Indian Photo Exhibit Opens SCC Gallery

The works of Edward Sheriff Curtis, who photographed and wrote about North American Indians, went on display Thursday as the inaugural exhibit at Seminole Community College's new art gallery.

The 7,000 square-foot gallery, inside the school's Fine Arts Building, was completed last month.

Ron Libertus, of Minneapolis, was on hand Thursday to officially open the exhibit of his collection of Curtis works.

Curtis was born in 1868 and made a career of chronicling the experience of the Indians, particularly those on the Great Plains where he lived. By the turn of the century Curtis had won critical acclaim for his work.

In 1906, Curtis came under the sponsorship of industrialist J.P. Morgan, which allowed the photographer to devote all of his time and energy to his Indian works.

Curtis made over 40,000 negatives, nearly all of which were glass plates. His final work, The North American Indian, comprised 20 volumes and 20 portfolios with 2,000 photos and text.

Curtis, who died in 1952, said the purpose of his life's work was "to document all aspects of a marvelous culture that was being inexorably destroyed, in such a way as to retain the spirit of the culture and keep it alive."

Libertus said Curtis's photos have remained relatively obscure for nearly 50 years but are now beginning to get "the attention and acclaim they richly deserve."

The display can be viewed through November. Exhibit hours are Monday through Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Friday from 10 a.m. to noon and evenings during special school events.

In December the school will hold its annual silent art and antique shows Dec. 1 through 13. In January an exhibit titled "Contemporary Containers," featuring the sculpture of several Sanford artists. February's exhibit will feature the work of five members of the school's art faculty. In March "As Man Sees Man," an exhibit of interpretations of the human form will be on display.

Flea World Neighbors Want Traffic Off C.R. 427

By Micheal Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Residents along County Road 427 in Sanford say they'll fight a plan to let Flea World traffic use their road.

Flea World owner Syd Levy has asked county commissioners to allow him to use a gate on County Home Road and to construct an access road onto CR 427 to alleviate traffic jams on U.S. Highway 17-92.

But neighbors say flea market customers are already using the gate and driving through a drainage ditch to gain direct access onto County Road 427. And they don't like it.

"One Sunday it was so bad, the traffic was coming out so fast that traffic had to stop on (CR) 427 to let them out," said Carl Lind of Elder Springs.

Lind is one of 125 residents who signed petitions 14 months ago when Levy asked commissioners to permit him to expand the flea market by 21 acres to its present size.

Commissioners voted to approve the expansion but ordered Levy to keep the gate on County Home Road closed and to limit access to two entrances on U.S. Highway 17-92. The decision was designed to keep traffic off of County Road 427 and out of the neighborhood.

"This past Sunday traffic was Local residents say this gate on County Home Road is being used by Flea World customers on weekends in violation of a county order.

coming through the back, pulling onto Highway 427, creating a real hazard," said Mrs. James Driscoll. "There isn't even a road there. They were going through the ditch."

"We already have very heavy traffic on Highway 427 and County Home Road is too short and narrow for cars to be turning in and out of there," said Mrs. Driscoll.

The manager at Flea World, who refused to give her name, denied that traffic is using the rear gate or any other exit besides the two approved entrances on U.S. 17-92 during the weekends.

She said the county gave permission for the gate to be used during the week for the trades people to bring their wares to the market. "The gate is closed on weekends," she said.

Lind said he's witnessed cars leaving the flea market through a drainage ditch and through the gate that is supposed to be closed.

"He (Levy) is going against the plan, he does things and then wants approval," said Lind.

Levy, who is out of town and unavailable for comment, has not applied for any special exceptions to permit use of the rear gate, said Land Management Manager Herb Hardin.

But Levy, in a letter dated Oct. 7, told commissioners he has hired Traffic Planning and Design Inc. of Longwood to perform a traffic analysis of the three roads which border the flea market and to design an access road from CR 427.

Lind said the residents will oppose any plans to make an access road onto CR 427.

He said neighbors are against any further encroachment of the market in their neighborhood.

Sanford Man Guilty In Shotgun Slaying

A 35-year-old Sanford man has been found guilty of manslaughter in the shotgun death of his former roommate.

Ronald Wayne Mixon, of the Lake Jessup Mobile Home Park, State Road 46 east of Sanford, faces a maximum 15-year prison sentence after a six-member jury brought in a manslaughter verdict Wednesday evening.

The state had charged Mixon with second degree murder in the death of Jerry Dillard, 40, of 1021 Sarita St., Sanford.

Mixon was accused of shooting Dillard once in the head with a 12-gauge shotgun after the two men argued outside Mixon's mobile home on June 4.

Seminole County deputy sheriffs said the argument ensued over an alleged rape by Dillard of Mixon's girlfriend about a month before the shooting.

During the argument, Dillard reportedly said to Mixon: "Let's finish this once and for all."

Mixon allegedly retrieved a shotgun from his trailer and returned outside and shot Dillard, deputies said. Mixon then went inside the mobile home and called the sheriff's department.

Dillard's body was found next to a pick-up truck in the front yard of Mixon's residence, a blue and white mobile home. Attorney Christopher Ray contended that the shooting was justified because Dillard had a violent character and Mixon feared for his own life.

Ray produced 12 witnesses at the trial, several of whom testified that Dillard had a reputation for violence.

Mixon and Dillard had been roommates until a few weeks before the shooting and had been good friends, Ray said.

"He (Mixon) was forced to kill a friend," Ray said.

Ray, who had asked that Mixon be acquitted on grounds of self defense, said that under the manslaughter conviction Mixon could be placed on probation and not serve any time in prison. A second degree murder conviction carries a mandatory minimum prison sentence of three years. Mixon is free on $7,000 bond.

Judge S. Joseph Davis Jr. ordered a presentence investigation and set sentencing for Dec. 1.

Another Bomb Israel Retaliates After Headquarters Levelled

By Jeffrey Heller

TYRE, Lebanon (UPI) — A truck packed with explosives leveled the Israeli military headquarters in southern Lebanon today, killing at least 14 people and wounding 21. Israel retaliated with air strikes on Syrian and Palestinian targets that reportedly killed as many as 30 people.

At least 30 people were missing in Tyre after the suicide attack on the Israeli headquarters.

The same Islamic group that said it carried out almost identical twin suicide bombings on U.S. and French peace-keeping troops in Beirut Oct. 23 claimed responsibility for today's attack in Tyre, 45 miles southwest of Beirut.

Waves of Israeli warplanes repeatedly struck Syrian and Palestinian targets around three mountain villages east of Beirut in swift reprisal for the attack. Christian Phalange radio report said as many as 30 people were killed and 50 others wounded in the air strikes.

The Phalange's Voice of Lebanon radio said Syrian warplanes were spotted in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, 8 miles east of the Israeli air strike zone.

The bombing and retaliatory strikes came as fierce fighting raged in the northern Lebanese port city of Tripoli between Syrian forces and guerrillas loyal to Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat.

The Israeli military said a Chevrolet pickup truck loaded with about 110 pounds of explosives crashed through roadblocks and a hail of gunfire from guards as it sped toward the heavily fortified two-story headquarters at about 6 a.m.

The truck was stopped by gunfire before it hit the building but the truck exploded, leveling one two-story building and partially damaging a second building.

The explosion set off a two-hour chain of explosions apparently caused by detonating ammunition stores inside one of the buildings.

"There are dead all over the place," said Timor Goksel, a spokesman for the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon. "The building seems to be a total loss."

The army said at least 60 Israelis were in the buildings at the time of the explosion and there were at least 30 servicemen were missing.

The military said 14 people were killed and 21 wounded. But Haifa Hospital said it had received 30 Israeli injured, eight of them hurt seriously. Beirut Radio said 25 Israelis were killed.

The military did not specify whether the dead were all Israeli and Palestinian prisoners housed in a detention center at the headquarters also were believed to be among the casualties.

The demolished building housed Palestinian prisoners, Israeli soldiers, border police and security personnel from the Shin Bet.

The Islamic Jihad (Holy War) Organization, which said it was behind the almost identical Oct. 23 suicide bombings on U.S. Marine headquarters and a French barracks in Beirut, claimed responsibility for the Tyre blast.

"Our suicide attack was a direct reply to Israeli threats to continue its occupation of south Lebanon in the event the May 17 Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement is canceled," Beirut radio quoted a spokesman for the group as saying.

"We can send 2,000 fighters to die in south Lebanon. Our men are ready for action everywhere in the world. The world should wait for more surprise actions from us," the spokesman said.

Six hours after the explosion, formations of Israeli warplanes struck Syrian and Palestinian bases near the mountain villages of Bhamdoun, Mansouriyeh, and Sofar in swift reprisal for the headquarters bombing.

The first strike lasted 45 minutes and was followed by successive waves of attacking Israeli warplanes.

The military command in Israel said pilots reported "accurate hits" on targets that included "terrorist command headquarters, tanks and 130mm cannons belonging to Ahmad Jibril's Popular Front and Abu Moussa's Palestinian rebels."

The villages 12 miles east of Beirut are major Druze Moslem strongholds and also house Palestinian guerrilla bases.

To Act As 'Municipal Court'

Lake Mary Opts For Code Board

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

After previous city commissions turned a deaf ear to pleas from city staff to create a citizens' panel to enforce city laws, the Lake Mary City Commission voted 4-to-1 Thursday night to move forward with such a program.

The majority of the board decided to create a code enforcement board, authorized by state law, to act as a sort of municipal court. The board will have the power to hear cases involving zoning law violations as well as cases concerning junk cars, occupational licenses, building codes, trash and garbage on properties and similar matters.

It will have the authority to levy fines of up to $250 per day.

It is expected that the law creating the board will be adopted at the commission's Dec. 1 meeting.

Seminole's other six cities already have code enforcement boards.

and Seminole County had indicated it favors creation of one.

Lake Mary Freshman Commissioner Colin Krogh spearheaded the move to create the board, saying the city must have a method of enforcing its ordinances. "Why sit here and pass ordinances that we can't enforce?" he asked his colleagues.

The majority of past city commissions expressed fears that a code enforcement board could be turned into a "kangaroo court" to threaten residents of the community.

And Commissioners Hurt Perinchieff and Kenneth King were not enthusiastic about such a board last night. Perinchieff particularly questioned two sections of the state law, one designating the exact composition of such a board and the other forbidding compensation to members.

But City Attorney Robert Petree said the city has no choice about these two sections and must accept them or not have a board.

The state law says that members of the board shall be, if possible, architects, engineers, realtors, contractors or subcontractors. Perinchieff said the premise seems to be that persons in these fields automatically have expertise.

King, meanwhile, said of the board's composition, "I think it's stacked."

At the end of a lengthy discussion, Perinchieff voted for the proposal, saying that the two sections of law he had cited "are not anathema, but close to it."

"I feel there are worms in the barrel, but I will bite the apple with the hope there are no worms in it," he said, voting for the measure. King was the only commissioner to vote against.

A proposed ordinance creating a seven-member citizen code enforcement board is to be advertised and considered for preliminary adoption at the commission's Nov. 17 meeting with final adoption Dec. 1.

Petree said a board of this type reeks of bureaucratic pressure, but that times are changing in Lake Mary as it grows and the time when city commissioners could call their neighbors and urge them to obey city law has almost passed.

Petree through persuasion has been able to convince most of those referred to him by city staff for violating city ordinance to comply. But, he added, there are some who cannot be convinced such as one resident who continues to operate a business in a residentially zoned area despite his warnings and cajoling.

He said the code enforcement board will be almost a "municipal court, a blue-ribbon panel," dealing with areas for which they must have special knowledge. "You are about to vest selected citizens with strong power to impinge on property rights of neighbors."

NATION

IN BRIEF

President Reagan To Honor Dead Marines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, in a prelude to today's ceremony at Camp Lejeune, N.C. honoring Marines who died in Beirut and Grenada, says they lost their lives defending freedom and restoring peace.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, were to be accompanied on the trip by a group of ambassadors of nations participating in the peace-keeping mission in Lebanon, legislators and top administration officials.

"We all grieve over the lives of those splendid young men lost in Beirut and Grenada," Reagan said. "But I just have to believe we can honor their memory best, not by withdrawing from our role in the world, but by remaining the force for freedom and peace that makes America the brightest star of hope in the world today."

Soviet Sub Stranded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unknown mechanical difficulties stranded a Soviet nuclear-powered attack submarine on the heaving surface of the Atlantic 470 miles off the U.S. coastline today, presenting the Navy with a golden opportunity to photograph the late model boat.

The 6,000-ton Victor III Class boat, which does not carry intercontinental range nuclear missiles, was spotted bobbing in the Atlantic at 3 a.m. Wednesday by a propeller-driven U.S. P-3 Orion reconnaissance plane while on routine patrol, a Navy announcement said.

Navy officials, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said a Soviet intelligence-gathering trawler was in the vicinity and a Soviet submarine tender was on the way to the area from its base in Cuba and probably would arrive today.

The Navy said the sub wallowed in international waters at about 282 miles west of Bermuda and 470 miles east of Charleston, S.C., which is a major base for U.S. missile-carrying submarines.

Cocaine Ring Broken

DETROIT (UPI) — At least 28 people have been indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with a Miami-based cocaine ring that allegedly distributed the drug to cities around the nation.

Robert J. De Fauw, special agent in charge of the investigation for the U.S. Department of Justice, said the indictment would put a "tremendous dent" in the cocaine that will be available.

The indictment issued Thursday identified Leo J. Radosta, 37, of Miami, as the head of the drug organization. He has been charged with engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise and was being held in a Colorado jail on $1 million bond.

The government said Radosta was in charge of an organization devoted to the sale and distribution of cocaine in Detroit and other cities throughout the country.

Unemployment

Jobless Figure Plunges To 8.8%; Lowest in 20 Months

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment in the United States plunged to 8.8 percent in October, the lowest point in 20 months, the Labor Department said today, another sign the nation's economic recovery is strengthening.

The sharp decline, caused by across-the-board improvements in the job market, was one-half of a percentage point below the 9.3 percent rate for September, and a full 2 points below the recession high of 10.8 percent experienced last December.

The department's Bureau of Labor statistics said joblessness in those industries hardest hit by the recession — mining, construction, and manufacturing — were substantially reduced over the month.

Seasonally adjusted data reflected 9.9 million Americans unemployed, compared to a jobless total of 12 million at the height of the recession. The number of persons employed remained unchanged at 101.9 million following strong advances over the past four months.

An alternative unemployment rate, which includes 1.7 million members of the military in the workforce, dropped from 9.1 percent in September to 8.7 percent.

Labor Statistics Commissioner Janet Norwood, in testimony prepared for a congressional Joint Economic Committee hearing, noted that the unemployment declines were especially felt among those of more than 25 years of age who work full time and among persons who had lost their last job.

"As the recovery continues, long-term unemployment declines," she said.

Mrs. Norwood added that a survey of payroll jobs showed an increase of 320,000 in October, with particular strength in durable goods manufacturing, services and construction.

"The widespread nature of this over-the-month increase, on top of a fairly large upward revision in our preliminary estimates for September show an underlying strength in the employment recovery," she said.

The one-half percentage point decline was the largest since July, and the 8.8 percent rate was the lowest since February, 1982. It was 8.6 percent in January 1982.

The largest over-the-month improvements in the unemployment picture was among blacks and Hispanic workers. The jobless rate for black workers declined from 19 percent to 18.1 percent and for Hispanics from 13.1 percent to 12.3 percent.

The rate for black teenagers dropped from 52 percent to 48.3 percent.

In other categories, the rate for adult men dropped from 9.3 percent to 8.8 percent, matching the overall rate, while the rate for adult women fell from 8.7 percent to 8.2 percent.

Teenage unemployment showed only mild improvement, slipping from 21.8 percent in September to 21.6 percent.

Thursday, the department's weekly report on unemployment benefits showed 409,000 workers made new claims for regular state benefits during the week ended Oct. 22, a jump of 24,000 from the previous week.

A spokesman noted, however, that the previous week's total of 385,000 initial claims occurred in a week when many unemployment offices were open to receive applications for only four days because of the Columbus Day holiday.

Seasonally adjusted data showed that total unemployment recipients under regular state programs rose by 102,000 to 2,920,000 during the week ended Oct. 15.

That figure does not include 672,100 people receiving benefits under other programs, including 547,600 under the recently extended federal supplemental compensation program that triggers after other benefits are exhausted.

West Virginia retained the highest rate of insured unemployment — the percentage of those covered by jobless insurance that are receiving benefits — with an unadjusted rate of 5.3 percent for the week ended Oct. 15, compared to the national rate of 2.8 percent.

In a separate report, the department said the cost for workers' wages, salaries and benefits in industry and state and local governments rose 1.7 percent during the third quarter of 1983.

2 Sanford Men Involved

Sentencing Delayed In Money Laundering Case

Sentencing of two Sanford men and a British citizen in a money laundering scheme has been rescheduled for Nov. 18 in federal court in Orlando.

Two former federal security agents from Sanford — Kenneth Kroesser, 34, and Roger Harmon, 48 — and Gordon Rice, a 52-year-old Englishman, entered guilty pleas Sept. 30 before U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich.

The trio admitted they laundered stolen uncut currency through foreign banks in what was termed the largest laundering operation through foreign banks in the history of the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Kovachevich had been scheduled to sentence the three today.

Harmon and Kroesser, who were both previously convicted in federal court of stealing at least $790,000 in uncut U.S. currency, each began serving 10-year prison terms last fall and both owe $10,000 fines.

Kroesser formerly lived at Apartment C-5 Sandlewood Villas, 110 Airport Blvd., in Sanford, and Harmon formerly lived at 300 Art Lane.

SCHOOL VANDALISM

A burglar broke into the Rosenwald Elementary School in Altamonte Springs and damaged a soft drink machine Wednesday morning.

A clerk at the school said the burglar alarm sounded at about 8:01 a.m. and she found a window broken out in room 303, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The clerk then discovered that a nearby soft drink machine had been damaged when someone tried to pry it open with a tire iron. Deputies arrived a short time later, but the intruder had already left.

Death Sentence Upheld For Man Involved In Murder Of Seminole Deputy

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court says electrocution is an appropriate penalty for Terry Melvin Sims for his 1977 slaying of a Seminole County reserve deputy sheriff.

In a unanimous ruling Thursday, the justices agreed with Sims' contention that Seminole Circuit Judge Tom Waddell improperly duplicated aggravating factors in imposing the death sentence.

But the high court concluded there were no mitigating circumstances to outweigh the remaining aggravating factors.

"Where there are some aggravating and no mitigating circumstances, death is presumed to be the appropriate punishment," the justices said.

Sims, 41, was condemned for the 1977 slaying of deputy George Pfeil, who, off duty but wearing a uniform, was gunned down as he entered the Longwood Village Pharmacy, State Road 434, while a robbery was in progress.

Prosecutors said Sims and three companions from Jacksonville — Curtis Baldree, Eugene Robinson and B.B. Halsell — stopped by the pharmacy while returning from Tampa and staged the robbery to obtain both cash and narcotics.

Sims, who was arrested in California, contended that he was mistaken for another man with a similar appearance who frequently accompanied Baldree and Halsell.

Sims was identified as the gunman by two of his accomplices as well as the surviving customers and employees of the store.

Baldree and Halsell were later killed and Robinson, the suspected mastermind of the holdup, is being held in the Orange County jail on charges of shooting two FBI agents earlier this year.

In another ruling, the justices decided 6-1 that candidates for the Bar must reveal whether they have been treated for mental or emotional disorders.

The high court rejected a Bar candidate's claim that demanding such information without limits was a violation of his right of privacy.

The justices said a candidate's background of treatment for mental, nervous or emotional disorders is pertinent to his or her fitness to withstand the pressures of practicing law.

Doctor: Some Wounded Disabled Permanently

HAVANA, Cuba (UPI) — A Cuban doctor helping to care for 57 Cubans wounded during the U.S.-led assault on Grenada said the invasion forces did not adequately care for the injured.

Dr. Lazar Camlor said Thursday he found cases of untreated gangrene and worm-infested wounds among the 57 injured Cubans who were airlifted to Havana, and that 40 percent of them would be permanently disabled.

"Our own Cuban doctors were the only ones to treat them. They poured rum into open wounds to try and disinfect them," Camlor said. "They had no antibiotics or pain killers."

Stone In Guatemala

United Press International
U.S. special envoy to Central America, Richard Stone, arrived in Guatemala today on his fifth tour of the region since President Reagan appointed him to seek dialogue among the various warring parties.

"We are in good time to move forward the procedure to search for peace and to achieve democracy," said Stone Thursday after meeting with Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova on the first leg of his peace-seeking tour.

Stone is scheduled to visit El Salvador and Costa Rica as well as Honduras and Guatemala. The State Department in Washington said it did not know if he would go to Nicaragua.

Marcos Frees Prisoners

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos today ordered the release of 64 Filipinos arrested during anti-government protests, most facing sedition and other charges that carried a possible death sentence.

A new coalition of opposition groups today convened its first national assembly to adopt a manifesto condemning the government and lay plans for the "dismantling of the U.S.-Marcos dictatorship."

Congress Split Over Aid To Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate and House have come down on opposite sides on whether to cut off covert aid to Nicaraguan rebels, leaving a conference committee with the tough task of developing a compromise acceptable to both houses and the president.

As expected, the Republican-controlled Senate sided with the White House Thursday and agreed by voice vote, after about an hour of low-key debate, to allow continued U.S. support for the groups battling the Marxist government of Nicaragua.

The Democratic-led House voted 227-194 Oct. 20 to cut all funds for the program. That was the second House vote to halt the CIA aid.

As Congress was voting, a federal judge gave the attorney general 90 days to investigate criminal allegations that President Reagan and other federal officials broke the law in supporting paramilitary operations against the Nicaraguan government. District Judge Stanley A. Weigel ordered William French Smith to determine whether Reagan, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and others violated the Neutrality Act in directing military plans aimed at overthrowing the leadership of the Central American nation.

The act prohibits organizing or launching paramilitary expeditions against countries with which the United States is not at war.

If found guilty, Reagan and the others each could theoretically face a $5,000 fine and up to three years in prison.

The administration has been supporting rebel groups opposed to the Sandinista government. In recent months the rebels have sharply increased their offensive, hitting economic targets such as ports, airports and oil depots.

Administration officials say support of the rebel groups is intended to pressure the Nicaraguan government to stop aiding leftist guerrillas operating in neighboring El Salvador and other Central American nations.

Details of the authorization bill are classified, but the Senate measure is believed to authorize the same funding level as last year, approximately $19 million.

Intelligence Committee chairman Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., said his committee had agreed to allow continued covert actions based on a new "finding" submitted by the administration outlining the goals and details of the program.

Earlier plans were "too broad and too ambitious," he said, but the one outlined for the committee Sept. 20 by CIA Director William Casey and Secretary of State George Shultz had goals that were "more precise and much more limited."

9 Mental Hospital Aides Indicted In Patient Abuse

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Federal officials say the indictments of nine former and present aides at Pennhurst Center is a "clear message" that abuse of retarded patients at mental hospitals will not be tolerated.

The Justice Department said the indictments, returned Thursday in U.S. District Court, for alleged incidents at the Spring City facility in 1981 and 1982 are believed the first of their kind against employees of a mental institution.

The indictments included charges that the aides kicked, slapped and punched patients — some in wheelchairs — broke one patient's hip and forced one patient to physically abuse another.

Luther Weaver III, chief of the major crimes section of the U.S. attorney's office in Philadelphia, said an investigation is continuing and "we are looking at many, many other incidents."

Weaver said Pennhurst officials, principally center director George Kopchick, helped initiate the probe. The Justice Department has been involved in a civil lawsuit challenging patient conditions at the institution since 1974. Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds said the indictments were the result of a one-year federal investigation and were based partly on the work of an undercover female Pennsylvania state police officer.

"This should give a clear message to employees of state mental hospitals and facilities for the mentally retarded across the country that abuse of patients will not be tolerated by the federal government," Reynolds said.

Pennhurst, which opened at the turn of the century, now houses 622 patients whose average length of stay is more than 35 years.

If convicted on each count of deprivation of rights, each defendant could receive a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Seven of the accused were fired and another resigned. The ninth is still employed at the center, but Kopchick said disciplinary action is pending against her.

Lake Mary Commissions Water Study To Head Off Pollution

A hydrology study of Lake Mary with an eye toward preventing pollution of the city's water table will begin within a month.

The city commission agreed Thursday to pay University of Florida graduate student James Jensen $4,000 with a report of his findings to be submitted within 90 to 120 days.

City Attorney Robert Petree said he will prepare a contract after City Manager Kathy Rice and Jensen meet to work out details of the agreement. The contract is to be presented to the commission for approval at its Nov. 17 meeting.

Kenneth King, considered the commission's environmentalist, recommended the study, saying that specific information about Lake Mary's hydrology is not available from the county, the state or the federal government.

King contended that the city could be permitting damage to the city's water table because it doesn't have hydrological information at hand when considering new development. That problem is certain to intensify, he said, as building activity accelerates.

Jensen told commissioners Thursday night that the study will pinpoint areas where the city could have problems with well fields and sewage disposal. He said that he will use existing data in his research, building from there and will take water samples as needed. Noting he is in his final stages of obtaining his master's degree, Jensen said, "I feel I can give a good report." He added that his fee, which will be paid in three parts as he completes various stages of his work, will be as much as half what a private consultant would charge.

In response to an inquiry from Petree, Jensen said he will determine the impact drainage runoff will have on the city's lakes as Lake Mary grows and will prepare maps that can be correlated to existing comprehensive planning maps. — Donna Estes

PLO's Yasser Arafat Fighting For Survival

United Press International
Syrian-backed Palestinian rebels closed in today around embattled guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and his dwindling supporters who lost ground in fierce fighting in their last remaining stronghold in Lebanon.

The clashes raged through the day Thursday in the northern Lebanese port of Tripoli, with shelling and rocket fire killing at least 60 people and wounding more than 100 others before nightfall, Lebanese police officials said.

In Geneva, Switzerland, leaders of Lebanon's feuding Christian and Moslem factions arranged more national reconciliation talks today aimed at halting the deteriorating situation in their country.

The rival factional leaders reached a compromise agreement Thursday on the May 17 troop withdrawal accord between Israel and the Christian-dominated Lebanese government of President Amin Gemayel, the central issue of the talks.

Israel, for the first time in five years, set in motion Thursday a test mobilization of 400,000 reserve troops and demanded the Palestine Liberation Organization guarantee the safety of six Israeli prisoners held in a Syrian-besieged base in Lebanon.

A senior army official said Israel's Arab neighbors were informed about the mobilization drill to avoid misunderstanding that the test was a "preparation for war." The exact date of the exercise was not disclosed.

In Tripoli, Arafat was quoted as saying that thousands of Syrian and Libyan troops along with anti-Arafat rebels within the PLO mounted their offensive early Thursday against the Beddawi and Nahr Bared refugee camps.

The two camps, home for some 40,000 civilians defended by about 5,000 PLO fighters, are Arafat's last strongholds in Lebanon since the expulsion of his PLO forces from the eastern Bekaa valley by Syrian troops during the summer.

Syria backs the PLO rebels led by Col. Saïd Moussa, who broke with Arafat in May over Arafat's overtures to negotiate peace with Israel under a U.S. proposal.

The anti-Arafat rebels, in a broadcast from Damascus, the Syrian capital, claimed they took the heights overlooking the two refugee camps and said several leaders of Arafat's forces had deserted.

Here's Energy Success Story

Success stories in government economic policy are rare, so when they occur they ought to be inspected carefully for underlying lessons.

One of the most notable such stories in recent years has been written by Reagan administration programs in the realm of energy regulation.

In less than three years' time, the "energy crisis" of the 1970s has been eliminated.

The gas lines of that era have disappeared, the power of the OPEC oil sheiks has been broken.

The whys and wherefores of this seemingly miraculous alteration are provided in a newly published study from the U.S. Department of Energy.

Entitled the "National Energy Plan for 1983," this document spells out the policy shifts that have occurred in terms of energy regulation since the Reagan administration came to power, and the beneficial effects that have ensued.

Through the 1970s, this report observes, the U.S. government maintained controls on petroleum and gasoline, holding prices below their market level.

This led to decreased production on the homefront and continued rising consumption. The difference between domestic supply and demand was made up by a rising volume of imports, chiefly from the OPEC cartel.

As one of his first acts after coming to the White House, President Reagan moved for final decontrol of domestic petroleum prices and the pump price of gasoline.

The results have been remarkable — abolishing the shortages and gas lines of the '70s, dramatically reducing our dependence on imports, and breaking the power of OPEC in international markets.

Among the particulars:

- In response to de-regulation, prices initially rose to a national average of $1.39 a gallon, peaking in March 1981.

- Thereafter, in response to market pressures, they declined, reaching an average of $1.29 a gallon this July — 15 per cent lower, in real terms, than when Reagan came to office.

- The initial upward surge of prices put a damper on demand, while signaling producers that investments in this field could be recouped.

Drilling and exploration went to record levels in 1981, and new output from older oil fields led to the first hike in production from the lower 48 states since controls went into effect a decade earlier.

- U.S. imports of petroleum fell from 8.6 million barrels a day, amounting to 46 per cent of total oil consumption, to 4.3 million barrels, roughly 28 per cent of total consumption.

In other words, regulation of petroleum led to shortages, gas lines, rising prices, and painful dependence on OPEC.

De-regulation led to increased production, falling prices, and greater energy independence for America.

AROUND THE CLOCK

By Michael Beha

A dozen Seminole County students will be showcased on an ABC Television special Saturday at 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

The program, ABC Special Kids, focuses on outstanding young people from around the country.

The teenagers, students at Seminole and Lake Mary high schools, are spotlighted because of the work they did last year while students at Lakeview and Sanford middle schools.

The students worked with "disabled" puppets to promote better awareness and understanding of the problems of the handicapped.

The students have all been sent congratulatory letters from Marie Quick, project coordinator for the program who thanked the students "not only for your contribution to our series but for the example you set for people in your community."

Superintendent Robert Hughes said he applauds the achievements of the teens. "I was delighted to learn that ABC will share another success story about Seminole County's students with the entire nation. I invite all citizens to watch the program and share the pride we all feel because of the accomplishments of our teachers and our students."

It's interesting what county commissioners will sometimes use as evidence in public hearings.

For example, last week when Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather was considering whether a Woogie's Pub planned for the Casselberry area was a bar or a restaurant he told his fellow commissioners, "Some of the best sandwiches I've ever eaten are at Woogie's Pubs."

Based on his own experience of buying more sandwiches than beer at the clubs, Feather said "I think they are more of a restaurant than a bar."

Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff convinced Feather he was wrong by taking the example one step further. "I buy magazines at Touchton's Drugstore. I think Touchton's is a newstand not a drugstore."

Commissioners voted unanimously that Woogie's is a bar, not a restaurant.

Following Up On Flight 007

Red 20 is open again.

That's the Pacific air corridor, the westernmost of five and the closest to Soviet air space, to which Korean Air Lines Flight 007 was assigned when it made its fatal course deviation.

Traffic in the corridor was suspended for a month after the airliner was shot down while the navigation aids along the route, among other things, were checked for accuracy.

They checked out okay, but traffic control in all the corridors has been improved a bit.

U.S. military radar, in response to a request by the Federal Aviation Administration, is again tracking flights from installations on Shemya Island, 1,200 southwest of Anchorage.

Shemya radar could not, however, have prevented the KAL disaster even if it had been available for commercial flights. The military says 007 was already well beyond its range.

Meanwhile, in Montreal a 15-member international commission, including U.S. and Soviet representatives, met to explore possible cooperative improvements in air traffic control.

There and before Congress, airline pilots are proposing more extensive use of radar and other military high tech to assist commercial flights. This would include the use of navigational satellites in a foolproof position locating system.

I am no expert on the technology involved, but some who are inform me that the proposals are not only feasible but are only the beginning of what might be accomplished by drawing on military capabilities.

For instance, existing geosynchronous satellites could maintain surveillance of sensitive areas and, via photos relayed to ground stations, warn of potentially hazardous conditions such as heavy activity at Soviet airfields.

The satellites, according to an informant, are of a mind-boggling photographic accuracy, capable of picking out a beer can from 23,000 miles up "and the label can be read."

Receivers could be built into airliners to receive satellite intelligence directly.

By the end of the '80s, enough of a planned 36-satellite NASTAR (Navigation Satellite Timing and Ranging) system should be in place to monitor airline traffic worldwide. The system, of primary use to the Navy in tracking ships, is said to be capable of pinpointing the position of craft within 30 feet anywhere on earth.

There are problems in marrying the needs of the airlines and the interests of the flying public with the military's traffic-control potential.

Not the least is the military's reluctance to be a groom. This is partially because its operations are not nearly continuous, as necessary for the schedules of airlines, but are often geared to specific missions of limited duration.

Shemya's radar, for an example, briefly kept an eye on commercial flights. But after 1981, when Pacific corridors were expanded to five, it was restricted to military use.

There's also secrecy. The military does not want to give away any technological advantages, while a commercial flight control system must be open to all or its purpose is defeated.

And then there is the considerable cost, which would probably have to be shared. That would very likely meet some resistance.

Doctored Tape May Bring New Trial

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department may have used a doctored videotape to obtain the indictment and conviction of former Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., on Abscam charges. The crucial tape was shown to the grand jury and later at Williams' trial.

The evidence of tape tampering, provided by two acknowledged videotape experts, could win a new trial for Williams. He was sentenced to three years in prison for conspiring to use his political influence improperly on behalf of a supposed Arab sheik, who was actually an FBI agent.

The doctored videotape was made on Jan. 15, 1980. It recorded the first meeting between the senator and the phony sheik. The undercover agent discussed putting up money for a titanium mine in Virginia in exchange for Williams' help on an immigration matter. The Jan. 15 tape was repeatedly cited by the prosecution as evidence that Williams was corrupt.

WILLIAM RUSHER

Doing The Best He Can

NEW YORK (NEA) — President Reagan could do worse, these days, than remember Abraham Lincoln's observation in the midst of an even more earthshaking crisis:

"If I were to try to read, much less answer, all the attacks made on me, this shop might as well be closed for any other business. I do the very best I know how — the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would make no difference."

Still, for the rest of us there is a certain grim interest in watching the Democratic politicians try to capitalize on Mr. Reagan's difficulties without burning themselves in the process. For sheer cheap opportunism, Sen. Alan Cranston of California surely walked off with the prize with his statement after the bombing of the Marine barracks in Beirut: "President Reagan has landed us in a total mess, and there's no clear way out now."

How's that for having it both ways? Blame Reagan, but carefully avoid suggesting any alternative — because, of course, there was none.

America's bipartisan support for Israel guarantees us the hostility of major segments of the Arab world, and the Soviet Union, by supporting the Arab position, is able to exert an influence in the Middle East that would otherwise be unattainable. The Israelis have always taken the position that, if the United States will only give them the weapons, they will be glad to supply the manpower necessary to defend themselves. The problem with that formula is that by maximizing the Israeli presence in crises, it guarantees maximum Arab annoyance — as earlier this year, when Israeli forces rolled into southern and central Lebanon and forced the PLO to withdraw temporarily from the area. War between Syria and Israel, with incalculable further consequences, seemed very close.

It was to diminish the provocation afforded by this show of Israeli power that Mr. Reagan prevailed upon Israel to withdraw its troops from the Beirut area and replaced them with a "peacekeeping" force of British, French, Italian and American soldiers. Unfortunately, such a force is at the mercy of anybody contemptuous enough of it to make hit-and-run attacks on them, and the United States has been busy in recent years trying to convince the world that it is a paper tiger whose tail can be tweaked at will.

That is why pulling out of Beirut in the face of the bombing of the Marine barracks would be the worst thing this country could possibly do. Conceivably we could take the Israelis up on their standing offer and withdraw our forces over a period of time, replacing them with Israeli troops. But that would entail accepting precisely the disagreeable and dangerous consequences that the multinational peacekeeping force was designed to avert: bitter Arab anger at the United States and the very real possibility of war between Israel and Syria, backed by the United States and the Soviet Union respectively.

In these circumstances, President Reagan's decision to join the small island nations of the eastern Caribbean in preventing further bloodshed and blackmail by the communist junta that had seized control of neighboring Grenada is an important step in restoring global respect for this country — and thereby reducing the likelihood of further massacres such as that in Beirut.

The communist regime in Grenada had no claim whatever to legitimacy, democratic or otherwise. Its continued existence on America's doorstep would have been a standing reminder — like all the other affronts this nation has endured in recent years, including the seizure of our embassy personnel by Iran — that the United States was dependably paralyzed by its own internal political tensions. The presence in Grenada of 500 American medical students, not to mention tourists and others, would have provided all the pressure the junta needed to squeeze this country into recognizing it.

Mr. Reagan, offered a better option, seized it swiftly and decisively. Grenada will be able to vote, now, free from pressure, for the kind of government its people want.

Jesse Helms Runs Hard

GREENSBORO, N.C. (NEA) — North Carolina's 1984 Senate race pits the state's two most powerful politicians against each other — and the matchup will have a significant national impact.

The incumbent is arch-conservative, Republican Jesse Helms, the chief spokesman for national conservative causes — who, as such, has a constituency that extends far beyond the state's borders. Helms is one of the most popular men ever to represent North Carolina in the Senate. He is one of the two most popular politicians in the state.

His challenger is incumbent Gov. Jim Hunt, one of the new breed of moderate Southern Democrats. Hunt is viewed as a rising star in Democratic politics and as a possible presidential contender for the 1990s. He is also one of the most popular governors in the state's history.

This campaign is simply called "the race" — or, by some, "a battle of titans."

The elections are still a year away, but the battle has been joined for months. Neither side is taking the high road and it's predicted that by Election Day '84, this will be a markedly vicious campaign.

Helms' strength lies in his role as the champion of conservative causes. The Hunt forces portray him as "a dangerous right-wing demagogue" and a man of "religious and racial intolerance." Hunt has assembled a powerful statewide political machine comprised of traditional Democratic elements, such as minorities, labor, women and teachers. Therefore, Helms' supporters describe him as a "tool of liberals"; some of Helms' more conservative backers in the smaller towns hint that Hunt is part of a communist plot to drive the staunchly anti-communist Helms out of the Senate.

Hunt has not actively campaigned so far; he is recovering from minor surgery and says he won't decide whether to run until January. He insists that right now, he's busy being governor. However, his "Jim Hunt Exploratory Committee" is very busy raising money and establishing a campaign apparatus.

One reason Hunt has not yet begun to run full out is that early polls have shown him to be well ahead of Helms; Polls taken last spring consistently showed him to be 20 or more points ahead.

This has caused Helms to start a major re-election effort more than a year before the election. He's already running — and running hard.

In recent campaign appearances, Helms has dwelled on the downing of Korean Airlines Flight 007. He was scheduled to be on that flight, but changed his travel plans at the last minute after being invited to a fundraiser in Texas. Therefore, he flew out of Los Angeles, rather than New York, and wasn't aboard the ill-fated flight.

In his campaign appearances, Helms calls the incident "the most traumatic of my life" and says that it shows what "cruel barbarians" the Soviets are, indicating why North Carolina voters shouldn't remove his anti-communist voice from the Senate.

In addition to his personal appearances, Helms has already begun a media campaign. His television spots appear so regularly that viewers might think that it was already 1984.

But Spyker and Quarante agree that, while the first break was caused by stopping and restarting the machine, the second was not.

The second break was "totally unlike the first one," Spyker said. He explained: "It was what we would call a 'clean' edit, meaning that there was no breakup or loss of any video associated with it. This edit could not have been performed by stopping the recorder and then restarting it. There is no question or doubt in my mind whatsoever that there had been intentional editing of this videotape by use of a re-recording type of editing equipment."

Footnote: Puccio's initial response to my associate's inquiry was: "I don't believe at this late date you're still going with this business ... What you should print, and I'm sure you won't, is that no Abscam subject ever claimed there was anything he said or did that was not taped."

But my associate Indy Badhwar has obtained sworn affidavits from two experts who conducted a painstaking, frame-by-frame electronic analysis of the videotape. Williams' attorneys say that a key segment that could have exculpated the senator was edited out.

Stephen K. Spyker, chief engineer of Video 44, a New York-based division of Compu-Edit Inc., said in his sworn statement that the tape was altered "by using sophisticated video editing equipment designed specifically for the purpose of editing videotape."

Spyker, who has 10 years' experience in video engineering, added: "I examined this tape in the presence of other engineers employed by Video 44, all of whom came to the same conclusions as I have."

Perry Quarante, president of PQ Productions Inc. of New Jersey, also stated in an affidavit that his examination of a noticeable break in the videotape showed it was "caused by editing, and therefore had to have been tampered with to make a 'clean edit.'" In a telephone interview he explained: "Something was erased from the tape and then it was re-recorded to cover that up."

The experts' affidavits directly contradict sworn testimony by Abscam prosecutor Thomas Puccio.

There are two noticeable breaks in the Jan. 15 tape's continuity. Puccio, who was monitoring the meeting from an adjoining room, testified that the breaks were caused when the camera was "shut off a couple of times during the meeting." He added: "I saw the technician turn the recording equipment off."

IN BRIEF

Singer Connie Francis Accused Of Hitting Man

LAKE WORTH (UPI) — Singer Connie Francis, a patient at a Palm Beach County mental hospital, faces a Nov. 15 hearing in a suit charging her with assaulting another patient.

Reuben Wigdor is seeking $5,000 from Miss Francis and Lake Hospital. Wigdor said this week that Miss Francis barged into his room Oct. 26, yelled at him and hit him with her fists.

According to Wigdor, the attack followed another incident in which Miss Francis encountered him talking on a telephone in a hallway, grabbed the receiver, hung it up and threatened him.

The suit also asks that Miss Francis be isolated to protect other patients.

Miss Francis was involuntarily committed to the Coral Ridge Psychiatric Center early last month and later transferred to Lake Hospital.

Miss Francis, 44, rose to stardom in the 1950s with such hits as Who's Sorry Now? and Where the Boys Are from the movie in which she starred.

In 1974, she was raped in a motel room in Westbury, N.Y. and later received a settlement totaling nearly $1.5 million from a motel chain. After a 7-year absence from the entertainment scene, she returned to show business in 1981.

Criser Choice For UF Post

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — Palm Beach attorney Marshall Criser will be recommended to the Board of Regents today as the choice of its presidential selection committee to become the next president of the University of Florida.

All 12 members of the BOR were present at Thursday's 12-minute committee meeting. They were expected to approve the selection of Criser without dissent.

He will succeed Robert Q. Marston, who announced his resignation, effective next September, after 10 years as head of the 34,000-student institution.

Criser, 55, a UF alumnus, former chairman of the BOR from 1974 to 1977 and partner in the prestigious Palm Beach law firm of Gunster, Yoakley, Criser and Stewart, was the unanimous choice of the four-member committee.

Shuttle Being Readied

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The space shuttle Columbia has been moved from its work hangar to the towering assembly building at the Kennedy Space Center for final preparations before its launch later this month.

Technicians began attaching two solid rocket boosters and an external fuel tank to Columbia Thursday.

A Nov. 28 blastoff is scheduled for Columbia and its Spacelab cargo after two delays. NASA officials said Columbia, which made the first five shuttle flights, will make the 3 1/2-mile trip to its ocean-side launch pad next Tuesday.

Columbia was removed from the pad Oct. 17 after engineers decided to replace a suspect booster rocket nozzle.

Shands Hospital Denies 'Dumping' AIDS Patient

GAINESVILLE (UPI) — The transfer last month of an acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) patient from Shands Teaching Hospital to San Francisco, where he died 16 days later, was carried out in good faith, the hospital says.

In a 23-page report prepared at the request of Gov. Bob Graham, Shands officials contended they did everything they could to find "appropriate (non-hospital) care" for the patient, Morgan MacDonald.

MacDonald, 28, died of heart failure Oct. 20 at San Francisco General Hospital. San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein sharply criticized the Florida hospital and accused it of "dumping" the patient in California.

In a summary letter with the report, John Ives, the hospital's executive vice president, said MacDonald was admitted to Shands on July 14 suffering from chronic diarrhea.

Physicians later determined his condition was the result of AIDS, an illness that causes the body's defense mechanisms to break down.

When physicians determined MacDonald "no longer needed highly specialized care in a tertiary care facility (such as Shands)," the hospital attempted to find a nursing home placement, Ives said.

Shands officials searched in Florida, New York City and other areas for such a "placement," he said, before finally contacting the Shantle Project — an assistance program — in San Francisco.

MacDonald had lived in San Francisco for six years before coming to Florida earlier this year.

Arrangements were made for MacDonald to live in a San Francisco hotel where he would be monitored by Shantle counselors and could have daily nursing service if necessary.

Although Shands physicians considered MacDonald healthy enough to travel, he was "very tired" from the flight after landing in San Francisco. A Shands medical intern traveling with him recommended MacDonald be taken to the San Francisco General Hospital, where he died.

Ives insisted Shands officials acted in good faith in trying to find appropriate care for the patient.

"While this has turned into a controversial incident between the states of California and Florida, I believe it points out the crying need for appropriate facilities within the state of Florida for the post-hospital care of AIDS patients," Ives said.

A spokesman for Graham said the governor asked Health and Rehabilitative Services Secretary David Pingree to review the report and make recommendations concerning "a response or any other actions needed to be taken by the governor's office."

Barma, Scott Power Hawks Into Finals Against DeLand

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

The two top-seeded teams in the 4A-9 District Volleyball Tournament advanced to tonight's final, but they took different paths to get there.

In Thursday night's semi-finals at Lake Mary High, DeLand's Lady Bulldogs, the number one seed, had a surprisingly easy time against Seminole while the second seed, Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks, had to fight for their lives against the upset-minded Lady Greyhounds of Lyman High.

The Lake Howell-DeLand final gets under way tonight at 7. The last time the two teams met, DeLand pulled out a 15-13, 16-14 victory. It was the only district loss for the Lady Hawks.

Bulldogs Oust Seminoles

DeLand, which escaped with a narrow three-game victory the last time it went up against Seminole, caught the Lady Tribe on an off night Thursday and the Lady Bulldogs rolled to a 15-2, 15-7 victory.

"We didn't play volleyball tonight," Seminole coach Beth Corso said. "We didn't play our game the way we're used to."

Behind the awesome front-line play of Bridgette Gordon, the Lady Bulldogs built an early 7-0 lead in the first game. Robin Swartz served four of the points for DeLand and Gordon served three. Gordon came up with four spikes in the early going and Pam Russell added a spike and a nice block.

Seminole regained the serve on a missed block by DeLand and Beth Nelson served a pair of points to cut the Lady Bulldogs' lead to 7-2. A missed serve gave it back to DeLand, and although they had the serve four more times, the Lady Seminoles didn't score again.

With DeLand holding a 11-2 lead, Leslie Voll served three points for a 14-2 lead and, after a spike by Russell, Swartz served the final point of the first game.

The Lady Bulldogs kept the pressure on in the second game as the Lady Bulldogs reeled off eight straight points before Seminole could score. Gordon served five of the eight points.

Seminole scored one point on Nelson's serve, but DeLand got it back and ran up a 10-1 lead on Debbie Underwood's serve.

Volleyball

The Lady Tribe cut it to 10-4 on Janet Hauck's serve, but a missed spike gave it back to the Lady Bulldogs. Stephanie Edwards then served three points for a 12-4 DeLand lead.

The Lady Tribe then had its best rally of the second game, but it wasn't enough. With Jill Janak serving, Seminole scored three straight points to cut DeLand's lead to 12-7. The third point came on a nice block by Katy Barbour.

DeLand took a 13-7 lead on Voll's serve before Seminole got the serve back. A nice dink by Gordon gave it right back to DeLand and Swartz served out the match with a hit by Gordon into the open court providing the last point.

"Sanford has a fine ballclub, they came close to beating us the last time we played," DeLand coach Clifford Cox said. "The had a bad night and didn't get many breaks tonight. Both of our big girls, Gordon and Edwards, did a great job. If they keep playing the way they did tonight, we'll be hard to beat."

Howell Subdues Lyman

While DeLand won in straight sets, Lyman gave Lake Howell a good battle before bowing out in three games, 15-3, 11-15, 15-7.

"We made a lot of mistakes in that second game," Lake Howell coach Jo Luciano said. "We were doing some things that we hadn't done since practice in August. I hope we got all of the mistakes out of our system."

The way Lake Howell won the first game, 15-3, it seemed the Lady Hawks would breeze to victory. With the score tied 1-1, the Hawks' Cathy Saunders served four points and Christy Scott served one for a 6-1 Lake Howell lead.

Lyman made it 6-2, but Lake Howell got the serve back on a missed spike and reeled off six more points for a 12-2 lead. Caryn Krumwiede served five of the six points and her fifth serve was an ace.

The Lady Greyhounds made it 12-3 on a service ace by Regan Stump, but a nice spike by Scott gave it back to Lake Howell and Cathy Saunders served three points to finish the first game.

Lake Howell led for most of the second game, but Lyman refused to fold and came back to win it and force a third game. With the score tied at 3-3, Scott served five straight points for a 8-3 Lake Howell lead. Lyman made it 8-4 and, after the two teams traded serves a few times, Lake Hawks got it back and took a 9-4 lead on Beth Saunders' serve with Scott's block providing the point.

A spike by Lori Helms gave it back to Lyman and the Lady Greyhounds cut the Hawks' lead to 9-5 on Tina Warden's serve. Lake Howell regained the serve but couldn't score and Helms then went on to serve two straight points to cut Lake Howell's lead to 9-7.

Lyman made it 9-8 before Lake Howell got it back and they Hawks went on to take a 11-8 lead. A missed spike gave it back to Lyman, though.

The Lady Greyhounds then came through with their most impressive rally of the night. Donna Ball's blistering serve was too hot for Lake Howell to handle as Lyman reeled off seven straight points on Ball's serve to win the second game, 15-11.

"She (Ball) was serving really hard," Luciano said. "We weren't making good passes and when we don't do that the offense suffers."

But, Lake Howell didn't intend on seeing its season end Thursday night. Lake Howell's experience paid off in the pressure-packed final game and seniors Scott and Kathy Barma were the key performers for the Lady Hawks.

Lake Howell broke a 3-3 tie on the serve of Thiebauth and, the Lady Hawks went on to take a 7-3 lead with Barma serving the last two. The Hawks later took a 8-4 lead with a nice block by Barma leading the way, but Lyman fought back to make it 8-7.

Lake Howell took a 10-7 lead on Beth Saunders' serve, but Lyman got it back on a missed spike. The turning point came on the next serve. Scott came through with a key spike to give it back to Lake Howell and Krumwiede served five straight as the Lady Hawks survived the scare to advance to the finals.

"Kathy Barma was instrumental for us tonight," Luciano said. "Her hitting and serving were excellent and she made some key saves. Christy Scott also came through when we needed it most."

Juana Coletti beats Brevard's Gina World to the hoop for an easy bucket. Coletti and the Seminole Community College Raiders tripped Brevard, 71-60, to post their first victory of the new cage season at home Thursday night. Sanford's Cathy Jones led the point parade with 17 markers. SCC, 1-1, built a 10-point halftime bulge en route to its win. The Raiders host Southern Georgia College at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Jones Leads Lady Raiders' Victory

J.C. Basketball

Former Seminole High standout Cathy Jones poured in 17 points and grabbed six rebounds as the Seminole Community College women's basketball team claimed a 71-60 victory over Brevard CC in the Raiders home opener Thursday night at SCC.

SCC now stands at 1-1 on the season, the Lady Raiders dropped a 71-57 decision to Manatee this past Tuesday. SCC is back in action Saturday at 2 p.m. when it hosts South Georgia College.

The Lady Raiders built a 39-32 lead by halftime and led by as much as 12 points in the second half. Brevard didn't give in though and came back to take a one point lead with eight minutes left to play. SCC came back strong though and wound up winning by 11.

Behind Jones, the Lady Raiders had a balanced scoring attack with four players scoring eight or more points. SCC freshman Juana Coletti scored 12 points in her debut while teammates Tonya Alexander, Kim Ross and Carolyn Brinkley added eight points apiece. Val Roessler and Monica Greene chipped in with six points apiece. Sue Winterheimer added four and Pam Lee had two. Lee also grabbed six rebounds and Ross led the Lady Raiders with seven rebounds.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Goslee, Schmit Help Rams Slip Past Greyhounds, 8-7

Mike Schmit threw for a touchdown and a two-point conversion and the defense turned in an impressive performance as Lake Mary's Junior varsity upended Lyman's JV, 8-7, Thursday night at Lake Mary High. The JV Rams ended the season with a 4-3 record.

Lake Mary took a 8-0 lead in the first quarter as Schmit hooked up with Willie Meadows on a 20-yard touchdown pass. Schmit then found Tony Gaines in the end zone for the two-point conversion.

The Lake Mary defense, led by Mike Goslee's 12 solo tackles and two fumble recoveries, held the JV Greyhounds scoreless in the first half as Lake Mary went into the lockerroom with a 8-0 lead.

The Rams put together another scoring drive, this one in the third quarter, to try to increase their lead. Another touchdown pass by Schmit was called back because of a penalty though and the Rams came up empty on the drive.

Lyman scored its only touchdown of the game midway through the third quarter on a 40-yard punt return. The conversion kick cut Lake Mary's lead to 8-7.

The Lake Mary defense held tough the rest of the way and the Rams survived with the victory. Goslee not only led the defense, but he carried the ball 10 times for 109 yards to lead the offense. Schmit completed 9 of 14 passes for 89 yards.

Rebels Rip Winter Garden

The All-American Midget Rebels won their seventh straight game of the season by pounding Winter Garden, 38-0, in Pop Warner Football action last week.

Quarterback Kelly McKinnon tossed a 22-yard TD pass to Dennis Hoban and a 15-yarder to Johnny Griffin to pace the Rebels balanced attack. Todd Fugget handled the ball carrying duties with 141 yards while Scott Stiles added 61. McKinnon, Fugget and Stiles also added touchdown runs.

"Ted Becker, Lance Stewart and Emory Pruet did an outstanding job of blocking," said coach Dennis Groseclose. "Hugh Graham, Sean Casterline and Steve and Mark Ogler did a great job defensively."

The Midget Rebels travel to Ocoee for a 3 p.m. encounter Saturday.

Friends Bury 'Papa Bear'

CHICAGO (UPI) — They buried "Papa Bear," but not the legacy he left behind. Dallas Cowboys president Tex Schramm put it best when he said the National Football League would never have lasted without George Halas.

Schramm was among 1,200 friends, fans and football advisers who attended Thursday's funeral services for Halas.

County Teams Shoot For Top 6 In Saturday's District Meet

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

The Lake Howell and Lake Brantley girls teams, and the Lake Mary and Lyman boys teams shouldn't have any trouble qualifying for next week's regional cross country meet, but the Lake Mary girls and the Lake Brantley and Seminole boys might have a harder time. Those Seminole-County teams are looking to finish among the top six in Saturday's 4A-9 District Cross Country Championships at Trinity Prep.

The cross country district includes teams in the Five Star and Metro Conferences. The girls varsity race begins at 8:30 a.m. followed by the boys varsity at 9:15. Edgewater is the host of the meet. The top six boys and girls teams advance to next week's regionals at Lake Mary High.

Lake Mary's boys, the Five Star Conference champions in their first year in the conference, will challenge powerful Orlando Oak Ridge for the district title with Lyman, Winter Park not far behind and Lake Brantley, Seminole and Edgewater battling for a regional berth.

Seniors Derek Tangeman and Mark Blythe are the Rams' top performers. Tangeman finished third in the conference meet and his best time of the season is a 16:07. Blythe was seventh at the conference meet and his best time to date is a 16:44. Oak Ridge has some of the best runners in the area in George Gardner, a transfer from Orlando Jones.

Lyman's chances in the meet depend on how high the fifth runner finishes and how well Brian Hunter runs. Hunter, who missed most of the season with a bruised thigh, was the Greyhounds' second finisher last week and he is looking to move up this week. Doug McBroom, Lyman's number one runner, won the conference title last week and he has his eyes set on the district title. McBroom's best time to date is a 15:17.

Seminole, which had been third in the county throughout the season, fell to fourth as Lake Brantley edged the Tribe by two points for third place in the conference meet. Seminole's goal is regionals, and the third. Lake Brantley, which finished two points behind Lake Howell last week, is ranked fifth in the state.

The stiffest competition from the Metro Conference should be Orlando Colonial and Boone. Colonial's Laura Wick is one of the area's top runners and she ranks fifth in the state with a top time of 11:34. Although she is the fifth ranked runner, Wick has never beaten West Orange's Louise Schweitzer, the state's seventh ranked runner with a time of 11:38. Schweitzer is the favorite to win Saturday's race. The Lady Hawks received an outstanding performance from Athletic Attic-Seminole Track Officials Runner of the Week Amy Ertel, who finished fourth in the girls two-mile with a personal best time of 12:39.8. Lisa Samocki was right behind Ertel, as she finished fifth with a time of 12:43.4. Martha Fonseca finished seventh, Angie Smith was eighth, Mary Fonseca 12th, Lyn Lucas 13th and Nancy Nystrom 14th.

Lake Howell's Lady Silver Hawks are ranked fourth in the state after winning the Five Star Conference title last Friday. Lake Brantley, which finished two points behind Lake Howell last week, is ranked fifth in the state.

The stiffest competition from the Metro Conference should be Orlando Colonial and Boone. Colonial's Laura Wick is one of the area's top runners and she ranks fifth in the state with a top time of 11:34. Although she is the fifth ranked runner, Wick has never beaten West Orange's Louise Schweitzer, the state's seventh ranked runner with a time of 11:38. Schweitzer is the

Georgia Survives Walker Defection, Looks Forward To Fight With Gators

College Football

The Georgia Bulldogs have survived the defection of Herschel Walker to the U.S. Football League pretty well up to now.

The No. 4 ranked Bulldogs were unbeaten through their first eight games with only a tie at Clemson marring their record. But Walker may be sorely missed these next two Saturdays when Georgia plays 10th-ranked Florida and 3rd-ranked Auburn.

"We have not been called upon to play two teams as good as our next two opponents," said Georgia coach Vince Dooley. "Georgia will have to play better than we have at anytime for the entire 60 minutes if we hope to stay with Florida."

Without Walker, who would have been a senior this fall, Georgia coach Vince Dooley has tried five tailbacks. None have been more than a shadow of the three-time All-American.

Few athletes have dominated a series like Walker did in the past three Georgia-Florida games.

The Bulldogs, enroute to the national championship, came from behind on a 93-yard pass reception by Lindsay Scott to nip Florida 26-21 in 1980. But Walker was the man who kept Georgia close enough to make that possible — rushing for 238 yards on 37 carries, including a 72-yard touchdown run.

"That left a bad taste in our mouths," Florida defensive tackle David Galloway said the following August. "Just about every year, Georgia is the team we point for. It seems like Georgia is always beating Florida when Florida has something at stake.

"We're determined not to let Walker do that to us again."

Although the Gators keyed on Walker in 1981, he rushed for 192 yards on a Southeastern Conference record 47 carries and scored all four Georgia touchdowns in another 26-21 Bulldogs victory.

"I wanted to call (Georgia coach) Vince Dooley the next morning," recalled Florida coach Charley Pell. "I wanted him to tell me that, at the very least, that Herschel was sore from that pounding we gave him."

"Twice is enough," said Florida linebacker Wilber Marshall when he announced the next summer that stopping Walker would be the Gators' primary goal when they played Georgia last fall.

They failed. That time, Walker rushed for 219 yards on 35 carries and scored three touchdowns — once on a 30-yard run, twice on 1-yard runs — as Georgia crushed Florida 44-0 in the series' most lopsided game in 14 years.

In his three games against Florida, Walker, the 1982 Heisman Trophy winner, rushed for a total of 649 yards and scored eight touchdowns.

Birth Control Pill May Be Beneficial

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like to know if you feel there is a limit to how long a woman can be on birth control pills. The doctor I had when I first went on the Pill said I should only be on it for two years and then go off it for a while. However, my current doctor says he's never heard of that suggestion before and says I can be on the Pill continuously until I'm 40.

At 40 he feels the risk is too great. I'm 25 years old now and have been on the Pill for five straight years. It hasn't bothered me physically. What bothers me are the two different suggestions about how long I should stay on it. Can you help?

DEAR READER - Time has altered many suggestions about using oral contraceptives. Many doctors used to recommend stopping the Pill after using it for a time. In light of recent studies, particularly those from the National Center for Disease Control, using the Pill may prove to be far better for a woman's health than not using it.

The exception is the slight increase in risk of breast cancer in women who use the Pill to delay their first pregnancy. But even for women who delay their first pregnancy by any means, including no sex at all, the delay increases their risk.

Otherwise oral contraceptives significantly decrease a woman's risk of cancer of the uterus and cancer of the ovaries.

While some women do have an increased risk of heart attacks and strokes after age 40, it is usually those women who have other increased risk factors, such as smoking, high blood pressure and obesity. By the time you reach 40 this will all be settled and you may sail into menopause with safe, dependable hormone support. But of course many women can do that today if they just stay lean.

don't smoke and follow a good exercise program.

To update you on the recent thinking about oral contraceptives and their risk, I am sending The Health Letter SR-12, Oral Contraceptives and Postmenopausal Estrogens.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am sick of hearing "you have herpes." I am a 52-year-old woman and have had fever blisters since I was a girl. So if I am infected I must have gotten it from my father who also had fever blisters.

Are all fever blisters herpes? Are they all contagious? If so, why have none of my family been infected with them, including my husband? There was no sexual contact with my father. And the only time I get these blisters on my mouth is when I don't feel well.

DEAR READER - What most people call fever blisters or "cold sores" are herpes simplex number one. I like to call it "kissing herpes." The virus that causes it is different from genital herpes.

You are probably right that you got it from your father. The usual method of spread is by kissing and its presence on the lips has nothing to do with sexual activity. Sexually transmitted or genital herpes is herpes simplex number two.

Not everyone is equally susceptible to kissing herpes, or if they have the virus they don't have the activation of the virus that results in the lip sore.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

to make five-odd. If there is any comment at all, it concerns the opening lead of the fourth best spade. South remarks that he would play low in dummy, that East would have to play his king and that the defense would get two spade tricks and hold South to his game.

Now let's go into another world where West is a real expert. He opens that same 10 of hearts and wins the first club, but then our expert goes into some expert thought.

He decides that he can't beat the hand with a heart continuation and that his only hope is to shift to a spade. What's more, he decides to lead that spade which will give him his best chance to set the suit right up. He leads the 10 spot.

This play effectively destroys the value of South's nine spot. If the jack is played from dummy, East's king holds the trick and a spade is returned up to West's Q-8, which now surrounds that unfortunate nine. The defense gets three spade tricks and 50 points.

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Here is the sort of hand that causes no comment at all in most bridge games. South wins the heart lead and starts on clubs. West wins the first club and leads a second heart, whereupon South knocks out the last high club and takes the rest of the tricks

Foundation Plantings Vital In Landscape Design

Foundation plantings are a vital part of good home landscape design. Too often foundation planting is overdone and left to stand alone. History reveals that foundation plantings were used to block the view of raised foundations and to slow cold air movement under the house. Although these needs do not often exist today, some homeowners think it is a must to cover every linear foot of the foundation with plants.

The objectives of foundation planting are to focalize the main entrance, complement the architectural style of the house and to break long continuous lines of the house and blend it into the surroundings.

The designer should avoid competing elements. Plants should be selected which can easily be maintained to proper scale with the house. This is probably the most common failure of foundation plantings.

A general rule of thumb is that the height of plants in the foundation planting should not exceed two-thirds the height of the wall at house corners. Generally, plant height should not exceed the height of a line extending from the doorway to this imaginary point at the house corner. This does not mean every house should have plantings this high.

Just as foundation planting is vital to a good design, so also is ease of maintenance. Maintenance should be considered in the planning stages of landscaping and not as an afterthought. Winding border edges, scattered arrangement of flower beds, garden accessories, shrubs and trees are a few items which create problems when unplanned.

Interest in a landscape planting is often created by contrast. This can be a contrasting ground cover other than grass in the planting design. In addition, one might become more aware of the contrasts in plant forms, texture, flower, fruit and foliage color, with the possible introduction of certain non-living structural elements. These could be interesting paving patterns, screens or baffles, planters and water features.

Now is a good time of year to take a look at your planting design and analyze it for design quality. If you've massed plants in a continuous row that make it appear as if plants are clinging to the building, you can remedy the problem without completely renovating the existing plantings. The rearrangement of some plants and the addition of others may be all that is necessary to make an appealing landscape out of an eyesore.

Book Review Highlights ESO Meeting

The Epsilon Sigma Omicron Chapter of the Woman's Club of Sanford held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Smith with Mrs. Beulah Wells and Mrs. Florence Monforton serving as co-hostesses. Prior to the meeting, Mrs. Melba Cooper poured tea from the dining room table laden with refreshments.

Mrs. Cooper, chairman, presided and requested that the group open the meeting with silent memorial prayers for Mrs. Cathy Wesley and George Parks, husband of an ESO member.

The following officers for the new year were introduced: chairman, Mrs. Cooper; vice-chairman, Mrs. Kay Hall; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Kate Nash; program, Mrs. Lourine Messenger; and publicity, Mrs. Bill Gielow.

Mrs. Fred Harris, prospective new member of the Woman's Club, was welcomed. Also, Mrs. Bettye Smith is a new member of ESO.

In the absence of the program chairman, Mrs. Kate Nash introduced Mrs. Mills Boyd, speaker of the day. Mrs. Boyd reviewed the book, "You, My Brother," with sub-title, "Edwin and William Shakespeare," written by Phillip Burton.

The subject covered the years 1596 through 1607 under the regime of Queen Elizabeth and James I. Ten plays were written by William Shakespeare during the years covered by the book.

Members attending were: Melba Cooper, Esther Penn, Beulah Wells, Myra Stapleton, Bettye D. Smith, Florence Monforton, Doris Harriman, Louise Hayes, Derry Harris, Estelle Davis, Edythe George, Lucille Stone, Jane Paid, Patricia Foster, Lillian Johndrow, Kay Hall, Mabel Piety, Corinne Campbell, Kate Nash and Bill Gielow.

The Epsilon Sigma Omicron Division of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs in an honorary educational sorority for Florida clubwomen who desire to continue their education through planned reading, after their conventional schooling is over, and who seek direction in it.

The sorority is non-social and non-secret with culture as its sole aim. It is a cooperative venture in Adult Education, and has represented the combined efforts of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs and the Florida State Library.

The plan has a four-fold purpose: (1) To stimulate systematic home reading and study, with a minimum of supervision. (2) To encourage a wiser and wider use of public libraries. (3) To encourage the formation of reading groups for study. (4) To make ESO a vital force in today's adult education movement.

Membership in this sorority is composed of women who are members of per capita paying clubs in the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs and who have completed and earned certificates for any four of the Home Reading Courses prepared under the direction of and administered by the extension division of a state university or state library. Members of clubs who signify their intention of reading by enrolling in ESO courses are considered pledges of the sorority.

The next meeting will be held Nov. 16 at the Seminole County Historical Memorial Building, located across from the Flea Market on Hwy. 17-92. Mrs. Raymond F. Mensing will be guest speaker.

Macho Man's Wife Makes Own Prison

DEAR ABBY: I am in a marriage that stinks. Freddy (not his real name) is a macho man who doesn't think a married woman should work outside the home. When he met me I was a waitress (he owns a cattle ranch.) We've been married three months, and I feel like I'm in prison. He still goes out with the boys, stays out late and never tells me where he's been.

I wanted to take a course in flower arranging, but Freddy wouldn't let me. He knows that the man who teaches flower arranging is gay, but Freddy says you don't have to go to bed with a man to fall in love with him. He feels threatened by every man I say hello to.

To make sure I didn't have a car of my own, right after we got married he sold his car and "borrowed" mine and never gave it back. Now he's begging me to get pregnant, so I'll really be tied down. I'm 22 and Freddy is 32. Please help me.

FREDDY'S PRISONER: You are your own "prisoner" — not Freddy's. Nobody owns anybody else, and if you allow Freddy to control you, it's a choice that you made. Tell him how you feel. Then ask yourself if you'd be better off with him or without him, and go with your feelings.

DEAR ABBY: My son was engaged for 16 months to a girl who lives in another state. She broke the engagement last night by telephone. She also said she was keeping the ring because Dear Abby said an engagement ring is a gift and belongs to the girl if the engagement ends.

Abby, did you really say that? My son spent a whole year paying for that ring. As a matter of fact, he still owes money on it.

The girl broke his heart, and now she's breaking his pocketbook. Have the rules of etiquette changed?

NO CITY, PLEASE

DEAR NO CITY: The rules have not changed. An engagement ring symbolizes a promise to marry. If the engagement is broken — regardless of who breaks it — the ring should be returned.

DEAR ABBY: I have always taught my children never to eat anything unless they know exactly what it is. But my mother-in-law, normally a sensible woman, has a habit of sampling plants that grow wild to see how they taste and whether she would like to use them in cooking.

Recently our family and my husband's parents went on a camping trip. The third day, I came upon my mother-in-law urging my children to share some "wild dill seeds" she had found. Fortunately, neither of them had eaten any. The "wild dill" was actually water hemlock, one of the most poisonous plants in the United States!

My mother-in-law protested that the government wouldn't "allow" poisonous plants to grow in a federal park, but she agreed not to eat the seeds. Now she is angry with me for "undermining" her with her grandchildren. (Never mind that I probably saved their lives.)

I am a botanist. My specialty is field taxonomy; I am often called upon to identify "weed" plants. I know what I'm talking about, Abby.

Please tell your readers: Never, never eat any unidentified wild plant or berry because it looks good. Know for certain what you are putting into your mouth. If you don't it may cost you a serious illness, maybe even your life!

FORMER FARM GIRL

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38922, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Water Rules Toughened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency is issuing major water pollution regulations that will significantly strengthen nationwide protections for rivers and lakes.

The new rules announced Thursday by EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus restrict the power of states to weaken water quality standards.

"Each state will now be required to review water quality data and information on discharges to identify specific water bodies where toxic pollutants may be adversely affecting water quality," the agency said in a statement.

Advance word of the EPA's action leaked out on Monday, when a coalition of 10 national environmental groups heaped praise on Ruckelshaus for what they called a "major reversal" of the administration's water pollution policy.

The positive response continued Thursday as environmentalists who fought bitter battles with the EPA during the term of Ruckelshaus' predecessor, Anne Burford.

"Mr. Ruckelshaus has gotten a very good regulation and Congress should protect it from further attempts at so-called regulatory reform by incorporating its principles into the Clean Water Act," said Daniel Weiss, water quality specialist with the Isaac Walton League of America.

Reauthorization of the act, a landmark environmental law, is pending in Congress.

vesting them with power to fine up to $250 per day," he said.

He said he has already preparing a set of documents listing specific procedures for such a board to follow to guarantee due process for those called before the board, noting that due process simply means fairness and notice. He said the board will have the power to subpoena records and witnesses.

Petrie said if persons cited with violating city ordinances do not correct those violations, they could be brought before the board.

He also warned that while the city attorney will be the city prosecutor before the board, he cannot be attorney to the board at the same time. "This board will be an expense to administer," he said.

Saying he neither favors nor opposes the creation of a code enforcement board, Petrie added that it will "act as a deterrent. It will scare the hell out of people."

"Nothing is more important than that you use the best possible judgment in selecting members of the board—mature people who are able to use restraint."

Asked what the city could do if the board does not function as it should, Petrie said the commission could repeal the ordinance authorizing it and could remove members for cause.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said he sees the need for a means of enforcement, but he can also see the potential nightmare. Keogh said officials in other cities told him that once residents find out that a city has the power to enforce a city law, meetings of the code enforcement board become a rarity.

Petrie also said that he as city prosecutor would have a measure of control and would not present frivolous cases to the board.

Keogh urged that the commission as a whole interview candidates for the seats on the board. "It's important that we know the board members very well," he said.

...Yarborough, Williams

Last year — Williams, a fullback, and Yarborough, a fullback — had seasons which were a junior's dream. They each ran for well over 800 yards and helped coach Jack Blanton's Lions win their last seven games including a Rotary Bowl victory over rival Lake Howell.

This year, however, it was like starting over. J.W. and Barry had lost their best friends — all five of them. The whole offensive line graduated and left a very inexperienced group of juniors and sophomores to fill their holes.

Even though both possess blazing speed and power, the losses were just too much to overcome. Dreams of a twin, 1,000-yard seasons evaporated early as the Lions were saddled with losses in five of their seven games.

"Last year's line had a lot of size," said Geneva's Yarborough who began his football career playing flag in eighth grade. "There was probably only one guy less than 200 pounds. They could get the block for you."

"Yeah, like J.W. says, 'they did have a lot of size' and experience," offered Williams, who began playing as an eight-year-old in Virginia. "This is the year our sophomores and juniors are getting their experience. The next two years they will have a good line. It just wasn't me and J.W.'s time this year."

Although they now realize how fortunate they were last year to run behind the likes of tackles David Butterfield and David Wilson, guard Craig Wheeler and tight end Tom Johnson, they are also philosophical.

"I run harder and try to hit the whole quicker," said Yarborough. "I try to get that extra bit of momentum that will get me by the defense."

"Last spring, I realized what we lost," said Williams. "I just worked on my speed more and tried to get outside quicker."

Yarborough was injured early in the season. He's still battling a bruised forearm, but his legs are now strong and he's ready to break loose. The 6-0, 205-pounder went on a 34-yard jaunt for a TD in the Lions' win over Bishop Moore last week.

He hopes it is an omen of things to come. "In all the years I've played, the last five games have always been stronger than the first five games. I look to be getting quite a few yards the rest of the season," said the muscular senior, who has 388 yards in 72 carries for a 5.4 average.

Williams, an elusive 5-11 and 175 pounds, still has an outside shot at 1,000 yards, if he finishes strongly. He has 566 yards on 91 tries for a 6.2 average and 10 touchdowns. "Since we got a late start, I can't say if I'll finish with 1,000 yards. But, I've going to give it my best shot. If I don't get it, I want to come as close as possible."

Both Yarborough and Williams have made believers out of their coaches and teammates with their running ability — but their peers and the coaching staff probably gained a bit more respect for the two seniors for the attitude they've adopted for the final half of the season.

The senior year for a running back is supposed to be one of glory. For Yarborough and Williams, though, it has turned into one of sacrifice. They have sacrificed for their younger teammates — almost the ultimate sacrifice for a running back.

They have agreed to split time at fullback, so junior Charles "Pop" Bowers and sophomore Andrew Smith can gain the experience they need to make the Lions a district contender again next year.

"It wasn't that hard for me to do," said J.W. "Top needs the experience because he's going to be a senior next year. He hasn't run the ball that much since he was a freshman. And, there's quite a bit of difference between running as a freshman and running as a senior."

Williams, too, understood. "Charles and Andrew will be real good for them in the future. Me and J.W., we came up and done what we could do. Now, we're on our way out."

"This is high school football. Coach Blanton has to look to the future. It's okay with me."

Before these two Lions wander into the college jungle, however, don't expect them to go quietly.

"I'm up and I know J.W.'s up," said Williams. "I can tell how we're running in practice. I'd like to see both of us run over 100 yards in the last few games."

Yarborough concurred. "Yeah, I'd like to see us go over a 100 yards a couple of times," he said. "We need to try and carry the spirit. If we go out with a big bang here, hopefully the juniors will carry it over next year."

Both hope to be banging heads in college next fall. Although each has been touted as a major college prospect, they may decide on smaller schools.

"Georgia was looking at me," said Yarborough. "But I might go to a small school. I'm real close to my family and I like to hunt and fish. I want to be a player instead of a number."

Williams has some big ideas — and some small ones. "I'd like to go to Nebraska or UCLA," he said. "But then again, I don't know if I really want to go to a big school. I want to get playing time, experience and an education."

Judging from past performances, these two won't have much trouble in whatever they do. They know the ups and downs — success and sacrifice.

The T-Shirt

From Just Plain Underwear To Contemporary Fashion

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Public speaking is a lot easier than it used to be. Today, one doesn't even need a soap box. If you want to get something off your chest, just put a T-shirt on it.

What one can have emblazoned on a T-shirt — in word or picture, both in a veritable rainbow of colors — is almost limitless.

And the price will fit almost any pocketbook.

Kitty Bultron, office manager at Atract Ad, 3400 Highway 427, Sanford, says the price of a customized T-shirt can cost as little as $3.80 for a single color print to $20 for both a front and back print, a pocket print and six colors.

Today, Americans wear T-shirts to identify themselves, to trumpet political preferences, to boast cultural connections and to make social statements. And quite often, they wear T-shirts to share their sense of humor with the passing parade.

Recently, Atract printed shirts emblazoned with a colorful tree of life for those participating in the special Olympics for the handicapped in Tampa. A T-shirt ordered by one pest control firm had a large brown roach printed on the pocket while another pest control firm commissioned shirts showing a rat chasing a pest controller.

"One customer ordered a Corvette screen printed on the front of a shirt and his company's name on the back," Ms. Bultron said. "We've done some shirts for Rollins College students that were imprinted with the word, 'Newmeaniac.' We never found out what that word means."

"We can put almost anything on a T-shirt that a customer might want," she said.

And there are people out there who collect T-shirts of every description. Ms. Bultron said that she has received telephone calls from collectors seeking to buy the leftover shirts commissioned by some of her customers. "But we can't do that. It wouldn't be right to sell shirts we have been commissioned to make for someone else."

The T-shirt began its rise to stardom in World War II when the U.S. Navy issued it as regulation underwear.

But the story goes back farther than that. American soldiers, who were sent to France in 1917 to fight World War I in long-sleeved wool undershirts, came back home sporting the light knit-cotton undershirts worn by French soldiers.

American manufacturers eventually began producing quantities of sleeveless, knit-cotton un-

Wayne Rogers Meets Challenge In CBS' 'Chiefs'

By Elaine Thompson
 "Award calibre... a major star, played to the hilt," is how one previewer rated the performance of Wayne Rogers in part one of "Chiefs," the CBS six-hour miniseries commencing Sunday, Nov. 13, continuing Tuesday, Nov. 15 and concluding on Wednesday, Nov. 16.

Rogers plays a financially-wiped-out farmer, who gets a job as the town's first police chief in 1924. Though he is untrained in law enforcement, he expects little or no trouble and is bewildered when it erupts.

Chief Will Henry is a 180 degree turn from the smart-mouth, sophisticated character of Trapper John he played in "M*A*S*H." And it is also quite a change from the role he played in "House Calls." Nevertheless, the role as Chief Henry presented a new challenge for him and he met that challenge, probing deep into the character he portrayed.

"Will Henry is taciturn, as many who live close to nature and the land are. He is simple in choices, his lifestyle and his faith," says Rogers. "He also openly denounces the violence and hooded secrecy of the Klan and reluctantly loses a measure of his innocence when a coroner tells him that the robbed ones he deprecates may be the neighbors he sits next to in church."

In "Chiefs" there is plenty of need for coroners. Murders that are initially believed to be racist-oriented, mask sexual perversion, baffling his successors.

"That's the mystery that spins the story. But the fabric is one of changing attitudes in the South, sociologically, but also of families and a sense of community."

"Some things don't change in rural America whether it's down South, or in Cape Cod where I did a play this summer. And some things are good. There are still places where a neighbor's word is his bond, you don't need to sign a piece of paper, and where people still don't have to lock their doors at night."

'Sky King' Was Plane And Simple

By Peter Meade

Kirby Grant believes that Sky King, the character he played during Saturday mornings of the '50s and '60s, can fly rings around Mr. T, the Smurfs and any of the other current kiddie offerings.

"Sky King," the adventures of an Arizona rancher who favored an airplane instead of a horse to catch the bad guys, first appeared as a radio show in the late '30s and early '40s. When television began to increase in popularity "Sky King" followed, first taking to the air in September 1953.

Grant co-starred along with Gloria Winters and Ron Hagerthy, his teen-age niece and nephew. Grant had begun his flying career in 1929 in the open cockpit of a biplane complete with the white silk scarf waving in the breeze, but the original sponsors of the program had no idea he was a competent flyer when he was chosen for the part.

During the first year of "Sky King" Grant learned to fly a twin engine plane, but he left most of the flying to the two Cessna test pilots who offered technical advice and did the air scenes for the half-hour show.

"I believe in stuntmen," says Grant, who will be 72 on Nov. 24. "I always used them, they made me look great and we could never afford the chance that I might get hurt."

The 136 shows were shot two at a time during a six-day work week. Everyone worked sunrise to sunset and sometimes the shows were finished using the headlights from the cars for added light. Grant would take his wife and two daughters with him on location to the Apple Valley Inn (now owned by Roy Rogers) where the exteriors were filmed from Sunday to Wednesday. Then from Thursday to Saturday the interior work was completed at the studios.

"It was an age of innocence," says Grant. "I remember it with great affection. Here was a goody two-shoes who had no warts. Today a lot of people who fly in the military or commercially, say they're doing it because of 'Sky King.'"

Today, Grant and his wife reside in Florida, where he's the host of the Florida Festival at Sea World, "the playground for the entire world," as Grant calls it.

dershirts and some short-sleeved styles in the shape of a "T", hence the name T-shirt.

The "T" was the shape of things to come, but the favorite of men in the '30's was the sleeveless "athletic" shirt, originally adapted from the top part of the tank swimsuit worn at the turn of the century. That is, it was the favorite until Clark Gable took off his shirt in the 1934 Academy Award-winning film, It Happened One Night, and revealed an undershirtless chest. Several years passed before undershirt sales in America recovered.

When the U.S. Navy issued T-shirts as regulation underwear during World War II, sailors called them skivvy shirts. They welcomed the comfort and practicality of a garment they could both work and sleep in and use to polish any offensively dull brass that might come under a superior's steely gaze.

After the war, American men remained faithful to T-shirts as underwear (and only underwear) until once again a screen idol presented them with new possibilities.

Marlon Brando brought the T-shirt out of underwear drawers and put it into the closets of millions of Americans. As Stanley Kowalski in the 1951 film, A Streetcar Named Desire, Brando's wardrobe was simple but effective — a T-shirt that showed off his muscles and a torn T-shirt that showed off his muscles even better. James Dean and Elvis Presley followed suit with basic white T-shirts that dazzled their fans.

Glorious technicolor dawned on the T-shirt in the late 1950's. Southern California's drag-racing culture took great pride in airbrush-decorated cars decorated with flames, pinstripes and exotic lettering, and a number of these automobile artists turned their airbrushes to the hot rodders' T-shirts. Bold, colorful and often outrageous, these airbrush creations were the prototypes for many of today's heat transfer and screen printed T-shirt designs.

Clearly, the T-shirt was mere underwear no longer. Underwear became outerwear with a vengeance.

In the 1960's, millions of Americans fought for civil rights and against the Vietnam War on college campuses and in the streets using T-shirts as the medium for their message.

Is the end of the T-shirt tale in sight? Probably not. The space shuttle Challenger crew wore its Class of '78 "TFNG (Thirty-Five New Guys) We Deliver" T-shirts in outer space. It makes one wonder if maybe Ronald Reagan wears a T-shirt bearing the presidential seal. As for the rest of America, it's still Ts for 200 million as the great American T-party rolls along.

A Toast To Dino; In A Class By Himself

By Andrew J. Edelstein

Here's 86-year-old Dean Martin — cigarette cocked jauntily in one hand, a full tumbler grasped in the other — living refutation of the Surgeon General's Report and proof that eating tofu isn't necessarily the key to living longer.

"There's a woman I know who's 86 years old and doesn't need glasses," says Dino, to his sold-out audience in London. "She just drinks it out of the bottle." A drag on his cigarette, a sip of his drink, a rim shot on the snare drum, strike up the band, and Dino is off into a version of "Bad Bad Leroy Brown," done just right for middle-aged hepcats.

Ah, Dino. The man is to the J&B crowd what Cheech and Chong are to the wacky weed audience.

Vintage Dino abounds on "Dean Martin in London," a Showtime special airing Nov. 8. It was taped last summer at London's Apollo Victoria Theater, during his first appearance in that city in 25 years. The largely middle-aged audience laps it up lovingly. This is an export America can be proud of.

Actually, the special is quite entertaining, if Dino is your cup of shnapps.

Dino does all his favorites: "Everybody Loves Somebody," "That's Amore" and "Pennies from Heaven."

No 'Edge' For Some

By Kimberly Redmond

I just read somewhere that Maggie Horton is leaving "Days." She is one of my favorite actresses and I want to know if this is true. — D.D., Shepherdville, Ky.

There was talk that Suzanne Rogers (Maggie) was leaving the soap, however, she recently renewed her contract, so she will be staying on the small screen. And, if work really is a buffer for personal troubles, then Miss Roger's lucrative new contract with "Days" should prove to be just the right helper to get her over the trauma of her marital split from her actor husband, Sam Groom (he played Russ Matthews on "Another World").

Could you please tell me why our local station dropped "The Edge of Night?" It's very confusing since it's still listed in our TV guide. — A.A., Copperas Cove, Texas.

Many of you have written similar letters addressing the above question, so in answer to all of your inquiries — since "Edge" is still in ABC's lineup of soaps, it was obviously the choice of your local station managers to drop the show. There are various reasons for this type of cancellation by local affiliates, including low viewership.

The character Steve Kendall on "Search for Tomorrow" looks very familiar. Was he in another soap or TV show? — J.H., Larchmont, N.Y.

Long before Philip Brown began playing the role of rugged sportscaster Steve Kendall on "SFT," he was advancing his career on such nighttime series as "Tucker's Witch," "Dukes of Hazzard" and "The Love Boat."

Barbara Carrera's sister Claudia, 22, posed naked and claimed that her older sister is "old." She is a creaky 33... Dick Clark and Walter Cronkite get inducted into the National Broadcasters Hall of Fame Nov. 20... Al Jarreau will star in a movie based on the life of Nat King Cole next winter. The Case Of The Lost Dining Room

DEAR DICK: On the earlier Happy Days shows, they show the Cunninghams eating in a dining room instead of the kitchen or living room. On the recent Happy Days, they either show them eating in the kitchen or living room. What happened to the dining room? — K.B., Galesburg, Mich.

You know how it is with dining rooms — sometimes they just sort of disappear. They used that dining room set in the first season, but the next year they decided they could use the space on the sound stage better for other purposes, so they just "lost" the dining room.

DEAR DICK: During the playing of the Cheers theme song, a picture is shown of a man holding a newspaper with the banner headline, "We Win!" Assuming that is an actual article, to what event does that headline refer? — D.M., Burlington, N.J.

Jim Castle, who put that montage together, says it is a real article. But it is in a stock photo and he says it is hard to read the date. But he believes it refers to the Brooklyn Dodgers winning the National League pennant in 1947.

DEAR DICK: Recently I was watching an old Bob Newhart show and saw a 30- to 40-pounds heavier Daniel J. Travanti on that show. A couple of weeks later I saw Travanti appear on the new Bob Newhart show. Are these gentlemen friends of long standing or is this

Ask Dick Kleiner

Just another coincidence? — J.E.S., Vancouver, Wash.

It's just a coincidence. Travanti replaced Noam Pitlik as one of the members of the therapy group on Newhart's old show, and made several appearances in that role. On that recent show, they needed a celebrity for the plot, and just happened to get Travanti.

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to Donna Douglas of The Beverly Hillbillies? — P.C.M., Lakeview, Ark.

I see her around town from time to time, as blond and beautiful as ever. Last time we talked, she said she was in the real estate business. As far as I know, she still is.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me more about Terri Treas of Hanna, 7 For 7. What other work has she done? And any other personal information you can give me. — M.B., Wellsboro, Pa.

First of all, maybe you could fill me in about Hanna, 7 for 7 if I tell you about Terri. Her last name rhymes with niece and she is primarily a dancer. She danced on Broadway in All That Jazz, Pippin and The Best Little Whorehouse In Texas. When the latter was made into a movie, she came along but her part was cut badly. Still that job brought her to California. Last season she was the only female regular on CBS' Seven Brides for Seven Brothers.

DEAR DICK: Susan Sullivan, who is Maggie on Falcon Crest, was in a soap opera some years ago. Could you please tell me the name of that soap opera? — G.P.G., Saginaw, Mich.

She was actually on two soap operas — A World Apart and Another World.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me the names of the three models on the game show The Price Is Right? — T.E., Vancouver, Wash.

They are Holly Hallstrom, Dian Parkenson and Janice Pennington, who is known in some quarters as Mrs. Shaun Cassidy.

DEAR DICK: My friend and I have a bet and the winner gets a free game of Ms. Pac-Man. Could you tell us if that little girl on Happy Days is the same little girl who was in Poltergeist? I say yes. My friend says no. — C.S.C., Kalamazoo, Mich.

You win, so gobble up those dots. Heather O'Rourke is her name.

A Different Mr. Smith Goes To Washington

By David Handler

I don't know what to make of Mr. Smith. I'm still not sure whether it's a cute show with a dumb gimmick or a dumb show with a cute gimmick. All I know for sure is that the lead character of this NBC sitcom isn't a human being, and that makes me uneasy about its long-term chances.

I mean, how involved can you get with an orangutan? Seriously.

Not that Mr. Smith is an ordinary orangutan. That's the gimmick. He used to be just a plain old circus performer, a member of Atwood's Amazing Orangutans.

In our pilot episode, Tommy Atwood (Tim Dunnigan), a young man with a very, very low IQ, accidentally flips the family van.

One of them, our hero, ends up in a Washington, D.C. government research center, where, thanks to a lab accident, he becomes a genius. His IQ is 256. He can write treatises on thermonuclear dynamics. Mentally, he can do anything. His only limitations are of the hand-eye variety.

"My body didn't change," he points out. "I still have the same physical coordination. So I can read Hebrew but I can't play Frisbee. Go figure it."

Oh, he also can talk now. Did I mention that?

Well, no way the government will let him return to the circus. "He has the best brain in Washington," advises Dr. Kline (Stuart Margolin), the project director. "A dubious distinction, perhaps. But there it is."

So the feds keep him. Partly, they want to observe him. "He could revert tomorrow," explains Dr. Kline. "Tomorrow he could be back to putting lettuce leaves on his head." Mostly, they want to use that giant brain.

Mr. Smith, however, refuses to be made a prisoner. So Kline hires him a priggish, dictatorial personal secretary, Raymond (Leonard Frey), and the two of them move into a posh suburban estate with Tommy and Tommy's kid sister, Ellie (Laura Jacoby).

For all intents and purposes, Mr. Smith is now a person. He wears neckties, three-piece suits and eyeglasses. Raymond even makes him wear shoes, which Mr. Smith hates. "Bare feet with formal attire simply isn't done in Washington," Raymond insists. "Not even during the Carter Administration."

CJ, the orangutan from the riotously funny Clint Eastwood Every Which Way movies, plays Mr. Smith. Thanks to some special effects of the Mister Ed variety, his lips appear to move.

For me, here is where the humor comes in. Mr. Smith talks like somebody's cranky, dyspeptic old uncle from the Bronx. He mutters under his breath and complains constantly.

He and Raymond are always quarreling. Raymond is supposed to make sure Mr. Smith gets plenty of rest. "I want to watch TV," counters Mr. Smith. "I need some sex and violence to take my mind off my shoes."

There is some sharp dialogue here, as well as some welcome political digs. So you can't completely dismiss "Mr. Smith" as another gimmick show. At the same time, however, any gimmick wears thin. It becomes predictable.

Smith is sort of a curiosity item. It's worth checking out, because it is funny in spots, but I don't see it surviving the long haul. Not with an ape in the middle.

Mexican Dining At The Showtime Cantina

Like a breath of fresh air, a Mexican-themed restaurant, Taco Bravo, has settled in Sanford's recently restored Ritz Theatre, now known as Showtime Cantina.

Munch burritos or tortillas in the Taco Bravo restaurant from 11 a.m. until midnight, or sink into a plush seat and watch a first run film while dining. The film is extra, of course.

Many of the architectural appointments reminiscent of a past era have been retained mixing well with the Mexican pink tones for a charmingly eclectic setting. Tiled floors, wooden benches, greenery complete the picture.

In Taco Bravo, located in the enlarged lobby of the theatre, quesadillas are served piping hot to your table. A quesadilla is a soft flour tortilla stuffed with a blend of Monterey Jack and cheddar cheeses, sweet onions and a choice of mild, hot or extra hot sauce.

The bright, fun-filled menu offers a selection of salads, entrees and desserts with a unique twist.

Fresh spinach salad offers a wonderful conglomeration of fresh sliced mushrooms, hard cooked eggs and sweet onions on the bed of crisp spinach with tangy dressing.

Mexiburgers, sanchos, nacho cheese dip and a Mexican dinner plate are a few of the entrees and, last but not least, tacos.

Hot and cold running subs may be stacked with roast beef, ham and cheese, turkey and cheese or tuna with prices starting at $2.30.

Food is served all day and evening at Taco Bravo and take out orders are welcomed.

Accent will be on Margaritas during a grand opening gala introducing full service. Performing in concert for the mid-October opening will be "The Snooks," a rock band from Winter Park.
