Don't drink the water!

Don't drink the water. That's the message being sent to Lake Mary residents after an electrical outage, followed by the failure of a backup generator, caused low water pressure to over 3,100 City of Lake Mary water customers.

The outage occurred at around 3 a.m. this morning and was remedied at 7:15 according to acting City Manager Jackie Sora.

Sora said Lake Mary residents should boil all water needed for at least the next 48 hours. She said customers would be notified when the problem was solved.

During an outage, bacteria is likely to mix with the water making it unsafe to drink.

Sora said the cause of the outage was the result of the failure of the main circuit breaker at the Lake Mary Public Works Complex. The reason for the failure of the backup generator was unknown.

Civil Rights Summit

Congresswoman Corrine Brown will host a Civil Rights Summit for the Third Congressional District this Friday. The event, to be held in Orlando, follows a similar meeting held recently in Sanford.

Special guest speaker will be the Rev. Jesse Jackson, Sr.

"Our hard-won civil rights have been seriously challenged in recent months," said Brown. "Americans have lost sight of the fact that affirmative action and minority voting districts came about as a remedy to years of entrenched discrimination, especially here in Florida."

The meeting is open to the public and will be held beginning at 7 p.m., May 24, at St. Mark A.M.E. Church, 1968 Bruton Blvd., Orlando.

Spanish Trace robbery

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — An armed robbery was reported at approximately 10:25 Wednesday night, at Spanish Trace Apartments, S. Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs.

Seminole County sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough said the victim, 37, was walking into the laundry room when one of two suspects hit him in the back of the head knocking him to the floor. McDonough said the man attempted to get up, but was struck a second time.

The two men reportedly took the victim's car keys and stole his 1989 Acura Legend, which was found abandoned early this morning in Eatonville.

The suspects are described as black males. Both are about 20 years of age, six feet one, 170 pounds, with short black hair. One is said to be armed with a silver semi-automatic handgun.

The victim was not seriously injured.

Feeney and conservationists

State Rep. Tom Feeney-R, Oviedo, will address the area meeting of the Florida Association of Conservation Districts. The Seminole Soil and Water Conservation District will host the meeting at the Lake Sylvan meeting room, located on Lake Marikam Woods Road. The meeting starts at 9:15 a.m., May 24, and will also include the district winners of conservation speech contests.

Mandatory meeting scheduled

The Boys and Girls Club, located at 919 S. Peralmon Ave., Sanford, scheduled one last mandatory meeting for parents who wish to pre-register their children for summer programs. For more information, call 330-2458.

Little girl saves mother's life

By BONNIE BLOSSWORTH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Charnice Medlock, a 6-year-old Goldsboro Elementary student, became the youngest person to receive the Emergency Medical Services award for her heroic efforts in saving her mother's life.

During a special assembly Wednesday morning at Goldsboro Elementary School, the Sanford Fire and Rescue unit presented her with a toy dalmatian. Charnice immediately named the dog, Freddie.

According to Capt. Marty Johnson, the Sanford EMS coordinator, on the evening of Feb. 22, Charnice was awakened by a loud "snoring noise" coming from the living room. Charnice discovered her mother Robin Peoples asleep on the sofa. The kindergarten knew something was wrong when she could not waken her mother.

Peoples said three years ago she had a grand mal seizure at work. When she returned home, she taught her daughter how to dial 911 in emergencies. It was a lesson that saved the mother's life.

Charnice ran to the phone, dialed

SANFORD — The traditional parade in memory of those who gave their lives fighting for their country will once again highlight Memorial Day observances in Sanford this year.

The parade will begin at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce parking lot on E. First Street, culminating at the Veterans Memorial Park on the lakefront with official ceremonies to begin at 11 a.m.

Update: Gallery renovations

By BOB PEPFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The First Street Gallery, now relocated to 207 South Magnolia Avenue, won't have its formal grand opening until later this summer. But activities will start this Friday (May 24), with the Ritz Theatre Group production of "I Do, I Do."

"The grand opening is still being planned for later this summer," said gallery director Kay Bartholomew. "That's when the Ritz Theatre Group is scheduled to open with the "Celery City Review," an original script reflecting Sanford in the 1940's."

The renovation of the new gallery at 207 Magnolia was placed in the fast-forward mode to create a setting for the production starting this week. But Bartholomew commented, "There will be many finishing touches remaining, the main one being the painting of the front of the building."

She continued, "We have done major repairs as the site has been sadly neglected. However, the interior, especially the main exhibit hall, has been transformed by volunteer workers who have gladly given their time and talent so that the Ritz will have a temporary home and that the gallery will again become a cultural center for

Cop: Seat belts kept kids from serious harm

By JEFF BERLINICK
Herald Staff Writer

No one can say that seat belts don't work.

Three small children walked away from an accident this morning because, as investigating officer G.A. Smith said, "They were wearing restraining belts. People need to be made aware of how important it is to keep children in restraining seats."

The accident occurred at the intersection of French Avenue and Fifth Street in Sanford. Angela Marie Torres, 23, of Groveview Way in Sanford, was driving southbound on French Avenue when she swerved into an electrical pole.

Officer Smith said the woman suffered from a seizure, possibly epileptic.

Four passengers were in the vehicle when it struck the pole. See Accident, Page 5A

ORLANDO — With the flash and neon intensity of an MTV video, the Lake Mary High School graduation splashed across the stage and the video screens of the Orlando Arena Wednesday afternoon.

The nearly 800 graduate candidates sat in restless anticipation of the chance to cross the stage to pick up their diplomas and cross the threshold into adulthood.

While principal Raymond Gaines and an assortment of honors students offered words of advice and encouragement, family and friends of the graduates cheered, whistled, called out the names of their loved ones and blasted air horns in anticipation of the awarding of the diplomas.

Christian Alexander Vorndran III, a summa cum laude graduate, said he understood his fellow graduates wanted him to keep the program moving along, but he wanted to offer them a few observations before he left because, he said, "we are only immortal for a limited time."

Who should get the word out?

Who is responsible for promoting Sanford? For that matter, who is supposed to handle promotion for any city?

Most cities have Chambers of Commerce. They are, (or should be), however, specifically dedicated, as the term "commerce" indicates, to promoting business and trade in their communities. In areas where helping increase shoppers or tradesmen to an area are involved, we could say chambers promote cities. But this is not the total picture, nor should it be.

While citizens may expect their city governments to promote the business and residential life, governments should be more concerned with physical and financial operation of supporting services such as police, zoning, fire protection, recreation, and other needs of the people.

Almost all of the other organizations, boards and committees in a city are responsible for planning projects, and, if financing is available, seeing them through to completion. In most cases however, these are for developments, projects or the physical appearance of an area. They are thusly not responsible for overall promotion.

Who then should be overly responsible for attracting visitors. There are Visitors Bureaus established in various areas, but Sanford has no such group.

People want to help attract visitors and new residents to the city. But it costs money and involves time and people participation. These aren't easy to obtain.

Right now, the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is operating a volunteer-manned booth at the Orlando Sanford Airport to welcome foreign visitors to the area.

This past Monday, a woman made a presentation to the City Commission. She wanted to supervise production of a video tape showing Sanford's attractions and finer points, to be shown to incoming visitors at the airport.

While both of these projects are aimed at the tens of thousands of new visitors expected to be arriving at the airport, there is no active work toward attracting people from other areas such as the northern part of the state, or other states.

Attracting some of these British tourists to Sanford is good. We hope the chamber's work accomplishes exactly that. But we cannot rely only on British visitors. We must seek others.

What does Sanford and northern Seminole County have? There are many good points which seem to appeal to visitors. Overall however, there is no other city more suitably located for people to headquarter, for visits to the attractions at Orlando, Daytona Beach with its beaches and speedway, Cape Kennedy, Silver Springs, and many others. We are in the middle of this, less than a few hours drive from some of the most outstanding attractions in the state if not the nation and the world.

Are we promoting this fact? There's no need to answer that question. It's obvious.

While we object to the constant forming of boards and committees which never seem to accomplish anything because of a lack of funding and support, we nonetheless suggest it's time a visitors bureau be formed, funded, and given the opportunity to tackle all of these needs.

Then the chamber can continue to work on the commercial aspects of the area, and the city can continue to handle the mechanics of government.

We believe it's an idea which has reached the stage of needed action.

Lott coasting to majority leader's spot

The often-strained relationship between Sens. Bob Dole, R-Kan., and Trent Lott, R-Miss., came full circle last week when the presumptive Republican nominee announced his resignation from the Senate.

Dole's sudden departure caps an uneasy working relationship between the majority leader and his top deputy. Two weeks earlier, Dole had revealed his plans to a close circle of intimates that included his wife and Republican National Committee Chairman Haley Barbour.

But the ambitious Lott, who's the odds-on favorite to replace Dole as Senate majority leader, didn't learn of Dole's intentions until an aide called him just minutes before the announcement. Lott was on the House floor attending a ceremony honoring former House Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois when he learned that the job he's been coveting was becoming vacant. Once the news was out, Lott wasted no time in launching his campaign for the top spot.

Only five months ago, it was Lott who surprised Dole by going on television to denounce President Clinton's troop deployment in Bosnia. Dole supported the deployment, while Lott chose the politically easy route of opposing Clinton. Afterwards, Dole was furious at his deputy for grandstanding before the cameras without consulting him first.

A group of Republican senators had just finished a meeting in Dole's office when a reporter asked the majority leader if he knew that Lott had just denounced the mission.

"Dole, of course, was very cool," one Republican who attended the meeting told us. "But Dole was really steamed because Lott just blind-sided him. I think that exacerbated things very dramatically."

It wasn't the first time that Lott's loyalty and decorum take a back seat to personal ambition. Only months earlier, Lott, as majority whip, sought to ally concerns that he would push a more confrontational agenda on Dole. "There won't be a separate agenda," Lott said in

Once the news was out, Lott wasted no time in launching his campaign for the top spot.

1994. "I'm going to ride shotgun for the leader."

Since winning election to the Senate in 1990 after 15 years in the House, Lott has often been too busy promoting himself to ride shotgun for anybody. A ruthless and shrewd political operator, Lott leaptfrogged the Senate seniority system when he took away the No. 3 job from Sen. Alan K. Simpson, R-Wyo., in 1994. Just weeks after reassuring Simpson that he had no plans to challenge him for the job of majority whip, Lott entered the race.

From the earliest days of the Clinton administration, Lott has let little stand in the way of his political ambitions. During a hearing of the Senate Budget Committee in March 1993, for example, Lott saw an opportunity to embarrass then-Budget Director Leon Panetta. While other Republicans were grilling Panetta over the Clinton administration's budget proposals, Lott reached into his jacket pocket to produce a list.

"I have in my pocket a list of $310 billion in painless budget cuts that just about everybody would agree with, including you," Lott bragged as the cameras rolled. "I'd be glad to provide (it) to you."

When Panetta called Lott's bluff and asked for the list, Lott folded it up and put it back in his pocket.

DONNA BRITT

It's not such an unrealistic goal

Listen to Susan O'Malley's most telling junior high school tale:

She was 13 in the mid-1970s when a female history teacher gave her that time-honored essay assignment. "What I Want to Be When I Grow Up." O'Malley's two-page piece, which explained why running a pro sports franchise would be the coolest thing a girl could do, inspired this terse teacher response:

"GOOD COMPOSITION. UNREALISTIC GOAL."

"I cried-I couldn't believe someone told me I couldn't be what I wanted to be," says O'Malley, 34. Naturally, less than two decades later, she's president of the Washington Bullets and Washington Sports, the corporation that runs the business side of Abe Pollin's hockey and basketball teams.

Today, O'Malley is the top-ranking woman executive in team sports. And though it's still lonely for women at the top in this testosterone-drenched world, women's sports is on the rise - as indicated by skyrocketing participation by girls in every sport. A soon-to-be launched women's pro softball league and the amazing fact that both the National Basketball Association and the American Basketball League plan to start women's leagues next year.

I love that a woman wields real power in pro basketball.

And I'm unfazed that O'Malley's schoolgirl drama were helped along by being the second daughter of Peter F. O'Malley, who was president of the Washington Capitals hockey team from 1975 to 1977. O'Malley came by her vocation naturally. And, some would suggest, too easily.

"When I got my first job with the Bullets (director of advertising, when she was 25), my dad and Abe Pollin swore to me that my being Pete O'Malley's daughter had nothing to do with it," she asserts.

Then she bursts out laughing.

"I mean, come on." Perhaps O'Malley can laugh about the nepotism accusations she has faced because she's doing her job as well. When she took over the Bullets in 1991, the team ranked last in paid attendance; last year it was ninth of 30 teams.

Predictably, some have grouched about O'Malley's power and "aggressive nature" - though O'Malley is surprisingly easygoing. Now it's being said that she forced Bullets General Manager John Nash to resign last month so he could be replaced by her mentor and pal, Wes Unseld.

Though she won't comment on her former GM's resignation, here's the bottom line: O'Malley can play hardball as ably as similarly positioned guys. And win.

Cool. I appreciate her even more considering sports' other highly visible woman - Cincinnati Reds owner Marge "Ever Charming" Schott. O'Malley says she's embarrassed by Schott's reported bizarre statements, which, she says, "seem to have insulted almost every faction."

"But what's nice," O'Malley says, "is that nobody has generalized and said, 'Gee, these women in sports.'"

Her attitude is typical of women and minorities in lofty positions: "I always said that if I did a good job, nobody's going to fire the 26 men running NBA teams. But if I did badly, I'd feel responsible to other women."

O'Malley came by her vocation naturally. And, some would suggest, too easily.

MORTON KONDRACKE

Dole wants to unmask Clinton

President Clinton lifted the veil slightly on his plans for a second term recently and now the Dole campaign thinks it has the weapon it needs to clobber him. "New Democrats" don't like what Clinton has in mind, either.

Clinton disclosed in an interview with Washington Post columnist E.J. Dionne that instead of directly using government money and personnel to make things happen, he wants to require private industry to do them through "rule-making."

He cited as models the Family and Medical Leave Act, requiring companies to give time off to new parents, and mandates on health insurance companies to insure people with pre-existing conditions.

Dole campaign officials won't say exactly how they plan to exploit the president's remarks, but one aide said "it provides us with tremendous ammunition" that Dole will fire off soon.

It doesn't require too much imagination to predict what Dole will do with Clinton's concept. He'll call it something like "mandate liberalism" or "big brother liberalism." For sure, it'll be used as evidence that, for all his centrist talk, Clinton is really a "liberal."

An ex top GOP official said, "Clinton clearly is committed to big government. He can't get what he wants by raising taxes and creating new programs, so he'll mandate it, so though that doesn't cost the economy."

A similar critique of mandates came from Will Marshall, president of the Progressive Foundation, the think tank of the Democratic Leadership Council, the "New Democrat" group that Clinton once headed.

"Instead of socializing costs," Marshall said, "Clinton proposes privatizing costs, creating unfunded mandates. It won't work. In a highly competitive environment, companies have to be lean and nimble. They can't be burdened with fixed costs imposed by government."

DLC officials recently spent time in Florida working on a "third way" manifesto designed to identify a new role for government different from both regulatory Democratic liberalism and laissez-faire Republican conservatism.

Key to the third way is "empowerment," or creation of opportunity for individuals through schemes like job-training vouchers and private retirement accounts. The DLC also proposes to protect the environment by charging fees for pollution emissions rather than by government regulation.

Clinton, who ran on DLC-invented themes in 1992, has been delivering speeches lately which sound either Republican or "third way," but Republicans think they're an election-year disguise. Some Democrats suspect the same.

In his commencement address at Penn State on May 10, for instance, Clinton said that "government still has a role to play," but "the world has moved away from big, centralized bureaucracies and top-down solutions." The new role for government, he said, was to "give people the tools they need to make the most of their own lives, to enable them to seize opportunities when they are responsible."

To the consternation of Republicans, such centrist talk has convinced a significant portion of the public that Clinton is a moderate, not a liberal.

Yankelovich polling for Time and CNN shows that only 24 percent of the public considered Clinton "too liberal" just before he took office in 1993. That rose to 41 percent in mid-1993. Now, it's back to 28 percent. According to Gallup, only 18 percent of voters consider themselves liberal; 40 percent, conservative; and 41 percent, moderate.

Gallup found that 33 percent of voters consider Clinton a "moderate" and 45 percent consider him "liberal," but only 25 percent said his views were "a lot more liberal" than their own.

A major objective of the Dole campaign is to "unmask" Clinton and "expose" him as a "liberal."

Dole, in his new stump speech, says that the Clinton record is to "talk right and govern left" and he alleges that in a second term "his unrestrained liberalism will be turned loose on America."

In one speech, Dole suggested that first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton would be back to influence domestic policy as she did with her 1994 health-care plan.

"All the liberalism he can think of and all his wife can think of will come bubbling to the surface," Dole said.

Until the recent interview, though, Dole and the Republicans could only cite past Clinton performance, not any statement of Clinton's own intentions.

Dole campaign officials won't say exactly how they plan to exploit the president's remarks.

"The loud snoring noise is an indication of a partial airway obstruction or severe problem with breathing," Johnson said. The crew reported Peoples' pupils were pinpoint size, another sign her condition was critical.

Some members of the rescue crews assisted with respiration efforts. Others injected Peoples with Narcan, which reverses the effects of overmedication. Within a minute, Johnson said the mother came around and could answer questions.

The rescue workers praised Charnice for her bravery. Then they brought her to her mother for reassurance. She gave her mother a kiss before the rescue crews took Peoples to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford where she made a full recovery.

Johnson said Peoples had accidentally taken an over the counter sleeping pill in conjunction with prescription medicine and did not realize the danger.

"This unfortunately happens all the time," Johnson said.

The EMS coordinator said people do not realize that mixing over the counter drugs and prescription medicines can be life-threatening. He said Peoples could have died had it not been for Charnice's quick thinking.

As in the case of a local Sanford girl, teaching your child how to dial 911 could save a life.

Parents and teachers should teach children about 911 emergency procedures as soon as the child is old enough to understand. Here are some suggestions from the Sanford Fire Department and the National Fire Safety Council:

• Talk to the child about what an emergency might be. For instance, let them know if the house is on fire, they should leave and go to a neighbor's house to call for emergency help.

• Show the child the telephone dial pad and show them how to dial 911. Be sure to use the words "nine-one-one" and NOT "nine-eleven."

• Describe to the child who a dispatcher is. Role play the questions a dispatcher might ask the child, such as "Is this a fire or medical emergency?" and "What is your name and address?"

• Have the child memorize the home address. Parents may want to tape the address onto the telephone.

Everyone should know that you can dial 911 from any pay phone without a quarter, according to Inspector Tim Robles, Sanford Fire Department. Robles invited parents and children to visit the fire station where questions about fire safety and emergencies can be answered. Coloring books which teach 911 procedures are also available.

Michael, the husband.

"I Do, I Do" is the story of Michael and Agnes' marriage. The musical interpretation of "The Fourposter," it tells of the birth of children, of the quarrels, of the money problems and of their love.

The story is told in a warm sentimental tone. The cheerful, tuneful score mirrors and dramatizes the moods and events of the couple's life together.

"This is true family fare," said Kay Bartholomew, spokesman for the theatre group.

Bukar has worked in the entertainment departments at both Sea World and Universal Studios. He began his stage career at Seminole High School and honed his talents at SCC.

From there, he went on to perform in numerous plays at the Ocoola Center for the Arts in Kissimmee and at Encore Alley in Vero Beach.

He currently lives in Kissimmee.

Co-starring with Bukar in the Sanford production is Mary Rose Gray who has been performing on stage for some 20 years. Among her credits are "Grand Hotel" at the Mark II Theatre and "Anything Goes" with the Bay Street Players in Eustis.

Another Sanford person, Cheryl Garner, is the choreographer.

"This is just a beginning," said Fred Rogers, producer of "I Do, I Do," at the Ritz. "Obviously we are not working in a bonified theatre as we will the Ritz is restored. But this is what makes it exciting. We're making creative things. That's what the culture cluster is all about."

Helen Stairs, president of the Ritz group and the economic development chair for Sanford Main Street, described the culture cluster.

"Although the old Ritz Theatre building is still awaiting additional funds to restore, we felt it was important to show the community that we are moving," she said. "We designated the two blocks from First to Third on Magnolia as the culture arts cluster in our overall development plan and renovation of the building as home for the First Street Gallery, is the first spark in what we hope will be a creative explosion."

The production of "I Do, I Do" will be Friday and Saturday, May 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. and in Sunday, May 26 at 2:30 p.m.; as well as on Friday and Saturday, May 31 and June 1 at 8 p.m. and Sunday, June 2 at 2:30 p.m.

High court lets police empty cars of passengers on stops

By LARRY ABBE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court let stand a ruling that allows police who stop cars for routine traffic violations to order all passengers to get out.

The court, without comment, refused today to revive a civil rights lawsuit filed against Los Angeles and three police officers by a man arrested after the car in which he was a passenger was stopped.

His appeal contended that the police officers should not have ordered him out of the car in the absence of suspected wrongdoing.

Today's court action is not a decision and does not set a national precedent. But it leaves intact a ruling that is binding law in nine Western states — unless the Supreme Court some day agrees to review the issue in some other case and bans such police tactics.

Enrique Ruvalcaba was riding in a car driven by his brother in Los Angeles on Feb. 28, 1991. Police pulled over the car after seeing it run a stop sign.

The officers said they ordered Ruvalcaba, his brother and another passenger to step outside the car. One officer said he recognized Ruvalcaba as someone who he once chased as a burglary suspect.

Ruvalcaba's brother and the other passenger got out. Police said Ruvalcaba jumped out of the car, swore at the officers and acted in a threatening manner. The officers subdued him with their batons, and Ruvalcaba was treated at a hospital for his injuries.

He sued the city, then-Police Chief Daryl Gates and three officers, alleging false arrest and use of excessive force.

A federal trial judge ruled against Ruvalcaba, and the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed.

The officers had the authority to order Ruvalcaba to get out of the car even though he was not suspected of criminal activity, the appeals court ruled.

A 1977 Supreme Court decision allows police officers to order drivers out of lawfully stopped vehicles without violating their constitutional protection against unreasonable searches and seizures.

The 9th Circuit court said the 1977 ruling also applies to passengers. In the appeal acted on today, which explained how to dial 911 in emergencies.

Johnson said they chose to hold the awards ceremony at this time to recognize Charnice and to highlight National EMS Week. He said anyone interested in taking a tour of the fire station or wishing more information about the 911 system could call him at 323-9400.

The rescue workers who responded to the emergency call and came to Charnice's awards ceremony were as follows:

• Rescue Unit 31: Robert Vaughn and Mike Salber.
• Engine Unit 31: Ronnie McNeil, Harold Johnson, Sid Hawkins and Matt Hall.
• Medic Unit 1: Ginny King and Jo Becor.

Silver Hawks leave nest

Eight from LHHS accept grants

By GARY GRAYSON
Herald Staff Writer

WINTER PARK — Six players who helped lead Lake Howell High School to the 6A-District 4 championship in football last fall are among the eight graduating Silver Hawks who have accepted collegiate athletic scholarships for next year.

Defensive end Joe Ferrer, running back Ellis DeJesus, offensive lineman David Winters, tight end Josh McIntosh, defensive back/linebacker Jahari Moore and Robert Reed all earned scholarships after they helped lead the Silver Hawks to a 9-3 record last season.

DeJesus was a versatile performer for the Silver Hawks, rushing for 355 yards and three touchdowns on 58 carries and catching four passes for 73 yards last season. He is headed to Pittsburgh to attend Carnegie-Melon University.

McIntosh, who contributed to the Lake Howell offense by catching five passes for 39 yards last season, has accepted a scholarship from Lyndenwood University in Missouri.

One of the highlights of the season for the Silver Hawks was when Ferrer returned a fumble 43 yards for a touchdown in a 25-24 upset of Lake Brantley. He will try to come up with similar heroics for the University of Notre Dame.

Reed, who also wrestled in the 189 weight class for the Silver Hawks, will continue his career in both sports at the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs.

Moore is headed to Merced Junior College in California while Winters will attend Lenoir-Rhyne College in North Carolina.

Although football players dominate the Lake Howell scholarship scene, two more of the school's talented athletes also received and accepted offers to attend college.

Stacey Gomes, the point guard for the Lake Howell girls' basketball team last season, will attend Manatee Junior College in Bradenton.

Pitcher Kevin Knorst, who helped the Silver Hawks to a 20-11 overall record and the regular season 6A-District 4 baseball title, has accepted a baseball scholarship from Auburn University.

The right-hander finished his senior campaign at Lake Howell with a 9-2 record.

"It's been a pleasure working with Kevin, and he made a fine choice," said Lake Howell coach Birt Benjamin. "Auburn is a fine school, and he worked hard and prepared himself. Kevin has earned everything he has received, and I think he will do very well on the college level."

Stacey Gomes, who helped Lake Howell win the 6A-District 4 basketball title in 1994-95 as a junior, has accepted a scholarship to attend Manatee Junior College in Bradenton.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Jason Bill Scholarship awarded

WINTER PARK — Joshua Goodman, a graduating senior soccer player from Winter Park High School, was awarded the first Jason Bill Memorial Scholarship this past Tuesday.

This scholarship was established by the FC America United Under-14 boys' soccer team after one of their top players, Sanford's Jason Bill, died in a boating accident last summer.

According to Orni head coach Joe Dalton, the scholarship will be awarded each year to a graduating Central Florida soccer player who "brings value to his coaches and teammates by exhibiting the dedication, sportsmanship, leadership, and heart" that was characteristic of Jason's play.

"Jason was one of the finest young men I have ever coached," said Dalton. "Josh represents exactly what we want in the recipient of this scholarship."

Goodman plans to attend Bentley College in Waltham, Mass., where he hopes to continue his soccer career.

Summer Basketball League

SANFORD — Seminole Community College men's basketball coach Bernard Merible is offering a Men's Summer Basketball League that will play at the S.C.C. Health and Physical Education Center starting in June.

Cost will be $500 per team. Call 328-2081 or 328-2080 for information.

AROUND THE STATE

Suns overcome Port City

JACKSONVILLE — Bubba Trammell hit a two-run homer to lift the Jacksonville Suns to a 3-1 win over the Port City Roosters in Southern League play Wednesday.

Suns reliever Rick Greene closed out the 9th inning, earning his 11th save of the year.

Reds walk past Letter, Martine

CINCINNATI — Bret Boone singled with the bases loaded in the seventh inning Wednesday as the Cincinnati Reds ended their seven-game losing streak with a 4-1 victory over the Florida Marlins.

The Marlins gave up 11 walks — nine by Al Leiter — and lost for just the third time in 18 games. Leiter (6-4) set a club record and matched his personal high with the nine walks. The bullpen walked two more and threw a run-scoring wild pitch during the four-run rally.

Leiter, who is 0-2 since he no-hit Colorado on May 11, walked the bases loaded in the first, but Boone hit into a forceout. Boone struck out and Hal Morris grounded out with the bases loaded in the third, and the Reds had three more baserunners in the fifth but couldn't score.

The Marlins scored in the third, when Ralph Millard singled, advanced on Leiter's sacrifice and scored on Devon White's single.

Maxwell paces O-Cube

ZEBULON, N.C. — Jason Maxwell drove in three runs and was a perfect 4-of-4 as the Orlando Cubs beat the Carolina Mudcats 7-3 in a Southern League game Wednesday night.

Cubs hitters roched Carolina pitchers for 14 hits.

Maxwell started off with his hot hitting with a two-run homer in the second inning to put the Cubs ahead 2-0. The Mudcats' Ken Bonifay closed the gap to 2-1 with a solo home run in the bottom half of the inning.

Orlando opened up a comfortable lead scoring five runs over the fourth and fifth innings. Kevin Orie hit a two-run homer in the fifth to give the Cubs a 5-3 lead.

Alfredo Garcia (2-0) picked up the win giving up seven hits over seven innings.

Brayton takes final ride

COLDWATER, Mich. — With fans holding black and white checkered flags, Indy car driver Scott Brayton received a farewell from his hometown.

He took his final ride in a black hearse with checkered flags on its front fenders. A blue and white pace car for Sunday's Indianapolis 500 led the funeral procession through town.

Brayton, 57, died Friday in a crash during practice for the Indy 500. The right rear tire of the Lola-Mercury he was driving deflated as the car headed toward the second turn. He crashed into the wall going more than 200 mph.

Brayton had qualified for the pole for Sunday's race. He had won the pole position a year ago as well, only the sixth time a driver won consecutive pole positions.

Dale Peters launched several softballs out of Chase Park Wednesday, ripping a two-run shot in Monroe Harbour's 6-5 win over Hopkins Meats and hammering a three-run blast during Monroe Harbour's 9-2 defeat of Fitzgerald's. Peters hit another ball out of the park against Hopkins Meats, but it just went for an out.

Wells maintains hold on first place

SANFORD — Robert Hirt and George Forsig were each 3-for-3 with two runs scored as Wells Contracting (4-1) held on to first place in the Sanford Recreation Men's Wednesday Spring Slowpitch Softball League with a 13-10 win over Crazy Wings at Chase Park.

Monroe Harbour (3-2) moved into second place by sweeping its doubleheader, holding off Hopkins Meats, 6-5, and rolling by Fitzgerald's, 9-2.

Hirt collected a solo home run, two singles, two runs, and two RBI for Wells Contracting while Forsig had three singles, two runs, and two RBI. Jody Cooper hit three singles and drove in a run.

Devil Rays stop slide

From staff reports

SANFORD — John Bryant was 4-for-4 with four RBI and two runs scored Wednesday as the Elks Lodge 1241 Devil Rays topped the A's 10-6 in Sanford Recreation Babe Ruth Baseball League action at Sanford Memorial Stadium.

The win snaps a three-game losing streak for the Devil Rays (8-6) and keeps them in the running for one of the National Division's two playoff berths. Currently, the Devil Rays trail the Moore Lodge Pirates (14-1) and the Marlins (10-6) in the standings.

Monroe Harbour, at Zinn Beck Field, the Kivwato Club Indians (6-6) scored a 10-0 decision over the Expos (2-13).

The contest between the Devil Rays and A's was a seesaw affair, the Devil Rays opening leads of 5-0, 9-3, and 16-6, only to see the A's cut the deficits to 5-3, 9-6, and 16-6.

Barry Porter (two runs), Justin Nettles (two runs), and Tomad Perriore were each 3-for-3 for the Devil Rays, while Jeremy Rothwell (one run) and Brian Porter (two runs) each had one hit. Brad Locke and Johnny Blake each scored two runs. C.J. Thompson scored a run.

For the A's, Robert Washburn, J.W. Harkness (two runs), Anthony Katanavong (one run) and Willie Bechner (one run) each had one hit for the A's. Chad Getchell scored a pair of runs while Josh Sparks and David Bechner each scored once.

At Zinn Beck Field, Will Ross was 2-for-3 with a home run and three runs scored to lead the Indians over the Expos.

Chris Parra, Eddie Morales, Mike Bradley, Robert Wilcox and Travis Jones scored in the top of the first inning to give the Expos a 5-0 lead.

Comeback climb gets steeper: Grant out for series

By FRED SOBASKA
AP Sports Writer

ORLANDO — The Orlando Magic will have to beat the odds, not to mention the Chicago Bulls, without Horace Grant.

The star forward's injured elbow was examined again Wednesday, and doctors ruled the team's most consistent player in the playoffs out for the remainder of the Eastern Conference finals.

Only seven teams in NBA history have lost the first two games of a seven-game series and come back to win. To join them, Orlando would have to win four of five against a team that's not showing any signs of weakness.

The Magic's record in games Grant has missed is another reason for concern.

They're 57-15 when he plays and 10-10 when he doesn't, including Game 3 of this series in which Orlando squandered an 18-point, second-half lead.

Grant, averaging 15 points and 10.4 rebounds in the playoffs, hyperextended his left elbow when he collided with teammate Shaquille O'Neal in the second half of the opener.

Although he missed Game 3 on Tuesday night — ending a streak of 141 consecutive playoff appearances — he remained hopeful that he could play in Games 3 and 4 until the injury was re-evaluated Wednesday by Dr. Brian Barnett.

"Dr. Barnett felt Horace would be unable to participate for the remainder of this series because of the amount of soft tissue damage to the elbow and the amount of discomfort and swelling," said team physician Dr. Jim Barnett.

"The primary concern is to prevent osseous deposits from developing around the elbow. Dr. Barnett recommended a period of immobilization with a splint."

With Grant sidelined, the team with the NBA's best home record over the past two years will be counting on an old ally to help them climb back into the hot-of-7 series.

After disappearing early in the opener and late in Game 3 on the road, the Magic hope that playing the next two games at Orlando Arena — where the team lost just four times this season — will make a difference.

"No need to worry. We just need to come out with the same attitude and we'll be all right," O'Neal declared after the Magic performed better, yet still lost Game 3.

"We played way better than we did in Game 1. We're going to have to go home and try to play the same way."

The Bulls looked unbeatable in winning the opener by 34. They looked vulnerable in Game 3 before turning up the defensive pressure and blowing past the bewildered Magic, who led 64-46 midway through the third quarter.

"It was pretty wild," said Orlando's Jon Koncak, who started in place of Grant. "I don't know if we got the ball more than three-quarters the way up the court for about three or four minutes. They were all over us."

Michael Jordan keyed the comeback, asserting himself offensively (17 third-quarter points) and defensively as the Bulls forced 11 second-half turnovers and contained O'Neal and Andrew Hardaway, Orlando's other young star.

O'Neal scored 36 points, but only took six shots in the second half. The Bulls allowed him with double teams, and Hardaway, Dennis Scott and Nick Anderson weren't able to make enough outside shots to make Chicago pay for changing its strategy.

"They started trapping the big fellas inside in the second half and everything got cluttered," said Scott, who hit a league record 207 3-pointers during the regular season but is just 1-for-6 from that range in this series.

"But we did all the things that we were supposed to do. The effort was a lot better. Everybody was focused. We had our game plan to a T for two quarters. Unfortunately, this is a four-quarter game in a best-of-seven game series."

Central Baptist rallies to extend unbeaten streak

From Staff Reports
SANFORD — Central Baptist stretched its unbeaten streak to three games, but Majesty from DeWitt Trinity Assembly of God and the Flames from First United Methodist remained right on its heels in the Sanford Recreation Spring Church Slowpitch Softball League.

Playing at Chase Park Saturday, First Church of the Nazarenes took a 4-1 lead in the third inning. But Central Baptist came back with two runs in the bottom of the third and five runs in the fourth to take an 8-4 advantage, then withstood a three-run Nazarene seventh to win 8-7.

Majesty was its third straight game since a season-opening loss to Central Baptist with a 20-0 romp over Church of God in a game stopped in the fifth inning by the mercy rule.

The Flames bounced back from last week's extra-inning loss to Majesty with a doubleheader sweep. In the first game, the Flames jumped to an 11-0 lead and went on to beat All Souls Catholic, 15-4.

The second game was a struggle one as Spanish Assemblies of God built leads of 3-0, 4-1 and 5-3. But the Flames took advantage of eight walks off three pitchers as they plated 13 runs in the fifth inning. The Flames added five runs in the sixth to end the game by the run rule, 20-6.

Central Baptist is now 3-0, while Majesty and the Flames are both 3-1. Nazarene and Spanish Assemblies are both 1-3, while All Souls is 1-3 and Church of God is 0-3.

After taking off the Memorial Day weekend, league play will resume on Saturday, June 1, when Nazarene will play the doubleheader against Majesty (9 a.m.) and Church of God (10 a.m.). At 11 a.m., the Flames will battle Central Baptist before All Souls takes on Spanish Assemblies at noon.

Russell takes Pro Series win

By THE HOPPO Special to the Herald

SAMBULA — Longwood's David Russell was a runaway winner Saturday night in the Florida Pro Series Late Model 125 at New Smyrna Speedway.

"The car was really good," Russell said. "I've got to thank my crew because they have been working really hard. This thing is just awesome right now. You couldn't touch us once we got out front."

Russell took the lead when Gary Balough pitted on lap 47. Balough, who won the Florida Pro Series 125 Friday night at Orlando SpeedWorld, retired on lap 80 and Russell set his car on cruise control for the victory.

Jerry Olliver was second ahead of Jimmy Britte, Bobby Coyle and Ronnie Burkett. Jeff Williams, Leo Paulk, Richard Till, Rick Elwood and John Gerstner II capped the top 10.

Olliver's Kenny Heckle rode a fuel-flattening left front tire to a modified win in front of Balough, Randy Hecker and Joe Middleton.

Truck Snodgrass won the Quick Truck Series chase, followed by Mark Manfred, George "The Bird Man" Aurtune and Kenny Snodgrass.
