

National Socialist Government Is Seen For U. S.

Schlechter's Attorney Sees Nation Under Slow Recovery

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Transformation of the United States into a "National Socialist" form of government was visualized recently by Fredrick H. Wood, New York attorney of the Schlechter "sick-chicken" fame, as he opened the first court attack on the constitutionality of the Gaffey coal bill.

Appearing for the Carter Coal Company, West Virginia subsidiary of the Rockefeller-owned Consolidation Coal Company, Wood declared the bill would establish a "little NRA."

Such an agency would be unconstitutional, he contended, because of the Supreme Court decision setting aside the National Recovery Act as invalid. Wood represented the Debevoise brothers of New York before the high court in that important case.

Skirmishing to test the constitutionality of the Gaffey bill opened when John Dickinson, assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust cases, announced answered charges of the coal operators.

The government won the skirmish in the suit and the Gaffey bill became constitutional.

Justice Daniel W. Webster denied the request for a temporary injunction. The case will be heard on its merits later.

Don't be a Mrs. Rip Van Winkle

THINGS are happening these days that are going to have a vital effect upon your home and perhaps a lasting influence upon your children.

Some day you are going to awaken to the realization that while you were immune to progress, your furniture or your home, became completely out-moded and your children lost pride in their home.

Do you know what Neo-Classic furniture looks like? It is proclaimed by experts to be the finest expression of Greek art the world has known since the days of Pompeii.

Are you acquainted with contemporary modern furniture? It has verve and dash that furniture never before possessed.

Perhaps these sound like foolish questions to you, but they represent the smartest types of furniture and should be as familiar to the average woman as the new styles in fall wraps and gowns.

Don't be a Mrs. Rip Van Winkle!

Know what is happening in all the branches of life that affect you.

One of the advantages of this potato control bill is that it will make people eat more rice and that will help the Chinese.

All revenue bills are supposed to originate in the House of Representatives, so if the people want the cost of government cut all they have got to do is vote for budget balancing representatives.

One thing that Americans have learned during the depression is that while you may get the same feeling of fullness merely from tightening up your belt but still it doesn't satisfy your appetite.

Though C. B. Treadway resigned as Florida WPA administrator because of ill health, rumors will persist that he is thinking of running for governor and merely wants to devote more time to his campaign.

Indications at this time, however, lead one to believe that there will be no dearth of candidates in next year's gubernatorial race whether Treadway runs or not.

The experience of Halle Selawitz with his ferocious lions that couldn't wait to get at the Italian, and finally broke loose the other day only to devour one of Selawitz's own men and injure five others, reminds one of some of the tragedies which occurred on the Western Front during the early maneuvers with poison gas.

Some times the wind changed and blew it right back on the men who had released it. You cannot always tell which way a gun is going to fire.

President Roosevelt has at last issued a call to the ministers of the country, "for counsel and advice" with respect to New Deal methods and objectives. Some of them may suggest that if he called for this advice two years ago, he would have learned that destroying six million pigs, plowing under wheat and cotton, while most of the people were going without enough to eat and wear was not the method by which the seven million of bread and few little fishes were divided among 4,000,000 men, women and children.

There is no perfect solution for the money problem. That, it seems to me, was amply demonstrated by the prohibition era when ten thousand dollar fines were assessed against the seller of a pint of liquor, after a wide open war in which millions dotted practically every city corner. During the first Legislature a serious attempt was made to start laws which might serve as a compromise between the saloon era and the prohibition era, but how well it was worked is demonstrated by the present agitation against the repeal of Prohibition.

It is not believed that in the United States, in this income tax, but a simple tax on it which would be paid by the individual would be a fairer method of raising money than the present method of taxing the family of a wealthy man.

Lehmann Needed Here

It is with a feeling of sincere regret that we read of the fine offer which Lake county has made Karl Lehmann and view the possibilities of his accepting it. As a friend of Karl Lehmann, we congratulate him upon this deserved recognition of his excellent capacity in chamber of commerce work, but as a loyal citizen of Sanford we deplore it, and hope that Mr. Lehmann may yet conclude that his work in this county is not finished.

The commissioners in our neighboring county have levied a full mill of taxation for chamber of commerce purposes which will provide that organization with an annual budget of some $12,000. Seminole County has again levied a half mill for this purpose, but anticipated revenue during the coming year will fall, because of the exemption of homesteads from taxation, from $3,100 during the current year to about $2,100 during the coming year.

Even with the larger tax rolls and the fine results from the Chamber of Commerce drive during the past year, the organization's funds have been entirely inadequate for the tremendous amount of work which has been carried on in this office. Though it is not generally known, and Mr. Lehmann has made no complaint on the subject, he has continued his work for the organization for more than two months this year, without pay.

Under the circumstances one could hardly blame him for accepting a more attractive proposition. And yet, we hope that some way may yet be found to induce him to continue his work in this county and that he will see, as we do, that his work here is not yet complete, and that if he leaves at this time much of the struggle and effort which he has put into the task of solidifying this county and promoting it from a dozen different angles will come to naught.

We know, of course, that Mr. Lehmann is not the only chamber of commerce secretary in the world, but we have a feeling that he is a decidedly better chamber of commerce secretary than Seminole County is likely to find to replace him. We are thoroughly convinced that Mr. Lehmann's resignation from the Chamber of Commerce will be a distinct loss to Seminole County, and will only serve as another one of those backward milestones which mark Sanford's rather zigzag path to fame.

We feel sure that the majority of Sanford business and industrial leaders appreciate the value of the work which Mr. Lehmann is doing here and hope to see him remain. It is no less important to their clerks, stenographers, and other employees who look for higher salaries and wages as Sanford grows and prospers.

Children Suffer

Children of the nation's "depression-poor" families have shared the difficulties of the last few years with their parents. A survey by the public health service among school children in five cities reveals that youngsters from families with decreased incomes do not maintain the same relative growth as children of the entire group studied.

More than 6,000 children, six to fourteen years old, from families in Baltimore, Birmingham, Cleveland, Greenville, S. C., Pittsburgh and Syracuse, N. Y., were examined, and their school weight and height records during the years 1929 to 1933 were compared. The children were divided in three groups—those from families with an income of $250 a year or more, those whose income was below that figure and those which changed from a comfortable to a poor economic status.

Most significant of the findings was that "the average weight of children from the continuously comfortable families is approximately 1 percent greater than the average weight of all children taken together; that the relative weight of children from the poor families is roughly 1 to 9 percent below the relative weight of children from recently poor families takes an intermediate position between the other two economic groups," the report says.

The children from six to nine years failed by slightly more than two percent to attain the average weight of the entire group. Little relationship was found for children over ten years of age or in heights of any of the children. By 1933, the report adds, the weight of children from families which became poor during the depression dropped from the level of the continuously comfortable families to about that of the continuously poor families.

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

The tremendous struggle on the battle front in the west which began Saturday with the new offensive movement by the Allies has resulted in more success for their arms. Paris reported today that additional German positions have been occupied in the Champagne district, where in their initial drives, the French penetrated the German lines along a front of fifteen miles by a deep rushing in places as much as two and a half miles. All the gains made in the Artois sector, where Bourches was captured, and other advances secured, have been maintained, the French war office declares.

THE COMPASS

Arithmetic on The Old Guard By Arthur Dunn

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — If the Republican party wins in November 1936 it will be because it is able to sell the voters the idea that workers and small property owners as well as the rich will eventually have to pay the cost of the New Deal in the form of taxes—direct and indirect.

The Democratic party is already patting its fingering the country into almost hopeless debt. Even if our party, we do not wish to feel pessimistic. So it might pay us to investigate and see what the actual net cost of the New Deal is to date, and whether an economy as pictured. To this end I have been collecting some official figures, and when analyzed they are very illuminating and very surprising.

The total gross debt of the United States on Feb. 28, 1933 (four days before Franklin D. Roosevelt was inaugurated) was $27,544,729,209.23 and on July 31, 1933 was $29,119,709,327.24 on the basis of daily Treasury statements. It is now approaching $40 billions.

The interest charge on the interest bearing debts on Feb. 28, 1933 was $398,842,834.33; on July 31, 1933 it was $775,609,183. The debt had increased over 2 billion dollars while the interest increase was about 64 million. This is due to President Roosevelt's ability to borrow money at 1-1/2 to 2-1/4 percent and pay off government bonds bearing 3-1/4 to 4-1/4 percent interest. If he had been able to pay the same rate as his predecessor, the interest increase would have been $96 millions instead of 64 millions.

When the refunding operation (now in process) of the last of the Liberty issues is completed, a further reduction in interest will put us in the position where the interest on the 30 billions of debt under Roosevelt is about the same as the interest on the 21 billions under Hoover.

In other words it will take no more taxes to pay interest on the present debt than it did on the lower debt as of February 1933. But the principal of the new 9 billions must be repaid by some one and if not by taxation—how? Well, there is a bright side to that picture. These extra 9 billions borrowed weren't all just wasted, though some of it of course was spent to keep people from starving and to save their pride, some were paid to raise taxes from one side of the road to the other.

To pay back the 9 billions, the government has about $1.5 billions of cash on hand, made up of its profit on its marketing gold and its normal cash balance, all of which could be used to pay off government bonds, leaving a net debt increase of 6.12 billions.

We find the government has repaid $1.2 billions in the form of loans to American corporations and citizens and in the construction of physical properties of great value. The millions for TVA, Boulder Dam and the like are creating power projects the operations of which will repay their initial cost at 4 percent within 30 to 60 years, and will thereafter continue earning money for the government indefinitely. There may be some losses on the money loaned but reserves have been set up for such contingencies and accepted from the public.

The business, income, banks, individuals, insurance companies, home owners, etc., and the government holds mortgages, stocks, bonds and other collateral of great value as security. Also the government has lent most of its money at 4 percent, and the profit represented by the difference between that and 2-1/4 percent, and for 11 years of money should more than cover any losses sustained by the government.

So it would seem that the government's profits on its gold operations fully cover money spent for the sweeping of leaves and the other tasks performed by FERA, CCC, residents of transient homes; also for education, feeding, clothing, and sheltering the hungry and needy.

If the bulk of the $4,000,000,000 now being spent goes into self liquidating projects—i. e. those that can save 2-1/4 percent net and enough to return their cost, there need be little if any increase in taxes to finance the New Deal.

We may have to pay larger taxes for a longer army and navy, but they have nothing to do with the arithmetic of the New Deal.

RESOLUTIONS HIT WORK ON FLORIDA CANAL

Resolution of all by adopting resolutions similar to that adopted by the Board. Certified copies of the Board's resolutions were sent to President Roosevelt, Senators Fisher and Trammell, Governor Sholtz and all members of his cabinet, and to the Board of Commissioners in 19 Central and South Florida counties.

Highlights of the resolution: "Whereas, despite the protests of the communities and residents in the southern part of the State of Florida, including Brevard county, the Hon. Danane U. Fletcher, United States senator from Florida, has actively advocated, sponsored and procured an allotment for the purpose of beginning what is known as the cross-state canal, in which undertaking the Hon. Park Trammell, the other United States senator from the State of Florida, has aided and abetted to the best of his ability, and

"Whereas, the said resolutions were based upon the undeniable fact that in the opinion of the most scientific and least political branch of the federal government, to-wit: the United States Geological Survey, said canal would in all probability result in serious damage to the southern part of the State of Florida by lowering the water level and contaminating the source of water supply, and

"Whereas, among other reasons proclaimed for the said project, it is that it would protect ships from hurricanes, storms, and other elements from which water craft occasionally suffers, and

"Whereas, this and similar excuses are but a blind to cover the real purpose of this project, which is to spend an enormous amount of federal money in Florida for the benefit of the port of Jacksonville, and to spend it despite the very probable serious and devastating results upon that portion of the state which lies to the south of the said canal, and

"Whereas, from the above it is apparent that both of the United States senators from Florida are more interested in promoting the interests of ship owners residing in distant ports and in favoring one city and one small section of Florida than they are in protecting south Florida—the most populous, and by nature the most richly endowed section of the state, and

"Whereas, it appears that our representatives in the Senate by exactly misrepresenting the people of this section of the state have been able to persuade the President of the United States to make this allotment to the favor of these justifiable protests, and that unless the people of South Florida take prompt and active steps to protect themselves there is grave risk that their homes, their peace and their property will be visited upon them a much greater calamity than any hurricane, storm, freeze or infectious insects could possibly bring.

"Now, therefore, he it resolved that the Board of County Commissioners of Brevard county, on behalf of the citizens of Brevard county, do hereby stipulantly and declare the opinion of the Hon. Dan-

U. Fletcher for his betrayal of this great section of the state which has so long and so gloriously withstood him.

"It is further resolved that the Hon. Park Trammell is hereby requested to immediately resign himself from his office of senator and apparent indifference to the rights of nearly a million of his constituents, and that this Board demands that he do everything of which he is capable to prevent the construction of this cross-state canal and that he is hereby requested to advise this board of his efforts and the results thereof on the premises.

"Be it further resolved that the Governor and his cabinet are requested to immediately reply to this request of the Board so that their attitude on this all important matter may be known.

"Be it further resolved that this Board does hereby invite the other counties in south Florida to join with them for the common protection of all, and they be requested to adopt resolutions similar to this one, and that each and every of the counties affected should, without delay, instruct their legal advisers to join any movement and to give their advice to any movement which will prevent, by court action, this serious jeopardizing of this entire section, which our people have chosen as a home for themselves and their children."

The resolution was adopted by the Board in regular session on Sept. 26, upon motion of Commissioner Kingman, seconded by Commissioner Dunn.

Local W. C. T. U. Plans Fight Against Liquor

Quoting Mrs. E. E. Mitchell, head of the local Women's Christian Temperance Union, "We accept the challenge, we will not quit until the liquor traffic quits."

Mrs. Mitchell, one of the several local persons who have raised a petition against the relaxation of a liquor license on the corner of Harry's Place on Park Avenue, was discussing what she termed was an evil which the W. C. T. U. is pledged to fight.

"The liquor traffic never quits," she said. "When we had a vote on it did not quit but we have had state prohibition, it did not quit but we have had national constitutional prohibition, it did not quit but we have had national prohibition for the Constitution. It has an intention of getting any time, any where, or under any condition. We accept the challenge. We will not quit until the liquor traffic quits."

Douglass Issues Warning Against Present 'Recovery'

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Lewis W. Douglass, President Roosevelt's one-time budget director, Thursday said American business is not to be lulled by a "something which looks like recovery."

"In a certain sense we are experiencing recovery, but it is a shallow sort of affair," the Atlanta Democrat who left with the President over New Deal spending declared in addressing the American Mining Congress.

Improved business figures reflected an uptick in retail sales, but "not in the sales of basic appliances," he said, urging the Congress to demand a balanced budget as the nation's only safeguard against "wild inflation and destitution."

The unemployed are concentrated in the basic capital goods industries, he went on, and recovery must come by expansion of these final policies he charged.

Douglass suggested "guidance" as having "covered my relationship with those who are engaged in the dangerous work of stabilizing the American system."

The former budget director, now vice president of the American Cyanamid Company, described the Roosevelt program as "a complete picture of socialism," which "yanks suddenly what was done in Soviet Russia after the American regions."

INJURED IN WRECK

SAYS MRS. OWEN H. FLEMING, OF 1235 JUDSON AVE., EVANSTON, ILL.

A SIMPLE TRICK... and the Best-Tasting Baking Powder in the World... AND THERE! There's a simple trick... as simple as one, two, three!

"NO NEED FOR any woman to take chances with her baking now," she says. "This new 10¢ can of Calumet certainly means that the very best can be bought at a bargain. What's the secret of putting up with anything but perfect cakes, Calumet cakes?"

Why does Calumet give such satisfying "baking back"? Why is it different from other baking powders?

It's because of the way Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick action for the rising heat-set free by heat. Calumet's double action is so perfectly balanced and controlled that it produces perfect leavening. And it's perfection that you can always count on.

All Calumet prices are lower!
