Ovations Of First Nighters Are Like The Good Old Days

By JEAN MEEGAN AP Newsfeatures Writer

A HALF-DOZEN times this season on Broadway big, resounding ovations that rank with ovations of the good old days rang from the prettily dressed first night audiences and echoed in the morning papers.

The cheers were for the ladies. These of them: June Lockhart, Jessica Tandy, and Ethel Griffies were merely minor theatrical artists.

Stiff necked, stylish first nighters, who usually get out of their seats only to go home, rose with full-throated bravos the night, Judith Anderson, head reared, eyes flashing, roles flying opened in "Mousetrap".

Her performance as a nervous, unbalanced woman in a neurotic, unbalanced play is accurate and revealing. "It is incredible," the papers said after the opening.

Wendy Hiller plays the Pygmalion part in "The Heiress," the young, shy, gauche girl who is transformed into an ice-cold, calculating, cynical, and cheerless woman.

June Lockhart's comet swooped across the sky the night of November 11. "For Love or Money" opened. There was a personal demonstration in the audience when the curtain came down and the pretty, 22-year-old daughter of character actors Gene and Kathleen Lockhart took her bow.

All of these performances are rich, exciting; but the performance with possibly the greatest theatrical significance is of timor Ethel Griffies portrayal of the old mother in "The Druid Circle."

Satira Sentenced

The former night club dancer from Toledo, Ohio, who was billed professionally as "Satira," was reported to have sent word to her father in Toledo to accept the prison sentence which she believes is inevitable.

Gustavo Reno, a special prosecutor employed under the Cuban trial system by Mees' parents, said he had learned from an unimpeachable source yesterday that two members of the tribunal which conducted the trial voted for 12 years imprisonment and that the third favored 20 years.

The penalty for manslaughter ranges from six to 26 years. The slim young dancer was visited yesterday by a family friend, Joe Azcue, Havana hotel operator. She asked him to notify her father that she was resigned to the fact that she might have to remain in the prison where she has been since April in the cabin they shared aboard Mees' yacht.

As she left the visitor's room to return to her cell she waved to newsmen through a door, then burst into tears.

During the trial, which ended Friday, Patricia maintained that Mees, an American naval officer during the war, was about to beat her and that she grabbed a pistol to ward him off. The weapon went off accidentally, she said, and the bullet struck Mees in the neck. He died four days later.

The judges reached a decision in the case Saturday and gave it to a confidential clerk. Court officials said this customarily would mean a conviction.

Presiding Judge Cristobal Moro said the announcement probably would be made today.

Sons Don't Think Their Moms Like Fancy Presents

By BETTY CLARKE AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Ask a son what his mother would like for Christmas and almost invariably he will say, "Oh, she doesn't want anything fancy." How Sonny underestimates his Mom! Just because she has reared a family, battles with pots and pans and is the family seamstress is no reason to suspect she doesn't enjoy the charm a glamor gift affords.

Listen to her exclaim at top-of-the-pack Yule favorites such as perfume, cologne, sachet, fancy soaps, bath powder, and tricky unusual compacts.

Here are some suggestions: Scented Soaps... In a variety of colors, shapes and sizes, scented with her favorite fragrance. Sachets... Hangers, lingerie cases and handkerchief bag are sachet scented in spicy, tangy, floral scents.

Perfume... You must use a bit of intuition and lots of good taste when selecting perfume. Here is where your mother's personality does count.

Lovely, unusual bottles and packages missing since before the war are available again. Take your choice in gold, silver, or a circle of rhinestones; a hat box containing decorative, hatpins besides its three small trial-size bottles of perfume; perfume enclosed in a gold Christmas bell.

There are large over-sized cases and dainty, small antique-type units available in great plate, silver, or bronze. One red, gay one which she perhaps will use immediately Christmas morning, and gold one is pretty, ing.

but a procedural morass offering no substantial hope of relief. "Experience has convinced me that this is true of Illinois. The trouble with Illinois, Rutledge said, is not that it offers no procedure in such a case but that it offers too many, and makes them so intricate and ineffective that in practical effect they amount to none.

Rutledge's opinion described the Illinois system in such cases as a "merry-go-round" and held that federal courts should be open to the riders and that state affords a reasonably clear and adequate means for obtaining a direct ruling.

Stassen Hits White House On Grain Deals

GOP Candidate Says Anderson List Of 711 Speculators Is To Confuse Public

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23 (AP)—H. V. Stassen today charged that the Administration to say whether any present and former officials in the "executive department of the White House" traded in commodities prior to big government purchases in early 1947. Stassen also asked in a statement whether White House and other past and present government officials made a "huge profit" at the steep climb of prices which followed the governmental buying.

Stassen first charged two weeks ago that "insiders" in the government had profited from commodity trading. His assertions then led to disclosure that Edwin A. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royal, had been a big market speculator.

Governor Thompson of Georgia says he has "positive information" that Henry Wallace will be announced as a third party presidential candidate on Dec. 29.
Whether it is Dec. 29 or Jan.
2 makes little or no practical difference. Henry Wallace has certainly been showing in every possible way that he will be a candidate and that it will not be on either of the major party tickets. But we are glad he is going to run. It will give all of us a chance to show him what we think of him and his policies.

The Gallup Poll reveals that among independent thinkers General Eisenhower, despite his objections, is the most popular choice for President. The reason that the American people are turning to Eisenhower is not so much because he is a military man, or a great national war hero, but rather because he is not a politician and most of the other candidates are. The American people are merely groping around, dissatisfied with the current crop of presidential aspirants, not particularly sold on any one man, but anxiously awaiting the appearance of a new leader who will tell them the truth, rise above partisan politics and show them the way to go. They could be wrong about Eisenhower, but not so wrong as about the others.

"Your fight against Wall Street and the military control of Washington," says Elmer Benson, former governor of Minnesota inviting Henry Wallace to run for President, "has transformed the 1948 campaign into a great crusade to return the government to the hands of the people," illustrating how difficult it is to find anyone for public office who is not a rogue and a knave.
A few years ago it was the college professors, the "brain trust," who were in charge of the government and ruining everything. Today we have one military man, General Marshall as Secretary of State, and one Wall Street, Jim Forrestal as Secretary of Defense, in high government office; yet Wall Street and the military men are wrecking the country.

"No News"

Rip-snorting Old Sol had come to the little city of Elkhart, Indiana, on a cloudless August day. It was too hot to think of going out to work; it was too hot to think — let it go at that. Everybody felt that way, so it wasn't surprising when the city editor of the Elkhart Truth, the city's daily paper, walked into the managing editor's office and said, in an editorial gloom, "There's no news today; what'll we do for Page One?"

"What? No news?" exclaimed the managing editor, comfortable in his conditioned room. "Well, that is news!" he yelled, and swished around to his typewriter and wrote the screaming headline, "35,000 People and No News!"

Then followed a two-column front-page story about "Thirty-five thousand people dwelling in harmony, policemen on baking-hot beats with no exciting work to do, workmen shuttling between home and job and no labor trouble, folks watching the baseball scoreboards, fish peddlers dealing out bait to hopeful anglers, mothers and wives cooking suppers in tranquil kitchens, kids in the swimming holes, the lemen chatting at the back doors.

"No news? Ten thousand families, and not a single murder to sing its dirge of violence in screaming headlines.
Fifteen thousand automobiles and not a serious accident to send ambulances roaring down the streets to the hospitals with bleeding cargoes of dead and maimed humanity. Ten thousand families and not a single sensational line of divorce to set gossip's tongues wagging.

"Just a community of 35,000 good folks, going peacefully about their tasks or pleasures, quietly and, to all appearances, happily. Did anything like that ever happen before? No news? That is the biggest piece of news that has ever happened." —Sunshine Magazine, Richfield, Ill.

The Writing Jameses

Another literary James has gone. Henry, son of the philosopher William James and nephew of the novelist Henry James, has died at 68. The younger Henry was chairman of the board of the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association of America, and was long connected with the Rockefeller Institute. He may be longest remembered, however, for his writing, a skill that in the family ran back at least to his grandfather.

The Pulitzer prize for biography came to James in 1930 for his life of President Charles W. Eliot of Harvard, one of the two or three greatest American educators. Less well known but equally meritorious was his 1923 life of Richard Olney, the fighting Boston lawyer who, as attorney-general in Cleveland's second administration broke the Pullman strike, and as secretary of state was largely responsible for Cleveland's threatening war with England over the Venezuelan boundary.

Henry James the younger will not be remembered as long as his father and uncle, who are permanent stars in the American literary firmament. He need not, however, be ashamed of his own achievements.

Russia's Weakness

Isn't it time to stop being afraid of Russia? This question is addressed not to our diplomats who are standing their ground undauntedly, but to the average American, who in too many cases is getting a bad case of gooseflesh.

Relief for this ailment should come from reading "The United States and Russia," the new book by Mrs. Vera Micheles Dean of the Foreign Policy Association. We have heard much, she says, of the ambitious Russian programs.
Yet if the Soviets do all they plan to do by 1960, they will still have only 80 per cent as much steel, the same amount of coal and 30 per cent of the oil that, with a much smaller population, we produced in 1941. And by that time we should have progressed still farther.

Depend upon it, the Russian leaders know all this, and it must give them pause. It may be one reason why they are so frantically trying to grab all western Europe while the grabbing is good.

Heavy Shipments Expected Thruout
Holiday Season

JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 23 (Special)—Because Florida produces a tremendous volume of highly perishable crops which must be moved as they reach maturity, substantial harvesting and shipping operations will continue through the holiday season, though we do not expect, nor would we wish to operate on a "business as usual" basis," said William L. Wilson, Director of Florida State Markets today.
"Christmas dinner tables throughout the land will bear material testimony to the important part Florida plays in providing healthful fruits and vegetables. Reports I have just received from our State-operated markets show that despite serious weather hindrances during recent months, shipments of tomatoes, beans, celery, pepper and many other lines produce have been rolling to destinations throughout the Nation, to supplement the State's great citrus fruit forwardings, and such luxury items as the Winter strawberries for which city difficulties, production has Plant City and other areas are famed.

"The Plant City State Farmers' Market during its last full weekly report period handled 89, 748 pints of strawberries—showing a nice increase over the preceding week. Prices ranged from a daily average of 34 1/2 cents to 37 1/2 cents, the higher figure prevailing for the closing day of the report period. Volume of the berry movement should increase heavily, following the holidays.

Another Christmas touch has been supplied for the holiday season by heavy shipments of gin-dell blossoms, from Fort Myers and other producing sections.
Many thousands of dozens of these beautiful blossoms will add color to Christmas decorations, business of the expanding operations of this Florida industry.

"We of the Florida State Markets organization are very happy over the fact that despite a variety of difficulties, production has gone as well as current reports indicate, and on behalf of every member of our personnel, I want to say a very cordial 'Merry Christmas and Happy New Year' to every producer in the State, as well as to the countless thousands who have benefited and will continue to benefit through their labor. Florida's Winter vegetable production, as I have tried to emphasize many times before, is a health-gift of inestimable value to the nation, a very real and important Christmas gift!" Summary of reports from State-operated Markets:

Fort Pierce—Tomato movement for first half of week showed 100 per cent increase over corresponding period of preceding week —29,898 units selling at an average of $3.15. Light movement forecast for this week.
Palmetto—Sale of 7,763 1/2 packages during the week brought a total of $38,252.47. The market handled 3,913 bushels of No. 1 tomatoes, which grossed $24,360.
16, and 2,349 bushels of No. 2 grade, grossing $7,915.81. Remaining volume handled represented lighter offerings of a variety of produce.

Florida City—Light offerings of produce handled. Good progress reported on construction of additional market shed.

FLYING SANTA

ST. AUGUSTINE, Dec. 23 (AP)—Edward Rowe Snow, the flying Santa Claus of the lighthouses, landed here at 11:45 P. M. (EST) yesterday, ending a hop from Boston during which he dropped 176 Christmas packages.

Following a 30-year-old tradition begun by the late Capt.
Bill Wincapaw Snow, dropped guile parcels at 90 lighthouses on the 1,300-mile hop and tossed the remainder onto the grounds of Coast Guard stations.

ture written between 1174 and

THE NATION TODAY

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 (AP)— One night a week 12 men meet here in the home of one of them to talk about a book.

They're read it during the week. They talk two hours, go home, read more, and meet again the next week to talk more.
They're mature men. Most are over 30. Most have families.
All are newspapermen except two who work for the government and one who edits a magazine.

All but three are college graduates. Among them they represent a great deal of experience in living and thinking in this country and abroad.

They're studying political philosophy, which means only: What is a good government or how can a government be made good?
Most of these men deal every day here in Washington with politics and practical politics.
But politics, as practiced in this country and the rest of the world, is only politics as worked out so far by mankind.

Knowing there's been no perfect government so far, the men in the study group also know this:
—Because until now they have not studied it, they don't know minds have thought about government,
—what some of mankind's best So they're taking this course in political philosophy. A professor from St. John's College in Annapolis, Md., comes to each meeting.

Because he knows the field, he can guide the group, suggest ideas, keep the talk from going astray.

He's set up a reading-discussion program for the group. It may go on a year or longer.

The group started with Thucydides' history of the Greek war more than 400 years before Christ. Why that? And why start so far back?

Because Thucydides was the first factual Greek historian. His history of the war is more than a history of a war among the Greeks.

It's the story of what happened to this world's first democracy, Athens.

Athens, which suddenly became powerful, fell apart through the stupidity and corruption and self-seeking of the Athenians and their politicians.

After this start, the study group went on to Plato's republic, which is Plato's thinking on an idea government.

(After watching what happened to Athens in his own lifetime, philosopher Plato had small use for a democracy. His ideal republic is a kind of Fascist state Hitler would have understood.)

Now the group is studying Aristotle's book on politics. This Greek philosopher was Plato's pupil. But his ideas differed from Plato's.

After Aristotle, the study group will go on to another book, then another, working up to the modern times.

When they've finished, the men in the group will have thought more and maybe a little better about government than they ever did before.

What kind of ideas does the group here discuss? It's a wide range. Here are just two: Is man naturally good? Is there such a thing as absolute justice?

The group spent two nights on the question of absolute perfect justice. Can there be such a thing at all?

So far the idea of justice has varied from time to time, place to place, and nation to nation.

Kicking a Jewish child, or any child, in this country would be considered a crime and would be punished as an injustice.

In Hitler's Jewish-hating Nazi Germany kicking a Jewish child might have been considered a good thing, worthy of a reward.

Have the men in the group noticed any benefit so far? One thing above all others: They have a deepened sense of humility.
Their ideas in a group and get When they have to express them kicked around, they learn they don't have all the answers, and that some of their thinking is pretty shallow.

But this group discussion here is only a small part of what is called in this country adult

THE WORLD TODAY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Are the western democracies going to be able to hold Communism along the battle-front which it now occupies throughout the heart of Europe, or can the Bolsheviks fight their way to the English channel?

That's a question foremost these days in the minds of folks interested in world affairs (and who isn't?). A very natural inquiry it is, too, in view of the fact that the outcome of the "cold war" of the lama depends on the answer. This means, of course, that the success or failure of the Marshall Plan also hinges on it.

As a matter of fact this was one of the main topics of a conversation which I had with a member of a major delegation to the United Nations, just before starting to write this article.
We agreed that things had taken a turn in favor of the de-mocracies and that the chance-now are good for holding the line.

It's mighty encouraging to feel able to entertain that viewpoint, but we shouldn't let optimism obscure the fact that holding the line won't end the "cold war." It will prevent Western Europe from being overrun by the Reds, but Moscow still will remain in control of the many eastern countries which Russia has communicated by strong-arm method.
Not until these unwilling satellites are again free to exercise sovereignty will the claims of democracy be satisfied.

Moreover, as my UN friend pointed out, we shouldn't overlook that there still remain knock-down and drag-out fights to be settled in Western Europe, notably in Italy and France—key positions strategically. While Communism has received a serious set-back in both these countries recently in connection with a strong wind to the right, the Reds still remain powerful and determined. We must expect, therefore, that they will revise their programs for a fresh effort.

The Communists are good organizers and indistinguishable workers. Once they have an offensive under way nothing will stop them until they come up against a material barrier—but when they encounter that they don't waste time butting their heads up against a wall. They change their tactics. It has been evident for some time that the Reds were overhauling their programs in Italy and France and getting set for new offensives.

So we should be foolish indeed to indulge in any degree of complacency because events have been favoring the western democracies. Still, it's gratifying to see the political swing towards the right being extended in Western Europe. A hugely important development in this connection is the declaration of war by the ruling British Labor Party—that is, the Socialist Party—against Communism in England.

The Secretary of the Labor (Socialist) Party, Morgan Phillips, has issued an appeal to all labor groups, including trade unions, to take the offensive against Communist influence within the party. He warned that the British Communists are out to sabotage the Socialist government and have joined the war being waged by the new Communist Cominform, with headquarters in Yugoslavia, against the western brand of socialism and the Marshall Plan.

The toleration which English labor heretofore has extended to the Bolsheviks has been a great moral aid to Moscow. This new and positive British stand against Communism will lend inestimable strength to the democratic camp in Western Europe.

THE AMAZING STORY OF RAILROAD BONDS 1937-1947

- In the past 10 years most railroad systems have:
1. Reduced their funded debt 27% 2. Reduced their annual interest charges 33% 3. Increased their cash resources 378% 4. Increased their net working capital 787%

In 1937, the bonds of most of these railroad systems were selling at par or higher. Today these same bonds — with records of uninterrupted interest payments extending for periods up to 50 years — can be purchased at substantial discounts. Many of these issues are legal investments for savings banks and/or trust funds in the State of New York.

Panama Bases

The bases are the "Panama Canal Zone," which the U. S. used during the war. The State Department considers them vital to defense of the canal.

The State Department today announced that it will not negotiate with the Panamanian government of the assembly's rejection before making any further moves.

That government officials fear with the situation suggested there might be little point in trying to work out an agreement during the heat of a presidential campaign which is now beginning.

Opposition in Panama has centered principally on leasing the Canal Zone and on the idea of giving up Panamanian territory to the U. S. in peace terms.

Trade first started over two years ago when Panamanian Minister Ricardo Arias told the assembly the U. S. had to clear out of all wartime bases on Panamanian soil by 1948—one year after signing of the Japanese surrender.

The State Department rejected this. It pointed out that the 1947 defense agreement with Japan under which the U. S. would vacate them one year after signing of the "definitive peace treaty."

The document signed in Tokyo May in 1945, the department said, was not a treaty but an armistice.

To avoid legislative haggling over this point, 16 months ago U. S. proposed a new agreement to negotiate for a new agreement for postwar use of the 14 bases which the Army wanted to retain. Meanwhile, the Army shut down almost all the other bases it had in Panama.

The Panamanian government previously accepted the government's negotiator, resigned the post. The second was installed by Ambassador Frank T. Hines for the U. S. and by acting Foreign Minister Francisco A. Piles for Panama.

The refugee ship named Al Tashidun (You Can't Fight Us) by the Jews, had been intercepted when it entered Palestine waters about 90 miles southwest of Haifa. The ship was flying the Zionist flag.

The boarding was completed by a Marine squad without opposition. The statement added that only one casualty was a British sailor who fractured his hip when he slipped and fell during the operation.

The refugee ship was the first to be intercepted in Palestine waters by the British Navy since the United Nations decision Nov. 29 to partition the Holy Land.

Meanwhile about 800 Jews aboard the passenger ship Transylvania, bound from Romania to France, Cuba and other countries, were refused permission to land at Haifa to visit friends and relatives in this area.

European Aid Bill
The President has 10 days from last Friday, not including Sundays or the Christmas holiday, in which to act on the legislation.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) contended that two Republican senators have repudiated the claim of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) that the GOP cost of living bill is adequate to curb inflation.

Taft has said that if President Truman signs the legislation now before him, the Chief Executive will have power to check "nearly all the principal causes of inflation, if he really wishes to do so."

The Ohio Senator urged slash in government spending as a supplementary step.

O'Mahoney, who fought the Taft-sponsored measure as too weak, said a reporter Taft's statement was "repudiated and contradicted" by House Speaker Martin (R-Mass.) and Senator Wilson (R-Iowa).

*Hark!
the Herald Angels
Sing, Glory to the new-born
King*

CHRISTMAS, the glorious season, has shed its radiance over the world since the Star of Bethlehem illuminated the skies as a beacon, calling to mankind to witness the blessed Babe. And in God's own Heaven, herald angels' voices sweetly ring out in unison with the voices of Church choirs wherever they are free to sing His praises. The wonder of Christ's coming enralls us; yet His most precious gift is the true spirit of Love which finds its strongest expression in the democratic way of life to which we are dedicated. When we foster liberty among all people we take our places as deservedly as sons and daughters created in His image, keeping aloft indeed the glory of His word.
