Teapot Dome Scandal Becomes all-Inclusive as More Incriminated

Names of Prominence from Nated Publisher to Former President Are Linked in Testimony to Oil Investigation Case.

VANDERLIP TELLS

Of Participation in Deal For Sale of Harding Newspapers, Causal Surprise and Intense Excitement Throughout Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior, quoted Thursday before the oil committee as saying that Secretary Fall considered it "unnecessary" to have Attorney General Daugherty to pass on the validity of the oil leases before being made. The testimony given by Oscar Sutor, counsel for the Standard Oil Company of California, is held by the committee to suggest that Mr. Finney's reply, "continued the witness" was that it was not the wish of the secretary of the interior. No, I don't think that expresses it. He said the secretary of the interior considered it unnecessary to have the opinion of the attorney general.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—White Frank Vanderlip waited to testify regarding his references to the sale of President Harding's Marion Hotel, the senate oil committee heard from other witnesses. John O. Shaffer, publisher of the Chicago Evening Post, testified that Secretary Fall told him in March, 1921, the very month he entered the cabinet, that he was going to lease Teapot Dome to Sinclair. Teapot Dome then was not under Fall's jurisdiction. A letter written before the leases were made, and addressed to Mr. Fall, declared the writer "understood" Attorney General Daugherty had given an informal opinion upholding the leasing policy. Mr. Daugherty previously had denied giving an opinion. Oscar Sutor, counsel for the Standard Oil Company of California, testified that he suggested that Assistant Secretary Finney of the interior department, that an opinion be obtained from Daugherty but that Mr. Finney replied that Secretary Fall thought it unnecessary.

Daugherty Investigation Ground work for a sweeping investigation of the administration of Attorney General Daugherty, particularly his failure to act in the oil scandal and other matters, was laid in a resolution presented by Senator Wheeler, Dem., Montana.

Steps were taken by the oil committee to question, probably tomorrow Oscar Sutor, counsel for the Standard Oil Company of California, regarding his statement that his and other oil companies refrained from bidding on the Fall oil lease because they considered the leasing policy to be without authority in law.

A subpoena was issued for Karl C. Schuyler, a Denver attorney, to produce correspondence relating to Teapot Dome, which was described to the committee as sensational. J. Leo Stack, a Denver oil operator, followed up previous testimony of an understanding between Harry F. Sinclair and Standard Oil interests by testifying that he had been informed a week beforehand by officials of the Pioneer Oil Company that Sinclair would get Teapot Dome.

Golf Tournament Is Postponed; Will Be Held Friday, Feb. 22

Because Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen will be in Winter Park next Thursday and many Sanford golfers are planning to motor there to witness the two stars play, it has been decided to postpone until Friday the golf tournament scheduled to be held at the Sanford Country Club on that day.

This will enable all those who are planning to attend the match, to see Sarazen and Hagen play on Thursday. In the meantime plans for the tournament will be completed so that it may be held the next day. Otis George, local professional, stated Thursday that unusual interest is being shown in the coming tournament and predicts that it will be a great success. Many have signified their intention of entering the tournament, he declared.

A review of the celery situation in the Sanford section which is most comprehensive, has just been prepared by E. H. Scruggs, local representative of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics and has received the official approval of that department. This article, which was written for the official paper of the department, "Crops and Markets," has been given the honor of publication by Mr. Scruggs.

The review is as follows: Preliminary estimates by Federal reporters place the commercial celery acreage in Florida at 3,820 acres. Comparative figures for 1922 and 1923 were 2,920 and 3,200 acres respectively. Last year the Sanford Section comprising the whole of Seminole county shipped 4,633 cars of celery while the Manatee-Bradenton Section moved 1,531 cars. The total shipments amounted to 6,398 cars leaving only 234 cars or four per cent for the other light shipping districts in Florida.

The Federal market reporter in Sanford learns that a heavier movement is expected this year for the Sanford Section and the state as a whole. The total is estimated by reliable members of the trade at 6,000 to 7,000 cars. A movement of 4,800-5,000 cars is expected from the Sanford Section providing the weather conditions are favorable and the heavy labor duties constituted the most serious obstacle to the development of shipping. Senator Fletcher said if President Coolidge persisted in the policy followed by Presidents Wilson and Harding—a refusal to carry out the direction of congress that they be abrogated—congress would be asked to annul the agreement by specific statute. Senator Fletcher declared the policy under which the board has been operated since 1919 was "designed for self destruction."

Senator Fletcher quoted actuarial figures of the board as having reported a profit of $81,000,000 for the year ending May, 1919, from which point he said a retrogression set in until the present annual deficit of $50,000,000 was reached. He characterized the intervening period as comprising "a shameful record." "In May, 1919," Senator Fletcher said, "the controller's office in the shipping board included 78 employees; under Mr. Lasker's reorganization they increased to 1,000."

Investigation of the administration of the shipping board, called for in a resolution introduced by Representative Davis, Dem., Tennessee, "will be welcomed by me and I believe all other members of the board," Chairman O'Connor said today in discussing statements made in connection with the proposed inquiry.

"We consider the records of the board as public records," said the chairman, "and we will be glad to turn them over whenever congress wishes."

Regarding the published report that the seven 502-foot steamers recently sold by the board to the Dollar Steamship Company brought a price of only $5.24 a ton, Mr. O'Connor said, "This statement is such a manifest perversion of fact that it calls for prompt correction."

Mexican Rebellion Is Virtually Ended

ESTRADAS, Mex., Feb. 14.—Rebellious forces were continuing their disorderly retreat after their decisive reverse suffered at Ocotlan while the scattered remnants of the Vera Cruz insurrectionist army were fleeing northward into Tampam and southward toward Oaxaca and Isthmian states, Gen. Francisco Serrano, the secretary of war, said. Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, stated on Wednesday night. "The rebellion must be considered virtually ended," Secretary Serrano said.

FLETCHER WANTS NEW POLICY FOR MERCHANT FLEET

Senate Sees Good Chance For New Merchant Marine Policy in Considering Present Pact With Germany.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—An opportunity will be given the senate to establish a new merchant marine policy in its consideration of the pending commercial treaty with Germany, Senator Robinson, Dem., Arkansas, declared Wednesday. If the right to impose discriminating duties on American commerce is to be asserted, he said, "convention will have to be made in many grave particulars, many other similar agreements denounced and new ones negotiated."

Fletcher Makes Speech The treaty with Germany was the subject of informal discussion during a speech by Senator Fletcher, Dem., Florida, on the affairs of the shipping board. Declaring the existence of most favored nation clauses in about 26 treaties restraining freedom of action by the United States in imposing tariff duties constituted the most serious obstacle to the development of shipping, Senator Fletcher said if President Coolidge persisted in the policy followed by Presidents Wilson and Harding—a refusal to carry out the direction of congress that they be abrogated—congress would be asked to annul the agreement by specific statute. Senator Fletcher declared the policy under which the board has been operated since 1919 was "designed for self destruction."

Senator Fletcher quoted actuarial figures of the board as having reported a profit of $81,000,000 for the year ending May, 1919, from which point he said a retrogression set in until the present annual deficit of $50,000,000 was reached. At the meeting last Tuesday the club planned a much greater activity for the coming season. The covers will cost $1.50. A great spread as well as an attractive program will be provided. This will be a "get-together" meet and it is expected that at least 200 Nobles will attend.

Bryan Declares Big Business Will Shift Support Underwood to Davis Democratic Candidate of Virginia

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14.—That big business is likely to find Underwood hopeless as a candidate and shift its support to John W. Davis, is the opinion expressed by William Jennings Bryan, in an interview given today by Bryan said. "Hon. John W. Davis, former ambassador to Great Britain, has been presented by the state committee of his state as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president. He has been endorsed by papers like the New York Times, which represents big business. There is very little to be gained from Mr. Underwood to Mr. Davis as Mr. Underwood's candidacy becomes more and more hopeless."

Soldier Bonus To Be Discussed At a Mass Meeting Here

Sponsored by the members of the Campbell-Losing Post, American Legion, a mass meeting will be held Saturday night at 8 o'clock at First Street and Park Avenue in the interests of the bonus question.

All over the country, it is said, legion posts are holding mass meetings of this nature in order to acquaint the people with the actual facts concerning this question which is of such great importance at this time. Many posts in this state have already held meetings and others are planning to in the near future.

Statements as to its merits and answers to attacks that have been made upon it by so-called moneyed interests, have been published in advertisements in many of the papers.

Members of the Sanford Post believe that there are many people of this city and county who are not thoroughly familiar with the question and have been influenced against the bonus because of certain well timed propaganda directed toward its defeat in congress.

At the present time the question of the soldiers' bonus is one of great moment. It has been the center of a great fight in congress since the opening of the present session. Many hot debates have been held as to its merits. American Legion posts throughout the country, taking due cognizance of repeated efforts to annul the act, have decided to tell the citizens the true facts.

Saturday night's meeting of course is open to everyone. It will be presided over by Judge George G. Herring, who is expected to speak, giving figures and statistics in support of the bonus.

There will also be another speaker but who it will be was not announced by those in charge of the arrangements of the meeting. However it is assured that it will be some one who is thoroughly familiar with the question and one who will present the issue from several viewpoints. It is said he will tell exactly why some of the most prominent men of the country are fighting the bonus and why some reasons are advanced for it.

Just what the outcome of the meeting will be, is not known and what effect it will have on public opinion in this vicinity cannot be given. However the members of the local post declare that those who attend will learn some things about the bonus which will come as new information on the subject. In other words the meeting will serve as an "eye-opener," as it was expressed by one member.

Night Sessions May Be Held In Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—If members of the house don't tire soon of talking so much, night sessions will be held in an effort to get somewhere with legislation.

Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, announced on Wednesday a determination to resort to a "gas-light" schedule if debate which lately has been covering about every subject under the sun continues to delay votes on important measures.

SEPARATIST DEAD NOW PLACED AT 16 MANY INJURED

Government Building, Refuge of Separatists Is Sprayed with Benzene and Burning Resulting in Hand to Hand Fight.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 14.—Kaiserlautern and other centers of the Palatinat are continuing in a state of disorder and it is feared a general uprising against the Separatists will break out today. The French are remaining neutral but the traffic over the Rhine near Ludwigshafen has been stopped to prevent the Germans in the unoccupied territory from coming to the support of the Palatinat population.

Fourteen mutilated bodies have been recovered from the ruins of barracks, or government buildings, and two wounded died Wednesday night bringing the number of Separatists known dead to 16 in consequence of Tuesday's massacre. Forty Separatists were inside the building when it was attacked. Seven of the remaining 24 are receiving hospital treatment, some being seriously wounded but others are unaccounted for. Traffic over the Rhine bridges of the Palatinat has been stopped and placed under orders of the occupation forces. Persons participating in the attack will be tried in courtmartial at Dusseldorf.

Sprayed With Benzene The government building in which the Separatists had taken refuge, was sprayed with benzene and was soon on fire. Then part of the crowd forced its way to the upper rooms where there was hand-to-hand fighting with the Separatists until they surrendered.

When escorted outside the building, the frenzied mob fell upon the Separatists and bent them to death including their leader, Schwab, and his adjutant. Their bodies were thrown into the flames of the burning building.

A man hunt in the streets of Pirmasens followed, and any Separatists found quickly shared the fate of his comrades.

French Troops Neutral The government French troops remained perfectly neutral during the fighting and that it was not until 5 o'clock Wednesday morning that French Moroccan reinforcements surrounded the burning government building.

People of Sanford Send Large Number Valentines Today

Today is St. Valentine's Day! That it was fittingly observed in Sanford is testified to by Postmaster J. P. Hall, who declared that he and his corps of assistants as a result of the large number of Valentine letters sent out have been fairly swamped.

The custom of observing St. Valentine's Day is centered around very interesting bit of fact and fiction mixed. It is declared that Saint Valentine, the patron saint of lovers, was beaten to death with clubs and beheaded at the close of the third century, a fact doubtless unknown to many of the devotees of the pretty custom which exists of sending lace-enveloped, sentimental sonnets and lovers' favors to sweethearts and other dear ones on Saint Valentine's Day—Feb. 14.

The ancient Romans may be safely accredited with originating the custom of keeping this day apart for lovers; however, their celebration honored Juno, daughter of Saturn, goddess of marriages; and Pan, son of Mercury, god of shepherds and farmers; and occurred in the second month of the year—February.

When the day of revelry and feasting was nearing its close—the names of young women were dropped into a hat or a suitable receptacle—then the ambitious youth secured his fate by drawing therefrom the name of a maiden who had no choice but to answer henceforth the beck and call of her new master.

History tells us that when the Romans took a day off they usually "made a day" of it—and so far-reaching and demoralizing in effect did the custom bid fair to become that the religious influences sought to break up the pagan tendency; therefore, the day was dedicated by them to St. Valentine, a Roman saint of that period, whose tragic end added another martyr to the annals of that day.

So far as records go, this custom continued in more or less varied form until we hear of it again in the sixteenth century through the diary of Samuel Pepys—whose wit and humor have been revived by present day columnists. Pepys commented in his diary on the custom which also is the subject of a charmingly affectionate as "poor wretch," who vowed that she had accumulated Valentine trinkets and favors the worth of which was well-nigh 150 pounds.

Each succeeding generation, in the mode of its day, continued to pay tribute to the martyred saint on his natal day by outpouring affection on adored ones. The youth of the twentieth century confines his expressions of ardour to sweet sentiments on lace paper foundations, with cooling doves, dangling red hearts and colorful flowers as decorations.

Florida People Want Enforcement Of Law Says Frank Jennings

PUNTA GORDA, Feb. 14.—"The people of Florida want law enforcement," said Frank E. Jennings, Jacksonville candidate for governor, Wednesday, in discussing the content for the Democratic nomination. "Law enforcement, reappropriation, road building and Everglades drainage are among the most important problems before the people of the state, as a whole. Reports from every section of the state show that I am now well in the lead in the contest for the nomination."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Failure of the Mellon tax plan to increase personal exemption credits was cited Wednesday by Senator Harris, Dem., Georgia, as the principal objection to that measure held by many Democrats. The bill proposed by the house minority would have gone further toward removing taxation from small earned incomes, he said, and thus would have benefited millions "instead of a few millionaires."

GARNER PLAN FIRMLY BACKED BY DEMOCRATS

Unit in Party Caucus to Stand in Unit Behind Tax Revision Program Proposed by Garner as Substitute for Mellon Plan.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Secretary Mellon in a letter Thursday to President Coolidge declared and founded the charges of Senator Borah, Republican of New Hampshire, that the bill had been duplicated in the Bureau of Engraving. At the same time it was announced that Major William Kirby of the Army Engineering Corps had been detailed Thursday to act as Director of the Bureau, succeeding Louis N. Hill, whose resignation has been accepted.

Secretary Mellon Thursday called the debt funding commission to meet Monday by which time the whole question of policy in respect to future dealings with the foreign debtors will be considered.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The revenue bill carrying complete revision of the federal tax rates was taken up in the house today under an agreement to close general debate Wednesday at 5 o'clock in the afternoon after which the bill will be read and open to amendment. Opposition to the main provisions of the bill, including income tax sections, which already comprise 207 Democrats, as a unit, result of party caucus vote yesterday strengthened today the attitude of the Republican insurgent group. The Democratic insurgent group provided a 50 per cent reduction in normal taxes and maximum surtax rate of 44 per cent instead of 25 per cent cut in normal income rates and maximum surtax of 25 per cent in the Mellon bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Democrats of the house bound themselves Wednesday night by a party caucus vote to stand as a unit for the tax revision program proposed by Representative Garner, Dem., Texas, as a substitute for the Mellon plan. The revenue bill carrying the income tax rates proposed by Secretary Mellon will be taken up in the house Thursday under general debate.

The action of the Democrats means that if the 435 members of the house vote on the income tax rates section of the bill, at least 206, 12 less than a majority, will be cast for the Garner plan providing for a 50 per cent cut in normal taxes and a maximum surtax rate of 44 per cent applying to incomes of $92,000 and over.

Of 168 Democrats at the caucus 164 approved the action to bind the members. Rules of the membership provide that if two-thirds of the party membership approve of such an action it will be binding on the entire party unless a member shows that he had made a pledge to his constituents prior to election which would be violated by carrying out the party edict.

Representative Deal of Virginia was the only member excused on sick leave. Several others were granted permission to vote for amendments to the revenue bill which would provide for higher surtax rates than the Garner plan, but if these were not accepted they were bound then to support the Democratic program.

The Mellon income tax rates placed in the bill in committee provided for a 25 per cent cut in normal taxes and for a maximum surtax rate of 25 per cent.

W. Vickery and Wednesday was hauled before Judge Householder charged with carrying a gun without a license. He received a fine of $25 and costs.

AT THE MILANE

A whole royal family in one picture.
Frequently happens that the "queen" of Rutland, Neb., practices a whim to which wealthy persons are subject, and appears before the movie camera; or the "crown queen" of Scranton may be discovered playing extra parts. But the royalties which will be open in Maurice Tourneur's production of "The Christian," which shows at the Milane theatre today, are not dependent for their titles upon commercial ratings and American journalists. They are no less persons than their Majesties and King and Queen of England, and His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, who in scenes taken in London, and on the road to Epsom Downs, race track on the day of the great Derby. This is only one of the numerous advantages gained by the Goldenwyn company in sending Richard Dix, Mae Busch and a company abroad for three months. The great thing is the supreme air of verisimilitude of the scenes taken in the exact locations of the novel, on the Isle of Man, in London, and in other parts of the British Isles.

Rawlings Tries To Escape From State Road Camp, Reported

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. Feb. 13. Frank Rawlings, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of a Jacksonville theater manager, has been caught in the act of trying to escape from the State Road Camp No. 3, at Westville, according to information received by the state prison office. The captain of the camp, C. E. King, in reporting the attempted getaway, said Rawlings, with another prisoner, had been put in the solitary confinement cell for disobeying rules and for refusing to work. While thus confined, both men were discovered to have cut holes in the floor of the cell, and probably would have escaped but for the watchfulness of Captain King. Special instructions have been issued by the prison department that a strict watch be kept on Rawlings and that he must not be permitted to get away.

FROM Kotchikan in the southeast to Nome in the northwest defines the long and hazardous trail of Miss Ebba Djuppe, American Red Cross field representative in Alaska. It is a stretch of 1,400 miles as the crow flies. By boat and dog sled she gravitates out across the mountains with her Indians to the Arctic Circle with its Eskimos and midnight sun. This Red Cross nurse halts at nothing in her task of organizing the work and services of the eleven Chapters of the American Red Cross that thrive in "Seward's Ice Box" as the Alaskan Peninsula was cynically designated at the time the United States purchased from Russia this land of limitless resources. The Indians and Eskimos, and all the others pioneering in this vast territory, Miss Djuppe declares, are "the most lovable people." Duty requiring a steamboat trip up the Yukon river from Nome, and the ordinary equipment of the vessel threatening to starve her, Miss Djuppe signed as "ship's cook," and reports that "the loveliest part of this new occupation is that I will save almost $100 of steamboat fare for the Red Cross."

Arriving at an Indian village from which calls for assistance for the sick adults and children had been sent out, she found nothing but the school building habitable and the place where the sick were congregated in a deplorable condition. There was only one small room to accommodate the suffering and the Indian women immediately surrounded the cabin, curious to see the stranger come to act the "medicine man." The needs of health services among the Indians and Eskimos in remote Alaska are very urgent and the death rate among the infants appalling, but through the Red Cross field service in the territory the worst conditions are being attacked with vigor and with encouraging results. The spirit of this Red Cross service in this difficult field is best expressed by Miss Djuppe, who writes: "Some days I have come back to my room feeling just heart sick, and then I have said: 'This is the reason I am here.' When I came to a spot they call a village I almost gave way to dejection; but then, that is the reason why I am here, else the American Red Cross certainly never would have given me the chance to be the chief steward on a steamboat with four Eskimos to take my orders."

Geneva Resident To Be A Candidate For County Commissioner

Through inadvertence it was stated in Tuesday's issue of The Herald that C. Raulerson of Geneva would be a candidate for County Commissioner from the fifth district subject to the Republican primary to be held June 3. In justice to Mr. Raulerson, who is a pioneer resident of this county and a life-long Democrat, this paper gladly corrects this error. Mr. Raulerson, of course, will make the race subject to the will of the voters in the Democratic primary of June 3. Mr. Raulerson was urged to make the race by a host of friends and admirers who predict that he will win handsily. The district which he seeks to represent on the county board includes Chuluota, Geneva and Osceola.

COOLIDGE SPEAKS

Continued from page 1. contributing causes to the agricultural depression. Mr. Coolidge traced the steps taken to decrease and put in order the national debt through retirement and refunding of domestic securities; through the co-ordination of the budget, and by making "every reasonable effort to secure the liquidation of our international debt." These steps have had the result of permitting a decrease in taxes and the Mellon plan was evolved, he said. The provisions of this plan, now embodied in a bill before congress, Mr. Coolidge asserted, "are non-partisan, well thought out and sound. He endorsed the proposal to reduce surtaxes to a maximum of 25 per cent, "not that small incomes may be required to pay more and large incomes be required to pay less but that more revenue may be secured from large incomes and taxes on small incomes may be reduced." He was opposed, he said, "to material alteration and compromise" because he wished "to give all the people all the relief" which the bill proposes.

"I stand on the simple proposition that the country is entitled to all the relief from the burden of taxation which it is possible to give." He continued: "The proposed measure gives such relief. Other measures which have been brought forward do not meet this requirement. You have heard of the Garner plan. Brought forward to have something different, purported to relieve the greatest number of taxpayers. It gave not the slightest heed to the indirect effect of high taxes, or to the approaching drying up of the source of revenue and the consequent failure of the progressive income tax, or to the destruction of business initiative. It is impossible in practice."

Mr. Coolidge said he wanted to remind the people that "unless they make their wishes known to congress without regard to party this bill (the Mellon bill) will not pass," and he urged them "to renewed efforts." Starting up his opposition to the bonus, he said: "It would mean the indefinite postponement of any tax reduction, another increase in the cost of living, more drying up of the sources of credit, and a probable raising of the rates of interest—all of which would result in inflation and higher prices, with the grave danger of ultimate disaster to our economic system."

Discussing the administration's policy of selling arms to Mexico, Mr. Coolidge said: "It was done, not for the purpose of protecting any particular individual or interest, but to exercise a legal right, while at the same time throwing our influence in favor of orderly procedure and evidencing our friendship toward the friendly government of Mexico. Any other course would appear to me to be unworthy of our country." Mr. Coolidge also mentioned the participation of Americans in the reparation commission's endeavor to solve the reparations question and declared investment of surplus American capital abroad should be encouraged.

What Do You Know About the "Bonus"?

The following letter was written to Chairman Green of the Ways and Means Committee, by John Thomas Taylor, Vice Chairman of the National Legislative Committee of the American Legion:

My Dear Judge:

In the newspapers of November 12th, there appears a letter to you from the Treasury Department, containing recommendations for proposed legislation dealing with suggested tax reductions, but which is in fact a personal and direct attack upon the Soldiers' Adjusted Compensation measure, which will, as heretofore, be considered by your Committee in the early days of the 68th session of Congress.

This letter has brought to light the real issue, although this is not the issue which the Secretary intended to have raised when he made his letter public. That issue is simply this—

Shall twenty-two thousand millionaires, men who profited greatly out of the war, have their income taxes further reduced by $85,000,000 a year—or shall five million soldiers and their families be now paid the just debt owed them by the nation for five years?

This is the real issue which Mr. Mellon has brought up, although, in order to make the public agreeable to cutting sur taxes on net incomes between fifty thousand and one million a year, he has prepared a schedule which would also reduce the income tax of the average taxpayer.

Of course, Mr. Mellon knows that the Treasury Department does not enact income tax laws—this is the sole function of the congress, and is initiated by the great committee of which you are chairman. Of course you know—as Mr. Mellon well calculated when he published his letter to you—that the statements he made are inaccurate, but were deliberately injected for the purpose of continuing his fight against the Soldiers' Adjusted Compensation Measure.

His statement that there can be no reduction in federal taxes if the Adjusted Compensation Bill becomes a law is absurd on the face of it, and on a parity with his miscalculations in government finances for three years. According to the figures prepared by the Treasury Department for the Senate Finance Committee, the Soldiers' Measure will cost $202,000,000 for the first three-year period, or an average of slightly more than $80,000,000 a year.

Through his inaccurate and misleading use of figures, Mr. Mellon has sought to make the public believe that the question up for consideration is whether fourteen million citizens may have their income taxes reduced, or whether the Soldiers' Adjusted Compensation can be paid. But out of his own mouth, and his own official statements, it is shown that these tax reductions which he schedules for the fourteen million taxpayers who are not millionaires, can be reduced exactly as he indicates, and the Adjusted Compensation Bill can be paid at the same time. The real nub of the situation is the $85,000,000 a year which Mr. Mellon wants to again cut off the income taxes of the war millionaires, in addition to offering tax reductions to the average citizens.

The proposed cut of $85,000,000 a year for the millionaires will pay the Adjusted Compensation Bill year by year, although Mr. Mellon proposes tax reductions of $323,000,000 a year, or four times the sum needed to pay it. You know this and Mr. Mellon knows it, so what can be his purpose in telling the public that $80,000,000 a year in payments for Adjusted Compensation, will prevent tax reduction of $323,000,000 a year, or four times that sum?

His purpose is of course apparent. He wants to again fool the people; he wants to get their backing, under misapprehension of the facts, for his plan to cut the big millionaires' taxes, so he is forced to include the little fellow in his tax reductions plans. Then, having included the little fellow, the ordinary taxpayer for once, he attempts to deceive the little taxpayer, the ordinary citizen, into thinking that he will not get his taxes cut if the honest and square thing is done by the soldier.

Mr. Mellon has gotten the habit of allowing his zeal to overcome his mathematics when he issues statements opposing the Soldiers' Measure. His anxiety for the big financial interests and his desire to defeat Adjusted Compensation, has led him in the past to give the Congress and the President official statements, as a guide for their actions, concerning the country's financial condition, which he later had to admit, to say the least, were wholly inaccurate. However, he got them over as official statements at the time, and they did their work in spite of the fact that they misrepresented the situation.

It is unpardonable for the Secretary to try to fool the nation into believing an untruth—that $80,000,000 taken from $323,000,000 leaves actually nothing at all. Yet, in his desire to defeat the Soldier Measure, he now attempts to again deceive the people (for, of course, he is not trying to deceive you), and make them think that $80,000,000 actually equals $323,000,000 instead of being only one-fourth of it.

Because of your long service on the Ways and Means Committee you, of course, recall some of these official miscalculations of Mr. Mellon, for their history is officially recorded in The Congressional Record. Doubtless his error—or miscalculation, if you please—of $959,000,000 which he made in estimating last year's fiscal operations, when he advised the President to veto our measure is still fresh in your memory. This may have seemed a small error to a man who thinks in billions, but it was officially used as an argument for the veto of the Soldiers' bill. Mr. Mellon has been lucky, seemingly, to have his errors on the same side of the ledger with his sentiments—it might have been embarrassing had his error of $959,000,000 been on the other side of the ledger, and to have thereby caused the President to sign the bill, instead of veto it.

You will recall another statement made by Mr. Mellon in this connection, which also proved to be inaccurate. He officially advised your committee, in the winter of 1921-22, against favorably reporting the bill, giving as the chief reason for his official advice, that the fiscal year would end with a deficit. Your committee must have had a hunch about the inaccuracy of Mr. Mellon's mathematics—for you reported the bill favorably, and a few months later, the year 1922 ended with a surplus of more than $300,000,000. Mr. Mellon's error in this case alone would have met the first three year's payments of your bill.

Again, when he advised the President to veto your bill, he said that the fiscal year 1924 would end with a deficit. He now states that it will end with a surplus of three hundred millions, for the purpose of cutting the taxes of millionaires. You may not realize it, but the official records of Congress show that in the past two years, Mr. Mellon's official miscalculations concerning government finances total a greater sum than the entire amount the Adjusted Compensation Bill would cost if paid out in a lump sum. The records of Congress show that these official miscalculations were made in statements opposing the Soldiers' Measure.

It is really unfortunate that a high government official, occupying the position as head of the government's financial administration, will deliberately and officially, supply inaccurate and misleading statements to the Congress for its official use in drafting legislation.

In the past four years every possible bugaboo has been raised by the administration leaders to frighten Congress into the belief that the financial condition of the country was such that it could not carry out the expressed mandate of the people and settle in an honorable way the debt admittedly and justly due the ex-service men. Time after time these figments of imagination have been destroyed by the actual conditions subsequently shown by the official facts. Mr. Mellon realizes that his inaccurate predictions of national poverty are no longer taken seriously by the country—they have been disproved too often.

Now being convinced that the public can no longer be deceived by such hallucinations, this new bait is thrown out that "there can be no reduction in taxes if the Soldiers' Adjusted Compensation Bill becomes a law."

We, of course, know that you will not be deceived by this false propaganda. The members of your committee know the actual facts in the case and are firmly convinced that the cause of the soldier is a just one. Your committee believes in the Soldiers' Measure, as it has been reported favorably three times, and passed by the House.

Notwithstanding this attempt to mislead you and the members of your committee, the American Legion understands and has full confidence that the bill will be reported promptly by your committee, and enacted into law during the early days of the coming session. From the beginning this has been inevitable legislation.

Very truly yours,

JOHN THOMAS TAYLOR,
Vice Chairman,
National Legislative Committee.

GLENNA COLLETT WINS AN EXCITING TOURNEY MATCH

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 14—Hitting a sensational 79-foot putt to win the match on the 20th hole, Miss Glenna Collett, former national woman golf champion, succeeded in winning 1 up on the 20th hole here Wednesday in the second round of the Women's Golf championship tournament of South Florida. Her match with Miss Friscella, Maxwell.

Miss Collett's long drives kept her in trouble most of the time. She was in the rough much and several times in pits, while Miss Maxwell's drives were straight down the course. Miss Maxwell, however, lost several opportunities to end the match when her putts rimmed the cup and rolled on.

Miss Collett took the first hole with par four; halved the second; took the third with four, two up; Miss Maxwell took the fifth with a par four, putting her one down, the sixth was halved, as was the seventh, each taking a four and five successfully. Miss Maxwell evened on the eighth, and won the ninth with par four. She was one up at the turn on Miss Collett. She annexed the tenth with par four. The eleventh was halved, as was the twelfth. The thirteenth was also halved, each taking six. The fourteenth was halved each taking five. Miss Collett took the fifteenth when Miss Maxwell's long 16th slipped through the cup, putting them on even terms. The 17th and 18th halved, Miss Collett's long putt on the latter rimming the cup and depriving her of a birdie three. Each took four in halving the 19th.

On the 20th hole Miss Collett sank a 70-foot putt and won the match.

Miss Bessie Fenn of Chicago defeated Miss C. C. Shell 5-4, and Miss Dorothy Klotz winner in her match with Mrs. Charles Downey 5-4.

CLEANING UP ATHLETICS

In Florida Educational Journal: The Journal is pleased to learn that there is an attempt made to limit members of athletic teams to students who are academically prepared for the schools of which they are members, who are in good standing in all their class work, and who deport themselves in accordance with good social usage. There is no credit or honor to an institution who will deprecate its main purpose as an institution by permitting men to represent it on athletic teams that do not meet any one of the requirements named above.

This action is a rebuke to business men in various cities who will urge that money be used to secure a winning team in order that the town may get some notoriety, or that certain persons may win by betting. It is better to be right and honest and lose than to fight standards be dishonest and win. Every right-minded resident of Florida will congratulate the institutions—universities, colleges, and high schools—that are putting forth an effort to make their athletics wholesome and to realize the real purpose for which athletics exist.

Rollins College is to be commended for its open stand on this question, and we are informed that the other leading schools have practically assented to the program that has been announced to the press by the faculty of Rollins College.

CHAS. PADDOCK ALMOST SURE TO BE REINSTATED

BOSTON, Feb. 14—Charles W. Paddock of California, the world's greatest sprinter, who is seeking reinstatement as an amateur by the A. A. U., so that he will be eligible for Olympic games competition, visited here several days ago as the guest of President William C. Prout of the Athletic Union.

Both Paddock and Prout believe that the runner's status can be straightened out. President Prout said last night that on Monday he would issue an official statement on the matter of Paddock's possible reinstatement.

All he would say today was: "I hope and arrange whereby the thing can be arranged whereby the committee of the A. A. U. to which Paddock has appealed for reinstatement as an amateur can act in a manner which will be satisfactory to all concerned."

Filling Moran's Shoes Hard Task

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 13—Another act in the mystery play, "Filling Moran's Shoes," which is holding the interest of Centre College football fans is to be unfolded in Louisville Wednesday. The shoes around which the play revolves are those "Uncle Charley" Moran left temptly when he resigned as coach of the Fraying Colonels to go back to Buckness College.

Following announcement of Moran's resignation, friends of "Bo" McMillan, now gridiron mentor at Centenary College, Shreveport, La., entered the former Colonel star for the job. McMillan came to Danville at the request of Centre officials, but, apparently, there was a hitch in negotiations. Upon his return to Shreveport he said his conversations with Centre officials had not progressed to the salary stage, but that conditions were proposed which he felt he could not accept.

INFORMATION ON WINTER FEEDING POULTRY GIVEN

The feeding of fowls during the winter must be planned to give the birds as much exercise as possible. In cold weather hens will not ordinarily move about to keep themselves warm. They will roam in search of food but not for exercise.

If kept in confined quarters they must be made to exercise. If at liberty, they should be encouraged to roam about.

If left to their own inclination, hens will fill their crops with corn and stand about until time to go to roost. Winter poultry foods, therefore, must be fed so that the fowl is constantly encouraged to search for food.

If the hunger of the fowls is never fully satisfied during the day they will hunt constantly for food. For this reason, a full meal of grain should be given at night.

A habit of testing the efficiency of the hen after she is on the roost is a good one. If the crop is full, the hen is well fed. If it is partly filled, she is under-fed. If it is nearly empty, she is slowly starving to death.

If a hen is well fed and apparently in good condition but does not produce eggs, either the ration is faulty or the hen is a poor egg producer.

A hen is most active during the period of regular egg production. The laying hen cannot be a drone. She must gather food to maintain her activity and produce eggs. When on the range during the early spring months she selects her food from the tender green plants that spring into life at that time, and from bugs and worms. Her search for these induces new life which is evidenced by a brightness of the eye, richness of color in the face and comb, and a snappy movement of the body which tends to increase activity.

A healthy condition for fowls in the winter is encouraged by a system of feeding that encourages activity during the winter months. If a fowl is given fattening foods in abundance, the hen becomes lazy. If any of the necessary food elements are lacking the food eaten is utilized to produce heat and food and egg production because the ration is not balanced. All the needs of the body must be fully satisfied before eggs are formed.

SHIPPING POINT INSPECTION SERVICE

By P. D. Rupert
As there is a division of the government shipping point inspection service in Sanford, the report of the chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics is of vital interest.

The outstanding development in the inspection service during the past year has been the inauguration of the shipping point inspection service.

Congress authorized the shipping-point inspection work by amending the law under which this service is rendered, but provided no additional appropriation to carry on the work. It was necessary, therefore, to inaugurate this work through co-operation with state agencies which had funds at their disposal or authority to use the fees collected as a revolving fund for carrying on the work. Co-operative agreements covering inspection at shipping points have been entered into with the following states:

California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, North Carolina, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Montana and South Dakota.

The larger part of this work has been done in a few states, having laws under which the fees collected for the work can be used as revolving funds. It has been impossible to start the work in many states, as no authority existed.

The total number of shipping point inspections for the fiscal year 1923 was 72,666. Colorado led with 24,815 inspections; California, Idaho, Washington followed with 17,778, 13,358, 8,917 inspections respectively. It should be noted also that of the 72,666 inspections only 61 requests for reinspections were made and of this number 34 inspectors reported were referred as to grade.

Some of the economic results of the shipping point inspection service have been spectacular in the swiftness of their movement and bid fair to leave a lasting impression on the fruit and vegetable industry. By bringing the lessons of proper grading and standardization home to the growers it seems evident that production methods in many districts will be profoundly affected. Jealousy and suspicion which too often attach to the work of the inspector employed by the local co-operative association, does not attach to the work of the Federal inspector. The certificates thus issued have been found a new and satisfactory basis for pooling by organized growers, who have never been able to solve this problem in the past. The shipper was furnished with a new basis upon which he could offer his product to the purchaser in the distant market and was able to have in hand when the car left his station prima facie evidence that he made a good delivery. The purchaser on the other hand has been given a new method for specifying exactly what the shipment shall be, and if he buys demanding, "Gov-

Many a tomato crop has been ruined by worms that mine out the insides of the young and growing fruits. These worms prefer sweet corn to the tomatoes. Therefore, plant the corn nearby and protect the tomatoes.

This practice is recommended to help out spraying or dusting as control measures. Double rows of sweet corn should be planted across the field every 50 or 100 feet apart, and with coveys between. Plant the corn at such a time that it will be just coming into silk when the first fruit is forming on the tomatoes, advises J. H. Watson, entomologist of the Florida Experiment Station.

The corn being preferred to the tomatoes, most of the moth eggs will be laid on the corn. The coveys supply shade for the moths. The corn should be gathered thoroughly and all worms on it killed at that time. Otherwise the trap crop will have done no good.

Even when the worm is in the corn it should be fought. Dust lead arsenate into the corn buds. Further information on this subject may be had by writing to the Experiment Station, Gainesville, and requesting a copy of Bulletin 151. County agents also are in a position to lend assistance of this nature.

"Destroy those lettuce plants that are affected with black rot, if you would control this destructive disease in either home garden or commercial truck field."

Such is the advice to truckers and gardeners of G. F. Weber, associate plant pathologist of the Florida Experiment Station.

The disease is first evident from the appearance of small brown or blackish spots on the older leaves, usually near the edges. Under favorable conditions the whole leaf soon becomes black and rots. If a seedling is attacked in this way, it is soon killed; and if this rots begins within a head of lettuce, it will result in total loss.

Bacteria cause this disease, which to control requires stringent efforts beginning at the seedbed. Any little plant that shows symptoms of the disease should be destroyed immediately; do not let this plant be transplanted to the field.

In the field the plants should be watched closely and once any diseased plant that may be found, and

A Clear-Cut Question

Some time ago William Jennings Bryan announced that he would be a candidate for delegate to the Democratic convention, stating at the time that he expected to make a thorough canvass of the state, meet the people, and tell them where he stands with reference to the big issues of the day.

Later Mr. Bryan gave an interview to the Associated Press, stating that, if elected, he would present the name of Dr. A. A. Murphree, president of the University of Florida, in nomination for president of the United States. By doing this Mr. Bryan simply told the voters that if elected him he would not only present Dr. Murphree's name but would work for his nomination and election.

Now comes the Daytona Journal with the statement that "there is a grave danger that an expression of choice of the Democrats of Florida for the presidential nomination may be thwarted. The very habit the Democrats have of making a cross before the name of William Jennings Bryan may elect him as delegate-at-large to the national convention."

We cannot see how Editor Sparkman figures this. Mr. Bryan has laid his cards on the table. He has given his promise that if elected he will nominate and support Dr. Murphree. No one can deny Mr. Bryan's sincerity. No one can say that he has ever failed to keep his word.

When the voter places an "X" before Mr. Bryan's name, he is simply endorsing Dr. Murphree, Florida's favorite son, for president just the same as if he placed an "X" before the name of Editor Sparkman, he would be endorsing Alabama's favorite son, Mr. Underwood.

We cannot see where the "will of the people" is to be thwarted. Nothing is simpler. Nothing could be more easily understood. If the people do not trust Mr. Bryan and do not want Dr. Murphree's name used, they will not vote for Mr. Bryan as a delegate. If they do not want Mr. Underwood as a candidate for the presidency they will not vote for Mr. Sparkman or any other "Underwood man."

Regardless of what action the state Democratic executive committee takes in its Jacksonville meeting, the question will be clear cut. There is no use for any Florida editor or voter to "lie awake at night" and worry about the "will of the people being thwarted."

In 1912 the interests in Florida used Underwood in an effort to keep Woodrow Wilson from getting Florida's delegates. Today the Underwood people would again keep from office any man of the Wilson stripe.

The people of Florida are intelligent enough to choose for themselves. They are doing some real thinking on the issues of today. Certainly they can be trusted to make the right decision.

Forgetting the Bible

It is estimated that more than two-thirds of the boys and girls of today are not receiving any kind of religious instruction whatever which reminds us very forcibly that in many of our homes today the daily Bible reading has long been dispensed with, as it has been in many of our public schools and institutions of higher learning.

A survey was recently made by the teacher's training school of the Central Missouri State Teacher's College at Warrensburg, among one hundred students at the college and among high school students in half a dozen cities of that state and here are some of the results recorded:

Sixteen per cent of the students neither knew where Christ was born nor the name of His mother. Sixty per cent knew not that Peter, James and John enjoyed the larger confidence of Jesus. Seventy per cent did not know what to call the Sermon on the Mount. Sixty per cent did not know what Christ meant by loving one's neighbor. Twelve per cent did not know the first clause of the Lord's Prayer. Sixty-five per cent did not know the Golden Rule.

In commenting on this state of affairs the Tampa Times says that it has been found difficult and perhaps inadvisable to make a study of the Bible in the public schools. Merely reading it there might be advisable, but practical objections have been made even to this and in many states the courts have sustained them. To this the Times adds that there are other opportunities: First, in the home; second, in the church, and again in the schools of religious education established in connection with the public schools of many cities.

The Herald does not believe that this survey is representative of existing conditions throughout the country. Surveys, like statistics, can be made to prove almost anything, but it is quite evident that the young people of today should be given every opportunity not only to read the Bible but also to study it. The primary responsibility rests with the home and this responsibility should not be side-stepped.

GUOT, WHEN HE was in exile, asked Mr. Lowell, when he was our minister in London, how long the American Union would exist, and Lowell said to him: "It will exist so long as the men of America hold to the fundamental principles of their fathers." Central in these fundamental principles is the determination of fathers and of children that in each day of life the world shall be a better world; that is, in each day of life a man shall live to the glory of God.—Edward Everett Hale.

THE ONLY THING that ever set any man free, the only thing that ever set any nation free, is truth. A man that is afraid of the truth is afraid of the law of life. A man that does not love the truth is in the way of decay and of failure.—Woodrow Wilson at the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World Convention, Philadelphia, June 29, 1916.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

I don't know whether it is a reflection upon my habits or upon theirs, but at any rate, it is a striking coincidence that so many of my friends have, in former times had friends who were in the retail liquor business.

Peter Dunne, creator of the immortal Mr. Dooley, used to love to tell a story of an old chum of his who, in earlier times, ran a bar on a side street in Chicago. One evening Dunne and two other reporters were enjoying the hospitality of the establishment when there entered a fourth newspaperman locally notorious for always being ready to borrow money and never being ready to pay any of it back.

"Uncle Johnny," said the newcomer, "I'm off on an out-of-town assignment and I need a little cash. Slip me ten dollars, will you? I'll hand it back to you on payday."

Knowing the applicant's reputation, Dunne and his companions expected a refusal. To their surprise the proprietor opened the cash-register and produced a greenback. The impudencious one scooped it up, muttered a word of thanks and was about to depart when his eyes chanced to fall upon the figures on the bill.

"Hold on, Uncle John. I asked you to loan me a tenner and this is only a five spot."

"That's right," stated Uncle John. "This an even break between us."

As Brisbane Sees It

All Going to Palm Beach. Two Beautiful Feet. And a Strange Back Head. Josephus Daniels' Paper.

The travelers will be unloaded at Palm Beach Tuesday morning, all around in the sun looking at each other's clothes for a while, then go back in another solid row of Pullmans, wondering why they came.

VISITORS TO Palm Beach are of three classes. First, people that have nothing to do and seek the most agreeable places in which to do it.

Second, men that have too much work and too much money, whose doctors send them away.

Third, men that go south to see wives who feel that if you are not photographed sitting cross-legged on the sand at Palm Beach once a year, you might as well be dead.

One sample of the "men sent away to make them stop working" sits in the dining room, brooding over something that he knows he should not eat. That's Arthur Williams, whose hotel was next in New York contains half a dozen gas and electric light trusts on which he sits, habitually, as faithfully as a Dominican hen on her eggs. He looks about as happy as Fafner would look if sent away from his Rhine-Gold, to play among the pretty palm and flowers.

WHEN THE engine stops to take in water the passengers get out to take in air. Then you see them, as they parade for a moment, each wondering why the others are going.

One drop of salt water analyzed, tells the whole story of the Pacific Ocean. One young woman described tells pretty well the story of the Palm Beach pilgrims.

Her two shiny feet are harnesses, as a grandly man elaborately as a pair of king's horses. They are gold, satin, leather and very much foot, showing in a stocking made to imitate naked skin. She loves these feet and is taking them down to the crowd that will appreciate them.

YOUR EYE jumps from her feet to her head. In between is a whirl of fur, cut and slashed in every way except that in which the fur is cut. The head is the very latest in woman's evolution toward something or other, heaven only knows what.

There's a hat about as big as the top of an old-fashioned sugar bowl, fitting the lady's skull as tightly as the lid fits the bowl. It's black with a feather hanging down.

BUT THE back! There is nothing there. The barber who undoubtedly learned his trade trimming French poodles, has clipped the hair down and in, flat as a pancake against the lady's neck. It's the back head of a young boy, the front view of a wild woman.

Deep psychology there; if you tire of the complicated front, with the clashing, shining curls and waves, run around to the back and rest your eyes on perfect simplicity.

Back in your little room, you study the map and realize that these pilgrims of fashion all testify to unseem wisdom. They are taking their money to be spent in developing a magnificent state. They will return to make known a marvelous climate, the wonderful land of Florida, with its sensible, industrious people, the land that in years to come will be a great garden for the nation, a marvelous playground in winter for millions of real workers, the permanent abode of contented, prosperous tens of millions.

THE TRAIN travels along the edge of the Atlantic, carrying its present freight of which ninety-eight per cent would be about as useful in heaven as it is on earth. Philadelphia, Washington, Richmond fly past, and Jacksonville, that one day may be greater than all of them, as the seaport of a Southern empire.

AS YOU travel, the newspapers come in and you find comfort in those echoes of real life, practiced early in Josephus Daniels' News and Observer, published at Raleigh, N. C.

Daniels is a real newspaper man, and his paper shows you what this nation really is. It teaches you that your Palm Beach pilgrims are the scum floating on top of the soap waiting to be skimmed off. The real soap is elsewhere.

"THE ONLY daily paper in the world having more subscribers than population of city in which published," is the proud boast of Josephus Daniels' front page. He runs a serious paper for serious people. Politics on the front page and very Democratic politics.

"The President must assert himself or face defeat," etc. Editorials very Democratic with a "punch" in each, several punches in some of them.

THERE IS the government agent photograph, showing negro farmers how to pick out good three-hybrid livestock. A picture more important to this country than any "society photograph" ever taken at Palm Beach.

There an admirably written article by William M. King, ninety-two years old, telling of the first "love" table spoonful of sorghum seed brought to this country 20 years ago from France. Mr. King, who planted, harvested and ground syrup from sorghum, makes riddles of hawthorn for the grinders, tells of the early workers of whose effort the fruit is now gathered by rich giant monopolies that raise and lower prices at their will."

THE NOISY LODGER CHECKS OUT

TIME FOR POLITICAL REACTION

JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES IN THE POST

Simultaneously, and even with the passing of the greatest Democratic president comes what seems to be definite passing of the greatest and most promising Democratic candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in 1924.

It seems to be generally apprehended, if not generally agreed that the senatorial testimony of Doherty in the oil scandal, has seriously "retarded" if not practically destroyed the chances of William G. McAdoo for the Democratic nomination which a few days ago was practically conceded to him.

Cruelly unjust as it may be, the fact remains that such sentiment as can be reached in Democratic ranks is pretty nearly unanimous, not that it ought to be so, but that it certainly has raised the serious question where it is not any longer discreet to make McAdoo the nominee in June in New York.

Mr. McAdoo, in the ordeal of investigation which he promptly involved, will bear himself with signal courage and ability, and give good reasons in good English to fortify his right as a professional lawyer to accept a legitimate engagement and to leave the field to a cheat who is not disreputable, but is both reputable and distinguished.

But with all this presentation which needs no defense with well informed and broad minded American citizens, the stage whisper of the Democratic ranks is that with the necessity for constant and reiterated explanation which conditions will enforce it is no longer wise to place the Democratic party standard in the hands of a candidate whose latest record makes an interrogation mark after his name.

There is not so sudden and pitiful a personal tragedy in the sombre and checkered history of democracy.

The man had almost a clear field before him. One by one he had distanced all his competitors, and was recognized as the leading and almost chosen nominee.

And he had a clean record. There was not a stain that had clung to him out of the recriminations of a long and exhaustive campaign of four years.

He had practically answered every aspersion and had wiped the slate clean for the final question to be asked at the Democratic convention in New York. And here in a night comes Doherty evidently himself in a rank panic over oil scandal, and bursts out the unnecessary and really irrelevant announcement that McAdoo, ever since his return to the practice of his profession had been a retained attorney with a salary check in his pocket. And behold, a great and presidential boom is burst and a hitherto blameless record is destroyed as the basis for the prosecution of a great and honorable ambition.

And right behind McAdoo in the race for the nomination treads John W. Davis, one of the cleanest and most honorable men that ever figured in American politics barred in advance from the hope of successful candidacy by the mere fact that, with not even the shadow of a political agitation to breed suspicion, he accepted years ago legitimate legal employment from one of the great business men of the country with whom all forms of American business men have at some time dealt.

It is a cruel game, my masters, this thing of politics. Time seems to be coming fast when honest men who have to make a living must stay out of politics even if the people sadly need their brains and characters for service. Time coming when the great aegis of the law and of the bar must be torn from the shoulder of the men who have concentrated themselves to master under the law—time coming when an attorney can only safely seek for a poor man and leave the rich with the Devil as his attorney to look out for himself.

Of course the plight of McAdoo does not exculpate Fall and Denby. They are in it deeper and more dangerously than the Democrat and it will take more to exculpate them.

As this column stated its other day, a mad destructive mood seems to have seized upon both parties. Party and in the scramble, human party are both out for the spoils of reputation however honest, may go to the devil. Everybody is in a panic, and the aim seems to be to see which side can do the most damage.

Most unfortunately of all for McAdoo some of his worst enemies are in his own party, and hundreds of men who should now be enlisted in his dauntless defense are so busy propping the fortunes of some rival, or are either standing still in shameful apathy or actually driving stitches in McAdoo's political shroud while their friends ride in gaudy clothes to his funeral.

Surely there must come a reaction sometime—somewhere to the abominable spirit of such politics. It is doubtful if the degenerate days of Rome ever had anything worse than the present age of political assassination.

I am sinking my poor single proleged down here in this tranquil land, but I seem to be singing all alone. What our country needs is a chorus, a mighty chorus of good men and good newspapers all over the country—calling a halt to this revolution of scandal and gossip, and then demanding on both sides saner and sounder methods of dealing with parties and with men.

In the name of justice and humanity and common sense and common charity, let us call a halt to this mad campaign of parties seeking profit at the price of reputation, and let us give McAdoo and Denby a fair unbiased trial before we condemn them and wreck their hitherto blameless reputations.

MAH JONG PARTY.

The members of the Sanford Association of Business Women were delightfully entertained Wednesday evening at mah jong, by Miss Elizabeth Musson, at her home on Palmetto Avenue.

Myriads of red hearts were fastened over the windows, archways and festooned from chandeliers to the corners of the various rooms. Red candles with red heart shaped shades were also effectively used.

Heart shaped cloths with red hearts centering them, covered the mah jong tables.

As the guests arrived they had large red hearts given them on which single words were written, partners were found by matching the words.

On the score cards, marked with hearts of celery, on which was written "How to keep a Heart" were typed clever sayings of Mrs. Solomon, the reading of these afforded much amusement.

After a number of games of mah jong the hostess served heart shaped moulded fruit salad, sandwiches cut in the form of hearts, saltines, hearts of celery and hot chocolate.

Among those enjoying this pleasant occasion were Mrs. W. B. Coleman, Mrs. J. O. Huff, Miss Nina Cooley, Mrs. Arthur Marshall, Mrs. R. D. Maxwell, Miss Agnes Benson, Mrs. J. B. Skipper, Miss Minnie Allen, Miss Elma Tolar, Miss Florence Main, Miss Demarius Musson, Mrs. John Leonard, Miss Ramsey, Mrs. Timms, Miss Sadie Bowman.

Just In Passing

R. J. HOLLY

Glad to see that editorial in The Sanford Herald about the army of government employees collecting the income taxes and surtaxes and other government taxes that are taxing the people clear out of business. This surtax business is stopping some big deals in Sanford and other places because people are afraid the government will take all their profits in the deal. The surtax is a burden on the poor man and the man who can't afford to pay it.

The gladsome candidate is coming out of his shell now that groundhog days are over, and presenting himself all ready to kiss the babies and shake hands with the honest laboring man. And ever that is) our crop of candidates is a good one and they are some of our best people. Up to date I cannot find any of them who have spent any long terms in jails or churches and while I am one who wants the law to take its course I still believe in a limited amount of freedom even for a candidate.

Good old Sanford real estate continues to turn and be turned and it will only be a matter of a few years before Sanford real estate at present prices will be among the things to be talked of in the past tense like King Tut and other gentlemen of the early day of Sanford. Better bite off a large slice of Sanford dirt while it is cheap and you will not get bit when you bite.

I don't agree with the city beautifiers who claim that building small houses on the outskirts of the city will spoil the prices of high class real estate. Cheaper lands and cheaper houses are all right in some parts of the suburbs for these good folks have to live somewhere and they cannot afford high priced lots and houses now but they will be able to buy them later on. And then every house built here spells progress regardless of the size of the house. I hardly know whether those Atlanta folks need a Coca Cola shampoo or a Mustarole on their feet. They certainly cut up for old folks and there must be something in Atlanta atmosphere after all. Instead of spending my two days vacation at Coronado this summer it might be just as well to spend a few hours in Atlanta watching the Coca Nuts.

Fellow stopped me the other day and shook hands and asked me about my health and my wife's health and my oldest boy's health and I was puzzled to know whether he was a doctor, an undertaker or a life insurance man until he told me he was a candidate and when I assured him that our good health would probably last until the first week in June he walked away perfectly satisfied.

Fifteen years ago I said Sanford needed tourists and I reiterate today that Sanford will never be a big city without tourists and we should bend all our efforts toward that end. We need several big tourist hotels and several real apartment houses and they should be built this summer if possible.

I just want to take this opportunity to congratulate the boys who are guiding the destinies of The Sanford Herald upon their great work in putting out a special edition of The Herald when President Wilson died. They could not find any of the men to set the type or print the paper so Berg, Dean, Combs and Jones took off their coats and went to work. I know what a job they had and it is a wonder they ever accomplished it and the public never knew just how much those boys did that day. It showed good newspaper work and enterprise and as one who knows and appreciates such work I pay them this small tribute. Newspaper people never expect and hardly ever get merited praise hence this bouquet to The Herald folks—bless their young hearts.

Why experiment with unknown remedies for that cough or cold when you can secure FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND?

It is a safe and reliable remedy for the relief of coughs, colds, hoarseness. Equally beneficial for young and old. Mrs. Anna Cornell, Bridgeton, N. J., states: "I bought FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND for my cold and find it great." Insist upon the genuine. Refuse substitutes. Sold everywhere.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT AUXILIARY WAR VETERANS ELECTS ITS OFFICERS

At a meeting of the Theodore Roosevelt Auxiliary No. 3, U. S. V. held at the home of the president, Mrs. R. A. Terheun, Tuesday night, Feb. 4, the annual election of officers was held. Regular business meeting was held previous to the election of officers, and all left over business was transacted. The nominating committee composed of Mrs. Ballard, Mrs. Schmidt, and Mrs. Mary Leonard, presented its ticket, with Mrs. Janie Lyles, named for President. Mrs. Lyles declined, and Mrs. Neva Haynes, nominated Mrs. Terheun to succeed herself as president. This was heartily seconded. Mrs. Lyles as Second Vice-President, took the chair and Mrs. Terheun was duly elected. This left the slate practically as last year, with the exception of Mrs. Maude Schmidt, who was made Chaplain and Mrs. Neva Haynes, Historian. Mrs. Violet M. Brady of Orlando, Missian.

There are 13 elective offices and two appointive offices in this organization, the latter being Secretary and Treasurer.

The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: Mrs. Lou Smith Terheun, President; Mrs. Janie Lyles, Second Vice-President; Mrs. Shaffer, Third Vice-President; Mrs. Maude Schmidt, Chaplain; Mrs. Loring, Patriotic Instructor; Mrs. Haynes, Historian; Mrs. Lord, Conductor; Mrs. Price, Assistant Conductor; Mrs. Arrie King, Guard; Mrs. Jameson, Assistant Guard; Mrs. Mary Leonard, Color Bearer; Miss Florence Price, Assistant Color Bearer and Mrs. Violet M. Brady, Musician. The President appointed Mrs. Ballard to succeed herself as Secretary. The Treasurer is yet to be named.

The matter of entertainment of the National President, General Mrs. Florence Clark of Cleveland, Ohio, was discussed, and all questions on this settled. Meeting was adjourned after a pleasant time. The hostess served delicious cakes and fruit punch.

This closed one of the most pleasant meetings in the history of the auxiliary.

We, the Seminole County Federation of Women's Clubs, believing that we should instill in the hearts of all people a greater respect for the constitution of the United States and knowing it to be our duty to impress our children with the duty of being loyal citizens do hereby make and declare the week beginning Feb. 17, through to Feb. 23, as United States Constitution Week.

All churches, schools, and organizations of loyal men and women are urged to participate in the observance of this week.

MRS. JOHN LEONARDI, President.
MRS. ENDOR CURLETT, First Vice-President.
MRS. B. G. SMITH, Second Vice-President.

The American Committee submits the following program:
Sunday, "The Duty of all Loyal Citizens to Stand by the 18th Amendment."
Monday, "The First Ten Amendments to the Constitution."
Tuesday, "The Inspiration of the Constitution."
Wednesday, "The Declaration of Independence."
Thursday, "Enforcement of Law."
Friday, "Dangers to the Free Institutions Established by the Constitution, Communism, Etc."
Saturday, "The Citizenship Creed."

Since the birthday of our first President comes in this week thus set aside it seems most fitting that we should give at least some time and thought to the principles upon which our great republic is founded.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. W. B. Ballard, President.

In the study of political events it is especially important that we first understand the conditions out of which arise certain political events. This can be best accomplished by a systematic study of the conditions in each community beginning with its history and population and then building from that the political whys and wherefores.

History and Population

- 1.—When did the first settlers come to your community?
- 2.—Why did they stay?
- 3.—Did they give permanent character to the community?
- 4.—What was the population in 1910? In 1920?
- 5.—Has the growth of the population been gradual or rapid? How do you account for such growth?
- 6.—What percentage of the population is foreign born?
- 7.—How many negroes are there?
- 8.—What brought the immigrants to your community?
- 9.—What nationalities are represented and in what proportions?
- 10.—What proportion of the population does not speak English?
- 11.—How many unmaterialized immigrants are there?

- 12.—What aid is given to the immigrant who desires to become a citizen?
- 13.—In what court or courts are aliens naturalized?
- 14.—Do your foreign born residents live in compact groups or are they scattered throughout the town?
- 15.—What have the foreign born contributed to life in your town?
- 16.—Have your foreign born contributed to your understanding of present European problems?
- 17.—Has your town a character or influence which is marked in comparing it with other towns nearby? If so, to what is such a difference due?
- 18.—How do the natural resources of your town compare with those of the neighboring communities?
- 19.—Do you have any co-operative relations other than business with nearby communities?
- 20.—What objects of natural and historic interests are there in your community?
- 21.—What part has your community played in the history of the state?

CLOGGED THROATS

When your wind is shut off and breathing difficult you try to raise the chest by suddenly contracting the lungs and forcing air through the nostrils. This is hard on your lungs and your throat and dilates the blood vessels. Clogged throats are easily and safely opened, painless relief and the throat is soothed and healed by Leonard's Cough Syrup (Gross's). It is a potent stimulant, breaking and has a germicidal action. Best remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis, croup, and whooping cough. Safe, sure and pleasant. At your druggist.

OUR CITIZENSHIP CREED

The Daughters of the American Revolution offered some time ago a prize for the best essay on the constitution written by a pupil from the High School in Sanford. The pupils are genuine information about this remarkable document. Sally Harrison has taken the right step.

The following creed was published by the Florida Education Association and author was not given, however, the sentiment is such that it should become a part of the mental life of every boy and girl in Seminole County.

Our Citizenship Creed

- 1.—I am living under a government—and an myself part of such government—wherein at least an elementary knowledge of the nature and principles of this Government must be generally diffused among the great mass of its citizens. I therefore believe it to be my duty to inform myself on American history, the foundations of our Government as embodied in the United States Constitution, and the application of the principles therein contained to present-day problems.
- 2.—Since ours is a government of, for, and by the people, it is by the very name taken a government of and by public opinion. It is, therefore, my duty as a good American citizen to help form public opinion in the community in which I live in order that all citizens may hold intelligent, just, and sane views on the important questions and endeavor to have such views embodied in our laws.
- 3.—Since popular government is shaped in the first instance by the exercise of suffrage, it is one of my primary duties as a good American citizen to cast my ballot in all local, state and national elections and to urge my fellow-citizens to do the same.
- 4.—Since ours is "a government of laws and not of men," and since an orderly government can exist only through laws justly administered and impartially enforced, I declare it to be my duty as a good citizen to serve as a juror whenever summoned, and to use my influence in every proper way to the end that lawyers, judges and jurors so conduct the administration of justice as to entitle the law and the courts to popular approval and support.
- 5.—I believe that we Americans have the best government that has ever been created—the freest and the most just for all the people—and that it is my duty to uphold and defend this Government at all times. I believe that just as the "Minute Man of the Revolution," was ready upon a moment's notice to defend his rights against foreign usurpation, it is my duty as a patriotic American to be a "Minute Man of the Constitution," ready at all times to defend the long-established and cherished institutions of our Government against attacks, either from within or without, and to do my part in preserving the blessings of liberty for which my Revolutionary forefathers fought and died.

A Bigger and Better Coral Gables

VISITORS in Miami who are anxious to note the growth and expansion of the city during the past year will find Coral Gables a wonderful and interesting study. Coral Gables is not only vastly larger than a year ago but it is more beautiful in every way. First, there has been the addition of nearly one thousand acres which round out and perfect the physical proportions of the property immensely. These additions have been opened up under the names of the Granada section and the Douglas section, and are being developed with the same careful planning and landscaping which all of the rest of Coral Gables has received. They will be two of the finest sections in the entire suburb.

The new Douglas section offers a most interesting study to visitors. Here everything is new and in the making. You may watch the Douglas section grow from day to day and gain much that is interesting and profitable therefrom.

You can profit, too, in a very special way by the development of the Douglas section, for building plots are offered there for a short time at a special concession.

The opportunity is yours—now—to duplicate in full round measure the remarkable profits which buyers of Coral Gables plots two years or one year ago have already taken on their investments. But it is an opportunity that will pass quickly—and be lost forever—unless you act at once. See Coral Gables today. Come as our guest aboard a de luxe Pullman bus—a free trip unequalled in America today. Come now and grasp the opportunity offered.
