use the box to store any assets related to investing.
- All postage and mailing costs and telephone calls associated with investing.
- Select brokerage account fees.
- Custodial or account maintenance fees.

- Investment counseling and management advisory fees.
- Fees for tax advisors including tax accountants and tax lawyers.
- Margin account interest.
- All costs associated with IRAs or Keoghs — start-up fees, custodial fees if paid outside of the IRA or Keogh.
- Travel costs to and from your broker or bank, when your visit includes an investment action such as buying a certificate of deposit, opening an IRA or restructuring your portfolio.
- Office supplies used for investment or tax preparations — i.e. calculators, paper, pencils.

In addition, many costs can become partial deductions, for example:

- Bookkeeping or clerical expenses associated with investments.
 - The portion of your home computer time allocated to investments or tax matters in your home. All financial software is deductible.
- If you have any questions about these or other potential deductions, contact the IRS or a Certified Public Accountant. There is no reason not to take every deduction to which you are entitled.

Alcoholic's Program Offers New Approach, Cost Saving

ORLANDO — Alternative Treatment Services, Inc., announced the opening of Magnolia Place, an intensive day-treatment program for problem drinkers, their employers and families. Magnolia Place is the first of its kind in the Central Florida area in its approach to treating persons with alcohol problems.

The 14-day program that Magnolia Place utilizes allows patients to return home at night and on weekends, thereby making the cost of treatment only 20 percent of the cost at traditional 28-day, residential treatment centers.

The program at Magnolia Place extends over two, 5-day weeks and includes classes, counseling, therapy and group discussions aimed at redirecting the lifestyle away from chemical dependency. Families of the patient are involved for two full days. Participation in Alcoholics Anonymous and Al-

Anon is an essential component to the success of the program, as well as one year of after-care.

Physicians and other specialists in chemical dependency, recognizing the need for a reasonably priced, limited-stay treatment program, have developed Magnolia Place. Principals of the organization bring with them records of achievement from both Brookwood Lodge and Lakeland Regional Medical Center in the field of chemical dependency.

For area employers, Magnolia Place provides a means of helping valuable employees regain their balance with minimum time away from work and at far less expense to the employer than has heretofore been possible.

Magnolia Place is located at the corner of Magnolia Avenue and Livingston in downtown Orlando.

...Christian Faith Spreads

Ferrary provides a cup for those who believe it has healing properties.

The water is the only amenity. Otherwise, the cave is spare. But it is easy to imagine the ragtag early Christians here, the apostles in particular. Barnabas was the resident tutor. The Prince of the Apostles, Peter, visited often.

Then there was Paul; he may have used the cave to turn Christ's church on its ear.

According to scriptures, Paul began to separate the church from Judaism in Antioch. And he was motivated by part by an angry confrontation with Peter. As most Christians of the day, Peter held the belief that only Jews should be Christians, and gentiles who wanted to get into the order had to be converted.

In other words, Peter thought gentiles were heathens. And he kept them at a distance. When he visited Paul in Antioch on one occasion, he withdrew from a table at which gentiles were seated. Paul objected, and explains in Galatians: "I withstood (Peter) to his face, because he was to be blamed."

Paul said Christianity could not discriminate and thrive. The gentiles were too numerous to ignore. If the church was to grow, he argued, it would have to forget the Torah; if salvation was through the Mosaic code, then Jesus died in vain. "There is neither Jew nor Greek," he added, "ye are all one in Christ."

The opinions stepped on the toes of conformity. Not to mention those of the chastised Peter. But it eventually became Christian doctrine, and it enabled Paul, "the Apostle of the Gentiles," to take the idea of redemption through simple faith into much of what was then known of the populated world.

History indicates his success. No religion before or since has spread so far so fast. The only place Paul failed, ironically, was in the areas where Christianity originated. Antioch, for instance, is now Moslem; there are fewer Christians here today. It's said, that when the church was the size of a cave.

Church Council Has Black President

By David E. Anderson
UPI Religion Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bishop Philip R. Cousins, the new president of the National Council of Churches, leans slightly forward in his chair to emphasize the point: "I've never been a caretaker and I don't intend to start being a caretaker at this point in my ministry."

Cousin, 50, smiles, then leans back and reflects on the year ahead — a year in which he'll have to give up much of his preferred fishing and family life to become chief spokesman and fireman for the National Council of Churches — the nation's largest ecumenical church agencies made up of 31 denominations with a constituency of some 40 million Protestant and Orthodox church members.

"I'm here, the National Council is here and the work is here," Cousin said. "I'm not going to relegate the office of the president to that of a caretaker."

Cousin, of the African Methodist Episcopal Church is the 13th president of the national council and its first leader from one of the nation's predominantly black denominations, the 2.2 million-member church that traces its roots back to 1787 and a dispute over segregation within the Episcopal Church in Philadelphia.

He succeeds United Methodist Bishop James Armstrong, who last month suddenly resigned both his job as NCC president and his episcopal post in the United Methodist Church. Armstrong cited personal problems, saying he was emotionally and physically drained.

Cousin met with a small group of reporters during his first official trip as president to the New York city headquarters of the NCC.

A native of Pittston, Pa., Cousin is a graduate of Central State University, Wilberforce, Ohio, holds a master's degree from Boston University and earned his doctorate at Colgate-Rochester Divinity School.

He currently serves as bishop of the 9th District of the AME church in Alabama.

In the interview, Cousin said that during his tenure as president, which runs until Dec. 31, 1984, he expects "to proceed with all deliberative speed with Bishop Armstrong's program."

In particular, he said, he wants to "shorten the gap between 475 (shortly) the gap at the address of the council's headquarters at 475 Riverside Drive) and Main Street U.S.A."

"Part of the misunderstanding" between the council and critics in its membership, he said, "is because we have not worked to shorten that gap. I especially want to work with the heads of communion stressing local and regional ecumenism."

Cousin also said he believes his tenure as president will encourage the six historically black denominations which are members of the ecumenical agency to play a larger role in the council's activities.

"I see my role as president opening the door to larger participation by the historic black churches," he said. "This will say to the predominantly black churches that they are full partners."

Having somebody in a leadership role, he added, "makes it easier to see yourself as a part of the organization. To those who were on the fringes, it says, we are now a part of the National Council of Churches, we are full partners."

But he said not to expect any miracles. "The process of being brought into the mainstream is not always accomplished in a year," Cousin said.

And he stressed that the fuller involvement of the black churches will have some positive benefits for the white Protestant and Orthodox churches that make up the bulk of the council.

"The black church historically has been extremely sensitive to human needs," he said. "It has been open to new forms of worship, directed more by the power of the (Holy) Spirit in its lifestyle. It does not tend to separate politics, economics, sociology from theology."

In that regard, Cousin indicated he will not pull back from the council's historic role of speaking out on matters of justice and peace.

At the same time, he said he will play down his own partisan political activism.

"I could but I won't," he said, when asked if he would endorse a presidential candidate.

Need More Atheists In Soviet Union: Pravda

MOSCOW (UPI) — Religion is alive and well in the Soviet Union, despite a new "educational" campaign to convince all 270 million citizens to give up their faith.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Wednesday too many young Soviet parents maintain their faith by baptizing their babies, attending church and celebrating religious holidays.

A front-page editorial blamed incompetent propagandists for the failure to convert all the country's citizens to the state doctrine of atheism, a belief that there is no God.

Pravda called for stepped-up efforts — including more instructive publications and radio and television broadcasts — to win more converts to atheism. The government is trying to win over Christian holdouts as well as convert the nation's 40 million to 50 million Moslems.

"We often meet with a situation where, despite the intensive educational work, young parents have their babies baptized, workers keep on going to church and some families mark religious holidays," said N. Gromakov, secretary of a party committee at a factory in Central Russia.

Pravda said the overwhelming majority of Soviet citizens have given up religion, following the Marxist doctrine that "religion will vanish with the development of socialism."

A recent Soviet study found 97 percent of people aged 14 to 30 said they were atheists. But the number of adult believers is estimated at about 20 percent of the adult population of 160 million.

Most of the 7,500 onion-domed Russian Orthodox churches that dot the countryside have been closed and are being converted into museums of atheism.

Western observers b'lieve the conviction of two priests in the Soviet republic of Lithuania in the past year is evidence of a new crackdown on religion in the Baltic states.

Pravda said the Central Committee's June plenum stressed the importance of converting the religious through efficient ideological, political and moral education.

"Atheistic education requires an all-round perfection of the system for training propaganda staff, who must combine mass and individual forms of activities," the newspaper said.

In the Narimansky region of 100 villages near the Caspian Sea, for example, in 1982 only 78 lectures on atheism were delivered as compared to 220 religious ceremonies, Pravda said.

Preachers Predict Church, State Clash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fundamentalist preachers predict a constitutional clash between their churches and the government unless Congress delays implementation of a law forcing all churches to pay Social Security taxes for their employees.

The mandatory tax collection plan violates the First Amendment guarantee of religious freedom, they said.

"For myself, as a shepherd of a local congregation, the first of January brings a tremendous conflict of conscience," Rev. Harry Jackson, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church of Fairfield, Calif., told a Capitol Hill news conference Wednesday.

"For the United States government to assess a tax on our church treasury — is to tax money that truly belongs to Jesus Christ," added Jackson, who also heads the California Council for Religious Freedom. "If I consent to
