Woman killed in car accident

SANFORD — An elderly woman, in a car driven by her husband, was killed in a collision with another car.

John Alexander Mowry, 83, and Emma Mowry, also 83, of Sanford were on their way to the Seminole Towne Center on Tuesday when their 1989 Oldsmobile collided with a 1984 Volvo driven by Monte S. Olinger of Lake Mary.

According to Sanford Police Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire, Olinger was headed east on Rinehart Road and the Mowrys were headed west on that same road. Both cars attempted a turn onto Towne Center Boulevard at the same time.

The Volvo struck the right side of the Oldsmobile, crushing the passenger's door and severely injuring Emma Mowry.

Whitmire said Olinger told them he did not realize he was heading into the same lane as the other vehicle.

Emma Mowry was airlifted to Orlando Regional Medical Center where she died late Tuesday afternoon. Her husband and Olinger received minor injuries.

No charges have been filed, though they are currently pending. Whitmire said Olinger will probably be charged with failure to yield the right of way.

Because of the death, blood was taken from both drivers to be tested at the crime lab for the presence of alcohol and drugs.

Judges gather

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — This Thursday afternoon, during the Annual Education Meeting of the Conference of County Judges, the county judges of Seminole County will take center stage and present a special educational session with the assistance of Tim Fautsko of the National Center for State Courts.

The presentation will highlight the successful reengineering of the Seminole County courts, which has saved money and improved case management.

The presentation, entitled Case Management and the Seminole County Experience will also address how the lessons learned in Seminole County could be applied to other courts in Florida.

The annual Education Meeting of the Conference of County Judges is continuing all this week at the Altamonte Springs Hilton, and has brought together over 200 judges from 67 Florida counties.

Seminole County judges participating in the conference include Marlene M. Alva, Ralph E. Eriksson, Fredric M. Hitt, Donald L. Marblestone, and John R. Sloop.

Waterfront meeting

SANFORD — Meeting number 33 of the Waterfront Master Plan Steering Committee is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, Jan. 24, in the city manager's conference room of city hall.

Items on the agenda include a report on the city/county partnership effort, the chairman's role on the community redevelopment agency and Waterfront Steering Committee, and a preliminary discussion of Fort Mellon Park facilities planning.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. tomorrow at Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Deer poachers beware

The newest addition to crime fighting was introduced Tuesday by Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger. A fully-mounted white tail deer was presented to the sheriff by the Shikar-Safari Club International, a worldwide sportsman's association. The deer can be electronically controlled to move its head and wag its tail. The antlers can be removed to change the appearance from a buck to a doe. It will be used at various locations to help apprehend deer poachers who often operate at roadsides and pose a hazard to citizens. Shown at the presentation, left to right, Deputy Dave O'Connor, Sheriff Eslinger, and Deputy Mark Fore.

Spaziano new trial order to be appealed

By BILL BERGSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Prosecutors will have trouble convicting Joseph "Crazy Joe" Spaziano again of a 1973 stabbing death if the state fails to overturn a new-trial order. Attorney General Bob Butterworth predicts.

After two decades on death row, Spaziano won a ruling by a judge in Sanford that he should be retried because a key witness in his 1976 trial recanted.

"Before a retrial, we are going to appeal the judge's decision first, and just see where it goes from there," Butterworth said Tuesday. "I was convinced 20 years ago he was guilty and I am convinced today."

But because of problems such as rounding up witnesses, he said, "It's very difficult to win a conviction 20 years later."

"It's got to be tougher," Gov. Lawton Chiles, who signed the last of Spaziano's five death warrants, said prior to Tuesday's Cabinet meeting.

Despite the new trial order, Chiles said he didn't have second thoughts about signing the warrant.

"I'm comfortable with what I did," he said. "With what I reviewed, what I saw, I was comfortable with what I did."

Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton Jr. on Monday ordered that Spaziano be retried in March. Eaton said key witness Anthony DiLisio lied when he told the jury Spaziano showed him two bodies and bragged about killing women.

Historic lakefront building to be demolished

Deteriorated log cabin is too dangerous to save

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A prominent building with a 72-year history will soon be but a memory. The log cabin at 300 Seminole Boulevard, recent home of the VFW, will be demolished.

Approval was given to City Manager Bill Simmons this week to begin demolition proceedings.

The building, headquarters for the Sanford Veterans of Foreign Wars since 1973, has been determined to be in such a deteriorated condition, that repairs or rebuilding would not be practical.

Simmons said he and building Inspector Gary Winn had inspected the building recently and found the floor was in bad condition, as were the palm log walls. "We would say that this building should not be used for any purpose now," Simmons said.

The log cabin was originally the home of the Campbell Lossing Post of the American Legion. Construction was finished, and the city turned the building over to the American Legion during Armistice Day celebrations on Nov. 11, 1924.

The property on which the building is located belongs to the city. But the actual facility was officially turned over to the American Legion by then-Sanford Mayor Forrest Lake, who dedicated the building to "future generations who would be better off because of the work of the American Legion."

The building was constructed through private donations from local citizens and business organizations. Some businesses, such as Hill Lumber Company, donated as much as $235. While some residents donated up to $50, a few gave $1. Mayor Lake donated $10 to the construction fund.

While there was no immediate word on when the log cabin demolition would begin, Commissioner Lon Howell asked Simmons if he could walk through the structure before it was torn down.

Simmons is arranging Howell's tour of the building.

Amtrak passenger with TB passed through Sanford

From Staff and Wire Reports

SANFORD — Persons who may have disembarked in Sanford from the southbound Silver Star Amtrak train Sunday, may be contacted by health officials within the next few days. Officials are telling hundreds of Amtrak passengers to get tested for tuberculosis and are scrubbing train cars because of a tuberculosis-infected traveler who was coughing up blood and mucus.

Amtrak officials in Chicago could not immediately determine how many persons got off the Silver Star in Sanford, but as soon as a list is compiled, health officials will be given names and telephone numbers. The calls would go out to not only passengers, but any crew members who may have been on board the two trains involved.

It was reported that at least four passengers got off the train in DeLand.

The unidentified passenger was on two Amtrak trains between Chicago and Miami. He was taken off the train in the northern Florida town of Starke, and was being treated Tuesday at University Medical Center in Jacksonville. The 22-year-old man was in fair condition, said hospital spokeswoman Carol Chaffin.

The risk of infection to other passengers is slight, but they will be advised to get tested just in case, said Dr. Landis Crockett of the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

"This is not a public health emergency," he said. "Keep a level head about the whole thing.

The risk of exposure is small and the disease is treatable."

Nevertheless, Amtrak is giving the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention the names of hundreds of passengers and crew who may have been exposed and left the train before health officials could talk to them, said Amtrak spokesman Marc Magliari.

"We want to err on the side of safety," he said. About 300 people got on board in Washington and several hundred more traveled between Chicago and the nation's capital, said Amtrak spokeswoman Debbie Hare.

Because of flooding in the Northeast, five stations between Pittsburgh and Washington were closed and passengers were taken to the nation's

Freon smuggler pleads guilty

MIAMI — A man accused in a scheme to smuggle over 288 tons of an ozone-depleting refrigerant gas commonly known as Freon entered a guilty plea in federal court.

Casey Raja, 47, of Hialeah Gardens, admitted Tuesday to conspiring with his codefendant, Bruce R. Burrell, formerly of Miami, to smuggle more than 19,000 30-pound cylinders of CFC-12 into the United States. CFC-12 is subject to strict regulation by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Raja appeared before U.S. District Judge Wilkie D. Ferguson Jr. to enter a guilty plea to conspiracy and violation of the federal Clean Air Act prohibition against importing CFC-12 without consumption allowances issued by the EPA.

Sentencing is set for April 8. Raja faces a maximum penalty of up to 10 years in prison and fines in excess of $3.8 million. Additionally, the court may order restitution of $1.9 million in excise taxes lost as a result of the scheme.

Burrell, 57, is currently in custody in Costa Rica, awaiting extradition to the United States.

Drivers die in accident

ZEPHYRHILLS — A van carrying teen-agers collided with a pickup truck, killing two people and injuring at least five others.

The van was carrying four teens, believed to be students from Zephyrhills High School. The truck, with Michigan license plates, had three people aboard and was headed north Tuesday.

"It was quite a scene. It was terrible," said Matthew Grothe, a paramedic who happened by and stopped to help the crash victims on Highway 98 in Polk County, south of the Pasco County line. The area is about 25-30 miles northeast of Tampa.

The Florida Highway Patrol said the drivers of both vehicles died.

No injuries as planes collide

MIAMI — An airplane arriving from Brazil and a departing airplane collided on the ground at Miami International Airport, an airport spokesman said. No injuries were reported.

The planes were on the south end of the airport Tuesday when the collision occurred at an intersection of taxiways at 6:09 p.m. EST, said MIA spokesman Hernando Vergera.

The incoming plane, Vasp Flight 844 from Sao Paulo, Brazil, was carrying 199 people, Vergera said. The Alitalia plane, Flight 631 bound for Rome, carried more than 240 people, he said.

Alitalia's Boeing 747-200 received damage at the nose tip and left wingtip, and Vasp's MD11 left wingtip was damaged, he said.

Cops find missing woman's car

DAYTONA BEACH — A police officer found the rental car belonging to a missing Massachusetts woman in a beachside parking lot one day after her ex-boyfriend surrendered to authorities.

A Daytona Beach patrolman found the 1995 Geo Prism with New Hampshire license plates around 8:40 p.m. Tuesday.

Massachusetts State Police Sgt. Dennis Marks confirmed car had been rented by Hope Feinberg, 20, of Andover, Mass., who has been missing since Jan. 13. She was last seen leaving work at a Haverhill, Mass., nursing home in the Geo Prism.

Police want to question her former boyfriend, Russ M. Dagenals, 20, of Lynn, Mass., about her disappearance. He surrendered Monday to authorities and was being held in the Volusia County jail on two unrelated fugitive warrants.

The car was towed away from the parking lot and was to be examined by forensic experts with the Florida Department of Law Enforcement.

Earlier Tuesday, a judge ruled out bail for Dagenals, who walked into the Daytona Beach police department told local police he was wanted for questioning in Miss Feinberg's disappearance.

Anti-Castro men questioned, released

MIAMI — Five anti-Castro activists were questioned and released Tuesday just hours after they were intercepted off the Florida Keys on a 26-foot boat that contained weapons and explosives.

The five Cuban-Americans, identified by agents as foes of Castro, were taken to the Coast Guard station for questioning early Tuesday, but were released by early afternoon with no charges filed. They were affiliated with the Miami-based anti-Castro group United Commandos for Liberation. Customs agents said.

"The matter is under investigation and all men have been released for the time being," said Wilfredo Fernandez, a spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office in Miami.

Early Tuesday, the fishing boat was spotted in the Keys by a U.S. Customs vessel on a routine anti-drug patrol about a mile south of Marathon, 120 miles across the Florida Straits from Cuba.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Fla. tops 1 million new voters with motor voter

By ADAM YEMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida is the first state to sign up more than 1 million new voters under the federal "motor voter" law, elections officials said.

The National Voter Registration Act boosted the number of voters in Florida to 7.3 million by the end of December. An average of 85,000 residents a month joined the rolls since the act took effect Jan. 1, 1995.

"It definitely has increased visibility to the whole election process," Secretary of State Sandra Morham, the state's elections chief, said Tuesday. "Now the big question is, 'how many will go to the polls?'"

The law required states to increase the locations where people could register to vote, including drivers license and public assistance offices. Voters also can request applications by telephone or mail and provides a special form for registering by mail.

Florida was at 990,000 new registrants at the end of December and probably reached its 1 millionth new voter during the first week of January, said David Rancourt, director of the state Division of Elections.

After subtracting voters removed from rolls last year, the net gain in voters was about 800,000 in 1995. That compares with about 28,000 new voters added between October 1992 and October 1994, Rancourt said.

"Florida's implementation is probably as drastic as anywhere in the country," he said. "Consequently, our numbers have been astronomical."

Rancourt said the state plans to conduct a promotional blitz to explain the electoral process and urge people to vote.

"Our message to the people of Florida is 'You've taken the step to be able to vote. Go ahead and vote,'" he said. "This is all fruitless if people don't show up to vote."

The dramatic increase doesn't appear to have particularly hurt other states.

"They appear to have done a wonderful job in training employees to express the importance of this new law and how to do it," Plotkin said.

The law survived a U.S. Supreme Court challenge Monday when the justices rejected California Gov. Pete Wilson's assertion the law infringed on state sovereignty by requiring states to pick up most of the costs.

Northam has praised the motor voter law but wants the Legislature to impose tougher requirements for registration to reduce the potential for fraud. To register, a person must only provide a name, address, date of birth and signature.

Northam said the federal government should require applicants to provide Social Security numbers and have witnesses when they register. She also wants applicants to divulge whether they've been convicted of a felony and are U.S. citizens.

Walking for the health of it

A large group of health-conscious Sanford area residents took advantage of the inaugural Senior Friends Stroll at the Seminole Towne Center yesterday. The group will meet each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at the mall's food court and walk through the facility rain or shine. Leading the first walkers through the course were Ellen Rollins, director of Senior Friends at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford; Mayor Bettye Smith and Roni Mott with Senior Friends.

Cabinet deadlocks on standard for teachers on the CLAST test

By BILL BERSTROM
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Lawton Chiles and the Cabinet decided they need more time to study how tough to be on teachers who can't pass basic math tests.

The group voted Tuesday to delay until Feb. 13 a decision on possible alternatives for teachers who can't pass a portion of the College Level Academic Skills Test after more than four tries.

Many of those affected are teachers of foreign-language-speaking children in South Florida who have trouble with the math section, said teachers' union spokeswoman Melinda Piller-Swofford.

Several Dade County teachers will lose their jobs if the requirement isn't changed, said Piller-Swofford, of Florida Education Association-United.

But Education Commissioner Frank Brogan, who favors requiring the test even for high school graduation, opposed easier alternatives. He said the CLAST requires 10th-grade math ability with a smattering of algebra.

"We think it is appropriate that they demonstrate the same level of proficiency in reading, writing and mathematics that this state is soon going to propose that all students should have," said Brogan.

Florida college students must pass the CLAST, which measures basic reading, writing and mathematical skills, to earn four-year baccalaureate degrees or two-year associate degrees, he said.

The Florida Education Standards Commission recommends letting teachers who fail parts of the CLAST be certified if they take six credit hours of college courses in the same area and get at least a C.

Gas prices push higher

HEATHROW — Following a steady drop in gasoline prices from July to December 1995, Floridians are seeing an increase in prices at the gas pump this month, the AAA Club of Florida reported Tuesday.

The average price for self-serve regular unleaded gas is up 3.2 cents to $1.13 per gallon from $1.081 in December. That's the highest average price for gasoline since October when it was $1.16 per gallon.

An exhibit to die for at museum

By LARRY BUSHMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — This is one killer of a museum show.

There's the bright yellow crime scene tape, separating it from a neighboring exhibit. There's the gun barrel pointing the way to its entrance. And there's the disclaimer: Some of the contents of "In Cold Blood: Five Murders that Shocked New York" might make the average museum guest queasy.

"I love murder mysteries."

said a smiling Mary Beth Betts, curator of the new show at the New-York Historical Society. "And what's intriguing about these is they offer a glimpse into a certain time in New York."

That certain time covers 1836 through 1964, and selects five of the city's most infamous killings — a tough task in a city where five murders a day was the recent average. In chronological order, the chosen five:

— April 10, 1836. Tabloid heaven: Attractive prostitute Rowina Townsend is hacked and set afire, allegedly by wealthy, promiscuous young businessman Richard Robinson. Robinson, whose reputed motive was keeping the young hooker from revealing their relationship to his fiancée, was acquitted after a trial that drew national attention.

— July 25, 1906. A tawdry tale of sex, high society, insanity and jealousy. Architect Stanford White was killed atop one of his greatest creations, the old Madison Square Garden, by an old flame's husband, Harry K. Thaw. Thaw's wife, showgirl Evelyn Nesbit, stoked Thaw's rage with a tale of boozey sex — and a naked ride on a red velvet swing hung alongside White's bed. Thaw was acquitted by reason of insanity.

— July 15, 1912. Gambler Herman Rosenthal was gunned down outside a Manhattan cafe, shortly after complaining that police were ignoring his bribes and closing his gambling operation. A corrupt police captain, Charles Becker, was convicted and executed in 1915 — although a subsequent investigation raised questions about his guilt.

— March 20, 1927. "The Dumbbell Murder" was the inspiration for James M. Cain's novel "Double Indemnity." Hard-boiled Queens housewife Ruth Snyder and her lover did in her husband to collect $98,000 in insurance. The "Dumbbell" was not a reference to the murder weapon: It paid homage to the stupidity of the killers. Both died in the electric chair. — March 13, 1964. The slaying of Kitty Genovese outside her apartment was just another city homicide — until it was discovered that dozens of neighbors had ignored her screams for help, allowing the killer to attack her three times. The slaying became a symbol of urban apathy and alienation.

The exhibits include vintage newspaper clips, photographs, books and drawings. The White exhibit includes a red velvet swing.

"All of these cases share parallels with contemporary events — although I wouldn't want to draw them myself," Betts said.

Visitors can draw their own. The exhibit opens today and runs through April 7.

Some of the city's more infamous killings were not included. The Genovese case was arbitrarily selected as the cutoff, eliminating more recent major cases like the 1966 "Preppie Murder" of Jennifer Levin or the 1980 "Murder at the Met" of violinist Heleen Hagnes Mintiku.

Major mob hits like the 1931 murder of "Boss of Bosses" Salvatore Maranzano or the 1957 slaying of Albert Anastasia in a barber shop were not considered — although they may pop up later.

"We tried to keep away from the mob stuff," Betts said. "That's a whole other genre, and maybe a show of its own."

Mother delays cancer treatment while pregnant

By MARYANN BROWSA
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — For Margie Janovich, it was an easy decision. She put her baby first.

Instead of going ahead with radiation to fight the cancer spreading through her body, she put it off during pregnancy to make sure her daughter was born healthy.

Now, the 43-year-old mother of nine must wait to find out whether that decision proves to be the ultimate sacrifice.

"I would much rather give up my life for my baby," she said as she fed her newborn, Mary Elizabeth. "Any good mother would do the same. I know there's a lot of them out there."

In fact, Mrs. Janovich's own mother-in-law made a similar decision 45 years ago while carrying her future husband. The woman had a double mastectomy after giving birth, survived the breast cancer but died years later of lung cancer.

"That was the same type of situation. It was selfless sacrifice from my mother," said Ron Janovich, who runs an automotive repair shop.

Margie Janovich was about five months pregnant when she learned she had thyroid cancer. Although she had surgery to remove most of her thyroid while pregnant, she delayed iodine radiation treatment because it could have harmed her fetus.

She began chemotherapy treatment a few weeks ago after her daughter was born healthy, but doctors say her unusually aggressive cancer has already spread to her breasts and the lining of her lungs.

It may be months before she knows if the drugs will work to stop it.

"I didn't want to harm the baby in any way," she said. "There wasn't much discussion."

Rep. Jon Christensen of Nebraska told Mrs. Janovich's story when he spoke Sunday at an anti-abortion rally in Omaha. The Republican urged the crowd to help the Janovich family with food and prayers. He sent the family pizza.

Mrs. Janovich says she is too busy with her children — ages 7 weeks to 19 years — to be active in the abortion issue.

And while the couple says they appreciate the offers, they are receiving enough food and help from neighbors, family and friends.

Mrs. Janovich said she tolerated her first chemotherapy treatment well and regained her appetite after three days. She expects to receive chemotherapy for six months.

"I feel real optimistic... things are going to work out fine," she said. "I've got too much work here on Earth."

Expand pageant

The Miss Sanford Pageant is over. Amber Michelle Riddell of Orlando took top honors and received a $650 scholarship in addition to the title. She is also eligible now to enter the Miss Florida Pageant in June.

It should be noted that none of the eight contestants were Sanford residents.

Rod Layer, executive director of the Miss Sanford Pageant is proud of Amber, but admits he is disappointed that there were no local entrants. He also says he is discouraged by the lack of support for the program on behalf of local merchants. Only a few helped through making donations of time and/or services.

Now, Amber Michelle Riddell is to represent Sanford at various functions. While she is certainly not appointed by any government body, she is nonetheless a representative of the community and as such, is expected to expound the benefits of "The Friendly City."

Layer said he was also disappointed that the only member of the Sanford City Commission on hand during Saturday's pageant was Commissioner Kerry Lyons. Layer said he expected at least some of the others to attend.

What does he plan for the future? He said he is considering having next year's competition as the "Miss Seminole County" pageant. He said in that way, he may be able to obtain a wider range of support from the communities, and hopefully more in-county contestants.

Of the entries this year, one young lady was from Casselberry. The others were from Orlando, Ocala and Apopka.

We can see the advantages of having this pageant expanded to the entire county. There would certainly be more supporters cheering our local contestant on in the Miss Florida competition in which the winner would be entered.

As a result, we believe there may be more financial support.

Billed as a scholarship pageant, the winner received $650. Layer said he wished the amount would be much higher, but with the relatively low financial support, this was the maximum he could grant, with lesser scholarship amounts going to the first and second runner-up.

As for now, this year's pageant is history. It was held Saturday at the Civic Center, and was relatively well attended.

We wish Amber Michelle Riddell the best at the various functions she will be attending. We hope she will bring prominence to the City of Sanford and its people.

Congratulations Amber. You were a winner, and we look forward to giving you our support in the June competition.

As for next year, it's time to start thinking about it. Let's have an even bigger event with better scholarships and greater Seminole County participation.

On Ben Franklin

Jan. 17 is the birthdate of a man who helped improve all our lives.

After a span of three days, considered an average time of travel from New York to Philadelphia in the year 1724, Benjamin Franklin arrived with a dollar in his pocket. It was the start of a great journey that would change the world for the benefit of all mankind.

He discovered how to be "healthy, wealthy and wise," and became one of the most influential statesmen of our American Revolution. A revolution and philosophy that crushed the bonds of servitude to an evil oligarchy, and made people free and equal. He achieved world fame as a scientist, ambassador, writer, inventor (bifocals, wood stove, electricity research) and a founder of the United States, and for a brief time before he declined, America's first president, elected by acclamation.

Sharing a trait among intelligent people, he was a temperate man. As an apprentice printer he was known as the "Water American" for his superior strength and intelligence over his beer-drinking counterparts.

Learn to create within yourself: honor, knowledge, wealth, virtue, industriousness, to be self educated and increase your intelligence is in his autobiography which can be ordered at any bookstore. Or a library: a book borrowing system that was first initiated in America by Benjamin Franklin, to provide a wealth of knowledge for the people.

By constantly accumulating knowledge he became a great intellect, and helped start the American Revolution, and his advice and knowledge in our minds can make us and America great.

Readers select year's biggest ASP

Welcome to the seventh annual Outrageous Personages of the Year awards. It was a banner year for OPs, so sit back and enjoy.

You nominated the usual rascals and rogues -- Louis Farrakhan, Pat Robertson, Jerry Falwell, Jesse Jackson, Rush Limbaugh, Bill and Hillary Clinton, Phil Gramm, Dick Army, David Bonior, Bob Dole, Pete

Wilson. And, of course, there were the few of you who persist in that tiresome effort to get me named as the winner of my own contest (sorry, the rules won't permit it).

You also nominated these winners:

Tied for fifth place, and winners of the Brass ASP, are two legislators, Rep. Enid Waldholtz, R-Utah, was accused of campaign and personal financial shenanigans and held a teary, five-hour news conference during which she blamed it all on her husband. The second, Rep. Fred Heineman, R-N.C., is a retired New York cop and Raleigh police chief with an annual pension of $183,500. He told the Raleigh News and Observer that he is not a member of the middle class, however. "When I see someone who is making anywhere from $300,000 to $750,000 a year, that's middle class," he said.

In fourth place and winner of the Bronze ASP is Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, who visited distant corners of the planet at taxpayers' expense and hired a consulting firm to find out which reporters were saying nasty things about her.

In third place and winner of the Silver ASP is Newt Gingrich. He was qualified for half a dozen reasons over the past year but won the prize for shutting down the government in a snit when he was relegated to the rear of Air Force One.

In second place and winner of the Gold ASP is O.J. Simpson's attorney Johnnie Cochran. He played the race card to prevail in the murder case, then signed a big book deal to write about it. Fred Goldman, father of Ron Goldman, the man whose throat was slit along with Nicole Simpson's, described Cochran as "someone who shoves racism in front of everything," a "sick man" who "ought to be put away." The SF cannot bring itself to disagree.

In first place and winner of the Platinum ASP -- who else could it be? -- is O.J. himself. At best, he is a brutal batterer of women. Freed by a dubious not-guilty verdict, he refused to face the press, choosing instead to produce his own videotaped "infomercial," available to the public for a mere $29.95. God may forgive this man. The SF will not.

The Association of Sagacious Pundits also wishes to announce these special awards:

- The Posturing ASP goes to Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., the ethically challenged chairman of the Whitewater Committee, for having the chutzpah to question anyone else's ethics.

- The Horse's ASP goes to Los Angeles police detective Mark Fuhrman, who lost the prosecution's case against O.J. with his racist fulminations.

- The Dumb ASP goes to Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., who celebrated the Republican takeover of Congress by investigating the postage expenses of Socks, the First Cat.
See you next year.

Save the house, fix the plumbing

WASHINGTON--The faucet is broken, the drainpipe clogged, and the overflow from the bathtub is coming through your living room ceiling, threatening to ruin the furniture. So what should a rational homeowner do?

That, I think, is a fair analogy of the debate John J. DiIulio Jr. touched off last week with his New York Times oped piece extolling the value of prisons.

The Princeton professor of politics and public affairs made this interesting point: "It costs society at least twice as much to let a prisoner loose than to lock him up. Compared with the human and financial toll of revolving-door justice, prisons are a real bargain."

DiIulio, in my awkward analogy, would put pots and pans under the leaks.

His critics lost no time in pointing out where DiIulio had gone wrong. Robert Gangl, head of the Correctional Association of New York, said in one letter to the editor that prison building "skews government priorities." He may have had in mind the experience in California where investments in prison-building have drained away resources for family support, job training and even such basics as public education--all thought to be helpful in reducing crime. Gangl thought alternative punishments and drug treatment (he actually wrote "alternative punishments including drug treatment," but let that pass) would be a more effective response than incarceration, at least for less-serious offenders.

Gangl, in the analogy, would try to divert some of the water from the overflowing tub into the basin--or out the window.

Other letter writers thought imprisonment dehumanizing--that it implies that certain human beings are beyond redemption. They called for more humane treatment of inmates and stronger attempts at rehabilitating them.

They would try to purify and recycle the dirty water in the pots and pans.

The point of the analogy is not to make any participant in this deadly serious debate look bad. The point is: They're all right.

Incarceration (the pots and pans under the leaks) limits the damage done by the already violent sociopaths. Alternative punishment relieves some of the pressure on the ceiling and keeps the living room (society) a little safer a little longer.

Rehabilitation seeks to make the best of a bad situation: as long as we're capturing all this water, let's try to turn it into something useful.

Still I wish someone in the debate would pay a little more attention to fixing the plumbing.

DiIulio recognized that aspect of the dilemma with his challenge to those (liberals and progressives?) who argue that incarceration is not the answer. Said the professor:

"If incarceration is not the answer, what, precisely, is the question? If the question is how to prevent at-risk youths from becoming stone-cold predators in the first place, then, of course, incarceration is no solution. But if the question is how to restrain known convicted criminals from murdering, raping, robbing, assaulting and stealing, then incarceration is a solution, and a highly effective one."

Well, maybe. The problem is that you cannot take DiIulio's questions separately. Pots and pans can protect the furniture and living room carpeting--at least for a while. But unless you do something about the source of the water, the pots and pans eventually fill up and either have to be emptied or replaced with ever-bigger ones: parole or prison building.

But even following DiIulio's calculus, prison building won't prevent the damage done by the new criminals we keep turning out. And I, for one, am not hopeful that incarcerating the already dangerous will have much of a deterrent effect on the not-yet dangerous.

The professor is right, and so are his critics. We have to lock up the dangerous ones. And we've got to try to make them less dangerous. But eventually it must occur to us that the pots and pans of incarceration address only the symptoms. The real challenge is how to keep the children now being born from growing up into dangerous adolescents and adults.

If we're going to save the house, we've got to fix the plumbing.

DiIulio, in my awkward analogy, would put pots and pans under the leaks.

Head of Russian intelligence has KGB past

WASHINGTON -- With good reason, the selection of veteran spy chief Yevgeny Primakov as the new Russian foreign minister has caused great concern at the State Department and in U.S. intelligence circles.

Primakov is best known for trying to oust his predecessor, Andrei Kosyrev, for the last five years because he thought Kosyrev was too pro-Western. American observers were nonetheless surprised when he finally succeeded.

"It came as something of a shock to us," one veteran Russia analyst at the Central Intelligence Agency told us. However, he added, "there were several CIA reports that predicted Primakov would be the successor -- and expressing less alarm than some of us feel."

Over the last few years, our associate Dale Van Atta has spoken to more than a dozen Russian sources -- including several former KGB officials -- about Primakov's checked past. Not the least of his blemishes is having been an agent for the old KGB. He's also proud of a close friendship with Iraqi despot Saddam Hussein, and of being the only former Gorbachev crony in the Yeltsin government.

Nonetheless, Primakov has carefully cultivated the image of a reformer in Boris Yeltsin's cabinet. As his latest promotion attests, he's been quite successful.

To keep his job as head of the new intelligence service, the SVR, Primakov has deliberately suppressed personal information that might be seen as damaging. He doesn't talk publicly about his KGB career, and has publicly denied it in several Russian press reports. Yet all the evidence we've found suggests the new Russian foreign minister has a lot to explain about his ties to the old, discredited Soviet power structure.

Born in Kiev, Ukraine, and reared in Tbilisi, Georgia, Primakov graduated from the Moscow Institute of Oriental Studies in 1953 and did post-graduate work until 1958. He then became a journalist, first as an editor for the Moscow Committee on Television and Radio, then as the deputy editor of Pravda, a Communist mouthpiece.

Several sources say that it was during the Pravda period that Primakov was recruited by the KGB. But they disagree about whether he was a part-time contact, or a full-time career officer for the intelligence agency.

Primakov told one confidant that he was never on the staff of the KGB, and didn't have any military rank. "They suggested they would give me one," he said, "but I refused." To another source he revealed he had worked for the KGB since 1959 and was known by the code name "Maxim," the short form of his middle name.

After his Pravda stint, Primakov entered academia as the director of the Institute of Oriental Studies and later became the head of the Institute of World Economy and International Relations. It was a job that required lots of travel, especially to the Middle East, which was his specialty. One source told us his first stop on each trip was a visit with the local KGB contact.

"They would receive a cable in advance, and were told they were responsible for his security in these countries, and to keep him happy," the source said. "When he was there, he always asked the KGB personnel to buy him very expensive presents from the KGB budget."

Not the least of his blemishes is having been an agent for the old KGB.

Study: Too many doctors; reduce medical class size

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America has too many doctors and medical colleges should reduce class size, with no public funds spent for new schools of medicine, said a study released today.

The Institute of Medicine, an affiliate of the National Academy of Sciences, said the nation needs to take immediate steps to reduce the number of U.S. medical students and to put limitations on the training and entry into practice of medical graduates from foreign countries.

A study last fall funded by the Pew Charitable Trusts recommended that the United States close at least 20 percent of its medical schools over the next decade because of a surplus of doctors, nurses and pharmacists.

The study released today found that the number of practicing doctors in the United States has increased from 308,457 in 1970 to 637,723 in 1992. The ratio of physicians was 151 doctors per 100,000 people in 1970 and 245 per 100,000 in 1992, an increase in ratio of 62 percent.

"Yet for all this growth we have seen too little improvement in the cost or quality of, or access to, health care," said Don Detmer, senior vice president of the University of Virginia and a co-chairman of the Institute of Medicine panel. "Having more physicians has not meant having more care of the right kind, at the right place or at the right cost."

The committee found that increasing the number of doctors actually leads to higher aggregate health care costs for the nation.

Much of the increase in physicians has come from graduates of foreign medical schools who come to the United States for government-funded residency training. About 75 percent of this group stays to practice here.

capital by Greyhound bus, Hare said. Greyhound has been notified of the case, she said.

The CDC, in conjunction with state health officials, expected to reach all passengers in the next few days.

"Every year we get cases like this," said Mark Russell, a CDC official working with Florida officials.

The man left Chicago last Friday on Amtrak's Capitol Limited to Washington, D.C., and boarded the New York-to-Miami Silver Star on Saturday. The trains made 35 stops in 10 states before reaching Miami.

Six cars on the two trains have been yanked out of service at the Miami terminal, and will be thoroughly cleaned, and air filters on all cars will be changed, Amtrak said.

TB is spread when an infected person coughs or sneezes bacteria-laden water droplets into the air. But the risk of catching it is low to begin with, and the risk of it spreading on a plane, ship, train or bus is no greater than in any enclosed area, CDC officials have said.

The bacteria attacks the lungs and other organs occasionally, and is treated with pills. About 15 million people in the United States are infected with TB.

When the sick passenger was removed from the train in Bradford County, health workers there gave passengers still on the train forms on information about TB and treatment. New passengers weren't allowed on board at the 11 stops from Starke to Miami, but passengers were allowed to get off after being advised to seek medical exams.

One passenger told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Tuesday from a Fort Lauderdale hotel the man kept to himself and appeared dazed throughout the trip. "He was coughing and he had mucus all over him," said Maureen Reardon, 39, a plumbing design engineer from Staten Island, N.Y. on a three-week vacation to South Florida. "I said to him, 'Are you all right?' He said no. Then he started coughing blood all over the place."

Some blood spilled on one passenger, who got off shortly thereafter, she said.

Reardon accused health officials of treating the case lightly.

"They're trying to blow it and say he wasn't on the train for that long," she said. "Well, he was on for close to a day."

Though Amtrak trains have sealed windows, fresh air is circulated within the cars by an air conditioning system.

In a report last year, the CDC warned people sick with tuberculosis not to use commercial transportation for long trips because of the danger of spreading the disease in close quarters.

In April 1994, a TB-infected woman on a flight from Baltimore to Honolulu spread the disease to at least three passengers and a crew member.

LONGWOOD — The Longwood City Commission is meeting in Executive Session this evening beginning at 7 p.m. The purpose of the meeting is discussion of labor negotiations. however, had a two-year college degree (magna cum laude in Police Science.

Following a great deal of give-and-take debate, the commission eventually changed the rule to allow the chief to have just a two-year degree, but with extensive experience in law enforcement.

As a result, Russell, by that time a 28-year veteran of the city's police force, became the chief, a position he still holds.

During commission comments, Howell being the move by suggesting, "I think it's time we changed the requirements of the police chief's position back to having a four year degree."

With experience, Howell asked, "Does the commission have any problem with such an ordinance if we could bring it up during the very next commission meeting in two weeks?"

"We can't just focus on a four year degree," responded Commissioner Bob Thomas.

"The degree just doesn't cut it all the time. There are many other factors on which we should judge a candidate for chief."

"I don't think we should focus on just one item," he added.

Commissioner Kerry Lyon commented, "I think we need to talk about this, but won't we be discussing it during the charter revision meetings next week?"

Mayor Bettye Smith observed, "We can discuss it, but it's the people who will decide. My stand has always been to leave the credentials as they originally were."

City Attorney Bill Colbert explained that if the four-year degree were returned to the requirements in the city's charter, then the voters would have to decide when they vote on the charter. "If this is just a change in the job description however," he added, "then it will have to go through the Civil Service Board before it comes back to the commission for any decision.

Colbert added, "I must remind you however, that if any changes are approved, it would not affect our present police chief."

The proposed changes in the city charter however, may or may not have an effect on the position of police chief. The section of the present city charter regarding the appointment of the chief of police by the city commission has been completely stricken. The Charter Advisory Board did not provide any suggestions for any Based largely on that testimony, the jury convicted Spaziano of killing hospital clerk Laura Lyn Harberts, whose decomposed body was found weeks after her disappearance.

Investigators suspect the 50-year-old Outlaws motorcycle gang member of the slayings of at least two other young women in the Central Florida area. He is also serving a life sentence, plus five years, in the rape and torture of a 16-year-old Orlando girl.

DiLiso recanted his trial testimony at a hearing before Eaton earlier this month ordered by the Florida Supreme Court. He told Eaton he was coerced by police and his abusive father into testifying against Spaziano.

Search for pregnant 10-year-old

HOUSTON — It's a case shocking even to social workers accustomed to seeing children having children: a 10-year-old who is 8½ months pregnant.

"She became pregnant at 9 — that's uncommon," said Judy Hay, a spokeswoman for the state Children's Protective Services.

Cindy Garcia gave social workers the slip Sunday, and police have intensified their search for the girl and her 22-year-old Mexican lover, Pedro Sotelo. He was charged with aggravated sexual assault and could face a life term in prison if convicted.

The girl's mother told caseworkers her daughter had been running away since she was 8 to be with Sotelo. Before she disappeared, the girl told authorities that she loved her boyfriend and wanted to marry him.

County social workers took Cindy into custody Jan. 12 when she posed as a 14-year-old seeking welfare benefits.

"She's a pretty smart little girl," said police Officer Frank Ellizondo. "She gave me a false name and date of birth."

Cindy disappeared when she went to church with fellow residents of a youth shelter. A girl who fled with her said Cindy mentioned she was going to a relative's house, leading officials to think she may still be in the area.

"We have intensified the search in some Houston neighborhoods," police Capt. John Buenik said Tuesday. "Anything is possible."

Preventing third government shutdown

WASHINGTON — House Republicans have a plan they hope can prevent a third government shutdown without raising the wrath of either the White House or GOP conservatives demanding immediate steps toward a balanced budget.

While targeting a dozen minor programs for extinction, the House proposal carefully avoids taking money away from several of President Clinton's favorite programs, including the AmeriCorps community service program.

But it creates another possible roadblock by asking the Senate to reverse its position and accept abortion restrictions put on foreign aid programs.

House Republican leaders avoided one certain confrontation with the White House by giving up on the idea of attaching a $125 child tax credit to a stopgap spending measure that would keep the government operating through March 1.

O.J. caught in inconsistencies

LOS ANGELES — Facing another round of grilling in a wrongful-death lawsuit, O.J. Simpson was caught in a number of inconsistencies when asked about his whereabouts on the day his ex-wife and her friend were killed, a lawyer said.

John Q. Kelly, who represents Nicole Brown Simpson's estate, said the inconsistencies related to "time frames, timeline, how certain things occurred."

"We have heard answers that have not been consistent with things that have been put out in the past," Kelly said Tuesday, referring to claims by Simpson's defense team during the criminal trial.

During a break in the eight-hour, closed-door session, Ron Goldman's father said the questioning was going "exceptionally well." The lawsuit, which seeks unspecified damages, was filed by the Goldman family and Ms. Simpson's estate.

New affirmative action policy

OAKLAND, Calif. — University of California regents who last year approved a new admissions policy dropping affirmative action will have to wait until 1998 to see it go into effect.

Regents voted in July to ban the use of race and gender considerations as of Jan. 1, 1997, and they presumed the policy would affect students entering in fall 1997.

But UC President Richard Atkinson said there isn't time to develop new admissions guidelines by then.

Regent Ward Connerly, who sponsored the affirmative action ban, said Atkinson's decision amounted to a delay. He said he would convene a special meeting of the regents if the university insists on the timetable.

"We've got some regents, including this one, who are furious," Connerly said Tuesday.

While Atkinson said the move does not represent a change in policy, many students and faculty members who have fought the affirmative action ban were encouraged.

"This is more than a symbolic victory," said Larry Wallack, a UC-Berkeley professor. "We've been up against a brick wall. We now have an opening."

Dog shoots man in hunting accident

INEZ, Ky. — Man shoots dog; not unheard of. Dog shoots man — now that's a story.

It happened during a hunting outing when a spaniel named Rusty stepped on the trigger of a shotgun and blasted 45-year-old Phillip Smith in both legs. He was hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

"It's not funny that the guy got shot," said Martin County Sheriff Darriel Young. "But it's kind of funny how he got shot."

Authorities said Smith and dog owner John Phillips were hunting together Monday when the 15-month-old dog retrieved a downed bird. Phillips was trying to take the bird away when Rusty stepped on the trigger of a 12-gauge shotgun and it went off.

Young said he had no plans to arrest the dog.

Troops placed on alert

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The headquarters of U.S. troops in Bosnia and other NATO installations have been placed on alert and warned to watch out for an American suspected of planning attacks against NATO forces.

The command of the NATO-led peace mission said late Tuesday it had distributed leaflets to guards and security officers warning them about a man identified as Kevin Holt. It described Holt as an African-American in his 30s "who has expressed sympathies for extremist causes."

A senior NATO official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the alert was raised after Holt attempted to enter a NATO compound in Bosnia in the previous 24 hours.

The compound was not identified, and no further information on Holt was released.

Trade surplus falls

TOKYO — Japan's huge trade surplus with the United States, long a source of friction between the two nations, fell by nearly one-fifth last year for the first time since 1990.

Analysts said today they expected the drop to continue, fueled by Japan's movement of manufacturing offshore — and a growing appetite for foreign goods.

Japan's surplus with the United States, its biggest trading partner, plummeted 17 percent, the Finance Ministry said, while the overall surplus dropped by 11 percent. Both marked the first annual decreases in five years.

"The trade surplus is in a substantial downward trend," said Andrew Shipley, economist with Schroder Securities Japan.

GOP jeers Clinton's call for 'smaller government'

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Portending a campaign-season struggle for the political center, Republicans are accusing President Clinton of trying to mask liberal policies with middle-of-the-road rhetoric.

"I think the president is going to talk in the center and govern on the left and hope the country never picks up the difference," House Speaker Newt Gingrich said today as he made the rounds of television network talk shows.

With barbed praise of Clinton's style in his State of the Union address, Gingrich said the substance of the speech is the real tip-off.

Clinton is "governing like Lyndon Johnson and talking like Ronald Reagan," Gingrich said. "Unlike Ronald Reagan, the middle part of his speech was 14 or 15 new government programs."

"President Clinton always talks well," he added. "If talking were pitching, he'd be a 50-game winner."

Earlier, Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole made a similar point, scoffing at Clinton's embrace of "an era of balanced budgets and smaller government" as empty rhetoric.

"President Clinton may well be the rear guard of the welfare state," Dole said in a broadcast rebuttal to Clinton's Tuesday night address.

Dole, the front-runner for the GOP nomination to oppose Clinton next fall, noted that Clinton cast several vetoes last year on GOP legislation.

"He is the chief obstacle to a balanced budget, and the balanced budget amendment" to the Constitution, the Kansas Republican said.

For his part, Clinton's speech to Congress sketched themes likely to carry him into the fall.

"The era of big government is over," the president said during an hour-long speech in which he summoned skeptical Republican lawmakers to work with him to nail down an elusive balanced-budget deal and bipartisan welfare overhaul.

"But we cannot go back to the time when our citizens were left to fend for themselves," the president added in remarks before a packed House chamber and a television audience counted in the millions.

Rhetoric aside, Clinton's speech provided moments of theater only possible when the nation's political elite gather:

—Democrats cheered enthusiastically when first lady Hillary Rodham Clinton was introduced in the House chamber; Republicans only grudgingly.

—Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary shook hands only with Democrats as she walked down the center aisle to her seat, keeping her back turned to Republicans, some of whom have demanded her dismissal.

—Clinton sparked a laugh from Gingrich, his political nemesis, when he handed the House speaker a copy of his speech text along with a handwritten note. "Thank you and good night," it read — precisely the words Gingrich had said in advance he wanted to hear.

Clinton's speech was salted with conciliatory references to majority Republicans, and included a salute to Dole's service in World War II a half-century ago.

But he challenged the GOP directly on two pressing issues. "Never — ever shut down the government again," he said in a reference to the two partial federal closures since November. "And pass a straightforward extension of the debt limit."

Coached in advance, Democrats cheered those words, while most Republicans sat in silence.

Gingrich offered his rebuttal today, calling the president's remarks "an artful gimmick" aimed at concealing Clinton's responsibility for the shutdowns. Gingrich said Republicans were being polite hosts by sitting in "embarrassed silence" as "someone spills coffee on the rug and claims he didn't do it."

As for the debt limit, the Georgia Republican said any GOP proposal to extend federal borrowing would be laden with budget-balancing conditions.

School board rejects proposals for telecommunications system

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — The school board is back to "Square One" in their search for a telecommunications system for the district.

Tuesday evening, the school board decided to reject all proposals for the system they have been hoping to purchase for nearly two years.

The 3-1 decision could mean a lawsuit by one of the bidders and more delays in installing the telephone system which is already several months behind schedule.

Board member Jeanne Morris was the only one who voted to go with the staff's recommendation that NEC Business Communications be hired for the job. Vice chairman Larry Strickler was not on hand for the vote.

The board now faces the decision of starting the process of obtaining proposals all over again or trying to arrange for a state contract.

Despite the recommendation of the staff and a paid consultant, board members awarded the contract in September to

Siemens-ROLM, but a state hearing officer ruled that contract was "arbitrary and illegal."

Supt. Paul Hagerty recommended on Tuesday that the board award the contract to NEC.

Board members said they felt "more comfortable" with Siemens-ROLM and that they were not satisfied with NEC's performance during the bidding process.

IRL ready to run Disney

By MIKE HARRIS
AP Motorsports Writer

LAKE BUENA VISTA — Tony George has planted a seed and the growth begins today.

George, president of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and founder of the new Indy Racing League, will watch his creation take on life at Walt Disney World Speedway, a new one-mile oval track located just inside the main gate of the sprawling Walt Disney World theme park.

When the season-opening Indy 200 is run Saturday, it will mark the culmination of a two-year dream for George, who was and is determined to put up an alternative to the established PPG IndyCar World Series, which he has said time and again is too expensive, counts too heavily on foreign drivers and equipment and has lost sight of the grass roots of American racing — oval tracks.

But he has failed to attract any of the top teams and drivers from IndyCar to the new series, which will hold five oval races, including the Indianapolis 500, in its inaugural season.

The IRL competitors, generally a rag-tag group of seasoned drivers with mediocre success and rookies, will be out to prove that this is a serious and realistic enterprise.

The biggest names taking to the track for the first official practice sessions on Thursday are 1990 Indy winner Arie Luyendyk, former Indy pole-winners Scott Brayton and Roberto Guerrero, former Indy rookie of the year Lyn St. James and former Formula One regulars Eddie Cheever, Eliseo Salazar and Michele Alboreto.

Among that group, only Salazar and Cheever, who left his team two races before the end of the year, had full-time Indy-car rides in 1995.

"This is a real good opportunity," said Luyendyk, who will team with Cheever and rookie Tony Stewart on the John Menard team. "There are some drivers out here with some talent and there's going to be some good racing."

But the depth of the field is a question mark, with well-thought-of-but-unproven rookies like Alboreto, Stewart, Davey Hamilton, Richie Hearn, Buzz Calkins and Stan Wattles all aiming for their first Indy-car start, alongside journeyman veterans like Buddy Lazier, John Paul Jr., Scott Sharp, Bill Tempero and Johnny Parsons Jr.

The entries will be divided into two groups for today's practice sessions, with each group scheduled to get a total of one hour and 45 minutes of time on the track.

Qualifying for Saturday's race, which will be televised live by ABC Sports, is set for Friday.

I'm always a little wary of gimmicky cookbooks; you know the books that contain only recipes for food cooked in dough, or for tiny food, or for food cooked in toaster ovens...

The "gimmick" here is that all 60 of the recipes can be made using one pot, one mixing spoon and one cake pan...

Holiday Note No. 1: "A Kwanzaa Celebration," by Angela Shelf Medearis (Dutton, $17.95), is just in time for the African-American holiday...

Holiday Note No. 2: This has nothing to do with food, but a wonderful last-minute gift for any parent on your list is "Quality Time" (Willard Books, 1995)...

CHOCOLATE ALMOND TORTE

1/4 ounce semisweet chocolate, broken into pieces
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup whole-wheat flour or 1 more cup all-purpose flour

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Spray the bottom and sides of an 8-inch layer pan with spray shortening...

In a large heavy saucepan over medium heat, begin melting the butter. When it's half melted, add the chocolate and stir until the chocolate is half melted...

Deadbeat daughter costs mother her peace

DEAR ABBY: I am ready to scream! I just hung up the phone after talking with another bill collector who is hunting for "Sue," our 21-year-old daughter...

Sue spent the last two summers repeating courses she had failed, and of course, we had to pay for them. This past semester, she refused to show us her grades...

I have repeatedly suggested counseling. She went a few times, but dropped out. My husband doesn't agree with me regarding her behavior and thinks I'm awful...

In addition, her bedroom and bathroom are unfit for human use. Every day I tell her to clean her room and bathroom, but she ignores me...

ADVICE

contributes nothing to this household except stress and work for me.

I have asked her to leave, but she just looks at me. I have threatened to leave if she doesn't. My husband thinks I'm wrong for asking her to leave...

I can't get her to understand that what she is doing is criminal. I'm afraid that one day she'll be arrested for writing bad checks...

I have repeatedly suggested counseling. She went a few times, but dropped out. My husband doesn't agree with me regarding her behavior and thinks I'm awful...

leave my husband, but I can't take any more of this. Please print this, Abby; maybe other parents can offer suggestions. FED UP TO HERE

DEAR FED UP: Your husband fails to recognize the seriousness of your daughter's problems. Her behavior is self-destructive and irresponsible...

As parents, you must present a united front. I urge family counseling for all of you.

DEAR ABBY: Now that the new year has arrived, my family and friends would like to fly our American flag on every day that it is appropriate...

AIR FORCE WIDOW, BOYNTON BEACH, FLA.

DEAR AIR FORCE WIDOW: According to the American Legion, the flag may be displayed on any day the weather permits. However, it is especially fitting to fly the flag on New Year's Day, Inauguration Day, Lincoln's Birthday, Washington's Birthday, Easter Sunday, Mother's Day, Armed Forces Day, Memorial Day (half-staff until noon), Flag Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Constitution Day, Columbus Day, Navy Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving Day, Christmas Day, election days, state and local holidays, state birthdays, and such other days as may be proclaimed by the president.

DEAR ABBY: As a faithful reader of your column, I'd like to comment on a column you once printed on how to eat asparagus.

While growing up in Paris, my mother, who was a debutante, attended a dinner given by French President Raymond Poincare at the Elysee Palace for the King of Morocco. Asparagus vinaigrette was served. Everybody waited for the king to try it. He did, but found the tough end too tough...

Soon the floor around the table became so slippery, none of the servers could get near the table. The rest of the dinner was a disaster - and to this day, the dinner for the King of Morocco at the Elysee Palace has taken its place in history! GILBERT GESTAS, NEW YORK
