A darkhorse is Fred Whitfield of Cleveland who is only hitting around .250, but has come through many times in the clutch.

McAuliffe Could Repeat

Dick McAuliffe of Detroit, the AL's all-star shortatop of last season is the likely choice again. He's the only player at that position who is having a good year at the bat. Cleveland's Chico Salmon, who has been filling in brilliantly for the injured Larry Brown, may draw some votes. A battle near the proportions of the Robinson-Oliva race, may come up in left field between Boston veteran Carl Yastrzemski and California's new golden boy Rick Reichardt. Yst's average has dipped below the .280 mark over the past week, while the Big Ten grid hero is blasting away at the .306 elip with 12 home runs. The Boston flyhawk, a former AL batting champ, has knocked in 35 runs and a good hot streak would make him hard to beat.

Centerfield looks like the spot for Al Kaline of Detroit, but Baltimore's Russ Snyder has been coming on like Batman lately to rank just behind Oliva and Frank Robinson in the AL bat derby. However Kaline's past performance along with his stendy .296 average this year should get him the center field slot.

Chicago's Al Romano, Minnesota's Earl Battey and Detroit's Bill Freehan will all get their share of votes as the starting AL catcher. Battey has the best average (.288) and has been an all-star before. Romano too is hitting around the .280 mark and is highly thought of for his catching skills. Free-han is supposed to be the best young catcher in the league and is just beginning to pound the ball, so it will be a close of oceanography. A five-acre site on the Intracoastal Waterway, south of Fort Lauderdale's Port Everglades, will be the location of a threestory building, docking space for a houseboat, which is pres-ently being outfitted as a ""Bating" laboratory; and docking space for a modest fleet of ocean-going craft designed for deep sea work. The center has been designed initially for 20 to 30 classrooms, plus laboratories, library, shops and offices, it was announced. The basin will be large enough to accommodate a 200-foot vessel drawing 15 feet of water. It is hoped that construction of the building can begin before the end of this year, announc-ed Dr. Warren J. ### Auto's Restful Life That sounds reasonable. And w

The average passenger car is actu-ally in operation only during about 5 per cent of its life, says the American Automobile Association. The remaining time it is parked somewhere.

1. 2. 12.14%

Though Europeans may have few-er automobiles than we do, they have other things we don't, including: Two rules of the road (driving on the left and on the right) ; four principles regulating right-of-way; five sets of regulations for the use o headlights; three sets of rules on the meaning of continuous road lines (i two colors); five sets of rules on the meaning of broken lines (in two col-ors); five different stop signs; 200 parking regulations. In addition, there are about 18 current road signs, in different col ors and different languages. And if U.S. automobile manufact-urers are chafing under the prospect of federal safety regulation, they can take some consolation from the fact that European manufacturers must produce different qualities and sizes of the same equipment, depending upon where it is to be exported. One German assembly line, for example, makes 94 different kinds of turn sigwould wager that about 4 per cent of that 5 per cent operating time is used up looking for a place to spend the 95 per cent of parking time.

Pity Europe's Motorists

Beginning steps toward ending this confusion are being taken by at least six European nations — those members of the European Economic Community. A draft directive standardizing member states' regulations concerning brakes is before the separate governments. Others to follow involve safety glass, headlights, wipers, mufflers. Eventual goal is harmonization of both vehicle standards and national traffic regulations under a Commu-nity-wide code.
