Condemned: Historic hotel gets a reprieve

By NICK PFEIFAUF Horald Stall Writer

SANFORD — A historic hotel, scheduled for condemnation, has been given a stay of execution. The Sanford City Commission granted a one year time extension for its refurbishing last night.

Owners of the old Montezuma Hotel, at 300 Magnolia plan to turn Il into a retirement home.

Seven other structures were placed on the condemnation list last night. Owners of these buildings now have 30 days during which time progress on repairs must be shown. If no progress is made, the buildings are to either be demolished by the owner, or the city will demolish the buildings, and charge the cost to the owner or place a lien on the structure.

During last night's City Commission meeting, a number of home owners were on hand to ask for time

Restrictions anger some homeowners

By VICKI DeSORMIER Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Some residents of the historic district of Sanford are not pleased with the restrictions being placed on them by the Sanford Historic Preservation Hoard through the codes based on suggestions by architect Andres Duany.

Old Sanford Regulations, which were enacted by the city commission after a public hearing on Dec. 27, regulate everything regarding the exterior of a home from the materials that may be used to construct the elements of a building to feners to paint colors.

They were instigated by Andres Duany, who in April 1992 developed a master plan and urban regulations for the city:

Duany said in the plan that rules regarding these items were necessary in Sanlord because "there is an awful lot of abuse and caretess regard for property by others which Sec Codes, Page 5A

SANFORD — A 25-year old truck driver killed himself Monday afternoon as Seminole County deputies attempted to question him about allegedly shooting his estranged girlfriend and taking their small daughter the day before.

Michael Williams, 2213 Broadway Street, Sanford shot himself in the head with a .22 caliber assault rifle at the Bookertown home of a friend. Investigators arrived at the house on Richard Allen Street to question Williams about the attempted murder Sanday of Shalonda King. He was taken to Central Florida Regional Hospital where he died a short time later. The Seminole County Medical Examiner was to conduct an antopsy this morning. Williams worked for an Apopka trucking firm.

Health care reforms are working

MIAMI - Florida's health care reforms are working and could help shape a national system designed to guarantee medical care to everyone, lawmakers said.

Gov. Lawton Chiles and U.S. Sens. Bob Graham, D-Fla., and Jay Rockefeller, D-West Virginia, touted Florida's program at a forum Monday sponsored by the Alliance for Health Reform.

'Your reform plan shares a lot with President Clinton's plan," said Rockefeller, who founded the alliance, "We're going to find out if health care alliances are bureaucratic or whether In Florida, small employers are expected to be able to buy health insurance through one of 11 Community Health Purchasing Alliances starting in May. Created by lawmakers last year, the alliances are designed to let businesses with fewer than 50 workers join forces and find the lower premiums enjoyed by large employers. Most small businesses will be able to save money on their health care costs by using the purchasing alliances. Chiles said. He estimated their savings would range from 7 percent to 62 percent.

Feminist of the Year named

PENSACOLA - Florida State University President Talbot 'Sandy' D'Alemberte and the son of slain abortion doctor David Gunn, murdered last year in Pensacola, are 1993 Feminist of the Year award winners.

The awards were announced Monday by Feminist Majority Foundation President Eleanor Smeal, D'Alemberte and two other lawyers, Kathy D. Patrick and Susan England, were recognized for providing free legal services to Florida abortion clinies, winning a buffer zone injunction against demonstrators around a Melbourne clinic and successfully defending the injunction before the Florida Supreme Court.

David Gunn Jr., a college student from Birmingham, Ala., was cited for turning the personal tragedy of his father's death into activism on behalf of abortion rights, traveling across the country speaking against anti-abortion violence.

Costa, Medearls linked to grant scandal

MIAMI - University of Miami football players Frank Costa and Rusty Medearis may be asked to testify about financial aid fraud in the school's athletic department.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Martin Goldberg told U.S. District Judge Stanley Marcus on Monday he will use statements from Costa and Medearis at a sentencing hearing Thursday to show how former UM academic adviser Tony Russell falsified Pell

The hearing marked the first time Costa, a Hurricanes quarterback, and Medearis, an injured defensive end still on scholarship, have been publicly linked to the fraud scheme.

Marcus agreed Monday to postpone until Thursday the sentencing of Russell, former assistant director of the university's academic support unit. The delay came at the request of Russell's attorney, Roy Kahn, who said he needed more time to prepare against plans to seek a stiffer sentence.

Russell pleaded guilty last June to a federal fraud charge in an investigation that found 91 student athletes, most of them football players, had received nearly $250,000 in fraudulent, payments under the Pell Grant program.

Russell, 45, was accused of forging forms for the program, which provides grants to needy student athletes.

Illegal aliens

Florida wants feds to start footing immigrants' bills

By JOHN PACENTI Associated Press Writer

KEY BISCAYNE - Hilda Cruz, who immigrated illegally to the United States. said she was embarrassed about seeking medical care knowing she could not pay. But after dizzy spells left her unconscious, she had no choice. "I see the news. I see the problem with all these immigrants. I would like not to be one of them, but I'm sick," said Ms. Cruz, a Cuban who recently became a legal U.S. immigrant.

With just $12 in her pocket Monday, Ms. Cruz was being treated at Jackson Memorial Hospital for complications from brain surgery she had in Havana years ago. She said she was denied treatment from a number of doctors until someone told her to go to Dade County's public hospital.

Federal immigration policy has made a nightmare, a nightmare that has forced Florida and other local governments to bear the enormous costs.

Ms. Cruz, 56, is one of the thousands of immigrants - both legal and illegal - who receive medical care, education and other social services from Florida's state and local governments

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles said Monday the federal government should pay for these services, and the state will soon sue for reimbursement.

Florida paid an estimated $2.5 billion in 1993 to provide services to all immigrants. according to a report compiled by Chiles' office and the Florida Advisory Council on Intergovernmental Relations.

The report, "The Unfair Burden: limitgration's Impact on Florida," estimates $884 million of the total was spent by state and local governments on 345,000 undocumented allens. Chiles said the state's lawsuit will be aimed at initially recouping

ORLANDO — Threatening ju ventles with harsh punishment without providing adequate preventative programs is contributing to juvenile crime in Florida, mental health and child care professionals said.

Jack Levine, executive director of the Florida Center for Children and Youth, criticized a proposal in a Senate bill (CS-SB 68) to prosecute teen-agers of any age as adults after their fourth felony.

"There is a misconception being fostered in Tallahassee that you can threaten young people not to be violent," Levine said Monday during a workshop for the Mental Health Association of Central Florida.

Ciphe House and Senate have passed separate juvenile justice bills that call for a new Department of Juvenile Justice, longer stays in detention centers and residential programs and more adult prosecution of juveniles Becky Bailey, director of the University of Central Florida's early childhood education and development program, and other mental health professionals said the solution was to meet the needs of children when they are as young as 1 to 3 years old.

"Children that come from unsafe families go on to unsafe. schools." Bailey said.

Levine said the juvenile crime problem in Florida is due to a decade of neglect.

"Violence has its roots in steady neglects and maltreatment," he said. "In the state of Florida, we are burdened by a high rate of child neglect and abuse. The states that neglect their children are going to be punished with high crime

Seven were confirmed dead, six crew members were rescued and one was missing early today after the AC-130H Spectre went down Monday in the Indian Ocean about 200 yards from shore.

A 10th gunship was shot down during the Persian Gulf War, killing all 14 crew members. It was the Air Force's largest single loss of the war.

All of the AC-130Hs are attached to the 16th Special Operations Squadron, part of the Air Force Special Operations Command based at Hurlburt Field, said Capt. Kim Uric. The 16th later this year is scheduled to begin receiving the first of a dozen updated AC-130Us. The remaining H models will be turned over to a reserve unit at adjoining Eglin Air Force Base and its A models will be retired.

tional Airport in Mombasa on a routine support mission for Joint Task Force Somalia, according to a news release from the U.S. Central Command at MacDill Air Force Base near Tampa.

It was one of two gunships operating in Africa. Two others are supporting United Nations forces in Bosnia, Uric said.

First used during the Vietnam War, the converted four-engine, turboprop cargo planes participated in the U.S. invasions of Grenada and Panama and the Persian Gulf War.

Each plane has four guns protruding from its left side. Two rapid-fire 20mm Vulcan cannons, a 40mm Bofors cannon commonly found aboard Navy ships and a 105mm howitzer, an Army artillery piece, are used to attack enemy vehicles and stationary targets on the ground.

Although the gunfire is formidable, none of the shells are as destructive as an aerial bomb. The gunship's greatest asset is its ability to concentrate gunfire on a target with pinpoint accuracy using infrared and low light level television aiming devices.

Lawmakers debate school prayer

By JACKIE HALLIFAX Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE - There's a good chance state lawmakers will give their blessing to bills that would allow prayer in public schools, say supporters and opponents.

David Caton, president of the American Family Association of Florida, said he's beginning to feel there's enough support for the legislation to pass.

"I believe that fundamentally the biggest problem facing our nation is that people have turned away from God, and we need to open the door back up to our creator," Caton said Monday.

On the other side of the issue, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union said she doesn't hold out much hope the bills will be defeated. "I am not optimistic that we can stop it," attorney Charlene Carres said, "mainly because politically legislators don't want to be seen as voting against something wholesome, moral and religious." Students could pray before sports events, graduation ceremontes and other assemblies under proposals being debated by Florida's lawmakers. The prayers couldn't reflect the views of any one religion and would have to be voluntary.

Students would have to approve them, plan them and lead them.

A House committee voted 12-5 to approve the school-prayer bill earlier this month, and the Senate Education Committee was scheduled to take up the companion bill (SB 1432) today.

'So far the support for it has been overwhelming," said Rep. Randy Mackey Jr., sponsor of the House bill (HB 1679), noting he's received hundreds of calls and letters from supporters.

Mackey, D-Lake City, said he didn't think his bill violates the U.S. Constitution since it uses lauguage that has been approved by a federal appeals court in Texas. He said the legislation is not designed to promote religion.

"But I am also trying to show that we are not a religion-less state," he said.

As recently as 1992, the nation's high court ruled invocations and benedictions at graduations were unconstitutional. even if the prayers were nonsectarian and attendance at the events were voluntary.

In 1989, a federal appeals court in Atlanta struck down prayer at school sports events as unconstitutional — a ruling that is binding in Florida.

Arrest that rotten building!

When people are found in possession of drugs, they are arrested. When fruit or vegetables get rotten, they are discarded.

Yet when structures in Sanford reach the point of falling apart or headquartering drug users, nothing happens. There are so many appeals and time-extensions available, even those in the worst condition remain an eyesore for months, ...even years.

Monday night, the Sanford City Commission began condemnation hearings on eight structures. Demolition was approved for most of them. This doesn't mean the buildings will be torn down within the next

Even with a condemnation approval, there is still paperwork to be done, and other code requirements to be met, which will delay the demolition possibly for months.

Condemnation reports however, extend beyond those eight. Many others have been declared ready for condemnation since November of last year. One goes as far back as

At times, nothing more than minor work has been done to these structures. Often, just enough to make it appear as though progress has been made. With just that Indication, the city grants extension after extension of the demolition process.

We suggest revisiting this paperwork dilemma. Establish a specific length of time in which repairs must be started, and completed. Unless absolutely necessary, give no extensions.

If a building's owner can't make progress in that period, why should we expect it to be done at a later date? Does the owner hope to win the lottery next month and pay for the

Certainly, there are special exceptions which may be needed for some buildings. But the continuation of extensions on condemned buildings where repairs may even exceed the value of the structure, is illogical.

Determine the repairs needed. Notify the owner that they must be done in a specific time. When the time expires, if the required work hasn't been done, order it demolished

One dilapidated building in a neighborhood spoils the appearance of the entire area. Let's not let this continue.

Concern: Using people

I am writing this public letter because of what I witnessed on Feb. 22 at the County Commission hearing on Planning and Development Administration of Seminole County. On the agenda was the topic of rezoning for improved housing. The item up to be rezoned is not the problem. The way it was done, or rather those asking for, and those speaking for it carried out their parade, and it was a parade, is my concern.

Residents of Bookertown for some reason were ushered into the meeting room carrying large poster signs reading "We need better homes," etc. In the group were a mixture of older residents, children and a few younger residents. Most of the residents were neighbors I have known most of my life, and as myself, they are on limited income (Social Security). I did talk to some there and the drift I got was that they were told these houses would be available to them as one gentleman commented "what are they going to give us?" I understand the hope of a new home, but have they been told on top of the price of the home there will be closing costs, doc stamps, etc.? Have they also been told they will be paying more taxes as your homestead only covers $25,000 One other thing they need to consider, is will they qualify for the loan. On Social Security the Income is minimal. If by chance they do move into a new $100,000 home, the payments will run in the neighborhood of $700 to $1,000 per month. And on top of the mortgage there is the usual monthly bills - power. water, insurance, clothing, etc.

I would like to know who had the obduracy to write these signs and place them in the hands of these residents. They were used in a way I feel was very degrading to them. The rezoning was a sure thing without using these fine people this way. I would hope the residents will not sell their present homes until they have talked to some one other than the people who place these signs in their

Whitewater scandal unfolds again

why would all the president's men (and women) go to such great lengths to undermine the ongoing investigation of the Whitewater

In just the past week, there have been revelations of grave ethical breaches by several high-ranking apparatchiks in the Clinton admin-

Most disturbing was the acknowledgment by Deputy Treasury Secretary Robert Altman, who also is acting head of the independent (supposedly) Resolution Trust Corp., that he recently briefed senior White House officials about the progress of the agency's inquiry into Madison Guaranty, the failed savings and loan that is central to the Whitewater probe.

Since President Clinton and Hillary Rodham Clinton are themselves the subject of the federal investigation - they were co-owners of the real estate venture Whitewater Development with James McDougal, the owner of Madison Guaranty .. it was unseemly, if not borderline criminal, for Altman to disclose the status of the RTC's investigation to the president's handlers.

Think if Archibald Cox had observed Altman's ethical standards during Watergate. As he investigated wrongdoing in the Nixon White House, he would have secretly conferred with Haldeman and Ehrlichman about his progress.

Altman's conduct might not be so disquieting were it an aberration. But from the very beginning of the Whitewater scandal, the people closest to the Clintons have behaved as if the president and first lady have something to hide.

The Whitewater issue was first raised during the 1992 presidential campaign. The Clintons ginned up an audit (which has since been discredited) that showed that they lost money on the real estate venture. The matter was temporarily laid to rest

The issue resurfaced following last summer's

Something is rotten in Little Rock.

House counsel. Before even a wake was held for the president's boyhood friend. White House aides ransacked the dead man's office.

Months later, federal investigators discovered that a file pertaining to Whitewater had been removed from Foster's safe. White House officials had neglected to mention the file in an inventory of items in Foster's office that they originally turned over to investigators

The disappearance of the file raised suspicions about its contents. There was speculation that it contained details of highly questionable transactions between the Clintons and Madison Guaran-

The most (shall we say) unusual transaction occurred following Clinton's 1984 race for governor. According to testimony from McDougal, Clinton asked him to help "knock out the deficit" left over from the campaign. That "deficit" amounted to $50,000, which the Clintons had borrowed from another bank.

McDougal hosted a fund-raiser for his friends the Clintons and repaid their $50,000 bank debt. Federal investigators suspect that some of the money McDougal raised was diverted from Madison Guaranty in violation of federal banking

Gangsta: Poetry or vile trash?

WASHINGTON — EENIE-MEENIE-MINIE-MOE, "GANGSTA" POETRY — YEAH OR NO? Gangsta rap is cool. It expresses the honest, uncensored feelings of one of America's most marginalized, least politically powerful groups poor black men, and in some cases, women. It is a symptom, not a cause, of our violent culture. To censor or limit it would be to ignore its righteous anger and rich musical heritage.

and to silence rarely heard voices. IF RECORD LABELS WON'T LET GO. SHOULD THE GOVERNMENT JUST SAY NO? Gangsta rap is evil. The bastard child of the vibrant art form hip-hop, gangsta and its mostly black and male practitioners celebrate and encourage hatred, substance abuse, brutality and misogyny - often toward other blacks. Artists - and their often-white producers and distributors - promote the worst sterotypes to make a buck, ignoring real-life consequences of the music's vile fantasies. If the industry won't control itself, consumers

EENIE-MEENIE-MINIE-MOE, WHICH WAY SHOULD OPINION GO?

To sit in the Senate subcommittee hearing on gangsta rap two weeks ago on Capitol Hill was to be yanked, often eloquently and persuasively, two ways.

There were the folks like Brown University professor and Baptist minister Michael Eric Dyson, Utah law enforcement officer and gang specialist Sgt. Ron Stallworth, and rap newsletter editor Darryl James, all of whom explained their support for, and understanding of, the young men and women whose rage and isolation ignite and inform gangeta rap. Silencing their music, they said, would be pointless and racist.

Then there were those like singer Dionne Warwick, psychiatrist Robert T.M. Phillips and Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun, who presided over the hearing. While rejecting censorship and empathizing with the despair that can fuel gangsta rap, they suggested that some curbs on the genre are appropriate, even vital. How could they not be, they asked, considering some of the viciousness concocted by these rappers - and that ends up in the minds of children too young to separate fact from fantasy gangsta's lies. My head's still spinning. I couldn't find relief in the faces of dozens of students, journalists. educators, "real people" and music industry professionals who attended the daylong forum. Many seemed as torn as I.

Real black people would embrace these rappers' truths. True lovers of black folks wouldn't tolerate

Among the spectators was a middle-aged woman in a gold-trimmed hat, accompanied by several like minded associates. She nodded and um·hummed as Dyson - a self-described "petty bourgeois Negro intellectual" - said that violence and woman-defiling "didn't begin with gangsta rap" and that the music was "a cry and a scream against invisibility" by our culture's least politically visible souls.

But she also said, "That's right!" when psychiatrist Phillips said that "children are born with the innate capacity and desire to imitate adult behavior, whether the behavior ... is triggered by a visual image, an audio image or (the combination). ... Violence is powerful, tantaliz-Citing studies linking violent and misogynistic music to violence-accepting attitudes, Phillips said that constant repetition of audio and visual imagery "tends to desensitize." After viewing the initally stunning Rodney G. King beating video, he said, "for the 19th, 12th, 100th time, you reached for the remote control."

But they are our children.

Phillips quoted examples of some gangsta and equally degrading heavy metal music:

"No apparent motive/Just kill and kill again/Survive my brutal slashing/l'll hunt you till the end ..." (From heavy metal group (From heavy metal group Slayer's album "Hell Awaits.") And, "Her body's beautiful so I'm thinkin' that's her fate.../Sllt her throat and watched her shake." (From "Mind of a Lunatic" by the The only time Gold Hat and her companions clearly diverged from others in the audience rape/Shouldn't have had her curtains open so was when Sgt. Stallworth implored people to hear "the cry for help" that gangsta represented: "We must reach out to embrace them. ... They are all our children."

Gold Hat sighed. "Amen." A white male journalist, sitting across from me in the press area, snorted in disbelief.

But he isn't the only one who'd feel alienated from artists who are as dismissive of others' humanity as some gangsta rappers. Displayed at the hearing were blowups of album covers - including one of 2 Live Crew's with group members in a brass bed, reading a sports section. Emerging from beneath the sheets dominating the photo, are four fleshy female rear ends, "clothed" in string bikints.

The women's faces are hidden, the men's faces are grinning.

Lighten up about heavy people

Odd as it may sound at first. Deborah Birdwell's story is why we have an Americans With Disabilities Act.

Birdwell, at 5 feet, 4 inches tall and 360 pounds, was demed access to a movie theater last summer, even though she'd brought her own chair and wanted to sit out of everyone's way in the wheelchair section.

The ADA was enacted not just because some legislators believed we have to make all things equal for all people. It was made law after a long history of so many of us being so reluctant to offer any accommodation at all to the disabled: No phone eventhough technology was available and the added costs would have come to pennics per regular custom absolutely even one restroom so a person in a wheelchair could work for the firm. Cities fighting tooth and nail against equipping just one or two buses to carry disabled riders

After years of staying out of theaters because she was too large to fit into the seats - and ashamed of it - Birdwell finally decided to buck embarrassment to see a movie. She didn't ask the theater to spend money trying to accommodate her. But the theater manag

Birdwell has filed a suit under a provision of the ADA that mandates that public places accommodate the disabled

In November, the government determined that the ADA protects "morbidly obese" people - those weighing 100 percent over normal weight - from discrimination. The ruling applies regardless of the cause of the

If the theater had allowed Birdwell to sit in the special section reserved for those who can't use the regular seats, no one would have been troubled and there would be no lawsuit. Now she's asking $1.5 million damages. Budwell claims she was humiliated, subjected to a harangue from the theater manager in front of other patrons.

Is any humiliation worth $1.5 million? Birdwell says her aim is to show other obese people that they don't have to be subjected to the treatment she endured. I don't know if you can put a price on a lifetime of humiliation, but I do know that if I'd been standing in that theater line, I'd be out on ball awaiting a hearing on assault charges. I'd have picked up Birdwell's chair and tried to wallop the theater manager with it.

Obese women in this society are the last absolutely unprotected minority. If I hadn't known that already from years of observation. I've watched two televised exposes recently by thin reporters who went undercover wearing "fat suits" to make them appear quite overweight. Both "fattened" reporters endured repeated "hatefulness and outright disdain," in one reporter's words. A man yelled, "you fat pig" at her from a cab. and a young woman asked the reporter's male companion what he was doing with "a fat pig." Over a period of several weeks, she had a difficult time separating her real self from the woman in the "fat suit" and she became severely depressed.

I'm sure being an obese man is no day at the beach, either, but I've never seen men singled out for the ridicule heaped on obese women. Men tend to feel sympathetic toward obese men, as if they're just large-economysize good ole boys with an eating problem. Yet I've heard lots of pretty nice guys mumble derogatory comments as obese women pass by, as if they're fair game because they "let themselves go." Ironically, I've heard a lot of pretty nice women even make fun of obese women.

is negative for everybody." He noted prominently in his report that none of the rules was "intended to be unfair to those people who are poor, honest, and law abiding." Still, some people feel, they are too all-encompasing.

Sue Hancock has put a "For Sale" sign in front of her 5th Street home.

This is just too much," she said, shaking her head. Hancock, who owns her home free and clear, has had some trouble insuring the nine decade. old home because of its age. In order to make the task of finding an insurer easier she began touching up the white paint with an identical color. As she began dabbing on the paint, she said she was informed that without a "Certificate of Appropriateness" from the Sanford Historic Preservation Board, she was in violation.

When she balked at the recessity of such a permit, she said she was told she would be in violation of the codes if she did not appear before the preservation board to make a request for a certificate. If she fails to appear at the next meeting. which is tonight, she was told, she would be fined $250.

"It's absolutely ridiculous," she said. "I didn't vote on these things. This is not a neighborhood association 1 don't think they should be able to tell me that I can't touch up the paint on my house."

Wells said she will turn her list building inspector Linda Gentry to do with as she will.

Turner said the state is able to arrests.' offer tax credits and, in some cases, financial assistance to call," he continued, "we may those who need help in fixing not be seen, especially if we send their homes in a manner consistent with the codes.

"They just need to come see me and I'll give them some phone numbers to call," she

But for Hancock, it's too late. She is leaving Sanford for a more tranquil life in Geneva, she says. But, it is not just the codes that pushed her to that decision.

'Why don't they put as much effort into cleaning up the streets as they do into making sure people paint their houses the appropriate color?" she asked.

They may call me a trouble maker, but I want to make this a nice place for my children to live." she said.

Still, she said, she is saddened by the possible loss of her neighbor.

The structure was constructed between 1890 and 1895, and contained Sanford's first indoor swimming pool. It was known as the Bye-Lo Hotel at the turn of the century, and became the Montezuma Hotel in 1920.

"What we are planning is a retirement home for low to middle income people," Ingria said. Later, he commented that it would probably be more in the middle income range.

Commissioner Lon Howell. who has often spoken against housing where short-term rentals are offered, questioned if there was a possibility of 300 Magnolia becoming such a place.

"I assure you," Ingria said, that this will not be any weekly rental establishment. We are planning to make it a fully qualified ACLF, (Adult Congregate Living Facility)."

City Attorney Bill Colbert cautioned that the matter of structure use was not the item under consideration. "The only thing up for a decision tonight," he said, "is condemnation proceedings. You can handle the use of the facility whenever it comes back before the commission at a later date."

City Manager Bill Simmons had previously recommended a 365 day time extension for the hotel. "It's a very historic building," he said, "and it would be a shame to see it destroyed '

The city building department had reported the hotel had a dilapidated roof, windows missing, rotten siding, holes in the walls, rotten floors, plumbing and electrical problems, plaster falling off the walls, and many other problems

Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The Lake Brantley Patriots did the right things at the right times Monday night to claim a 6-5 victory over the visiting Spruce Creek Hawks in a Class 5A-District 4 baseball contest.

It certainly was not the prettiest of games, as the two clubs combined for eight errors that led to nine uncarned runs

"I was telling the other coaches that this had to be our ugliest game of the year," said Lake Brantley head coach Mike Smith. "But right now we'll take anything we can get. We have a lot of senior's with no experience. Our catcher, left fielder, second baseman and shortstop have not played varsity before and our third baseman played first base last year.

Thankfully, we have a lot pitching experience. They have a combined carned run average

Part of that pitching experience, senior lefthander Chris Tibbetts, went the distance and did not allow an earned run in improving his record to 3-0. He also has two saves this season.

Tibbetts, who has not given up an earned runall year, allowed four hits and four walks, while striking out eight, but his defense committed four errors.

'We were a little sluggish tonight, especially on defense," said Smith. "This was our fourth gain in four days and we had some tired legs out

Spruce Creek took a 3-0 lead, but Lake Brantley came back with four uncarned runs in the bottom of the third inning. See Ugly, Page 2B

DAYTONA BEACH - Steve De-Camp knew his motorcycle did not have the power to go head-to-head with factory bikes, but he raced against the best in the business unyway in Sunday's Daytona 200.

For DeCamp, a Deltona resident, the grueling 200 mile race on the Daytona International Speedway was the ultimate test for his new 1993 Kuwasaki 750.

DeCamp received his bike less than a month ago from Seminole Honda-Kawasaki in Longwood. 'All we had time to do to was bore the head and modify it slightly," said Dick Suarez, owner of Longwood's Full Spectrum Racing shop.

After DeCamp picked up the motorcycle, he and Suarez looked it over to see what modifications could be made.

"We went extreme on the blke to get it ready in three days." Suarez said. "It's amazing it all came together. Basically we jumped right into the big one from the crate." ☐See DeCamp, Page 2B

CASSELHERRY - The PDS opening season thumping to win Its first game for its new sponsor Monday Night Spring Softball

Leading the way for the Ovtedo squad was the motherdaughter pitching act of Connie

Thomas, the mother, started the game and allowed only one hit over two finnings before giving way to daughter Teresa. who allowed only one canted run over the last six innings. "Connie was not supposed to pitch for another week or two because of a bad shoulder," said manager Mickey Norton, "But she felt good and pitched well until reinjuring the arm in the second. Teresa came on and did a great job. Her clutch pitching and our defense was the difference in the game." The Ball Busters broke the ice with a run in the lifth inning and the Packers answered with two in the top of the sixth.

The Busters looked like they might pull out the win as they tled the game in the seventh inning and had runners on second and third with one out-After an intentional walk loaded the bases a Ball Busters hitter lined a shot up the middle. but Packers second baseman Tammy (Johnson) Mortis, a former star at Lake Howell and Seminole Community College. made a running stab of the liner and stepped on second for the double play to end the inning and force extra play.

The Packers wasted no time in taking advantage of the big defensive play, getting six hits to score five runs in the top of the eighth inning. With one out. Morris singled and scored as Walburger's single turned into an triple as the ball was bobbled. Jaudon (Jonas) Marlette singled to scored Walberger, and after the second out, Allyson Hale, April Stoner singled in a run.

The Ball Busters came back with a run on a couple of litts in the bottom of the eighth inning, but shortstop Jackie Janowiak made a great play on a sharp grounder to end the game and save further damage. Mariette, Janowiak and Morris each had a huge defensive game as Marlette had seven put outs in the outfield and threw out runners at second base and home plate, Janowiak added five assists and Morris eight put outs. Providing the offense were Wallburger and Chesser (three hits each) and Morris, Mariette, Hale and Stoner (two hits each).

The Packers are now 1-1 on the season and will look to get over the 500 mark against Pretzels next week at 7:30 p.m.

Ugly-

lead in the fourth when two runs. scored on a throwing error. The Patriots ued the game in the fourth on a single by Pete Gaidis, a sacrifice by John Andersen and an RBI double by James Clark and scored the game winner in the sixth on a bunt single by Andersen, a sacrifice by Clark and an RBI single by Joey Harmer. Spruce Creek got the potential tying run on first leading off the seventh inning, but Tibbetts promptly picked the runner off first and then got the next two batters on weak grounders to end the game. Lake Brantley had also gotten a big defensive play in the fifth from Brian Krot as, with one out and runners on first and second the center fielder came on to grab a liner and picked nailed the runner off second with a beautiful throw for a double play to end the inning.

Providing the offense for the Patriots were Harmer itwo singles, run, RBD, Krot (two singles). Clark (double, RIII) and Andersen, Gaidis, Jeff Shaw Jeff Butler and J.B. Cartmill (one single and one run each).

Lake Brantley improved to 8.4. with the victory and will play a pair of important SAC games this week, traveling to Lake Mary on Wednesday and hosting Ovtedo on Friday Both games and Tammy Chesser each are set for a 7 pm start

Supersport than a Superbike. The like was broken in on the street because they did not have the time to break it in on a track.

"There is no comparison between the street and the track and I did not want to loose my license," DeCamp said, "So I rode around town to get the bike ready for the race. Before the race, I guess I had a total of 20 laps with the bike on the track."

Even though DcCamp knew he could not win the race, he entered with the anticipation of showing some of the top name riders that he was for real, even on a bike with less horsepower. Before the start, DeCamp said he wanted to show in the top half of the finishers and complete the race in one piece. He accomplished his goal of proving he was a competitor, showing he could ride with the best in the turns and where riding skills were the key. But a dead battery and handling problems, in addition to having a slower bike, kept De-Camp out of the top 50-percent.

battery went dead. It just went flat and it was a new battery." The rigid handling of the bike also gave DeCamp problems.

home of Virginia Mikler was the setting for the March 5 meeting of the Sallie Harrison Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. At the 10 a.m. social hour, delictous refreshments were served by Lourine Messenger.

The opening ritual was conducted by Regent Virginia Mikler and Chaplain Ester

Anderson. Speaker of the Day, Patricia Schnurr of Maitland, was introduced by Eugenie (Betty) Steffans. Ms. Schnurr, state lineage recarch chairman for the DAR, is also involved in UDC, Colonial Dames, and War of 1812 organizations. She talked about the help available to those seeking to establish descent from an ancestor involved in the Revolutionary War. She told how to start with the present in order to delve into the past, advised on the purpose of various seminars, and described what help is available from the DAR.

Americanism Chairman Patricia Fox brought the president general's message concerning the need for an adequate national defense.

Mom says kids' allergies are nothing to sneeze at

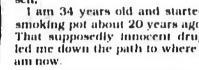

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to the letter about the young boy who died from an allergic reaction to peanuts in a cookie he was served at a birthday party. Thank you for the potential danger of giving food to children who may have allergies.

My 3-year-old son has lifethreatening reactions to peanuts and eggs. Even after I tell people about his allergies, they don't fully comprehend the seriousness of the situation. Many think if I just "tell the teacher, the party hostess, etc." about my son's allergies. I can safely entrust his care to that adult. I have heard too many examples of adults who were informed of the allergies offering allergic children the offensive food and even insisting they eat it.

I wish people could understand I'm not being overprotective when I don't enroll him in preschool or other activities where food is served to groups of children; I'm doing what I have to do to know that

Flag coming home Britain returns flag captured in 1812

MONIQUE EL FAIZY Associated Press Writer

LONDON - A huge American flag captured during the War of 1812 is going home.

The garrison flag from Old Fort Niagara, N.Y., is leaving a Scottish eastle this afternoon to begin its journey back to America. It is to be officially welcomed back to its original home in a ceremony on Saturday.

"It's an amazing flag," said Bob Rieger, president of the Old Fort Niagara Association. The star pattern is unique among American flags.

The flag has 13 stripes and 14 stars. The stars are arranged in a comet pattern, with a cluster of stars in the right corner of the blue field with stars shooting out to the left. Each star is about one foot across, Rieger said.

The flag has been housed in Megginch Castle in Errol. Scotland, about 30 miles north of Edinburgh in the home of the Baroness Strange.

It was Lady Strange's great-great-grand-uncle Maj. Gen. Sir Gordon Drummond, the commander of the British forces in Upper Canada during the War of 1812, who captured the flag. It was given to the prince regent, later King George IV, who returned it to Drummond in 1845.

The Old Fort Niagara Association learned of the flag's existence about eight years ago. Rieger said. The association wrote several letters to the baroness, but it was not until Rieger's daughter, Diane, then 18, wrote last summer that they got a

Two weeks after Diane wrote, the association received an invitation to Megginch Castle to examine the flag. Sotheby's appraised it, and the association and the baroness settled on a sale price of 100,000 pounds, about $150,000.

"It is an extremely rare American flag. We believe it is the eighth-oldest to exist," Rieger

He believes the flag dates from 1793.

The flag measures 30 feet by 19 feet, so big that Rieger still hasn't seen the whole thing because there was no room in the castle to unfurl it fully. It will be flown back in a 16-inch-diameter plastic pipe painted in a red, white and blue flag motif. The empty pipe weighs 300 pounds, the flag

The baroness says she is thrilled that the flag is being returned. "It ought to go home. I'm terribly happy that it

Clinton back in New Hampshire trying to be the 'comeback kid'

By TOM RAUM Associated Press Writer

NASHUA, N.H. - President Clinton, trying to shift attention from Whitewater to the major themes of his presidency, is back in the state where in early 1992 he proclaimed himself the "comeback kid."

This time, Clinton is trying to make a political comeback that will enable him to get his domestic legislation back on track.

So he was immersing himself in one of the things he does best - a frenetic campaign-like schedule. He planned three stops in New Hampshire today: a town hall meeting, a stroll through a town square and a factory tour. Then, he flies to an army base in New York state to greet soldiers recently returned from duty in Somalia.

It was a mix of presidential and political events that White House aides hoped would help divert attention away from the controversy back home - or at least keep Clinton's mind off it.

"It doesn't hurt," said Clinton press secretary Dec Dec Myers.

She said Clinton's swing through New Hampshire was "a chance for the people of New Hampshire to give him a progress report. When the president campaigned in New Hampshire, the biggest issue here was the economy."

inday. Clinton kicked off a job ence in Detroit of the world's seven leading industrial demogracies, and toured a diesel plant, then flew to Boston and addressed a crowd at a wharf alongside Boston Harbor.

He didn't mention the Whitewater affair directly. But it was clearly just beneath the

"We are going in the right direction," he told a crowd of thousands in the wharf speech. "And we can keep going in the right direction if we can remember to keep our eyes on those things that really matter and if we do not become diverted."

Clinton seemed warmed by the friendly response from the crowd, which was warmed up by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. Kennedy called Clinton one of "the great presidents of this

The president said it would be nice if he could "go back to Washington and wipe away all the forces that seek to demean, to divide, to downgrade" and just focus on the positive.

Clinton also attended a $1,000-a-plate Democratte fund-raiser at a downtown Boston hotel. He bitterly attacked Republicans in Congress, saying

Republicans are an opposition party that just stands up and says no, no, no, no, no, no, no, no, no, Clinton's schedule in New Hampshire today was reminiscent of the time he spent here leading to the February 1992 Democratic primary. Although he came in second in that race to former Sen. Paul Tsongas of neighboring Massachusetts, the showing - coming at a time when he was being battered by accusations about his draft record and alleged womanizing helped propel him toward the Democratic presidential nomination. He was to conduct a town half meeting at a tunior high school in Nashua, in southern New Hampshire, and stress the theme of economic renewal and tob creation - playing off his comments on Monday at the jobs conference in column of yours discussed postnasal drip. Several of my friends have found that the discontinuance of dairy products will clear the problem. To begin them is to invite postnasal drip. Perhaps this will be of interest to your readers.

Dairy foods may make postnasal drip worse

DEAR READER: Some people have discovered that milk products may worsen postnasal drip, a chronic throat irritation caused by an excessive mucus discharge from the struses. The cause of this is unknown.

In such cases, discontinuation of these foods (especially milk and tee cream) may help. The standard therapy for postnasal drip is decongestant medication. which is available either over-the-counter or by prescription. Thank you for sharing your experience.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have collagen disease, is there any new medication or treatment for this condition?

DEAR READER: The classification of collagen (or connective (Issue) diseases includes many specific afflictions, such as rhenmatoid arthritis. Sjogren's syndrome, relapsing polychondritis, lupus. seleroderma, polymyalgia, dermatomyositis, and others.

Although the characteristics of these disorders vary to some degree, they all have the same basis: The body's lumune system mistakenly attempts to destroy normal tissue in various organs, notably the skin, joints, kidneys, arterial linings, and so forth, leading to a broad array of symptoms.

The cornerstone of therapy for these diseases is prednisone, a sterold that shuts down the immune system. Predutsone has many dangerous side effects. such as brittle bones, cataracts and susceptibility to infection. Nonetheless, these complications are the trade-off for keeping the connective tissue disease(s) under control.

Depending on which disorder you have, you may be a can-didate for additional therapy, too - in particular, anti-metabolite medications, such as Methotrex-

Rheumatologista specialize in collagen diseases. You should be

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

The ides of March are come. but not gone - unless you are late in reading this column, I have just found out that every month had ides. They were the 15th in March, May, July and October, and the 13th in the other months.

This deal might have sounded like the soothsayer's warning to James Bond, but he had lan-Fleming on his side. It occurs early in Moonraker," which was published in 1955.

Bond, South, hid just bld and made four spades with an overtrick on the first deal of the rubber. M was playing North. East was Drax, partnering Max Meyer.

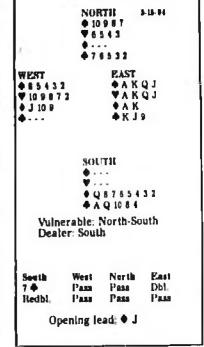

Note that West can make seven hearts or seven spades. But Bond, who was apparently drunk, made # hard to reach either of these contracts by opening seven dubs.

As the double and redouble came, so the side bets were doubled and redoubled. With dummy being void, Drax disapproved of the diamond lead, but it didn't matter. Bond ruffed in the dummy, played a club to his 10, ruffed another diamond to the dummy, finessed his club queen and cashed the club ace. Then Bond, suddenly sober, placed the diamond queen on the table, following swillly with the eight, seven, six, five and four. The session cost Drax about 10,000 pounds.

Finally aware that he had been set up. Drax said, "I should spend the money quickly. Commander Bond." But later, when he had Bond at his mercy. did Drax just shoot him and get it over with? No, he had to devise some clever way to kill Bond, which, of course, backfired, allowing our hero to escape, ready for his next bridge

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol YOUR BIRTHDAY March 16, 1994

Your prospects look extremely encouraging for the year ahead, both careerwise and socially. There is a possibility you may launch a potentially successful, new endeavor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make a sincere effort to be more philosophical than materialistic today. If you place too much emphasis on the latter, it might cause you to appear extremely selfish. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by multing $1.25 and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro Graph, e/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, N.Y. 10163. Be sure to state your zodiacsign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some adjustments may be required today in an arrangement where you are sharing something of value with another. Don't expect more than that to which you're entitled.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It might be wise to steer clear of an associate today who always tries to impose his/her opinions and views on you. Your tolerance level is very low.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Serious matters should be treated with the respect they deserve today and not handled indifferently. If you don't do it right the first time, you'll have to go back and do It again.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's a possibility your priorities might be out of order today. Don't place more attention on casual interests than you do on critical circumstances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to be thoughtful today and don't bring problems into the household that have nothing to do with the family. You could get everyone stirred up over nothing

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It could make a ind, lasting impression today if you're caught telling fibs, even small ones. Keep this in mind if you feel inclined to tell-a tall tale about your exploits.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to keep a poker face if you are doing some hard horse trading today. Don't let the desire in your eyes for what you want betray you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you might be tempted once again to follow the advise of someone who advised you poorly in the past. You'd be better off thinking for yourself. BAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't talk about one coworker to another today unless you have some favorable comments to make. The person you're discussing may later find out everything you said. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-dan. 19) Your social inclinations might be quite strong today and you'll be eager for companionship, yet you might have a troubled feeling of not being in harmony with persons with whom you've involved. AQUARIUB (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) There is a possibility today you might strive very hard for something only to discover after it is attained that it isn't really what you wanted after all. Copyright 1994 NEWSPAPER
