

Bits of Handwork for Gifts

5-X-SUP-24

Marjorie Howe Dixon has so much of the perfume and among the gift for this year, the perfume is more than ever. Even the powder puffs and bells for millady's have been transformed into great charm and deof dolls in gift making so general that one several sizes, from the with wire skirts, to none shields and lamps, tiniest Dutch head to the handle of a powder-

the larger dolls are French variety used tops, spreading their voluminous skirts over and kicked-eyed French made on wire and stuff, who can twine muffer fashion about with no effort what-ir ability in this dis- exceeds that of moreof silk bound by heavy silk thread. And speaking of kittens, these favorite toys of the tiniest person, one will find kittens of all kinds among the stamped—ready-to-be-embroidered sets. Children can make many of these, and rabbits bits too. The designs are simple and easy to execute and not too difficult for small fingers. An older girl might enjoy making a pretty lady of chepe paper on a half pint mayonnaise jar. Any small glass jar with a screw on lid will do. She will need a small spool of copper wire, some fresh clean cotton and some crepe paper in dainty colors. Lavender and green are pretty together. A pink dress, with green and lavender ribbons has its charm too.

First she may make a cotton body covered with white crepe, and wire this firmly to the lid of the jar. A round head can be wired from the body and the extension of the two ends of wire will make arms. These are wound with cotton and covered with white too.

Paints will be needed for the face and the hair is made of the cotton sewed in place. Now to dress the lady. First the girdle must gather a strip of crepe paper and wire it to the jar itself. This is an underskirt. The lady then has made her an overskirt attached to the body so that the lady herself may be unscrewed from the top of the jar. Tiny ribbons of the crepe paper will make pretty decorations for the dress which should be kept in the general period of the hoop-skirted 1860's. The completed result may be used either as a candy jar, or as a container for tiny guest powder-puffs.

A more elaborate piece of work requiring more materials and time, too, will be the composition of an entire dresser set in black satin edged with gold lace. If one did not care for the lace, narrow pink and lavender ribbon could be substituted, for the edging.

Blind Man's Dog His Eyes

Although he's totally blind, Clyde Rothrick, 33, an evangelist, has crossed a 2000-foot railway bridge spanning the Grand River at Grand Rapids, Mich., alms tevery day for a year. On his perilous journeys he is accompanied only by his dog, "Silver." A false step and an oncoming train would hurl Rothrick 50 feet into the river—an almost certain death.

Agricultural extension work in Florida includes projects with colored farmers and farm women in addition to its regular work with whites. The negro organization includes a local district agent, or supervisor, and about fourteen men and women local, county and home demonstration agents, located in strategic counties of the state. A. A. Turner is the local district agent, having headquarters at the A. & M. College for Negroes, Tallahassee.

A Yuletide House Party

By Marjorie Howe Dixon
Christmas arriving as it does this year on Thursday, a house party might well be arranged on state Wednesday morning with the arrival of the guests. Since no Christmas would be complete now without "Good Fellow" work being included, the very first suggestion would be to plan to distribute one's baskets that afternoon.

The children will enjoy their Christmas ever so much more for having planned a happy Christmas for other kiddies. After lunch the hostess might let the children help her arrange the baskets—each family in the party providing one. Dainty ribbons, colored tissue paper and greeting cards will assist in making the recipients feel that they are not forgotten at Christmas time.

After those entrusted with the delivery of the baskets have returned, and dinner has been disposed of—then will come the important event of the Christmas tree.

Some families prefer to give their presents from the tree, others prefer the pleasant illusion of allowing Santa to fill stockings. To be enjoyed Christmas morning, it might be arranged to give each of the group a small present, especially an amusing one, from the tree Christmas Eve. Then stockings must be hung in place, and ho for an early sleep for the youngsters will certainly rise early in the morning.

Christmas morning will arrive with shouts of glee as pajamas fly for the fireplace and its fat stockings. The grown-ups will enjoy the revel too, and all will be more than busy till breakfast. Perhaps a bit reluctantly the kiddies will lay aside their new toys and treasures to get ready for church. But think how nice it will be to come back to them later.

Christmas dinner is always a very special event. The afternoon will need no planning, for after such a hearty meal, there will be naps for the little folks, and quite possibly some of the grown-ups will want to slip away for a little rest. The older children will be busy rehearsing for their tableau in the evening.

An impromptu play could be arranged instead of the tableau if the spirit so moves. In any case the more spontaneous and informally costumed, the more fun it will be for all.

Very light refreshments will be plenty after the bounteous dinner, and then will come the evening performance. If a play is given, it will probably fill the entire evening. If a tableau, then dancing can follow with cakes and fruit punch for a pleasant interlude.

Since Saturday night will be the grand ball—a cotillion, a happy occupation for the youngsters will be the making of favors.

Friday, if that kind of a day, may offer out door diversion—skating, sleighing, and coasting. But if the weather be stormy, and the entire group be compelled to stay in, the cotillion favors can be made by the kiddies, and card tables supplied for the grown-ups. An impromptu concert would be enjoyable for Friday evening. Of course all the Christmas music that can be found, must be brought out, and the evening should be completed with the singing of Christmas Carols.

Saturday morning might lend itself to outdoor sports—or perhaps the afternoon. But either way, time must be reserved for the decoration of the ball room for the dance.

It can be easily imagined that dinner Saturday evening will be a sketchy affair with the thoughts of most of the group on the coming ball. Such an exodus to dress, after dinner! Upstairs corridors will see flying figures in kimonos, making wild dishes for opposite rooms.

Presently the hostess will emerge, to be ready to receive the guests arriving for the evening's festivities. Must cwill be heard, and the house guests too will appear. The favors for the cotillion having all been made at home will receive more than their usual share of appreciation. It is hoped that a pleasant evening will be had by all.

Sunday morning will find folks rather sleepy, but refreshed with some hot coffee and toast, they will make the effort. I am sure, to attend church as usual.

After Sunday dinner will arrive that regrettable hour—the departure. But happy memories at least will remain, and for every one, there will linger in thought for many days, perhaps years, pretty pictures and incidents of their joyous Christmas house party.

Interwoven sox will make a very appropriate gift for him. We have them all ready in Christmas boxes. McKinnon-Markwood.

Farm Exhibits At Recent State Fair Declared Excellent

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 18.—The farm and home exhibits at the recent State fair held at Jacksonville, especially those in the negro section, are described as the best in the history of this fair by A. P. Spencer, vice-president of the Agricultural Extension Division, University of Florida, who is actively in charge of the farm workers in this division.

"Too much credit cannot be given to the colored people in making their exhibits what they were this time—the best exhibits of these people I have ever seen," Professor Spencer says. "Quality and quantity were excellent. The arrangement was unusually good. Such things as marketability and attrac-

TO HOLD JOINT MEETING

GAINESVILLE, Dec. 19.—The State Probation Officers association and the State Red Cross convention will be held jointly with the State Conference of Social Workers which will convene here Feb. 8 for a four days session, according to an announcement by Dr. L. M. Bristol, president of the conference. A report of the Florida Children's Code Commission, and a report based on a study being made of persons paroled from state institutions during the past three years in Hillsborough, Jackson and Alachua counties will feature the conference of social work.

MORE MONEY IS TO COME FROM CELERY IN 1925

 until February, Mr. Scott feels that all conditions are very favorable to the local crop from the standpoint of competition. Mr. Scott also pointed out the fact that the 1,000 cars left in California after the first of the year will probably not be more than enough to furnish the western states.

Boarding of the local crop, it was learned, will probably begin the week following Christmas and the first shipments are expected to be made between Jan. 10 and 15. Between now and that time there will probably be one or two cars of early celery shipped out of this city with some express shipments made for Christmas marketing. It is predicted, according to Mr. Scott, that Manatee county will ship 150 cars during January and Sanford approximately 400.

Wiggin's Situation Favorable
 Mr. S. Wiggin, sales manager of Chase and Company, sums up the situation generally as favorable when contrasted to last year's situation. The total output is expected to amount to about 5,000 cars which is considered a normal crop. Growing conditions have been good, Mr. Wiggin intimated, and celery is growing rapidly at the present and is expected to attain satisfactory size.

The first appreciable movement of celery, Mr. Wiggin believes, will begin about Jan. 15. Between 400 and 500 cars are expected to move during the latter part of the month, according to Mr. Wiggin.

Competition from California and New York celery is expected to be over by March 15, giving Sanford producers a clear field. Mr. Wiggin declared that New York reports indicate that more than 1,000 cars of celery are now being held in storage in the state. This, he believes, will tend to depress the price of early celery as the New York market is taken as a criterion by markets elsewhere. This situation, however, is expected to clear up before the spring celery is placed upon the market, giving the Florida product a clear sweep.

Walsh Strengthens Co-Operation
 Harry Walsh, sales manager of the Florida Vegetable corporation, pins his faith to co-operation. "If the distributors, banks and other agencies entering into the celery industry co-operate," Mr. Walsh said, "we will have a successful season, providing, of course, the weather is favorable."

With regard to planting early and late celery the coming season appears to be the reverse of last year's season. Last year, Mr. Walsh stated, there was a heavy planting of celery while this year, emphasis has been laid upon the late product. The early movement is expected to be light.

Reports from Manatee county indicate that celery has been under the bleaching process there for 10

Spread Of Socialism Keeping Prince Of Wales Single, Playwright Declares

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—In a half facetious, half serious speech before the Philadelphia branch of the English-Speaking Union recently, Cosmo Hamilton, noted British author and playwright, said the reason the Prince of Wales refuses to marry is that he believes he will never be King of England. The Prince, he explained, has been exposed to the doctrines of Socialism so much that he has had the germ injected somewhat in his own veins.

"The Prince of Wales is a great chap, a charming fellow and very human," Mr. Hamilton said. "He loses his head from time to time, but that doesn't matter. Just at the present he is suffering from a very extraordinary state of affairs, which is undermining every step he is taking towards the throne.

"The fashionable hobby in London right now is Socialism. One can't be smart unless one is one, so to speak. It is like the cross-word puzzle here."

"The Prince is up against it. He doesn't marry because there has been injected into him from all sides the virus of Socialism. He has had it rubbed into him so much that he will never be king, that he doesn't see why he should perpetrate a royal marriage, with some near-reigning beauty for reasons of state, and have children he doesn't want and be unhappy the rest of his life."

Newlyweds Die In Sleep When Breeze Blows Out Gaslight

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—Alphonso Palmeri, 65 years old, and Frances, his wife, also 65 were found dead in bed Wednesday in their three-room apartment in the house back of the tenement at 168 Mulberry Street. They had been using their gas range for heating purposes. During the night the wind blew out the light and fumes filled the room, causing asphyxiation.

The Palmeries were married only a year ago. The ceremony was the talk of "Little Italy" where they won admiration for the decision to escape loneliness or dependence in their old age. Each of them had grown children and grand children, by previous marriages, but neither wanted to live with the sons or daughters. Accordingly they established a home to which the children came for visits.

Santa Claus and the Pioneers

It was necessary for Santa Claus to watch his step in those days—something less than one hundred years ago—when he was making his first visits to the children of the pioneers shut up in the wilderness cabins of our northern states. Only reluctantly did suspicion give way to welcome. Those grave men and women of the pathfinder race were slow to admit that Santa's garments did not smell too strongly of incense and that his jolly red face was not a mask hiding more sinister features. But the children welcomed him. No doubt the fears and warnings of the grown ups added one more pleasant thrill to those whispered tales of that strange night traveler who drove reindeers instead of oxen, and carried a pack from which he distributed enchanting gifts to those boys and girls whose high standard of conduct made them worthy objects of his benevolence. Standards were high in those days and it is recorded that sometimes there was little besides a stout switch to greet young eager eyes on Christmas morning.

Thought flies away from such a painful scene and prefers to picture a cabin, before Christmas, dimly lighted by the flames on the hearth, children sound asleep in trundle beds and mother and father working quickly and quietly at their home-made toys and gifts. Doubtless in most cases the picture would not be complete without the disapproving presence of grand father, grandmother, or maiden aunt, busy at some pioneer handcraft, but not too busy to reprove the evilness of such ways with curiously applied texts and the dimly remembered warnings of still earlier days.

Very little money was spent on Christmas gifts. Careful calculation was required in order to stretch the family income so it would include paying for a few pieces of the crude candy of the day and also perhaps pay the nearest blacksmith for shaping iron runners to fit wooden sleds and skates made by father at home. Mothers did not require such aid. When the poke-berries and the walnuts and all the other forest materials for making dyes were ready, she had thought ahead in Christmas time and prepared the gay yarns which later she knit into scarfs, wristlets and mittens. These same dyes put roses into the cheeks of the rag dolls and furnished gay coats and trousers for the clumsy jumping-jacks. The last seemed to have been favorite toys. Besides these there were dolls' tassels made of acorn cups, ferns and witch's sand fairies whose heads were carved hickory nuts and whose bodies were shapen of wood and wire. Indian crafts were identical to meet the pioneers' needs. Dyed hedgehog quills made gay strings of beads, wild turkey feathers formed juvenile war bonnets, and the hands that made clumsy jumping-jacks and skates showed marvelous skill in shaping small bows and arrows for the use of, maybe, some future hunter of fame. Had the year been unusually prosperous, these before Christmas preparations included the purchase of crockery mugs out of which the children drank on high days and holidays, but which at other times stood on shelves well out of reach of youthful hands.

A few of these things have come down to us out of that time. Here and there in an old American home, now and then behind the glass cases of museums we can see them. Especially do we find specimens of the drinking cup. The pottery is coarse, the shapes are not elegant, and the coloring is crude indeed. For example, one shows a blue man driving a blue yoke of oxen hitched to a blue plow, and the owner is admonished by a blue motto from the Book of Proverbs to "Go to the ant," etc. Another little cup has a mulberry woman, straight as a stick, carrying a mulberry pail, all to adorn a mulberry motto from "Poor Richard" having to do with the sad fate of those who fail to take the ant for their guide in industry. Perhaps these pious verses helped to make possible some of the compromises with conscience that those men and women found necessary. Such gifts served the needs of those children who would have fled in horror at even a dim vision of the toy automobiles and airplanes of today. Such as these would have confirmed the worst that had been said as to Christmas toys being the invention of that evil one supposed to lurk behind Santa Claus' white whiskers.

As may be guessed, other compromises with conscience were also made. We are told that now and then grandfather, who had quoted texts and scolded every step in the preparations, took possession when it came to the actual time of giving, and in the fullest possible dress of an Indian chief, distributed the gifts with Indian form. Perhaps he thought that thereby the malign influence of Santa Claus would be neutralized by the native spirit of the woods.

There were families in which gift giving was approved, but to whom even such gifts as have been mentioned were impossible. All the pioneers were poor but poorest of all were those messengers of civilization, the pioneer preachers. In one such family the mother found it possible to give her only son nothing but an apple. This apple was procured only with much effort, but it always came, was polished till it shone, and came soon to stand to the son for all the mother would have liked to give. When times became easier and other gifts were made, the son continued to prize most highly the red apple the mother never forgot. Then came the year when the mother had passed beyond such gift giving. The first Christmas eve after this event the young man, a country preacher in his turn, spent the night in a pioneer home just robbed of its first baby. At dawn the young preacher left for his own home, depressed with his own grief and that of his friends. He felt a special sense of loss because for the first time within his memory he would have no red apple. The cold wind blew, the snow made the trail heavy and the bare branches creaked their lonesome message. Suddenly at a turn in the path, lying beside a huge log that crossed his road this young man saw a big red apple, just such an apple as his father always gave. And there is no explanation. The presence of that apple in that spot was never explained. When that young preacher became an old man, he spoke of the event with awe. As the years went on, he found that something else had been given him besides his mother's apple. He found he had been given the certainty of love's enduring quality that strengthened him all his days.

LICKETY-SNIP The Christmas Sprite

Marjorie Dixie Belle checked softly, demanded to know what he was doing. "Look! Isn't he perfectly handsome?" she exclaimed, clapping her hands. "Looked round, and saw a pair of dancing toy-like scissors. His quilt suit was decorated with green and his party cap of red, set against one eye, was with a bunch of holly leaves. "Are you sir?" asked Lickety-Snip, the Christmas Sprite, and with this the elf a quick hand spring off his feet, and the blades clashed and clattered. "And this old boy," bowing low, "is my good friend, the fastest and strongest of all the scissors in the shop. Blades acknowledged the elf's rearing on his back and falling with a mighty thump! George and Susie Belle stood hand in hand watching this fascinating exhibition. "We're very pleased to meet you," they chorused. "Can you do any other tricks?" "Indeed we can," said Lickety-Snip proudly. "You should see us with Brown Paper. We can cut around it in circles—and scollops too, for that matter." Susie Belle advanced timidly, clasping her fat little dimpled hands. "I don't suppose," she said "you—you could really cut out a paper doll, could you?" "A paper doll," said George. "Isn't such a much—I'd rather see him cut out a kite—I would. A dark cloud floated overhead, descending lower and lower until the little sprito suddenly jumped up and caught one end of it. "Here's Brown Paper," he cried. "Now I'll make you a hole so you can climb through and watch us." Two Blades cut a hole through quickly and then cut the sweetest little set of steps you ever saw for George and Susie Belle to climb up. George helped his sister, and then came Lickety-Snip and last of all Two Blades. "Ladies first!" cried the elf. "We're off!" "And up and down dashed Two Blades with Lickety-Snip directing him, going into funny little corners and finally ending in a grand snip. "Oh! Oh!" cried Susie Belle. "It's the most hoeful Paper Doll and it's as big as me. I never did have such a nice big Paper Doll." George helped her fold the big doll carefully so she could sit down beside them and watch, for Two Blades was already clashing his blades with impatience ready to be off on the next exciting excursion. "Now for St. George and the Dragon!" shouted Lickety-Snip, and off he dashed again, with his trusty steed. It was almost impossible to follow, so swiftly did the strange pair dash about, into and out of corners, cutting around in all sorts of swift little twists and turns. "What will it be, do you suppose?" asked Susie Belle. George didn't know, but in a minute back raced Lickety-Snip and Two Blades. "There, isn't he a beauty?" cried the elf, and he held up a wonderful kite in the shape of a dragon! "Is he really mine?" "Can we keep them for good?" cried George and Susie Belle together. "Indeed you may!" answered Lickety-Snip. And away he raced on his flashing steed until he became a tiny green speck in the distance. George sat up on one elbow, and blinked at the winter sunshine streaming across his bed. "Why, it's Christmas! Oh Susie! Susie rubbed her eyes and sat up in her little white bed. "He was such a nice green elf," she said, "and Two Blades was so bright and shiny." "I know," George chuckled. "Wish I had a horse like that, Merry Christmas Susie. Let's hurry and look at our stockings!"

COMMISSION RE-ELECTED
CLEARWATER, Dec. 18.—Mayor Frank J. Booth and Commissioners J. N. McClung and J. L. Kelly will hold office as the heads of the city's affairs for another term. When they met for the purpose of accepting petitions for names to be placed on the ballot for the city election papers signed by nearly all voters in the city asking that the incumbents be placed on the ballots for re-election were the only ones received.

CHIPLEY, Dec. 10.—R. S. English, supervising inspector of cattle tick-eradication work in zone 13, announces that a part of the zone has been released from quarantine, effective Dec. 23. Territory released includes all of Holmes county, about the e-fourths of Jackson, all of Washington north of Hard Labor creek and west of Holmes. A few more dipplings will be necessary in the string, the inspector stated, to finally check out.

JOE'S SMOKE HOUSE

Announcing Old Saint Nick --

Not the Chap who comes in with a sackful of cheap tin toys and blaring horns, but the Santa of Boydom. The cheerful, robust old chap who hands out boxing gloves, footballs, baseballs, bats, punching bags, skates, air rifles—gifts the boy appreciates—gifts which build them into stalwart manhood; gifts which causes the spark of joy to burn long after the last faded piece of holly has been removed from the walls. That's the Santa we are announcing.

CHRISTMAS GIVING THROUGH THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

A pleasant aspect of present day Christmas activities is that presented by the gift giving by children through the public schools. This activity seems to have started spontaneously in many places so that no one city or community can claim to be its originator. Whether it originated, this gift giving is fast becoming an admirable part of public school life. Methods of managing this activity are so similar that description of the plans of a single school practically describes those of all schools.

Preparations for this holiday giving, commonly begin two or three weeks before Christmas. Notice of this beginning is made by teachers. Committees consisting of children, teachers and parents are appointed. The committee group of the mothers of children in one room are given charge of the plans and activities of that room. Again teachers and children make and carry out their own plans.

The names of needy children or of whole families are sometimes obtained through personal knowledge, but in the larger cities these generally come from the lists of welfare organizations and public spirited newspapers.

Actual conditions in each case are ascertained through personal visits made by members of the Christmas committees. Preparations to suit the needs of these individuals are then carefully made. Does the committee find that a certain little girl must earnestly desire a woolly dog? The committee secures that dog. Does an undernourished little boy need special food? The committee procures that food. So on through the lists. That which is really wanted by the poor children is provided whenever possible. Very generally now clothing is not so prevalent. Baskets of good food, obtainable in no other way, and more than all, something of brotherly kindness are put into the lives of parents and children living in homes to which otherwise little of Christmas would come.

An Old Fashioned Christmas Program

By Marjorie Howe Dixon

A simple fireplace arrangement will make a pleasant and suitable background for the Christmas program herein suggested for the school room. The selections to be read or acted, group themselves naturally about the hearth. Children love to "dress up" and may do so, for the singing of the carols, as well as for the acting. The Christmas carols suggested are old favorites. Others may be substituted or added where the teacher finds its advisable. The program will be divisible as follows:

1. Christmas Music. "It came upon the midnight clear."
2. Selections from Snow-Bound by Whittier.
3. From "A Christmas Carol" by Dickens, the scene, "Bob Cratchit's Christmas."
4. "Was the Night Before Christmas."
5. Christmas Music. "Holy Night, Silent Night."
6. Costumes for the Christmas music can be similar to those used for the Dickens sketch. The first verse of the old hymn, "It came upon the midnight clear" is cast might come before the curtain and give the title.
7. The copy of Snow-Bound at hand shows an excellent picture of the fireplace in Whittier's home, which would assist in constructing the stage setting already suggested.
8. Of course the poem is too long to be given in full. It would need to be cut. The boys would probably like the first parts, and the girls could take the part starting with:

"Shut in from the world without, We sat the clean-winger hearth about."

Different actions for the group are suggested in lines:

"We spent the time with stories old Wrought puzzles out, and riddles told Or stammered from our school book lore," etc.

The aunt and uncle could be given, but perhaps not in full, and appropriately announced. Two small pages or heralds might do verse of the old hymn, "It came upon the midnight clear" is cast might come before the curtain and give the title.

The copy of Snow-Bound at hand shows an excellent picture of the fireplace in Whittier's home, which would assist in constructing the stage setting already suggested.

Of course the poem is too long to be given in full. It would need to be cut. The boys would probably like the first parts, and the girls could take the part starting with:

THIS WINTER'S WARMTH IS EXPRESSED SUBTLY

Here for instance in an elegant afternoon coat of velvet, a fabric which is immensely popular this season, and which adapts itself admirably to the new mode in outerwear by its skillful lining and interesting than by the use of heavy malleable materials. There is a consequent gain in beauty and artistry in the designing of the winter "outfit."

This particular model, which has just been relayed to us by the Cheney Style Service, was made in fine red velvet with bands of pattern on the collar and cuffs, and it would be equally rich in black with ermine, or in any insistent color combination which might be suited to the type of the wearer.

In this coat the godet theme, which has perhaps done more than any other to relieve the monotony of the straight silhouette in used just charmingly in two insetted coats on either side. These godets are trimmed with narrow bands of small plaits, and this note is repeated on the cuffs and collar.

From Jean Patou's Midwinter collection, foreshadowing the Spring style Henri Cranche, the fashion authority, writes us: "The coats are very straight, narrow, and wrapped over like models we have seen for the last two years. They are in satin, ottoman, crepe or reps in black or in a very light sketch below."

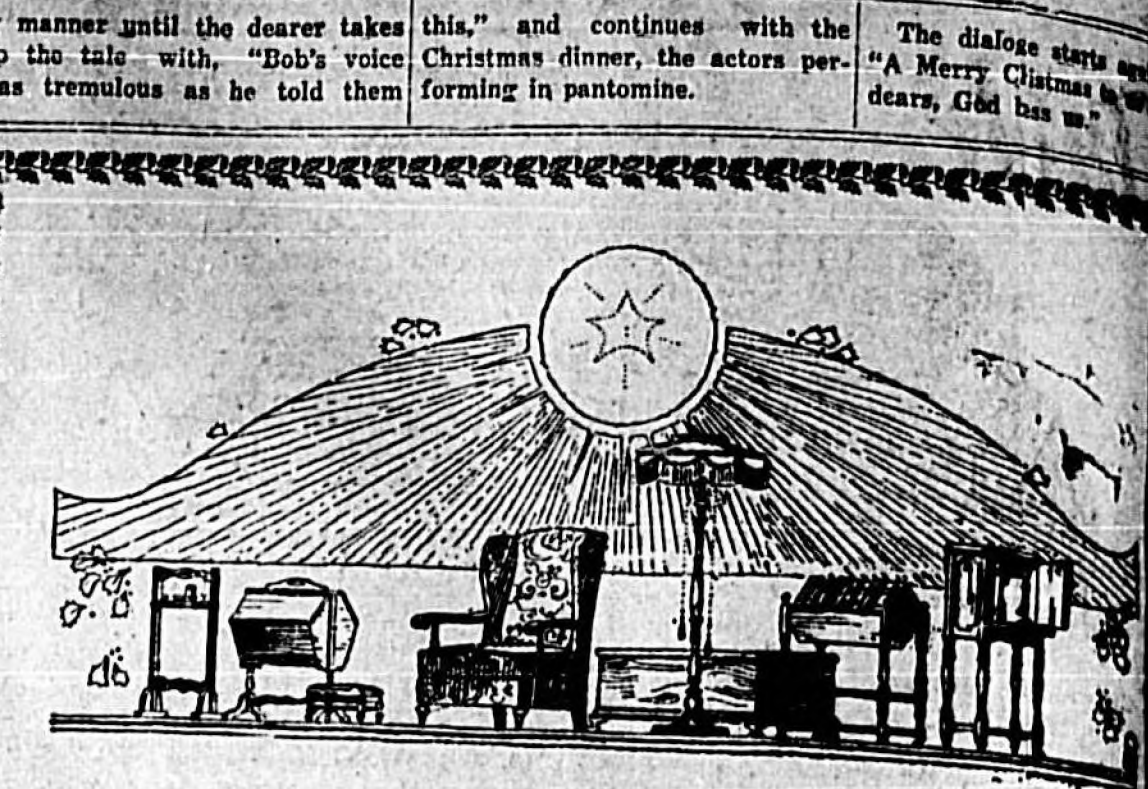

and finish with the description of the Doctor.

If any slight changes are necessary for the stage, instrumental music could come next before the youthful pages announce: "A Christmas Carol" by Charles Dickens, Stave Three.

A reader for the descriptive parts will be necessary and he can sit at one side of the stage in front of the curtain. For it would not do to omit. Then up rose Mrs. Cratchit, Bob Cratchit's wife, dressed out but poorly in a tweed turned down, but brave in ribbons.

"Another guest" could be omitted to advantage and the poem taken up at this point:

"At last the great logs crumbling low Sent out a dull and duller glow."

Table Decorations for the Christmas Feast

Marjorie Howe Dixon

During the holidays vacation her high school daughter served a group of chattering booted haircuts in an informal luncheon. They were delighted with the daintiness of the setting. The entire service included bread and butter plates was very much like Wedgewood in creamy color and were edged with a band of green. These were placed on lace mats with a low footed glass of a clear jade green color, to decorate each place.

At each end of the table stood a tall crystal bud vase containing a single poinsettia. In the center of the ensemble embraced in a wreath of holly and pine branches was a round sweet meat box filled with the most luscious arrangements of nuts and preserves. The girls fully appreciated this.

My friend gave a children's party for her grammar school youngsters and their friends. The table was set for eight with gold and silver service plates, glass goblets and Italian silver napkins, that matched the house for a week just went the mother was going to have for their eyes.

Of course they saw the ice cream first. But such funny ice cream. Sitting on a red plate was an ice cream man built along with black candy dots for features and buttons and crowned with a green gum-drop hat. So fascinating were the solemn men that the children almost forgot the complete array of the table. Mother provided low green mats with very each holding a very elevated and slender red candle.

How delighted awaited their eyes when they looked up from the demolished ice cream man and beheld a potted Christmas tree made of gum drops at each place while in the center mother had an elevation of books. Little red and green gum drop children rattle the wooden sleds and out upon an oval table mirror giving the effect of an ice pond with a border of salt representing snow banks.

"Quick Turnover" for Pancakes, and Business, Woman Manufacturer's Recipe for Success

Miss Alma Lassen, president of her own manufacturing company, finds that quick turnover is profitable. This shrewd young woman possesses the rare combination of qualities—inventive genius and business ability.

The Modesty Pancake, manufactured by her company, was invented by Miss Lassen herself.

Sometimes, for relaxation, Miss Lassen's inventive genius turns to culinary creations. It is then she shows her Danish ancestry, for the recipe for pancakes she makes has been handed down to her from generations of expert Danish housewives.

Danish Pancakes

4 Eggs
1/2 cup Flour
1/2 teaspoon Salt
1 teaspoon Sugar

Beat eggs well, add flour, salt and sugar and beat thoroughly. Mix with milk slowly and melted butter. Cook about three tablespoons of batter to one cake. Turn pan to spread evenly.
