Good Friday, Easter Sunrise Services Are Scheduled

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Special Good Friday and Easter Sunrise services are scheduled at various churches and locations throughout Seminole county.

The Sanford Area Ministerial Association will sponsor a community Good Friday "Three-Hour Service" beginning at noon Friday at the First Baptist Church of Sanford, 519 Park Ave.

Shortly before 1 p.m. the participants will proceed to the First United Methodist Church of Sanford, 419 Park Ave., carrying a large wooden cross. At 2 p.m. the final portion of the service will begin at Holy Cross Episcopal Church, Fourth Street and Park Avenue.

Speaking on the Seven Last Words of Christ will be the Rev. Paul Murphy, pastor of the First Baptist Church; the Rev. Gary DeBusk, pastor of Ravenna Park Baptist Church; the Rev. Leo King, pastor of the First United Methodist Church; the Rev. D. Virgil Bryant Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church; the Rev. Peter Courlas, pastor of Sanford Alliance Church; the Rev. Edward Johnson, pastor of the First Christian Church; and the Rev. Leroy D. Soper Jr., rector of Holy Cross Episcopal Church.

Other ministers taking part in the service will include the Rev. Edwin Weber, associate pastor of the First Congregational Church; prayer; the Rev. Richard Vitolo, assistant pastor of the First United Methodist Church. Scripture reading; Capt. Carl Phillips, Salvation Army, prayer; the Rev. Barbara Muller, assistant at Holy Cross Episcopal Church, scripture reading; the Rev. Ralph Lunnon, pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, prayer; and the Rev. Phil Waiseman, president of the Sanford Area Ministerial Association, benediction.

Soloist Richard Holtzclaw will sing "The Holy City" and Ophelia Boatner will sing "His Eye Is on the Sparrow."

The service is open to the public.

Other Good Friday services include the following: Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, 2525 Oak Ave., Sanford, 7:30 p.m. Messiah Lutheran Church, 510 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, Casselberry, 7:30 p.m. Sanlando United Methodist Church, State Road 434, Longwood, noon. Community United Methodist Church, Highway 17-92, Casselberry, 7 p.m. Ascension Lutheran Church, 351 Ascension Drive, Casselberry, 7:30 p.m., Lenten cantata by the chancel choir.

Several community Easter Sunrise services are planned and are open to the public.

The Sanford Ministerial Association will sponsor a Sunrise community service at 6:30 a.m. Easter Sunday at the Seminole High School stadium.

The speaker will be the Rev. Mark Weaver of the Pinecrest Baptist Church, Sanford.

Special music will be provided by Cathy Crossan, minister of music and youth at the Ravenna Park Baptist Church, Sanford, and Robert Gannon, minister of music and youth at Pinecrest, who will also lead congregational singing. Both are students at Stetson University, DeLand.

In case of bad weather, the service will be held in the Seminole High gymnasium.

Oviedo's annual community Sunrise service will be at 5:45 a.m. Sunday on the west side of Lake Charm, with all Oviedo area churches participating. The Rev. James Browdy of the Fountainhead Baptist Church will speak. John Ulm of the South Seminole Christian Church will preside. There will be special music by Gracia Miller and The Believers.

The annual community Sunrise service in Geneva will be at 6 a.m. Sunday at Summersill's Hill, with the Rev. Gary Isner of the First United Methodist Church, Geneva, as speaker. Other churches in the community also will participate.

Other churches planning Sunrise services are as follows: First United Methodist Church, 6:30 a.m., Centennial Park, Sanford. Holy Cross Episcopal Church, 7 a.m., Fourth Street and Park Avenue, Sanford. Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 6:30 a.m., 2917 Orlando Drive, Sanford. Covenant Presbyterian Church, 7 a.m., U.S. 17-92 at Lake Mary Boulevard, Sanford, in conjunction with Seminole Heights Baptist. New Zion Hope Missionary Baptist Church, 5:30 a.m., Orange Avenue and Eighth Street, Sanford. First Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, 6 a.m., 1101 W. 13th St., Sanford.

Also, Messiah Lutheran Church, 6 a.m., 510 N. Highway 17-92, Casselberry. Community United Methodist Church, 6:30 a.m., U.S. 17-92, Casselberry. Neighborhood Alliance Church, 6:30 a.m., at The Springs, State Road 434 west of Interstate 4. Sanlando United Methodist Church, 6:30 a.m., in the court yard at State Road 434 and Raymond Avenue, Longwood. Ascension Lutheran Church, 6:30 a.m., 351 Ascension Drive, Casselberry on lakefront next to church. Ecumenical Galilean service, 6:30 a.m., Fountain Lake, Zellwood Station, with the speaker in a boat.

Spending It Seminole's Local Governments Eye Tax-Hike Money

By JOE DeSANTIS
Herald Staff Writer

It's going to cost Floridians a penny more when they step up to the cash register as of May 1, but Wednesday's state legislative vote to hike Florida's sales tax a penny will mean increased revenues for county and local governments.

Local governments will receive half of the additional revenues generated by the board. We've been operating on a bare-bones budget," he said.

Chacey indicated that his recommendation to the City Commission on the additional revenue would be to split it between services and capital improvements.

But he noted that the city will not be experiencing any great windfall.

Chacey said he would recommend that some of the money be used for additional paving and drainage work and some for parks use while the city eyes how far the additional dollars will stretch to improve fire and police service.

"We could use the help there," he said. "In the last couple of years Longwood has experienced an annual growth rate of just under 1,000 people."

Winter Springs City Manager Richard Rozansky said he isn't quite sure what effect additional revenues will have for Winter Springs.

"I won't really know until I sit down and work on next year's appropriations," he said.

He said that according to how the legislative bill was written, 40 percent of the additional revenues will be used to lower tax millages and the City Commission will then decide on the remaining dollars.

"We can always use the money for roads," Rozansky said. "And eventually we have to face the fact that we need a facility to house City Hall and the Police Department."

"Right now the city is in excellent financial posture, but I can't say what or how much the sales tax increase will mean for Winter Springs," he added.

increase in the sales tax, with 40 percent of that targeted for property-tax relief.

Seminole County is projected to gain an additional $3.5 million — a 20 percent increase — for its 1982-83 budget through the tax increase.

Both county and city officials are eyeing the increased revenues as a means to improve services.

The remaining 60 percent of increased sales tax-generated revenues can be used at local discretion.

"We won't see any of the revenue until the first of the fiscal year (Oct. 1)," commented Longwood City Manager David Chacey.

"As far as Longwood is concerned, we can use the money right across the

Cash Allocated For Crime Lab, Mosquito Study

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Some $3.17 million was set aside for Seminole County projects in the state's budget adopted by the Legislature prior to adjournment Wednesday.

State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, said today the appropriations bill includes:

— $3 million for the new state crime laboratory to be built in Lake Mary.

— $100,000 to continue the blind-mosquito research program at the University of Florida's research center in Sanford.

— $70,000 to finish the removal of the chemical wastes stored on a 2-acre parcel off Airport Boulevard and Jewett Lane in Sanford.

Hattaway said that while language assuring the new Central Florida Crime Laboratory will be built in Lake Mary was removed from the legislation, he has a "gentleman's agreement" with colleagues and state officials that the new laboratory will be constructed there.

Currently, the Sanford Crime Laboratory, which the new facility is to replace, is housed at Sanford Airport. Its new site is to be 2 to 3 acres of a parcel owned by the city of Lake Mary off Rinehart Road.

The $3 million allocated will pay all the costs of constructing a new facility. Earlier, state officials had favored an Orlando area location for the lab.

Similarly, the $100,000 to continue the mosquito research program is also considered of great importance not only to Sanford but to the entire county, where the blind mosquito has migrated over the years. The pesky insect also has created problems in many other areas of the state.

The research program is designed to find an ecologically safe method of controlling the non-biting insect. Dr.

Arshad Ali of the University of Florida has been conducting research for more than three years into the pest.

The $70,000 for the waste-chemical cleanup conclusion is of prime importance to the city of Sanford. Circuit Judge Kenneth Lefler some months ago ordered City Chemicals Co. Inc. of Orlando to remove waste chemicals stored at the Sanford site for the last 17 months. And he instructed the state Department of Environmental Regulation to lend the firm the money at 18 percent annual interest to remove the chemicals and clean up the property.

The additional allocation was necessary to complete the job.

In other business during the last day of the special session Wednesday, Hattaway said, State Rep. Dick Batchelor, D-Orlando, with assistance from other Central Florida legislators, was able to defeat a congressional reapportionment plan for Seminole and Orange counties. Hattaway said Gov. Bob Graham will be calling the Legislature into another special session in June to work on congressional reapportionment again.

He said the plan, prepared by the senate, would have split Seminole into two congressional districts and Orange into three. "It was created not only to help incumbents, but also to create a district for Sen. (Sherrill N.) 'Pete' Skinner (D-Lake City)," Hattaway said. He said that congressmen will now be putting pressure on legislators to draw and adopt an acceptable plan. "The congressmen do not want the federal court to draw a plan," he added.

Hattaway also said that a one-cent increase in the sales tax passed by both houses of the Legislature on Wednesday will bring Seminole County property owners some $2 million to $3 million in property-tax relief.

County Offices Will Close Friday

The Seminole County Courthouse and all county offices will close Friday in observance of Good Friday. The Altamonte Springs City Hall will be closed, and there will be no garbage collection in the city that day. Other cities in the county will not close their offices.

County schools, which have been closed this week for spring vacation, will remain closed, and the county School Board offices will be closed Friday as well.

Financial institutions, post offices, and state and federal offices will remain open.

3 Masked Gunmen Grab Cash At Sanford Store

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

Donning white sheet masks and gloves, three armed bandits robbed a Sanford convenience store Wednesday night and fled with an undisclosed amount of money.

Earl A. Weaver, 51, of Longwood, and Paul P. Wright, 23, of Sanford, both employed as clerks at the Phillips 66 food store, 1201 Airport Blvd., told Sanford police three men entered the store at about 10:01 p.m. and demanded the money.

After Weaver and Wright handed the three gunmen the store's cash, the bandits fled from the store on foot through a wooded area directly behind the store, police said.

Deputies said no one was injured in the incident and that store personnel are expected to notify them of the amount of money stolen when an inventory is conducted.

Tuesday's armed robbery marks the 16th such offense this year in Sanford, according to Sanford police records personnel.

Sex-Education Charge Examined

A complaint filed by an Altamonte Springs evangelist with the U.S. Department of Education (DOE) charging the Seminole County School System is illegally teaching sex education in the public schools has been referred to the agency's Civil Rights Division.

The Rev. John Butler Book, of the Northside Church of Christ, filed the complaint early in March, saying sex education is being taught without prior parental approval in violation of federal law.

He asked the DOE to determine whether federal funds should be cut off to the school system until the violation is corrected.

The DOE Office for Civil Rights in Atlanta has assigned an officer to take "appropriate action" on the complaint. The caseworker was not available for comment today on what action, if any, will be taken.

The Rev. Mr. Book said today he will be corresponding with the Atlanta office to see what additional information the agency might wish.

At the same time, Assistant School Superintendent Dan Dagg said the school administration has not been officially notified of the complaint.

Early in March Mr. Book told the School Board a parent informed him that sex education was being taught at South Seminole Middle School. School Superintendent Bob Hughes denied it.

A parent, Mrs. Karen Hart, 235 Hayes Road, Winter Springs, told Mr. Book her son, Michael, a sixth-grader at South Seminole, was shown a sex-education film without her permission. She said the film, shown in Mrs. Sunny Hammond's six-grade health class, "showed changes in the human body as it becomes sexually aroused."

Mr. Book said he has received additional complaints since Mrs. Hart stepped forward.

The minister said that while the local School Board ignores his advice, at least two members of the Orange County School Board are seeking his assistance in combating sex education, "and they are concerned about what they can do to stop smoking on school campuses and the drug problem."

While school officials have insisted that sex education doesn't exist in the Seminole school system, they do agree that human reproduction is taught as part of health courses in the middle schools and biology courses in the high schools.

Mr. Book said the problem specifically revolves around sex-education courses and classes that open the door for the invasion of privacy in both the students' and the parents' lives.

Mr. Book, at the March School Board meeting, said that while he is vociferously opposed to sex education in the public schools, the opposition does not extend to the usual biology or anatomy classes taught to high school students.

"I'm talking about secular humanism stating that premarital relations are not necessarily to be condemned—the new concept of teaching without morals. These classes can be more provocative than preventative. It's a philosophy of life contrary to the Judeo-Christian ethic," he said.

Mrs. Hammond said that in the human-reproduction portion of the health-education course at South Seminole Middle School, she urges students to go home and discuss what they have learned with their parents. "And we never use the word sex per se," he said.

Pizza Behind The Scenes

The local pizza parlor — it's the kind of place where parents bring their children, teen-agers stop by on dates, larger groups celebrate birthdays and anniversaries. The food is inexpensive; the counter service is friendly and the proprietor entertains with banjo sing-alongs on the weekends.

On April 14, "Middletown" will take viewers behind the scenes at a family-run pizza franchise in Muncie, Ind., where the energy and camaraderie of a large, close-knit family are tested by the long hours and pressures of a small business.

Directed by Tom Cohen,

HOWIE SNIDER
...family business

"Family Business" is the fourth presentation of "Middletown" on PBS. The six-part documentary series is airing on consecutive Wednesdays through April 28. (Local times may vary; check listings.)

Probing situations that relate to fundamental areas of American life, "Middletown" is made possible by grants from underwriters, including the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Ford Foundation and the Indiana Committee for the Humanities. WQED Pittsburgh is the presenting station.

Howie Snider is a retired Marine Lieutenant Colonel. His life now revolves around his family and his Shakey's Pizza franchise where he, his wife, Judy, and their eight children are all employed. Ranging in age from 25 to 14, several of his children have families of their own, others are attending college.

With the franchise in jeopardy, Snider immerses himself in attempts to boost business, entertaining his clientele, making radio commercials and keeping a keen, managerial eye on his children. He retains his hopeful determination to see the business succeed despite all difficulties.

As they pour their labors into the pizza parlor, his sons and daughters question whether the demands of the enterprise do not exceed the rewards.

Importance Of Kind Words

By RUTH THOMPSON
You hear the sentence often from nominees for Oscar and Tony awards: "It isn't the winning that counts, it's the recognition by my peers."

ALLEY MILLS

But there is one kind of recognition that counts even more: the combination of kind words and useful examples from an older actor of reknown.

It can happen at many stages. Kevin Dobson, now of CBS's "Shannon," got his inspiration just as he was about to give up acting.

Alley Mills, currently seen Mondays in CBS's "Making the Grade," already had a sure stage technique but was shaky about her first television job (in "The Associates") when she got her reassurance.

Anthony Andrews was already star billed (in the television series "Danger, UXB") when an evening's talk about theater and its people "gave me a sense of acting history and of being part of it in a way I have never felt before."

Kevin Dobson tried acting at his sister's urging and got tradition of having them scattered around with the props.

"He would shuffle a stack of papers and there would be his lines. Once I wore some pinned to me. It's his thing, I think it amuses him... and he's such a good actor it always works. I adore him. Everybody does."

Oh, Alley will continue to memorize her scripts, but she intends to copy other Hyde-White characteristics. "Because he is such a gentleman he is always kind at the same time he is being a thorough professional."

Anthony Andrews says his greatest memory happened in Venice when "Brideshead Revisited" (the recent PBS series) was filming on location with Andrews as Sebastian and Sir Laurence Olivier as his father.

"Larry was not very well but he insisted we dine together just the same. We demolished several bottles of wine on a beautiful summer evening and he told me wonderful stories about his introduction to films, about his 'Henry V,' and about theater."

a role on stage in "The Impossible Years," which starred Tom Ewell. Dobson recalls: "One day I went along to hear Tom talk to some students about what acting meant to him. He made it so clear, I realized I felt the same way. Then I would watch him on stage and he would give me tips on how to get the feel of each audience and vary the timing accordingly."

Alley Mills says she's telling no tales out-of-school by mentioning that Wilfrid Hyde-White doesn't bother to learn lines, that he follows the John Barrymore

What's Happening In Soaps?

By NANCY M. REICHARDT
NEW YORK — Wired for Sound, the fictional nightclub on "Guiding Light," has seen some exceptional musical talents pass through its doors in the past few weeks, including Judy Collins, the new wave group The B-52s and this week, Maurice Gibb of The Bee Gees.

Coming soon will be Ashford and Simpson, so keep a close eye on "GL" to catch more famous faces.

 "The Young and the Restless" has added the talents of Suzanne Zenor (ex-Margo Horton on "Days") in the role of Claire Lawrence, the institutionalized wife of Lorie's lawyer, Robert. Robert's teen-aged daughter, Angela, is being played by Liz Keifer.

Two more former "Days of Our Lives" favorites are once again appearing on the show. Margaret Mason is back as Linda Phillips and Corinne Conley as Phyllis Curtis.

"The Doctors" has undergone several changes in cast and production staff recently: Gerard T. Straub took over as executive producer, Stephen Burleigh replaced Ashby Adams as Mike Powers and James Douglas took over the role of Philip Manning.

Paul Sorvino: Actor, Writer Or Opera Star?

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Most men approach their mid-40s in a reasonably settled state. Generally, they pretty much know who they are, what they do and where they are going.

Paul Sorvino, the actor, is 43 now. But, far from being settled about his life, he says he is facing several years of indecision. Should he remain an actor? (And things are going well for him in that direction). Or should he, instead, go all out for the new career he has just discovered, opera singing?

"I am maturing late in life," says Sorvino. Opera runs in the Sorvino family. Paul had an uncle who was an opera singer. In fact, Sorvino determined to enter show business when he was 4 after witnessing that uncle's stardom.

But he concentrated on acting rather than singing. Even that ambition, however, was sidelined for a while.

"I was always big," says Sorvino, who is 6 feet, 3 inches tall — although, for some reason, people don't think he is quite that large. "And when I was young I had had found his niche in life. He became a fixture on TV and even had his own series "Bert D'Angelo-Superstar." And he became one of the most in-demand of the Hollywood character actors.

At the moment, for example, you can see him in Warren Beatty's "Reds," playing the part of Communist party leader Louis Fraina, and in "Melanie," as a crusading lawyer. Coming soon he'll be in "Off the Wall," as a tough Southern prison warden, and in "I, the Jury," as a police officer.

But, suddenly, the opera career has come to a head. About a year or so ago, Sorvino realized he shouldn't fight the fact that he has a high-pitched voice but, rather, he should capitalize on it. So he began singing with it instead of against it.

He has developed into a heroic tenor. And in the last year, he made his professional operatic debut with the Seattle Opera Company in "Die Fledermaus." He also gave a recital at New York's Town Hall. The reaction has been uniformly good.

a very youthful face. Plus the fact that I had a high-pitched voice.

"The face and the voice didn't fit the body. So I couldn't get work as an actor, because nobody knew what I was. So I went into advertising and worked in that field for several years."

He tried to sing, too, but that didn't work, either. "I had this high voice," he says, "and every man who has a high voice figures it is not masculine, so tries to change it. I tried to darken my voice and therefore I never sang correctly."

When he began acting, and did it successfully, he felt he

The Unusual Past Of Writer Steve Tesich

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — You see old men sometimes, with great, craggy faces and you wonder what they could possibly have looked like when they were young. They probably looked like Steve Tesich, who is still young, but in whom you can see the craggy old man he's going to be.

He has that jutting jaw, those wide cheekbones and heavy eyebrows, and you know when he gets into his 70s and 80s he's going to scare people with that great stone face. Right now he merely looks interesting; later he will look majestic. And if his writing keeps up, he will by then have a body of work that will be as impressive as the face. He is probably the most important of the young crop of screenwriters, even though his latest — "Four Friends" — has as many haters as admirers.

He shot to fame with "Breaking Away" and then did the less successful but still intriguing "Eyewitness." And now "Four Friends," which, like "Breaking Away," has a lot of autobiographical things in it. His next is the adaptation of the huge John Irving hit novel, "The World According to Garp."

Tesich's own life, touched on tangentially in those two movies, is probably more interesting than anything he has yet written. He was born in Yugoslavia — a town called Tilovo Uzice, somewhat south of Belgrade.

"When I was six months old," he says, "my father, who was in the Army, disappeared. Everybody in the family assumed he had been killed. Everybody in our town and throughout much of Yugoslavia were widows and orphans. All the men had gone off and been killed. On our street, only one boy had a father, and he felt guilty about it.

"So Yugoslavian society was a matriarchy, as the Balkans have always been because men were always going off to a war and getting killed. So the people are very nice to young boys — they were to me — because they feel they won't have them very long."

When Tesich was 13, they got the news that his father had survived and had, in fact, gone off to America. He was in East Chicago, Ind., working in a steel mill, and wanted his family to join him there. A year after they got the news, the family was reunited.

"I don't think I would have become a writer," Tesich says, "if we had remained in Yugoslavia. I'd probably have become one of the hangers-on, the men who do nothing in a matriarchal society because they don't have to, because the women take care of them."

But in the United States, he discovered writing, did some while an undergraduate at the University of Indiana, more of it as a graduate student at Columbia University in New York.

It was a struggle, establishing himself. He wrote unproduced plays and unpublished novels. He met and married his wife while they were both social workers in New York. He says that she took over much of his social work caseload, so he could write.

"I never felt guilty about that," he says, "because she seemed to be happy, she enjoyed the work and she enjoyed my writing, too. Of course, she is happier now, not working, and she is doing some writing herself these days."

The Tesiches live now in Colorado, in what he says is "a shack," about an hour's drive from Denver. He says they both got tired of city life a few years ago and piled everything they owned into their VW bus and headed west to look at the mountains they had seen pictures of.

'Chicago Story' Certainly Is No 'Hill Street Blues'

By DAVID HANDLER
Outwardly, NBC's "Chicago Story" bears more than a passing resemblance to the network's "Hill Street Blues." It has a huge cast of regular characters that includes a tired, idealistic middle-aged Italian guy with a big nose, a woman with brains who is played by a gorgeous ex-fashion model and a racially mixed cop team that is always bickering.

The sets are seamy, the tone tense, the cameras hand-held. Everyone has personal problems, and everyone else cares. The two most frequently asked questions in "Chicago Story" are "Hey, are you OK?" and "Would it be better if I left?" Inwardly, "Chicago Story" bears no resemblance to "Hill Street Blues." It has none of that show's depth, intelligence, sensitivity or ensemble acting talent. It is merely a routine hour cop show that has been stretched to 90 minutes by adding a half-dozen extra regular characters and 50 percent more chatter. A dynamite theme song and location shooting in Chicago may make it seem like fresh goods at first, but it isn't.

"Chicago Story" examines the lives of three lawyers, three cops and two doctors. Lou Pellegrino (Vincent Baggetta) is our nice guy public defender. Ken Dutton (Craig T. Nelson) is our not-so-nice assistant state attorney. Megan Powers (Molly Cheek) just sort of seems to practice law. She has a dog. Nice, big dog.

Out on the streets we have Joe Gilland (Dennis Franz), a chubby, tough cop on the beat and our sparring plainclothes partners, O.Z. Tate and Frank Wajorski (Richard Lawson and Daniel Hugh-Kelly). Then, in the emergency ward, we have the delectable Dr. Judith Bergstrom (Maud Adams) and the hard-charging Dr. Max Carson (Kristoffer Tabori).

All eight of them seem to know each other, though we don't know how or why. Maybe they met on the Love Boat.

"Hill Street Blues" has a central arena — the precinct house — to keep its top-heavy cast together. "Chicago Story" doesn't — its cast is spread all over the Windy City. "Hill Street Blues" has serialized plots built around all of the regular characters so as to showcase them. "Chicago Story" has only one plot, which is wrapped up in 90 minutes.

Thus, most of its creative energy is consumed by trying to shove, kick and cram its diverse population into a single story. Go ahead — try to think of a plot that will use all of those people. The producers have actually managed to do it, but only by employing a dubious device — one of the leads is made into a victim. You can't do that every week, but they try.

In the opening episode, Gilland is gunned down by a liquor store hold-up man. He shoots one of them in the process. Both are rushed to the hospital, where the doctors try to save them. Meanwhile, the other hold-up man rushes in, holds them all at gunpoint — bringing in all of the other cops — and demands to talk to his lawyer, who is Pellegrino. Tate and Wajorski are part of the police team trying to rescue the hostages, complicated by the fact that Gilland was best man at Tate's wedding.

Pretty nifty hat trick, huh? Well, they try again in the next episode — Megan observes a vigilante murder in the park and herself becomes hunted. Her car is blown up. The cops are brought in. Her lawyer friends rush to her side. Only the hospital is left out, but that is solved by having Gilland stroll over there to talk to one of our doctors about the pros and cons of artificial insemination. Not too good.

It's hard to get involved with any of the "Chicago Story" principals. They all seem to have peripheral roles. After watching three episodes the only performer who I thought stood out was Maud Adams. At first I thought it was because she gets more mileage out of her four lines per episode than the others; then I realized it's simply because she is taller.

Gospel Music Is Next For Barbara Mandrell

DEAR DICK: Can you please find out if Barbara Mandrell has recorded any gospel records and, if not, will she be recording any soon? D. Whitney, Tucson, Ariz.

MCA Records, the company that records Barbara, tells me she is planning an album they call "contemporary Christian" for release this summer. "Contemporary Christian" is the term they are using these days for "white gospel." It's really gospel, but done by white artists — although Barbara will have some black gospel stars, such as Andrae Crouch, as guests with her on her album.

DEAR DICK: I'd just like to know what happened to Dionne Warwick on "Solid Gold" and why they replaced her with Andy Gibb. Carrie Rittler, Williamsport, Pa.

Ask Dick Kleiner

According to people who know, there were several reasons for that change. As my informant put it, "the nicest reason" was that they opted for a younger host for the show, figuring that that way they would attract a younger audience. But Dionne is considered to be a hard woman to work with, and that undoubtedly was a factor in the change.

DEAR DICK: About a year and a half ago, I read an article in a newspaper that Ken Curtis (Festus) of "Gunsmoke" had died. Just recently I saw him on the series "Code Red." Please settle my confused mind. Scott Rasley, Washougal, Wash.

DEAR DICK: After watching an Alfred Hitchcock movie on TV, my brother and I had a dispute about whether or not Mr. Hitchcock was alive or dead. Could clear this up for us? Laura Hillard, Portage, Mich.

DEAR DICK: Please settle a disagreement between me and my wife. She says that Alan Ludden of "Password" has died. I say he is still recovering from his stroke. What is the situation? A.J. Snyder, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Hitchcock and Ludden are dead. Ken Curtis is still living.

Blindness On 'WKRP'; More 'Blues'

Tom Sullivan, who has been totally blind since birth, will guest star in an episode of "WKRP in Cincinnati" to be broadcast Wednesday, April 14 on CBS.

Sullivan plays an advertiser who pulls his business from "WKRP" after the station messes up his shampoo ad. In hopes of wooing him back, Jennifer (Loni Anderson) goes to see him, thinking her pretty face and feminine wiles will help to make amends.

"It's a wonderful script," said Sullivan. "The subject matter is delicate and very human. The scene with Loni is one-on-one. There is nothing else going on, no movement. It's all based on vocal nuance, and your concentration has to be intense."

"Hill Street Blues," NBC's acclaimed multiple-Emy-winning police drama, was the network's first series to be renewed for the 1982-83 television season. Twenty-two episodes have been ordered.

Next fall will mark the third season on NBC for "Hill Street Blues," which won a record eight Emmy awards last season.

Windsurfing—The Best Of Both Worlds

A Daring Combination Of Sailing And Surfing

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

For surfing and sailing enthusiasts who can't quite make up their minds which sport they enjoy more — why not do both at the same time? Take the plunge and try windsurfing.

I tried it and I liked it. However, when a friend told me to "take the plunge" I didn't realize the directive would be so literal.

Not one person have I met who has ever tried windsurfing and mastered this daring sport of balance, courage and skill without, at least once, falling into the drink.

My first introduction to the surfing-sailing sport came in my senior year of college. I had heard of the sport and had seen the sails perched atop large surfboards but had never tried it.

With little coaxing necessary and a great desire to get out of that little college town for the day, we headed for the lake and a breezy afternoon of windsurfing.

First, you have to rig your board. There's an art to mounting the sail on the mast and then attaching it to the board but with a little instruction, it only takes a few moments.

The only other equipment you'll need is the dagger-board which is placed in the center of the surfboard to steady it in the water.

Most shops that sell windsurfing equipment are willing to provide instructional assistance on assembling the craft. Strictly Sail, located in the Monroe Harbour Marina, Sanford, is the only distributor of the surfing-sailing craft in Seminole County, according to area water-sport shop owners.

Strictly Sail carries the AMF Windlite sailboard which costs about $995, store personnel say.

However, the boards vary in price elsewhere and there are dealers in Florida who rent boards, they add.

In the case of a dozen poverty-stricken college students, we chose to rent a few boards for the afternoon. And it wasn't long until many of us had the hang of it. At least we were staying afloat.

"If there's a breeze and a wave upon the water you can windsurf," our instructor said.

I have to warn you though, windsurfing is not a breeze. It is challenging and requires a good sense of balance and common sense as to which way to turn the sail to propel you and your craft into the desired direction.

But, once learned, windsurfing offers an incredible feeling of freedom. You are a part of your craft, spinning around the mast with foot-work Muhammed Ali would envy, stealthily and gracefully gliding the board across the glassy waters. You lean back toward the water, grasping the control bar stretched across the midpoint of the sail, capturing a gust of wind which pulls you with a burst of speed. Your body is practically lying on the crystal blue water and a cool breeze wafts through your hair.

The ever-increasing popularity of windsurfing takes to the waters of Sanford's Lake Monroe as these daring surfing-sailing enthusiasts demonstrate the beauty and skill of maneuvering their crafts over the waves.

Then, suddenly, the wind stops. What do you do?

Well, if you are like me, inexperienced in this new, delightful sport — you take the plunge. Then, once again, jump atop the board, pull the sail from its resting place in the water and go for the gusto one more time.

However, if you are an old hand at maneuvering these sailboards, you quickly guide your craft to a more stable position, turning to allow what breeze there is to engulf the sail, sending you aimlessly along on your watery adventure.

The key here is practice, perseverance and patience — the three P's.

Like any other sport, to be good at it, you have to "hang in there." But even if you don't want to make windsurfing your lifetime goal, it can still offer an enjoyable recreational outlet for every member of the family.

When I was windsurfing on a lake in north Georgia with some college friends, there were eight-year-old kids and 50-year-old grandparents trying their hand at the sport and, I might add, with much more ease than I.

Find some water, a relatively simple task for Sanford residents living near Lake Monroe. Grab yours: if a board, and sail and set off on a very unique, exhilarating adventure. I promise, if you like water sports and you enjoy outdoor recreation, you'll love windsurfing.

So Much Confusion Surrounds Sugar

DEAR DR. LAMB — You just had a column about sugar not being addictive. Then why do people crave sweets? Isn't it true that too much sugar will keep your body from using other nutrients properly such as vitamins and minerals? You said sugar was in all carbohydrates but isn't the difference whether it is a natural food or not? Can you live without using any sugar?

To help you get out all this health news...

I am sending you The Health Letter number 19-4, Sugar and Sweets: Good or Bad. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR READER — There is lots of confusion around about sugar. Some of the widely distributed writings are by people who do not have any scientific background. One of the best known self-appointed authorities who appears on TV and writes books has a doctor's degree based on a thesis studying the response of female listeners to his radio program. He had written ad copy for a company selling vitamins.

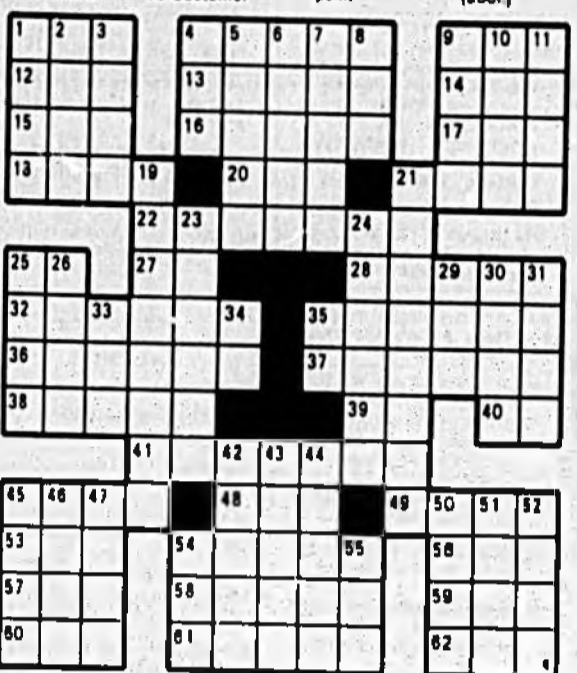

Sugar is a natural food. It is a purified product from the sugar cane or sugar beet. More recently it is made from corn.

You could say by strict definition that people do become addicted to food. If you don't eat you certainly have both physiological and psychological symptoms. But addiction is usually applied to drugs. Sugar is not a drug. It is a basic food. As I have stated before, it is sucrose made up of glucose and fructose. These are the same two sugars in honey, fruit, vegetables and cereals.

No, glucose and fructose do not interfere with your body using vitamins or minerals whether these two single sugars are in sucrose or in an apple. The danger remains that sugar, as a refined food, does not provide minerals or bulk. But you can get the bulk from whole grain cereal, usually eaten with sugar and other natural food sources of bulk.

Is it possible that distilled water will dissolve excess calcium in the human body? DEAR READER — No. That is either a phony sales pitch or the salesman had changes unrelated to distilled water that occurred as a coincidence.

There are lots of studies that suggest that some minerals in water actually improve health. Distilled water has no special medicinal value. If you need to limit sodium to an extreme degree it might be useful. Your own body forms pure water each time it breaks down carbohydrate, fat and protein into carbon dioxide and water. If a person doesn't like the taste of his water he can usually buy distilled water at the grocery store.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

April 10, 1982
This coming year you are likely to make several important changes in your basic lifestyle. Benefits may start slowly, but they'll accelerate with time.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in dealing with your commercial contacts today. Business conditions are rather tricky at this time because of possible misunderstandings. Find out more of what's ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to include birth date.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a chance you could agree to something today where you know, going in, it doesn't serve your best interests. Unwise commitments should be avoided.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't let pleasurable diversions get you off-course today to where you may fall to attend to tasks that should have priority. Work first, play later.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) If you are planning a social activity today, exclude people who do not get along well with one another. They could spoil the event.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Strive to be tolerant and forgiving with family members today, even when they do things that you've asked them not to. Coming down hard won't help. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Financial matters could take unusual twists today. You could be on the short end rather than being the one who gains. Be careful. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Normally you're generous and giving, but today you might surprise associates by being stingy about something trivial. It won't help your image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you'll be well aware of your financial limitations and budget, you may still spend more today than you should, only to regret it later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is one of those days when you could be kind to the undeserving while overlooking those you should be good to. Keep people in perspective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Do nothing today that could lead others to believe you're only being nice because you need them. Act with sincerity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your possibilities for getting your own way today look good, but you may pay too high a price to justify the ends. Be sure your goals are worth it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid associations today with people whose targets are not in harmony with yours. They'll waste your time and set you back as well.

Sometimes it is the result of bad bidding and play by the other side who go out of their way to earn their bottom score.

North's four heart bid was made to shut out East. He didn't really think that his partner would make the heart game, but he was very much afraid of the spade suit and wanted to shut his opponents out.

West opened his singleton queen of diamonds and all South had to do was to take dummy's ace, draw trumps, knock out the king of diamonds and eventually discard his seven of spades on dummy's long diamond to chalk up an overtrick.

Of course, there was no defense against four hearts, but at most tables East bid spades and got to four. Some Easts made four spades and others managed to make three down one, but none of those scores were as good as this North-South 450.

It wasn't a top. At one table North and South reached four hearts after a long competitive auction. This declarer only made 10 tricks, but East had doubled him. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

We have been discussing lucky top and bottom scores. Sometimes a top is earned by good bidding and play.

Top DLE Agent Suspended For Drunk Driving

MIAMI (UPI)—A Clark, agent in charge of the Miami

A decision will be made next week on Clark's future in his $35,000-a-year job as supervisor of 34 agents between Miami and Palm Beach.

Clark was arrested last weekend after Hollywood police found him passed out behind the wheel of his Jeep.

He was taken to a police station, where he flew into a rage, overturning chairs and a table, police said, and then was handcuffed to a table until he calmed down.

Clark, 30, is charged with drunken driving and destroying public property. He would not comment about the incident.

Department Commissioner James York, said the "seriousness" of the case "is obvious."

"There are two issues here," he said. "One is the level of confidence the subordinates place in a person in Joe's position. (The other is) the level of confidence the public has in the Florida Department of Law Enforcement."

Clark has worked for the department for 14 years. York said he has been "a valued, trusted, loyal, competent employee."

6 Filipinos Re-Enact Good Friday Crucifixion

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—Six Filipinos, including a man who seeks divine guidance in the search for his American father, were nailed to wooden crosses today in Good Friday reenactments of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

"My God forgive us, my God forgive us," shouted Donald Rexford Jr., 36, grimacing in pain from a 14-foot wooden cross where he was nailed in Mandaluyong, a working class suburb of Manila.

A minute later Rexford's cross was lowered and two stainless steel nails driven through his palms were removed. He was driven to nearby Manila Bay to wash his wounds.

The "crucifixion" was the third time in as many years that Rexford, who seeks divine guidance in finding his American father, reenacted Christ's death on the cross.

"This year is my last," said Rexford, a bearded carpenter whose father was an American serviceman in the Philippines during World War II.

Reporters attempting to contact Rexford's father found Donald Rexford, a truck driver in Pontiac, Mich., last year. The elder Rexford told reporters in Pontiac that he was assigned with the U.S. Army Air Corps in the Philippines during World War II but denied he left a son behind there.

Five other Filipinos, including two women, reenacted the "crucifixion."

Mario Castro, 29, of San Pedro Cutud, Antonio Garcia, 21, of Santa Lucia, and an unidentified man in Balanga, in Bataan province, went through the crucifixion ritual before crowds of thousands, police said.

The most spectacular of the ceremonies was in Manila's Kapitangan square, where Laximinda Decamora, 30, and Luciana Reyes, 24, were nailed hand and foot to wooden crosses.

The two women clad in purple robes said they had talked to God, who told them to re-enact the Calvary to wash away the sins of humanity. Miss Decamora hung on the cross for 20 minutes.

No Violin Visitation

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI)—A federal judge, in the middle of a dispute over the ownership of a $250,000 Stradivarius violin, ordered the instrument locked in a bank vault until the controversy is settled.

The order issued by U.S. District Judge William Siecker prevents two of the defendants from moving or damaging the violin.

Charles Webb, dean of Indiana University's School of Music and the third defendant in the case, placed the violin in a vault at the Bloomington National Bank.

The dispute started when a complaint was filed by Pierre Devaux, a Belgian citizen currently in the United States, that stated he owns the violin.

...Tornado's Winds Cause Heavy Damage In Sanford

terally sucked out and blown to the floor, where they both were lying there side by side looking just like a jigsaw puzzle, squarely intact, but shattered throughout so they resembled an assembled puzzle.

Knowles said city crews were working feverishly this morning to clean up the damage. He said that many trees were turned trees, some of them lying across the width of the streets, making them impassable.

"We still have a few streets completely blocked off this morning. Third Street east of Sanford Avenue is one of them. Lots of powerlines down and the power companies are working hard, too, to get the streets cleared. What a mess!"

At the Lake Monroe Inn along the lakefront, heavy winds and what the owners described as a tornado smashed through the restaurant-lounge, causing an estimated $35,000 damage.

Tony and Louise Costantino, the owners, said the first storm hit their building shortly after 3 p.m., ripping shingles off the roof and creating leaks in the ceiling. Costantino said there were about 15 customers in the restaurant's bar section when the first storm hit, but there were no injuries. He said he and his wife and other employees were the only ones in the building when the second storm hit around 5 p.m. "That one was definitely a tornado. We saw it coming from the lake. First it was green, then it went pitch-black and it roared like a train."

They said the second storm, when the tornado slammed into their building, ripped up a section of the roof, demolished one of their signs outside and caused rain to come pouring through the ceiling "just as hard as it was raining outside." Flooding much of the building inside.

Constantino said the restaurant-lounge will probably be closed for five to six days during repairs.

At the National Guard armory on E.

First Street in Sanford, activated personnel were on hand through the night and this morning cleaning up.

Sgt. Keith Hinckley of Sanford said heavy winds ripped huge chunks of roof shingling from the building and smashed in large windows in the front.

He said it would be a few days before repairs could be completed and Hinckley said five or six personnel were put on full-time duty by the state to assist in the cleanup.

The local Guard unit, the Second Battalion, 124th Infantry, was not called to duty, Hinckley said, but several personnel were at the armory from 9 p.m. Thursday and until this morning. He said that while there were no reported injuries, several residents called the armory for assistance in reporting damage to homes, but "that was only because they couldn't get through to police. We directed them to various agencies," he said.

Meanwhile two Seminole County damage-assessment teams were surveying public and private property in both city and county areas today to compile a preliminary damage estimate.

County Administrator Roger Neiswender said the damage estimate will be forwarded to Tallahassee as the basis for seeking state and federal assistance for citizens and local government.

"This must be done before federal or state government can declare a disaster zone. If the zone is declared, low interest loans for repairs will be available to property owners and local governments," he said.

Even though today was a holiday for county employees, Neiswender said dozens were called back to help out in the crisis.

Sanford City Engineer and Utility Director Mack LaZenby was on the lakefront near Fort Mellon Park when the first storm hit.

"If it wasn't a tornado, I never want to see one," he said today. "The wind was howling. It was bad. One tree took out the water line at Palmetto Avenue and Seminole Boulevard."

Damage estimates to city-owned property were not completed this morning. LaZenby said the storms are being described as worse than the 1960's Hurricane Donna.

LaZenby said the city utility system storm much better than he would have suspected.

He said part of the Civic Center roof was blown off. Some windows were destroyed at City Hall and a leak developed in the roof, dumping water into a hallway next to the computer room. The computers were covered with plastic for protection. And Fort Mellon Park was leveled.

City crews, working under an emergency plan, kept the city water and sewer system operating, LaZenby said. "All plants were kept functioning, some with emergency power."

"The old library on First Street came through the storm just fine," Percy said. He said the windows blown out of the courthouse may be replaced by Tuesday. He said that because of the design of the double windows, a crane will have to be brought to the site to replace them.

City's Merchants Clean Up After Devastating Blow

By JANE CASSELLBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Downtown Sanford merchants were busy this morning cleaning up and assessing their losses in the wake of Thursday's storms which spared few of the downtown buildings from damage.

"It blew the sign off our building and there is almost $2,000 damage to the store windows alone," said Kathy Slames, store manager for the Dollar Store on First Street. There was also considerable water damage to the store's stock. "We will survive, we'll be open Saturday for business, we hope," she added.

"I was trying to keep the front doors from blowing open when the store windows went 'pow,'" said Mrs. Rose Jacobson, owner of Ros-Jay's dress shop. "All the windows were broken upstairs and our shoe stockroom was flooded. We won't have a window display and there's a bit of mess, but we're open."

Charles Tetenbaum, owner of Manuel Jacobson's, said that damage to his store was mainly broken plate glass windows, but there was some water damage to merchandise.

Helen Hickey, owner of the HMH Gallery, said that she had gone home before the second storm hit Sanford blowing out the front window and tossing around the art work on display. "Some of our stuff was blown all the way to Second Street," she said.

"This broken stained glass piece was worth $600 and the head is missing from this $850 wood sculpture. We had 500 pieces of art and are trying to salvage what we can."

At the Volkshop on Second Street plate glass windows were blown out of the office, the corrugated roof was riddled by the hail which also damaged cars, and a heavy steel door was blown off. "This half-inch solid steel bar through the door was bent and twisted like a pretzel," said Marvin Wright, owner of the business who leases the building. "There was no way to secure the place, so I spent the night in my camper," he said.

"There was six inches of water in my parts room," he added. "There is $7,000 in $9,000 worth of parts and a good half has been water damaged."

Dr. Richard Dougherty, optometrist, was in his office at 303 First St. when the plate glass window shattered and his new drapes blew out and wrapped around a pole in front of the business next door. "There was hail piled up to the baseboards in my waiting room," he said.

There was considerable damage to Seminole Memorial Hospital in downtown Sanford. A hospital spokesman estimated there is $5,000 damage in broken glass, $2,000 to the print shop roof; $3,000 to the emergency tower antenna; and $3,000 structural damage inside.

At the new Central Florida Regional Hospital nearing completion on Mangoustine Avenue, an office trailer, belonging to a sub-contractor, Davis Mechanical Contractors was blown over and the Rogers Construction trailer was moved off its base.

Sanford city employee Ray Turms was just drying off from a shower at the Civic Center when he heard the roofing ripping off the building. "We just put a new roof on a couple of years ago and it cost a mint then, I don't know what it's going to cost now," he said. Damage was done to the stage roof, the main roof, and half the dome in the auditorium and all of the roof in the youth wing, he said. Five windows were broken.

The tornado came across Lake Monroe hitting the Monroe Harbour Marina and the Holiday Inn. Bill McVay, owner of Strictly Sail, surveying the tangled sailboats, yachts and trailers, estimated damage to the crafts would range between $50,000 and $60,000. There were 20 sailboats and yachts damaged. One 1200-pound boat did a double somersault across the parking lot.

At Monroe Harbour the owner of a catamaran suffered a broken tooth when her craft was tossed up against the seawall, McVay said.

The metal roof was blown off at the marina and landed across the street by the civic center. Two boats were sunk and there was considerable glass, and structural damage to other craft.

The roof of the Monroe Harbour building was totaled and the aluminum canopy ruined. There was water damage in the office and showroom. Jim Griffiths of Shoemaker Construction Co. estimated damage to the building would run at least $50,000.

A houseboat belonging to Bill Witt had the whole top blown off and everything in the forward cabin was ruined, he said.

Although much of the downtown damage happened during the storm shortly after 5 p.m., it was a storm two hours earlier that hit the Evening Herald at 300 N. French Ave. Publisher Wayne Doyle said today he considers himself fortunate. He had just gotten up from his desk and was walking into the lobby when a plate glass window shattered scattering glass throughout his office.

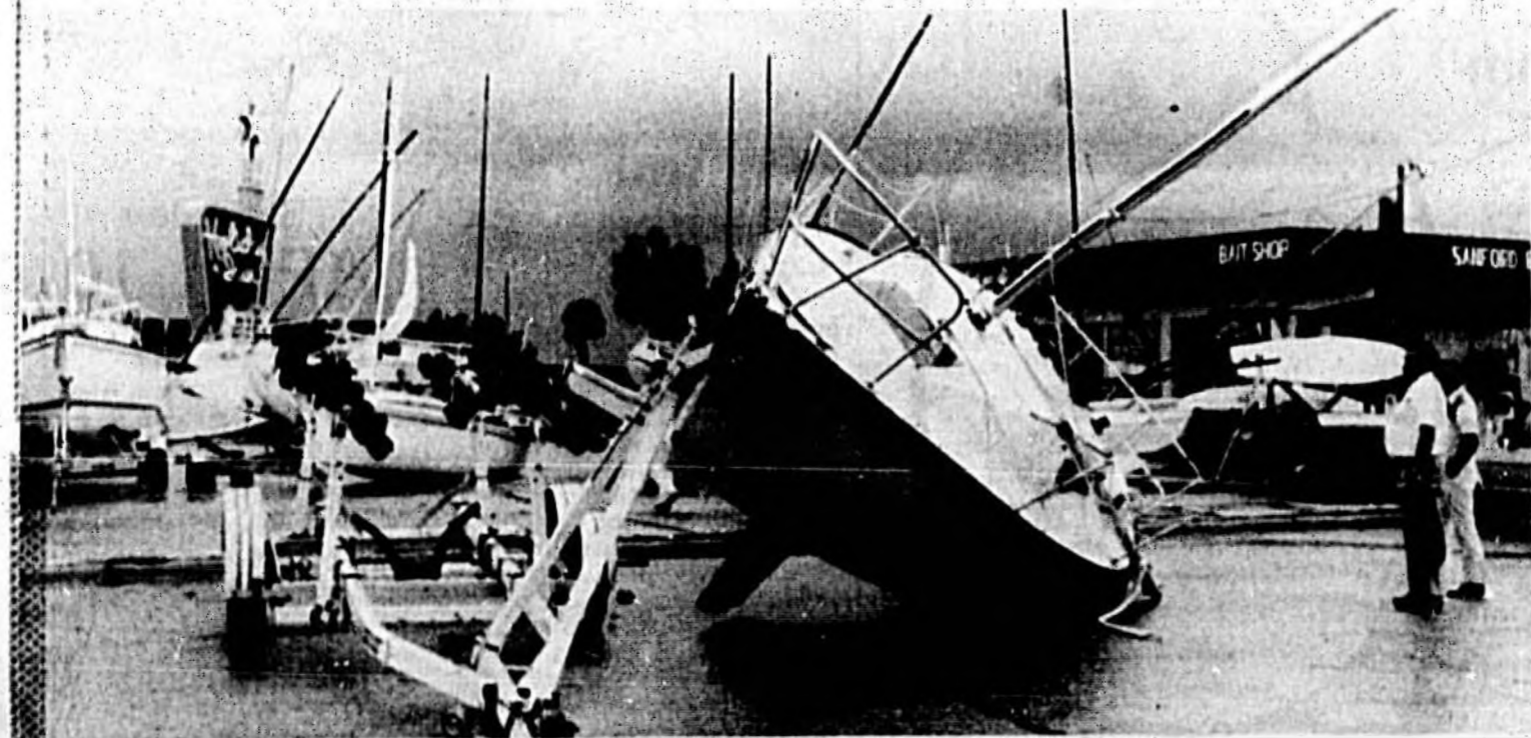

Doyle said there was some water damage and roof damage, but he considers it minimal.

"We had a very high percentage of calls," he said. "I would say there were well over 200 calls between 3 and 5:30 p.m. Thursday, and we dispatched cars to about 50 of them that required a response."

Spolski added that numerous deputy patrol vehicles were damaged by hail and wind and that the department's classroom trailer was overturned, causing extensive damage to the mobile structure.

"Some planes at Sanford Airport also were damaged extensively by wind and hail," Spolski said. "Three of the Seminole Flying Club's planes were extensively damaged and planes along the runway were damaged. I also heard of a Lear jet that was damaged by the storm."

Sanford and Seminole County fire and rescue workers echoed the comments of area law-enforcement officials saying that although no one was seriously injured in the storm, many homes and businesses suffered extensive damage.

Is George Wright Man For Mays?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oh, no, not another Willie Mays.

"I know there'll never be another one," concedes Tommy Helms, the Texas Rangers' coach who played against him nine years, "but every day in some way this kid will show you one of those very same instincts Mays had."

Tommy Helms is talking about switch-hitting, George Wright, 23, the same exciting kid who has Manager Don Zimmer and all the rest of the Rangers buzzing, after hitting safely in 17 straight games this spring and winding up with a .318 batting average that helped earn him the center-field job.

Last week, with Mickey Rivers due to go on the 21-day disabled list because of a knee injury, Zimmer called Wright into his private office at the Rangers' training quarters at Pompano Beach, Fla.

"We're putting Mickey on the disabled list," Zimmer told Wright. "You'll be starting for us in center field on opening day."

That should have been Tuesday at Yankee Stadium. But that game and Thursday's rescheduled contest with the Yankees were wiped out by snow and cold weather. Now, George Wright, who has never been to a big-league game in his life, will play in his first one Saturday when the Rangers open against the Indians in Cleveland.

"I'm not nervous yet, but I imagine I will be," says Wright, who was signed by Hal Keller out of high school in 1977 and hit .260 with Tulsa in the Texas League last season.

"All the guys on the club couldn't have helped me more than they did," says Wright. "Every day, Mickey would keep on telling me, 'Go out there and play — if you couldn't play, you wouldn't be here.' Guys like him ... did a whole lot for my confidence."

He also did something for theirs, too. As an example, in a game against the Atlanta Braves at West Palm Beach, he came up with a defensive gem that was vintage Willie Mays.

With the scores tied, the bases full, one out and the Braves at bat in the bottom of the ninth, Zimmer pulled all his outfielders in, almost right up to the infielders' backs.

Brett Butler, the Braves' outfielder, then drove one to deep center.

Burt Hawkins, the Rangers' PR director, goes all the way back to Walter Johnson's time and let him tell you what happened:

"Butler hit the ball deep enough to do the job," Hawkins says. "Claudell Washington, who can run, was on third and it was such a foregone conclusion he'd score easily."

"Somehow, Wright streaked back and grabbed the ball on the fly, then turned and made a tremendous throw that doubled Washington at the plate. We lost the game later on, but that play by Wright was an eye opener."

The fact Tommy Helms would see anything in him to remind them of Willie Mays leaves Wright hardly knowing what to say.

"I idolized myself after Willie when I was small," he says. "To me, there was no other player in the world like Willie Mays. I still feel that way about him even though I've never met him."

When he left home to join the Rangers this spring, Wright's mother, Doris, told him not to be nervous and do the best he could.

"We'll be praying for you," she said. She's planning to be at Arlington Stadium in Arlington, Tex., when the Rangers open at home against the Yankees next Monday night.

Meanwhile, her son is giving more thought to his first big league ball game in Cleveland.

"I'd like to get a couple of hits and make a few good defensive plays," he says, eagerly. "But I don't really care what I do — just so long as we win."

He even sounds like Willie Mays.

Knights Name Peterson Director

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

A whole bunch of media people showed up at the Orlando Chamber of Commerce building Thursday.

The University of Central Florida named former Florida State football coach Bill Peterson its new athletic director after a long, long, long process in which committees were assembled and disassembled like jigsaw puzzles.

UCF President Dr. Trevor Colbourn introduced

Peterson to the gathering with the following: "Three years ago some people believed we took a foolhardy step by starting a football program, said Colbourn. "They thought it was a rash move. "I feel like we're almost starting a whole new athletic program here with Bill Peterson," beamed Colbourn. "It's very gratifying to see him here."

Peterson, citing the challenge at tackling the UCF position, has some big ideas. "I'm 61 and I feel like I'm 41," said Peterson. "I feel like a man again getting back into athletics." For the past few years, Peterson was chief fundraiser for the Florida State program. He also did the color on the radio broadcasts.

"We're moving into Division II this year, then a couple of years at Division I-AA and then on to Division I," said Peterson. "I think that this is the most beautiful school in the state and in four or five years we'll be playing the big (Florida, Florida State and Miami schools)."

Rain Masters Tourney

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — The Masters golf tournament resumed first round play today with a former champion in the lead and almost went to two before Seve Ballesteros bogeyed the final hole to finish a stroke behind Fuzzy Zoeller.

However, Zoeller's lead appeared in jeopardy since five-time Masters champion Jack Nicklaus birdied his first hole of the morning and was standing at 1-under with three holes left to play. Defending champion Tom Watson had been 1-under through nine when a driving rainstorm halted first-round play Thursday afternoon, but started out bogey-bogey this morning.

Zoeller grabbed the first-round lead Thursday when he was the only golfer to match par while playing in rain and unseasonable cold but 36 in a starting field of 78 hadn't finished.

The first round resumed at 7:30 a.m. EST, with the second round expected to begin about 11:30 a.m. Normally, all Masters play is in twosomes and starts from the first tee but because of its late start today, the second round will be played in threesomes — with half starting at No. 1 and half at No. 10.

The forecast for today called for rain to end in the early morning hours followed by sunny skies and temperatures in the 60s and sunshine broke out for the first time in two days about 8:30 a.m.

Ballesteros, by shooting a 1-over 73, moved into a six-way tie for second place that included another late finisher, reigning U.S. Open champion David Graham.

Celery City Printing Rolls Off 2 More Wins

Celery City Printing Co. continues to roll soccer victories off its machine.

Celery City, also known as Sanford 480, printed two more soccer victories to run its record to 5-0 and a first place position.

Against city rival Sanford 400, the Celery crew broke loose for six first-half goals and five second-half tallies to hand Kiwanis an 11-0 licking.

Tim Roberts scored twice in the first half and once more in the second half for the hat trick. Matt Albert assisted on four goals and kicked one. Durrand Richards booted two, Hall Posey, Tom Chernestky, Sheldon Richards, Kevin Tossi and Carry Smith had one each.

Goalie Chris Smith turned in the first-half shutout against Kiwanis and followed it up with a whitewash performance against Pine Hills 481.

Durrand Richards boomed home three goals and two assists as Celery City wasted 481, 8-0. Tim Roberts added two goals as did Matt Albert. Steve Sapp booted one. Posey, Roberts and Sapp had assists.

Sanford 480 wasn't the only team to remain unbeaten. Coach Gene Williams' Sanford 800 knocked off two opponents to improve to 5-0 and Wayne Albert's Sanford 201 Celeste Industry jumped to 4-0-1 with a pair of wins.

Sanford Soccer Club

An 11-man goal effort by Southeast Orange 801 held 800 at bay during the first half, but elusive Josh Letchworth kicked two second half goals to give 800 a 2-0 triumph.

"We had an outstanding team effort," said Williams about the victory. "We had good control of the ball."

The next week Sanford blanked Winter Park 802, 4-0.

Speedy Chris Ray zoomed Celeste to a quick start in its 11-0 trouncing of Maitland 281.

Ray scored the first two 201 goals and assisted on a third by Chandler Tyre as Celeste built a 5-0 halftime lead.

Danny Bachrach and Steve Edwards added first-period goals on passes from Winn Hodgins. Ray picked up the hat trick with an assist from Hodgins, who then added his first tally of the year for a 7-0 lead.

Scoring machine Alex Piquer, Nick Pastis and Troy Deppen then ran off goals before Mitch Albert closed the scoring on a feed from Mike Altizer with a corner kick.

"Chuck Roll only had one shot on goal in the first half," said Albert. "And Danny Bachrach didn't have any shots on him in the second."

"Halfbacks Eric Miller and Charlie Butler did super jobs too."

Against Pine Hills 281, Deppen, Ray and Rusty Smith booted goals for a 3-0 victory. Piquer and Hodgins added assists.

Sanford outshot Pine Hills, 14-4. Jason Helmadollar tallied an unassisted goal to lift Sanford 200 Boatworks to a 1-0 victory over Downtown Orlando 201. The win improved Boatworks to 4-1.

A week earlier, coach George Lasher's 12-year-old outfit blanked Winter Park 282, 4-0.

The biggest turn around in the Sanford Soccer Club came from Sanford 080 New Smyrna Speedway, who was lodged with a 2-3 mark, but picked up two victories.

Jason Feuerhahn took a pass from Tim Waisanen and booted a goal with one minute to play as 080 nipped Winter Park 061, 2-1.

Greg Dean had an unassisted goal for Sanford and Barry Coleman turned in an outstanding defensive performance.

he feels there are more than enough athletes to go around.

"When I was coaching in Tallahassee, there were only about 35 football (high school seniors) players in the state and everybody wanted them," said Peterson. "Now there's around 200 to 250 players. There is plenty for four schools."

In addition to being head coach at FSU (1960-70), Peterson coached the Houston Oilers (1972-74) and was an assistant at Louisiana State for five years under Charlie McClendon.

A Crisis Revisited?

If recent threats from Moscow are to be believed, a new Cuban missile crisis may be brewing unless NATO concedes, in effect, Soviet nuclear dominance in Europe.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev recently proposed a freeze in theater nuclear weapons — a formula that would perpetuate the Soviet Union's current 4-1 edge over NATO in intermediate range nuclear weapons. Thus, for example, the Soviets would retain their 300 SS-20 mobile missiles while NATO would be prohibited from deploying the appropriate counter — U.S. cruise and Pershing II missiles.

Should the freeze be rejected, Brezhnev added, the Soviet Union would be "compelled" to place U.S. territory in an "analogous position." Given the fact that Soviet submarines armed with nuclear missiles already prowls off the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, the only way to accomplish that would be to place Soviet nuclear missiles in land bases somewhere in the Western Hemisphere.

To underscore the point, two ranking Soviet officials repeated Brezhnev's threat. Again, Cuba was not mentioned, but the logical inference was clear enough: New American missiles in Western Europe would mean the deployment of Soviet missiles close enough to pose a comparable threat to the United States. Where else but in Cuba, or, conceivably, in Nicaragua?

The Reagan administration has responded by noting that any deployment of Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba would violate the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement that ended the first Cuban missile crisis 20 years ago. And Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said on March 19, three days after Brezhnev's warning, that the United States would do "whatever is necessary" to prevent the placing of Soviet missiles in Cuba.

Although President Reagan was less explicit at his recent press conference, his views undoubtedly conform to Secretary Weinberger's unqualified commitment to enforce the 1962 agreement.

We hope the administration has been every bit as tough in private communications with Soviet leaders. Clearly, the time to defuse this crisis is before it begins.

The first Cuban missile crisis occurred against a backdrop of overwhelming American superiority in strategic nuclear weapons and naval strength. Cuba could then be safely blockaded with little danger of interference by the Soviet navy. And any threat of nuclear war was vastly diminished, if not precluded altogether, by Nikita Khrushchev's knowledge that the U.S. nuclear arsenal exceeded that of the Soviet Union by a factor of at least 6-1.

Today, of course, that immense margin of safety in both conventional and nuclear weaponry is gone; a victim of the delusions of "detente" and the disastrous failure to respond to the Soviet military buildup during the 1970s. As a direct consequence, the United States would face any new missile crisis over Cuba at a dangerous disadvantage in strategic nuclear strength and with sharply diminished naval resources.

And even the 1962 confrontation saw the United States emerge with little better than a standoff. Khrushchev removed the Soviet missiles from Cuba, but the Kennedy administration subsequently dismantled NATO missile bases in Turkey. Moreover, Khrushchev's gamble effectively guaranteed the security of the Castro regime by successfully pressuring President Kennedy to agree to end efforts to subvert Moscow's satellite in the Caribbean.

Despite the heightened risk today, the Reagan administration has no choice but to stand firm. Agreeing to permanent Soviet nuclear superiority over NATO would destroy the credibility of the alliance's military deterrent, and with it what remains of NATO's political cohesion. And countenancing the deployment of Soviet nuclear missiles in Cuba would further erode an already disadvantageous strategic balance even as it sent disastrous signals about American resolve and credibility around the world.

Why Iran Worries Analysts

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Most of us have not thought much about Iran since the American hostages flew to freedom 15 months ago.

But while Iran may have been largely forgotten by the news media and the public, that country has remained much on the minds of U.S. intelligence analysts.

These days they are increasingly worried about what they view as a Soviet-Iranian rapprochement and about the Reagan administration's lack of a clear-cut policy toward the Persian Gulf region.

Most of us can recall when Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and his followers were denouncing the Americans and the Russians as "devils" in equal measure. The Iranians were particularly upset that the Soviet Union waited so long to endorse their revolution and that its belated support took the form of words more than deeds.

The new revolutionary government made a number of anti-Soviet moves — reducing the size of the Soviet Embassy staff, closing joint ventures such as the Russian-Iranian Bank and refusing visas for Soviets seeking to travel into Iran.

Today the Iranians are still denouncing the United States as a sort of public enemy No. 1. But the denunciations of the Soviets have pretty much stopped.

Moreover, the Iranians and the Soviets are talking about various joint projects and assistance plans. They have already embarked on several ventures.

The shift began with the Iraqi invasion of Iran in September 1980. The Iranians were caught totally unprepared and desperately needed help. They had nowhere to turn but to the Soviets given their deteriorated relations with the West and the support for Iraq among most of the Arab world.

Over the past nine months to a year, the Soviets have given the Iranians food and economic aid as well as badly needed spare parts for their military equipment. Since Iran's war machine largely consists of the Shah's U.S. purchases, it is believed that at least some of these spare parts have come from Vietnam via third countries in deals engineered by the Soviets.

The Soviets have also given the Iranians technical assistance. That includes one project of strategic importance to both the Soviets and the West: the building of a naval base on the Gulf of Oman near the vital Strait of Hormuz and the oil tanker lanes.

Construction of the facility at Chah Bahar began almost two years ago but came to a virtual halt with the Iraqi invasion. Now the Soviets reportedly have taken over the job in exchange for use of the base by their warships.

All of this aid has enabled the Iranians to devote more of their resources to the war against Iraq and thus has contributed to their recent gains on the battlefield.

Nevertheless, many U.S. intelligence analysts believe that Ayatollahs still harbor deep doubts about the giant on their northern border. These observers think that the Iranians are still feeling tentative and reluctant about this new relationship but that some new U.S. policies may drive them further into the Soviet camp.

Public Printer Has Self-Interests

WASHINGTON — The public printer has discovered an interesting way to feather his bureaucratic nest without breaking his budget. He would like to reduce public services and remodel his lair at the same time.

Danford L. Sawyer Jr., the man in charge of the Government Printing Office, wants to close 23 of the 27 regional bookstores around the country. This not only would deprive the people in these areas of government publications, but would throw dozens of federal employees out of work.

Sawyer would thus be able to build an empire and a palace fit for the king and his men while keeping his books relatively balanced.

Here are the details: Sawyer has been making room at the public trough for a passel of high-paid assistants to help him run his realm from the newly refurbished top floor of the GPO headquarters.

In other words, he is hiring chiefs and firing Indians.

Sawyer has been blatantly political in the executives he has put on the payroll despite a supposed hiring freeze. More than half of the 10 "Schedule C" appointees sharing the Sunday is Easter Sunday and across this broad, land of ours thousands will be observing the sacred holiday.

Although traditionally a pagan holiday, Easter has taken on at least two faces over the years. About 2,000 years ago one of those faces was that of Jesus Christ, whom Christians acknowledge as the basis of their faith. Christ was born, lived, was crucified and rose from the grave and ascended to heaven — thus, the celebration of His resurrection this Sunday.

The other face of Easter is the fuzzy, whiskered (and the cotton-tailed rabbit which delivers eggs, baby chicks and bunnies to children and adults) of the eve of Easter Sunday.

For all those interested in egg hunting this weekend, local civic groups, cities and the Central Florida Zoo have something special planned:

— An Easter egg hunt is planned for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Altamonte Springs Civic Center for children ages 1 through 7. The hunt is sponsored by the South Seminole Jaycees.

— An Easter egg hunt is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at the Westmonte Recreation Center, 500 Spring Oaks Blvd., Altamonte Springs, compliments of the city of Altamonte Springs. The hunt is open for preschool through third grade children. About 300-400 eggs will be hidden and prizes will be awarded to those finding the hidden eggs.

— Also, the Central Florida Zoo will hold its annual egg hunt from 10 a.m. until 12 p.m. Saturday. But, kids wishing to hunt for eggs must bring their own baskets. For additional information call 223-6421.

The Sanford Sports and Hobby Stores are sponsoring an egg hunt at Fort Mellon Park, on First Street, at 1 p.m. Sunday. The hunt is divided into three age groups: ages 1-3, 4-6 and 7-8. The grand prize of a $50 savings bond from the Flagship Bank of Seminole will also be awarded at the hunt Sunday.

— The Federation of Senior Citizens Club of Seminole County is also sponsoring two egg hunts and Easter hat contests at two of their congregated meal sites in Sanford for participants of the meal program.

According to Project Director Sally Dykes, an egg hunt and hat contest will be held at 10 a.m. today at the St. Paul's Church, 813 Pine Ave., with participants of the Oviedo and St. Paul's Church meal program.

Also, participants of the meal program held at the Knights of Columbus meal site, 2504 S. Oak Street, will hold a hat contest at 11:30 p.m. today.

Entrants in the hat contest have made their hats themselves and prizes will be awarded for various categories of the competition. Ms. Dykes said. For additional information, call Ms. Dykes at 831-1831.

— According to Sanford Parks and Recreation Director Jim Jernigan, several area churches have indicated they will be holding egg hunts. Residents are encouraged to check with their local church offices to find out times and locations of the hunts.

Tax Law: A Catch 22

By LeROY POPE
NEW YORK (UPI) — The 1981 tax law may make corporate giving harder this year instead of easier, says the Investor Responsibility Research Center in Washington.

The new law raised the limit on deductions for corporate philanthropic contributions from 5 to 10 percent, but there's a real Catch 22 in the bill. It also liberalizes most depreciation allowances substantially.

That could reduce the taxable income of many corporations significantly, the research center said. The joker is that the deduction limit is calculated on taxable income so the more taxable income shrinks, the more the allowable limit for gifts falls. That could wipe out the percentage increase and reduce the incentive to give.

In any case, the Research Center says the chance of increasing the level of corporate giving from the 1 percent of pretax profit at which it has hovered since 1950 isn't very good.

The Business Roundtable, composed of 200 prestigious corporations, had urged that this be raised to 2 percent of domestic pretax profit. So have a number of local chambers of commerce. In 1973, the Filer Commission (the Joint Commission on Private Philanthropy and Public Needs) made a similar recommendation. President Reagan has urged an increase in the percentage without suggesting a specific figure.

Many companies do give larger percentages of their domestic pretax profit. The Research Center said that in the 1978-80 period, Allied Corp. gave 3.9 percent, Dayton-Hudson Corp. 3.7 percent, Weyerhaeuser Co. 2.3 percent, General Mills 2.2 percent, J.P. Morgan & Co. 2 percent, American Can 1.9 percent, Mobil Corp. 1.8 percent and IBM, Citicorp and Upjohn each 1.7 percent.

In dollar amounts, the top givers were IBM $55.2 million, and American Telephone & Telegraph and Exxon, each a little over $38 million. Other big ones were Atlantic Richfield, Mobil, General Motors, Standard Oil (California) and Sears Roebuck.

Foundations created by business firms also are big givers. Atlantic Richfield Foundation was the largest in 1980 with gifts of $27.26 million, followed by Exxon Education Foundation $18.09 million, General Motors Foundation $12.97 million, Mobil Foundation and Ford Motor Co. Fund $11 million plus each.

The Council for Financial Aid to Education put the 1980 corporate gifts of business to education, the arts, health and other good causes at $2.7 billion, up around 12 percent from the year before despite a $10 billion drop in total corporate profits.

"Enterprise", a magazine published by the National Association of Manufacturers, pointed out in February that most companies no longer look on philanthropy as a corporate side-show but regard it as an integral ingredient of good business.

The article said most companies give to local United Way funds, so in their direct giving tend to avoid those religious and other groups supported by the United Way.

The article gave advice to companies on how to evaluate requests for such direct gifts. It said corporate givers should insist on a precise description of the social, cultural, medical or other functions of the organization seeking the gift and make sure the lion's share of money goes to these purposes and not to staff salaries. A balance sheet and an IRS document proving the enterprise is a genuine tax-exempt philanthropy also should be required.

Ground Broken At Last

With any luck at all, the last battle of the Vietnam War is now behind us.

They broke ground in Washington the other day for a memorial to the war's veterans. Almost a month behind schedule, but considering the last-minute obstacles that had to be overcome, the turning of that first spadeful of earth rates as something of a monumental achievement in itself.

That wasn't the way it shaped up when the project got under way two years ago. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund, a private undertaking with strong official support across the political spectrum, was set up to raise funds. Congress donated a site on the Mall between the Washington and Lincoln memorials. A national design competition was held.

The winning entry envisaged two low walls of black stone meeting in a shallow "V" and engraved with the names of the more than 50,000 service men and women war dead and missing.

That's when the problems began. To critics, including some associated with the fund, the design was more than understated. It was seen as a negative comment on the war itself, "a place to go and be depressed," in the words of one opponent.

There were demands for flags, statues and inscriptions, additions that backers of the original design feared would be both artistically and politically damaging to the original concept of the memorial as an accommodation of all viewpoints on the still controversial war.

The secretary of the interior held up final approval of the design, the original groundbreaking date of March 1 passed and the battle raged on.

A negotiated settlement was finally reached. It calls for the additions of a flagpole at the apex of the two walls, a statue that is to be "a strong, commanding figure symbolizing all who served in Vietnam" and several inscriptions.

Two will be on the base of the statue. One is a quotation from Jeremiah Denton, current U.S. senator from Alabama and former admiral and prisoner of war in North Vietnam: "We are honored to have had the opportunity to serve our country under difficult circumstances... God bless America!"

The other, originally scrawled by an unknown serviceman author on a bunker at Khe Sanh, will read: "For those who fought for it, freedom has a flavor the protected will never know."

On the wall itself will be dedication prologue at the beginning of the names: "In honor of the men and women of the Armed Forces of the United States who served in the Vietnam War. The names of those who gave their lives and of those who remain missing are inscribed in the order that they were taken from us."

An epilogue will conclude the list: "Our nation remembers the courage, sacrifice and devotion to duty and country of its Vietnam Veterans. This memorial was built through the private donations of the American people. Dedicated November 11, 1962."

Legislation; another $48,000 was lavished on the office of the Deputy Public Printer.

My reporter Debra Becker dug up some examples of the profligacy with which Sawyer's decorators threw public money around. Ceiling tiles, for example, needed replacing, but not just any tiles would do. Sawyer's tiles were shipped from Florida at an expense of $60.

Then there was the carpeting. Government trucks were dispatched to pick up carpet in Lancaster, Pa., not once, but four separate times between Oct. 26 and Jan. 6. In some offices, the carpeting was replaced, even though the old floor covering was still usable. Carpeting was sometimes installed in the wrong offices, and duplicate purchases had to be made. The total cost of the carpeting was close to $19,000.

Walnut paneling, trim work and hand-crafted molding was ordered and paid for even before it was determined how much would actually be needed.

Possibly discovering that we were looking into his executive-suite renovation, Sawyer issued a pious press release on Jan. 29, stating that while he had been home in Florida over the Christmas holiday, "certain remodeling and refurbishing had taken place in these offices, which may not be justified by need, and need alone." He ordered his inspector general to look into the matter.

The implication that Sawyer's office had been gussied up without his knowledge is laughable, of course, but the IG investigation gave Sawyer an excuse for not answering queries from the press.

Sawyer has refused to make the IG report public. But he wrote a "summary" of it himself and sent it over to the Joint Committee on Printing, which has been investigating the matter.

Sawyer evidently feels that GPO is his private affair. During a hearing he complained to Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., that press inquiries have been "like the sword of Damocles" hanging over his head. Fazio replied: "Well, Mr. Sawyer, I would say that the system has risen up and smitten you."

Footnote: A major reason for wanting to close the government bookstores, Sawyer has said, is that they showed an overall loss of $111,000 in fiscal year 1981 — about half of what his renovations cost. In fiscal 1980, the bookstores showed a $600,000 profit.

Retrofit Existing Landscape To Conserve Energy

By ROBERT J. BLACK
IFAS Extension Horticulturist

Retrofitting refers to modifications made to existing homes to improve heat loss and gain through insulation, weatherstripping, etc. Retrofitting can also be applied to the addition of landscape materials to control the climate of your home.

As with a new constructed home you must first determine the orientation of your home in relation to the sun or street. The amount of retrofitting will vary with orientation.

Houses oriented with the long axis oriented north-south will require more extensive plantings for shade than houses with an east-west orientation. Provide shading as much as possible on east and west walls, since these will experience the greatest impact from the sun's rays.

Trees effectively provide needed shade. With proper pruning, trees may also have a favorable effect on air circulation. Proper placement of trees relates to the location of the sun during the time of high heat load. Latitude, time of day, and time of year are determinants for the location of the sun and for the sun's effect on shade direction.

Mass plantings of shrubs may direct or deflect wind direction. Shrubs may also provide shade to reduce glare and reflected radiation while the sun is low in the sky. Additional benefits may be derived from moderate reduction of noise and air pollution by using mass shrub and tree plantings. Skilled design avoids the problem of blocking needed air flow. Cold winter winds, however, can and should be deflected.

When space may not allow tree plantings for shade, vining plants may provide relief from solar radiation.

Trained on a trellis or arbor, vines may provide a canopy similar to tree canopy. Vines, however, do not require the ground space required by a tree. Of course, proper selection is essential to avoid excessive maintenance. The trellis or arbor should be placed to allow adequate air circulation.

Vegetated soil surfaces affect the air temperature in a favorable manner. Brick and concrete, on the other hand, reflect solar radiation and often cause discomfort from glare and heat. Asphalt absorbs solar radiation and re-emits the energy as long wave radiation. Surfaces which absorb more moisture, such as pine straw and wood chip mulch, reflect or re-emit very little radiation.

Concrete patios reflect and re-emit considerable amounts of solar radiation. A raised wooden deck is cooler because wood is a poor heat conductor and the raised design allows air to circulate underneath.

Driveways and walks are often concrete, brick or asphalt. Use of mulching materials, treated wood, or brick with interspersing ground cover will produce less heat build-up than large areas of hard, reflective surfaces.

Mulched areas and ground covers such as lily turf, mondo grass, ivy and dwarf Confederate Jasmine require less energy for maintenance than turf. When using turf, select a lawngrass most suitable to the site in order to reduce energy used for maintenance.

These passive energy conserving measures can decrease a homeowner's dependence on air conditioning. Wise landscaping results in substantial savings to the homeowner in their monthly utility bills as well as helps reduce state and national energy consumption.

Myron Krom Marks 75th Birthday

Myron Krom of Winter Park was honored Saturday with a very special 75th birthday party at the Geneva home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sini.

The festivities started about 1:30 p.m. with a barbeque luncheon, and climaxed later in the day when 18 relatives and friends enjoyed cake and ice cream with Mr. Krom while he opened gifts.

Those joining the Sini and Mr. Krom Saturday were: Tony and Carol Sini, his grandchildren, his daughter and son-in-law from St. Petersburg and their children, Mr. and Mrs. James Schwarzkose (Myrna), Elizabeth Marshall and JonJon Schwarzkose, Marian Yonkers, Helen Benzle, David Puffer, James and Marge Bourroughs, Sophie Sikes, Pearl and John Lawrence, and Ruth Brady.

Mr. Krom is the youngest of 11 children and has several sisters and brothers living in the North. He moved to Florida over 20 years ago, is a free lance carpenter and works in the maintenance department of the Winter Park Towers.

The Resurrection will be celebrated in an inter-denominational service Sunday at 8 a.m. on the west end of Lake Geneva on First Street.

and coffee.

About 80 people crowded the Community Hall Monday evening to hear Chief Deputy Dwayne Harrell and Capt. Roy Hughey explain how the sheriff's department assigns priority in answering calls received from citizens, give statistics on the number of burglaries in the Geneva area, and answer questions from those present.

The host organization, Geneva Citizens Association, had invited Sheriff John Polk to the meeting, but he was unable to attend because of ill health.

The citizens group planned this month's meeting in a continuing effort to reduce the number of crimes that have been plaguing our community.

According to GCA's secretary, Loraine Whiting, Mr. Harrell reported there had been 23 burglaries reported in Geneva from September, 1981 through March, 1982. Seven of these crimes have been solved.

The Geneva Citizens Association's next meeting will be the first Monday in May at 8 p.m.

Gamma Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at the home of Debbie Brooks.

During the business meeting plans were made for an Easter Party including members and their children. The Annual Founder's Day Luncheon will be held April 24, at the Lake Monroe Inn.

Voting for the officers of Gamma Lambda chapter of Beta Sigma Phi's 1982-83 year took place at this meeting. New officers taking over in May are: president, Wanda Bronson; vice-president and City Council representative, Valerie Taylor; recording secretary, Debbie Brooks; treasurer and corresponding secretary, Darcy Bono.

"How Alive Are You" was the title of Debbie Brook's program. Members were asked a series of questions to which they answered true or false, depending on their lifestyle. The purpose was to learn more about your personality, to see if you are the daring — go anywhere on a whim person, or a cautious, well-planning person.

Arts, Crafts, Food Set At Annual 'Great Day'

The ninth annual Great Day in the Country Arts and Crafts Festival will be held again this year on April 24, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the grounds of St. Luke's Lutheran Church in Oviedo, State Road 426 near the Red Bug Road intersection.

For the past nine years this arts and crafts festival has attracted art lovers and artisans alike.

In addition to more than 75 arts and crafts, most of them for sale, there will be country food, drinks, games for children and local entertainment throughout the day for the entire family.

Look for the farm fresh vegetable booth with the best of the harvest brimming with just picked flavor. Nearby, sample the baked goods for the best of country cooks while you enjoy a relaxed good time under the oaks.

Those attending are advised to purchase lunch tickets early in the day to avoid long lines at noon.

Judges will select the best exhibits in several categories and prizes will be awarded by the sponsoring organization, Oviedo Woman's Club.

Proceeds from the festival will benefit local charities and the club facility which is used by local nonprofit organizations.

FIVE GENERATIONS

The Leisure Time Program at Seminole Community College is offering a course in "Photo-Darkroom Techniques," beginning April 21. Class will meet on Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m. for six weeks.

"Photo-Darkroom Techniques" concentrates on the study and application of the artistic process involved in developing and printing the black and white photographic image.

Through the manipulation of the photographic image by mastering the enlarger and chemical processes involved, you learn the art of enlarging and making prints. The purchase of some film is required; all darkroom materials are supplied.

The $25 fee provides for the instructional cost.

Poppa Lacking Pep Looking For Boost

DEAR ABBY: I am 65 and my wife is 67. We have been married 45 years and have always had a good sex life, but lately I have not been able to perform worth a darn.

I have been to our family doctor and he wants to send me to a specialist, but it would be embarrassing to tell our kids and neighbors what I was going for.

Abby, how about these old men who marry young movie stars? They must take something to give them extra pep. Do you know what they take and where I can buy some? Money is no problem.

I'm sure there are a lot of other men my age with this problem, so put your answer in the paper, but please don't use my name.

DEAR MISERABLE: If you weigh more than you should there's only one sensible way to attain your ideal weight — a combination of diet and exercise. However, you could have a medical problem that causes you to crave sweets and fat foods, so you should see a doctor for a physical examination and a sensible diet. The rest is up to you.

If your mother won't pay for it, earn your own money by baby-sitting or doing chores, but do see a doctor. And please write again in six months and let me know how you're doing. I care.

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor who works with my husband used to come here every morning at 7:25 to ride to work with my husband. It was working out fine, then he started to come a little earlier every day, until now he is having breakfast with us!

Mornings are a madhouse around here, as we have children to get off to school. Also, sometimes there are personal family matters I would like to talk to my husband about at breakfast, and there is no privacy with this man here.

How can this be handled? I'm afraid if we ask him not to come so early we might hurt his feelings.

NO PRIVACY AT 7 A.M. DEAR NO PRIVACY: Since he's a neighbor, why not suggest that your husband pick him up? If that's not convenient, simply be honest and ask him to please not come before 7:25.

Albritton, News Unions Suspend Buy-Out Talks

NEW YORK (UPI)—Publisher Joe Albritton, who once was a "buyer of last resort" for the New York news unions because they asked a rival publisher to buy the tabloid.

Negotiations between Albritton and the Daily News' 11 unions were suspended Thursday after the Allied Printing Trades Council, an umbrella organization for the unions, asked Rupert Murdoch, owner of the New York Post, to consider buying the paper.

Gunman Killed By Police

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—A man who critically wounded his wife and barricaded himself in an apartment — vowing not to surrender — stormed through a door firing a shotgun and was killed in a barrage of police gunfire.

The barrage, which lasted only seconds, ended a tense 4½-hour standoff that began about 4:30 p.m. Thursday when Tim Smith, 33, an unemployed foundry worker and Vietnam veteran, shot his wife, Regina, police said.

Haig To Tell Argentina: 'Get Out Of The Falklands'

United Press International
Secretary of State Alexander Haig left Britain for Buenos Aires today to deliver the tough message Argentina must get out of the Falkland Islands before peace talks can begin. War fever swept both nations. During more than five hours of talks in London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Haig that Argentina must withdraw and restore the Falkland Islands Argentine troops seized April 2, to British rule, British officials said.

KUWAIT (UPI)—The foreign ministers of 70 non-aligned nations ended a three-day meeting on Palestine with a resolution to support a Palestine Liberation Organization call for sanctions against Israel for annexing the Golan Heights. In a final communique approved unanimously Thursday night, the ministers called, as expected, for increased support of the PLO and "comprehensive and mandatory" U.N. sanctions against Israel.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Another giant snowstorm raged east across the nation today in a weeklong series of storms blamed for at least 84 deaths. Seven tornadoes gyrated through the South. The snowstorm tailgating a record blizzard in the Northeast dumped up to 3 feet of snow on the Northern Plains Wednesday before moving into the middle Mississippi Valley Thursday and the Midwest today. Another blast of record cold led the Great Lakes and East. The threat of another invasion during winter's long goodbye set off storm warnings over the northwest and west-central portions of Indiana and the southwest half of Ohio. Winter storm watches were in effect for eastern Indiana and the northeast half of Ohio. The latest assault of snow was expected to reach southeast New England by tonight. Gale warnings were posted from Rhode Island to Maine. Forecasters called for up to 4 inches of new snow to spread today in the New York City region where residents were still struggling under nearly a foot left by Tuesday's freak April blizzard. Six other twisters rampaged across Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana along with a torrent of thunderstorms, wind and hail that was piling a foot high like snowdrifts. Two other tornadoes were reported near Umatilla — about 15 miles southwest of Daytona Beach. Tornadoes also touched down 9 miles south of Belview, in the north-central part of the state, and at Deltona. A tornado also hit Edwards, Miss., and Bondheimer, La., near the Mississippi border, damaging farm buildings. At least 64 storm-related deaths have been reported. Leftover ice and snow covered roads from the week's earlier onslaught plagued South Dakota, Iowa and extended through east central Missouri.

Oviedo Man Jailed In Drug Smuggling

By TIM YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

An Oviedo chicken farmer is being held today in the Seminole County jail on $25,000 bond following his arrest on Brevard County charges of trafficking in Quaaludes.

Alex Lee Tindall, 62, was arrested Tuesday in Geneva on drug-trafficking charges in connection with a flight to the Bahamas that drug agents said resulted in more than 25 kilograms of Quaaludes being purchased and flown into the central Florida area.

Tindall was also charged with conspiracy to traffic in Quaaludes. He is expected to appear in court today. If convicted, Tindall could face a minimum prison sentence of 15 years, and $250,000 fine, or both.

According to narcotics agents, four men flew an airplane from the Orlando Executive Airport, formerly known as Herndon Airport, to Melbourne on July 29, 1981. One of the men used a bogus name to file the flight plan from Melbourne to the Bahamas. Once in the Bahamas, the men reportedly purchased 44,800 Quaaludes and returned to Florida on July 30. Upon their return, customs agents in St. Lucie's county observed the plane and followed it, noting that the men discarded the drugs and landed the plane in Melbourne, officials said. No other arrests have been made in connection with the incident.

On a related matter, Tindall is expected to stand trial in Fargo, N.D., next month on charges of delivering 18 ounces of cocaine in that city.

his door at the Daytona Beach hotel, 201 N. Douglas Road, and two men forced their way inside. One man hit Sherman on the head with a gun, knocking him to the floor. The robbers then used his wrists and ankles with tape and covered his face with clothing, police said.

The thieves stole Sherman's wallet ransacked the room, dragged Sherman into the bathroom and fled, police said. Sherman freed himself and notified police.

CONSULTING FIRM BURGLARIZED

Thieves broke into a chiropractic consulting firm in Altamonte Springs sometime between 6:40 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday and stole a portable television set and a video machine.

Deputies said the burglars broke into Practice Starters, 101 Wymore Road, by removing the office window rubber striping, cutting the glass and neatly stacking it outside the office. The total value of the stolen property is estimated to be about $500, deputies added.

FIRE RULED ACCIDENTAL

A Sanford man was injured Monday night when he accidentally set fire to his bed at about 6:30 p.m., fire officials said. Bobbie Baskin, 31, of apartment 2 in William Clark Court, Mulberry Street, was treated for smoke inhalation and released from Seminole Memorial Hospital after a cigarette set fire to his bed, officials said.

The fire caused about $3,000 damage to the apartment and about $1,200 to Baskin's personal property, according to Sanford Fire Chief William C. Galley.

A firefighter at the scene was slightly burned on one leg but required only minor medical treatment by fire department officials, Galley said.

An early morning fire that completely destroyed a ticket booth near the Lake Brantley High School football stadium has been ruled arson by Seminole County fire investigators.

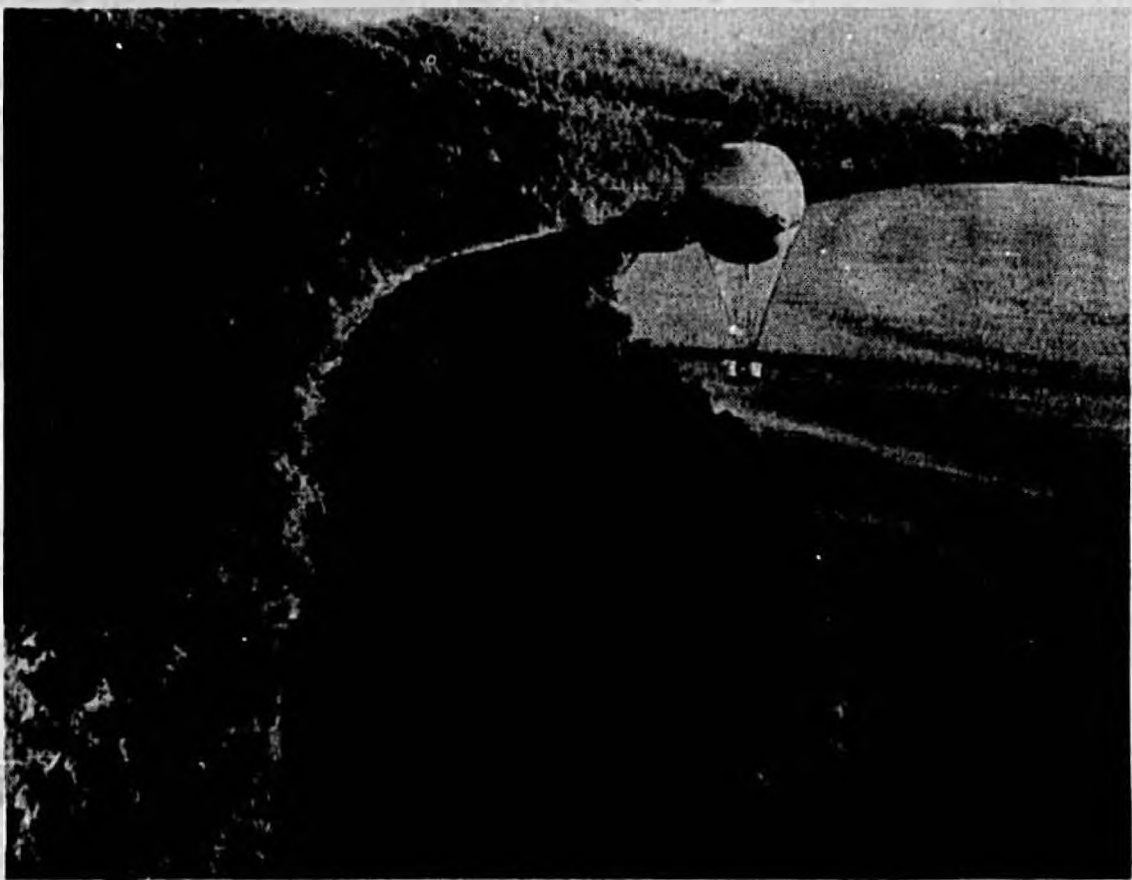

Fire officials declined to say how the fire started, but said they were notified of the blaze at about 6 a.m. Thursday. There are no suspects in the arson which resulted in an estimated $6,000 worth of damage to the structure near Sand Lake Road, Altamonte Springs.

Fire investigators said that arsonists also destroyed the school's ticket booth last year. However, no suspects were ever found in that incident which occurred May 31, causing about $3,300 worth of damage.

EQUIPMENT STOLEN

Thieves stole about $277 worth of fishing and mechanical equipment from the unsecured garage of a Sanford man's home.

Police said the burglars entered the garage of John Jack Crabtree, 37, of 895 Elliot Ave., sometime between March 1 and 6 p.m. April 1.

"To Fly" is a documentary about man's obsession with flight. The film is so big that each frame is 10 times the size of an ordinary 35mm film frame — and the results are breathtakingly beautiful.

'To Fly' Is Longest-Running Hit

America's Biggest Film

NEW YORK (NEA)—Can you name the film that is currently the longest-running hit in America? Did you guess "Star Wars"? "Raiders of the Lost Ark"? Wrong on both counts. The answer is "To Fly," a 27-minute documentary about man's obsession with flight, which was commissioned for the Bicentennial by the Smithsonian Institution.

"To Fly" opened at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum in July 1976 and packed in 2 million amazed visitors before it moved on in 1980 to thrill people in Las Vegas; Gallinburg Place, Tenn.; Seattle; Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Barnum City, Fla.; and Sandusky, Ohio. And now it has found a new and very happy home at the American Museum of Natural History's Naturemax Theater, where an estimated 1 million people will jostle their way in to see it this year.

What is this strange fascination with some documentary about flying? Well, it's a big film. Biggest there is, in fact. How big is it? Glad you asked. It's so big that each frame is 10 times the size of an ordinary 35mm film frame — 1.9 by 2.7 inches, to be precise. So big that the system required to project it weighs 3,700 pounds, and resembles a jumbo reel-to-reel tape recorder in which each reel is a whopping 4 feet in diameter. So big that the inwardly curved screen it's projected onto measures 68 feet wide and 40 feet high — that's almost 4 stories.

This is a big film.

"To Fly" was filmed in IMAX, a gargantuan film and projection system operated by IMAX Systems Corp. of Toronto. The results are breathtakingly beautiful. "To Fly" isn't only the biggest film around, it's the most beautiful. The picture is so sharply defined, the colors so pure, that audiences come away raving that "To Fly" is the ultimate film trip. It may well be.

Now that it has found its way to America's media capital, industry observers speculate it may also prove to be the savior of a deeply troubled and thrill-starved film industry.

"To Fly," which was photographed and directed by Greg MacGillivray and the late James Freeman, celebrates flight as part of U.S. history. Its greatest accomplishment is that — thanks to IMAX — it makes you feel like you're flying. You go up with a brave, 19th-century soul in a top hat as he makes a balloon flight — drifting over virgin hillsides and, ultimately, Niagara Falls. You go barnstorming in the 1920s biplane and experience the gut-wrenching excitement of flying upside down. You zoom down over New York City and feel like you could touch the Empire State Building. You join the Blue Angels for aerial maneuvers, fly over wheat fields, deserts, the Grand Canyon.

For a climax, you soar over the cliffs of Hawaii in a hang-glider.

You come away stunned, and wondering what it would be like to see a Hollywood spectacle like "Gone With the Wind" in IMAX.

IMAX was born 18 years ago at the Montreal Expo, where one of the fair's must-see exhibits was "Labyrinth," a multi-screen, multi-projection film short. The present one-projection system was introduced at the Osaka, Japan Exposition, in 1970. In addition to the locations it has played in America, IMAX has been seen in the Netherlands, Australia and South Africa.

But it hasn't made its way to Hollywood, a town where bigness is more than synonymous with good — it's better. What is holding it are only a handful of IMAX cameras in existence, and each requires a 10-pound film roll that lasts but 3 and 1/2 minutes before it must be changed. The conventional way of shooting a film involves multiple camera placements, multiple takes and scenes that certainly run longer than 3 and 1/2 minutes.

The other problem, of course, is the screen and projection system, which, for example, set back the Museum of Natural History $1.1 million. Not many theater owners will foot such a bill, nor do many operate facilities capable of housing a 4-story-high screen and two-ton projector. New theaters being built are of the smaller, multiple screen variety, not the palace variety.

Still, when you come away from "To Fly" and take a look at what Hollywood is preparing for summer consumption — "Rocky III," "Grease II," "Star Trek II," "The Next King" and "Airplane II" — you can't help but think this exciting system has a future in commercial movie making. All it takes is someone with the daring and the bankroll.

Dale Lott May Have Run Out Of Time

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—It appears the waiting is just about over. A University of Utah study on expanded use of its artificial heart will apparently take long enough that Dale Lott won't get one of the man-made organs.

Lott's attorney calls it a "victory for bureaucratic red tape," and a friend of the dying Florida fireman claims the university has ruled Lott out as a candidate for the artificial heart.

The university's Institutional Review Board said Thursday it agreed "in principle" to expand the categories of eligible patients to include persons suffering from degenerative heart disease — such as Lott.

But, the review board then appointed a subcommittee to decide which new categories of patients will be eligible. Dr. Ross Woolley, the subcommittee's chairman, said that process "will take weeks."

However, Homedale, Fla., fireman Mickey Donn said Thursday, "They're putting the final nails in Dale's coffin. With these additional delays, they have ruled out Dale as a candidate."

"His condition is deteriorating daily," Donn said of Lott's battle with heart disease, diabetes and high blood pressure. "He's coughing continually. They're procrastinating and put him off. They were the only opportunity he had left, and they let him down."

According to attorney Ellis Rubin, the 38-year-old Lott said, "I expected what happened out there. The men out there didn't disappoint me."

Rubin has represented Lott in his bid to become the first human recipient of the university's Jarrick-7 heart.

Wholesale Prices Continue To Fall

WASHINGTON (UPI)—For the second month in a row, producer prices declined slightly in March, falling 0.1 percent, the Labor Department reported today.

The decline in the price index for finished goods was the same as occurred in February. It was the first time since January and February of 1976 this index has fallen two months in a row.

The 0.1 percent drop was adjusted for seasonal variations. More significantly, declines also were reported in two related indexes that measure prices at still earlier stages of production. Crude materials prices fell 0.8 percent. Goods in intermediate stages of production fell 0.3 percent.

Since all these prices at different levels of production eventually feed up to the consumer level, the report was good news for consumers.

The big question is whether this decline in inflation will last. Many economists believe much of the improvement will remain in the next few years, though they differ in the extent of their optimism.

It was the first time since February and March of 1967 that all three of these indexes have fallen two months in a row. While there is no exact relationship, a rise in producer prices usually means a jump in inflation while a drop in the prices will hold down inflation.

The producer price index for finished goods — those at the final wholesale level — stood at 276.3, which means that such goods costing $100 in 1967 now cost $276.30.

Energy prices continued to abate in March, the Labor Department said, with declines for both gasoline and home heating oil. On the other hand, natural gas prices edged up.

Wholesale consumer goods edged down 0.2 percent after rising 0.5 percent in February and 1.1 percent in January.

On a compound annual basis, the 0.1 percent rise in producer prices for finished goods works out to an inflation rate of 1.7 percent, sharply down from recent years of double digit inflation.

The big question is whether this decline in inflation will last. Many economists believe much of the improvement will remain in the next few years, though they differ in the extent of their optimism.

Pipeline Nixed

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI)—Gov. John Spellman, bucking pressure from oil firms, the federal government and other governors, has refused to grant a construction permit for the Northern Tier pipeline because of fire and environmental dangers.

Thursday, Spellman vetoed the $2.3 billion proposal to provide a 42-inch, 1,300-mile pipeline from Port Angeles, Wash., to Clearbrook, Minn., for Alaskan crude oil. Appeals from the Energy Department and the Northern Tier Pipeline Co. are expected.

"If the nation needs oil in the Midwest and it has to come from the West Coast, and if it needs oil for defense purposes, it had darn well better have a project that is practical and feasible and can be built," Spellman said Thursday. "This is not such a project."

Puget Sound is a national treasure, he said, "and I cannot allow the Sound, its delicate ecology, or the economy and lifestyle it supports to become endangered."

Spellman emphasized his decision was not a ban on oil pipelines. A well-designed project with proper safeguards could be built, he said, suggesting the marine terminal could be located away from a populated area and the underwater crossing of Puget Sound could be avoided.

Among those critical of Spellman's decision were Govs. Tom Schwinden of Montana, John Evans of Idaho and Albert Quie of Minnesota. The proposed pipeline would cross all three states. Schwinden said Spellman's decision has adverse implications for the oil refineries in Billings, while Quie called the decision "parochial and shortsighted."

Both Northern Tier and U.S. Energy Secretary James Edwards, who strongly lobbied for the pipeline on national security grounds, have laid the groundwork in recent days for a court challenge of Spellman's decision.

"Having so far invested 6½ years of work in trying to gain approval of the project, and with 1,400 permits already issued and only one to go, Northern Tier will continue its endeavors," said Northern Tier board chairman Cortlandt Dieter.

Edwards, who tried in vain to talk to Spellman about the pipeline after the state's Energy Facility Site Evaluation Council voted to recommend rejection of the project two months ago, said he was "deeply disappointed" by the decision. Spellman said he was skeptical about the national security needs for the pipeline.

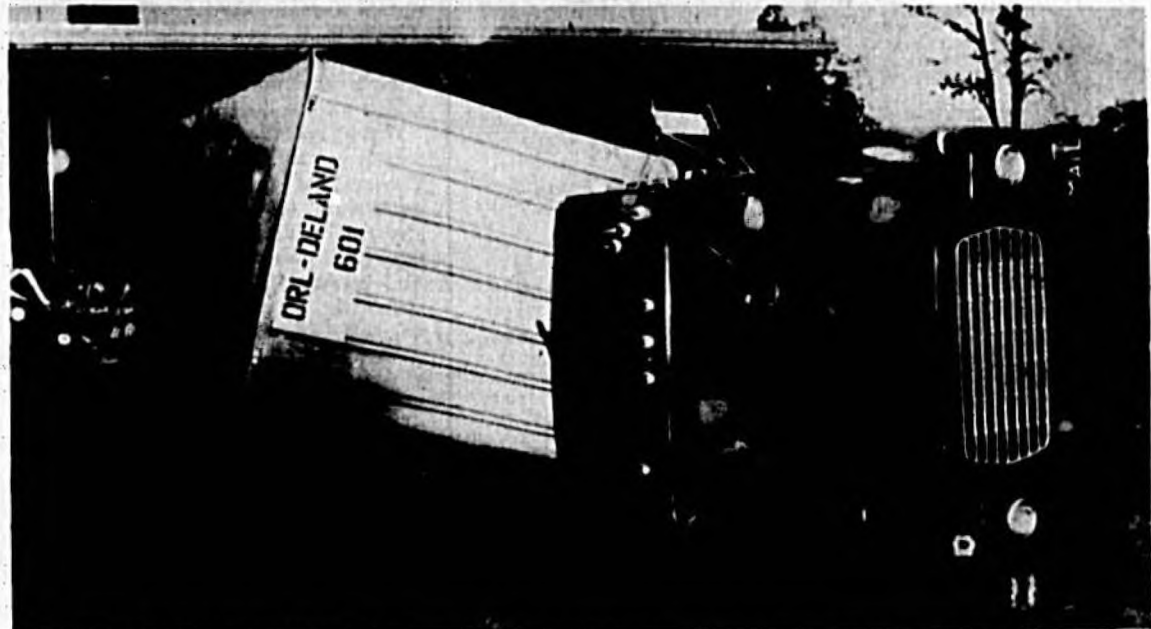

"If that were a legitimate issue, I might have heard from the secretary of defense and the president, but the only person I heard from was the head of the Department of Energy, an entity of the federal government sinking into oblivion," he said.

BENT, BUT NOT BROKEN

The leaning towers of Sanford they are not, but they serve as graphic examples of the power of the storms which hit the area Thursday afternoon. The flagpole and purple martin birdhouse at the Lake Monroe marina bowed to winds that surged upwards of 100 mph. Some boats were swamped by wind-whipped water, others were yanked from their moorings, and a few were beached by the violent combination of wind and waves.

POSTMAN'S LAMENT

The old postal adage says that "neither rain, nor snow, nor gloom of night shall stay them from their appointed rounds." Maybe not. But it sure can slow them down a bit. That's what happened

Thursday afternoon at the Sanford Post Office when storm winds blew over this half-full mail truck which crushed the mail carrier's Jeep next to it. No one was hurt in the mishap.

New Attack On Hospital-Related Ailments

ATLANTA (UPI) — Federal health officials are readying a new weapon to combat infections contracted by hospital patients. These ailments strike two million Americans annually and take 15,000-20,000 lives.

The new approach to dealing with hospital-associated, or nosocomial, infections is the establishment for the first time of a central reference at the national Centers for Disease Control. It contains all the currently available scientific knowledge about one of the nation's major health problems.

The nation's 7,000 hospitals have been informed of the central reference and have been mailed copies of "Guidelines for the Prevention and Control of Nosocomial Infections," said Dr. Robert W. Haley, director of the CDC's hospital infections program.

"It's almost a checklist of important questions," said Haley. Haley and Dr. Bryan P. Simmons, chief of guidelines activity, say this new updating, compilation and centralization of the latest information on how to prevent hospital infections could lead to a significant reduction of such infections.

"If the best techniques were used, it is believed that the number of hospital-acquired infections could be reduced between 20 and 50 percent," said Simmons. "And we believe these guidelines represent the best techniques."

Previously, CDC recommendations on how to prevent infections of hospital patients were issued piecemeal and published in a variety of medical journals.

The need for the central reference, Haley said, was pointed up by the 10,000 letters and phone calls the CDC was getting every year from hospital infection control committees asking questions about prevention.

"The demand for these guidelines has just shot up like the telephone calls," said Haley.

Hospital infections acquired by patients are not particularly related to their original illness. Out of every 100 persons entering a hospital, five to 15 will acquire a hospital-related infection, Haley said.

Statistics show that these patients' hospital stay is extended seven days on the average, with a substantial increase in physician and hospital costs and loss of earnings.

Hospital-associated infections are often related to procedures used in the hospital as a necessary part of treatment, Haley said. Among these are procedures that bypass the patient's normal physical barriers to infection, including urinary catheterization, surgical operations, inhalation therapy and intravenous feeding.

Drugs given to treat tumors or to suppress the immune system after organ transplantation also impair the body's normal defenses, opening the way to infection.

The CDC guidelines are divided into three categories of descending importance. Category one, according to Haley and Simmons, contains recommendations that should be followed by all hospitals, including handwashing by hospital personnel.

"That's how most infections are transmitted," said Simmons. He said one step patients could take to protect themselves against acquiring an infection in a hospital is to make sure that hospital workers attending them wash their hands.

The incidence of hospital-associated infections appears to be greater in large metropolitan medical centers, which get the more seriously ill patients, and less in small community hospitals.

Casey Cleared In Foreign Agent Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General William French Smith says CIA Director William Casey was "open and above-board" in representing a foreign government in 1976 and did not have to register as a foreign agent.

Smith formally cleared Casey Thursday of allegations he may have violated the Foreign Agents Registration Act by failing to register as a representative of the Indonesian government.

Questions about Casey's job came under scrutiny following disclosures he worked as a lawyer representing Indonesia in discussions with the Internal Revenue Service involving oil production contracts and tax issues.

But Smith said the agents law is triggered only when an individual engages in lobbying efforts on behalf of a foreign principal seeking to change U.S. policy.

In this case, Smith said Casey's role was covered by an exemption to the law since he was not trying to influence American policy.

The Justice Department probe was conducted under requirements of the Ethics in Government Act which requires a preliminary investigation into any allegations against top government officials.
