Writers end 154-day walkout

LOS ANGELES — Film and television script writers are back at work under a new contract they overwhelmingly approved to end a paralyzing 154-day strike against Hollywood producers, the longest in film industry history.

Members of the Writers Guild of America ratified the pact Sunday by a vote of 2,111 to 412 after heated discussions in New York and Los Angeles.

Negotiators for the 9,900-member guild and the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers reached the breakthrough agreement Wednesday after an all-night bargaining session.

The writers could return to work immediately, bringing to a close the walkout that has crippled Hollywood, forced the networks to push back the debut of the new television season and led to layoffs of thousands of studio employees.

Iran, Iraq agree to cease-fire

UNITED NATIONS — Hostilities in the bloodiest conflict since World War II neared an end with agreement by Iran and Iraq to a cease-fire in the nearly 8-year-old Persian Gulf war, followed by direct negotiations between the two nations.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar was to announce the date the cease-fire was to begin this afternoon after a one-hour closed session of the Security Council.

Perez de Cuellar had said earlier it would take at least two weeks before a cease-fire could take effect because of the need for "preparations" such as mobilizing a U.N. truce team.

Rocket work ahead of schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL — Rocket mechanics replaced a faulty engine valve aboard the shuttle Discovery over the weekend and NASA managers awaited test results to determine how soon this week a second attempt can be made to fire the spaceship's engines.

The work was ahead of schedule Sunday, prompting speculation the delayed but crucial test firing could be rescheduled for as early as Wednesday. A decision was expected today after engineers and managers assessed progress made over the weekend.

To fire the engines Wednesday, Discovery's off-delayed countdown would have to resume around 6 p.m. Tuesday at the T-minus 11-hour mark to set the stage for fuel loading later that night.

Fire-rescue plan on hold

Lake Mary to study first-response pact

By CAROL RUMSEY
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Commissioners have agreed to give their city staff a month to prepare a report on the pros and cons of a proposed inter-local first-response agreement with the county for fire-rescue services.

The proposal, drafted by City Commissioner Randall Morris, calls for the county to pay half the costs to build a fire station at or near Lake Mary Boulevard and Longwood Lake Mary Road, assist with training of firefighters and purchase radio equipment.

Under a first-response agreement, the closest emergency equipment would respond to a rescue call, regardless of district.

Current plans to build a fire station on Rhinehart Road will proceed "full speed" ahead, according to Morris. The fire station is part of a public safety complex to include facilities for fire, police and a public works garage.

"We will proceed with the drawings as if nothing has happened," said Project Manager Stephen Murphy of Catalyst Incorporated Architecture in Orlando. "We will design the complex with the fire station incorporated into the package, but in such a way that it can easily be cut from the plans, if needed." According to Murphy, it would cost the city between $3,000 and $10,000 to modify current plans for a new site.

The staff report, under the direction of City Manager Robert Norris, is to include fact-finding with other cities who have joined their fire-rescue services with the county.

The city of Casselberry, which this year pulled out of a first-response agreement with the county, was mentioned briefly during Thursday's meeting.

Casselberry Mayor Owen Sheppard said the problem involved the county's unwillingness to share the cost of services. "We were asked to cover Deer Run, an unincorporated area," said Sheppard. "The county collects a fire district tax from Deer Run, and we asked to be paid some of that money, which they refused."

Sheppard also said the county did not provide equal emergency service. According to Sheppard, the city always responds to rescue calls with an ambulance, whereas the county responds with "just a fire engine."

County Administrator Ken Hooper said both county and individual cities contract with Rural-Metro Inc. Ambulance Services. According to Hooper, paramedics on either a fire engine or ambulance have received identical training. "We have found that the majority of calls do not involve hospital transport, so it is not cost effective to send an ambulance on every call," he said.

$23 million still waiting to be claimed

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — After two weeks of frenzied ticket buying and climbing jackpots, a Florida Lotto player has finally picked the six numbers needed to win the jackpot, which hit a state record $23 million, lottery officials say.

No one claimed the winning ticket by late Sunday, but lottery officials said they knew it was purchased in Brandon, east of Tampa.

About $26.7 million in $1 tickets were sold for Saturday night's drawing, more than doubling the $12.9 million sold for the previous state record, said Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul. The heavy tickets sales also spilled over into the lottery's daily game, Cash3, she said.

More than 600,000 Lotto players who correctly guessed three, four or five out of the six winning numbers won a total of $6.5 million in prizes, Paul said.

"We welcome this success and we're thrilled to have such a sales week and such a tremendous number of winners," Paul said. "Having more than 610,000 winners for a single drawing just 15 weeks after Lotto began is unprecedented," she added.

Lotto players lured to the climbing jackpot snapped up 11.5 million tickets on Saturday, a state record since the game began in April. During a peak sales hour Saturday, the ticket system was generating

City commission faces annexation ordinance

By WAYNE NIZE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — An ordinance allowing the annexation of property owned by Circuit Judge Kenneth M. Leffler and his relatives, previously opposed by Seminole County, may be adopted by the city commission tonight.

The commission tabled the second reading and final adoption of the annexation ordinance for 30 days at its July 11 meeting, after hearing county opposition from assistant county attorney Lonnie Groot. The delay was to allow the property owners time to meet with legal counsel.

Ted Arthur, representing the owners at the meeting, said they had little advance notice that the county would oppose the annexation.

The 119-acre parcel is owned by Judge Leffler, Leffler's sister-in-law Mary Leffler, and Leffler's sisters, Lilla Walling and Elizabeth Hush. It is located west of the city, extending from the Seaboard Coastline Railroad to Lake Monroe, between Old Monroe Road and Riverview Avenue.

The county opposed the annexation on the grounds it would create an enclave, which is against state annexation laws, according to Groot.

After the July 11 meeting Groot said if the city annexed the property the Seminole County Commission would then consider whether to challenge the annexation in circuit court.

Also on the meeting agenda is a discussion of the three-year-old lawsuit pending against the Star Ling Corporation for damage done to the

Inspector resigns job with county

SANFORD — Seminole County plumbing inspector Emile Georgi resigned Friday rather than face a county firing for doing a remodeling job in Altamonte Springs outside his county job without notifying county building officials.

The county's chief electrical inspector Donna Larson took out an electrical permit for work on the same remodeling job that led to Georgi's resignation. Because she had a letter on file authorizing her to do work that would not require county inspections, she will receive no punishment.

"This is a warning to myself as well as everyone else that we are a public service, and we have a responsibility to ourselves as well as everyone else," said Bill Culbertson, Seminole County building department director.

If Georgi had not resigned, Culbertson said he faced firing

Prosecutors want environmental network

ORLANDO — Florida prosecutors hope to establish a statewide network to attack "environmental criminals" who have learned how to dodge the state's civil penalties.

"Prosecutors need to come in and say, 'You've committed a crime, and we're going to prosecute you for it,'" Mac McLeod, Fort Lauderdale assistant state attorney, told the Orlando Sentinel on Sunday.

"They may know how to manipulate the regulatory process, but they will not manipulate the criminal process."

McLeod's boss, 7th Judicial Circuit State Attorney Stephen Boyles, and Jacksonville state attorney Ed Austin have proposed setting up a statewide organization solely to prosecute violations of environmental law. The network would focus on criminals who illegally dump toxic wastes rather than pay to transport waste to a legal dump.

"Anyone who dumps arsenic or cyanide ... into our environment is no less a criminal than someone who shoots people — maybe more so," McLeod said. "Someone who puts cyanide into my ground water is trying to kill me, the way I see it."

If approved at the state attorneys' annual convention this fall, the network could be in place next year. It would be called SENIC, for Statewide Environmental Crimes and Nuisance Investigation and Criminal Prosecution Network.

Currently, most violations of environmental law are handled by the legal offices of the state's environmental agencies. The process usually involves lengthy negotiations between the agency and the law-breaking company or individual.

Mislabeled fish blamed for poisonings

FORT LAUDEPDALE — Unsuspecting Florida seafood lovers routinely pay top prices for inexpensive and sometimes poisonous substitutes that are deliberately mislabeled as grouper, red snapper and other popular fish.

Nearly a quarter of the seafood samples routinely tested by the state Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services in the past three years were found to be mislabeled, while others were adulterated with foreign substances.

That compares with less than 2 percent mislabeled in meat products, which unlike seafood, fall under mandatory federal inspections.

"It's a black market ... up and down the coast," said Michael Montella, owner of Triple M Seafood in Pompano Beach. "We have misrepresentations running rampant in a very large industry with no federal controls."

He said consumers "are playing Russian roulette" each time they buy fish.

Deception in Florida's billion-dollar-a-year fish industry could be responsible for hundreds of cases of poisonings annually. Victims of ciguatera poisoning routinely identify the fish they got sick from as a type such as flounder that does not carry the toxin.

Fire kills one, injures 12

PLANTATION — Fire swept through the Golden Age retirement home late Sunday, killing one of the 23 elderly residents and injuring more than a dozen others, authorities said.

Officials said the fire apparently started in the room of one of the residents of the home in Plantation, a Broward County community west of Fort Lauderdale.

The cause was not immediately determined, officials said, and the name of the fire victim was not released.

The fire started between 10:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. EDT.

A dispatcher at the Plantation Police Department said she had no information on the fire.

Lab may have used pound animals

ORANGE PARK — The University of Florida may have purchased cats and dogs that were sold in violation of a law prohibiting the use of pound animals for research, a newspaper reported Sunday.

State attorney's office records indicate that the owner of a Palatka kennel bought dogs and cats from the Clay County Pound and sold them for research in violation of a Clay County ordinance, the Florida Times-Union and Jacksonville Journal reported.

The University of Florida received cats and dogs from that kennel, Sunshine Kennels, as recently as July 15. The university has since severed its relationship with kennel owner George Glisson.

University officials said they were unaware Sunshine Kennels may have been supplying them with pound animals. The university has stopped buying from Glisson until it is sure Glisson is obtaining animals through authorized channels.

Glisson is under investigation by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which regulates suppliers of animals for research. He could not be reached for comment.

A university spokesman said that in one year, Sunshine Kennels sold 429 dogs and 127 cats to the university.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

NASA engineers replace faulty valve

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Running ahead of schedule, rocket engineers worked Sunday to wind up replacement of a fuel valve aboard the shuttle Discovery, raising the possibility of a second engine firing attempt as early as Wednesday.

But a decision on whether to attempt the delayed but crucial test Wednesday or Thursday was not expected until Monday after engineers and managers have had a chance to assess the progress of repair work and inspections over the weekend.

To fire the engines Wednesday, shuttle engineers would have to resume an oft-delayed countdown around 6 p.m. Tuesday at the T-minus 11-hour mark to set the stage for fuel loading later that night — and that may be too optimistic.

Engineers still faced a series of tests in the engine compartment and it was not known Sunday if the work could be completed in time for a Wednesday engine ignition. NASA managers last week deliberately avoided naming a target date, although most officials thought Thursday was a likely candidate.

The "flight readiness firing," a major test of the overall shuttle system and a requirement for the first post-Challenger flight, was first attempted last Thursday, but a 1-inch hydrogen valve in main engine No. 2 forced flight computers to abort the countdown a half-second before engine ignition.

NASA managers then voted to replace the faulty valve, along with about 5 feet of ducting, and engineers with Rocketdyne, builder of the 7,000-pound power plants, climbed into Discovery's cramped engine compartment about midnight Friday to begin the replacement procedure.

The original repair schedule called for installing the replacement valve Sunday, but the old valve was out and the new one in by late Saturday.

"They got the old valve out Saturday by the end of first shift and the new one in by the end of second shift," NASA spokesman Lisa Malone said Sunday. "They did a leak check and it looks good."

"What they're doing now is reconnecting the lines they had to disconnect to get down in there and then they'll have to do some leak checks on those lines, those reconnected lines, and then they'll do an electrical checkout of the valve."

Had Discovery's main engines been fired last Thursday as planned, its launch on the first post-Challenger mission would have been scheduled for around Sept. 23, a date based in part on time needed to fix an already known leak in a steering rocket system.

Given the delay caused by the balky engine fuel valve, a late September launch remains theoretically possible.

Tropical storm Beryl lurking just off coast of Louisiana

United Press International

MIAMI — A tropical storm with winds up to 50 mph lurked off the coast of Louisiana today, prompting storm warnings along much of the Gulf Coast just as New England waved goodbye to the season's first Atlantic tropical storm.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami said a tropical depression gained enough strength over the Gulf of Mexico early today to become Tropical Storm Beryl.

Small boats were warned to stay in port on the Gulf of Mexico from Port O'Connor, Texas, to Pensacola, Fla., and coastal residents in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama were told to closely monitor weather service advisories.

The weather service said Beryl had sustained winds of about 40 mph with gusts up to 50 mph.

At 5 a.m. CDT, the center of Beryl was located just east of New Orleans, at latitude 30.0 north, longitude 89.5 west. Little change was expected in the strength or location of the storm in the next 24 hours, the National Hurricane Center said.

The earlier storm, a weakling named Alberto that fizzled near Canada, sprang to life Sunday off Massachusetts, then skirted the coast on its way across Nova Scotia and into the Gulf of St. Lawrence. At last report, Alberto, its winds weakened to 35 mph, was near Prince Edward Island and sweeping northeast across the gulf.

"The temperatures are so cool up there, the system is going to be absorbed by a large trough of low pressure over Quebec," forecaster Max Mayfield said. "This system is so small, Alberto will be swallowed in the large trough."

The storm dumped thunderstorms on Maine and blew cool rains across New England, dropping temperatures into the 70s and 80s and ending a heat wave that lasted more than a week, forecasters said.

Alberto grew from a depression that formed off the New Jersey coast during the weekend. A depression, the lowest level tropical disturbance, becomes a tropical storm when its sustained circulating winds exceed 39 mph. It would become a hurricane at 74 mph.

Alberto is the first tropical storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

Forecasters also kept an eye on hurricanes Hector and Iva in the Pacific. At last report, Hector was 1,650 miles west-southwest of the southern tip of Baja California and Iva was 350 miles south of the southern tip of the Baja. Neither was expected to threaten land.

GOP leader rips Merkle

United Press International

LAND O' LAKES — Longtime Republican leader Tommy Thomas wants Senate candidate Robert Merkle to leave the race and perhaps even the GOP because of his attacks on top Republican officials.

Thomas, former state GOP chairman and now a state committeeman, on Saturday said "it makes me sick" to read of Merkle's attacks on Vice President George Bush, former Attorney General Edwin Meese III, Gov. Bob Martinez and Merkle's opponent for the GOP Senate nomination, Rep. Connie Mack, R-Fla.

Thomas made his remarks in a speech to the Pasco County Republican Executive Committee, the Tampa Tribune-Times reported Sunday.

Meese cartoons creating newspaper controversies

United Press International

MIAMI — Two newspapers decision against publishing Ed Meese cartoons while their parent company had a multimillion-dollar decision pending before the attorney general has drawn criticism from their own cartoonists.

Editorial page editors of The Miami Herald and The Detroit Free Press decided this year not to publish staff-drawn cartoons critical of Attorney General Edwin Meese, who was under investigation for criminal and ethical violations.

During that time, Meese had a request from the two newspapers' parent company, Knight-Ridder Inc., to merge the Free Press with the rival Detroit News under a joint-operating agreement that would require an exemption from antitrust regulations.

If Meese rejects the agreement, Knight-Ridder plans to fold the Free Press, which has lost $100 million since 1979. If the agreement is approved, analysts expect the Free Press to become immediately profitable.

Meese's decision could mean multimillion-dollar profits for Miami-based Knight-Ridder in future years, the Herald said Sunday.

Meese, who announced his resignation last month, said he will make a decision by the time he leaves office this week.

Editors at The Herald and Free Press said they have not run staff-drawn Meese cartoons because there is no place to declare the newspapers' own conflict of interest in a cartoon, as it could in an editorial.

Earlier this year, Herald Editor Jim Hampton told staff cartoonist Jim Morin, who is syndicated, to stop drawing Meese and not to send Meese cartoons he did on his own time to other newspapers.

Hampton said the Herald had a conflict of interest in commenting on Meese that could not be made clear in cartoons.

State TV stations shuffling

United Press International

MIAMI — The CBS television network, which lost its local affiliate, is expected to announce today it will purchase an independent station for about $40 million, all but completing a major shuffle in television's 14th largest market.

The move leaves WSVN-Channel 7, currently an NBC station, without an affiliation. It also leaves the Fox network without a home.

Last year NBC's parent company, General Electric Co., bought WTVJ-Channel 4, a CBS affiliate. It marked the first time one network had bought another's affiliate.

The NBC affiliate, WSVN-Channel 7, was expected to switch network affiliations. But negotiations between Channel 7's owner, Edmund Ansin, and CBS' Laurence Tisch, broke down after Ansin refused to change affiliations from top-rated NBC to CBS before he was contractually obligated.

"It turned into an enormous game of chicken between two billionaires," said one highly ranked CBS executive quoted Sunday in The Miami Herald.

In addition to CBS' expected $60 million purchase of Channel 6, current home of the Fox network, it has also agreed to move its programming to ABC affiliate WPEC-Channel 12 in West Palm Beach. That will allow viewers in north and west Broward County to receive CBS programming.

WTVX Channel 34 is the current CBS affiliate serving West Palm Beach, but it is based in Fort Pierce, too far away to reach the sections of Broward County that Channel 6 could not.

The network moves are expected to take place about Jan. 1.

State Game Warden Jesse Baker arrested John Curtis Mullins, 23, of Osteen at the Seminole County jail at 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Mullins is free on $1,000 bond.

Baker reported game wardens checked Mullins' 12-foot aluminum jon boat in the St. Johns River July 16 and found the title was improper and the identification number had been removed from the boat.

Baker said he determined the boat had been registered improperly as "homemade" and another man's name was on the title of the craft, which Mullins allegedly said he had bought for $200 from a friend of a friend.

Man arrested for assault on parents

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

CHULUOTA — A Chuluota man accused of attacking his parents and threatening them with a crowbar at the house they share, was arrested early today.

Robert Thomas Rayner, 36, of 121 E. First St., was booked for aggravated assault, false imprisonment and battery, and remains jailed in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Rayner is accused of returning home from a bar intoxicated after earlier stealing his father's car. The father did not file charges in the theft. When Rayner came home about 2 a.m., he allegedly entered the bedroom of his parents and attacked them.

His mother, who was not named in a sheriff's report, said Rayner grabbed her, twisted her arm and grabbed her by the throat as he held a crowbar over her head and threatened to "smash your brains out."

The mother said she was thrown onto a bed where the suspect allegedly held her for 15 minutes until she broke free and ran to a neighbor's for help.

When sheriff's deputies arrived Rayner was still reportedly in the bedroom with his father. Deputies reported recovering a crowbar from the kitchen.

Consumer group questions Murdoch's latest purchase

United Press International

NEW YORK — Rupert Murdoch's $3 billion purchase of Walter Annenberg's Triangle Publications, including TV Guide, poses "significant antitrust questions," a consumer group said, suggesting legal hurdles for the deal.

The sale, through which Murdoch also will acquire Triangle's two other lucrative publications, the Daily Racing Form and Scripps magazine, was made in secrecy in Los Angeles and announced in New York by telephone Sunday.

The deal is subject to a definitive contract whose details were not disclosed. Its completion will mark the retirement from publishing of Annenberg, one of the nation's wealthiest men and long a dean of the industry.

"I am very happy that my publications are passing to Mr. Murdoch's company," said Annenberg, 80, whose father, M.L. "Mac" Annenberg, founded Triangle in New York. "I now plan to devote the rest of my life to education and philanthropy."

Annenberg was U.S. ambassador to England from 1969 to 1974 under President Richard Nixon and is a close friend of President Reagan. His other projects include the Annenberg School of Communications at the University of Pennsylvania and the Annenberg Fund, which disburses about $3 million a year in media grants.

A pioneer in the use of television in education, Annenberg contributed $150 million in 1981 to the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for use over 15 years.

The sale of Triangle Publications to Murdoch's News Corp. was negotiated over the past month by the investment banker Veronis Suhler & Associates, News Corp. has annual revenues of $5 billion, Murdoch's spokesman said.

"These publications are the most valuable and prized publishing properties in the world," Murdoch, 57, said in a statement. "They have been developed brilliantly by Ambassador Annenberg and we plan to make them the cornerstone of a great American publishing company."

In Washington, D.C., a lobbying group representing the rights of television viewers before federal agencies and the courts, warned that Murdoch's purchase of Triangle, coupled with his other vast media holdings, poses possible conflicts that may make the sale subject to a legal challenge.

The proposed sale "poses a host of legal issues which require thorough exploration," the Media Access Project said in a statement.

Murdoch's ownership of TV Guide raises significant antitrust questions," said Andrew Jay Schwartzman, executive director of lobbying group. "First and foremost, joint ownership of TV Guide and the new Fox network could be abused to hurt small independent TV stations for which TV Guide is the essential advertising and promotion medium."

"Any media conglomeration of this scope ought to set off warning signals at the Federal Trade Commission and the Justice Department," Schwartzman said.

Murdoch's Fox Broadcasting reaches 88 percent of U.S. households through more than 100 affiliates.

TV Guide, founded in 1953 by Annenberg and published in Radnor, Pa., is the largest-selling weekly magazine in the United States, with audited circulation of 17.1 million, Rubenstein said.

The Daily Racing Form, the "bible" of America's horse racing industry, is sold daily at racetracks and newsstands across the nation.

Census Bureau lists addresses of residents

SANFORD — Workers for the U.S. Census Bureau will begin compiling house-by-house address lists within the next few days in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

The Census Bureau is compiling lists of all resident addresses in the country in preparation for delivering census questionnaires to each household for the 1990 census.

Census workers will be walking or driving the streets and roads in the county to prepare the address lists and will be knocking on doors and asking residents their correct mailing addresses.

The census workers can be identified by red, white and blue census identification badges. They will also be carrying 11 x 16-inch books in which addresses are written.

After listing, the addresses will be entered into a master address file the Census Bureau will use to produce address labels for the questionnaires. Census day is April 1, 1990.

EPA accused of not doing enough to protect oceans, public health

United Press International

WASHINGTON — New Jersey's two senators, angry that medical waste was washed up on Northeastern beaches, accuse the administration of not doing enough to protect the ocean and the public health.

Saying his family and others have been personally violated by the polluted beaches, Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., criticized the Environmental Protection Agency for not starting a national tracking system that would require hospitals to account for discarded medical waste.

"It's inexcusable that the EPA has not instituted a medical tracking system in this country. Their job is to protect the public health and safety and they're failing in that job," Bradley said Sunday on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," adding he has introduced legislation to implement such a system.

EPA Administrator Lee Thomas, responding to Bradley's charges on CBS's "Face the Nation," said such a job should be shared by local, state and federal governments.

Thomas, who has rejected the idea of a national tracking system, defended his agency as "a part of a solution."

Because of the discovery of medical waste — including vials of blood that have tested positive for the AIDS virus — on the shores of New York and New Jersey, ocean pollution has become a critical issue in recent weeks.

Local officials speculate haulers hired by hospitals may be dumping the waste in the ocean or elsewhere and pocketing incineration fees, instead of taking the waste, as required, to special incinerators.

Bradley said his wife and children have rented a New Jersey beach house for years and this summer, "We go and find medical waste washed up, syringes, blood bags. It's revolting. It's disgusting. I feel personally violated."

Appearing on "Face the Nation," Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said local and state governments cannot be expected to foot the huge bill that would come with a massive cleanup.

"This is a national problem. This is tantamount to a military action," he said. "We have to fight to save a precious resource and we need help from the federal government. We need a president who's committed to it."

Lautenberg contended the administration "never had a serious commitment" to protecting the environment, while he said Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis has given him such a commitment.

Swimmers sickened by chlorine gas

By MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The state Junior Olympics swimming competition was dead in the water Saturday evening as 10 swimmers became ill when they swam through a high concentration of chlorine gas at the Sharidan Aquatic Club, 1655 E.E. Williamson Road, near Longwood.

Too much chlorine was released into the water after the pool's filtration system was shut down about 7 p.m. by the pool's management to allow quicker swim times for the young swimmers, said Kirk Middleton, Seminole County fire investigator.

As a result, when the system was turned back on, about 10 swimmers swam through the area where the chlorine gas had accumulated, Middleton said.

Ten swimmers were taken to area hospitals complaining of eye and respiratory irritation, Middleton said. Two were held overnight for observation and released Sunday.

Paying for a nursing home

Expanding Medicare to give protection against the medical costs of catastrophic illness was designed to afford the elderly new peace of mind. But for many the changes approved this year have only served to underline the remaining financial vulnerability to the most common tragedy of old age, chronic disability requiring long-term care, at home or in a nursing home.

Under current policies, a majority of those who live long enough to need nursing home care will spend themselves into poverty within six months. Finding a less Dickensian way to pay for that care has now become the most pressing issue on the policy agenda of older Americans.

In an era of high deficits, federal policymakers have so far shied away from a serious look at alternatives, mostly because of the costs: Americans will spend about $41 billion this year on nursing homes and home care for the disabled elderly. But even under the current system of financing, which places the costs of long-term care on the elderly until they are impoverished, the taxpayers pay nearly half the bill through Medicaid and Medicare. As the number of elderly Americans grows, particularly the number of those over 80, the public burden will triple, to $59 billion in 2018.

The obvious solution for financing long-term care is insurance. About 70 private companies already write policies to help pay costs of long-term care, but such policies currently only pay 1 percent of costs. According to projections by Alice Rivlin and Joshua Weiner of the Brookings Institution, private insurance, because it's so expensive, will still cover only a small fraction of long-term care costs 30 years from now.

If the nation is to have a long-term care alternative to the dole, it will have to cover long-term disability with a program of social insurance, like Social Security or Medicare. Public insurance could be limited to covering catastrophic costs, such as nursing home stays beyond a year, an option that would leave much of the burden of paying for care on private insurance, Medicaid and the savings of the elderly and their children. Or a public program could pick up a fixed share of costs from the beginning of disability, with the patient supplementing public payments from savings or private insurance.

Any version is likely to be expensive. Rivlin and Weiner estimate that a moderately comprehensive program with patient cost-sharing would require a payroll tax of 2.9 percent to finance it. But that's not much larger than the expense of catching the elderly with the Medicaid safety net, whose costs over the next 30 years will be the equivalent of a 1.6 percent payroll tax. When the nation makes its decision about paying for long-term care, however, the controlling factor will not be money. It will be the willingness of working people, already saddled with responsibility for child-rearing and retirement saving, to recognize the growing risks of old-age disability as an equally compelling claim on their labor. In their own interest and the nation's, that recognition should come soon.

ARNOLD SAWISLAK

Will Bush-bashing boomerang?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is a story, possibly true, that during the height of the Watergate case disclosures, Nixon aide Bob Haldemann ran into Dick Tuck, the foremost Democratic practitioner of political dirty tricks.

"You started all this," Haldemann declared.

"Yes," replied Tuck, "and you ran it into the ground."

Tuck's response illustrates a tendency, not by any means restricted to politics, to push a good idea over the edge of usefulness.

For example, haircuts. When John F. Kennedy burst on the national scene in 1960 with a great shock of barely tamed hair, every politician with the exception of Sam Rayburn started telling his barber to lay off the heavy clippers and the greasy kid stuff.

The blow-dried hairdo became such a cliché that Jake Garn, running for the Senate in Utah in the 1970s, did very well counter-campaigning against the Kennedy-style haircut by advertising himself as "experienced, mature... and bald."

The question this year is whether the Democrats will run the "wimp factor" into the ground.

Even before the Democratic National Convention, Democratic (and some Republican) politicians were taking considerable delight in portraying George Bush as a kind of Caspar Milquetoast, the butt of a 1940s comic strip called "The Poor Soul."

The idea was to picture Bush as a pallid, effete Easterner incapable of exercising the energetic leadership thought to be desirable in a president.

Bush's slim physique and somewhat nasal voice combined with his Ivy League, old-money background made him an easy target for the kind of zinger delivered by Democratic convention keynote Ann Richards, who described the vice president as having been born "with a silver foot in his mouth."

In truth, Bush's military record (58 World War II naval air missions), his business career

Declare a moratorium on George-the-wimp tactics.

(founding a successful oil drilling company) and his public service in tough jobs (CIA director, U.N. ambassador) suggest just the opposite of a wimpy background.

But Bush and his advisers obviously are worried by this image. That is demonstrated by the vice president's appearances for "photo opportunities" in such unlikely places as the cabs of gargantuan earthmovers or standing in a corn field wearing a John Deere farm machinery cap with a $500 Brooks Bros. suit.

That kind of thing is supposed to symbolize Bush's regular-guy qualifications, but for the most part they make him look as silly as Calvin Coolidge did 60 plus years ago posing in an Indian headdress. In fact, Bush's political handlers probably are contributing to the assy image by making him do such ridiculous stunts.

In fact, if the Democrats are smart, they now will declare a moratorium on George-the-wimp tactics. After all, it only took one remark, Alice Roosevelt Longworth's comment that Tom Dewey looked "like the bridegroom on a wedding cake," to fix a derisive image of the 1948 GOP candidate in the public mind.

Do kisses before lunch

By STEPHANIE BRUSH

Well, here's a confession for you: I don't enjoy kissing women.

It's just that, lately, I have been kissing women a lot, not to mention men I don't even know. The expected "social peck" has somehow given way to the "people-you-don't-know-very-well" kiss, which has somehow begotten the monstrous "business kiss."

The reality of the business world is that we have to deal with a great many people we consider to be members of the reptile family. Even kissing them fails to turn them into princes. And yet, kiss them we must. The Wall Street Journal reports that kissing is replacing the handshake in many business situations, not just in California—where all business is conducted in the nude anyway, so who would notice?—but in our nation's capital, Washington, D.C.

Yes, citizens, it had to come to this: Power Kissing.

Even actors in porno movies rarely kiss each other, since they really don't know each other that well and find this kind of contact to be "far too intimate." However, kissing Ernie with the sandwich cart in your office is OK, since it's "power kissing." (What choice do you have? You can't say, "Let's have lunch," since this is presumably what you are already doing.)

Like a handshake—which was supposed to mean "See no concealed weapons"—a Power Kiss seems to be a ritual about "trust." We are sending the favorable message, "Now that I've deposited bacteria on your face, I probably won't steal money from you."

The business kiss was invented, in its purest form, by Judas Iscariot in A.D. 32 and, luckily, not popularized in the ensuing years. Then it was singlehandedly re-invented by Charo and Doc Severinsen one night on the couch while David Brenner was sitting in for Johnny.

A business kiss is not a "kiss," of course, anymore than a "business lunch" is a meal.

Yet, it has brought a welcome new level of stress into the workplace. Most of us don't even like to look at co-workers we dislike, much less fondle their faces with our lips. (Yet, if I must kiss someone I abhor on every conceivable personal and moral ground, the skin of a man's face feels somehow recognizable to me. The more I dislike another woman, the more her skin feels like something from the bottom of my fish tank.)

Also, if there's something every woman secretly dreads, it's the mis-fire: when women present their faces at opposing angles due to an accident in timing, and end up with a direct hit on the old lip-olas. LIP COOTIES FROM ANOTHER WOMAN is not a problem you can solve easily in an office setting by yelling,

Keep guns out of school

I am absolutely outraged that Marion Harwood thinks that kindergarten students should be taught gun safety in school.

This should be up to parents. Every household has different ways of dealing with firearms. One home may not have any while another home may have many for one reason or another. I'm afraid that if a student misinterprets the seriousness of the subject the course could do more harm than good. Instead of putting curiosity and ideas into the minds of our youngsters by maybe broadly explaining the danger of exploring and playing with guns, we should start an extensive plan to educate the parents through the media, mail-outs, and at PTA meetings, showing them how to educate their children.

I think that parents are in a better position to inform our children on the necessary precaution that needs to be taken when approaching a weapon. Furthermore, it is up to parents to be sure that elementary school age children do not come in contact with them.

I am just afraid that all the hype and publicity in class might ignite a child's curiosity about something that would have been left alone had parents dealt with it in private and very serious family discussions.

Perhaps a pamphlet explaining methods of storage of firearms around children would be a better alternative, also dealing with suggestions on what to say and how to approach the subject with your children. I feel that these suggestions would be more effective than a course in our already "overwhelmed" schools.

Says Dukakis deceives

Does David Broder condone deceit? In two of his recent columns he has praised Michael Dukakis for keeping his true intentions from the voters. In one column he says, "In the interest of victory they (Dukakis and Bentsen) have adopted a platform that is as vague as it is short."

Doesn't a vague platform mean we won't know what Dukakis is planning to dish out to us? Is it right to deceive for the sake of victory?

In Tuesday's column "Are Skills Sufficient?" (Herald, July 26) Broder says, "He has learned to play some smart politics" and he compared Dukakis with Mondale who was candid (truthful) and as a result lost the election. Broder seems to think it is smart to mislead voters. Would the voters be getting "a pig in a poke?"

Surely everyone who knows anything at all about politicians must know that Dukakis chose a conservative Democrat for vice president as a cover-up of his own liberalism. Remember voters, vice presidents have very little clout. Their job is to support the president and take his place if anything happens to the President. As Dukakis reminded Jackson — "there can be only one quarterback."

We have been told that the women will vote for Dukakis. They won't if his true record is spread over the nation. Most of the American people, especially women, believe in capital punishment. Dukakis has a record of great compassion for rapists and murderers and very little sympathy for their victims. Massachusetts has some asinine laws in favor of criminals.

One law permits criminals to take furloughs on weekends when they can walk the streets without supervision. Many do not come back to prison. They simply disappear to reappear in other states where they repeat crimes of rape and murder.

There is no capital punishment in the state and the governor can reduce life sentences or even pardon beasts that murder and rape. Dukakis has reduced the life sentences of 28. He has also fought the organized families of victims, and even the state House of Representatives to prevent repeal of the law granting furloughs.

In Broder's last paragraph of one column he admits Dukakis will have to "build trust" among the voters. He won't do it by being vague and deceitful — (I hope).

Stocks open lower today

United Press International
 NEW YORK — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.
 The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 7.47 Friday, was down 1.07 to 2118.06 shortly after the market opened.
 Declines led advances 373-330 among the 1,266 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 7,650,000 shares.
 Stock prices slipped Friday in one of the slowest sessions of the year.

Dollar higher overseas; gold prices edge lower

United Press International
 The dollar was stronger against key foreign currencies on world markets Monday and reached its highest level in almost two years against the West German mark. The price of gold edged lower.
 The dollar firmed against the Japanese yen in quiet trading in Tokyo and closed 0.85 yen higher at 133.97 yen.
 The U.S. unit remained strong against currencies throughout the day in Tokyo although trading was limited, with most market players retreating from active dealing during the height of the summer holiday season.
 Dealers said the dollar was given a renewed but limited boost in early Tokyo dealings following the weekend release in Washington of U.S. employment data for July showing continued brisk U.S. economic activity.
 In Europe, the dollar was sharply higher.
 The dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.90 West German marks, up from 1.8885. It was the highest level for the dollar in Frankfurt since January 1987.
 The U.S. currency was also at 19-month highs in Zurich where it opened at 1.59 Swiss francs, up from 1.5755.
 In Paris, the dollar began the day at 6.4065 francs, up from 6.3590, in Brussels at 40.28 Belgian francs, up from 40.08 and in Milan at 1,401.50 lire, up from 1,390.05.
 In London the pound opened at $1.6885, off from the previous rate of $1.6935.
 London traders said there was evidence of some West German central bank intervention in the morning in an attempt to support the German currency, and that fear of action by other central banks had halted further dollar rises.

 They said the Japanese central bank had not sold dollars because the U.S. currency was just under 134 yen. "We see 138 yen as a critical level," the Zurich trader said.
 In early New York trading, the dollar continued to post gains, although news of intervention from the U.S. Federal Reserve and the West German Bundesbank may slow down advances.
 On the bullion markets, gold opened in Zurich at $432 per ounce, off from $433, and in London at $432, down from 432.50.

The London morning gold fixing was $432.05, off 65 cents from Friday's close.
 In earlier trading in the Far East, gold closed at $432.05 on the Hong Kong Bullion Exchange, off 10 cents from Friday's close of $432.15.

Oregon officials may evacuate 2 resorts threatened by blaze

United Press International

Oregon officials considered evacuating two resorts threatened by a fast-burning blaze in the Deschutes National Forest as relative normalcy returned to fire-ravaged Yellowstone National Park and rain dampened Alaska's massive wildfires.
 U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Laurie Johnson said officials will decide today whether to evacuate the East Lake Resort and the Paulina Lake Resort, which are threatened by a 7,500-acre blaze burning out of control in the nearby forest.
 The Paulina Fire was touched off Thursday and had raced through stands of dead lodgepole pine killed by beetles in the Deschutes National Forest, about 15 miles southeast of Bend.
 The resorts are situated inside the 5-mile-wide Newberry Crater and each includes a lodge and private campground. If the fire reaches the rim of the crater, which was created by ancient volcanic activity, it could spread quickly in the area, Johnson said.
 Efforts to battle the fire were hampered most of Sunday by an inversion, which held smoke in the area and stopped planes and helicopters from dropping water or retardant on the flames, Johnson said.

 About 1,000 firefighters managed to dig lines around about 15 percent of the wind-driven blaze, which expanded rapidly Saturday, Johnson said. No injuries were reported.
 The Forest Service said some roads in the area were closed to keep away gawkers attracted by flames that shot 300 feet into the air.
 Johnson said crews used bulldozers Sunday to cut lines around the northern side of the blaze, and firefighters expected those lines to hold.
 She did not know how many people would be involved in an evacuation of the two resorts.
 In Alaska, 1,000 firefighters battling 11 of 44 fires that have burned over 1.8 million acres of forest received some help from light rains sprinkling throughout the state.
 "It will give us a chance to catch up pretty well, but that is about all," said Lindsey Lien, a dispatcher with the Bureau of Land Management. "Rain does not put out (Alaskan) fires the way it does down below in the lower 48."

Most of the Alaska blazes were burning in remote areas.
 Relative normalcy returned to Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park, where 155,000 acres of wilderness have gone up in flames in the past month.
 "It's really calming down," fire information officer Dan Merritt said. "Traffic is flowing normally and there are no problems to speak of."
 Only two fires remained active in the 2.2-million-acre park. Neither was spreading and they posed no threat to developed areas or roads leading into the nation's oldest national park.
 About 540 people continued to battle the 19,000-acre Fan Fire in the north part of the park, and a few hundred others monitored the 20,400-acre North Fork Fire and the now-controlled Shoshone fire that had threatened Grant Village on the shore of Yellowstone Lake.
 Officials, facing a decline in tourism because of the fires, reopened the Grant Village Center Saturday. However, the Lewis Lake and Grant Village campgrounds remained closed.
 Tourism had decreased by 20,000 people a day as a result of the worst fire season in park history which has cost the park service $12.7 million to fight.

San Francisco mayor hopes to settle strikes against private hospitals

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Mayor Art Agnos, a tentative contract agreement with city nurses under his belt, pushed for quick settlement of strikes against eight private hospitals by more than 3,800 registered nurses and health care workers.
 "I want them to take a lesson, to stay at the bargaining table and not leave it, to stay with it around the clock," Agnos said Sunday in announcing the tentative settlement with 1,600 public health nurses who had threatened to turn up the heat on a growing hospital crisis by joining two unions already on strike.

and originally set a strike deadline for today, but pushed it back 24 hours to keep talks going.
 San Francisco General Hospital, which cares for most of the city's poor and also houses a major AIDS ward, is the only one of eight major hospitals in the city not operating under a strike cloud.
 A total of nearly 3,800 nurses and service workers, members of separate unions, continued to picket outside eight hospitals Sunday. No new contract talks in either dispute were scheduled but union officials said they expected to hear from City Hall today.

 The struck hospitals have remained open with replacement workers and scaled-back services.
 The walkouts began July 26 when members of Local 250 of the Hospital and Health Care Workers union struck seven Affiliated Hospitals facilities, six in San Francisco and one in nearby Daly City.

 on evidence he routinely worked outside his county job without notifying the building department.
 Georgi, nearly a 16-year veteran of the county, was suspended with pay last week while county building officials investigated an incident leading to state action against him.
 Georgi ran afoul of the Florida Department of Professional Regulation (DPR) earlier this year for contracting in February to do remodeling of La Scala restaurant, 210 Lorraine Dr., Altamonte Springs.
 Georgi had no state general contractor's license to complete the job and in April signed a cease and desist agreement to stop any further unlicensed activity.

 Subsequent to learning of the DPR action following inquiries by the Sanford Herald last Monday, Culbertson placed Georgi on paid suspension until officials could determine how the county might have been affected by the outside work.
 Georgi did not notify the building department of the work, a violation of county policy, Culbertson said.
 The DPR cease and desist agreement is not an admission of guilt and Georgi contends he did not need a license since he did not do any of the work himself.

 Culbertson said Friday he was not able to establish whether Georgi was working at the restaurant during hours he was paid to be inspecting jobs for the county. He also said he was unable to determine if Georgi was working at the restaurant during several paid sick days he took in February.
 Georgi said earlier this week he did the work after county hours. He also said he has done no other outside work while working for the county since October 1972. He has held the same plumbing and mechanical inspector's position since then, county personnel officials said.

 boat ramps, sea wall and Lake Monroe harbor.
 The suit is scheduled for mediation Sept. 2 with James H. Chaplin, appointed as mediator.
 The city must decide who will represent them at the mediation. The city must provide this representative with full and complete authority to compromise and settle the claim.
 The city has alleged that the Star of Sanford, a large passenger boat which formerly used the harbor facilities, was responsible for much of the damage, that cost the city $60,000 in repairs. The Star of Sanford was denied permission to use the marina and harbor after the alleged damage was incurred.

 said.
 Lake Mary Commissioners Paul Tremel and Tom Mahoney are both eager to hear the staff's report. Only Commissioner George Duryea expressed reservations.
 Duryea said the proposal operates under the assumption that the city's current all-volunteer fire department is struggling to serve its residents, and he sees no evidence of that.
 Police Chief Charles Lauderdale told commissioners that any time an idea is brought forth, city employees owe it to taxpayers to examine it. "More and more public safety is being considered a functional area for consolidation," he said. "We have to maximize the use of taxpayers' dollars."

Diet Pills Sweeping U.S.
Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight
Now 'Fat-Magnet' Diet Pill Gives You Steady Fat Loss
BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" to help you steadily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.
You Can "Eat Normally"
 Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods as long as you don't increase your normal eating habits. You can start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight you desire."
 It is a totally new major scientific breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patents pending).
Flushes Fat Out of Body
 The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in undigested fat particles from food that you have just eaten. Then, the trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body.
 Within 2 days you should notice a change in the color of your stool, caused by the fat particles being eliminated.
"Pills Go To Work"
 The fat-magnet pills alone, "automatically" help reduce calories by eliminating dietary fat, with no exercising. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals. However, you can lose weight "faster" if you choose to follow the fat-magnet diet plan along with the pills.
 The fat-magnet pills are already sweeping the country with record sales, and glowing reports of weight loss. It's a "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.
Now Available to Public
 If you need to lose a large or small amount of weight, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills and diet plan (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W246, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call anytime 24 hours, toll free 1(800)527-9700, ext. W246.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Governors discuss state, federal powers

CINCINNATI — The nation's governors, looking for solutions to the shifts in power between states and the national government, hoped to hear the federal position today when President Reagan addressed their annual meeting.

The 80th annual meeting of the National Governors' Association, which began Sunday, had discussions planned today on this year's severe drought, the homeless, energy and the environment, and international trade.

Reagan was scheduled to address the governors on the main theme of the annual conference: the balance of power between the federal government and the states.

Most distant galaxy discovered

BERKELEY, Calif. — Astronomers have discovered the most distant galaxy ever found, a mind-boggling 15 billion light-years away from Earth, or 90 percent of the distance to the visible limits of the universe.

The discovery is significant because the galaxy is thought to be only slightly younger, in astronomical terms, than the universe itself, thus eroding the foundation of one of the most popular galaxy-formation theories.

The sighting of the new galaxy was to be announced today in Baltimore at the General Assembly of the International Astronomical Union, said Wil van Breugel, an astronomer at the University of California at Berkeley.

Anti-Sandinista groups received millions

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Opposition groups in Nicaragua have received millions of dollars in the last year from private conservative groups and CIA accounts, according to U.S. officials and participants in the efforts.

The U.S. Embassy in Nicaragua also has intensified a campaign to bolster anti-Sandinista groups through expanded contacts with political parties, trade unions and other opposition movements, offering them financial, technical and political backing, U.S. and Nicaraguan government officials said.

Nicaraguan officials charge the efforts are part of a U.S.-orchestrated destabilization campaign against Managua that, coupled with the Reagan administration's 8-year-old program of supporting the armed Contra rebels, has as its eventual goal the downfall of the Marxist-led Sandinista government.

But U.S. officials say the strategy is intended to test the Sandinistas' commitment to democracy, which it has declared since signing a regional peace treaty a year ago that calls for democratic reforms and inclusion of opponents into the political life of Nicaragua.

However, the financial and other support given to the internal opposition has facilitated a rapid expansion of anti-government protests in recent months that have become increasingly confrontational.

Several U.S. organizations, including the congressionally funded National Endowment for Democracy, the American Institute for Free Labor Development, an AFL-CIO affiliate, and other conservative and religious organizations.

The CIA has spent money from a $10 million to $12 million "political" account earmarked for Nicaragua's internal opposition, CIA and State Department officials said.

Nicaraguan officials said the U.S. policy has encouraged increasingly aggressive acts by the opposition to put the Sandinista government in a "Catch-22 situation."

If tolerated, one Nicaraguan diplomat said, a more active opposition "only serves to undermine the government. If we crack down, they (administration officials) will use it as leverage on Capitol Hill for more military aid for the Contras, saying we are not abiding by the peace accords."

In fact, lawmakers, complaining that Nicaragua has pulled back from the Guatemala City accord, have pressed for more aid to the Contras, the CIA-formed force that has been fighting the Nicaraguan army since 1981.

Congress is expected to vote this week on a plan to provide $27 million in food, clothing and other supplies to the rebel force — leaving until after next week's Republican National Convention the politically charged issue of renewing military supplies to the Contras.

State Department officials said the shift in U.S. policy to supporting the internal opposition was the brainchild of Ambassador Richard Melton, who Nicaraguan officials accused of instigating violence at a July 10 demonstration at the town of Mandatime.

Melton and seven other U.S. diplomats were expelled the following day — prompting the United States to expel the Nicaraguan ambassador to Washington.

A State Department official who requested anonymity said Melton "realized early on that you had to have a complementary effort of the internal opposition to the Contras if we were going to get anywhere."

In addition, the policy change follows the Iran-Contra scandal's revelations — in which profits from the 1986 U.S. arms sales to Iran were funneled through secret Swiss bank accounts to the Contras.

That money and resources raised by conservative groups in the United States paid for a private operation to supply the rebels at a time when Congress had banned official U.S. aid with the Boland Amendment, in effect in various forms between October 1984 and October 1986.

Rangoon braces for general strike

RANGOON, Burman — Shops closed and troops patrolled Rangoon today as the capital braced for a nationwide general strike against the socialist government of newly installed President Sein Lwin.

On the eve of the strike, official media reported police opened fire on various demonstrations during the weekend, killing at least three people and wounding 20.

The military converted four of Rangoon's main thoroughfares into one-way streets with one side of the roadway reserved for military traffic. Armored cars rumbled across the city and heavily armed troops manned checkpoints on roads leading into the capital.

"They are checking everyone entering the city for identification and searching them for pamphlets and weapons," one witness said.

Most shops remained closed early today but it was unclear whether the shopkeepers were complying with the strike or simply feared renewed violence.

Bush in New Orleans to dictate GOP platform he wants for race

United Press International

NEW ORLEANS — George Bush, ready to claim the Republican presidential nomination, decided to make a whirlwind trip to the GOP convention city today to dictate the platform he wants in his race against Democrat Michael Dukakis.

The vice president's unusual decision to address the platform committee, which is putting together themes for the 1988 campaign, is another indication Bush is ready to take command of the Republican Party and put his personal stamp on the convention that opens a week from tonight.

In the last several days, Bush has signaled a new stage in his run for the presidency, naming former Treasury James Baker to manage his campaign, cutting off all but the mandatory duties of the vice presidency, moving into campaign headquarters and trying to emerge from President Reagan's shadow.

Bush was scheduled to spend only a few hours in New Orleans today, arriving from his summer home on the Maine coast to address the platform committee and then speak to Republican National Committee volunteers.

Bush was expected to generally endorse the conservative 1980 and 1984 platforms on which Reagan and he rolled to victory, but also possibly to ask for the addition of GOP policy on such increasingly prominent issues as child care and the environment.

A New York Times CBS News poll released Sunday pointed out how crucial next week's Republican National Convention is to Bush.

The survey showed Bush trailing Dukakis 50 percent to 33 percent, 17 points compared to 8 points after the Democrats' highly successful national convention in July. The poll's margin of error was 3 percentage points.

More significantly, the telephone poll of 941 registered voters taken last week found that Democrats rated higher than Republicans in helping the middle class, which includes many of the Reagan Democrats who could hold the key to the election.

Democrats also fared better when voters were asked which party would improve education and reduce the federal deficit.

Soviets withdrawing troops from Kabul

United Press International

KABUL, Afghanistan — The Soviet Union said it would begin withdrawing its first troops from the heavily defended capital today, one day after Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze ended a four-day visit to reassure the regime of Moscow's support.

Maj. Gen. Liv Serebrot, a senior Soviet commander in Afghanistan, told reporters at a Kabul air base Sunday that a convoy carrying an unspecified number of troops would leave the capital today after a morning departure ceremony. It would mark the first reduction in Soviet forces in the city that has been the frequent target of rebel rocket attacks.

"They have fulfilled their internationalist duty, and like all other units they will now go home," Serebrot said. More than 20,000 Soviet troops must leave Afghanistan within the next eight days to abide by an accord signed in Geneva April 14.

Saints upend Vikings, 23-20

MINNEAPOLIS — New Orleans Saints coach Jim Mora liked what he saw but Minnesota Vikings coach Jerry Burns said he wasn't sure what he saw.

Morten Andersen's 37-yard field goal with 3 seconds remaining in the fourth quarter Sunday night lifted the Saints to a 23-20 victory over the Vikings in the exhibition opener for both clubs.

"It was good to win a game; we won in a good way," Mora said. "Any time you can come back in the last few minutes and win a ball game you are doing things the right way. We played a lot of people and we got a good look at the players we wanted to look at."

Burns said it's hard to judge what he saw from the sideline.

"I'm going to have to look at the tapes; you know I've got a bad seat," Burns said. "I can't see the routes or the reads. The passing game hasn't looked good for the past two weeks, the timing's not good. The receivers are not getting open."

"All the quarterbacks look good sometimes and sometimes they didn't. There is no changing the status of the quarterbacks."

Manning, Majerle lead U.S. team

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Dan Manning and Dan Majerle each scored 13 points Sunday to lead the U.S. Olympic team to a 90-82 victory over a collection of NBA players.

The U.S. team never trailed in the exhibition, its first in a series against NBA players this month. The Olympians used runs of 14-0 in the first half and 10-0 second half to maintain control.

Majerle, a 6-foot-5 forward-guard from Central Michigan, scored a dunk off the opening tip and had 6 of the Olympic team's first 11 points. Manning got 8 of his 13 in the second half.

GOLF

Nause triumphs at LPGA event

HIGH POINT, N.C. — Martha Nause likes it when her golf game is for the birds.

Nause had a favorable opinion of the modified Stableford scoring system used at the inaugural Planters Pat Bradley International.

"I love it," Nause said. "It's something different. It caught my attention that you could go all out for birds."

Nause, an 11-year LPGA tour veteran, converted five birdies and one bogey Sunday into plus-14 points and her first victory. So it stands to reason that she'd like the Stableford system, which was used for the first time in an LPGA event. It awarded three points for birdies, five for eagles and eight for double-eagles. Pars were worth no points, and players had one point deducted for bogeys and three for double-bogeys or higher.

The original 144-player field was trimmed in half after the first three rounds, leaving 18 players to battle for $250,000 in prize money Sunday.

TENNIS

Rehe overpowers Grossman

SAN DIEGO — Second-seed Stephanie Rehe powered her way past 17-year-old amateur Anne Grossman 6-1, 6-1 Sunday to capture the $100,000 Virginia Slims of San Diego.

Rehe, of Highland, Calif., won for the second time this year and earned $17,000. Grossman, who had to gain entry as a qualifier, gave up the chance at a $8,500 runnerup check. The last time a qualifier reached a Virginia Slims final was in 1985 when Helen Kelesi of Canada lost to Barbara Potter in New York.

Rehe dominated Grossman from the beginning, breaking all seven times during the one-hour, 22-minute match.

Brandy is Seoul bound

United Press International

SALT LAKE CITY — Closing out her day with a dazzling routine on the balance beam before a national television audience, Altamonte Springs' Brandy Johnson qualified for the U.S. Olympic Gymnastics Team Saturday by finishing fourth at the U.S. Gymnastics Trials.

Johnson finished with an all-around score of 77.491, led by a second place finish on floor exercise and a fourth on balance beam. Her individual scores included 9.225 on vault; 9.713 on uneven parallel bars; 9.8 on floor exercise and 9.75 on balance beam.

The top six finishers qualified for the Olympic Team which will compete in the Summer Games at Seoul, South Korea starting Sept. 15. Johnson, 15, qualified in her first tryout for the Olympic Team after she won the national junior title a year ago.

Johnson honed her gymnastics skills first at Brown's Gymnastics in Altamonte Springs and then went on to train with Bela Karolyi in Phoebe Mills, performing four near perfect routines, won the Saturday's competition and will spearhead the American team at the Seoul Olympics.

Mills, merely 15 and weighing 90 pounds, won the U.S. Championships at Houston last month and led the Trials after each event of both the compulsories and optionals.

A former speed skating champion and a National Merit Scholar, Mills was a model of exceptional consistency Saturday as she scored at least 9.85 on all four optionals, dipping below 9.0 only on her final apparatus, the balance beam.

Mills registered scores of 9.938 on the vault, 9.9 of a possible 10 on the uneven bars and 9.963 on the floor exercise for a total of 78.572 points.

Joining Mills on the Olympic team are Kelly Carrison-Stevens, a senior at the University of Oklahoma, with 77.891 points, Hope Spivey (77.520), Johnson, Chelle Stack (77.255) and Missy Marlowe (77.046).

Stack, 14 years old, 4-foot-8 and 74 pounds, is the youngest and smallest member of the squad.

Rhonda Faehn, who earned a 10 on the vault one of only two performers to receive a perfect score at the Trials, finished seventh with 76.810

Altamonte rolls into regional

WINDERMERE — In qualifying for the Junior Southern Regional Tournament, the Altamonte Junior All-Stars have experienced just about every possible baseball situation, except one — losing.

And Altamonte, 12-0 in tournament play, will hope that trend will continue as they open play Tuesday night at 7:30 against West Virginia. In Tuesday's first game, Texas will battle the winner of the Carolinas region.

Altamonte has run the gamut of ways to win games during the tournament season. They've won with an offense that has often devastated opposing pitching staffs; used overpowering pitching; speed on the bases; and the ability to pull out the win in close situations.

Up until last week's State Tournament, Altamonte had not really been threatened. In District 14 action, they scored 73 runs in six games while yielding only 13. The closest anyone came was a pair of 8-3 scores, one to Oviedo and one to Apopka.

Altamonte then moved on to Section 1 action and literally obliterated the opposition. Altamonte opened with a 22-5 rout of Madison County, then drilled West Hernando, 26-5. The Juniors then got their best test yet and came away with a 15-13 win over Madison County.

After breezing in the opener,

Altamonte manager Baird Lyons has a talk with pitcher Frank Harmer (No. 54) and catcher Marcus Bullock during last week's State Tournament. Altamonte opens play in the Southern Regional Tournament Tuesday night at 7:30 against West Virginia at Windermere.

Altamonte then had to sweat out a pair of close games. In the semifinals, Altamonte was held to only two hits, but managed a 6-1 victory over Merritt Island. Altamonte did not get a hit until two outs in the fourth inning, but benefitted from 11 walks and eight stolen bases.

The closest shave yet for Altamonte then came in the State Tournament finals against South

Brandon. Marcus Bullock's RBI single and Elliott's solo homer accounted for the runs, while Harmer turned in a gutsy performance on the mound in a 2-1 victory.

Swimming trials set to begin

United Press International

AUSTIN, Texas — American record holders Dara Torres and Matt Biondi, and 16-year-old sensation Janet Evans are among the favorites today to earn a place on the U.S. Olympic swimming team.

Preliminaries and finals will be held in the women's 100-meter freestyle and 400 individual medley, and the men's 100 backstroke and 200 freestyle at the University of Texas Swim Center, site of the U.S. Olympic Swim Trials.

The top two finishers in each event will earn a spot on the U.S. team that will compete at the Seoul Olympics. The Trials continue through Saturday. More than 250 swimmers will compete Monday.

"This is going to be what it's all about," said U.S. Olympic Coach Richard Quick. "I really expect to see some outstanding times, starting Monday."

Torres, of Beverly Hills, Calif., is the American record holder in the 100 freestyle. She swam the event in 55.30 seconds four months ago. She is an Olympic veteran, having been a member of the 400 relay team that captured a gold medal at the 1984 Los Angeles Games.

She is the top seed in the event while Laura Walker, of San Ramon, Calif., and Jenna Johnson, of Santa Rosa, Calif., are likely to be the top challengers.

In the 400 individual medley, Evans is the top seed, and a dominating swimmer. She swam the fastest time of an American in the event last year. Evans, of Placentia, Calif., holds world records in the 400, 800 and 1,500 freestyles.

Evans is likely to be challenged by Michelle Grigione, Alexandria, Va., and Garland O'Keefe, of St. Louis, are the next biggest seeds.

In the men's competition, Biondi, of Moraga, Calif., is seeded sixth in the 200 freestyle, but is the American record holder with a 1:47.89. He set that mark in 1985 and was not ranked in the top 10 last year.

But Biondi, who won a gold medal at the 1984 Olympics as part of the 400 freestyle relay, said he is in the best shape of his career.

Craig Oppel, of Des Moines, Iowa, is the top seed in the 200 followed by Paul Robinson, of Richardson, Texas, and Troy Dalbey, San Jose, Calif.

Rich Schroeder, of Lindsay, Calif., is the top seed in the 100 backstroke, an event in which American Steve Lundquist set the world record in 1984. David Lundberg, of Palo Alto, Calif., and Richard Korhammer, Easton, Pa., are seeded second and third, respec-

PAULEY TO COMPETE

Ryan Pauley, who will be a freshman at Lake Brantley High this school year, will compete in the U.S. Olympic Trials this week. Pauley turned in the qualifying time at the National Junior Olympics and will compete in both the 100 meter breaststroke and the 200 meter breaststroke.

Also, former Oviedo High standout Andy Gill will compete in the 100 backstroke. After graduating from Oviedo, Gill received a scholarship to the University of Texas and will try to make the Olympic Team while swimming in his home pool.

JOHNSON RUNS 9.90

OTTAWA — World record holder Ben Johnson recovered quickly from a poor start to clock a wind-aided 9.90 seconds in the 100 meters Saturday at the Canadian Track and Field Championships.

Johnson finished at least one meter ahead of a strong field, which included Desai Williams finishing in 10.0 and Ailee Mahorn third in 10.20.

Night baseball at Wrigley

United Press International

CHICAGO — Victorian-style lamps were put up on the outside of Wrigley Field over the weekend, completing the arrangements for Monday night's historic first night game at Wrigley, the home of the Chicago Cubs.

The game between the Cubs and the Philadelphia Phillies, scheduled to begin at 7:05 p.m. CDT, will be preceded by several ceremonies. Harry Grossman, a 91-year-old Cubs fan, will flip the Wrigley Field light switches at 6:05 p.m.

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra will play the national anthem at 6:47 p.m., and the ceremonial first pitch will be shared by former Cub greats Ernie Banks and Billy Williams at 6:51 p.m.

Rick Sutcliffe will be Chicago's pitcher Monday unless a bad back keeps him out. Sutcliffe has been looking forward to the event since it was announced two weeks ago he would pitch.

"It will be something I'll remember the rest of my life, good or bad," said Sutcliffe. "I've already got a list of 200 tickets. I just don't want an 'L' after my name."

Kevin Grossman will pitch for the Phillies Monday.

The Chicago Cubs list Monday's game as the only true sellout of the season, meaning they have even sold all of the standing-room-only tickets available. Fans have reportedly paid up to $1,000 for a

Oldtimers gather in Washington

United Press International

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Former baseball greats gathered in Washington this weekend for another stop on the Equitable Oldtimers Tour.

Orioles coach Elrod Hendricks won the game with a home run off former Athletics bullpen ace Rollie Fingers. Fingers perhaps is known as much for his handle-bar moustache and he is his pitching.

"My moustache is sort of a trademark," he said. "My wife wouldn't let me shave it off anyway."

Among the other Oldtimers to participate:

Gene Woodling: "It's like turning back the clock. Having been a Yankee is still special, after all these years."

Former Met Ron Swoboda, a New Orleans sportscaster, said he would one day like to work in Baltimore, his hometown.

Ex-Orlando Bob Johnson, nicknamed Rocky, reminded everybody he hit the first home run in the history of Robert F. Kennedy stadium.

Brooks Robinson, 50 and paunchy, kidded after running out a ground out: "If there had been two runners on base, it would have been a triple play."

Don Gullett, a farmer in Kentucky: "It was special to have been a Cincinnati Red when Sparky Anderson managed, but also special to have been a Yankee."

Former Oakland A's shortstop Bert Campaneris admitted: "I enjoy coming to these oldtime games. I am not doing anything, anyway."

ONTIVEROS ON DL

The Athletics Sunday placed right-hander Steve Ontiveros on the disabled list for the second time this season and recalled right-hander Jim Coral from Triple-A Tacoma.

Ontiveros was scheduled to start Sunday against the Seattle Mariners. Coral was flown in from Tacoma to take Ontiveros' turn in the rotation. Coral is expected to return to the minors in time for Curt Young to start Wednesday's game against the Chicago White Sox.

The left-hander Young has been on the Tacoma roster since July 19, but hasn't pitched for the farm team. He stayed in Oakland strengthening his sore shoulder and working in batting practice and simulated games.

Ontiveros, who was placed on the 21-day disabled list this time, had come off the DL to pitch last Tuesday in Chicago. He lasted only 3 1-3 innings. Although Ontiveros had reported soreness in his pitching arm Wednesday, the Athletics had planned on him taking his turn as late as Saturday.

"He was willing to try it," Oakland Manager Tony La Russa said, "but it's not something you want to risk with a pitcher."

Kansas squad wins at NBC World Series

United Press International

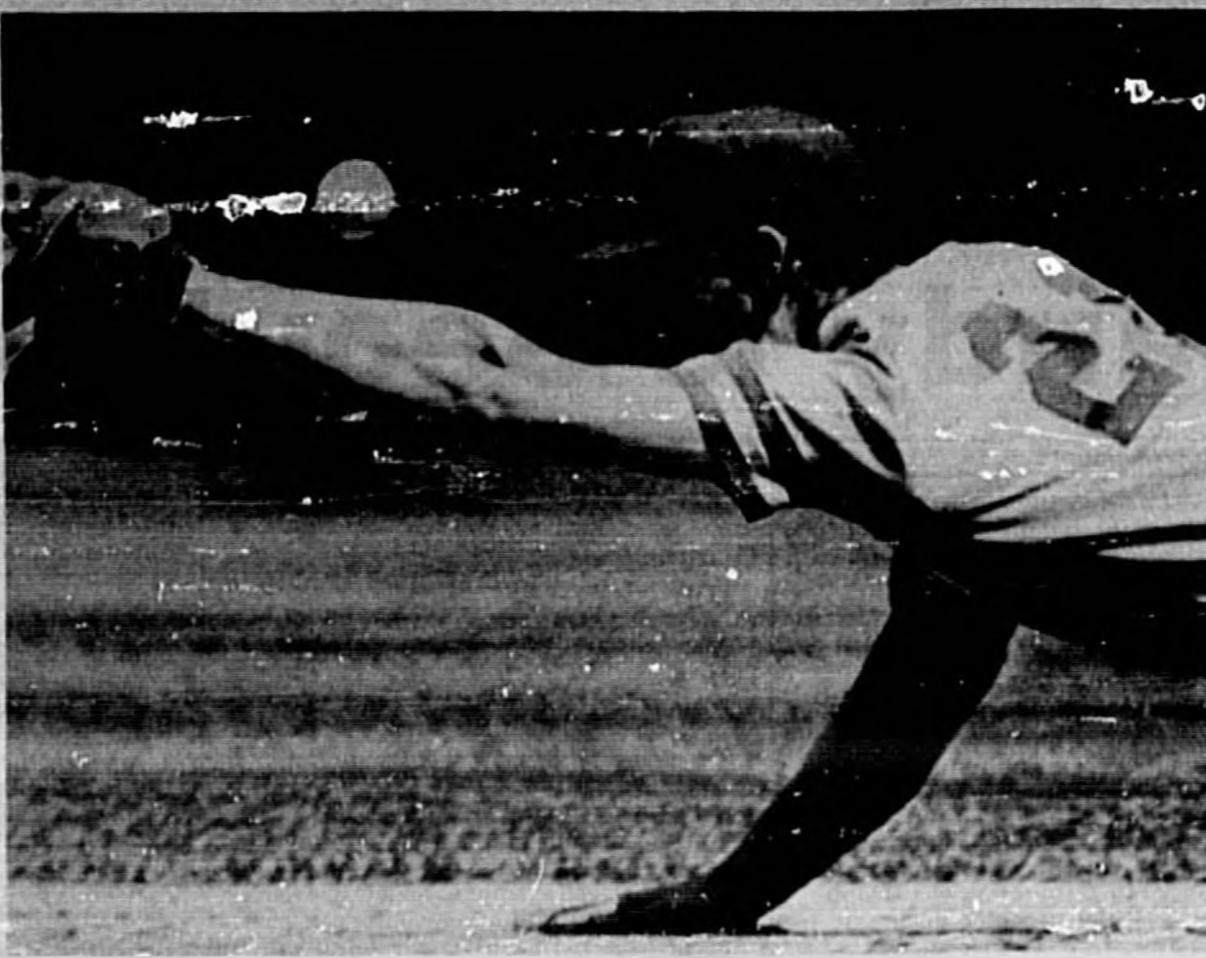

WICHITA, Kan. — Ron MacDonald hit a three-run homer in a five-run first inning Saturday night, leading Lawrence, Kan., to an 8-0 first-round win over Alberta, Canada, in the National Baseball Congress World Series.

The game was halted in the middle of the seventh inning because of the tournament's six-run rule.

John Byrn followed MacDonald's first-inning home run with a solo homer. Byrn finished with three RBIs. Winning pitcher Jim Phillips gave up two hits and struck out 10.

Alberta starter and loser Dave Ross, who pitched to two batters in the fourth, gave up six runs on seven hits. Reliever Willie Leighton gave up two hits and one earned run.

In other games, Rick Soriano drove in four runs, including Milwaukee's Dale Sveum dives for but can't come up with the ball. The Brewers rode the bat of Rob Deer, who was 4 for 4 with four RBIs, to victory on Sunday.

Dotson boosts Yanks

United Press International

After being relegated to bullpen duty following a July loss, Richard Dotson served notice Sunday he intends to remain in the starting rotation.

Dotson tossed a four-hitter over 8 2-3 innings to pace the New York Yankees to a 5-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins. The triumph enabled the Yankees to stay tied for second place in the American League Eastern Division with the Boston Red Sox, three games behind the Detroit Tigers.

Dotson, sent to the bullpen July 29 after yielding five runs on five hits in two innings in a 7-1 loss at Toronto, did not give up a hit until the fifth inning. He walked three and struck out four in improving to 9-4.

"The right-hander's performance impressed New York Manager Lou Piniella. "Rich gave us a good game today," Piniella said. "I would like to have seen him complete the ballgame, but when I went out to talk to him (in the ninth) he told me that he was out of gas." Reliever Steve Shields got the final out.

After going 7-2 under former manager Billy Martin, Dotson has struggled under Lou Piniella at the beginning of July on the 15-day disabled list.

"This is the Richard Dotson I know and I feel he is back," added Piniella. "He has made some adjustments and we'll need him the rest of the way."

The Yankees acquired Dotson in the off-season in a deal with the Chicago White Sox.

Dotson had a simple explanation for his success Sunday. "I

New York has had inconsistent performances from their starters this season and teammates were encouraged by Dotson's outing.

"It's heartening to see a guy, who's put on the spot, do the job," Yankees catcher Don Slaught said. "It shows his character."

Leading 2-0 in the second, Dotson experienced one of his few tough innings. Errors by second baseman Randy Velarde and shortstop Rafael Santana put runners on first and second with none out. Dotson retired Gene Larkin on a fly out, then induced Brian Harper to hit into a 3-6-1 double play.

"It's nice when you're able to pick up your teammates," Dotson said.

Ken Phelps and Claudell Washington each homered, and drove in two runs for New York.

Mets complete sweep of Pirates

United Press International

Despite a slump, the Pittsburgh Pirates insist they are not ready to walk the plank.

The New York Mets continued their mastery over Pittsburgh Sunday, defeating the Pirates for the sixth time in seven outings over the past two weekends. The Pirates fell into third place in the National League East, seven games behind the Mets and a half game behind the surging Montreal Expos.

"We can't look at ourselves as buried," said Pittsburgh outfielder R.J. Reynolds following Sunday's 6-2 loss. "The Mets have thrown quality pitching, we've thrown quality pitching. But they somehow or other find ways to win."

That comes from knowing how to win, from being at the top of the division or going to the World Series. They know how to win. But we'll be OK."

The Pirates, after losing their third straight to the Mets at Three Rivers Stadium, are now 3-10 against the Mets this season, 1-5 at Three Rivers Stadium and 24-61 over the last five years. Pittsburgh has not won a season-series with the Mets since 1982.

The Mets broke a 2-2 tie in the ninth when Kevin McReynolds and Gary Carter delivered run-scoring singles and Tim Lincecum socked a two-run double.

Winner David Cone, 12-2, allowed two runs, one earned, on five hits. He walked four and struck out one in eight innings. Roger McDowell pitched the ninth. Bob Kipper, 2-3, took the loss in relief.

"This is a big series because they're closest to us," Mets Manager Dave Johnson said. "All these series are important, but there's no such thing as a knock-out punch."

The Pirates, who trailed the Mets by only one game as recently as July 19, are 11-13 since the All-Star break. While the Pirates are not ready to raise the white flag, they find themselves looking for answers for their slump.

Wilson's leadoff home run to right field on an 0-1 pitch off Mike Dunne in the top of the seventh had snapped a 1-1 tie.

"It's the right time of the year to beat teams that are right behind you," Cone said. "Hopefully this will get us on an

Pirates still optimistic

United Press International

PITTSBURGH — Friday night's loss to the New York Mets did little to dishearten the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"The only way we can look at it if we expect to do anything is to take it a game at a time," said pitcher Bob Walk. "People expect us to get all upset and blow up, think we will fall apart."

"But this is not the first time we've gotten close and fell back again and have people think we will disappear. Hopefully, we can come back like we have and just right back into it."

When asked if the Pirates had to win the next three with the Mets, R.J. Reynolds said, "It's a must every time we step on the field. It doesn't matter if it's Montreal, Philadelphia, we're in a pennant race and every game counts."

Thoughts from Pirates Manager Jim Leyland on the Pirates possibly acquiring a veteran pinch hitter: "The first thing we have to consider would be the price tag." Leyland said. "We can't pay a guy $500,000 to sit on the bench. That's what got this franchise in trouble (before). You have to remember these are the guys who got us here."

"If the right situation with the right price came along, maybe we could get a veteran in September. It's something we have to consider. A lot of things have to be weighed, but you have to at least think about it."

Pirates right fielder Glenn Wilson, obtained a few weeks ago, Saturday underwent arthroscopic surgery for torn cartilage in his right knee. Pirates All Star third baseman and cleanup hitter Bobby Bonilla has just one home run and 10 RBIs since June 1. The NL Player of the Month in April and May is hitting .289.

Leyland took Bonilla, one of three players in the league, to appear in every game this year, aside for a talk Friday night.

"Sometimes you have a tendency when you are a really good player to feel you have to do everything every time. I just told him to go out and be himself and he'll be fine."

Bosox' Rice steamed again

United Press International

DETROIT — Boston outfielder-DH Jim Rice responded angrily Saturday to NBC interviewer Marv Albert "for being negative" on the pregame show before the nationally televised Tigers-Red Sox game.

"He was bringing up the same old crap from the past," Rice said. "The thing on Joe (Morgan), the Boston manager with whom Rice had a run-in a few weeks ago, something he picked up out of the paper last year, something from four or five years ago.

Rice ultimately lost patience when Albert brought up the player's recent failure to answer a curtain call after a homer at Fenway Park. Rice, initially choosing not to explain, berated Albert for raising the subject, then sidestepped questions, hinting he didn't hear the fans.

Later, Rice explained why he resented the entire exchange.

"The only thing I told him was I'm worried about winning," Rice said. "I just want to do my job and play. He's trying to make a mountain out of an anthill."

"Why should you bring up all those negative things? We're trying to focus on the positive here. We've just won 20-some home games in a row and we're trying to get something good going."

Rice was suspended for three games shortly after Morgan took over as manager. Rice was removed for a pinch hitter and lost his temper in the dugout, drawing the suspension for showing the manager.

The Cubs made several adjustments to the lights after the team held its first workout at night July 25. Because there are no lights standards along the outfield walls, players complained that only half of the ball could be seen as it flew from home plate to the outfield.

The city of Chicago will provide 172 police officers to keep peace in the residential neighborhood, while dozens of tow trucks will be on standby to remove cars parked illegally along the residential streets.

Cubs media director Ned Colletti has issued 560 credentials for the game, believed to be a record for a regular season major-league baseball game. The Cincinnati Reds issued 275 passes for the 1985 game in which Pete Rose broke Ty Cobb's all-time hit record.

Player, Charles in playoff

United Press International

MEDINAH, Ill. — Third round co-leaders Bob Charles and Gary Player each shot 1-over-par 73 Sunday to tie at even-par 288 and force an 18-hole playoff for the U.S. Senior Open title at Medinah Country Club.

Charles, who was paired with Player, had a three-stroke lead with four holes to play but bogeyed the 15th, 16th and 17th holes to back into the tie with Player the tournament's defending champion.

The playoff will begin at 1:15 p.m. EDT. There is no sudden death in USGA events.

"Major championships are too important to be decided by sudden death," said Player. "It is too important to a man's career and sudden death doesn't demonstrate one's skill. Although they have ties in other sports, I own horses and I wouldn't want my horse to run 50 yards to decide a mile race."

"Naturally I'm disappointed," said Charles, the tour's leading money winner. "I had the tournament in the bag. I had confidence in my driver but hit it into the trees on 15 and had to Player was faced with a curling 20-footer from on top of the severely sloping 17th green. His approach putt was short, leaving him with a tricky 6-footer for par that tied him with Charles with one hole to play.

"I couldn't believe that putt would ever end up short," said Player. "I'll never forget the next one as long as I live."

On the final hole, both hit in the middle of the fairway about 195 yards from the green. Player's 7-iron went past the pin about 35 feet and he two-putted for par.

Charles hit his 8-iron about 10 feet and almost pin high, but pushed his birdie putt just left of the cup and tapped in.

Eighteen-hole playoffs are nothing new to either golfer. "I was in a 36-hole playoff when I won the British Open 25 years ago," said Charles. "We were men then. Now we are boys and will play 18."

Player won the 1965 U.S. Open in a playoff, defeating Kel Nagle, and he lost to Arnold Palmer in the 1962 Masters playoff.

Mudd gets first tour victory

United Press International

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Jodie Mudd wonders if Jack Nicklaus ever got as excited about any of his 71 PGA victories as he is about his first.

"If he felt this way every time," said Mudd, who won for the first time in his seven Tour years Sunday at the $953,842 St. Jude Classic. "He's had quite a life."

Mudd, who has had six second-place finishes — two after playoffs, appeared to be breezing to that first victory when he built a 5-stroke lead with seven holes to go. But he needed a par putt on the final hole to nip Peter Jacobsen and Nick Price by a single shot.

"I was just glad to get it in one shot better than everyone else," Mudd said. "After my bogey on No. 17 (only his second all week), another bogey on 18 would have put me in a playoff and I didn't want to be in another of those."

Mudd doubts his first win, even though he says it gives him confidence a big boost, will carry over for this week's PGA Cham-

Mudd, after rounds of 68-68-67, shot a 2-under-par 70 Sunday for a 15-under-273 that earned him $171,692. That raised his earnings for this year to a career-high $275,935 and overall to $947,293.

The St. Jude purse was increased by $203,842 Saturday when Federal Express, the tournament's corporate sponsor, added $1 for each package over 750,000 it handled on Friday. The increase added $36,692 to Mudd's winning check.

"I was fortunate no one made a big move," Mudd said. "Peter Jacobsen closed strong but I had enough of a margin to hold on. I was just lucky that no one got off to a good start and put a lot of pressure on me."

Jacobsen and Price both shot 6-under-par 66s in the final round to wind up at 14-under-274 and earn $83,938.

Tim Simpson, shooting even-par 72 after three straight 68s, tied for fourth at 12-under-276 with Larry Mize, who had a 68, and Dave Rummells, who had a 71.

Becker dominates McEnroe

United Press International

INDIANAPOLIS — Despite an impressive performance to win the U.S. Men's Hardcourt Tennis Championships, two-time Wimbledon champion Boris Becker said he must improve to take his first U.S. Open title.

Top-seeded Becker defeated John McEnroe 6-4, 6-2 Sunday for the $50,000 first prize at the Indianapolis Sports Center. This year's Wimbledon runnerup ensured his place as a favorite in the Open, which begins later this month.

"I will have to play a little bit better and serve better," Becker said. "I must also improve condition-wise. When you play the best of five sets, you're out there for four hours. I will work a lot on running and getting into shape."

Player	Score
Boris Becker	6-4, 6-2
John McEnroe	4-6, 2-6

Becker, who beat McEnroe for the third time in four meetings, earned the 16th singles crown of his professional career and his fourth title of 1988. The blond West German's other triumphs this year came at Indian Wells, Dallas and the Queen's tournament in London.

McEnroe played aggressively, showing flashes of the form that made him a three-time

Wimbledon champion and four-time U.S. Open winner. It was McEnroe's first finals appearance since defeating this year's Wimbledon champion, Stefan Edberg, in April at Tokyo in his only prior hard court appearance of 1988.

"I played a good first set. I had my chances to capitalize," McEnroe said. "His game just picked up and I wasn't playing quite as well. I felt tired. I lost a little and he played well throughout. I was a little sluggish in the second set and he took advantage. The second set, basically, he outplayed me."

McEnroe, trying to return after a self-imposed layoff from the game, said it may be next year before his play returns to the level he desires. That frustrates him as the Open approaches.

points and will be the team's alternate.

Mills, Johnson, Stack and Faehn all train with controversial Karolyi in Houston. There is a measure of tension surrounding the team following Karolyi's announcement he would not go to Seoul, where the team will be coached by Don Peters.

Kristie Phillips, once considered the top American women's gymnast, and the all-around runnerup in the 1987 Pan American Games, could do no better than eighth.

Doe Yamashiro, who held seventh place following the compulsory, and Joyce Wilborn, who was 11th, both withdrew because of ankle sprains. A day earlier, Sabrina Mar, the all-around champion at the Pan Am Games, was forced out because of back problems.

The men's Olympic team was filled Friday night with Californian Charles Lakes holding onto the top spot in the Trials.

Joining Lakes, who will be the first black gymnast to compete for the United States in the Olympics, are Scott Johnson, Kevin Davis, Wes Suter and Lance Ringwald, all of the University of Nebraska.

Cortisone treatment for tennis elbow

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with tennis elbow. The doctor tells me I must have cortisone shots. What exactly is tennis elbow? Would garlic extract help?

DEAR READER: Tennis elbow is known medically as lateral humeral epicondylitis, a strain of the forearm muscles where they attach to the outer lower portion of the upper arm bone (humerus). This strain produces inflammation and pain.

Some experts believe that tennis elbow is an overuse syndrome or may result from muscle stress during improperly hit backhand shots. The ailment also affects non-tennis players who overuse their forearms in repetitive rotary movements, such as turning a screwdriver.

Treatment consists of stopping the offending activity. In severe or chronic cases, physical therapy with ultrasound or the use of cortisone injections will help relieve pain by reducing inflammation. Garlic extract is of no use whatsoever.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband, 42, has been seeing a physician for two months for help in losing 40 pounds. So far he's lost about 20 pounds with a change in eating habits, exercise and a prescription for an appetite suppressant (Meflat—105 mg.). Are there any side effects to this drug?

DEAR READER: Meflat is a prescription appetite suppressant that is similar in action to amphetamines. It can cause multiple side effects, including restlessness, insomnia, tremor, headache, blurred vision, palpitations, hypertension, nausea, diarrhea and alteration in sex drive. In short, it can have dangerous side effects and, according to the manufacturer, should not be used for more than a few weeks. Even so, tolerance can develop, as can dependence and withdrawal symptoms. I hope that your husband is looking for long term-solutions to obesity (such as diet) rather than short-term "cures". To help him, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Winning the Battle of the Bulge."

Answer to Previous Puzzle

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

South was stepping out just a little when he bid two spades over East's two-diamond overall. South had only 12 high-card points, but he did have a good playing hand if his partner could either support spades or bid no-trump. Four spades was a good contract, but not without its pitfalls. If trumps split badly, the contract would probably fail. The defenders would continue diamonds and then simply hold up the trump ace until the third round to play more diamonds. Fortunately for declarer, the trumps did behave. Also fortunately for declarer, defender East misbehaved.

East won the opening diamond lead and continued the suit. South ruffed and knocked out the ace of spades. West returned a heart and the king was taken by East's ace. Finally came the play of the singleton club. Declarer won the club, drew trumps and took the rest of the tricks. Making four.

East need only look at his own cards to know that there is little chance to set four spades unless his partner has either a club trick or a high spade. Despite the possibility that the second diamond may cash, the right defense for East is to play back his singleton at the second trick. That thwarts declarer's chances. West will get in with the ace of spades and give East a ruff, and the contract will be set.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

What's in a name? The Hoggs say plenty

DEAR ABBY: I'm afraid that you, too, were taken in by that old, durable hoax about the Hogg sisters, Ima and Ura Hogg.

James S. Hogg was a wealthy leading citizen of Houston who served two terms as governor of Texas in the '90s. He had one daughter whom he named "Ima"; "Ura" is a pure invention, but it makes a euterology.

Ima Hogg, who never married, died recently. She was one of Houston's best-loved citizens, a generous philanthropist and a patron of the arts.

My name is Robert Hogg, but as far as I know I am not related to the Hoggs of Texas. I've been told by various people that they had a friend who knew the Hogg sisters personally, but no one could remember the name of the friend who made that claim.

I'm sure you meant no offense when you responded to the letter signed "Ima Flopp" with: "Personally, I'd rather be a Flopp than a Hogg," but there are many Hoggs in the United States, Canada, Scotland and England who are proud of their heritage. As for me, I would rather have that name than any other.

ROBERT HOGG, ISSAQUAH, WASH.

DEAR MR. HOGG: I am inundated with letters from readers who hasten to set me straight on the Hogg family. For example:

DEAR ABBY: Don't feel too bad about the Hogg "sisters" mistake. I imagine that half of Texas believes there was a "Ura" Hogg. Another third probably heard that there was a third sister named "Sheca." Actually, Ima had three brothers—William, Mike and Thomas, but no sister, Ima died in 1975 at the age of 93. Thanks for letting me separate the facts from fiction.

ADVICE

LAURA GUTSCHKE, LURBOCK

DEAR ABBY: I, too, am glad that your name is not Hogg. You would have done no credit to the name. Also, you need to research the Hogg family of Houston; then perhaps you could make some authentic statements.

In my estimation, Ura No. 1 Flopp.

ARKANSAS HOGG FOR 65 YEARS, ELDORADO, ARK.

DEAR ABBY: With regard to the Hoggs of Texas: There was an Ima, but no Ura. The name Ima Hogg is well known throughout Texas. She was a very fine and generous woman who was cherished for her good deeds. Each spring when the azaleas were in bloom, thousands of tourists would go through her stately old mansion

Free enterprise nominees needed

OKLAHOMA CITY — Nominations are being accepted through Aug. 15 for the second annual Libertas Award, designed to honor the individual best advancing the economic values and traditions of America, announced project chairman George Gallup Jr.

Gallup Jr.

The award, created by Enterprise Square USA—the nation's largest visitor entertainment and learning center interpreting the free enterprise system—was presented last year to Sam Walton, founder and head of the nationwide Wal-Mart and Sam's chains of retail stores.

The Libertas Award is designed to honor an individual in any business or profession whose creativity, example and contributions make the greatest impact in advancing the position qualities of free enterprise, said Gallup, chief executive of the Gallup poll, the oldest of nationwide opinion polls.

He said a panel of leading educators, journalists, economists and business leaders will screen the nominees. Nominations, in the form of a letter plus optional supporting materials, should be addressed to George Gallup Jr., c/o Enterprise Square USA, 2501 E. Memorial, Box 11000, Oklahoma City, Okla. 73136-1100.

Each winner is honored with a sculptured crystal eagle and is inducted into the Hall of Giants, an area at Enterprise Square USA that features massive graphics and three-dimensional dioramas, all spotlighting individuals who have made lasting contributions to the American economy.

and view her beautiful gardens in Houston.

I am sure the Hogg family was very proud of its name or they would have changed it. How would you like to be referred to as "Van Buren" since you have made an ass of yourself on this issue?

Frankly, I think most of your supposedly cute quips are out of line for a woman of your age. You can call me...

'MR. ED' OF ALVIN, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: According to Stephen Birmingham's book "The Grandes Dames" (Simon & Schuster, 1982), James and Sallie Hogg named their daughter "Ima" in all innocence, seeing nothing odd about the combination of names. A few years before Ima's birth, James Hogg's brother, Thomas Elisha Hogg, had published a beautiful poem about the Civil War titled, "The Fate of Marvin." The heroine of that poem was "Ima," so the child was named "Ima" to honor her uncle's memory.

Itumor had it that Sallie Stinson Hogg's father, on learning that his granddaughter was to be named "Ima," was furious, saddled up his horse and rode as fast as he could to protest that name. But he was too late. The christening had already taken place.

JEANNETTE CASEY, EXETER, N.H.

DEAR JEANNETTE: Thanks for the input. This should put an end to all the Hogg-wash.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you printed a letter from "Eileen," who identified Connie Mack as "the last manager in baseball history to wear a suit instead of a uniform on the field."

Mr. Mack never went onto the field—he would wave from the dugout to position his fielders, and send one of his coaches out as his proxy to perform managerial duties such as conferring with players or umpires and making pitching changes.

I love baseball with all my heart and am proud to be one of only two women currently umpiring professional baseball.

PERRY LEE BARBER (LADY UMP)

DEAR PERRY: Anyone (of either sex) would have to love baseball with all his/her heart in order to be a professional umpire. The perks must be great, but from where I sit, the abuse from all directions would drive this swinger batty.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.)
