Shelter Shuns Euthanasia; Works To Find Homes For Abandoned Pets

By Christina Leach Special To The Herald

A small white poodle-like dog darted across heavy traffic on State Road 436 on a rainy day. Several motorists hit their brakes and swerved to avoid the frightened animal, frozen in its tracks halfway. across the road.

E. Lee Phillips was driving home from his computer consulting job and saw what was happening. He pulled off to the side of the road, opened his ear door and the dog jumped in.

Every day animals are killed on highways. But this little dog was lucky. When Phillips was unable to locate the dog's owner, he took it to the Kindness and Care Pet Rescue and Adoption Society in Sanford. founded in Jacksonville by Kaye Timmerman, who is referred to as the "matriarch" of the organization in 1984. Bonnie Chivera opened the Seminole County branch, which became the second and only other K&C shelter in the nation.

Ms. Chivers said that typical shelters will keep dogs and cats an average of five days before destroying them. "We try to find owners here because five days isn't long enough," she says.

K&C does not believe in euthanasia for healthy animals. Instead, it strives to find them good homes. Animals that are considered unadoptable because of blindness, injury or advanced age live out their lives at

The shuttle's payload includes three communications satellites. Once those satellites are launched, the crew will rendezvous with Syncom, which is stranded in a uscless orbit.

The satellite's automatic timer, which controls the firing of a critical solid rocket motor, never engaged when the satellite was launched four months ago from Discovery. That left Syncom stranded thousands of miles below its operational altitude.

To fix the ailing Syncom, van Hoften and Fisher are scheduled for a six-hour spacewalk to install electronic units that will bypass the timer and allow ground crews to fire the rocket motor in late October.

No Policy Yet In Seminole

Concern Mounts Over AIDS In School

Herald Staff Writer

"If you put them in school, we'll take our children out," insisted Dade County parents, fearful three young girls with AIDS would transmit the disease to their children. So Dade school officials proyided a segregated classroom for the Infected youngsters.

What would happen in Seminole County if a student had AIDS? There's no policy yet, but Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes said, "there would be no enrollment (of an AIDS victim) in public school until we checked with a lot of doctors and they convinced us it was safe."

School board spokesman Karen Coleman said school officials across the possibility of an AIDS student. At a statewide meeting last week of hospital/homebound program instructors, who deal with the instruction of sick children, various ways of handling the situation were discussed

"AIDS is such a new thing, there a are lot of unanswered questions." Hughes said. In the situation of a child with AIDS in school, "I know the tendency would be for most parents to be extremely concerned. I feel the same way. So we would rely heavily on input from the medical community. We work very closely with the county medical department and Dr. (Jorge) Deju.

But Deju said, because of the way the disease is transmitted, the chances of one child with AIDS infecting other children are nil.

Transmission of AIDS "requires extensive and intimate sexual contact or intravenous methods" such as receiving blood or drug use requiring a needle, said Deju. Seminole County health and human services director.

AIDS is not included on the list of childhood diseases such as polio. measles, whooping cough or infectious hepatitis which may require Deju or other health officials to recommend a quarantine, he said. "AIDS is more closely related to the venereal diseases" such as gonorhea Deju said. "If a child had gonorhea we wouldn't take him out of school." Nevertheless, children with AIDS have been refused admission to regular schools in Florida for fear they may infect other students. According to a St. Petersburg Times account, three girls. triplets, in Dade County have their own classroom and their own teacher, which school officials feel lucky to have, because they have AIDS.

AIDS. Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, is a usually fatal disease which destroys the body's ability to fight

With the triplets, Bade County Assistant Superintendent Sonny Gross said, We felt we could not jeopardize the health of other students. The community was pretty loud and clear."

S. African Police Wound 4; Arrest 500 Schoolchildren

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - Security forces said Saturday they wounded at least four people in clashes with black rioters and arrested 18 anti-apartheid activists in a new crackdown on the opposition United Democratic Front

Police firing shotguns wounded four people among a crowd stoning police vehicles and arrested three people in scattered violence, authorities said.

In Guguletu, outside Cape Town, police said they used rubber bullets and tear gas to break up gangs of youths who stoned and gasoline bombed five homes

Police said 18 people were arrested in unrest that flared after the arrests of leaders of the United Democratic Front and 500 schoolchildren boycotting classes in the black township of Soweto near Johannesburg

The crackdown Friday on black opponents of the white-minority government came hours before President Pleter Botha warned in a speech that South Africa would not be pressured into speedily reforming its apartheid policy of racial separation

U.S. Spy Plane Crashes

SAN SALVADOR. Et Salvador (UPI) - U.S. and Salvadoran officials said a remote-controlled U.S. Air Force apy plane crashed in eastern El Salvador while monitoring rebel troop movements.

"The U.S. Air Force plane was operating as part of U.S. Salvadoran collaboration in the fight against subversion and to gather information on terrorist movements," a Salvador army official said Friday.

A U.S. Embassy official, who asked not to be identifed. said. The wreckage was gathered by the Salvadoran Air Force and will be examined to try and determine the cause

The official, claiming that security and military intelligence would be compromised, refused to say where the plane was based.

In the past, U.S. Air Force reconnaissance planes have departed from a U.S. base near Palmerola, Honduras

The type of aircraft was not immediately known. Officials sald it was operated by remote control, and no one was injured on the ground when the plane went down.

MX Missile Launched From Silo On Target

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE. Calif. (UPI) - The first MX missile ever test-hunched from an underground silo plopped into the South Pacific Ocean on target 4,100

The 190,000-pound solid luch "Peacekeeper" missile, which can deploy up to 10 nuclear warheads, previously has been launched from above ground cannisters.

Friday's launch, the ninth in a series of 20 tests, was the first under "battle conditions" in which the missiles will be placed in super-hardened Minuteman silos - a controversial deployment that critics argue will leave them vulnerable to a first strike. But Maj. Gen. Aloysius G. Casey, who during the launch was in an underground control center, called the MX "significantly advanced over the existing Minutenian missile in range, accuracy and payload capability. It is the least expensive addition to the defense posture the United States can make.

1985 Deadliest Year In Aviation History

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With four months left, 1985 is already the worst year in aviation history. More people have died worldwide this year in accidents involving commercial airlines than in any other period.

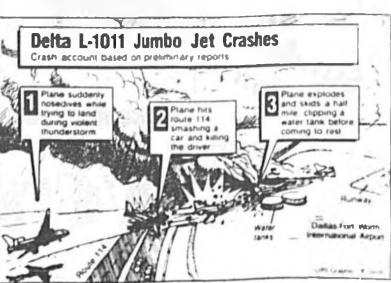

Figures compiled by United Press International show about 1,755 people died in commercial airline accidents so far in 1985 The statistics include about 160 lives believed lost in two crashes In the Soviet Union, a nation that rarely publicizes aviation catastrophes

In London, Bart Bakker, a vice president of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association, said Thursday 1985 is the worst year for commercial aviation fatalities. Other aviation officials concurred.

This is a very bad year but I think it's just a fluke of bad luck," he said. "Aviation is still the safest method of transportation and it's a lot safer than getting into your car.

The worst previous year on record is 1974, when 1,299 people died in aviation accidents, according to the International Civil Aviation Organization, based in Montreal. These figures exclude crew members and Soviet accidents.

The group said 224 airline passengers died last year - the lowest number since the organization began keeping records 20 years ago.

IN BRIEF

Fire Chief Accused Of Accepting Food, Lodging From Country Club

ORLANDO (UPI) - Chief James Cragan of the Orange County Fire Department has been charged with unlawful compensation for accepting food and lodging from a golf club in exchange for providing county services during a Cragan, 49, was booked into the Orange County Jail Friday and released on $1,000 bond. An arraignment hearing is scheduled for Sept. 13.

Cragan is accused of accepting food, lodging and free admission for himself and his friends during a golf tournament at the Bay Hill Country Club in April 1984.

Prosecutors charge that in exchange, Cragan provided the club with county vehicles and paramedics during the tournament

The Bay Hill Country Club also was charged with offering unlawful compensation to the chief. The club is owned by golfing great Arnold Palmer, but prosecutors said he had no connection with the alleged deal.

Audit Raps HRS Funds Mismanagement

Health and Rehabilitative Services Secretary rest. David Pingree has announced tighter controls over his employees and cash because of disclosures the sprawling agency lost an undeterminable amount of cash to graft and mismanagement.

The disclosures came in a report released by Auditor General Ernest Ellison on Friday. Ellison said in the 187-page report that losses between July 1982 and mld-1984 that could be documented included:

- $800,163 from the food stamp program. HRS blamed employee theft for $424,974 of the loss; "unidentified inventory shortages" for $223,312; client fraudfor $60,393; and overpayment to clients for $91,484. The department recovered $373,291 of the loss from an employee

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Department of honesty bond policy. Taypayers paid for the

- $3.700 allegedly embezzled from the department's Open Door program.

$17,307.22 allegedly embezzled from the now defunct Tallahassee Sunland Center. The department's employee honesty Insurer refused to cover the loss because the department could not document how much the employee stole.

- $35,800 allegedly stolen by employees from Pasco and Broward County Health Units. Employees of other county health units left cash and drugs unattended in unlocked rooms and cabinets.

Ellison also said that between 1980 and June 30 this year, HRS paid $1.69 million to lease dictation and word processing equipment that was worth only $1 million when new

Much of the problem, Ellison said, was that the department trusted employees too much. The employee fired in the alleged Open Door graft, for example, was responsible for writing the program's checks. balancing its checkbook and reconciling the checkbook with bank statements.

At other times the department failed to enforce its own procedures and safeguards or state and federal law, Ellison said. HRS never conducted federally mandated audits for $7.6 million of the $66.4 million it received in federal block grants, and made iate payments to program recipients in several instances.

The department also failed to prove it forced counties to pay their share for treating Medicaid patients. Ellison said that as of June 30, 1983, counties owed HRS $13.6 million, but HRS had documented receiving only $1.5 million.

Reagan Ready To Veto Sanctions On S. Africa

But House Members Predict Override

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Aides month, when Congress returns say President Reagan is ready to veto sanctions against South Africa that Congress is likely to pass, but some Republican House members are predicting there are enough votes to override any veto.

Administration officials, in Los Angeles with the president, said Thursday Reagan believes the sanctions bill would harm black South Africans, so he will veto it and instead order limited punitive measures on his own.

But Rep. Stewart McKinney, R-Conn., speaking for 15 moderate GOP House members, said Congress can and will override

"There is no question the House will override the veto," he said. "If the vote were held today, there is no question it would be overridden in both houses.

Before Congress recessed Aug. 2, the House approved a compromise sanctions bill that would ban, among other things, exports of U.S.-made computers and software to the South African police and military, sales of nuclear power equipment and U.S. sales of gold South African Krugerrand coins. In the Senate, a threat from

Senate leaders have said they expect the bill to pass easily.

Administration officials said that as a alternative to sanctions. Reagan could take limited actions such as prohibiting loans to companies that do not offer equal opportunities to blacks and whites

McKinney said the pressure on the GOP-led Senate to support Reagan will start with conservatives, including the Rev. Jerry Falwell, who praised the white-minority South African government this week and labeled black South African leader Bishop Tutu "a phony."

There will be "lots of money. lots of direct mail and lots of pressure" from Falwell and other conservatives - especially the 22 Republican senators up for re-election - to support the administration's position. McKinney said.

Vernon Walters, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. said Thursday while traveling in Malaysia that the administration would resist international presaure to impose economic sanctions on South Africa.

Walters told a news conference that such sanctions would primarily harm South African's Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to 24 million black majority start a filibuster forced the vote-without forcing Pretoria to disto be postponed until early next mantle apartheid

Christian Parents Fight State Education Rule

DES MOINES, lowa (UPI) -More than 400 fundamentalist Christian parents are demanding the repeal of a state law requiring all children to be educated by state-certified teachers, saying the state is trying to control religion.

The parents and operators of fundamentalist church schools packed a Department of Public Instruction hearing Thursday to denounce the law and new rules that clarify it.

"The issue is not quality education, it's control," said David Smith, who operates a Christian school in Cedar Rapids, "We're not attacking you. We're attacking the product. We've proven (Christian schools) have done the Job."

The parents, who educate their children at home or in Christian schools, claim the law, which was upheld last spring by the Iowa Supreme Court, is a violation of their first amendment religious The court, in upholding the law last May, ruled the state "has a duty, even an obligation" to ensure all children have equal educational opportunities despite the fact it may infringe on some religious convictions.

Plane Crash Survivors Criticize Cabin Crew

MANCHESTER. England (UPI) - Survivors of an explosion and fire aboard a British Airtours jet that killed 54 people said more lives could have been saved if the crew had evacuated the plane sooner.

In interviews published Friday, some of the 83 survivors of the fire said they were ordered to stay strapped in their seats for 10 to 15 seconds as the plane burned and never heard an announcement to evacuate. David Ashworth, 39, said he disregarded the crew's urging to remain scated and immediately ran to an emergency exit, where he slid to safety down an escape chute with his sons.

"Nobody else went down it for five or six seconds, and that could have saved lives. Ashworth said. "I told everybody to come forward. There was no other announcement after people were told to stay scated."

"I think we just didn't panic enough at first. We just assumed everything would be all right." said survivor Debra Whalley, 22. "For 10 or 15 seconds we didn't do anything. Getting out was the luck of the draw

An engine on the British Airtours plane Thursday burst into flames as it roared down a runway at Manchester International Airport in England.

Despite the criticisms by surviving passengers, investigators from British Airways - the parent company of British Airtours - said they are confident the crew followed correct emergency procedures.

The airline announced Friday that is was undertaking "precautionary" checks on all its American-made Boeing 737

Airline officials said they were not aware of a recommendation by U.S. aviation authorities that the Pratt and Whitney engines used in the Boeing aircraft be inspected. The engines were involved in seven incidents between 1981 and 1985.

Mischa runs and throws himself into the arms of a visitor to be cuddled and to give bright beads worn by the guest the same taste test any 2-year-old

In doing these simple things Mischa, as an autistic child, is defying his fate. Mrs. Gurevich said most autistics are withdrawn and 75 percent never function anywhere close to normal. They never learn to communicate with others and recoil from human touch in apparent fear.

Some do have breakthroughs and go on to success. Gurevich said he knows an Orlando mathematician who has overcome autism, but such hope doesn't come without help.

If her son had been born in the family's homeland, Russia, Mrs. Gurevich, whose family left Russia for political reasons, said he would have found no help. He would have been classified as schizophrenic." He would have spent his life in a mental institurecognized and named, most victims are institutionalized and catagorized under the same 'mentally retarded, incurable or schizophrenic" banners, he said.

Some do attend "autistic" schools, where, Gurevich said, they are trained to respond in a robot-like way. A fate the suicide," 30-year-old Mrs. Gureviches shun for their son. "I would never send Mischa to an autistics' school, Mrs. Gurevich said. "I hope to send him to regular school whenever it might. Barry and Suzi Kaufman of be that he progresses to that point."

The cause of this disability is unknown, but, Mrs. Gurevich said, indications are it may be a genette disorder. About 18 months ago when she and her "mentally retarded, incurable or husband began to realize Mischa acceptance. Intensive attention wasn't responding "normally," they, like many parents of similar 2 to 3-year-olds, were handed "In Russia they do not have a diagnosis that was difficult to the word, autistic," Gurevich take.

Their brown-eyed, cherubic

this affliction of the mind is son would, doctors and books on autism told them, be locked forever in his own mind, "auto," alone, unable to relate to others or to communicate. It was a diagnosis heard from more than one doctor and the advice was to institutionalize him.

"We considered family Gurevich said. But they found another book, which brought hope and a way out for Mischa.

That book, Son Rise, told of Sheffield, Mass., who had worked with their autistic son. Raun, and developed the procedures the Gureviches are following with Mischa.

The Kaufmans brought Raun out of his shell with love, and physical and mental stimulation. By age 12 Raun was a straight A student, and a highly verbal, creative, enthusiastic child, according to Longwood Sertoma Club President Frank

Foose, whose club has provided the Gureviches with $7,000 to assist with Mischa's development

The Gureviches have spent two weeks at an institution developed by the Kaufmans and are scheduled to have a representative from the Option Institute and Fellowship spend two weeks in their home to advance their training in how to deal with Mischa's disability.

The training is expensive. The fee for one month is $18,000. and the Gureviches said they want to avail themselves and Mischa to as much contact with the fellowship as they can afford. because this has been the key to Mischa's breakthrough.

Money is a problem. Mrs. Gurevich said, because at the time when they realized they needed additional funds for Mischa's care they both had to cut back on their work as musicians to spend all the time they possibly could with him.

Gurevich's employer, the Florida Symphony Orchestra. has given two concerts to benefit Mischa and the Sertoma Club has helped, Mrs. Gurevich said.

Their lives revolve around Mischa, their only child, because, Gurevich said, "We want him with us." And he means they want Mischa not justas a physical presence, but as a responding human being with a full range of emotional and verbal responses with a productive future.

Mischa's affliction has, they said, taught them what love is really about. They have learned the value of children and of human beings, that "everyone is a total human being whether, their age is 75 years or 75 days."

Mrs. Gurevich said. Without Mischa and his problem, "I don't think I would have ever known what the children are," she said. "I have learned the deepest respect for children.

"If you want to see him change his personality real fast, get your pocketbook and Jingle your keys and say 'C'mon let's go for a ride,'" she says. "He skips down the sidewalk, Jumps up and down and says, 'Oh my god, I'm going."

One day Ms. Chivers and her family decided to take Charlie for a ride. Along the way, they stopped at a restaurant for ice cream. When they got out of their van, they were startled by the loud blast of a horn.

Everybody turns around and there's this dog sitting in the driver's seat," she says. "Now when we go to this restaurant and Charlie blows the horn, the waltresses say 'Charlie's

She said she looks for a "chemis- said. " between a person and an animal. Once a woman requested a German shepherd and Ms. Chivers brought out a white pure-bred German shepherd to the waiting area. It just stood there with its head down.

"He wouldn't look at her and she wouldn't look at him," she says. The woman left without the dog.

But then another woman went to K&C to look at the same dog. "When he came out, he wagged his tail," Ms. Chivers said. "She squatted down and he kised her."

"That's what we want," she said. "There's that chemistry. He fell in love with her and she fell in love with htm. She called us back and said how wonderful he was."

It costs $40 to adopt a dog and $25 to adopt a cat at K&C. But people do not take the animal home immediately. They are asked to leave it, and neutered and given innoculations. Then, the new owner picks up the pet. Ms. Chivers calls it a "cooling offtime" that avoids apur-of-themoment adoptions. Visitors who come to the shelter see a fenced-in yard containing about 20 dogs. All of the dogs seem to get along with each other, and none of them pay attention to two geese that are also wandering around the yard. In the front office, about 15 dogs roam about, some sleeping on low shelves of a bookcase. Others lie in front of a large window watching

visitors as they arrive. Like Kids

Mrs. Vaughn says, "When you bring a new dog here, they all crowd around as if to say 'Who are you?' They're just like kids.

Ma Chivers adds, "The dog will be scared to death, but 45 minutes later, he's one of the crowd."

If the dogs fight, they are put in individual kennels in a back room at the shelter. Cats are kept in a separate room away from the dogs.

K&C requests that people give a donation to the shelter when they leave animals. In addition, pupples and kittens are not accepted because of a lack of facilities for them. Ms. K&C, located on East Celery Chivers refers people looking for them to other animal shelters. Al-

"It is the same thing every organization faces," Ms. Chivers says.

The roof on the building leaks and it will take an estimated $6,300 to repair it. "When it starts raining, there are about five rooms that leak," she says. "I really hate the rainy also needs fencing to enclose a portion of the yard for the animals.

K&C relies on private donations and Ms. Chivers has paid a lot of the bills out of her own personal funds. Besides donations of money, she said even know there's a pound in the shelter needs donations of pet food. Also, volunteers are needed to bathe the animals and to do general shelter.

of the Orlando Humane Society, had said organizations like K&C that start out with the idea that no animals will be destroyed usually fail. "They are kidding themselves if they think they will not eventually have to put an anfmal down." he said. Ms. Chivers' reply: "You're the old school. You're the ones that say 'We've always done it that way.'

"I'm the new school. There's got to be a better way."

Millions of unwanted dogs and cats are destroyed by animal shelters every year in the United States, but the problem of animal overpopulation is getting worse, according to Ms. Chivers:

She says the solution to the problem is not to destroy animals but to prevent their being born by sterilizing pets.

"For every cat you spay, you prevent the birth of 200 kittens in its lifetime," she says.

Ms. Chivers said she wants to see a 'concerted effort" among the heads of the area's animal shelters in putting together a spay/neuter clinic and educating the public on sterilizing their pets.

Marketing

"It's going to have to be something dramatic," she said, "Maybe you're going to have to give away chances on a television set to get them to spay or neuter their pets. Whatever it may take. Why can't we go into new ideas in marketing? We are marketing a product no matter how you want to look at it. Anything that we're trying to get the consumer to accept is marketing.

K&C helps people find low-cost sterilization for their peta,

"If they don't have the money, we more pets until some of the ones help," she said. But the applicants

> K&C also works with a pet-finding service called Computer Lost and Found, which registers lost and found pets for free. In addition, they give advice to people who are having problems with their pets.

If people lose their pet, they should immediately start going to the season for that reason." The shelter pounds, and placing ads in the newspaper, Ms. Chivers said.

"People just don't know where to go or what to do, especially new people who are not familiar with the area," she says. "Most people don't Casselberry. Hived here for two years before I knew it."

Sometimes people are ready to give K&C takes it to a vet to be spayed or maintenance work around the a pet away because of a behavioral problem. One woman called K&C Frank Andrews, executive director because her cat was ripping a screen porch with its claws. Ms. Chivers suggested declawing the cat, and that solved the problem.

"Sometimes by talking with us. people are able to get a non-involved viewpoint," she said. "We offer suggestions they, in their frustration. never thought of."

Warning

Ms. Chivers warns people never to give a pet away for free because it could wind up going for experimen-

She suggests people charge for their pets and with the money offer to have the pet sterilized for the new owner.

Ms. Chivers also advises people to remember their pet in their will.

"The law recognizes pets are personal property," she said. She recommends people name a guardian for their pet and tape the information .. to their refrigerator so the pet is not destroyed before the will is read.

Many times older people will call K&C when they need assistance to take their animal to the vet. They say their pet is "the only thing they have," Vaughn says.

She thinks that animals are a 'necessity'' for people's lives.

"It's something warm and living. You can love and get love in return. she said.

"Animals don't ask you who you are or what your background is, they just accept you," she said. "You know, it has been shown that having a pet reduces high blood pressure and helps the mental well-being of the person.

She also thinks it is necessary for children to learn to respect animals. to learn responsibility by taking care of them and to develop a friendship with them.

K&C may be contacted by calling 321-5709. It costs $10 to join the organization, and the Sanford group consists of a seven-member executive board and approximately 35 members. Meetings are held monthly to suggest new ways to raise funds.

There are some who may say that a shelter like K&C is unrealistic. But the members of this organization persevere. It might have something to do with their motto:

But what about the AIDS victims? Dr. Penny Lukin, a Winter Park psychologist, said she is "horrified" at the Dade County policy to separate the children, which she said could have emotional and psychological ramifications.

"The social stigma attached to such a disease often gets internalized into their self-esteem," she "People who don't feel good about themselves don't do as well in school or in life. Psychologically, there could be all kinds of effects.

But Hughes said keeping an AIDS victim out of school could be more for the benefit of the victim. is other children.

"In an Orange County case," he said, "Doctors said they were more concerned the child with AIDS could catch something from other children. because his immunity is lowered, than that the normal children would contract AIDS.

The medical community is united in its assertion that people, including children, in school cannot catch AIDS from bathrooms, kissing, taking showers, being served food by AIDS victims, or talking to AIDS victims, Dejusaid. "It takes prolonged sexual exposure to the disease," or blood contamination. Deju iterated.

There is a lot about the disease that is still unknown and it is fear of the unknown that spawns most of the panic, Deju said.

Although there is a test that determines the presence of AIDS in the blood, researchers still do not know how long the incubation period for the disease is. Part of the reason for this, Deju said, is that, like many diseases. "many people may catch the disease and never exhibit symptoms. This does not mean they don't have the virus, they do, and they may give it to others. Dr. Bruce B. Dan, senior editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, agrees with

The virus ... is basically spread through blood or semen," he said in an interview. "Unless you have very close contact with either of these, your chances of getting the disease are negligible." Much of the concern about AIDS is based on

"misinformation," Dan said. For example, newsthat the AIDS virus has been found in tears and saliva of its victims has caused alarm, but "the virus itself can be found in virtually any body fluid (of a victim)." Dan said. "It is in your bloodstream, urine, tears, saliva, semen, because if you have it, it's there." But even though it's there, that's not how you get it."

In Seminole County there have been five cases of AIDS and two of the patients died, Deju said. The oldest victim here was a 74-year-old hemophiliac who received tainted blood (before blood was tested for AIDS in hospitals and clinics). and the youngest was 17. There have been 400 cases of AIDS reported in Florida since 1980.

"Last year there were 130 cases in Fiorida and 60 of them resulted in death," Deju said. "The percentage of fatal cases is way over 50 percent. and it increases as the years go by.

Detu said education is the only tool he and other officials have to combat the panic that could arise in this county should any school age children here contract the disease. It is unnecessary and unfortunate, he said, that the three girls in Dade County are being deprived of their peers. "All we can do is communicate to them (school officials) that the isolation of the child is unwarranted," he said. "It is not in line with the logic we have so far.

For example, we would try to educate the school system of the fact that communicability is something that cannot be done through respiratory means. It is important to realize that no health workers who care for AIDS patients have ever reported cases of contracting AIDS themseiven Although Seminole County school officials do not have a policy concerning what to do if a school age child contracts AIDS, Mrs. Coleman said she anticipates one will be established after the board studies what other districts have done. School board Chairman Nancy Warren said,

"We would have to act on what the facts are concerning AIDS at the time. I don't think we'd condemn the child. I think you have to deal with the public feeling at the time. Sometimes we have to make decisions that aren't popular."

Mrs. Coleman was quick to point out that the Dade County experience with AIDS would serve as an example and not a guideline.

"We would consider the latest and best information from the medical community," she said. "We would consult local and state health officials, centers for disease control, and our advisory committees and PTAs would give us input from the public."

Mrs. Warren said the school board would probably not go out of its way to have a public

"I'm not sure a decision like that requires public input," she said. "I can't see making a policy right now when something like that may never happen."

Gene McDowell the first-year head football coach at the University of Central Florida, says Donald Grayson could probably move right into the Knights' starting lineup at tight end.

Grayson, a muscular 6-1, 210-pounder, was a three-sport standout for the Lake Mary Rams the past three years. He possesses all the things college football coaches desire.

The thumbnail on the gifted Sanford athlete reads like a manual on tight ends: Excellent hands, ability to make the clutch play, good speed .. great built with room to add 30 pounds...superb attitude...good technique... winner at every level of compettion...

Yes, says McDowell "We have a good one in Donald Grayson. That's why he's NOT going to play this year.

That's right: NOT: Confused? McDowell says he's not. Even though tight end is an area where the Knights really need help. McDowell has decided it's best for Grayson to hit the books this year and bring his math. reading and English comprehension to a higher level.

Donald's grades were good enough to be accepted at UCF," says McDowell about the academically tough institution. "But his basics in math, reading and English need improvement.

"He could have come right in and played for us. He probably would have been all right for two years. But what about the third? Then, he may have had some

"We want Donald Grayson to play for us for four years, not just two. And more importantly, we want him to graduate from

Harry Nelson, Grayson's football coach at Lake Mary the past two years, heartily endorses the move. 'Donald is 17 years old," points out Nelson, "Mostklds his age are entering the final year of high school. McDowell is doing what is best for Grayson.'

Nelson says it's a move more colleges should follow, "And it's about damn time that a college coach started thinking about the ktd." he says "Donald Grayson probably won't play pro football. He needs a college education. UCF is going to get him one."

Nelson knows of what he speaks. The outspoken Ram coach says his son Bill, a special teams' performer for Florida last year, was just ONE of TWO Gator seniors to graduate

"A lot of them (seniors) packed up and went home after football season," says Nelson, Nelson's boy took his/degree and acquired a job in New York. He was a two-time All-Academic footballer in the Southeastern Conference.

Grayson, meanwhile, says he's not upset with the move. "Everything is going to work out fine," he says. "It's the best thing for me to do.'

McDowell says Grayson has enrolled at Seminole Community College where he has put his future, tight end under the tutelage of SCC baseball coach and counselor Jack Pantelias. McDowell and Pantelias go back a long way, to the days when Pantellas recruited Central Florida for FSU. McDowell is also godfather to Pantelias' daughter Pantelias downplays his role in the matter. "I'm just like the USO. I'm Donald's friend away from home," says the monitor. "We just thought it would make much more sense for Grayson to come to SCC instead of running to UCF everyday to take the courses.

"He will get more attention here and he won't have to drive 40 miles every day. I'm sure he'll do well and when he masters these courses, the scholarship will be ready for hlm.

McDowell concurs. "I've got a real hangup about bringing a young man in that I'm not sure will graduate," says McDowell. "Donald's parents (Don and Janie) and I both thought this was the best way to go."

McDowell says he wants Grayson to earn 24 credits this

All-Star competition with nine victories. Mexicali, 18-1, has won its last 14

In the World Series, each team is 2-0. Scoul defeated Maracatho, Venezuela, 13-2, and a Canadian squad from Binbrook, Ontario 16-0.

Against stronger competition, Mexicali defeated Staten Island, N.Y. 6-3 and Morristown, Tenn. 2-1.

Seoul beat the South's Altamonte Springs National League All-Stars for the series title last year. There are no players from that team on this year's squad.

Altamonte: The Way They Were

By Sam Cook Herald Sports Editor

Their stomachs were turning somersaults. And there wasn't a gymnast among

Yes, it was just one year ago Saturday that those 14 boys. one manager, four coaches. one trainer and a very supportive group of parents and Altamonte league officials witnessed an event which will be remembered joyously the rest of their lives.

The Little League World Series. The real one. In Williamsport, Pa. The one a young man dreams about concurrently with making the major leagues. The one which starts with 15,000 teams and ends with just two fighting it out on national television.

That dream became reality a year ago for Seminole County's "Boys of Summer" and until Tim Raines captures his first most valuable player award or the county produces an Olympic champion, the Altamonte Springs National League All-Stars' second-place finish to Seoul, South Korea will have to go down in history as the greatest sports accomplishment in Seminole County sports history.

Knox became a head coach with the Los Angeles Rams in 1973 and took a team coming off Buffalo in 1978 to take over the seasons. He steered them to the record in his third year.

Then Knox moved on to Seattle in 1983 to take over an AFC West team that had never qualifled for the playoffs in its seven-year history. He promptly guided the Scahawks to back-to-back post-season berths and a franchise-record 12 victories in 1984.

Knox may never have had a better team than the one he'll field in 1985. That's because the Scahawks won 12 games a year ago to finish with the third best record in the AFC despite the absence of Pro Bowl running back Curt Warner, who suffered a knee injury in the opening game and did not return.

Warner is back this fall and the Seahawks have added some backfield insurance in secondround draft pick Owen Gill, who rushed for 2.556 career yards at lowa. They figure to make ProBowl quarterback Dave Krieg and the Seattle passing attack that much more effective.

The Scahawk defense is even stronger on paper than the offense. Seattle posted three shutouts in 1984, led the NFL in both interceptions (38) and fumble recoveries (25) and set a club record with 55 sacks. Defensive backs Dave Brown and Ken Easley and nose tackle Joe Nash went to the Pro Bowl.

But Seattle must survive the toughest division in football, the

Riggs Leaves Pride, But Takes Money

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) -It's hard to be disappointed when you walk away with $100,000 for a feeble effort.

So, leaving their pride on the court, Bobby Riggs and Vitas Gerulaitis seemed anything but unhappy following a less than sparkling performance Friday night in a tennis match that had received so much puffery. Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver demonstrated their exquisite skills, and the men had little to show in return. Thus, in nothing more than an hour and 35 minutes, the premier women's doubles team came away with a 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 victory.

The half-million dollar match was so one-sided that only twice could the men reach break point. and for the match Navratilova and Shriver conceded a mere 15 points on their serve. "It was a long shot, but Vitas had to be red hot," the 67-year-old Riggs said. "There was so much pressure on Vitas it was impossible. He couldn't play as well as he could with a partner like me.

"I'm not ashamed, I'm not embarrassed. It was a good

Gerulaitis, who has fallen to No. 36 on the computer rankings, played below his standard and was unable to dominate. Riggs, meantime, had only a powderpuff shot although he put good slice on his serve.

The women tried to concentrate their attack on Riggs, but even when he had the opportunity Gerulaitia couldn't capitalize.

For example, in the second game of the set. Gerulaitis had his serve broken when he was unable to put away an overhead smash and Shriver sent it back for a winner.

Everyone agreed they enjoyed the experience, although this feeling wasn't shared by most of the crowd of about 8,000 at the Atlantic City Convention Center.

"It was fun, something dif-ferent," Navratilova said, "You play tournaments all your life and this was definitely one of a kind. It can only add to interest in tennis.

Navratilova and Shriver carned $150,00 each while the two men receive $100,000

Meyer Directs Yankee Youngsters Toward Stardom

ONEONTA. N.Y. (UPI) - This is a story about a payoff. Or rather a payback.

It's a story about an old ballplayer. Not really that old, but one of the Boys of Summer. One who kept pitching until the start of the 1980s, then was out of the game nearly 20 years and came back looking.

He wasn't looking for any charity, he was looking for a job. A baseball job, and it didn't have to be anything near the top of the line, either.

He finally was hired by a man who didn't even know him personally but who knew him by reputation, knew how he had been in three World Series during his 13 seasons with the Cubs, Phillies, Reds, Red Sox and Athletics and old Brooklyn Dodgers.

The man who gave him the job was George Steinbrenner. That was four years ago.

Steinbrenner hired Russ "Monk" Meyer when no one else would. He gave him a job an one of the Yankees' minor league pitching instructors. Meyer couldn't have been any happier. He had no grand illusions, He wasn't looking to make a mint, run the show or get his picture on the cover of Time or Newsweek magazine.

All he cared about was getting back in a professional baseball uniform again and helping kid pitchers as much as he possibly could. That was the only thing he wanted, and that's what he's doing now as pitching coach for the Onconta Yankees of the Class A New York-Penn League.

Altogether, Oneonta's kid pitchers look like a collective group of potential Dwight Goodens. Their figures seem unreal, almost as if somebody made them up. Check some of these num-

Mike Christopher, a long-legged 6-foot-6 fastballer from Church Road, Va., shows a perfect 7-0 won-lost record and a near perfect leagueleading 0.91 earned run average. You can't be much better than that.

Not far behind him is Troy Evers from Appleton. Wis., with a 8-1 log and a 1.35 ERA. Pat Dougherty from Palos Verdes, Calif., owns a 1.68 ERA and a 7-2 record. Then there's Kevin Trudeau of Livermore, Calif., the brother of University of Illinois quarterback Jack Trudeau, who owns a 1.42 ERA and six victories in eight decisions, and Rick Balabon of Wayne, Pa., with an ERA of 2.07 and 2-and-2 state. Balabon, the Yankees' first pick in last June's draft, is only 18 and is being brought along slowly. He has a good hard curve and an 87 mph fast

Kenny Patterson of McGregor, Texas, is the left-hander in the bunch. He's been bothered by a sore shoulder. which could account for his less than spectacular 4.84 ERA, but he also can throw the ball in the high 80's and he reminds Meyer of one of his old teammates with the Phillies, Curt

On the basis of its aggregate 1.94 ERA. Oneonta's pitching staff collectively has to be the best in baseball. But that's only in the minors, you say. So what, I say, It's still No. 1. And practically every pitcher in the Hall of Fame started out in the minors.

The man who has to get much of the credit for the uncommon success of Oneonta's young staff is the same man who works with it most, Russ Meyer.

If you remember him at all from his pitching days, then you know he never cared a whole lot about getting credit. He hasn't changed. He's still one of the most competitive men I've ever come across in baseball, right out of the same mold as Eddie Stanky. All that matters to him is helping the kids and Oneonta manager Buck Showalter as much as he possibly can.

All Russ Meyer ever wanted to do was win when he was pitching. That hasn't changed much, either, and he must be doing something right because the Onconta Yankees are breezed home to win their division title by 15 games Wednesday night,

"I started in baseball more than 40 years ago, and when you take them all together, the young pitchers we've got on this club are as good as I've ever seen," says Meyer, watching some of them loosening up a couple of hours before a ball game at DaMaschke Field.

"Remember some of those Yankee ball clubs years ago? They'd throw one outstanding pitcher after another at you day after day with guys like Reynolds, Raschi and Lopat, Mark my word, it may not be long before you see that happening again. We've got kids here who can really throw."

All the Oneonta players get $11 a day meal money when they're on the road. Meyer got $8 a day when he was in the majors and only $1.75 a day when he broke into the minors in 1941. With taxes and and everything else taken out, Meyer was left with $19.90 every two weeks from his $65 a month first contract. I asked him if he was envious of the kind of money kids are getting today and he laughed and said, "not much."

Meyer, who won 94 games and lost 73 during his big league career, was 17 years old when the late Doug Minor. signed him for the Chicago White Sox. who assigned him to Superior. Wis., in the Northern League.

"I had never heard of it and I didn't know where it was," he recalls. "My mother drove me in our family car, a Whippet, to Elgin, Ill., where the team bus was waiting. It was one of those grade school buses with straight back seats that did 50 miles an hour with the pedal all the way down. I can still see the sign across the middle of it -Superior Blues Baseball Club.

They had built two berths in the back of the bus, one upper and one lower. The catcher got the upper berth and our next day's pitcher got the lower. We always thought that bus was gonna fall apart. But the one we got here is first class. Air conditioning and everything."

Someone once warned against winning 20 games in a season.

"Do it once," the logic went, "and they expect you to do it every year.' It is logic that Joaquin Andujar never followed.

Andujar reached the plateau for the second straight year Friday night, becoming the major leagues' first 20-game winner this season. Andy Van Slyke drilled a two-run homer to help the St. Louis Cardinals post a 6-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves. "This time I'm not going to say it was easy because this game is not easy," Andujar said. "Last year, it took me to the last game. I tried for five or six times to win number 20, and I just won the last game of the season."

Andujar, 20-7, surrendered 10 hits over 7 1-3 innings to become the first National League pitcher to win 20 games in consecutive years since Houston's Joe Niekro won 21 games in 1979 and 20 in 1980 'It's quite an accomplishment for Joaquin

An apologetic Boyd, who rejoined his team Friday, was fined two days' pay - or $1,530 - for his absence.

Boyd also spent some time with Jim Rice behind the locked door of manager John McNamara. Boyd and Rice had a run-in Wednesday night after Boyd was the loser in the Red Sox' 5.3 defeat by the Texas Rangers. The Red Sox are in the middle of a slump, having wononly 2 of their last 15 games.

"Everyone knows I want it so bad," Boyd told the Boston Herald. "The last couple of weeks, I haven't been able to sleep, man I can't deal with things the way they've been going, I want to win so bad... just for the "Can's" sake."

"I feel I'm misunderstood a lot," he said. "It's a damn shame. when a person can't be himself. It's a selfish world. Nobody wants to build anybody up. They just want to tear everybody

Boyd would not discuss his whereabouts during his time away, but did concede his actions grew out of frustration.

Hernandez Blows Lead, Tigers Lose United Press International

The World Champton Detroit Tiger have been slipping slowly most of the season. Friday night they fell with a thud.

The ace of the pitching staff in 1984, reliever Willie Hernandez, falled to hold four-run lead as the California Angels rallied in the bottom of the ninth inning to beat the Tigers 7-6. Detroit is 10 1/2 games behind the AL East leading Toronto Blue Jays.

"That's the worst I've seen a team play in my years in baseball as far as mental mistakes are concerned," Tiger outflelder Kirk Gibson said, "But it's over - I'll see you tommorrow." With one out in the ninth, Reggie Jackson walked, and Hernandez, 7-9, replaced Bill! Scherrer, After Bobby Grich's ! fielder's choice. Hernandez walked pinch-bitters Juan Beniquez and Bob Boone Dick Schoffeld singled home two runs and Gary Pettis singled to center, driving in Boone, When Gibson muffed the ball for an error, Schofield scored to tie the score 6-6 and Pettla went to third when catcher Lance Parrish mishandled the throw. Aurelio Lopez relieved and walked Rod Carew Intentionally.

Brian Downing then hit a ball that third baseman Tom-Urookens fell down trying to field to his left. His throw in the dirtwas scooped by first baseman Darrell Evans, who then dropped it, making Luis Sanchez, 2-0, the winner

Blue Jays 6-10, White Sox 3-3 At Chicago, George Bell and Willie Upshaw hit home runs and Lloyd Moseby added a two-run triple to make a winner of Jim Acker, 6-2, in the second game. Jesse Barfield and Garth lorg drove in two runs upleca-

Orioles 7, A's 2

At Oakland, Calif., Jim Dwyer's two-run triple off reliever Jay Howell and Mike Young's three-run homer highlighted a seven-run ninth inning, rallying Baltimore. The Orioles had had only one hit and one base runner entering the ninth, Mike Boddicker, 11-13, was the winner.

Twins 5, Red Sox 2

At Boston, Kirby Puckett belted a two-run triple to highlight a four-run seventh inning and help Minnesota snap a four game losing streak. Frank Viola, 13-10, scattered five hits. and struck out seven for his fifth.

At Cleveland, Jerry Willard drove in three runs and Pat Tabler and Otis Nixon each had Wardle, 5-5, chalked up the victory. Jaime Cocanower, 3-2,

Hernandez or Mattingly? 2 Scouts Join Debate

NEW YORK (UPI) - Not even baseball scouts can settle the delightful debate going on in New York these days. One would rather have Keith Hernandez of the Mets at first base, another prefers Don Mattingly of the Yankees.

'This guy here," a scout voted recently while visiting Shea Stadium. He meant Hernandez.

"He made them respectable the minute he got here," the scout said. Another veteran scout likes Mattingly's power and also rates him better in the field. It's possible no city has had two better first basemen since the Yankees had Lou-Gehrig and the Gianta Bill Terry ...

San Franciscans can stop worrying about major-league basebail leaving town. They're too late. On a night when left-hander Vida Blue struck out 10 and alid into first base to beat out a bunt, not many of his teammates showed the same desire. First baseman Dan Driessen held the ball long enough to allow New York's Len Dykstra to score from second on an infield hit. On the next play, shortstop Jose Uribe threw to the wrong base on a routine relay from the outfield, allowing homer to Bob Brenly in the ninth inning. Not many people realize how much the new playoff format could affect the post-season. With the League Championship Series now a best-of-seven rather than a best of five, the best drama could take place before the World Series.

Hardly, Reliever Roger McDowell was ineffective, allowing a two-run

The Dodgers look like a good bet because of the depth and variety in their starting rotation. In a four-game stretch. batters would confront the screwball of Fernando Valenzuela, the sinker of Orel Hershiser, the right-handed power of Bob Welch, and the left-handed slider of Jerry Reuss. When needed, Rick Honeycutt would make a competent fifth

Impressed Pfister Calls Becker The World's No. 1 Tennis Player

MASON, Ohio (UPI) - Wimbledon champion Boris Becker left an indelible impression on Hank Pfister Friday night.

Becker deseated Pfister 5-7, 6-1, 6-4 in the quarterfinals of the ATP Championships. The loss so inspired Pfister that he made some eyebrow-raising comments about Becker.

"Right now, he's the best in the world," said Pfister, who was the 17-year-old West German's first victim at Wimbledon. "He's ready to beat anybody."

When told of Pfister's estimation of his abilities, Becker responded, "I am not it (the best in the world). Not today, I am not thinking about No. 1 or No. 10. I am just working to improve my game.

In Friday's other quarterfinal matches, Swedes Mats Wilander and Joakim Nystrom defeated countrymen Stefan Edberg and Anders Jarryd, respectively, and Tim Wilkison ousted Jimmy Brown.

Wilander, the No. I seed and two-time defending champion, beat Edberg, the fifth seed, 6-3, 6-7 (7-2), 6-2. Nystrom, the tournament's sixth seed, easily upset second-seeded Jarryd, 6-2, 6-1

Wilkison beat Brown, 6-3, 6-4, in a match of unseeded

Border Patrol Stops Del Mar

DEL MAR, Calif. (UPI) - The California Border Patrol has stopped racing at the Del Mar Race Track dead in its tracks.

With the arrest of more than 100 illegal aliens early Friday morning the Saturday card at Del Mar was cancelled. Track officials said Sunday and Monday's races may be cancelled as well.

The Friday morning raid came after a week of fruitless negotiations between immigration officials, who wanted the undocumented workers fired immediately, and thoroughbred trainers who said they needed their experienced grooms and handlers to keep the horses in shape.

Friday's races were held as scheduled, but the trainers said they would skip today's races because their horses were not ready to run.

ORLANDO - Don't throw away those playoff tickets just yet Orlando Twins' fans

The Twins, who fell 21/2 games behind Charlotte by losing two games Thursday night, did an about face Friday by sweeping a double-header from Columbus at Tinker Field. Charlotte lost to Huntsville, 4-2.

The Twins pulled within one game of the Charlotte in the East Division of the Southern League, Orlando hosts Columbus Saturday night at 7:30.

In the first game, Danny Clay, 12-8, tossed a two-hitter as the O-Twins won, 5-0. Alex Marte singled twice to set a Twins' hit record with 159. The old standard was 158 by Jerry Lomastro last year. Rick Colbert added a homer.

In the second game, Bob Raiston drove in two runs with a pair of singles as the Twins prevailed, 5-2.

Old Dominion Selects Young

NORFOLK, Va. [UPI] - Old Dominion University selected Tom Young of Rutgers to succeed Paul Webb as head basketball coach at the Sun Belt Conference school, it was reported today.

The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot quoted Athletic Director Jim Jarrett as saying he would introduce Young as the new coach at a morning news conference.

"I feel great about it," said Jarrett. "He's a terrific coach and a great addition to ODU." Terms of the accord between Young and ODU were not announced, but it was expected he would receive a long-term contract as well as a weekly television show and summer camp, the newspaper reported.

Parker Scores 3. Astros Win

KISSIMMEE - Ken Caminiti drove in three runs with a trio of hits and Bob Parker scored three times as the Osceola Astros hammered Daytona Beach, 9-2, in Southern League baseball Friday night at Osceola County Stadium.

Osceola extended its lead in FSL's Central Division to 61/2 games over Winter Haven. Osceola travels to Daytona Beach Saturday night for a 7:30 game.

Darlington 500 Key For Elliott's Million

By GARY KALE UPI Auto Racing Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) - How to become an instant millionaire or settle for a measly $100,000 - sizes up the theme for Bill Elliott's racing effort on Sunday, Sept. L.

Five months ago, the odds were heavily loaded in favor of Elliott collecting the Winston Million Dollar honus. The Dawsonville, Ga., hotshot capfured big races at Daytona and Talladega (automatically guaranteeing $100,000) and needed a victory in one of two other designated events to rate Wells Fargo transportation to the Brake failure in the World 600 at Charlotte on May 26 was the first clunk in the Elliott machine. He makes a final effort for the Jackpot in the 500 at Darlington, S.C., Sept. 1.

Elliott's 1985 season has been fantastic, reminiscent of the days when Richard Petty was king of the stockers. The softspoken redhead's log this year reads 10 victories in 18 starts.

Darlington was not a good track for Elliott prior to 1985. He was shut out of victory lane 14 times in a stretch from 1977 to 1984. The tide turned last April when he captured the pole and then won the TranSouth 500 at Darlington.

If double victories at a track form some sort of barometer, Elliott has hope for a sevenfigure payoff on Sept. 1. He took checkered flags at Pocono on June 9 and July 21 and paraded into victory lane at Michigan on June 16 and Aug. 11,

Elliott refuses to panie at the prospect of failing to win a double at a third track

"I figure that if we get ready just like we always do, we'll have a pretty good chance to win Darlington," says Elliott, considered one of the top chassla menon the NASCAR Grand National circuit. "Since the beginning of the season, our efforts toward the Winston Million has been like trying to juggle a bunch of balls and every once in a while you drop one. We dropped one at

"It's hard to believe that we are this close to winning the money. It's really overwhelming. To be this close to winning a million dollars is unbelievable. The mental part of all this is harder to deal with than I thought. Our No. 1 commitment all season has been to win the Winston Million.

Elliott won a total of $640 in 1976, his first season of Grand National racing, after finishing Grand National champion. 33rd in the Carolina 500. This year. Elliott's carnings stand at $792,168, going into the Aug. 25 race at Bristol, Tenn.

Kickoff Classic Matches BYU, Boston College

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (UPI) - This is the year people start pointing to Brigham Young's won-loss record instead of its schedule.

The Cougars, who finished 12-0 and won their first national championship last year, have been maligned for playing a weak schedule in the past. But BYU has a tough first three games in 1985, beginning with next Thursday night's battle against Boston College in the Kickoff Classic followed by home games against Pac-10 powers UCLA and Washington.

If the Cougars continue to win, they can finally erase the knocks against them for playing in the weak Western Athletic Conference. If they falter, however, Coach Lavell Edwards isn't ready to hand back his national championship trophy.

"I don't think this team has to prove what last year's team accomplished," Edwards said. "The thing I'm going to tell this team is. 'Don't worry about last year, just go out and be what you can be.

Boston College coach Jack Bicknell will probably tell his new quarterback, Shawn Halloran, the same thing about replacing Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie. But while Bicknell wants to play down last year's success by his diminutive passer, he does point out history is on his side against BYU.

"This is the fourth straight year we've played the defending national champion," he said. 'We tied Clemson (1982), beat Penn State (1983) and beat Mfamt (1984).1

Bicknell has far more respect for BYU than, most people around the country. If football coaches could sue for plagiarizing offenses. Thursday night's confrontation would be held in a courtroom rather than Glants Stadlum. And defendant Bicknell would plead guilty.

"When I took the Joh at Boston College (in 1981), the team I looked at was Brigham Young," Bicknell said. "We felt like we had to do something a little better than the people trying to stop us. We looked at Brigham Young's program and we copled it, to be honest."

Bicknell marvels at BYU's passing offense so much that he planned to go to Provo. Utah to observe BYU's spring practice this year. Those plans were squashed when the two schools were invited to play in the third Kickoff Classic

If the trip could have come off, Halloran might have asked Robbie Bosco for a few tips on following an All-America quarterback. Bosco did that last year when he replaced Steve Young and led the nation in total Football offense with 327.7 yards per game and finished second to Flutte in passing efficiency with a 151.8 rating.

Bosco, who completed for 62 percent of his passes and threw for 3,932 yards, 33 touchdowns and 11 interceptions, had his most gutsy performance in a 24-17 victory over Michigan in the Holiday Bowl. He passed for 343 yards and two touchdowns despite suffering strained knee ligaments and a badly sprained ankle in the first quarter.

Bosco is one of BYU's five returning offensive starters. Wide receivers Glen Kozlowski and fullback Lakei Heimuli are two others, but none of last year's starting offensive linemen Unlike a year ago, we have the name players back, like Bosco and Kozlowski, but also unlike a year ago we lost the heart and soul of our team defensive players, linemen, linebackers," Edwards said.

The Eagles' "name" player last year was also the heart and soul of their 10-2, fourth-ranked squad. Bicknell expects to have a solid passing game without Flutte but is worried about constant comparisons Halloran will have to deal with.

At 6-foot-4, Halloran is more of a classical quarterback than Flutte but won't be as exciting to watch. The Eagles will use tallback Troy Stradford more and the defense is in fine shape. with nose tackle Mike Ruth and linebacker Bill Romanowski but it will be tough to make people. forget Flutie.

"My main job is to take pressure off our quarterback. Bicknell said. "We don't want him to be another Flutte.

"They say 'What are you going to do without Flutte?' I'm looking forward to it. Look at Toung, they keep coming up with people (Gifford Nielson, Jim McMahon, Mare Wilson, etc.). You just find a guy and plug him in. It's not that simple, but they've done it.

Defending national champions have split the first two Kickoff Classic. Penn State was walloped 44-6 by Nebraska in 1983, and Miami shaded Auburn 20-18 last

Close to 53,000 tickets were sold by a week before the game, which already passed last year's attendance of 51,131. Officials are hoping to draw 60,000.

AFC West, which has sent three teams to the playoffs each of the last two seasons. The Denver Broncos went 13-3 to win the division last year and the Raiders went 14-5 to finish third.

The Broncos and Raiders both win with defense. Denver forced 55 turnovers, set a club record with 57 sacks and allowed the fewest points in the AFC (241) in 1984. The Raiders ranked third in the conference in total defense and sent five defenders to the Pro Bowl: end Howle Long. Imebacker Rod Martin and backs Mike Haynes, Lester Hayes and Vann McElroy.

Kansas City has had one of the top passing attacks in the league with Bill Kenney at quarterback and Carlos Carson, Henry Marshall and Stephone Paige on the flank. But the defenses have been allowed to tee off on that unit because of the lack of a running game. Not any more the Chiefs selected running back Ethan Horton of North Carolina with their first-round draft pick.

The San Diego Chargers scored 394 points in 1984 and will be even more explosive in NFL history to lead Miami to the 1985 with the addition of former Johnson at wide receiver and Now he wants to be com-Tim Spencer at running back. They also drafted huge Jim Lachey of Ohio State to help protect quarterback Dan Fouts, who missed six games with injuries last year.

AFC East The Miami Dolphina are the favorite in the East with or without record-setting quarterback Dan Marino.

Marino passed for more yards (5.084) and more touchdowns celving and Pro Bowl invitations (48) than any quarterback in last year.

Eason threw for 3,228 yards, 23 touchdowns and a conferencelow eight interceptions.

The New York Jets have a couple of marquee names in running back Freeman McNeil and defensive end Mark Gastineau, but not much else. Offensively, the Jets must find a way to protect quarterback Ken O'Brien or his backup, Pat Ryan, who missed five starts with injuries. Defensively, the Jets have switched to a 3-4 alignment after allowing 364 points a year

The Indianapolis Colts and Buffalo Bills were even worse on defense than the Jets. The Colts allowed 414 points so they used their first four draft picks on defenders: linebacker Duane Bickett, backs Don Anderson and Anthony Young and end Willie Broughton. The Bills allowed 454 points so they used the first pick of the draft on end Bruce Smith and also took defensive back Derrick Burroughs later in the first round.

AFC Central

The Pittsburgh Steelers emerged less as winners of the AFC Central than as survivors last season with a 9-7 record. What the Steelers survived was a charge by Cincinnati at season's end: the Bengals won eight of their final 11 games but still missed the playoffs with an 8-8 record.

"The guys came back this summer half angry about what happened last year - angry at themselves," Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche said. "At the end of the season, we were playing as well as the playoff teams, but they were still playing and we weren't."

The Bengals improved themselves offensively by drafting fleet Eddie Brown of Miami in the first round and then used another first-round pick on linebacker Emanuel King of Alabama to bolster the defense.

But overtaking Pittsburgh will were the only team to beat the 49ers during the 1984 regular may be fighting off age - their scoring potential.

A Rose Is A Rose Is ...: Color The Mood Maker For Benini's Toys Of The Mind

Herald Staff Writer

Finer Art

The artist, Benini, looks out on the theater that is Geneva's Lake Harney and is excited by eyes simple, yet dramatic visions, that those with a slacks and shirt open to reveal a gold medalian bringing a touch of color, 44-year-old Benini is on the back deck of his lakefront cottage pursuing his endless quest for color and form and above all else - beauty.

Under a gray storm-fed August afternoon sky he is like a child opening Christmas presents as his excitment moves from the discovery of monochormatic "Florida mountains" of white clouds shaded across a singular scale to gray, to the flery bolts of lighting that split the sky and the tiny window of blue bordered by a fluffy white cloud curtain that opens to the west.

his white pigeons, whose genetic pool has been comfaminated by an outside black breeder. who has left his mark on the flock with an occassional black feather here and there, as wellas wild cardinals that feed on seeds scattered by Benini's wife, Lorraine, draw him into their

There is an aura of excitment generated by this artist's uninhibited appreciation of hisdiscoveries which are locked into his vision and live on endlessly in form and color in his symbolic paintings.

Everything that catches Benini's mind's eye may move from his memory to his canvas. His mastery of color, working for years with a single shade until he knows it, until 1 gets it right and can then do anything with it, insures the crisp summer sky blue, cloud-born white, the bright green of the hyacinth that is pushed by the storm from shore in an armada of tiny islands. across the foggy gray lake will be seen again in another reality flowing from his brush. Benini's soft accent, his long, dark, wiry hair caught in a pony tail and his matching beard peppered lightly with gray establish his Italian roots, which one might doubt when locked into the gaze of his crystal blue eyes that might have been plucked from the sky, or perhaps from one of his canvases, which often feature all seeing

If the eyes soften, yet intensify, because of their rarity, the image of the internationally known Benint — who in his younger days was a fighter, an angry man always ready to take onthe bigger guy - so does the rose, which has risen as a primary symbol in his paintings

Although other elements drift through his work - softly shaped lithe nudes, stars, horses, eves, leaves - all in carefully balanced play on canvas, the rose dominates as the Benthi Image, which is often perceived as counter to his personality.

"I have surprised people who see the paintings and see the sensitivity, the softness or whatever it is and then I come along and they feel something else. There is an ambivalence

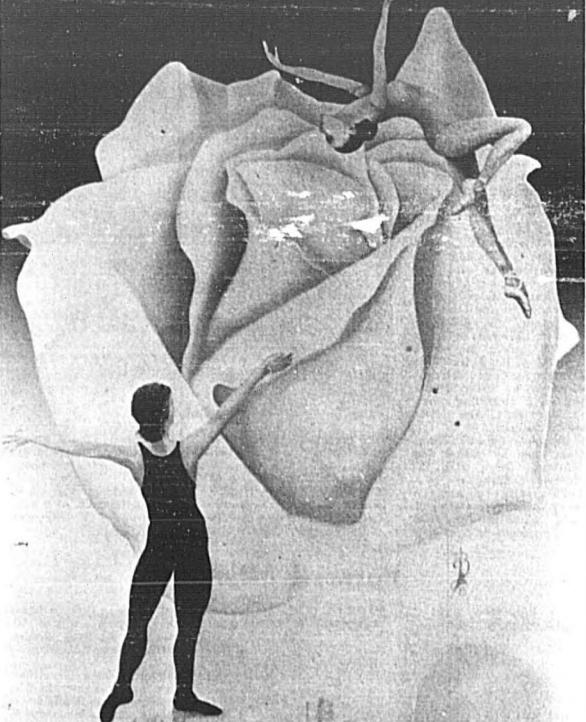

"Do Hook feminine?" he laughed "Uhave had that before they knew me. I have had people who were very surprised that I was not gay I don't have any problem with that. As an Italian It is very hard to think of nothing else but "When it comes down to the core of things we are all one and I know that. We are all a part of everything we just take different shapes at different times because of what we experience or

"At this time in life I happen not to match the work. There are still too many elements loose, too much strength coming out. But given time I can possibly become a grand old man, a gentleman. I'm working on that I started out as a very rough young man

"I don't paint roses I paint powerful carivases," Benini said, while scated beneathgiant bouquets of black, green, white and redroses that border the ceiling of his home.

"I paint color. I paint design. The fact that it looks like a rose is not my fault. Have you seen an eight-foot rose? Have you seen a rose that stay#flat on the wall? So why be concerned with that?" Benint asked, and explained the image of the rose is just a tool to express his strongest forte, the use of color.

'The Glory of Music-Making' painted by Benini in 1984.

He calls his paintings "toys for the mind" and physically I courted death taking heavy risks, said "Is this journey, once I have the color, the color is the mood maker, it's the grabber. It's to commit suicide, I just wanted to know what the one that says right off like, I don't like.

the whole thing was about so I could get it over "Then if I get that attention, then I have to entertain the eye, because the eye entertains the brain. Therefore I have to have a way to shape end of the acreen sane and very productive. I that color so the brain can play with it. Otherwise, one is going to say, 'Ah, that's what it is, and goes away.

"If I can intrigue the eye with the color then another process takes place in the mind. I'm describing the thoughts that go through my mind in the creative process. Once I have that there it doesn't matter what I paint. There are other elements I use, compositional elements that I have learned to use as a human being. A lot has to do with formal training, but it also has a lot to do with what I like

The more I learn, the more I study, the more sophisticated my mind becomes and the more. sophisticated the food I want for my mind becomes. As you get up in years you realize the importance of simplicity. You realize all the masters have achieved their mastery through Binini simplifed his life five years ago when he moved down a winding, potholed, sand road to his "pocket out of time the edge of civilization" in Geneva where he is engulfed in nature and doesn't have to play the game of the artist as entertainer, he said.

He came from Gainesville after a single winter that was too cold for him to take following 14 years in the Bahamas. By the time he settled in and local wildlife. Benini said he had made a serious commitment to his work. "What this has done for me is to limit my universe, which is really what a painter wants. It has brought depth into my work. It has brought space," he said.

Finding his ideal setting followed Benini's decision at 35, after a lifetime as an artist with some recognition from the critics, but few sales, that his art "was going to support me or else I

"Once I took that decision I had to confront death. I did die a number of times, morally. Also

"As it worked out I came through the other ended up having this notion it did not matter what I would paint. The only thing that would matter was the performance I would put in as an artist, whether I would compromise or not

Those became the relevant points. "All the preparation that had been my rough youth started to jell, to take form, a shape into a man whose call in life was to produce images which would have a special quality.

"I realized the importance of being different, unusual, which I've know instinctively all along. but never realized. Laiready had many elements recurring through paintings. One was the rose, which was one-third of my output.

"The rest was human figures. I painted nudes for three or four years. Of course I was young. Curlosity was taking me along those lines. Nudes still appear in Benint's work, but the nudes he paints today are painted from memory.

"I never paint people close to me," he said. explaining that Lorraine doesn't appear in his work. "I have had some of the best models in the world through the years.

When I was not married I was very promiscuous. All the bodies you see now come from that period in my life. Lorraine wouldn't allow me to cavort," Benini laughed, "and to get Geneva, with Lorraine, his rose garden, his cat a body you have to know it. You can't just paint It from the outside. You have to go inside and to do that requires a lot more than is comfortable for the well being of relationships. So now we use old bodies, until we run out of bodies and then we have a big problem Before the nudes I painted old men. I figured being old they wouldn't last so I had to get them before they died.

Bee BENINI, 3C

damage and the attitude of the owner. There are bastcally three choices. A pulpotomy may be done which involves capping off the pulp cavity with cement and sealant. When the tooth's nerve supply is also involved and the tooth is in danger of death a root canal can be done. The third classic treatment in the past was to simply pull the tooth. This was the common treatment because until recently there was Home dental care can also aid in prolonging your pet's teeth, saving on veterinary bills and avoid repeating anesthetic and episodes for the older pet. This may include proper diet and daily cleaning with either baking soda on a damp cloth or actual brushing.

Home care principles will not take care of already badly tartared teeth so you may find vourself first having the teeth cleaned at your vets. This will require more discussion so we will continue with this subject next time.

Women Attend Platform Confab In Washington

Sanford Mayor Bettye D. Smith and her longtime friend. entrepeneur Shirley Platt, Schilke, attended the 154th annual convention of the International Platform Association at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D.C., Aug. 5-9. The original organization was founded by Daniel Webster and had as its first prefessional speaker, Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mayor Smith has served in prior IPA years on the Author Autographing Committee but switched to Red Carpet this year, the committee that assists travel and performance details for the VIP speakers and performers.

Shirley is president of Schilke Enterprises Inc., seccretary/treasurer of Harcar Aluminum Products Co., a member of the U.S. Senate Inner Circle, a Preferred Member of U.S. Senatorial Club and the author of a published collection of poems, The Many Facets of Love.

Then someone teasingly tossed a grape and the battle of the grapes was declared with all joining in the grape toss followed by swimming.

Attending the tea, bash and splash were Valerie's sister. Natalie, Kaylie Lytle, Laurie Blair, Krista Simmons and Celay Cox, along with Valerie's aunt. "Miss Miriam" Wright.

Edmond (E.B.) Stowe, wellknown painter, will observe his 91st birthday on Aug. 30. Mr. Stowe, who is recuperating from a fractured hip at Lakeview Nursing Center, hopes to be back to his home in Indian Mound Village for his birthday. Also, he plans to resume hts painting and teaching in the near future.

Ebba Lee and Katherine Senkarik will celebrate their birthdays on Sept. 1, Both of the grande ladies are in their 80s. A happy, happy birthday.

...Benini

"Through this process a degree of symbolism started to take place in my work. All of a sudden I had something unusual which started to get attention of the critics and the collectors of fine art, which support fine arts and my life since Benini produces a painting a week, "If it takes me 30 hours, I work a 30-hour week. If it takes 100 hours it's a 100-hour week," he said. His smallest pieces sell for $5,000 and it's up from there. Two-thirds of the works scheduled for his 80th and 81st one-man exhibitions set for Jacksonville University from Aug. 28 through Sept. 6 and at Orlando's Landmark Center One from Sept. 14 through Nov. 14, have been sold he said.

Financial success has helped free Benini. "I have total freedom because I have become a totally free human being," he said. "I am not bound by ingnorance. I am not bound by nationality. I am not bound by rules, tech-

An Italian citizen, Benini said he is a universal man and "the only rules I am bound to are the ones I set myself, so I'd call that total freedom. However, the rules are there, the guidelines are there, so if you look at it from that point I am not a free man I have the toughest guy to deal with,

Benini has chosen to pursue beauty over the ligliness, which he said, is lauded by other artists and critics. "They are going after total ugliness because they are afraid of beauty," Benint said.

"I am not going after beauty per se," he said. "But I'm not shying away from beauty. I want to use that as a stepping stone for the mind to go

Beauty is something that like if you have a pimple on the nose of the prettlest face that you can think of, that beauty is marred. It is the same with painting. If one element is out of whack. If God forbid one mistake takes place, that's the end of that. It's a very tough field. You have to be like an athlete. You have to be conditioned to be 1,000 percent.

"That's why I don't drink, I don't smoke, i don't drink coffee. I weigh my physical energy. I have to. If I don't I won't have enough energy, enough charge to paint.

"I don't want to belong to anybody because my true calling requires total dedication. My only lover for life has been art. Not necessarily what you see here, but what I thought it was."

Benini also pursues beauty through his art because he has to live with his work. "An artist doesn't sell everything right away," he said. "Picasso left 9,000 pieces. He had to live with those bastards all over his rooms. So I am aware of that. I have to live with these things. Can you imagine If I have to live with monsters?

"The paintings that fizzled out through the years, now and again I have a major burn out. I burned, the first years, I burned a lot. One time I burned 200 paintings. I just couldn't live with the weakness. They are like children.

"Children can take off and go away. A child can be a pain for only so long. But a bad painting is

"I go back and look and I see where I did wrong by my standards now. However, if it is a mistake of innocence, then you accept it. If somebody goofs up out of ignorance, because of youth, fine. But if somebody does it out of sloppiness, then I can't live with it. The painting has to be destroyed."

Benini has incorporated architectural elements as well as three deminsional illusions to show the rose. And although he insists he doesn't paint roses, over the years his roses have changed, he

"The quality I would choose now is different from what I would choose 20 years ago. At that time I was looking for the perfect rose. Right now I am looking for a young rose, an exciting rose, for a rose with strange petals, strange shape configurations that explodes. So this has changed as well."

A generous man, Benini shares his vision through his work, which he leaves for the viewer to intrepret. He may fill a visitors hands with one of 13 antelope skulls he collected in the Wyoming wilds, a turtle shell bleached bone white in the Florida sun and roses from his garden. However, when it comes to finding a place for one of his "shaped" roses, his scroll paintings, or his more traditionally framed symbolic works. Benini can

"The audience is never there when I paint, I sweat it out," he said. With his shaped roses, he said, each petal is a painting, painted over four to six times depending on the color. Work that takes patience and persistence.

The pain of producing his acrylic paintings, he said, disappears in light of the results, making him a free man. "I am here, I'm master of my time: I don't work for anybody. I don't do anything I don't want to do. This is a good position. I made it ideal."

And he's free enough to choose those who will possess a Benini. "I have to decide if I want to be related to this person for the rest of their life," he Benini doesn't sell to investors, to those with terrible art collections or to collectors who have bad taste, he said. He insists on meeting with potenital owners and must know where they intend to place his work, which must have a position of respect.

Beninis don't belong on chimneys or behind sofas, he said. And he has never been reduced to selling on the sidewalk his work, which is never reproduced except in poster form to promote his exhibits. Benini is not a paper seller, he said, and added. "It's the most God awful thing to do to any creative mind to just put them (artists) like beggars on the sidewalk. That's the ultimate insult to creativity. It's a shame that the wealthiest nation in the world treats its better creative minds like that. I don't have to do that. I get a lot more respect."

You can meet Benini at a reception at 6 p.m. Friday Sept. 6 at the Alexander Best Museum at Jacksonville University, North University Boulevard, Jacksonville. That retraospective showing of works from 1970 through 1985 is scheduled to run from Aug. 28 through Sept. 6.

UPI TV Reporter NEW YORK (UPI) - The 1985-86 television season of ficially begins the week starting Sept. 23 - well, mostly.

in one sense it has already started, with the CBS airing of 'Hometown'' on Thursday nights in an effort to introduce the show to an audience during the rerun season, instead on Sept. 24, when it would be up against the two-hour season premiere of "The A-Team" on NBC and premieres of "Who's the Boss?" and "Growing Pains" on ABC. Some shows will preview early, and some will debut after opening week, having been preempted by longform premieres. Here are some of the special events scheduled so far.

NBC is phasing its shows in over a three-week period, starting Wednesday, Sept. 11 with Robert Blake in "Hell Town." and winding up up Tuesday, Oct. I with "Riptide." On Sept. 14 NBC's 8-10 p.m. Saturday night schedule will premiere, including two newcomers, "The Golden Girls"

starring Bea Arthur, Betty White and Rue McClanahan, and

'227" with Marla Gibbs.

"Punky Brewster" will have a one-hour debut Sept. 15. There will be a special two-hour season opener of "Knight Rider," with a revamped KITT car, on Sept. 20, and a two-hour movie version of "Misfits of Science" on Sept. 22. A two-hour version of "The Stories" and "Alfred Hitchcock" bow in on Sept. 29. CBS is premiering its new Wednesday night schedule a week early, on Sept. 18. One reason could be to bring the new shows in opposite ABC News's three-hour special, "45/85." If the CBS Tuesday shows came in the following week, they would be up against ABC's big "Dynasty. The CBS Wedneday shows are "Stir Crazy," "Charlie & Company" with Flip Wilson, "George Burns' Comedy Week" and Edward Woodward in "The

Equalizer."

From suffrage to gender gap, American women have waged a long, difficult and sometimes violent struggle to ensure their right to participate in the electoral process

Women Get The Vote

The opposition that confronted suffragists was formidable: big-city political machines suspicious of women's desires to 'clean up' politics, brewers and liquor lobbies concerned that women would support prohibition, ... and Southern politicians who did not want newly-enfranchised women calling attention to their racist voting policies.

When women

"got the vote" in 1920, some people predicted and feared — a whole host of supposed evils: the end of femininity and the family, the beginning of unneeded social reform and elections determined by an unpredictable but solid bloc offemale votes.

The predictions did not come true, in fact, the elections following passage of the suffrage amendment were anticlimactic compared to the years of intense effort to win the vote. In the 1924 election, only one-third of the women eligible to vote cast ballots. As late as 1960, the voter turnout rate for women was still 11 percentage points behind the rate for men. Moreover, it appeared that the way women voted was indistinguishable from the way men voted.

Today, 65 years after women began voting (the 19th Amendment to the Constitution became law on Aug. 26, 1920), political historians talk matter-of-facily about gender gaps, women's issues, the feminist vote and the impact of a female vice presidential candidate on an election. In 1980, for the first time in history, the proportion of women who reported voting [59.4 percent) was higher than that of men (59.1 percent).

When the 1980 and 1984 election returns were examined, pollsters took note of the long-awaited difference in men's and women's votes in presidential, state and local races and labeled that difference the "gender phenomenon has been developing for some time, says Marjorie Lansing, co-editor of Women and Politics: The Visible Majority. Within the past decade or so, Lansing says, the women's movement has been accompanted by the "growth of an invisible majority (formed by women) in the electorate which has coalesced at times to influence public policy."

Ethel Klein, a political scientist at Columbia University and author of Gender Politics, says that "even when men and women vote for the same candidate, a women's vote exists so long as women vote for that candidate for different reasons." If, for example, women vote for a Democratbecause of the party's position on social services or defense spending while men vote for the same candidate because of unemployment and labor issues. Klein contends, there is "a women's vote irrespective of the fact that both men and women voted for the same Democrat."

In several 1984 state elections the gender gap was more pronounced than in the landslide presidential election, according to data compiled by the Center for the American Woman and Politics at Rutgers University. Women's participation, in fact, determined the outcome of races in Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts and Iowa (Since ballots are anonymous, information on how men and women vote comes from exit poll interviews and opinion surveys conducted by major national news organizations.)

The journey to the gender gap was long and difficult. Officially, it began with an 1848 Seneca Falls, N.Y. convention which resolved "that it is the duty of the women of this country to secure for themselves their sacred right to the elective franchise." But women's interest and involvement in elections goes back to the first presidential campaigns, when women worked behind the scenes, organizing political meetings and luncheons, making campaign items and attending rallies.

Many mementos of these early campaigns, as well as treasured suffrage artifacts, are collected, studied and exhibited in the Smithsonian's began the devaluational Museum of American History in Washington, D.C.

Some 19th-century election objects were made by women and others were aimed at women, but all had a distinct "home" appeal — sewing boxes, ceramic tableware, quits and pendants. The thinking at the time was that "women would influence the votes of their husbands and sons even though the women themselves could not go to the polls." Edith Mayo, political history curator at the museum. says. "Ironically, political activities and party affiliations were considered family affaira."

After the first 15 presidential elections, some women were ready to progress from influencing male voters to voting themselves. Thus began the decades-long suffrage movement in America. At our of the museum's "We The People" ex-

We Need To Protect The Free Market From Ourselves

It was a rich land, a very rich land indeed, its fertile fields stretched as far as the eye could see. Its inineral wealth seemed unbounded, its people had an inventive, enterprising spirit that was the envy of the world.

The land prospered, not just because of its great wealth, but because it had a precious economic Institution — a free market. The people in this land knew that freedom in the marketplace had always been the key to their success. They could look around at the rest of the world and see that people without free markets were poor. People with free markets weren't.

Of course, the market wasn't completely free. Most people recognized that restraints had to be imposed in some special cases.

Air was one of them. No one owned the air, and so no one took care of u. Even though each person liked clean air, each person dumped garbage in it. This behavior was not so curious as it may seem. Each person recognized that his or her own dumping of a little bit of garbage wouldn't really affect the quality of the air, and so there was no automatic incentive to try to restrict the amount of garbage dumped.

The air was called a "commons" Everyone used it, no one owned it, and so, if nothing were done, it would just get dirtier and dirtier. People decided to have the government impose restraints on their dumping of garbage because they recognized that, if they didn't, they would destroy their own air.

The people had to do the same thing with many resources that were owned in common. They imposed regulations to protect the water. They protected wildlife. They protected peace and quiet.

All these things needed legal protection because, in a free market, they could be destroyed by individuals acting in their own self interest. Even individuals who saw what was happening to these common resources would, on their own, act in a way that might destroy them. Because they saw that the little they did as individuals really didn't amount to much. It was the sum of all these individual activities that was the problem, and this could only be checked by some form of regulation.

Oddly enough, not all the regulations passed in this land were almed at protecting things that would not be taken care of in a free market. Some people were successful in arranging regulations which did little more than to protect them from competition, and to increase their own incomes at the expense of others.

Labor unions were successful in getting the wages of unskilled workers held artificially high, so that these workers would not be able to compete as effectively with the skilled workers unions represented. Business firms arranged protection from foreign competition, so they could charge higher prices and make greater profits. Members of various professional groups arranged to have restrictive licensing that would limit the number of people who could practice these professions, and thus keep prices high.

Of course, all these restrictions made the market less free. But each interest group, in seeking a restriction to protect its own interest, recognized that one little restriction would not end the

Butcher Wants To Parachute Off 110-Story Sears Tower

CHICAGO (UPI) — A daring attempt by a 24-year-old Australian butcher to scale the Sears tower and parachute from the top was foiled by police who arrested the man outside the world's tallest building.

"it would be tremendous" to jump off the tower. Nicholas Feteris said after his release from police custody Monday. "Maybe they would let me do it legally. Why don't I ask them?"

Feteroa, of Elwood.
Australia, was arrested and charged with criminal trespass when he returned to the 110-story building after being told to leave the premises. He was later released on $50 bond and scheduled to appear today in Misdemeanor Court.

Two of Feteria' friends. Kenneth Rick, 34, of Lake Orion, Mich., and Jeanette Augustin, 24, of Dearborn, Mich., also were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Feteris said a parachute jump from the top would involve a free fail of 800 feet before the chute opened about 700 feet above the pavement.

Feteris was arrested when he was discovered hiding in front of the 1.454-font building. Guards then spotted his accomplices nearby, police said.

Sports Complex Plans Appealing

"... Sanford's got to get ready for a lot of things, because they're coming our way."

That's a partial quote from Don Knight. president of the Greater Sanford Development Corporation, commenting on a proposed multi-million dollar sports complex the project developers say they'd like to erect in or

But that sampling of Knight's quote reflects only a small part of his sentiments, and the sentiments of other Sanford businessmen and public officials to the idea.

Knight was more specific in reflecting those sentiments in other parts of his comment: "This is one of the biggest things, if not the biggest thing ever to hit Sanford. It will draw people from all over Central Florida."

The proposed sports complex is the brainchild of Bo Abernethy and Jim and Diane Lane of Orlando, who, along with Longwood structural engineer Gean Farach and other investors, will own and operate the facility.

It's an ambitious plan for sure. It's envisioned as a national training ground for young olympic hopefuls and has the blessing of the U.S. Olympic Games, though the organization isn't affiliated with the project as such. Games officials said they'd be happy to offer assistance and advice in helping the project along.

First phase construction alone is estimated at $14 million and will consist of two olympic-size fee skating rinks, a larger than ofympic-size swimming pool, a gymnasium and a 700-seat restaurant. Estimated opening date: about 21/2 years. Second phase construction would include dorms, a school for athletes and a hotel.

But that's not the best part. The best part is that the facility will be available to the general public which can rub elbows with the olympic hopefuls while they train.

Now that's the kind of progress Sanford should welcome with open arms. It certainly will mean more jobs. And it certainly will generate the kind of clean, healthy activity any growing community would approve of.

When Mayor Bettye Smith first got a glimpse at the plans, she said she had no doubts that the project could be a success. "...with good people behind the project, it can

Recently announced government regulations to combat drug abuse by railroad employees could be effective.

Since 1975, drunken or drug-abused railroad workers have caused 48 train accidents, according to the Transportation Department. The accidents resulted in 37 deaths, 80 injuries and $34 million in property damage.

The railroad industry prohibits on-the-job drug use. Now the federal government is stepping in to help fight the problem. The new regulations will require drug tests if an employee seems to be impaired or is involved in a major accident. Prospective employees also must undergo drug tests before being

I don't know whether the fragments included any mesquite chips but if they did the discovery presumably would have value beyond Its archeological worth. According to the National Geographic Society, sales of mesquite wood are expected to top $12 million this year, most of the revenue being generated by barbecue fanatics. Additionally, research is being conducted on mesquite beans as a possible source of high-protein flour. For more than a century, the Society reports, mesquite was "cursed, kicked, kerosened, chain-sawed and buildozed as a pest in the Southwest.

Maybe so, but during the late Miocene Epoch folks may have had better taste. Any inhabitants of the region back then might have barbequed salamanders and grebes on open meso lite fires results of both reptile-like amphibians and diving birds have been discovered by botanists

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Fragments of 29 to 30 in what was once a subtropical savanna in Kansas.

If that area did indeed have rainy seasons. mesquite trees would have thrived there. Mesquites do love water, perhaps as much as salamanders and grebes do. With root systems that sometimes extend farther underground than mesquite beans grow in the air, the trees can blot a pasture dry almost faster than a Texas rancher can say "Hereford."

"The tree's remarkable roots reach down 40 to 50 feet or more, all the way to the water table. and can spread out at least 50 feet," the Geographic tells us.

'A large, mature mesquite tree, usually only about 20 feet tall, can drink up enough [scarce water) to supply about a half-acre of grassland.

"In some places, it is said, dry creeks have started flowing again when mequite was removed from the area. I don't doubt it. Having spent much of my younger life cussing and kicking mesquites. I can believe almost anything about them.

Once viewed as a "good-for-nothing" tree by the Texas Forest Service, enough young mesquites came up voluntarily in my back yard in Merkel. Texas, to equal a small fortune at today's charcoal briquet prices. We couldn't get rid of them, even with a chain-saw. One forester quoted by the Geographic news service allowed as how you've got to pull up mesquites by the roots or cut them down at

Although scientists can measure a tree's root system, they apparently can't explain why such animals as the camel disappeared from Kansas. Perhaps they were crowded out by mesquites or saw the handwriting on the wall.

I mean, mesquite-smoked camels probably aren't all that bad. Don't knock if if you haven't

If any mesquite seeds are found among the thousands collected in soft sandstone soil near Morland. Kan, in the northwest part of the state, that could explain a lot.

Company Chicken Soup

All the euphorta of successfully combining motherhood and a career falls flat when a child gets sick.

That's the day sales goals, dictation and annual reports take a back seat to a child's needs. Whether it's a trip to the doctor, keeping down a fever or just making chicken soup whatever is needed - mother knows she must call the boss and say she has to stay home.

It's an unresolved dilemma for mothers and employers.

Now there's a wisp of hope for even this situation. And it's getting a big financial boost from the corporate world.

In downtown Minneapolis next month, the Chicken Soup Day Care Center will open. It's a place for sick kids of working mothers. There will be collapsible cots and cribs, comfy quilts and a menu heavy on Jell-O, custard and, of course, chicken

There also will be plenty of TLC from a staff, including a nurse, teacher, practical nurses and trained aides. The child's personal physician will be called if needed. and, in case of emergency, there's a county hospital just a few blocks

Kids with run-of-the-mill colds or flu will stay in the Sniffles Room; those with upset stomachs will take it easy in the Popsicle Room. There's even a separate entrance and separate ventilating system for kids with chicken pox to recuperate in the Polka Dot Room. Each area has separate bathrooms, and up to 30 children, from 6 months to 12 years, can be served.

Two Minneapolts women, Birdle Johnson and Ruth Matson, both long associated with "care-giver" programs, will direct the center, which has the blessing of city, county and state public health departments.

The innovative program - a first In the country - got off the drawing board earlier this year with a $100,000 federal grant. But what makes the pilot program even more unique is the strong financial backing from eight prominent local companies. First Bank of Minneapolis, for example, paid a large chunk of the cost of renovating the storefront into an up-to-date infirmary. As the fee is $30 a day per child, Ms. Johnson hopes some of the corporate funding can eventually be earmarked to subsidize low income families.

The Majority Rules?

Ruling against a New York City election law that requires primary winners to have received more than 40 percent of the vote, a federal judge has helped to resurrect an issue Jesse Jackson raised in last year's presidential campaign.

For Jackson, opposition to second or "runoff" primaries, an election device used mostly in the South, was a "litmus test" for last year's presidential candidates.

Black politicians were divided on the issue, and it never seemed to catch the attention of the general public. By campaign's end, it was largely forgotten. Now it's come to life aguin.

Following the ruling by Federal District Judge Charles L. Brieant who found New York's second primary at least partially "aimed at preventing minority voters from gaining political power and/or preserving the status quo in the Democratic Party" - Jackson sald his supporters would soon file suits against runoff primaries in several Southern states.

Jackson contends that the Southern second-primary system forcing the two top vote-getters intoa runoff if no one gets 51 percent in the first election — is simply an easy way to exclude blacks from elective office in the South.

Is he right or wrong?

In 1971, Andrew Young filed suit against Georgia's runoff requirement for congressional elections. The courts - including the U.S. Superior Court - dismissed the issues Young raised on technical grounds. Until Brieant's ruling, no court has ever said that runoff or majority-vote requirements were unconstitutional on their face.

But the second primary question is one of those Issues where there is not an absolute right or wrong.

Despite Jackson's contention that second primaries always work against minority interests, they have helped progressive causes and candidates as often as they have

Ten years after he filed suit against it, Andrew Young was elected mayor of Atlanta because he won a second primary.

In 1974, segregationist Lester Maddox would have won the Democratic nomination for governor of Georgia had it not been for a runoff primary. He lost that second election - and the nomination - to George Busbee, a moderate.

William Winter, who left office in Mississippi last year after establishing a record as his state's most progressive governor, won a runoff primary in 1979.

Jackson's argument - that making it easier for blacks to winparty nominations would produce more blacks in Congress, and that blacks are always eliminated in second primaries - won't wash.

In 1982, South Carolina State College professor Ken Mosely beat a white candidate in a runoff to become the Democratic nominee in the 2nd Congressional District. But he lost the general election to a conservative white Republican.

Where blacks are a majority and where there is strict racial block voting, the majority-vote requirement actually helps black can-

Where there is a plurality-vote requirement, whites can agree to back one candidate and impose the equivalent of a majority-vote requirement where none exists.

Cold Drugs Increase Fertility

By Gail Randall

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A sexually active Denver woman never expected much more than relief from bronchitis when her physician prescribed a widely available over-the-counter cough syrup, but soon after filling her prescription she became pregnant.

The woman had taken Robitussin syrup, which contains guaifenisin, a common ingredient of over-thecounter cough remedies. The substance loosens congestion in the lungs.

Fertility specialists, such as Dr. Jerome Check of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, who use the non-prescription drug to help infertile women become pregnant. say the expectorant gualfenesin is a "cheap, safe and effective" fertility

Check, an associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology, said small doses of cough syrup or cold capsules containing guiafenesin can thin cervical mucus, which in som women stops sperm from entering the cervical opening, causing in

"About 30 percent of women with only a cervical mucus problem will correct the problem by using Robitussin alone," said Check, who uses A.H. Robins' Robitussin cough syrup and Winthrop-Breon's Breonesin cold capsules in his research.

Check said other conventional fertility treatments can cost $600 a month "but a bottle of Robitussin costs $1.70,"

Other fertility specialists do not agree the more than 20 brand-name cough remedies and expectorants containing qualfenesin improve a woman's chance of becoming pre-

"I have seen nothing to suggest that the use of guiafenesin improves cervical mucus," said Dr. Anne Wentz, professor of obstetrics and gynecology and director of the division of reproductive endocrinology at Vanderbilt Universi-

Wentz said Check's research lacks academic merit because he did not conduct tests using scientific controls that would identify factors other than cold remedies as reasons women become pregnant.

"If a person has a headache, it is inappropriate to treat the headache until you know the cause of the headache," Wentz said.

Millions Wasted On Injury Claims

By Jack Anderson And

Joseph Spear WASHINGTON - Federal employees should be entitled to collect compensation for legitimate injuries incurred on the job. But the government is wasting millions of dollars each year on excessive claims, and those with real disabilities have every right to be outraged.

The Department of Labor's Office of Workers Compensation - which doled out $1 billion in claims for all federal employees last year — has apparently been pouring money into a bureaucratic sinkhole for more than 10 years. The reasons are incredible. Officials have refused to update their standards for calculating hearing-loss claims. despite numerous government and independent studies criticizing Labor's antiquated guidelines.

An internal draft report by the Navy, obtained by our reporters Corky Johnson and Kenneth Reid, have been saved last year in the military alone - if officials had followed standard medical guidelines when calculating claims.

estimates that $10 million could

Physicians groups, including the American Medical Association, recommend factoring in noise levels associated with normal speech while testing for hearing loss; without that factor, the tests tend to show hearing impairment more often. But the Labor Department has ignored the recommendations.

As early as 1972, a Navy doctor blasted the Labor Department in a memo. "We disagree very strongly with the office's bastardization of the AMA's guide for hearing loss computation," he wrote. In another memo, he identified a "minuse of government funds," after reviewing compensation awards.

In 1978, the General Accounting Office determined that the agency's guidelines "lacked scientific justification." Instead of changing the standards, the Labor Department hired researchers from Ohio State University to study the controversy. The researchers supported the AMA guidelines and suggested that the Labor Department adjust its formula accordingly. That apparently was not what the agency wanted to hear. According to one of the researchers, "They just accepted (the report), and I haven't heard anything since."

The director of Workers Compensation. Larry Rogers, defended his agency's standards and blamed the medical community and others for failing to agree on what noise level represents speech. Rogers added that on the job hearing loss is much harder to determine than other injuries, such as broken bones.

But investigators for several government agencies discovered that claims examiners have given awards to workers who had hearing problems before they went on the public payroll.

The draft Navy report and an Air Force audit listed these examples of wasted payments for hearing loss

- One shippard worker was awarded $11,000 for job-related injuries to his hearing, despite a previous history of ear infections and related problems.

- Another shippard worker received $10,920, even though the Navy claimed it was "well documented" that the employee was not exposed to noise levels high enough to cause hearing loss.

- The Air Force audit identified overpayments of more than $100,000 in just 25 of 48 cases reviewed, and criticized the Labor Department for "paying claimants for hearing losses existing prior to their Air Force employment.

Not only have compensation officials ignored these reports, they have shelved similar warnings from their own scalls,

Free Enterprise - Our Most Ignored Blessing

By Richard M. DeVos Freedoms Foundation Features

It is time for this generation to reassert its belief in free enterprise ... to espouse it, to defend it, to teach it to our young. Free enterprise is our most grandly ignored blessing.

"Capitalism" has become virtually a dirty word in our generation. We wear color-coordinated clothes to airconditioned offices and plants, drive luxury automobiles down superhighways to spacious homes set on land-scaped lawns, sit down to steak dinners before retiring to king-sized beds, yet we hardly give a thought to the system that makes it all possible. We listen to the news on the channels of our choice, worship at whatever church we choose, give to our favorite charities, and wonder if maybe socialism is a better way after all. We hear an ill-informed politician with an axe to grind berate the evils of that monstrous, dog-eat-dog capitalistic system, and wonder if he might be happens when the freedom of people to pursue their own interests is recognized as an inherent right stemming from the Creator, and when that freedom is safeguarded in the structure of the government organization. In the free enterprise system, the manufacturer or businessman owns his own tools, risks his own money, sets his own prices, makes his own decision, and earns or loses money depending on how well he provides the public with a product or service which it wants at a price it is willing to pay.

I want to challenge you to believe in free enterprise - because it does matter that you believe in it, understand it, and teach it.

The only real alternative to free enterprise is socialism or, in the extreme, communism. Under these systems the government owns the tools and factories, sets the prices, employs the workers, and provides the public with the product at a price which the government sets.

An economic system can only be judged by its output. What does it provide for the people? What level of life does it make possible for them?

Compared on that basis, free enterprise is clearly superior to alternative economic systems. Over the last two hundred years, free enterprise has provided more material goods than Very simply put, free enterprise any other system in history. Quality of life - intangibles such as education. arts, recreation, philanthrophy is unprecedented, because only under free enterprise is there enough material wealth left over from survival needs to provide such things. There is no United Fund in Russia because nobody but the government has anything left to give!

One popular blast leveled at free enterprise is that under such a system there are too many wealthy people, yet if the rich become poor everyone has less. The only way for there to be more material wealth in the purse of the have-nots is for there to be more goods produced, and the only way to produce more is to provide incentives for people to work harder and more efficiently.

To suggest that if the rich had less the poor would have more is a fallacy. There simply would be less. Those who hall socialism as a great system because in it all men are equal are right up to a certain degree. Under socialism all men are equal - they are equally poor! That is the clear and trrefutable record of history.

All countries have natural resources. All countries have human energy. But all countries do not have an equivalent share of material wealth. One of the main reasons is that in some systems the people are allowed to own the tools hammers, bulldozers, computers, whatever instruments which allow them to increase their output. In those systems, the tools are better cared for and more efficiently used, there are extra benefits for the development of new and better tools.

When the state controls the tools of production, it controls the people. They become slaves By withholding the tools from them, the state can reduce them to a primitive level. By saying how and when and for what purposes those tools may be used, it can control the life of every man-

The record of history is clear. The free enterprise system has outperformed, outproduced any other in the world. It has provided more goods for more people, more jobs in better conditions, more wealth for less labor. It has left people free to control their own lives, to produce at the rate they choose, and to reap the benefits of their effort. It is a gift of God to us, and we must understand it, embrace it, and believe in it.

Screening Home Helpers

If you're hiring a home companion for an older relative, be sure to check references - relentlessly

That point is stressed by Ruth Galten, a registered nurse and clinical specialist in home care for the National Association for Home Care, "And handwritten references from a grandmother they helped care for are not sufficient." says Ms. Galten "1 would say. Give me the name and phone number of someone who has paid you for this type of service before - no relatives. I want to talk to them."

Families who need a home companion for an older person have two choices: They can hire one through a home health agency or hire on their own. They might have no problem finding someone who's qualified to help and who fits in However, if they make the wrong choice, they may be leaving a loved one vulnerable to physical or verbal abuse, or victimization by a convartist.

We are now on our sixth full time live-in companion," says one woman who has hired care for her mother "Four have been excellent and two have been mediocre, it's really a job trying to do it yourself. The response is overwhelming. The last two times I've advertised, the phone rang off the hook for three weeks continuously."

Here are suggestions from several experts on how to screen a potential home companion and how to monitor the ongoing care that person provides

Require three or four references. including some from people other than former employers - a clergyman, for example. This lessens the chance of getting false references. Get references from professionals, such as physicians nursing services and nursing home or hospital administrators.

Letters of reference tend to give general information - but make some phone calls, because talking to references may give clues. If references seem reluctant to say too much, it may mean they're hestiant to come out and acknowledge that the applicant did a poor job.

Appearance does count. "They should be extremely neat," says Ms. Galten. "If they aren't neat at the interview, they won't be near later,

"You want to learn how that person would respond in an emergency," says Dan Lerman, manager of Home Care and Hospice Services for American Hospital Association, "Ask them what they would do if the person they were caring for suddenly fainted. Are they trained in CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation?? Are they aware of all the community health resources?"

"Have their duties clearly spelled out ahead of time," says Lerman, "so that you don't have headaches, aggravation, disagreements and bitterness developing in the relationship down the line." Probably the best way to monitor the ongoing care that the person you hire gives is through surprise visits. Follow up with phone calls each day so the person will know you are involved.

"But the older person should understand that's why you - the relative - are going to be stopping in," says Ms. Galten, "and they understand that you're checking on the aide, not on them, and then they will accept it." Finally, don't pay a new employee in advance. During the first week, make several visits to evaluate the work, then

People's Attorney

"Thank heaven" for our City Attorney, William Colbert.

The commercial development of the Sanford Middle School vacant lot across the street will have to wait for six weeks to legally advertise the public hearings before the Planning and Zoning board and the city commissioners. Even though a representative of the developer tried to convince the city attorney and city commissioners, after the sixty residents left the hearing, the city attorney held his legal decision. Regardless of what may take place later, the 700 petitioners should "thank heaven" for our city attorney who has given you your legal opportunity to pursue your position. Don't give up you can "fight city hall" and win because our planning and zoning commissioners (your neighbors), our city commissioners and mayor reprehe people of Sanford I was there on another Item and had

Olympian Training Center Will Add Richness To Sanford Life

I am writing this letter to praise. Academy, During that time we spent Sport-Tech, Inc. for its outstanding work presenting the Olympian Training Center concept and in attempting to bring a center of this caliber to Sanford.

To have such a comprehensive. athletic training facility would do nothing but enhance the life of this community. The "cleanness" of this operation will greatly add to the physical, mental and spiritual fiber of Sanford as this facility will serve athletes and families of all ages (beginning level through intercollegiate and Olympic training).

Not only will it serve to train the athletes, it will be open to the public year-round and involve the community at all times.

I've just recently returned from a meeting of the United States Olympic some time in Lake Placid touring the facilities there and talking with some of the athletes preparing for the 1988. games. The community has such a 'richness' about it and the presence of the Olympic Training Center there has added so much to the quality of life in Lake Placid. You catch a glimpse (whether you're an athlete or not) of the Olympic spirit and it carries over into your everyday life.

The spirit gives one the impetus to make the most of God-given talents in what ever field - Citius, Altius. Fortius - to strive to be swifter. higher, stronger in the game of life.

It definitely overflows into the community and affects everyone in the community.

My hat goes off to Jim and Diane Lane, the founder, Bo Abernethy, Jerry Gross and Gene Farrach for the dream and turning it into a reality; for the drive and determination, for the research and long hours put into this.

This is a great project that is being very carefully planned and no stone is being left unturned as we strive to make this a world class facility

That is what it is designed to be and that is what it will be and I'm so proud that Sanford will be its home - what an honor to an already outstanding community!

It is indeed a blessing and a God-send to us and we'll do all we can in supporting and endorsing this Olympian Training Center. We wish God's blessings and all the best to Sport-Tech.

What Newspapers Across The Nation Are Saying

Minority Hiring Act Still A Good Idea

By United Press International Atlanta Constitution

The Reagan administration has by fits and starts stalled and frustrated, but not yet reversed. two decades of progress in civil rights - a circumstance attributable in no small part to an executive order of some 20 years' standing that the president is now being asked to repeal.

Issued in the mid-1960s by President Lyndon Johnson, the order spells out that contractors, to do business with the government, must set numerical goals for minority hiring and promo-

Few acts have as dramatically changed the U.S. workplace for the better. The order covers 35 million employees and nearly all the biggest corporations in America. ...

America has spent 20 years coming as far as it has toward full opportunity for its long-shunned minorities. To end the effort now would leave the job half done and risk backsliding from the effort of two decades. Why would anyone want to do that?

Boston Herald

In the white supremacist context of South African politics President Peter W. Botha's offer to sit down and talk with that country's majority was, perhaps, an historic concession. Made amid threats of international sanctions and international black anrest, it was his best effort yet to calm the violence which threatens to envelope the country.

But his best will, in the end, not be good enough - not if that is all there is. In the past year, some 615 black South Africans have died. victims in one way or another of the hated system. of apartheid and of their own yearnings for a voice in the government that rules their lives.

It will sadden us to see a nation that has been a good friend to the United States torn apart from within. But it appears that from his most recent pronouncements that President Botha intends to do little to stop that inevitable end.

The Hartford (Conn.) Courant

The Federal Communications Commission, which for 36 years has told broadcasters to deal with controversial issues forthrightly and evenhandedly, now says that policy ought to be scrapped. The case for doing so is strong ....

Much has changed since 1949. It's arguable that the fairness doctrine has backfired - that it's obligatory language has discouraged controversial programming. The safest (and cheapest) course for broadcasters has been to avoid provocative issues, and many, if not most, have done just that to the public's detriment.

The FCC seems to be admitting that it can't repeal the fairness doctrine on its own, probably because it was written into federal law in 1959. If that's the case, it will be up to Congress or the courts to finally extend the First Amendment's guarantee of free expression to those whose medium ian't the printed page.

It is just possible that if really severe sanctions lagainst South Africa) were introduced and effectively enforced - a very unlikely prospect indeed - revolution would occur in 75 years rather than 100. In the meantime, South Africa's blacks would have to endure intensified oppression and poverty as the price of their eventual liberation. That would serve the interests neither of the United States nor of morality.

The effect of sanctions is to force a country to be more self-sufficient economically. It then needs to pay less attention to the pressure of outside opinions as a result. Sanctions, once imposed, would liberate (Prime Minister) Botha from having to listen to U.S. protesters or the State

Investment undermines apartheid, It creates jobs, promotions and economic clout for blacks. Sanctions strengthen apartheid by preventing these effects. To impose sanctions would therefore be a very silly way of demonstrating disapproval of what Botha said last week.

Detroit Free Press

The long-awaited speech of South Africa's president, P.W. Botha, on the future of race relations in his country had to disappoint even his supporters in the U.S. Congress. While the fires of revolution threaten to destroy his country. Mr. Botha still offers the black majority only droplets of change - not enough to extinguish the flames or to slow the drive for santions in the United States.

pay for that week only.

Actually, the hopes for a strong statement from Mr. Botha never rested on solld ground. Even while talk circulated that he might begin negotiations with black leaders, events in South Africa suggested he would remain stiff-necked. The home of anti-apartheid activist Winnie Mandela was extensively damaged by firebombs last week, and she has accused the security police of setting the blaze. The bloody toll of black violence in the country also continued its climb. Yet the South African president showed little sign in his speech of understanding why.

Presbyterian Official Urged To Heed Conservative Voices

David E. Anderson UPI Religion Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Unhappy Preshyterian members of Congress have written their top church official to urge the denomination to listen more carefully to the views of conservative grassroots members of the 3.1 million-member church.

The 20 Presbyterians signing the letter to Stated Clerk James Andrews, chief executive of the Presbyterian Church (USA), said they were unhappy with positions on foreign policy and defense taken by the General Assembly, the church's general convention and highest ranking decisionmaking body.

In an Aug. 2 letter to Andrews, made public by Presbyterians for Democracy and Re igious Freedom, the mostly Republican group of House members said the liberal positions on Soviet relations and Central America were "based on misperceptions which have too often be ome accepted as truths." It said the human rights policy of the church rests on a double standard.

"The statements made by the General Assembly suggest that the most urgent human rights concerns are those in nations United States, such as South Africa and El-Salvador," the letter said.

"However, when the General Assembly speaks on U.S. relations with the Soviet Union, the emphasis is not on human rights but rather the need for Americans to be 'less antagonistic' toward the Soviet Union and to question the morality of our resolve to defend our free, democratic nation" the

It accused the General Assembly in failing to "speak out against the manipulation of the church by totalitarian governments. particularly by the Soviet Union and Nicaragua.'

The General Assembly does not seem to be sensitive to the tactics which totalitarian governments have used and continue to use to subvert the church and then cer the church for the government's political gain." the letter said.

The letter also challenges the church's position that the possession of nuclear weapons is "blasphemous and idolatrous," arguing, "There is not only a moral case for deterrence but a moral imperative.

The House members also charged that the where "a democratically based revolution has been subverted and reversed by Marxist-Leninists engaged in a growing military alliance with the Soviet Union and Cuba and world terrorist organizations such as the Red Brigade."

"We would instead urge the General Assembly to pay heed to the voices of Presbyterians across the country, including those represented by ... Presbyterians for Democracy and Religious Freedom," the letter said.

Fifty-six House and Senate members identify themselves as Presbyterians.

Signers of the letter included: Reps. Jerry Solomon, R-N.Y., Hal Daub, R-Neb., Frank Wolf, R-Va., Marvin Leath, D-Texas, Bill Emerson, R-Mo., John J. Duncan, R-Tenn., J. Alex McMillan, R-N.C., Howard Coble, R.N.C., Dick Armey, R-Texas, Elwood Hillis. R-In L. # Not Ali That Glitters Is Divine

Dazzling is the word for both of them. During the Depression 1930s, Father Divine dressed like an underworld prince in $500 silk suits and drove in a chauffeur-driven Rolls. Royce,"Rev. Ike" wears a gold watch, a gold diamond-studded ring, a diamond tie pin and a silver bracelet and has a fleet of Rolls-Royces with mink rugs on the floor. The Rev. Frederick Etkerenkoetter II — his full name - is today's most flamboyant black evangelist. After being in eclipse for several years, his star is now beaming brightly again.

But nobody has ever dazzled like Father Divine. And all that glittered was not gold. It was true that he and his followers literally transported suiteases full of money to the bank, but it was the resplendent luster of Father Divine himself that blinded the eyes. He was God to his disciples.

The black religious leader established his divinity firmly in the minds of his followers in 1931 when he was in jail on a disorderly conduct charge.

The sentence stemmed from some noisy singing Father Divine and 80 of his "angels" were doing one night in a house in Sayville, N.J. Four days after Father Divine went to jail, the judge who had sentenced him dropped dead. He had been a healthy man of 55.

When told of the judge's sudden demise, Father Divine Just shook his head. "I hated to do it," he said . To his followers this left no doubt at all that Father had struck the jurist dead.

Father Divine believed in 'smitting the wicked," with threatening words, not deeds. It is just that his threats often came to pass. Surely this must be God speaking, his worshippers reasoned.

To the end they regarded him as God. When he lay dying in his mansion, his body crippled with arteriosclerosis and wasting away, the word was passed along that he had taken into his own body all the physical afflictions of mankind.

"Isn't that just like Father?" his devoted followers would say.

Celebration The Christians celebrated

their anniversary recently with a day of fellowship and special services at St. Paul Missionary Baptist Church. # Voting Privilege Not To Be Taken Lightly

Great moments in history, the kind that change the way things are done, often go largely unnoticed in the swirling chaos of day-to-day affairs. Such was the case when women got the vote in Seminole County.

A telegram arrived at the Sanford Courthouse Friday, September 3, 1920 from Tallahassee. It read: "All restrictions have been removed from the registration of women in this state for the forthcoming state and national elections, and, in fact, for all elections."

A week earlier, on August 26, 1920, the 19th Amendment to the Constitution had been signed into law, permitting women for the first time to participate in the democratic exercise of selecting their political representatives.

Things have progressed to the point that, 65 years later, women voters in Seminole County now outnumber men - 51,170 to 44,134

Even from the beginning local women took their newfound right seriously. They prepared to excercise that right by holding "voting schools." These "voting schools" showed women how to read and mark a ballot. The schools also educated women concerning the issues and candidates. Although the election was still two months away. Seminole County women went one step further and studied voting laws. As the election drew nearer, The Sanford Daily Herald reported on the activities of Seminole County women preparing to vote for the first On Thursday, October 28, 1920, four days before the election, the paper reported: "That the Chapter E. Acts 1916 Error Seasons: Chapter E. Acts 1915 Error Seasons: Chapter S. Acts 1918. Error Seasons:

> October 30. All afternoon voting instructions were given and speakers lectured women on various campaign issues.

From the Herald the day before the election about the rally held that Saturday: "The meeting last week clearly demonstrated their desire for 'voting knowledge' and when the women of Seminole County go to the polls tomorrow, it is a safe bet they will know how to prepare a ballot within the time limit and with a clearer knowledge of the laws governing a general election than the average voter."

There was one favorable. If somewhat unforseen, side effect of the attention given to women voters. Men became more aware of voting laws, candidates and issues.

On Monday November 1, the Herald reported: "Men generously admit that they, too, have learned much by the systematic and methodical way women have gone about the business of learning to vote intelligently. Tomorrow is election day and it will be a big event in the lives of the women who vote for the first time...

According to a report in the Herald, the first Seminole County woman to vote was the wife of Seminole County Judge Schelle Maines.

Although the records detailing how many Seminole County women actually went to the poils are unclear, the election went off smoothly.

On Wednesday November 3, 1920, the Herald reported: "The election passed off very quietly in Sanford and in every section of the county yesterday. The situation was handled perfectly by the election officers and the efficient force of deputies from the sheriff's office and there could not have been a more orderly election."

The election pitted Warren G. Harding against James M. Cox for the presidency. Harding, a Republican, won in a landslide. And women came down strongly on the side of the winner.

Why'd Killer Kill?, Author Doesn't Say

Somebody's Husband, Somebody's Son: The Story of the Yorkshire Ripper, by Gordon Burn. (Viking, 274) pp., $16.95).

Gordon Born takes the birld, sensational tale of Peter Sutcliffe, the manconvicted of killing 13 prostitutes and other women in England in the 1970s, and wrings all the life out of it, leaving only a dispassionate recitation of facts.

His tone never varies as he goes from describing a scene in which Sutcliffe is visiting his aged aunts on the holidays to one in which he, all of a sudden and without any warning, unsuccessfully attacks his first woman with a hammer.

He never tries to explain Suicliffe's actions, never tries to put them in any context and never tries to make any podgments about his behavior, which was apparently what he intended

In his acknowledgments. Burn says the book is "a fate and booest attemnt to establish the truth about Peter Sutcliffe and the events surrounding his life," Unfortunately, the cold distilling of the Jacts about Peter Sutcliffe's life do not establish the truth.

Burn makes no attempt to determine whether Sutcliffe really believed he heard voices (the issue is never raised until the last chapters of the book that describe his trial) or simply killed women because of the perverse satisfaction it gave him.

Burn painstakingly details Sutcliffe's

Novel Is In-Depth Character Study

Carpenter's Gothle, by William Gaddis, (Viking, 262 pp., $16,95).

"Carpenter's Gothic" is an in-depth character study written in a highly complex arrangement of prose poetry, streams of conclousness, and dialogues. The serious reader will be rewarded for showing patience through the opening sequence, which is composed entirely of conversations held in a rented 90-yearold house outside New York.

Liz, whose tycoon father built a huge fortune out of African mining interests, is married to Paul, a manie Vietnam-eraholdover who is obsessed with empire building schemes. Billy, her younger brother serves as narrator of the family situation.

One is soon enough aware of the layers of meaning assigned to the crumbling structure of the house and the lives held therein. In fact, "carpenter's gothic" is an architectural description of a structure built with grand intentions but limited

The house is owned by McCandless. whose role in the goings on expands out of the mysteries of a locked room. The entire story takes place inside the house and inside the characters - their innermost thoughts and leclings as revealed by what they have to say to each other.

The focus of a greater part of their interaction is the politics of power. Manipulation is portrayed not only on a global scale, but on the personal level as well, and in a most illuminating way, African politics and history are but part of what is going on.

"Carpenter's Gothic" is a multidimensional work that demands total attention and concentration from the

Where Ordinary Folks Play With Machine Guns

By Bill Lohmann UPI Feature Writer

MARIETTA, Ga. (UPI) - Paul Katz, a T-shirt salesman, shoved a clip into the machine gun, embraced the weapon like an old friend and eyed a bystander.

"Go ahead," grinned Katz, "Make my The scene is not Beirut, the jungles of Central America or even the set of a Rambo

The rat a lat tat of this machine gun fire reverberates through the BulletStop, an automatic weapons store and unique indoor shooting gallery in the suburbs of Atlanta. At the BulletStop, the trigger fingers belong to ordinary folks and the targets are bowling pins and paper Shiites. "There's a little Walter Mitty in all of us," says Paul LaVista, 38, a security specialist and weapons exporter who opened the BulletStop earlier this year and has been staggered by its success. "The people who come in here are just working stiffs. This is a bit of a fantasy island for them," he said. "They've all seen 'Rambo,' but that's not in their reach. What we do is put it within their reach."

Customers can rent and fire a variety of LaVista's war like guns. There's the Heckler & Koch MP-5, a West German-made machine gun that has surpassed the Israeli Uzi as the gun of choice for the Secret Service and the Army's elite Delta Strike Force. Among other rental choices are the Uzi, a Tommy gun and an Ingram MAC-10.

While such big-time weaponry is normally associated with armies, gansters and terrorists, at the BulletStop they are part of an adult game that is becoming a big hit.

"I thought I was taking sort of a risk (by opening the shop), thinking that my customers would come from a group that was rather limited," said LaVista, who has spent time in Vietnam and Central America, and, most recently, Grenada and the Dominican Republic, "It surprisingly was not."

The BulletStop is hardly a hangout for 'subversives'', as one customer put it.

Chuck Lightfoot, 53, a wine importer and veteran of the Korean War, parks his 1961. silver and black Rolls Royce outside the BulletStop.

"It's sex, pure sex." said Lightfoot. "Excitement and fantasy, It's much more exhilerating than a three-martini lunch."

Said Katz, 36, who was making his first trip to the BulletStop with a co-worker, "I would never think of going out and shooting a living thing, but I like guns. The only thing is, a BB-gun in the backyard just doesn't make enough noise."

LaVista said the thrill of cutting loose with a clip from an automatic weapon lures everybody. "A lot of older people say it really gets the adrenaline flowing."

A shot of adrenaline doesn't come cheap at the BulletStop. Guns rent for $10 a session and the ammunition sells for $10 a box. A box of ammo might last only a few silence-shattering seconds on one of the rapid-fire weapons.

For 50 cents, patrons can further their enjoyment with a target - an old bowling pin, a life-size picture of a kidnapper holding a gun to a woman's head or a shadowy drawing of a terrorist that was dubbed the "resident Shitte" by customers after the TWA hijacking in Beirut.

"He's become the favorite," said LaVista. The pure power of the guns and the exhilaration of firing them can make people a little crazy.

"One guy had this Chinese-made computer printer that never worked," LaVista said. "He brought it in and cut lose. Tore it

Another customer, tired of his old vacuum cleaner, brought it in for a mercy killing.

LaVista, whose shop is federally licensed. says he runs "a tight ship," and packs a chrome-plated .45-caliber automatic on his hip to keep things that way. No one can simply saunter out of the BulletStop with an Uzi. Weapons are never left unattended and a trained employee is always with the hibition gives a glimpse of that struggle: the table on which the Seneca Falls "Declaration of Sentiments" was written; the desk used by suffragist Susan B. Anthony who devoted 54 years to the cause; picketers' banners; parade posters and sashes, fans ("Keep Cool and Raise a Breeze for Suffrage") and a Washington, D.C. jail key to the cells where suffragist demonstrators were imprisoned in 1917.

Organized efforts to secure the vote for women began in 1867 with a state referendum in Kansas It failed But in 1869, Wyoming became the first state to enfranchise women and two national suffrage associations were formed, later merging under President Susan B. Anthony to become the National American Woman's Suffrage Associa-

Universal suffrage, many women hoped, would become a reality through victory state by And so, according to records kept by suffrage leader Carrie Chapman Catt, there were 47 campaigns to convince state constitutional conventions to write suffrage into their constitutions, 277 campaigns to adopt suffrage in state party platforms and 480 efforts to ask state legislatures to submit suffrage amendments to their voters. By 1913, nine states, all west of the Mississippi, had enfranchised women.

Confronted in 1916 with seemingly endless stalemate and questionable vote recounts in some states, historian Eleanor Flexner explains in her book, Century of Struggle, "the eyes of more and more suffragists began turning to Washington, where in the nation's capital, a new suffrage venture was under way."

That year, 5,000 NAWSA members lobbled the Republican Convention to get suffrage on the platform. Meanwhile, auffragists continued to "work on" Congress, although interest in the federal suffrage amendment was at an all-time low, Flexner

The opposition that confronted suffragists on both state and national fronts was formidable: political parties that could not be sure of winning if women were enfranchised, big-city political machines suspicious of women's desires to "clean up" politics. brewers and liquor lobbles concerned that women voters would support prohibition, wealthy "antis" (as suffragist opponents were called) who argued that women whose place was in the home, and Southern politicians who did not want newlyenfranchised women calling attention to their racially discriminatory voting policies. And there was the psychological barrier, Mayo adds, of a society "based on women in private rather than in public roles."

Despite the obstacles, the movement steadily gained ground. The role of women changed as millions entered the work force during World War I. Gradually, both men and women came to believe in the equity of a democracy which allowed all citizens to vote.

In addition, suffrage activities were becoming more visible to the public. Newspapers of the day were saturated with suffrage stories. Parades, conventions, auto pilgrimages and pickets were organized by both factions of the movement - the mainstream NAWSA and the National Woman's Party, an activist group headed by Alice Paul, a social worker and suffragist who had been trained in the militant British women's

In 1917, the first suffrage pickets, organized by the Woman's Party, stood silently outside the White House gates with banners asking Woodrow Wilson, "Mr. President, What Will You Do For Woman Suffrage?" It was the first time any group had picketed the White House, and crowd reactions ranged from curiousity to sympathy.

However, as the nation entered World War I and as the suffragists' signs grew bolder and were perceived as unpatriotic, onlookers became violent. Although the women were not the perpetrators of this violence, they were the ones who were arrested - and Jailed. By year's end, 97 women were serving terms of up to six months. The charge: obstructing sidewalk

By 1918, 11 states, including New York which was crucial to the movement's success, had granted "full suffrage" (as opposed to presidential suffrage). in May 1919, Cungress passed the suffrage amendment and it was then ratified by the states. In August 1920, the amendment became law, 26 million American women became voters and the NAWSA was renamed the League of Women Voters.

Thus ended a 72-year effort and began a new women's battle, as Carrie Chapman Catt put it, for entry through the "locked door" of political parties. "If you really want your vote to count," Catt told suffragists in voting would place a burden on 1920, "make your way there."

The free market, which was in many ways their most valuable resource, was the only resource they left unprotected from themselves. And so the people of the United States gradually became less free, less enterprising, and less prosperous.
