

U.S. Marines Kill 5 And Wound 20 During Riot In Republic Of Haiti; Reinforcements Are Being Sent

Five Hundred Marines
Sail From Norfolk
To Bring Assistance

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(INS)—Five natives were killed and 20 wounded yesterday when U. S. marines stationed in the Republic of Haiti were "compelled to fire into a mob" of strikers at Aux Cayes, the state department announced today.

Secretary of State Stimson said the marines fired three times in the air in an effort to disperse an angry mob of striking native dock workers and were forced to fire directly into the mass of humanity when they refused to disperse.

The cables did not state if any of the marines were killed or injured.

Congress was awaiting this afternoon President Hoover's message concerning the situation in Haiti, patrolled by American marines since 1921 when a rebellion threatened the country. It will be read to the House at noon.

Five hundred marines from the Quantico, Va., and Paris Island, S. C., barracks sailed from Norfolk today to reinforce the 700 marines now on duty in the neutral zone, Stimson said. Those from Quantico obtained for Norfolk last night to board the troop transports.

Aux Cayes is one of the principal seaports in Haiti. Thursday the dock workers went on a sympathy strike with the teachers, students and native customs workers. Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, commanding the Marines and U. S. Commissioner of Haiti, feared trouble would occur there in his message to Stimson yesterday.

Russell declared the marines did everything possible to avert gun fire. The rioters fired the first shots the marines fired and jeered the second and third volleys. The only alternative to restore order was to fire into the mob, Russell said.

Hoover Asks Fund For Committee To Probe Haiti Affairs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(INS)—On the heels of the dispatch of 600 additional marines to Haiti and the announcement by the State Department that marines had killed five natives in yesterday's rioting, President Hoover sent Congress a special message this afternoon, reviewing the situation, and requesting that Congress immediately provide an appropriation of $50,000 to defray the expenses of a commission's going to Haiti to conduct a thorough investigation into conditions.

In his annual message to Congress earlier in the week, the President had proposed that a governmental commission go to Haiti and make a study of the situation there. In that same message the President spoke of the desirability of taking the marines away when conditions made it possible.

Since that message, however, he reported to Congress today, troublous conditions have arisen in the little black republic, which has necessitated the dispatch of 500 additional marines to reinforce the 700 already there.

SHOT ACCIDENTALLY

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Dec. 7—(INS)—S. T. Prosser, traveling salesman, was shot through the back of the head this morning when a pistol slipped from his pocket and discharged when it struck the floor. Although seriously injured, doctors believe he will recover. Prosser said that after he went to his office this morning, he dozed as he sat before his desk and that the pistol dropped while he slept.

TO WED WEALTH

COALITION MAY BLOCK MARINE BUILDING PLAN

Mid West And Southern Bloc Join To Defeat Program Due To Discrimination

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(INS)—The vast merchant marine expansion program launched by Congress in the Jones-White act was endangered today by the organization of a mid-west-southern bloc to fight the administration's plan to put it into effect.

Charges of discrimination against southern ports both on the Gulf of Mexico and the South Atlantic, and alleged favoritism in the letting of mail contract subsidies were raised by opponents of the administration.

Some of the most enthusiastic supporters of the legislation enacted two years ago have turned their guns on the shipping board and the postmaster general, it was learned.

The treasury-postoffice annual appropriation bill, which carries funds for the mail subsidies, has been delayed pending efforts to settle the acute differences and to receive new recommendations from Postmaster General Brown.

Two specific charges are raised against the present plan to build a merchant marine.

They are:

Decision of cabinet committee to let mail contracts to the Munson Line for a New Orleans-South American service over the Mississippi Shipping Company, which purchased ships from the government.

Alleged favoritism to the North Atlantic and Pacific Coast ports over southern ports.

Explaining the opposition, Rep. Edwin Davis (D) of Tennessee, who fought for the Jones-White Law, said: "There has not been an equitable distribution of the mail subsidy contracts as provided in the law."

"Approximately $12,500,000 government funds have been allotted to mail contracts and less than $300,000 is given to lines operating from the Gulf of Mexico and South Atlantic ports, despite the fact that New Orleans and Galveston are the second and third largest ports and serve other ports as well."

"Most of the money has gone to the North Atlantic. Naturally the last ocean liners operate from New York and to a lesser extent from San Francisco, but this does not justify the disparity."

"Many members of Congress from the Middle West and the South, where territories are served by Gulf ports, are bitterly disappointed over the worming out of the act. If continued support of the South and Middle West to the merchant marine program is expected, these ratios must be treated fairly."

Davis quoted a letter written by Postmaster General Brown to a middle west foreign trade executive in which he said:

"There can be no dispute about the earmarking of the $3,100,000 carried by the deficiency appropriation bill. The President and the budget undoubtedly intended that it should be used on routes starting from Gulf ports."

Florida Concern Is Largest Bidder For Presidential Yacht

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(INS)—The Florida Railroad and Navigation Corp., Tampa, Fla., today made the highest bid for the former presidential yacht Mayflower. The company offered $51,000 while the next highest bid was for $31,000 offered by William F. Carey, resident of New York City. Other bids announced by the Navy Department were: Kenny and Sons, New York City, $17,017; John W. Hubbard, Pittsburgh, $16,250; Boston Iron and Metal Co., Baltimore, $15,776.

Garner, who also is charged with murder, waived preliminary hearing.

Romantic Climax Reached
As French Shop Girl Weds
Wealthy Prince, Aga Khan

PARIS, Dec. 7—(INS)—A curtain raiser to the most colorful story without an equal in fiction's most imaginative pages reached its romantic climax at Aix-Les-Bains today when Miss Andre Josephine Carron, modest little former shopgirl, gave her heart and hand to a prince charming deserving of the name.

The bridegroom, who thus agreed to share his worldly possessions, worth the ransom of a dozen kings, with the daughter of a Bourgeois merchant of Aix-Les-Bains, was His Highness Sir Sultan Mahomet Shah, Aga Khan, known better throughout the world merely as the Aga Khan, sultan, multi-millionaire, leader of the thoroughly honest and prince of gentlemen.

This, according to the authorities, was the fifth version of the billing told by Pugh, who was arrested a week ago today following the discovery of the crime.

The red-haired chauffeur, authorities declared, first told them that Parks was hot while he was driving him across town, and that he didn't know Parks' whereabouts until a half hour later.

Later, according to police, he declared that Parks was shot by an unidentified assassin as they were driving past one of Union City's busiest street intersections. He said the assassin leaped off the running board, shot, and fled.

A few days ago he was said to have told authorities that he knew the identity of Parks' slayer, but that he would not reveal his name, as it would create an awful scandal."

Still later he confessed to police that he shot Parks in the suburbs because he was drunk and Parks "worried him."

Yesterday the chauffeur, according to the police, admitted that he shot his employer accidentally. He was whisked away to a nearby jail for safe keeping when authorities decided that it was unsafe to keep him here because of the populace's sentiment against him.

He is being held on a charge of murder.

Three Children Send Letters To Herald Addressed To Santa Claus

The Herald received three letters from little admirers of Santa Claus this morning asking him to bring toys and other articles to their homes.

Three little brothers living on West First Street sent in requests.

Saint Nick, to bring a pair of skates, a bicycle, and a wagon to each of them. One asked that his little one-month-old brother be remembered, also.

The other letters, which may be received after the Herald gets to press, will be printed Monday, and the little boys and girls of Sanford are again urged to send in their letters to Santa, so that he will have plenty of time to select their gifts.

The following letters were received this morning, and will be turned over to Santa Claus.

Dear Santa Claus,

I am your little boy seven years old, and I go to the East Side School. I wish you would please bring me a coaster wagon, cap pistol, a cap, a ship-on-a-wire, and a pair of gloves.

I am your little friend, Luther Norton, 205 1-2 West First Street, Gates Apartment, room Number 1.

As I have a little brother, who will be one month old the thirteenth of this month, don't forget the little fellow and bring him something.

My address is 205 1-2 Gates Apartment.

SHARP RALLIES MADE IN STOCK PRICES TODAY

Concerted Buying Of Motors Appears For 1st Time In Month;
Big Volume Is Done

By W. S. Cousins,
International News Service
Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7—Sharp advances were recorded at the beginning of trading today in the industrial and utility stocks which led Friday's closing spurt. For the first time in a month concerted buying appeared in the motor stocks, which are due at this time for their annual pre-motor-show rise.

The "Morgan favorites," including Standard brands, Johns Manville and United Corporation were turned over at a dizzy price, but General Electric, which supplied most of yesterday's late gains, was the only more subdued trading piled up a volume of $15,000 shares in the first half-hour of the tick r trading about 10 minutes.

With General Electric's stock well up assured, bulls in Wall Street were confident that similar action would be taken by the U. S. Steel Corporation directors before the end of the year. A stock dividend of 100 per cent was talked of in the financial district, giving two shares of common stock for each share now held. Even at that rate, the total outstanding shares would be under 16,500,000 only 40 per cent as many as General Motors and 60 per cent as large as General Electric.

Ellis Steel raced ahead to 178 1/2 in the first hour, showing a gain of 7 points for the day, and 16 points since last week. International Tal and T-2 moved up 16 points to 84 1/2, up 7 points, on reports of the acquisition of important South American property. American and Foreign Power, the sensation of the sky rocketing utilities, breezed along to 38 for a new gain of 4 1/2 points for the day, and 26 points for the week.

The bulls snapped the whip over the bears in a number of the trading favorites in the second hour and the race of the market was the swiftest since the turn of the month. The ticker lagged about 20 minutes about 20 minutes and late prices were again bulletined from the floor of the stock exchange over the bond tickers and private wires.

With U. S. Steel as the leader, the bulls carried a dozen or more of the favorites to the highest price of the week.

Fox Film "A" made a new 1 point recovery to 56 3/4 following the announcement of the trustee of the Fox resources in powerful financial hands. American Ciga. was well bought above 124, Westinghouse at 156 1/2, up 2 1/2, Western Union at 223, up 21, Radio at 45, up 2, Union Carbide at 87 5/8, General Electric slumped off to 250, down 7 points from Friday's high, as enormous profit-taking and short selling swept in Vanadium Steel, Ludlum and Bethlehem—reached new high prices on the move. Vanadium was up 4 points to 60 7/8.

Twenty-Six Drown At
Channel Boat Sinkings
Property Damage Is Reported As Heavy

LONDON, Dec. 7—(INS)—The toll of dead in the storms which have been sweeping Britain for the last 72 hours jumped today when the Cardiff steamer Radyr foundered off Harland Point, Devon, with the loss of its crew of 25.

Twenty-six deaths previously had been reported as the results of shipping and other accidents due to the gales, which have paralyzed transportation in the English Channel and caused considerable damage to property.

The Radyr was a vessel of 2,357 tons. Little is known of the disaster save that the ship founded in the heavy seas and its crew was drowned before aid could be received.

The Blue Star liner Andalucia, bound from London for South America with 120 passengers, sustained damage to her rudder in the gale off Plymouth. A British admiral tug was dispatched from the port to render assistance. Temporary repairs were effected and the Andalucia headed toward Falmouth where the damage will be thoroughly inspected.

CHERBOURG, Dec. 7—(INS)—A bolt of lightning struck the Cunard liner Lancastria as she lay in Cherbourg harbor taking aboard passengers bound for New York.

The Cherbourg passengers were just boarding the liner from a tender, when the lightning bolt shot out of the sky, striking the huge steamer and throwing the voyagers into momentary panic.

The shock caused by the lightning bolt was felt all over the vessel, and the passengers climbing aboard by means of a gang-plank thrown up from the tender clung to the hand rails in fright. It was seen, almost immediately, that no serious damage had been done, and the passengers continued their journey up the gang-plank.

The Lancastria then continued on to New York, its passengers once again discussing the unusual experience of being hit by a lightning bolt at sea.

Several French coastal vessels are reported in distress as a result of the severe storms which already have caused serious damage to property and shipping.

Poultry Exhibit, To Be Held Here Soon,
Has New Features

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7—(INS)—Georgia, Florida and Maryland were the country's leading mosquito states while prohibition law violations were most frequent in New York, Kentucky and Pennsylvania, judging from statistics contained in the annual report of Commissioner James M. Doran made public today.

Old fashioned "mountain dew," so-called because of its sparkling colorlessness, formed the principal output of the Georgia stills, of which 1,931 were seized during the year.

The Everglades of Florida prove an excellent haven for stills, which had a varied output of rum, rye and corn much of which probably was converted into genuine imported stuff for the winter tourists. Nevertheless, federal agents captured 363 stills in that state.

In Maryland, where has flashed up in recent years a flourishing tory industry, much of the output of which is shipped over to the national Capital, 773 stills were picked off by revenue men.

The real purpose of the egg show, stated Mr. Johnson is to show just what constitutes a real egg, what is the kind of feed necessary to produce the best product and also the living conditions of the fowl necessary in bringing about a better egg.

The agriculture minister further said that the amateur judging contest would serve as a means for the local farmers and poultrymen to test their ability for selecting choice birds.

As an added attraction along with the poultry and egg show, the Florida National Forestry Exhibition will be given, it was learned this morning. In this particular show there will be moving pictures typifying the growth and destruction of plant life and other topics pertaining to forestry, of importance announced Mr. Johnson this morning.

Iowa Declares It Has Cured Athletic Evils

IOWA CITY, Dec. 6.—(INS) — University of Iowa, seeking reinstatement in the western conference, has eliminated its alleged athletic evils and can expect the same cleaning up process from other conferences schools, an editorial in the Daily Iowan, University of Iowa student publication asserts today.

"There could be no admittance that Iowa has not been the only offender or the worst offender, but happened to be the first because of its being by a discredited official whose demotion followed a regime under which the old way of doing flourished," the editorial declares. "The only alternative to a general cleanup of athletic evils is recognition by conference schools of recognition of a semiprofessionalism no more than just to athletes."

A Little Extra Work

We often hear school children complain of the "home work" they have to do, and sometimes we hear their parents complain too that the teachers are paid to teach the children at school, not at home. However, John Blake, who writes for the New York World, takes the position that a little home work never hurt any child, and that the parents ought to encourage them in it. "And if the children," he says, "can learn to do home work after their start in life the task assigned in youthful years will bring rewards by and by.

"I travel to and fro, from a city to a suburban home on a commutation train. I notice that most of the men who have accomplished anything important and most of those who seem destined to accomplish something important usually carry brief cases to and fro. It is likely that these brief cases are not always opened at night. But the fact that they are there and that they provide work to do out of office hours if there is an opportunity to do it is a great help.

"We can best see our job when we are looking at it from a little distance, as the painter backs away from his canvas or the boat-builder steps off a few paces to learn if his craft is assuming the right proportions. But if there is nothing at hand relating to our daily job there is always an excuse for putting it out of mind. And to most of them excuse for forgetting our job is sufficient.

"Education is spreading to-day and business methods are becoming more intelligent and require more thought and study. In the future the men who are masters of their craft are far more likely to win out than those who are merely familiar with the routine of the daily work. Really to master a tool to the extent of one's ability means working at it, not in prescribed office hours, but whenever it can be worked at without sacrificing needed rest and recreation. So the home worker is the man who will have the best chance by and by, for in the quiet of his own house, he can think and plan undisturbed, go into details of problems and seek their solution.

"I am no advocate of the constant application to business that wears out a man or so narrows him that he can think and talk of nothing else. But I do know that those who put in a little extra time studying their occupations will be the ones who will be ready to step up higher when the chance comes and who will not be overcome with terrorless somebody higher up discovers that they have not qualified themselves for more important work. So take along your home work when you quit business at night, and if there is nothing else to do and you are not worn out, devote a few hours to it. It will pay."

Privileged Prisoners

Concerning special privileges sometimes accorded special prisoners, whose status often depends upon their political power or their financial standing, the Bradenton Herald
comments:

"Public attention is momentarily focused on the Broward county jail where an inquisitive grand jury found William A. Hicks, former chief deputy sheriff of the county, living in palatially furnished quarters while awaiting his third trial on a murder charge. The jury acted commendably in ordering the special privileges granted the man discontinued but unfortunately its action came too late to prevent the public from getting further evidence to support its belief that prisoners are not always dealt with on the same basis.

Hicks was serving life imprisonment at Raiford for the murder of Robert R. Barber until the circuit court judgment that sent him there was revoked by the supreme court. Since that time he has been arraigned again but a mistrial resulted and he has been confined in spite of his attorney's efforts to gain his freedom on habeas corpus proceedings. Yet until the grand jury took a hand in the matter the prisoner had been living in luxury, occupying a splendidly appointed private room on the top floor of the building with his pet parrot for company and a radio to provide him with entertainment.

"The grand jury very properly took the position that one prisoner was not entitled to any privileges or rights that were not extended others similarly placed. But we wonder if that body intends to permit the master to rest here. In this connection it would be well to remember that when the prisoner was brought back to the prison farm to await the new trial that had been granted him he was not the master of his own destiny. He was a prisoner in the hands of the law and could not have fitted out and occupied a private room in the county building unless the plan had been approved and permitted by those into whose custody he had been given by the state authorities. If the grand jury would render the public an even greater service it would push this matter further and expose the person or persons responsible for the condition that was found. In this manner a repetition would more surely be avoided than to merely disrupt the Hicks program and leave the matter in an unsettled state."

TELLING THE WORLD BY NEAL OHARA

SIX MONTHS LATER

This is the time of the year the June bride is discovered, not a venture. It's a big effort. Love laughs at locksmiths, but when the plumber, baker and butcher show up, try and laugh them off.

Little girls used to go window shopping for bangles. Now they've got eye-glass chains, hairpins, beads, perfume bottles, rings, bracelets, etc.

In June she cranes her graceful neck at Niagara Falls. Wonderfully curving her dainty legs over a roaring geyser. Not so good. As head they walk three rooms and a kithenette she has more chores than the Thousand Islands have boat landings.

June is specifically laid out for bathing and cooking. But on and after July 1 the butcher, baker and grocer do all the bathing. And the cooking is all over. Wedlock, six months from the initial instalment, isn't all sheared peaches and condensed milk. From the Golden Gate to Hell Gate and back, June brides push them on.

June is hopping quick and fancy from the time she takes the car to the morning until till she puts on her Sunday dress at night. She spends her indignant tears drying clothes and downing soups. Powers and the child legends of East and West are confined in the fiery imagination of a poet with eternity in his heart.

June's the route to get aught to travel. You can't blame the little bride for being pooh-poohed at breakfast. She feels like hitting the hand that feeds her and commanding me to be on the ears that listen to her complaints. And she wishes she could shoot the puffed rice at him using the original weapons. That's how the little bride testifies to her beauty. And she has two more meals to go.

A fine change a bride has to undergo in dollar dress. But mistakes are the only articles of diet he makes like mother used to make.

Out of the frying pan into the

The World's Window By Pierre Van Paassen

A man who was an intimate friend of Napoleon III, M. Octave Aubrey, has written a volume on that unfortunate Emperor's life, which gives an admirable picture of court life in the Tuilleries, then which nothing more corrupt and debauched has existed on earth since the days of Messalina. While the Emperor was surrounded by flatterers and intrigants, the man of genius, Blasphemy, had his eye on France. The Iron Chancellor's clear eye saw through the fantastic absurdities of puppets and harlequin that made up the official world of France half a century ago. The story of the debacle of Sedan, as treated by M. Aubrey, is a masterpiece of realism and simplicity. He shows us a Napoleon ravaged by pain and disease, holding on to his saddle with closed eyes and never uttering a word of complaint. Every movement was agony to the Emperor. In order that the troops on the roads would not be frightened by his appearance, commissioners were brought up by express from Paris to give him at least a semblance of a human appearance. With the jet will in the world he could not have carried out the bold project conceived by a descendant of Marshal Ney, place himself at the head of the Guard and throw himself against the Prussian hordes in a frantic last charge. All he could whisper was, "Put up the white flag!" That was the end of the Second Empire.

The French nationalist papers, with the royalist Action Francaise at their head, are once more on the rampage. That is to say, they are at their old game of predicting a new European war within a few years. The royalists now say that it is due within a very few months. Of course, only the result of the French King could stave off the disaster in their estimation, and then you have the secret of their ambition. If one were to look for an origin of all the new and prophecies, one would find that Gen. von Suckow, former chief of the Reichswehr, is responsible for the entire outbreak. He decries in a pamphlet issued not very long ago that the soldiery of Europe's Old and the many frontiers, political situations still undepicted lies on the battlefield and that, for this reason, Germany must prepare and be strong and be ready. No doubt some of the Germans' former companions of the staff have been won over. But the general and many others who had to do the hard work before Verdun and not very long ago that the soldiery of Europe's Old and the many frontiers lies on the battlefield and that, for this reason, Germany must prepare and be strong and be ready. No doubt some of the Germans' former companions of the staff have been won over. But the general and many others who had to do the hard work before Verdun and not very long ago that the soldiery of Europe's Old and the many frontiers lies on the battlefield and that, for this reason, Germany must prepare and be strong and be ready.
