Money approved for GreeneWay missing link

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Armed with the prospect of $52.5 million in federal funding, it appears further work on the Central Florida GreeneWay is about to continue.

Still to be completed is construction work from the present northern terminus of the GreeneWay at U.S. Highway 17-92, to a junction with Interstate Highway -4.

The continuation of the project will be the major subject of discussion Wednesday afternoon at the Seminole County Expressway Authority meeting.

Officials will consider dividing the remaining construction into three sections. The first is from Highway 17-92 to Old Lake Mary Road. The second is from Old Lake Mary Road to Rinehart Road, and the third will be from Rinehart to a new intersection with Interstate-4.

According to Expressway Authority Executive Director Gerald Brinton, the money is from $97.5 million that had been allocated by Congress in 1991 for development of the Maglev rapid rail system in the Central Florida area.

"When that project went under," he said, "the money remained on hold, and that is what President Clinton and Congress have now approved for this new work."

Brinton said of the $97.5 million, $52.5 million will be allocated for purchase of right-of-way and other needs for the GreeneWay, while the rest of the original Maglev money will be going to Jacksonville for construction of a new Interstate-95 bridge to replace a present drawbridge.

"As of last year at this time," Brinton continued, "we were in need of as much as $107 million to continue this project. Now it looks like we only have a shortfall of about $50 million."

In addition, the roadway work will have matching state funds of $13 million.

During tomorrow's meeting, officials will approach the project seeking approvals for final engineering plans for the three segments of the GreeneWay.

For the first section, approval is being sought for a total of $1.945 million for engineering. Section 2 will require approval of slightly over $1 million. The engineering cost for Section 3 is to be $1.479 million. In addition, there will also be slightly over $664,000 in fees for project management, comprehensive design reviews and environmental permitting services.

Prior to the various items scheduled on the agenda regarding the GreeneWay, officials will discuss the reorganization of the authority for 1995/96 including election of a new chairman, vice chairman, secretary and treasurer.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Seminole County Services Building, Room 1028, 1101 E. First Street in Sanford.

Seniors take Christmas to the children

Students experience life in the former Soviet Union

By VICKI DeBORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

LONGWOOD - It's a day away and it's a world away.

Kazakhstan, a state in the former Soviet Union, was home to a group of Lyman High School students last month.

Five young women traveled 23 hours and half way around the world to a place they say they couldn't even have imagined a year ago.

Selma Johnson, Julie Osisek, Jennifer Gullfoyle, Lindsey Merrell and Tiffany Nichols spent a month in the emerging nation with their teacher Dr. Peter Berry.

"It was amazing, really amazing what a difference there was," Merrell said. "They are so much like us, but they are really different too."

Berry said he understood the Cold War distorted our views of one another.

"We saw them as the enemy and they viewed us as wolves, as the terrible capitalists," he said. "Trips like this break down those barriers."

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Lombardi to remain at UF

TALLAHASSEE - After changing his mind several times it seems that John Lombardi, president of the University of Florida, will remain at his post.

He ended weeks of speculation yesterday when he announced to the state board of Regents that he was staying put and declining an offer from Johns Hopkins University.

"We have a lot of work to do," he told a small gathering before the meeting. "We're about halfway through the process of bringing the University up to the next level."

Jim Hecklin, president of the Board of Regents, said he and universities Chancellor Charlie Reed were very pleased with Lombardi's decision.

Lombardi's decision ends a month-long debate between himself and the Board of Regents dealing with the autonomy of universities within the system.

A bill has been filed for next spring's legislative session that would weaken the Board of Regents and establish a separate board of trustees at each university.

Lombardi said money was not a factor in his decision to remain at UF. He will remain at the university earning $217,000 a year. At Johns Hopkins, his salary would have increased to almost $300,000 annually.

Two more arrested in murder

KISSIMMEE - Two more Kissimmee men wanted in the death of a 22-year-old Belle Isle man were arrested yesterday in Connecticut. The alleged gunman, however, remains at large.

Daniel R. Sumner, 20, and Vern C. Williams, 21, were arrested by Connecticut State Police in Killingly, Conn.

Their arrests bring to seven the number arrested in the killing of Larry Neal Oliver Jr. Police believe Oliver was killed on Nov. 25 after he was lured to a house in rural Osceola County by suspects who wanted to steal his customized, red pickup truck.

A body thought to be Oliver's was found in a ditch in rural Orange County on Friday.

On Saturday, three men and two women turned themselves into authorities in Kissimmee. They are being held without bond in the Osceola County Jail as accessories to the murder.

Sumner and Williams are being held in Connecticut as fugitives from justice. Once they are returned to Osceola County, they will face accessory to murder charges.

Christ's image seen

LAKE CITY - The church pastor says it's a shadow, but he and the curious flocking to the Lake City Church of God see the face of Jesus Christ in an oval shape next to a wooden crucifix.

Since the image was pointed out to the congregation in October, the Rev. Jack McKinley says up to 6,000 people have visited the church for a peek at what he describes as "God's seal of approval on us."

The faint image is of a bearded face with a crown of thorns in the brow, McKinley said the image appears to be formed on a wall by two ceiling fixtures focusing their light through a dried vine set against the coarse wood of the cross.

"I have never tried to make anyone believe" it is something other than a shadow, McKinley said. Nevertheless, he attaches special significance to it. "I think it's a wake up call. This is a wake up call that Jesus us sending out to people. It's a wake up call that Jesus is coming back," the pastor said.

People who have heard of the image go to the church throughout the day to gaze up at the shadow.

"Ninety percent of the people who come in and see it aren't critical," McKinley said. "They know a miracle of God."

Some of the viewers have written positive comments in a special folder at the church entrance. Others have made donations to the church.

Charles MacKenzie, professor of theology and philosophy at the Reformed Theological Seminary in Orlando, said reading a shadow as a religious image "could be a projection of the yearnings and longings that people have for God."

Reformers get serious about grades

TAMPA - If lawmakers go along with the idea, public high school students will need a grade average of C or better to play sports or participate in extracurricular activities.

The requirement would be phased in gradually beginning with next fall's freshman class, according to twin proposals Friday of the 23-member Florida Commission on Education Reform and Accountability.

One would raise the state's graduation requirement from a 1.5 grade point average to a 2.0. The other would require that students involved in extracurricular activities maintain a 2.0 GPA.

Florida graduation now generally requires a 1.5 or a D in 24 specific credit subjects.

Two counties - Alachua and Gadsden - already require the higher C average.

"We have tried the lower expectations," said Education Commissioner Frank Brogan. "We've tried being overly sensitive and tried not to offend any students, and we can see where it's gotten us. It's time to push for higher standards and higher expectations."

Monsters imbued with sweetNESS

Happy Ness: The Secret of the Loch Syndicated, check local listings All singing! All dancing! All... Loch Ness monsters? The rather, um, unusual conceit of this animated series is that a group of amiable monsters live, frolic and frequently break into song far beneath the waves of an obviously unusual loch. The series is heavy on puns, with such characters as Sneaky Ness, Silly Ness, etc., etc. Joining the antics are the McJoy kids, who found the Nesses by following some eerie floating bagpipes. (OK, maybe you told your kids not to traipse after spectral musical instruments, but their mother didn't.)

Sarah, 6, liked it ("it was good"), and said she found it most interesting when Sad Ness got lost: "because I just did." Episodes take off from the characters' names and deal with such issues as friendliNESS, happiNESS, pompousNESS... well, you get the idea. Some parents may find the whole spectacle somewhat goopy and overly sweet, with too many pastel colors. However, kids may take their cue from Sarah, who remarked: "I would give this a 10 because it's the best thing I saw in my life."

Believability: 4 - Sarah believed it - and in part, that's what's important.

Fun Factor: 7 - Some kids, obviously, will be big fans.

Scattered throughout the show is Charlie Horse's attempt to create a superhero that will win him the $100 prize; clever viewers will figure out long before he does who the real superhero is.

Jacob, 7, said that he liked the part with the superheroes best: "I liked when Charlie Horse made the superheroes. Because I wanted to see who he came up with."

We would (mildly) quibble with only one of the comments Jacob made, when asked if he would recommend the show to other kids: "Yes, if they're Jewish. They'll learn about Chanukah." We would say, not just if they're Jewish - no matter who they are.

Good going, BRO

Life in the public housing units of Sanford is not easy. Money is scarce and role models, other than drug dealers and prostitutes, are few.

Amidst the difficulties, however, a coalition of community volunteers, law enforcement officials and representatives of various other agencies, are bringing a ray of hope to this community.

Organizers of the BRO (Brethren Reaching Out) program hope to use the available resources of their supporters and a heavy reliance on Judeo-Christian ethics to turn around the lives of young people who have run afoul of the law.

We believe their enthusiasm is enough to get the program off to a strong start. It is our sincere hope, however, that they do not give up the fight when the going gets tough.

Too often these young people have their hopes built up only to have them crushed by the realities of lost grant money or the waning interest of volunteers.

Left alone, they turn to a life of crime and a vicious circle that will not allow them to escape the poverty and lack of education that hold them captive.

The BRO program hopes to break that cycle and take first time offenders off the street and headed on the right path.

We hope that they can do that. The forward-thinking program can make all the difference in the world by providing role models, enthusiasm and direction to these young people.

We applaud the cooperation of all those who are working on this project together for the good of the young people of Sanford.

Getting tough with violent teens

I made a quick trip to Beantown last week, where I had a chance to check out the local news. The one story that leapt out at me concerned a 17-year-old high-school student who punched out a substitute teacher as his classmates cheered him on.

I was expecting that the substitute teacher was some big, bad bully, at least. But as it turns out, he was a kindly 78-year-old, all of 4 feet 6 inches tall. He even wore a hearing aid.

My heart went out to the grandfatherly substitute. Then it occurred to me—he really got off easy. If his teenage assailant had been packing a weapon—like one of every five public school students—grandpa probably wouldn't have lived to see his 79th birthday.

It will be interesting to see what punishment the violent young offender ultimately receives. He was arraigned in Boston District Court (rather than juvenile court) on charges of assault and battery on a public employee. The wagger here is that he gets off with little more than a suspended sentence.

It's because underage offenders are handled with kid gloves in most criminal cases that America is faced with an epidemic of juvenile crime. Indeed, the FBI reported last week that, even as the overall violent crime rate improved slightly in 1994, the number of teen-agers arrested for violent crimes jumped 7 percent.

This continues an ominous trend that began more than a decade ago. Between 1985 and 1994, the number of teens arrested for murder rose a shocking 158 percent, despite the fact that the teen-age population actually declined during this span.

What makes this trend all the more unsettling is that demographers expect the number of teenagers to grow by 20 percent over the next 10 years. So unless lawmakers figure a way to reverse the juvenile crime wave, we can expect to see an explosive increase in the number of kids committing rapes, robberies, assaults and murders.

In recent years, state legislatures throughout the country have started to crack down on the most violent teen-age offenders. In Massachusetts, for instance, a 2-year-old state law calls for the automatic expulsion of students who commit violent crimes, like the young punk who assaulted the substitute teacher.

In California, a new state law lowers the age at which teens may be tried as an adult in murder cases from 16 to 14 years old. And in Minnesota, a year-old law removes the cloak of anonymity from youths charged with violent felonies.

All these measures will help protect the public from hardened young offenders. But lawmakers ought to be thinking about implementing less draconian measures, as well, to deter the kids who commit minor crimes—like vandalism, shoplifting or car theft—from graduating to more serious violent crimes.

A number of cities around the country have come up with pretty good ideas. Here are a few of the more promising:

—New Haven, Conn., has put teenagers in charge of its truancy court, with the assistance of volunteer lawyers.

—Shelby, Miss., is the latest municipality in the country to enact a curfew for teen-agers. Kids must be off the streets by 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and by midnight on Fridays and Saturdays.

—Davenport is the site of Iowa's second boot camp for delinquent boys. The three-month SUMMIT program (Success Using Morale, Motivation, Intensity and Treatment) is meant to straighten out kids who've run afoul of the law before they succumb to a life of crime.

Wake up and smell the column

The Curmudgeon has been occupied lately with trying to figure out what his column ought to smell like.

Put down your pens, critics and philistines. I'm talking about food smells here—like the Magic Scents Crayola crayons that kids were eating because they had the odor of coconut, licorice and chocolate. I think it would be neat to write a column that smelled so delicious people would want to eat it. I have heard from a few readers who regularly chew it up and spit it out, but I don't think they do it for the nutritional value.

The Curmudgeon will ponder it. Meanwhile, your inquiries:

Dear Curmudgeon: What do you make of the latest Newt Gingrich flap? The House Speaker said he and Bob Dole closed down the government in part because Bill Clinton ignored them on an Air Force One flight to Israel. Is he also blaming this ruckus on the "socialists" in the newrooms?—William in Wichita

Dear WNW: He implied it was the media's fault by denying he said what he said, but it didn't wash because his comments were taped. Several of his political buddies tried to claim his words were "taken out of context." And Newt's spokesman said reporters ignored the real story, which was the GOP's admirable effort to balance the budget. Clearly, in the interests of truth and accuracy, the media should let pole edit their own remarks.

Dear Curmudgeon: Another Jesse Helms story for your file: Old cottonmouth is so fond of holding up ambassadorial nominations that he even held up the appointment of a former Senate colleague, James Sasser of Tennessee, to be the U.S. envoy to China. Jesse said Sasser was a "nice guy," but I'm not sure he knows a chopstick from a tuning fork.—Ralph in Raleigh

Dear RNR: This comes from a man, mind you, who once referred to North Korean dictator Kim Jong Il as "Kim Jong Two" and introduced Pakistani Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto as the "distinguished prime minister of India." Old Jes is a nice guy, but he probably thinks Panama was named after the hat.

Dear Curmudgeon: I heard that Jimmy Carter has a new book out with a weird title. What is it?—Dallas in Dallas

Dear Dallas: It's a children's book, written with his daughter Amy and based on stories he used to tell his children about a sea monster. It's called "The Little Baby Snoogle-Fleeger." I hear there have been numerous complaints from bookstore customers who thought they were buying his memoirs.

Dear Curmudgeon: Did you know that officials at a Miami courthouse have created a "Voodoo Squad" to clean up dead chickens and entrails after the trials of Cubans and Haitians who call on their gods for help? I think you need something like this up in Washington to clean up the blood after Newt and Bill and the rest have one of their fights.—Mimi in Miami

Dear MNM: We have something similar already. We call it the Doodoo Squad.

Dear Curmudgeon: I am deeply chagrined by the results of the recent Education Department survey which showed that 60 percent of American high school students lack even a basic knowledge of our own history.—Barbara in Boston

Dear BNB: As a college teacher myself, I am not surprised. I quizzed a class the other day about politics and found six students who think Newt is a salamander, four who think Bob Dole grows pineapples, three who think Richard Lugar is a pistol and one who thinks Phil Gramm is a metric measurement.

Going back to the beginning, I'm kind of leaning toward a beef jerky smell. You know—tough, chewy and full of protein.

Technologically over my head

BOSTON—Let me begin with a confession: I am living over my head.

This is not an economic tale of woe. There are no yachts on my credit card, no BMWs in my driveway, no bounced checks on my bank account.

I am not living over my head financially. I'm living over it technologically.

My house has gradually become home to equipment that is made to do all sorts of things that I am unable to make it do. If the building were a book it would be titled: Smart Appliances, Foolish Owner.

I have an oven that would start cooking while I'm at work if I could only tell it to. I have a telephone that is ready to store the numbers of my nearest and farthest if I will only do my share. I have a CD/radio/tape deck that puts 26 separate functions in the hands of one dysfunctional operator.

And I haven't even mentioned the computer. I am not sure how this happened. The most complicated appliance under my parents' roof was a toaster whose sole duty was to pop up bread from time to time. When I was a kid, we acquired a television set. While I never really knew how television worked, I knew how to make it work.

But now every time something breaks or is sacrificed to the consumer god of planned obsolescence—try finding an ordinary record player; check the value of last year's computer—it is replaced by something new and improved. Which, of course, offers new and improved features.

Now, the word "features" should send every techno-challenged, simplicity-longing consumer screaming into the midnight of the mall parking lot. A feature is something that you do not want, do not want to pay extra for, will never use, but cannot get the thing you do want without.

Consider the television which entered our bedroom after its 20-year-old predecessor rained technicolor snow down upon Fraser's Seattle and collapsed. The "feature" that we wanted was a set of cordless headphones—otherwise known as the Marriage Saving Component—to allow one of us to read or sleep while the other (who shall remain nameless) watched various large men pursuing various shaped balls across various shaped playing fields.

For reasons too arcane to mention, having to do with cable companies and astrological signs, the only television set that met this requirement came with the following features:

a picture within a picture, wraparound sound, a clock, a timer, an on-screen menu, a channel caption guide, a remote control that could run a 747 and a price tag roughly the equivalent of the one on my first car.

Six months later, I have yet to figure out how—let alone why—to watch two pictures at once. The television sits there in mutts (or wraparound stereo) disapproval. It's added to the queasy, guilty, utterly unknown to my grandparents, that I am not measuring up to my own possessions. And I haven't even mentioned the computer.

The proof that my era is higher-tech than I am is in the fact that every purchase now comes with a textbook known as an owner's manual, or worse, an operators manual. The plow did not come with an operating manual. Nor did the toaster.

Anything that comes with a manual has features. I have, by actual count, eight manuals, many of which were written by the same salary man who majored in Egyptian hieroglyphics and reads S-and-M comics on the way to work. One of these textbooks is 38 pages long and the only chapter I have mastered is called: "Watching the TV."

The way I figure it, a fully equipped American family can either learn what's in the manuals or what's in the national budget. In roughly the same amount of time, they can master their equipment—with its features—or the intricacies of chaos theory.

The end result is that for the first time, many of us are living in domestic partnership with machines whose primary feature is to make us feel dumb. Our haven from the heartless world is now a place where we can fail to live up to the potential of our VCRs and constantly be rebuked by our tape decks. So the problem for me isn't keeping up with the Joneses. It's keeping up with the Toshiba. When all is said and done, I'm delighted to have a roof over my head. But not so happy to have a TV that's over my head.

And, oh, did I mention the computer?

Thrust into the frigid Kazik winter, the Lyman group said they felt warm when welcomed by strangers who took them into their home and treated them "like royalty."
"Food. There was always food," Guilfoyle said. "Every place we went, they fed us."
Though they did dine at the world's largest McDonald's in Red Square, most of the delicacies they experienced were far less familiar to their palates.
"We ate horse and sheep and cow's tongue," Berry said.
Merrell, a horse lover, said she did not eat that particular treat and none of the girls, save Guilfoyle, tried the tongue.
Berry said the young women adapted well and had no trouble communicating their wants and needs to those who were more than willing to accommodate their every request.
Most of their travel within the cities of Kazakhstan was done through mass transit or by hitchhiking.
"It was so interesting to be able to hitchhike," Merrell said. "It's not like here where you don't do it because you don't know what could happen to you. There you just stick out your hand and someone stops to give you a ride. Everyone is really friendly and trusting."
The young women had to get used to a new system of manners when it came to the mass transit system.
"Everyone just piles on and keeps pushing in," Berry said. "We saw people get caught in the doors of the bus and just hang on."
Riding on a bus cost pennies and a cab ride across town cost no more than $2. Clothing was equally inexpensive and the young ladies eagerly added to their wardrobes while there.
China and unique figurines were also a popular memento-for the young women.
Berry said the group was fined about $300 for having overweight luggage as a result of the shopping.
The Lyman students did not attend many formal classes while in Kazakhstan, but they observed classes in schools ranging from a special facility for handicapped students to a school for gifted students in science and math.

A great emphasis is placed on science, especially physics, Berry said. The classrooms were well lit and filled with the latest computer equipment. Other classrooms are often lit only from the windows and contain only a chalkboard and desks.
"It was a real education," Merrell said.

One of the young women, Johnson, became an instant celebrity in Kazakhstan.

"In a country of 17 million people," Berry explained, "she was the only black person."

Johnson said it was a little uncomfortable to have her picture taken constantly. Despite some modeling experience, she was not sure how to react to the attention.

"They'd just grab me and take my picture constantly," she said. "I didn't mind too much, but after a while..."

All of the girls said they would like to return. Some are already planning another trip for the summer or for after graduation.

STROKE IS THE THIRD LEADING KILLER IN THE U.S.A. TODAY

BEHIND HEART DISEASE AND CANCER

STROKE IS THE # 1 CAUSE OF ADULT DISABILITY

STROKE IS THE # 1 CAUSE FOR SENIORS TO ENTER NURSING HOMES.

Members of Life Line Screening, Inc. will be performing a screening test with the use of state-of-the-art ultrasound Doppler equipment. With the visualization of the Carotid Arteries, excessive plaque (causing blood flow abnormalities) can be detected.

This screening test is painless and non-invasive. You will be asked to lie on a table, on your back. An acoustic gel will then be placed on your neck over the carotid artery. The ultrasound technologist will move an instrument called a transducer around your neck until she can visualize the inside of the carotid artery. Test results will be given at the time of the test. If a severe amount is found you will be given a print out and will be asked to see your own physician for complete evaluation. PLEASE HELP US TO HELP YOU!

Life Line will also be screening for peripheral Arterial Disease, technically called an Ankle Brachial Index Screening. This screening measures arterial disease in the lower extremities. Early this year, JAMA (Journal of American Medical Association) released an article that asymptomatic and asymptomatic patients with an abnormal ABI (Ankle Brachial Index Screening) not only have peripheral arterial disease but are also at three to five times higher risk for coronary artery disease.

To perform the exam, we use blood pressure cuffs and an ultrasound Doppler probe to obtain pressure in the arms and ankles. Formulating this, we then obtain a normal or abnormal index. The patients with abnormal results are then advised to see their physician who may decide to do a coronary evaluation, in addition to evaluation their lower extremities. A non-invasive technique using a hand held Doppler and Blood Pressure Cuff are placed on the patient's right/left arms and ankles. Results are given immediately.

Both Carotid Ultrasound and ABI are screenings for Arterial Disease. Other screening tests such as cholesterol, triglycerides and blood pressure are for measurement of risk factors associated with atherosclerotic disease. Note: At this time Medicare does not cover either screening. However, through volume screening this service is being provided for a minimal charge.

Arrow force flies

Seminole boys open with district win

By DEAN SMITH
Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — The fourth edition of Arrow Force got off to a good start Monday as Seminole never trailed in posting a 56-43 victory over Kissimmee-Gateway at Bill Fleming Memorial Gymnasium.

Making the victory even more sweet was the fact that it was also a Class 5A-District 66 contest.

"I thought we moved the ball," said Seminole head coach Bob Traina. "We had some bad turnovers and I was not pleased with our defense, but we've got a lot of young kids and we're just trying to get a little better each game. If the young players come through I think we'll be competitive."

The night turned out to be ultra-successful for Arrow Force IV as it swept the tripleheader from the visiting Panthers.

The freshman opened the evening's action with B.J. Pratt scoring 12 points in a 37-36 triumph and Terry Patrick scored 15 points to lead the junior varsity to a 51-37 victory.

Seminole (1-0) will now wait until Friday when it will host conference favorite Lake Mary in the opening Seminole Athletic Conference contest for both teams. The freshman game is set for a 4:30 p.m. start, with JV's taking the court at 6 p.m. The varsity will tipoff at 7:30 p.m.

Monday's game got off to a slow start with senior center Chuck Smith finally breaking the ice, converting a three-point play to put Arrow Force IV ahead 3-0 with 5:23 left in the first period.

Gateway's first score came on a free throw with 4:28 remaining in the opening frame, but Seminole led 14-11 after the first eight minutes.

Arrow Force IV controlled most of the second quarter with Mequal Bush scoring five points as the Tribe built a 10-point lead three times in the quarter, including 29:19 at intermission.

The Panthers came out hot in the third quarter, hitting five of six shots, including a three-pointer, to close to within 32-30 with 3:50 remaining.

But the Seminole defense held Gateway to only a pair of free throws the rest of the period and the home squad led 38-32 heading into the final eight minutes.

The Panthers kept things interesting, getting a close as four points, 41-37, with 5:30 left.

But Arrow Force IV would not be headed, hitting five of eight shots from the floor and seven of 10 from the free throw line in the period to build a lead as big as 14 points.

Derrick Jones (11 points, four assists, three steals) and Doug Hughes (10 points, three rebounds, three assists) led the way as eight of the nine players who dressed scored for Seminole.

5, Nieves 2-5 0-2 4, Dixon 1-3 0-2 2, Colon 5-7 0-0 10, Joseph 0-4 1-2 1, Rena 3-5 0-0 8.

Also playing well for Arrow Force IV were Smith (eight points, 12 rebounds, three steals, two assists), Bush (eight points, three rebounds, three assists) and Tommy Raines (seven points, eight rebounds).

Colon was the lone Panther in double figures with 10 points.

Volunteer of the Week

Boating buff looks out for others

By SUSAN WENNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Sandra Romanowski has turned her love of boating and helping others into a volunteer job that the whole family enjoys. A day excursion on the river has been fun and helped all those out in boats be assured someone is looking out for them.

Romanowski and her husband, Rulon, spent much of their spare time volunteering together for AWANA (approved workman are not ashamed) at church based program and the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary.

For the past four years she has assisted in the AWANA program at their church, Mt.land Grace Brethren Church where she has been a member for 16 years. "I help the children with scriptures and games," she said. "I work with the Sparks group."

Her volunteer efforts with the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary began about five years ago. "My husband and I got into boating," she said. "We took a safe boating course and they spoke about getting involved in the auxiliary."

The Romanowski family then attended classes to increase their knowledge of regulations and other information needed to obtain the position of U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary member and the rest is history.

The couple now finds time in their hectic schedule of raising three children, Lea, Paul and Keith, to teach safe boating classes or cruise the St. Johns River from Lake Monroe to Sandra Romanowski in Coast Guard Auxiliary uniform ready for action on Lake Monroe.

Hontoon Island in search of those in distress or needing answers to questions regarding boating.

"I was able to go to my daughter's class recently and teach the children about the importance of wearing life jackets and other safe boating tips," she said. "I really enjoy this work."

Romanowski and her husband also worked last weekend at the regatta, Sailfest '95, that took place downtown Sanford at Monroes Harbour. "Our main job is to keep the line of spectator boats back so they don't endanger others," she said. "There may be times that some may have boating questions."

The duo have also assisted on the coast during shuttle launches. June is an active month for the auxiliary. "June has a week that is safe boating week," said

Romanowski. "We try to educate as many people as we can during that time. That is a time when we offer free boat inspections. When we have checked out the boat and it's okay and to regulation we can put a decal on the boat letting others know it has passed inspection."

Romanowski is the treasurer of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 4-1.

A salute to black scientists

DEAR ABBY: The column you published with the article by the late Sam LeVoy about the contributions to medical science made by Jewish people let me to thinking. Perhaps it's time to remind your readers about the preeminence this world would be in without the contributions made by African-American scientists.

It is, indeed, a free world. You don't have to like black Americans, but if you don't, I suggest you boycott blood plasma because the ways of preserving it were discovered by Dr. Charles Drew. You should also boycott the portable X-ray machine, truck refrigerator systems and the self-starting gasoline motor, invented by Frederick Jones; the control unit used in the pacemaker, chemical air filters, and many electronic devices used in radios, TVs and other electronic equipment, invented by Otis Boykin; the electric incubator, the automatic air brake and the telephone receiver, invented by Granville T. Woods; linoleum, fuel briquettes, peanut butter, synthetic rubber and synthetic marble, to name only a few of the discoveries and inventions of George Washington Carver; and practical incandescent lightbulb filaments, invented by Lewis Latimer. These are only

ADVICE

DEAR ANNA: Thanks for a thoughtful-provoking letter. Many can learn from it. I did.

DEAR ABBY: I didn't know whether to scream or cry when I read the letter you received from "His Mother," the woman whose 38-year-old professional son led to his friends about her academic and professional achievements, and then had the nerve to ask her to back up his lies when she came to visit. My heart goes out to that lady.

My mother was widowed when my sister and I were very young, long before single motherhood was common (1975 to be exact). Mom had only a high school education, but she managed to raise us and inspire us to get a higher education. She taught us tenacity and the value of a good work ethic. She did go to college — when I was almost out of school myself. I couldn't be more proud of her accomplishments if she were a CEO.

Today, I am a 34-year-old professional, but I would never dream of presenting my mother as anything other than a woman who overcame great odds and put forth her best in raising two children in a society that was not always supportive.

The son who felt he had to pump up his mother's accomplishments should think about how different his life might have been if she had been the woman he told his friends she was. I have seen too many career people (men and women) neglect their families to climb one more rung on the corporate ladder.

Please use my name; Mom and I have nothing to hide.

D. CURTIS WILKINSON,
SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Santa Monica Reader," whose mind went blank when he was about to introduce an acquaintance (this has happened to all of us).

Here's a lighthearted trick my late husband, Gene, often used: Speaking directly to the person whose name he could not remember, with a straight face he'd say, "I remember your name, but can't think of your face" — at which time the forgotten one would blurt out his name, then laugh.

It worked every time, and no one felt insulted or embarrassed.

Enjoy finding the right tree

Finding the right Christmas tree for your house is something you can enjoy every year. There is nothing like the smell of a pine tree inside your house. Even if you have one of those artificial trees that you can use every year, there is no substitute for a living Christmas tree.

There are many types of trees that are available for your particular taste and budget. In general, the Christmas tree should be cone-shaped, have an attractive green color, and a dense growth, with little empty spaces. The most popular trees are the scotch and balsam fir, Douglas and balsam fir. Whatever you prefer, make sure that you buy a tree that is fresh, the more recent the tree has been cut, the better.

The longer they stay on display, the more likely the tree will not make it until Christmas. Florida's warm weather will dry up a pine tree very quickly and the needles will start dropping very soon after you buy the tree. It may be so severe that you may have to buy a second tree before Christmas.

In order to avoid that your Christmas tree dries up too soon, keep the tree in water. Buy a stand that holds water to keep your tree watered for a long time. But, then the most important thing that you need to do when you bring your tree home, is to cut the stem at least one half inch or more above the original cut, to expose the water-conducting tissues of the stem to enable the tree to take up water. If the tree runs out of water, a seal will form on the cut surface of the tree trunk and the tree will not be able to take up water anymore, even if you add water late on. It will be very difficult to make another cut to the trunk once it is decorated and in place. Remember, the trees can take up a lot of water per day, make sure there is ample supply of water in the stand's container.

A fun way to buy your Christmas tree is to go to a Christmas tree farm, where you can select and cut down your own tree. Most farms will provide you with saws for cutting down your tree, but make sure before you go. Be prepared to do some exercise, wear work clothes and you may need your old shoes to move around the place. There are two such farms in Seminole County, Biseen Christmas Tree Farm and J & L Christmas Tree Farm. You can find the address and phone numbers in The Phone Book or call us at our office, we can provide you with the information that you need to find them.

Here are some useful pointers

GARDENING

for choosing and caring of your Christmas tree:

Select a tree which keeps the needles longer, such as Douglas Fir or Scotch pine. Buy the freshest tree you can find. Avoid any trees with brown needles. Bounce the butt of the tree on the ground, if many needles fall, do not buy that tree. The bottom of the tree stump should have a moist and sticky sap, not hard or dry; Cut the bottom of the tree stump an inch or two diagonally, for better water uptake. Place the tree in water and keep the level by checking it every day; It may be useful to add a floral preservative to the water to keep the tree fresh longer. Make sure that all the wiring of your Christmas tree lights are in good working conditions. Do not overload lighting circuits. Never use open flames near the tree. There are flame retardant sprays for Christmas trees, you may want to use one this year. Never, but never, leave your home with the tree lights on.

What causes infections?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you please tell me what a vaginal yeast infection is? How and why would I get one and how can I treat it?

DEAR READER: The vagina contains both yeasts and bacteria, which exist in a delicate competition and usually cause no symptoms.

However, under certain circumstances, such as the use of antibiotics, the yeast/bacteria balance is upset: As the bacteria are killed, the yeasts are free to grow. An overabundance of these micro-organisms may cause a painful, irritating, thick, white discharge.

Such an infection is diagnosed by a smear of the vaginal secretions.

There are many products to treat yeast vaginitis. Several (such as Monistat) are available without a prescription and are heavily advertised on television. Resistant infections may require prescription compounds, such as Terazol.

Because vaginal yeast infections are more common in diabetics, blood sugar determinations should be performed on all patients who do not have an obvious reason, such as antibiotics, for the infection.

Also, I think that it's appropriate for women with the symptoms I mentioned to be examined by their gynecologists, because not all vaginal infections are caused by yeasts; some extremely uncomfortable inflammations are associated with bacterial infection.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Vaginal Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2817, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10158. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 78-year-old husband suffers from arthritis. Would it help to move to Arizona?

DEAR READER: For some patients, the persistent pain of arthritis is worsened by cold, damp weather. In the past, such patients often experienced relief by moving to warmer, drier climates.

Today, however, there are so many effective anti-arthritis drugs (both prescription and non-prescription) that a move to Arizona isn't necessary.

If you choose to relocate to such an area, do so because the land is beautiful and you are fed up scraping ice off your windshield in February. The arthritis issue can be better handled pharm. scologically, with the help of your primary-care physician.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband had a stroke and is in a nursing home. He still can't use his right arm or leg, nor can he talk. Is there medication to help his brain? I use a hand vibrator on his neck and arm, but I'd be very pleased if he could talk again.

DEAR READER: When a stroke occurs, part of the brain is deprived of oxygen and dies, causing symptoms that depend on the location of the damage.

Your husband has had a major stroke that affected his speech center, as well as one side of his body. This is, as I'm sure you've been told, extremely serious. It's unlikely that he will ever regain the functions that he has lost.

Nonetheless, the prognosis is not necessarily grim. By retraining other nerves and brain tissue to compensate for the affected portions, physical therapists and speech therapists may be able to treat your husband's weakness and speech difficulties. This is a long and arduous process, as you can imagine, and he may require extended institutionalization while he works hard to recover.

Here is the bottom line: Your husband's damage, although permanent, can be moderated by a lengthy process of rehabilitation.

Incidentally, the vibrator treatment you are giving him will not improve his condition, but it may feel good to him — and to you, because at least you are doing something. Your best hope is to rely on the expert care being rendered by the professional staff in the nursing home.

WIN AT BRIDGE

You rise, she falls

By Phillip Alder

During the trials to pick the women's teams to represent the United States in this year's world championship, Carol Simon, from Summit, New Jersey, was arguably the best player. In this deal from the final of the trials, she managed the cards best (ally, but one defender missed a very difficult chance to defeat the contract.

North's double showed values with length in the majors. Then North, Sue Picus of New York City, did well to prefer four hearts to three no-trump. West led the diamond six: queen, five, two. This was a good start to the defense. If West could gain the lead quickly, another diamond play would kill the contract.

At trick two, the heart queen was covered by the king and ace. A heart to the 10, a spade to the queen and the heart jack uncovered the 4-3 trump split.

Simon continued with a low club to dummy's eight and East's 10. Back came a spade, but declarer won with the ace, played a club to dummy's queen, cashed the club ace, on which South discarded her spade loser, and continued with the club nine, on which a diamond went away. West ruffed, but the defense could take only three tricks: one heart, one diamond and one club.

That was very nicely done, but did you spot the defensive chance? On the first club lead toward the dummy, West must play the jack (or king!). If declarer ducks the trick, a diamond through is immediately fatal. But if declarer wins the trick, she cannot establish the club suit and return to the dummy.

Phillip Alder's book, "Get Smarter at Bridge," is available, autographed upon request, for $14.95 from P.O. Box 169, Roslyn Hts., NY 11577-0169.

Your character has undergone some constructive transitions this past year, and you'll be more self-reliant and better able to fend for yourself. You will like these changes.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) The freedom to make your own choices could be of the utmost importance to you today, but you might try to deny this same privilege to your companion or mate. Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead make wonderful Christmas stocking stuffers for all signs of the zodiac! Mail $2 for each and $35 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10118. Make sure to state desired zodiac signs.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may have some extra responsibilities to contend with today. If your attitude is negative, you could make even more work for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may have to work closely today with someone who has an abrasive, forceful personality. You will gain nothing by challenging his or her views.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Authority figures who throw their weight around will be very distasteful to you today. Make sure not to inflict the same offensive behavior on your subordinates.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not use anger to cover up a weak position. A facade will not be necessary if you keep your ego out of the debate.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, you may feel like you're the giver and someone else is the taker. The accused may hold a similar view. You both may be right.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Problems may develop today if you are contentious instead of cooperative. Do not be unreasonable or insist on always getting your way.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might back yourself into a corner today and then angrily look for a scapegoat. You should examine yourself first before blaming someone else.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In competitive, social sports today, don't let the activity become more important than the friendship. Conceding points to your pal will be better than arguing.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive for achievement today, but use only tactics you can take pride in. Your reputation will take a hit if your methods are tainted.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Do not behave like a know-it-all today because you might run into someone who truly deserves the accolades. This experience could be humbling.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) If your extravagance gets out of hand at this time, you might be encouraged to spend funds earmarked for the future. Do not trip over your credit card.
