ALL CHARGED CORRUPT DOME NAVY OIL CASE

ARAWAY AGAINST FALL IN SENATE

OTHERS ACCUSED

Charge of Implication in Corruption in Teapot Dome Naval Oil Reserve Leases

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, probably will remain at a standstill for several days. He is in the charge of the inquiry into the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve leases.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Corruption in connection with the lease of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to the Sinclair interests was charged Wednesday in the senate against Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, by Sen. Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas.

Senator Caraway declared that after President Harding without authority had transferred the naval reserve from the control of the navy department to the interior department, Mr. Fall "without notice to the contrary, negotiated some kind of a deal with two oil people and parted with the last gallon of America's naval reserve fuel."

"The investigating committee," said Sen. Caraway, referring to the senate public inquiry committee, which was directed to inquire into the lease "finally commenced to inquire with reference to the suddenly and very vastly increased apparent prosperity of Mr. Fall, and he came before the committee and made a statement. Other evidence was offered and then he declined to go back before the committee but claimed the privilege of writing a letter. In the letter since it had been positively proven that Mr. Fall left here about the time he let his friend, Sinclair, have the Teapot Dome, he said as he left Washington with $100,000."

BRITISH LABOR PARTY ASSUMES POWER TUESDAY

Baldwin Government Will Resign Tuesday, Then Parliament Will Adjourn For Three Weeks

LONDON, Jan. 17.—A division on the Labor party's non-confidence amendment will be taken in the house of commons Monday night, it virtually was decided Wednesday. This means that the Baldwin government will resign Tuesday. Parliament then will adjourn, probably for three weeks, to allow J. Ramsay MacDonald to form a cabinet and get the ministers versed in the routine of their new positions before they face parliament again.

While waiting for the culmination of these developments, there is a sense of unreality and half-heartedness about the debates in the commons. The prime minister himself is said to be showing signs of weariness and apathy. Some of the Labor men Wednesday tried to hurry affairs, so in the event of railway strike materializing during the week-end, the Labor government should be in power to deal with it. But there are a number of Liberal speakers eager to make their case for supporting Labor's non-confidence amendment clear in the eyes of their constituents, and their speeches will occupy most of Friday's sitting, thus pushing the division over to Monday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Plea for repeal of many of the so-called nuisance taxes and endorsements of the Mellon tax plan were heard Wednesday by the House ways and means committee now drafting the new revenue measure. Parliamentary maneuvering preparatory to the fight on the bill when it is reported to the house abated pending outcome of the rules contest now being waged on the floor.

Attacks on present special tax rates before the committee today centered mainly on the automobile and accessories duties and those on theatre admissions.

Rep. Dallingier, of Mass., and Burgess of North Dakota, Republicans, urged repeal of all special taxes, the former suggesting a sales tax as a substitute. Mr. Dallingier also advocated raising the age limit from 18 to 21 years of children for whom tax exemption may be claimed in income tax payments.

Desire of house members to talk prevented another show-down to an agreement was reached to have a vote tomorrow on the main point of contention—how many names should be required on petitions for the discharge of committees.

Romantic Side of American Business Is Thorpe's Theme

The romantic side of American business will be the keynote of the talk which Merle Thorpe, editor of "The Nation's Business," will deliver before the Sanford Kiwanis Club, Jan. 23. Through his personal column, signed "T. in The Nation's Business," Mr. Thorpe is constantly citing cases of romance, and that the American business man has plenty of imagination. The following paragraphs which will appear in Mr. Thorpe's column of the February number of the magazine are illustrative of the editor's slant on this phase of business:

GREAT AIRSHIP SWEEP BY GALE DOWN COAST

SHENANDOAH ESCAPED IN 72-MILE WIND

TWENTY-ONE MEN SAVED

After Gallant Fight in World's Largest Dirigible Safety Through Storm

LAKELAND, N. J., Jan. 17.—The Shenandoah, largest airship in the world, pulled into Lakeland after 4 o'clock this morning after having been in running flight all Wednesday night. Not a man in her crew of 25 was injured. The great dirigible broke away from the mast during last night's storm with Captain Anton Buehler in a mad chase up to Staten Island and then Captain Williams turned her nose into both of the storm and maneuvered her home. Her nose was battered and she was somewhat scratched up. The gas bags had collapsed, covering of her upper wraps had been stripped off and the outer covering was rent nearly up to her nose.

The world's largest airship, the Navy dirigible Shenandoah, which was twisted loose from her mooring mast and swept along the Atlantic Coast by a gale that reached 72 miles an hour, was gallantly fighting her way home Wednesday night.

For more than an hour officials at the air station held out hope that she would ever be brought back safely. Finally, however, wireless messages indicated that the ship was under control and would ride out the storm. While it could not be learned definitely whether the attempt would be made to land her Wednesday night, Lieut. J. C. Sanderson, meteorologist said he believed the storm would die down before daylight and it might be possible to bring the ship back to her harbor. Every man and officer at the station was ordered to stand by ready to help with the landing should the ship return, while acres of land about the station were illuminated with huge search lights.

Last reports said the huge dirigible had passed over various New Jersey cities, including Newark, had flown so low at one point that the voices of her crew could be heard on the ground, had reached Staten Island, N. Y., and after hovering there for several minutes had turned toward New Jersey again in the direction of Lakeland.

"Well, Mike," he said finally, "I think you can take a chance. I talked to a couple of people who saw the show. From now on I think we eat."

PECANS WILL BE GROWN ON LARGE SCALE IN STATE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 16.—Pecans are growing in popularity and importance in Florida. Its culture promises to become a major industry in the northern half of the state, according to the State Agricultural Experiment Station experts in the culture of pecans.

G. H. Blackmon, pecan culturist for the experiment station, has prepared a brief synopsis of general instructions for the benefit of persons desiring to start plantations.
The pecan does best on a well-drained, fertile soil that is well supplied with humus, underlaid with good, strong, porous, clay subsoil 18 to 20 inches below surface, with the water table not closer than 10 to 12 feet from the top of the ground, the instructions read.

This land, before being planted, should be thoroughly conditioned by breaking and discing, and made ready to receive the roots of the trees and start them off growing under the best possible circumstances.

After the soil has been conditioned, the holes should be staked off not less than 60 feet each way. Pecans are transplanted during dormant season, the earlier the better. Possibly the best dates for Florida conditions are between December 1 and 15, it is stated. As soon as the trees are received from the nursery they should be unpacked and heeled in moist soil.
All the pruning necessary at planting time is just enough to balance the top and the root, favoring the latter to some extent.

SANFORD HIGH PLAYS ALUMNI FRIDAY NIGHT

(By F. A. Palmer)
On Friday night of this week the basketball fans of Sanford will have the opportunity to witness what promises to be one of the most contested games of the season when the alumni will return to the court and give battle to the Sanford High School quintet.

As everyone remembers the boys of the past two seasons are the ones who put Sanford on the basketball map and it is these same ambitious that have been putting in hours of practice and now come forth with a challenge that they can beat the high school.

The entire squad with exception of two men was graduated last year and so the present team is made up of entirely new material. But the coach has been driving his charges during the last two weeks in an effort to produce a winner and one that will uphold the standard established by the teams of last year and the year before.

The game will begin at 8 o'clock at the Grammar School court. The high school has been struggling to pay off the debts of their athletic teams. It seems that Sanford hasn't taken the proper interest in one of her largest assets, the high school. In what way may we advertise to better advantage and get more publicity for our money than through our high school? Last fall our football team was one of the largest advertising mediums we have had in several years and what did it cost the people of Sanford? Nothing. Come on fans and get behind this high school in all branches of athletics and push it forward whether its teams win all of the contests or loses them all. Be there Friday night and be a booster.

RICKARD'S SCALP IS TARGET OF THE N. Y. POLITICIANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Tex Rickard thought he had seen everything. Tex has lived life as is privileged few of the mortals. Jack London would have found him a made-to-order character for one of his western thrillers.

A cow puncher in Texas, a gold miner in Klondike, a faro gambler in Goldfield, a soldier of fortune in South America, and, finally, a sports promoter at once powerful and picturesque, Rickard has had an eventful stirring career.

But he errs when he thinks he has seen everything. He hasn't seen the intricate inner mechanism of New York politics. The boys are just about ready to show him. And if they go about it in their usually gifted manner Tex will realize that cleaning out a Nevada saloon with whining bullets was a mere incident in his life.

Rickard has grown too big for the game in New York. He is no longer just a promoter; he is something that approaches an institution. Other promoters may announce championship fights but the public remains unresponsive. Let Rickard bring two burly brutes together in a title battle and the turnstiles crack under the strain.

The public has confidence in Rickard. His record shows few busts. All of his fights, from the first Gans-Nelson struggle on the far-flung Nevada plains up to the Dempsey-Firpo massacre have been on the square. Rickard, level-headed, a straight shooter. That's why the public is for him.

Realizing the security of his position Rickard, it is said, has not sugared the politicians in the extravagant manner to which they are accustomed. Very little graft has rolled out of the Madison Square treasury into the gilded fists of the ward heelers. Even in the matter of complimentary a strict and laudable economy has been practiced.

Wherefore the boys have decided that Rickard must go. The first shot in the campaign of effacement has been fired. A gifted orator in the state legislature has urged that a maximum admission price of $7 shall prevail at all future championship fights. If this goes through Rickard's spectacular career will automatically end. And if it doesn't go through the boys intend to introduce another bill designed to kill boxing outright.

Rickard in his younger days—he's 53 now—knocked himself out of many desperate situations. Most of his foes, however, fought out in the open in unstanding, man-to-man fashion.

Politicians, we are told, look with disfavor upon his vulgar, primitive practice, and if the public's favorite promoter gets anything better than a raw deal in his present difficulty it will be because someone made a mistake.

CLEVELAND FANS ARE DISSATISFIED WITH RECENT RED SOX-INDIAN DEAL

CLEVELAND, Jan. 17.—Despite newspaper reports to the contrary, Cleveland fans regard the recent deal between the Indians and the Boston Red Sox as a "good one for the house of Fohl."

Wamby and O'Neil, local favorites, have been with the Fifth City team for a decade. They are no longer in their prime, and if the club officials wish to trade them for George Burns in an effort to strengthen the team around the initial back, that was their business, the fans here believe.

But no one knows why the local clubs should throw in Connolly and Boone, both promising players. The consensus of opinion among local fans is that Boston would have received the better of the deal even though that club received only Wamby and O'Neil in exchange for the Boston trio.

Baseball followers declare that the Indians should never have traded Burns in the first place. They wanted McNish, but when they acquired him he lasted only one season. Then they wanted one of the three players used in a trade for him back on their team.

"They'll give some other good players to Boston next season to get Wamby or Connolly back," one fan declared. "This club, in my estimation, makes trades without thinking, and it costs dearly to rectify the mistakes."

All four players sent to the Red Sox will be used to advantage by Manager Fohl. Connolly may be used regularly in the outfield. He is a dangerous batter, a good fielder and possesses a strong and accurate throwing arm. Boone is a promising pitcher and should win the majority of his games with the Boston team. Nothing need be said relative to the ability of O'Neil and Wamby.

On the other hand Cleveland obtained Burns. The other two players coming here will not strengthen the local club. Walters is a good catcher but a weak hitter. Fewster never was a good hitter. Fans are inclined to believe that neither will finish the coming season with the Indians.

"In Myatt and Sewell we have two receivers who can both catch and slug the ball," another fan declared. "Stephenson is a dangerous batter and can play second with any of them. We don't need the players Boston gave us. It would have been much better had we kept Connolly and Boone." This seems to be the opinion of a majority of Cleveland baseball fans. They are sore at the deal and are not endeavoring to conceal their anger.

McMillin Is Favored by Centre Officials

DANVILLE, Ky., Jan. 17.—Dr. C. E. Allen, chairman of the athletic board of control at Centre College and three other members of the board Tuesday are reported to be in favor of offering the position as head football coach to "Bo" McMillin, former Centre gridiron star and for the last two years coach at Centenary College. The board meets Tuesday night during which meeting it is thought Charles Moran's successor will be named.

McMillin, formerly as a coach here before he went to Centenary, having coached the basketball and track squad of 1922 with good success.

The last legislature abolished the death penalty by hanging and substituted electricity. The death chair is being erected at the state prison farm at Raiford, and all executions will take place there when the apparatus is ready early in the spring of 1924. A plant of high power is being put in for its deadly and unpleasant duty.

BIG MOMENTS OF SPORT

About 5 o'clock of the pleasant afternoon of Aug. 23 at the Polo Grounds, a competent auctioneer might have drummed up an offer of as much as three cents (Mexican) for the Giant chances to win the ball game against the Chicago Cubs. It was a Sunday, and, as the poet lath it, "A goodly throng was there."

It was the ninth inning, and the Cubs were leading 3 to 2, with two men out. A moment later young Travis Jackson hit an easy bouncer to Barney Friberg at third base. As the agile athletes say, the ball had handles all over it. Barney had the ball and the game well in hand, but in a fatal moment he heaved the sphere high, wide and hand-some in the general direction of the upper tier, and Jackson dashed to third base before the recreant ball could be recaptured.

It was Snyder's turn to bat, but he was requested to give way to Jack Bentley, a left-handed hitter. The Cincinnati Reds were relentlessly pursuing the Giants in the

BRACKEN CHOSEN TO CAPTAIN THE FLORIDA U. NINE

GAINESVILLE, Jan. 16.—Howard Milton Bracken, popular University of Florida athlete and per-race for the National league pennant at this time, and the loss of a game was a serious matter. This point was urged upon Bentley, who was implored to drive out a single and score the tying run. His fellow players begged him to consider the importance of a single. The fans clamored for just one little base hit. A game that is tied is a game that may be won. It is by winning one game after another that at team gets into the world's series, and the players thereof cut in on juicy slices of the financial melon.

Revolving these pleasant thoughts in his mind, John O. Baltimore strolled to the plate, settled his spiked shoes in the dirt, bunched his shoulders and knocked the first good pitch on a dead line into the far right field stand for a home run that won the game and transformed a hopeless defeat into a thrilling triumph.
