Uncle Sam adopted at the end of WW II and has spent $143 billion to keep open-This, also, is the issue on which the United States spoke out clearly and definitive in killing the foreign aid bill ($2.9 billion for another year) on Oct. 29 with the vote 41 to 27. High time that some such action was taken.

Presented and supported by the Nixon administration the bill was an illustration of the manner in which executive decisions have been made, amplified and introduced and allowed to be legalized by the Congress during the past few administrations,

If this surprise result did nothing more than to

is now ready to reflect the wishes of its constituents and to "make haste slowly" when spending tax dollars, it would be worthwhile.

The vote must, however, be placed in perspective. The straw that broke the back of a complacent Senate could well have been the action in the United Nations when many of the nations that owed more than lip service to the proven desire of the U.S. to help them, not only voted against the expressed American-China policy, but followed up the defeat with gleeful actions in the aisles which TV brought into Amer-

There is, in addition, the spectacle of the inauguration of President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon. An utter disavowal of American democracy which has lowered further whatever prestige the Nixon administration had retained in that Indochina war. In the foreign aid bill there was included more for every part of foreign aid which is directed tofunds for South Vietnam and Laos, a pill some senators could not or would not swallow.

This defeat in the Senate for an administration policy, added to the loss of support which the Nixon Two-China policy suffered in the UN has, quite logically stung the White House. The mysteries and the complications that the implementation of foreign aid programs inevitably entail are of such a scope that only careful, persistent and informed observation is worthwhile. What is worthwhile, however, is the understanding of the American public that the time is

VOTE - VOTE - VOTE Registered voters in Seminole County there are 331,762 names on the rolls for today's balloting - will provide a clue as to what can be expected in the forthcoming municipal elections this year when totals are announced-For the single question on the ballot is one which required considerable thought by the voter and a little more than the usual effort to make an intelligent decision. We have advised a "yes" vote for reasons which we have spelled out on this page for several months. The airwaves and the presses have ground out the arguments pro and con, The single-minded, whole-hearted and vigorous campaign of Gov. Reubin Askew is the key factor. Thus the percentages of turn-out will be as much a matter of interest to the political analyst as the result itself. In Seminole County the quantity and quality of the voter is in a state of flux. Our population explosion, now most evident on the southern or non-political habits. Like the rest of our growing state, this county is undergoing such a melting pot of political loyalties that the immediate concern is whether or not the eligible newcomers have registered And if registered, whether they will

Municipal elections will be coming along next month in Sanford, Altamonte Springs, Casselberry and Longwood. Each one has peculiar issues which need to be discussed and debated by the candidates and understood by the voters. Apathy, however, is the foe of good government. It finds its most effective ally in the eligible voter who does not register and the registered voter who does not vote. By the time this comment is read, many of our readers will have either cast their ballot on the constitutional referendum or decided to stay home. To this latter few, we would urge that the polls will be open until seven o'clock and you'll sleep a lot more comfortable if this civic duty has been performed.

$425,000 OKd For City Housing

The sum of $425,000 has been approved tentatively for allocation to the Sanford Housing Authority for improvements to four public housing projects in the city, it was reported to The Sanford Herald this morning by U. S. Sen. Edward Gurney in a telephone message from Washington. Gurney said the allocation is a part of $7 million tentatively approved for all of Florida by the U. S. Department of Hous> ing and Urban Development (HUD). City Manager W. E. Knowles, when apprised of the allocation, said the bulk of the $425,000, when received, will be used for new roofing for the four housing projects in the city. There also will be some painting and clean-up work, he added. Knowles was confident the full $425,000 will be received, although only "tentatively approved" at this

The Sanford Housing Authority had requested of HUD a grant of $880,000 to refurbish the 280 residential units in the four projects.
