Regulators expenses on the rise

TALLAHASSEE — Gerald Gunter, who has been on the Public Service Commission since 1979, said extensive out-of-state travel is required to learn about changing technologies and issues that will affect a growing state like Florida. Five utility regulators have spent more than $80,000 on out-of-state travel and $18,600 on Florida trips during the last two years.

Ring in the New Year

Human polar bears dove into frigid waters, hundreds exchanged wedding vows in Las Vegas and a California woman gave birth on the Rose Parade route as traditional and offbeat New Year's Day celebrations marked the advent of 1991.

In Philadelphia, outlandish costumes were the norm as people dressed up like flowers, pigs or the opposite sex to take part in the annual Mummers Parade.

Perhaps the day's most unusual event occurred in Pasadena, Calif., where 20-year-old Ada Reyes gave birth while watching the 102nd Rose Parade with approximately 1 million other people.

The first baby born on U.S. soil in 1991 was Kimberly Manna Untaman, who arrived at 1:49 a.m. at Guam Memorial Hospital in the U.S. territory of Guam, a South Pacific island on the other side of the international dateline.

In Las Vegas, scores of couples lined up to be married on New Year's Eve. The Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority estimated a record 142,000 visitors would welcome the new year at the desert gambling resort.

Some traditions offered less warmth. About 400 members of the Mount Gretna Polar Bear Club welcomed the new year by splashing in two 44-degree Pennsylvania ponds and 40 swimmers crossed the 1.4 miles from Alcatraz Island to San Francisco in 45-degree water.

102nd Congress convenes tomorrow

By STEVE GERSTEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The 102nd Congress convenes Thursday with the country on the brink of war, the economy in trouble and the government too deep in debt to provide more help for the poor, the old, the sick, the homeless and the jobless.

The euphoria over the end of the Cold War that gripped Congress only a year ago and the vision of a multibillion-dollar "peace dividend" that could be used to cut the budget deficit and provide for domestic programs is gone.

Instead, the nation's lawmakers, returning from a two-month recess, are faced with the possibility of young Americans fighting and dying to liberate Kuwait from occupation by Iraq.

And they must deal with a sick economy that's either in, or on the verge of a recession, with no anticipation of a quick or robust return to the boom days of the late 1980s.

Under normal circumstances, Congress would return Jan. 3 for the traditional swearing-in ceremonies and spend most of the month drafting an agenda for the year, putting the final touches on organizing committees and await President Bush's annual report on the "State of the Union" and the administration's fiscal 1992 budget.

That leisurely opening has been scrapped and Speaker Thomas Foley, Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell and Republican Senate leader Robert Dole have been and will be discussing how to approach the issue of the Persian Gulf crisis.

"I anticipate that, during that time, there will not be a recess, but rather, at some point during that period, this matter may be discussed."

Mitchell told a news conference shortly after returning from a trip to the Middle East.

"I think it unwise to make a decision now that would effectively preclude modification based upon events that might occur between now and Jan. 3," he told reporters. "And so the best I can say is that I expect this matter will be considered during that period, but I have not made any decision as to precisely when, or in what circumstance, depending upon events and further consultations."

When Bush sent American forces to protect Saudi Arabia, forged a worldwide alliance that imposed sanctions on Iraq and secured military and financial help from many nations, he was strongly supported by Congress.

But the situation changed dramatically after

Bush won't stop 'one inch short' of Iraqi success

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he is "absolutely firm" in his no-compromise stance toward Saddam Hussein but has not decided what he will do if the Iraqi leader does not withdraw his forces from Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Bush made the statements in a television interview released Tuesday as he returned from a Christmas and New Year's holiday at Camp David and met privately with key advisers in the family living quarters of the White House.

"We cannot stop one inch short of successful resolution," Bush said in the interview, part of the series "...Talking with David Frost" that is presented by Washington television station WETA.

The interview will be broadcast tonight on Public Broadcasting Service stations.

Meanwhile, Vice President Dan Quayle wrapped up a holiday visit to U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf area Tuesday, telling them, "Happy New Year. Last year, 1990, Saddam Hussein invaded Kuwait. This year, 1991, Saddam Hussein will leave Kuwait."

In the interview, Bush again denounced Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and later annexation of Kuwait, saying, "The world's not going to accept that. And if we don't do something about it today, we're going to live to pay a much greater price tomorrow."

A year of change for law enforcement

Polk legacy ends in 1990

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The past year has been one of change and controversy for the law enforcement and criminal justice community.

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk made big news by announcing his early retirement Dec. 31, because of a heart condition.

Polk, 59, who has been sheriff 22 years, and who was a state trooper 10 years before that, was hospitalized much of the past year and turned down for a needed heart transplant.

Gov. Bob Martinez followed Polk's recommendation and appointed Seminole Sheriff's Maj. Donald Ealinger, 33, to complete the final two years of Polk's last

Assault weapon ban a menace to police?

By BERT ROBINSON
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

WASHINGTON — In the months after a crazed loner sprayed bullets across a packed Stockton, Calif., playground, federal and state officials agreed that one step had to be taken. They outlawed the murder weapon — a menacing, military-style rifle called the AK-47.

That could have stymied arms importers like Don Mitchell of Santa Ana, Calif., who was awaiting the arrival of a shipment of Yugoslavian AK-47s when the 1989 federal and state laws took effect. Instead,

Vests may have saved 1,100 lives

Associated Press

MIAMI — Improved officer training, greater use of automatic weapons by police and bulletproof vests helped save more law enforcement officers' lives nationwide in 1990 than in previous years, a report said.

"Dozens of lives were saved this year alone, with more than 1,100 documented cases of saved lives since body armor was made available to police," said Gerald S. Arenberg, executive director of the National Association of Chiefs of Police.

Still, easy access to guns by criminals continued to make police work hazardous, the Miami-based American Police Hall of Fame & Museum said Tuesday.

Mitchell simply lopped off his rifle's pistol grips, removed their 30-round ammunition magazines and obtained the government's permission to sell the modified weapons.

Mitchell's clever redesign underscores the growing troubles with the popular assault weapons laws, which have spread across the country in the two years since the Stockton schoolyard massacre.

Just as the laws' opponents predicted, manufacturers and importers are learning to exploit the loopholes that pock the weapons bans. Meanwhile, the brand of violence often blamed on assault

Prince Charles will miss polo match

VERO BEACH — England's Prince Charles will have to miss the third annual benefit polo match that has featured him, officials said.

A broken arm is keeping the heir to England's throne from attending the February Rolex-Prince of Wales Cup Polo Tournament in northern Indian River County, match spokeswoman Jane Ford said Monday.

Up to 5,000 spectators — many of them novices to polo — flocked to the Windsor polo matches in 1989 and again in 1990 to watch Prince Charles.

Event organizers are selling 500 fewer tickets to the Feb. 8 kickoff match and won't have to worry about someone running onto the field to touch the prince. Boat, airplane and foot patrols circled the area for security last year.

Prince Charles broke his right arm when he fell off a horse during a polo match at the Garden Polo Club on June 28 in England.

Man turns in illegal WWII souvenir

DELRAY BEACH — A man who kept a World War II bomb as a business souvenir for 47 years has turned it in after learning that it's illegal to keep one around.

George Morrow, 81, gave the bomb to the Palm Beach County Sheriff's bomb squad on Monday. He said when Defense Department officials gave him the 23-pound fragmentation bomb in 1943, they assured him it didn't contain any explosives and wasn't dangerous.

"As much as I've handled it over the years — I wouldn't be here now if it was live," said Morrow, whose Birmingham, Ala., awning and tent plant produced small silk parachutes that slowed the bombs' fall during the war. Since moving here, he's kept the bomb in a shed.

But Morrow said he didn't realize that keeping even a dud was against the law until he read a newspaper story last week about a Boynton Beach man who turned in a live mortar shell.

Industrialist's chauffeur abducted

MIAMI — The chauffeur of wealthy industrialist Victor Posner was abducted outside a post office by two armed men who tied him up, drove him around, dumped him in North Miami Beach and then stole his limousine, police said.

Metro-Dade County police found Carlos Miguel Alcega bound but not seriously injured at 5 a.m. Monday, a Hallandale police spokeswoman said.

He had been abducted Sunday at about 1 p.m. as he got out of a black Continental limo belonging to Posner, whose business holdings include ownership of Arby's restaurant chain, police spokeswoman Marcia Sandler said.

The armed men approached Alcega from behind as he was going to pick up mail at the U.S. Post Office in Hallandale, police said. They ordered him into the passenger side of the limo, put a paper bag over his head and tied his hands, Sandler said.

Alcega, 33, said the men drove him around until it was dark and then threw him out on the street, police said.

Chapel: Parties had other arrangements

FORT WALTON BEACH — No one signed up for an annual party at a fraternal hall in a traffic accident after drinking to excess last year, it was not a single reveler had registered by the deadline of 5 p.m. on New Year's eve, said Roy Koonitz, owner of Little Chapel Funeral Home in this Florida Panhandle city.

"It would appear that they made other arrangements, arrangements to help them survive," Koonitz said Monday night.

Although at least one person applied for a free funeral in each of the preceding 15 years, none needed it, he said.

Suspects arrested at I-10 rest stop

PENSACOLA — Three Mississippi murder suspects, including a 14-year-old girl, were arrested at the Interstate 10 Florida welcome station, authorities said.

The two men and the girl, wanted for the slaying of 18-year-old Jamie Medlin, 18, in Southaven, Miss., were asleep in the two cars when Florida Highway Patrol Trooper C.T. McCormick came by Sunday on routine patrol, authorities said.

He recognized the cars from a bulletin issued about 40 minutes earlier and called for backup officers, who then helped him turn away spectators and make the arrests.

The two men were identified as George A. Johnson Jr., 18, and Richard Lee Barnum, 19. Police did not release the girl's identity. All three were being held without bond at the Escambia County Jail until they are returned to Mississippi, probably Wednesday, investigators said.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Smoking ban at DER upheld

Other agencies may adopt ban

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A successful fight to ban smoking in all offices and cars of the state Department of Environmental Regulation could pave the way for similar taboos in other state agencies, one supporter said.

"I'm hoping this will be a landmark case because it's the first state agency that's gone through the whole appeal process," said Billy Kahn, who helped organize a petition campaign in favor of the no-smoking rule.

The challenge to the non-smoking rule, supported by 275 DER employees — almost half the Tallahassee staff — came from a smoker who works for DER, the state agency in charge of clean air.

Edward T. Huck complained that DER Secretary Dale Twachtmann had not followed proper procedure in prohibiting lighting up anywhere in DER headquarters or in any DER-owned vehicle.

The rule carries a $100 fine on first offense and a $500 fine for repeated violations.

Huck also argued that the no-smoking rule went far beyond the 1985 Clean Indoor Air Act. A group of DER employees in Tampa joined the appeal, saying it was inconvenient and inefficient for them to leave their offices and go outside to smoke. The workers argued it could also be unsafe, if it meant stepping out of a vehicle into traffic and foul weather.

But a hearing officer in the state Division of Administrative Hearings, Arnold H. Pollock, dismissed the challenges last week, even though he mildly suggested that Twachtmann might want to reconsider the rule against smoking in DER cars, if neither the driver nor any passenger objects.

Kahn said that employees in the departments of Corrections and Health and Rehabilitative Services had asked him about adopting a similar smoking ban. And the Department of Natural Resources recently found overwhelming support for a department-wide ban after conducting a survey in its agency newsletter, he said.

The 1985 indoor-air law requires employers to adopt smoking policies, taking into consideration the wishes of smokers and non-smokers. It also banned smoking in public places, except for designated smoking areas. The law does not require managers of public buildings to set up smoking areas, and Twachtmann didn't at DER.

Pollock said office ventilation systems recirculate air from private offices and break rooms throughout the DER buildings and that non-smokers have no way of escaping harmful substances in the smoke — even if they do not work in the same area as a smoker.

Since few private offices in state buildings have windows that can be opened or ventilation systems moving air outdoors, the rule could easily be adopted by other state agencies, Kahn said.

In hearings on the rule last October, Pollock particularly headed the testimony by Dr. Dennis E. Williams, a cardiologist and expert in cigarette smoking and effects of "passive" tobacco smoke. Williams cited medical research linking tobacco to heart disease and lung cancer.

Judge grants separate trials in Noriega case

Associated Press

MIAMI — Manuel Noriega's co-defendants may get separate trials, possibly beginning as early as this month, following an offer from the federal judge handling the ousted Panamanian leader's long-delayed drug trial.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler, noting the indefinite delay in Noriega's trial on drug trafficking, set a Jan. 11 hearing on arguments from both sides on whether to hold separate trials for five co-defendants.

The co-defendants are Brian Davidov, Daniel Miranda, Amel Paredes, William Saldarriaga and Roberto Striedinger.

Attorneys for the co-defendants last year sought separate trials, arguing that Noriega's notoriety would hurt their clients' chances for a fair trial.

But Hoeveler previously rejected granting separate trials, noting prosecutors' arguments that other trials would affect Noriega's attorneys' view of the government's case.

Noriega is accused of accepting $4.8 million to protect Colombian cocaine traffickers' operations in his country.

Emphasis on clear-cutting national forests may decrease, agency says

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Clear-cutting — harvesting every tree on a forest tract for timber — will no longer be given automatic preference in Florida's three national forests, a federal agency said.

Because of the nearly exclusive reliance on clear-cutting, a coalition of environmentalists appealed the U.S. Forest Service's management plan for the 1.1 million acres in the Apalachicola, Osceola and Ocala national forests through an administrative challenge.

The Forest Service pledged to revise its plan. "I think they've seen the signals from the public, and the writing is on the wall," said Tom Ankersen, of the Sierra Club Legal Defense Fund's office in Tallahassee.

Clear-cut sites normally are plowed and replanted with neat rows of pine seedlings. Foresters favor the method because it quickly regenerates timber. But environmentalists deplore the "tree farming," saying it depletes soil fertility and eliminates the natural diversity of plants and animals in a forest.

"We must respond to these concerns by developing and using alternatives that more closely meet expectations for public forests," said Steve Fitch, Forest Service supervisor for Florida.

The amendment proposed last month would give forest rangers more flexibility to select harvest methods other than clear-cutting, Fitch said.

If the amendment is approved by the Forest

I think they've seen the signals from the public, and the writing is on the wall.

—Tom Ankersen, Sierra Club

Service's top officials, harvest methods will be determined on a case-by-case basis. There no longer will be an automatic presumption that clear-cutting is best suited for a site.

The 1986 management plan that now guides harvesting calls clear-cutting "the optimum method." It limits other, more-selective techniques to small areas.

Ankersen said that while there is no guarantee, he is optimistic that an amendment to current guidelines would eliminate some clear-cutting.

"The question is, do they have the will to implement it in the forest?" he asked. "By itself, it doesn't mean anything. They can go ahead and clear-cut to their heart's content."

Logging interests say clear-cutting is needed in many cases to guarantee an ample supply of timber for sawmills that rely on national forests and to support rural counties that receive 25 percent of the revenues from timber sales in the national forests.

Environmentalists, however, say clear-cutting destroys wildlife habitat needed by endangered red-cockaded woodpeckers and dozens of other species.

PSC out-of-state travel budget scrutinized

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's five utility regulators have spent more than $80,000 on out-of-state travel and $18,800 on Florida trips during the last two years.

In 1989, the entire Public Service Commission spent $286,000 on trips outside of Florida, compared with $273,500 in 1988. Through September 1990, members and staff of the PSC had spent $218,200 on out-of-state travel.

Gerald Gunter, who has been on the PSC since 1979, said extensive out-of-state travel is required to learn about changing technologies and issues that will affect a growing state like Florida.

Gunter has been involved in shaping federal acid rain legislation in recent years and has helped ensure the state will not bear the brunt of tighter emission standards. He has made more than a dozen trips, primarily to Washington, on acid rain-related issues.

"You've got to go where the action actually is," Gunter, who has spent more than $19,000 on out-of-state travel since 1989, told The Orlando Sentinel in a story published Tuesday.

Thomas Beard, the new PSC chairman, has spent the most on out-of-state travel since 1989 at about $26,000. He said decisions made by federal regulators on issues such as telecommunications affect ratepayers, to the tune of billions of dollars.

"We've got to be involved in making these decisions," he said.

Commissioners, who set rates for telephone, electric and water and sewer utilities in Florida, and staff members have traveled to cities throughout the nation, some of them more than once, including Aspen, Colo.; San Diego; San Francisco; Washington; New York; Kansas City, Mo.; Williamsburg, Va.; Colorado Springs, Colo.; Boston, and Atlanta.

Public Counsel Jack Shreve, who represents consumers in rate cases before the PSC, spent $20,400 on travel during 1989 and 1990, according to his travel records. Most of his trips were within Florida and pertained to rate cases pending before the PSC or meetings with disgruntled utility customers.

Shreve said he believed some seminars, meetings with federal and state officials and speeches help regulators. But there's a limit to what can be learned, he said.

"There's some good things that come out, but there's only so much you can hear before you start hearing the same thing over and over again," Shreve told The Sentinel.

POLICE BRIEFS

Suspects flee when deputies arrive

SANFORD — When Seminole County sheriff's deputies and the owner of Lee's Market responded to a burglary alarm at the store, 3500 E. State Road 46, Sanford, deputies said they saw a suspect or suspects flee by jumping a rear fence. Deputies said an attempt had been made to pry open a rear door of the store and the door was severely damaged Tuesday.

Sanford man hit, robbed

SANFORD — Two robbers, armed with a handgun, knocked Ira Jackson Jr., 1914 Water St., Sanford, to the ground at about 3:45 a.m. Tuesday, Sanford police report.

Police said Jackson was hit in the eye and the robbers stole $20 from him.

Two arrested for fighting

SANFORD — Two men, who reportedly refused to stop fighting in a ditch at 1708 W. 14th St., Sanford, when police arrived, have been arrested.

Charged with affray at the scene at about 9:20 p.m. Tuesday were Paul Garret Robinson, 22, 2850 W. 20th St., Sanford, and Melvin Davis, 18, 3012 W. 13th Place, Sanford.

Man accused of cursing police

SANFORD — When Sanford police told Angel L. Sanabria, 37, 215 Avocado Ave., Sanford, to stop fighting with his brother, Sanabria allegedly refused and loudly cursed police.

Police said they charged Sanabria with disorderly conduct at 7:33 p.m. Tuesday on Third Street at Avocado Avenue.

Man accused of disorderly conduct

SANFORD — A man, who allegedly began to yell loudly and refused to calm down when Sanford police asked him to identify himself, has been charged with disorderly conduct. Jesse James Wheeler, 39, of no address, was arrested at 12:18 a.m. today in the back yard at 67 Castle Brewer Court, Sanford.

In a blur

Fog obscures downtown Sanford this morning for the woman as she quickly crosses the intersection of First Street and Park Avenue shortly before 8 a.m. Seasonal cold, dry arctic air from the north pushing down on warm, moist Florida air should produce similar blurry mornings throughout the rest of the month, according to the National Weather Service.

Rain-swollen rivers flood East, Midwest

Associated Press

Rain-swollen rivers that forced thousands of people from their homes in the Midwest and East receded in some areas today, but the Ohio River continued to rise in West Virginia, where schools were closed.

In Pennsylvania, a woman was killed Tuesday when she tried to cross a flood-swollen stream after the car she was riding in stalled.

Authorities said Sherry Peak, 19, was swept downstream to her death after she and four other people got out of a car that stalled on a bridge over a stream in Union Township.

In western West Virginia's Mason County, 4,900 students were kept home from school today and many merchants closed businesses as the Ohio River continued to overflow its banks. Only four homes were evacuated, however.

The Ohio River was to crest at 8 feet above flood stage at Point Pleasant, W.Va., during the day and 2½ feet above flood stage at Huntington tonight, the National Weather Service said.

In Indiana, officials were keeping a worried watch on the southern part of the state, where waters were still rising, while surveying damage to the north.

Police: Dead man not serial killers' victim

Associated Press

OCALA — A South Carolina man has been charged with the murder of a man police previously suspected was the ninth victim in a string of serial killings of middle-aged motorists in Central Florida.

Randy Allen Weltzner of Warrenville, S.C., was arrested Monday at his mother's house in Palatka, Marion County sheriff's investigator John Tilley said. Weltzner, 38, was ordered held without bond at the Marion County Jail on a single count of first-degree murder.

In addition, Weltzner was jailed for violation of probation on three counts of passing worthless checks and one count of grand theft.

Weltzner and the murder victim, Daniel Mitchell Conger Jr., 48, had known each other for several years and were arguing before Conger was killed, Tilley said.

"It isn't related. There's no indication that this homicide is related to the eight others," said Marion sheriff's Capt. Steve A. Blinagar, the detective in charge of investigating the eight killings.

Conger, like the other victims, was shot repeatedly with a small-caliber handgun and was found in a rural area. The other victims also were aged between 40 and 60 years old. Conger, like some of them, had been robbed.

But Conger was not driving along a major highway — as the others had been when they were attacked. The eight other men were shot with .22-caliber guns, while police said Conger was killed with his own .38-caliber handgun.

Conger's bullet-riddled body was found Dec. 21 in a wooded area at the end of a dirt road in northeast Marion County.

Investigators from 10 agencies are trying to solve the series of slayings, seven in Florida and one in Georgia. Police believe the men were lured away from their vehicles by women offering sexual favors or claiming they needed help.

Tuesday, Weltzner appeared before 5th Judicial Circuit Judge William Swigert and was appointed a public defender, jail officials said. Weltzner's next court date is set for Jan. 14.

Privacy another progress victim

The microelectronics revolution, which has continually brought users more powerful computers at ever-smaller costs, has now realized eavesdroppers' worst fear. Advances in chips and software have created coding devices small and cheap enough to allow even desktop computer users to encode sensitive transmissions and thereby protect them from sophisticated snoops.

That electronic security is commercially valuable to companies, and there is a big demand for such products both here and abroad. But according to a recent report in the New York Times, the ability of U.S. companies to serve that demand is being stymied by the National Security Agency, the government organization that spies on electronic communications around the world.

The NSA is blocking the export of electronic coding technology whose widespread use would erode its ability to decipher the billions of telephone, radio and computer messages it routinely intercepts. In September, the agency denied IBM permission to export an encryption processor with its new System 390 line of mainframe computers, forcing the company to market a less secure version to overseas customers. The NSA also has forced Lotus Development Corp. to weaken the security protections in computer software it sells abroad and it has blocked export of a coding system for personal computers.

Such action is both futile and damaging to U.S. economic interests. Foreign companies already sell similar technologies, and as the speed and capacity of chips improve, sophisticated electronic security equipment for voice and data transmission will become widely dispersed. Export controls can't prevent the world from becoming more impenetrable to NSA eavesdropping, but they are reducing the international competitiveness of U.S. hardware and software companies, slowing the pace of computer security innovation for domestic uses and leaving U.S. businesses abroad exposed to industrial espionage.

Progress in electronic coding may trouble the snoops, but export controls and bureaucratic laments can't create a world safe for easy eavesdropping.

Fated to be fat?

Humans may be biologically fated for fat thighs and bellies, but the overweight can take comfort in the fact that they are not alone. In a recent series of studies, researchers have found that almost all mammals — horses, rabbits, bears, camels — put on pounds in pretty much the same places humans do and for many of the same reasons. The belly on males and thighs on females are particularly prone to accumulations of quivering quantities of excess flesh.

Among all mammals species, females are generally chunkier than males, probably because of the presence of reproductive hormones. Studies show that fatty deposits on female thighs particularly provide long-term storage for energy needed for child-bearing. So both humans and horses get saddlebags.

Belly fat in males has been found to be responsive to stress-related hormones like adrenaline. When these hormones are present, abdominal fat releases quick energy to muscles. Scientists suspect that in early man such a response would have been useful in dangerous hunting situations where man had to be ready either to fight or flee. Since modern men are rarely called upon to face down anything as threatening as a mammoth, belly fat tends to pile up.

Corporate elite list is for the birds

'Tis the season to compile lists: shopping lists, New Year's resolution lists — and media lists.

In order of cerebral importance, current lists include: Soap Opera Digest's "best and worst soaps" of 1990; the National Enquirer's 10 leading psychics' predictions for 1991; Time magazine's 18-page "best of 1990"; People magazine's 25 most intriguing people of 1990 and Associated Press' 20 biggest news stories of 1990. But the list that tantalized me most was Business Week's list of the corporate elite, i.e., the 1,000 chief executives of what it calls "America's most powerful public companies."

If you believe the accuracy of the Business Week list, let me introduce you to two very close friends, the tooth fairy and the Easter bunny. I decided to compare Business Week's list with the more charismatic Fortune 500 (the largest 500 U.S. industrial corporations), and to my surprise I discovered that 167 CEOs of the Fortune 500 companies (fully 33 percent) were not on the Business Week list! Even worse, 33 of Business Week's corporations earned less than $100 million in sales. That didn't seem to make sense when, for example, TIAA-CREF, which was not on Business Week's list, had a 1989 premium volume of $3.6 billion. So I called Business Week to ascertain the basis for its list.

You're going to find this hard to believe, but nobody at Business Week could explain the rationale for the Business Week list! The operator bounced me all over the corporate offices — from the two editors who first developed this list to the staff editor who worked with them to the assistant managing editor who supervised them. None of them were available, and nobody else could speak with any authority.

No wonder the Japanese are winning the industrial war. I wanted a simple explanation: How could Business Week's list purport to represent America's most powerful corporations when the Business Week list omitted 167 of Fortune's largest corporations, including Shell Oil (Fortune's 13th largest), RJR Nabisco (Fortune's 24th) and household names such as Bayer, Beatrice, Revlon, Land O'Lakes, Mack Trucks and Lorillard? Ah, but Business Week's list does have one idiotic merit.

It is a trivia buff's dream: how many of the CEOs are named Smith (16), how many did not attend or graduate from college (84), how many are Harvard Business school graduates (an impressive 98), how many graduated from Ivy League schools (159), how many earned $1 million or more in salary and bonuses (210) and how many are married (980). No statistics are available on the number of Business Week CEO mistresses.

What's most startling, though, is the uncontained greediness of many of the CEOs. How does Reebok International's CEO justify paying himself $14.6 million in salary and bonuses? Chris Craft's CEO is rewarded with $13.7 million and Walt Disney's CEO gets paid $9.6 million, when eight of the 10 largest Fortune 500 CEOs are paid less than $2 million in salaries and bonuses? Another depressing part of the Business Week list is its white male dominance. Only two of the CEOs are women, and only one is a black male.

Sniffing out a showroom sucker

BOSTON — I have bought four cars in my life. Purchased them after a glance at Consumer's Report, a stab at comparison shopping and a massive attack of fear and loathing. Each time I left the lot with a car loaded with doubt. Could I have cut a better deal?

Let me be frank here. Before I got into car-buying, I thought that you paid for them like dresses — the price on the ticket. I was 36 before I discovered that you didn't just negotiate for a car, you haggled.

I still think that I carry into the showroom a special aroma. The scent of a tire-kicker. The perfume of an auto-ignoramus. The smell of a patsy. They can sniff my kind at the door.

But now I am told that the problem is simpler than that. An elaborate research project by the American Bar Association says that auto deals are cut by gender and race.

The researchers sent testers — men and women, white and black — to make 400 visits at 200 showrooms across Chicago. Armed with the same script of negotiation, they came back with different offers.

This was the drill: The best deals were offered to the white men. White women were quoted a higher price. Black men higher yet and black women were offered the worst deal of all. The range was nearly $600 from top to bottom.

I should feel validated by the statistics, proof that I wasn't dumb, but done in. Just because you're paranoid, doesn't mean they aren't after you. There should be some perverse comfort in being part of a class action.

But reading the report, my one lingering thought was, "Damn, what a sucker I am."

It's politically incorrect, I know, to blame the victim. The researchers' instinct was to question whether the civil-rights laws go far enough to protect the victim. But my instinct is to figure out how to stop being a victim.

There are, after all, times when it is hard to know whether the culprit is racism, sexism and/or plain ole suckerism. And this is one of them.

There is a larger point in the story of the car-buyers. A point about race, gender, about class-action discrimination and individual responsibility. A point about those times when you are thwarted by color gender. And those times when the only helping hand is at the end of your own arm.

If a company refuses to hire women, that's a civil-rights violation. If a store doesn't allow minorities in the front door, call the cops.

But when the salespeople — black and white, male and female — all offer the best deals to white men and the worst to black women? When even the head researcher figures that the showrooms were less motivated by prejudice than profits? If they still get more money out of me than the white guy? Sexism meets suckerism.

In this case, the testers weren't allowed to go on-one in the auto bazaar and wrestle over the fine print on the air bag. So, we never found out what I also suspect: that somewhere on the real-life bell curve are not only white males who get had, but blacks and white women who cut good deals anyway.

To put it another way, when all is said and legislated, when all the laws against discrimination are on the books, you have won the opportunity, not precisely equal, to succeed or fail. You're more or less on your own. Congratulations and good luck.

Being discriminated against by race or gender doesn't absolve anybody from trying or for that matter from winning...as a person. After the court opens up the union, you have to make it as a worker.

After the school is forcibly integrated, you get graded as a student. After you make it into the executive suite, it's up to you to figure out what the others may already know — how the game is played, how the deals are made.

Somewhere in the second phase of the civil-rights movement, we hit the hurdles "we shall overcome" only on our own. As Martin Luther King said "when you are behind in a footrace, the only way to get ahead is to run faster than the man in front of you." King didn't have a car dealer in mind, but at some point, anyone who doesn't make the effort goes from being a victim of sexism or racism to being guilty of suckerism.

The Chicago team has offered proof and a warning. People get pegged at the showroom door, as other doors, by skin and sex.

GAO much adept at finding waste

WASHINGTON — There is a glimmer of hope that with each new year, the federal government will get better at curbing the rampant waste of your money. That glimmer resides in the General Accounting Office, which, in 1990, caught enough waste, fraud and abuse to save taxpayers $15.2 billion — nearly twice as much as it identified in 1989.

A big chunk of the money was caught before it was squandered on secret communications and intelligence programs in the Pentagon.

That information is found in a confidential report the GAO has prepared for key members of Congress. We obtained a copy of the report on its way to Congress.

The figure that stands out is $2.9 billion in savings from "command, control, communications and intelligence" in the military, which is more than four times the amount of waste found in that category in 1989.

For years, the Central Intelligence Agency and the Pentagon intelligence agencies have resisted oversight by the GAO — an arm of Congress. And we have contended for years that hundreds of millions of dollars were being hidden under the "secret" stamp because congressional oversight was ineffective. The GAO is allowed to audit the Pentagon but not the CIA.

The impression left by the GAO's internal review of its 1990 performance illustrates a truism that we have always believed — that the plodding and meticulous GAO auditors are one of Washington's best-kept secrets. We have always considered them a partner in rooting out the waste that is endemic in government. The GAO auditors are not headline seekers. They never issue their findings without first letting the agency under investigation respond to every point. And when the GAO nails an agency, often it is the member of Congress who asked for the investigation that takes the credit.

No matter who gets the credit, the GAO works out to be one of the few cost-effective outfits in Washington. It cost $364 million to run the agency in 1990. That paid for 5,000 employees around the world — 4,200 of whom were dedicated solely to investigations and audits.

So the $15.2 billion savings in 1990 means the GAO paid for itself more than 40 times over by telling federal agencies how to use your money more effectively. After the money the GAO saved in intelligence and communications, the agency caught with the most potential waste was the Air Force. It tends to have big-ticket weapons and aircraft that have a habit of not performing well or costing more than they should.

The overall cuts and improvements made in the Air Force as a result of GAO investigations came to $1.5 billion in 1990. The fact that the GAO found $1.3 billion in overexpending in the Air Force in 1989 suggests that at least one branch of the service hasn't learned its lesson.

The Navy isn't listening either. In 1989, the GAO identified $612 million that the Navy could save. The figure jumped to $1.2 billion in 1990. If the GAO investigations are any indicator, the Army is the one branch of the service that could teach the others a lesson. The GAO found only $582 million of potential waste in the Army in 1990.

The GAO is allowed to audit the Pentagon but not the CIA.

Baby

Justin William Foster was born at 1:35 a.m. on Jan. 1 at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

He is the couple's fourth child. "Fourth and last," Kirk Foster said with a laugh.

The healthy boy was seven pounds, six ounces at birth and was 20 inches tall. "He's doing really well," his mother said.

The dark-haired child, wrapped in a pastel multi-colored blanket, seemed oblivious to the fact that his birth was being celebrated as the first one of 1991 in Sanford. He yawned repeatedly and rubbed his eyes.

His siblings, Stephen, 5, Shannon, 3, and Caitlin, 1, were drawing pictures at a small table, ignoring their newest brother, though Stephen did stop from time to time to come take a look at him before taking off on a whirlwind tour of the house before settling back down with his crayons.

Kelly Foster said they chose to come to Sanford to have the baby because they wanted to get out of the war-threatened Persian Gulf region.

"It wasn't some place I wanted to have my baby," said the 26-year-old mother. "It was very tense there."

Her grandmother sees an upside to the Gulf crisis.

"If it hadn't been for Saddam Hussein, this child wouldn't have been born in Sanford," Faye Kelly said.

"We got out a couple of months ago," the mother said of herself and her children. Her husband joined his family here on Christmas Eve.

"She didn't want to stay there as long," he said. "She was afraid she'd go into labor as everything broke out and we wouldn't be able to get out."

Redevelopment of Sanford's historic downtown area and U.S. 17-92 corridor is a goal of a business task force formed last year.

The task force has recommended French Avenue businesses modify their appearances to enhance the turn-of-the-century downtown look. The task force has also recommended downtown Sanford be redeveloped into a trendy retail attraction similar to Winter Park.

The amount of industrial land, which includes the airport, will build out slightly later than homes and stores if current trends continue. Of the 1,297

Faye Kelly said it has been "weird" having the large family move in with her.

"I've been a widow for three and a half years," she explained. "Then this tornado struck and, well, it's not lonesome."

As a consultant to the United States government in the area of public health, the father said the service does not recommend that Americans have babies in Saudi Arabia.

"The care can be inconsistent," he said. "Because of the cost, they are moving away from using Western doctors. And sometimes you might have a good physician, but the anesthesiologist might not be as good. So they recommend that Americans not have their children there."

None of the their children were born in Saudi Arabia, where they have lived for nearly three years. Caitlin was born in Texas, where Kelly's mother lives.

The Fosters said "home" is Saudi Arabia and they hope to return there as a family after the crisis is over. The father said if war does not break out, he will return there alone after Jan. 15.

"If there is war, commercial airlines will probably not fly into Riyadh, so I'll have to see then," he said.

The rest of the family will return later.

"We're here in Sanford indefinitely," she said.

In the area of transportation, Sanford is in good shape if you ignore county and state roads. Most streets serving the city operate at average to good levels, but several major routes, including Lake Mary Boulevard, Sanford Avenue and State Road 46 east of Mclonville Avenue are congested.

Until those roads are widened, the city may be restrained by the state from allowing additional new construction along them to prevent from further overcrowding.

The extortionist, Michael Thomas Guardino Jr., 38, would phone women and tell them he was a police officer who had arrested their husbands. He would demand cash, jewelry, vehicles or pornographic photos in exchange for the release of the husbands. He was arrested after Praet broke a Lake Mary case and lawmen followed Guardino to his house. Praet was named County Public Safety Officer of the Year, and Officer of the Year, in his department.

A gang of six men accused of also posing as police when they robbed Central Florida residents in their houses for more than a year before Seminole County sheriff's deputies began rounding them up in January, have been sentenced to prison.

The wounding of Sheriff's Deputy Thomas Johnson in a May shootout with a bank robbery suspect in rural Longwood led to the gunman killing himself with a gunshot to the head after Deputy Paul Schuck opened fire on the gunman.

The gunman's accomplice, Graham Dobson, 33, of Australia, who was not wounded and who fired no shots, was convicted for attempted murder of Johnson and armed robbery. He was sentenced to life in prison in the fall. Johnson was saved by his bulletproof vest from direct bullet hits to his chest. After that incident Polk made it mandatory for all patrol deputies to wear their department issued bulletproof vests.

A public effort was made to force Circuit Judge Kenneth Lefler from the bench here after he on Sept. 20 sentenced an admitted rapist to probation rather than prison, because of Lefler's reported claim from the bench that he knew the victim and considered her to be "pitiful," and not credible.

Lefler's duties were switched to exclude criminal or family cases. With his retirement pending this month after 18 years on the bench, Lefler was allowed to remain a judge.

Lake Mary Police Lt. Tom Taggart stirred his own controversy by allegedly lying to police about an off-duty traffic accident in a city car in Volusia County in July. Taggart, Lake Mary's chief detective, resigned in August, with forced termination pending, after an internal police investigation of his conduct.

The Lake Mary Police Department was cleared by a State Attorney's investigation of another situation that surfaced during a former city mayor's losing political bid for a county commission seat in the November election.

During a radio talk show involving former mayor Dick Pess, allegations surfaced that police had been involved in a cover up of a DUI case involving a Lake Mary resident. The State Attorney found those allegations unfounded in late November.

The reported mishandling of at least two 911 emergency calls — one involving a homicide-suicide in the spring, brought some changes in the operation of that system at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. During the controversy the 911 supervisor resigned, as did a Capt. Harold "Beau" Taylor, who was assigned as chief of that operation. Taylor's slot as captain was not refilled, but eliminated.

Altamonte Springs police, on Oct. 3, arrested Longwood Mayor Henry "Hank" Hardy, 34, on a drunk driving charge. Hardy was a city commissioner at the time and was named mayor after his arrest. His trial is pending in January.

In November, Seminole County voters nixed a one-year, one-cent local sales tax that would have grossed an estimated $24 million for law enforcement capital outlay projects, including a new sheriff's office and jail expansion.

"And I am absolutely firm in that," he said. "I will keep working to achieve a peaceful resolution to this question," the president said. "However, it cannot be done with compromise to him."

Bush was noncommittal, however, when asked what he would do if Saddam does not comply with the Jan. 15 deadline set by the United Nations for withdrawal and restoration of the exiled Kuwait government.

"I haven't made a determination," he said. "And I suppose if I had I wouldn't advertise it, because we've got a lot of lives at stake. ... But all options are open."

If a military attack is launched, the president said, "I would hope it would be over in a few days, but what happens realistically is hard to tell. ... So, I'm not predicting one way or another."

The Lake Mary Police Department was cleared by a State Attorney's investigation of another situation that surfaced during a former city mayor's losing political bid for a county commission seat in the November election.

During a radio talk show involving former mayor Dick Pess, allegations surfaced that police had been involved in a cover up of a DUI case involving a Lake Mary resident. The State Attorney found those allegations unfounded in late November.

The reported mishandling of at least two 911 emergency calls — one involving a homicide-suicide in the spring, brought some changes in the operation of that system at the Seminole County Sheriff's Department. During the controversy the 911 supervisor resigned, as did a Capt. Harold "Beau" Taylor, who was assigned as chief of that operation. Taylor's slot as captain was not refilled, but eliminated.

Altamonte Springs police, on Oct. 3, arrested Longwood Mayor Henry "Hank" Hardy, 34, on a drunk driving charge. Hardy was a city commissioner at the time and was named mayor after his arrest. His trial is pending in January.

In November, Seminole County voters nixed a one-year, one-cent local sales tax that would have grossed an estimated $24 million for law enforcement capital outlay projects, including a new sheriff's office and jail expansion.

"And I am absolutely firm in that," he said. "I will keep working to achieve a peaceful resolution to this question," the president said. "However, it cannot be done with compromise to him."

Bush was noncommittal, however, when asked what he would do if Saddam does not comply with the Jan. 15 deadline set by the United Nations for withdrawal and restoration of the exiled Kuwait government.

"I haven't made a determination," he said. "And I suppose if I had I wouldn't advertise it, because we've got a lot of lives at stake. ... But all options are open."

If a military attack is launched, the president said, "I would hope it would be over in a few days, but what happens realistically is hard to tell. ... So, I'm not predicting one way or another."

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Bush firm, but undecided

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he is "absolutely firm" in his no-compromise stance toward Saddam Hussein but has not decided what he will do if the Iraqi leader does not withdraw his forces from Kuwait by Jan. 15.

Bush made the statements in a television interview released Tuesday as he returned from a Christmas and New Year's holiday at Camp David and met privately with key advisers in the family living quarters of the White House.

"We cannot stop one inch short of successful resolution," Bush said in the interview, part of the series "...Talking with David Frost" that is presented by Washington television station WETA.

The interview will be broadcast tonight on Public Broadcasting Service stations.

Sundlun shuts down 45 banks

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Newly sworn-in Gov. Bruce G. Sundlun wasted no time taking action on New Year's Day when he closed 45 Rhode Island banks and credit unions covered by a severely depleted insurance fund.

The action means customers holding $1.7 billion in 300,000 accounts cannot withdraw their money until further notice.

"It's not a very happy New Year," depositor Arthur St. Hilaire said. "I told my wife today, if things keep like this, I'm going to buy a fireproof safe, put it in the basement, and that's where my money is going."

The surprise move came just hours after Sundlun was sworn in on the Statehouse steps. It came a day after the Rhode Island Share and Deposit Indemnity Corp. asked to be placed in financial conservatorship.

Baby born on Rose Parade route

Human polar bears dove into frigid waters, hundreds exchanged wedding vows in Las Vegas and a California woman gave birth on the Rose Parade route as traditional and offbeat New Year's Day celebrations marked the advent of 1991.

In Philadelphia, outlandish costumes were the norm as people dressed up like flowers, pigs or the opposite sex to take part in the annual Mummers Parade. Perhaps the day's most unusual event occurred in Pasadena, Calif., where 20-year-old Ada Reyes gave birth while watching the 102nd Rose Parade with approximately 1 million other people.

Spectators contacted police who called for paramedics when Mrs. Reyes went into labor, but police Lt. Jerry Schultze said things happened too fast.

Bush on the road one-third of 1990

WASHINGTON — President Bush lived up to his reputation in 1990 as the man who can't sit still, spending more than one-third of the year on the road as he hopped from Bermuda to Saudi Arabia and Hawaii to Maine.

Bush christened a new Air Force One and logged 144,749 foreign and domestic flying miles for the year in his new 747 jumbo jet and its predecessors, according to statistics compiled by the White House.

His two-year travel total handily surpasses that of President Reagan. Bush traveled to 113 cities in 44 states, 91 of the cities more than once.

Top officials study health on Africa trip

By GEORGE QEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Two top Bush administration officials are beginning a 17-day trip to seven African countries in search of ways to alleviate health problems affecting millions of children.

Health and Human Services Secretary Louis W. Sullivan and Ronald W. Roskens, administrator of the Agency for International Development, were leaving today on a mission to Mali, Nigeria, Uganda, Malawi, South Africa, Zimbabwe and Senegal.

Ambitious programs designed to eradicate communicable diseases and reverse dehydration from acute diarrhea have saved the lives of many African children over the past decade.

But some of these gains have been offset by a dramatic increase in acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS. The World Health Organization estimates that 10 million or more African children will be infected at birth with the AIDS virus by the year 2000.

According to government statistics, child mortality rates in Africa may increase by as much as 50 percent during the 1990s as a result of AIDS.

Another growing problem is the number of children orphaned by parents who die of AIDS. According to U.S. estimates, the infection rate among urban women in Malawi of reproductive age is 23 percent. AIDS is a particularly acute problem in Uganda as well.

Sullivan and Roskens also will focus on other child survival problems. In Malawi, the principle cause of sickness and disease among children is malaria.

Even in the Ivory Coast, one of Africa's most prosperous countries, 16 percent of school children are stunted, an indicator of chronic malnutrition, according to a World Bank study. In Mali, one child in six dies in infancy, the highest ratio in Africa, according to a World Bank study.

Congress generally has been wary of administration foreign assistance requests, but Africa is an exception because of its great needs. Congress approved $800 million for an African development fund, $240 million more than the administration's request. Of that figure, $80 million is earmarked for child survival.

In an interview, Roskens said he and Sullivan, a medical doctor, will concentrate on recommending long-term programs to combat child mortality in Africa. Of the estimated 40,000 children who die daily worldwide, he said a substantial percentage are African.

"The statistics are horrible," Roskens said.

President Bush used similar language last September when he addressed the World Summit for Children at the United Nations.

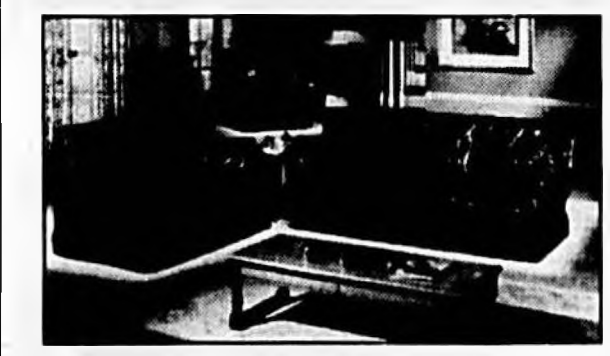

"The facts are as stark as they are oppressive," Bush said. "There are almost 3 billion young people on Earth today — and more than 14 million of them will die this year. In the next hour alone, 1,000 babies will perish."

It was in that same speech that Bush disclosed his intention to send Sullivan and Roskens to Africa.

Somalia at a glance

Here at a glance are events over the past year in Somalia, where President Mohamed Siad Barre faces three rebel groups and the collapse of law and order after two decades in power.

JAN. 9, 1990 - President Siad Barre fires his entire Cabinet.

JULY 6 - Security forces open fire on a crowd at a soccer game. Diplomatic sources said at least 65 people are killed, but the Somali government said only three people died.

JULY 14 - Siad Barre's security forces fired on Muslims protesting the arrest of their religious leaders in Mogadishu, the capital. Witnesses and international human rights organizations say up to 450 people were killed. Soldiers rounded up 48 men and boys the next day, took them to a beach not far from where the ambassador's party was robbed and shot them. One survived.

JULY 16 - Somalia's government says multiparty elections will be held in seven months and that it also has ordered a referendum on a new constitution. The announcement comes two days after the anniversary of the event believed to mark the beginning of Somalia's slide from instability to chaos.

SEPT. 3 - President Siad Barre fires the 6-month-old government of Prime Minister Mohamed Ali Samantar.

OCT. 11 - Two Red Cross workers detained by Somali rebels are freed, the International Committee of the Red Cross says. The two relief workers were among four ambushed by armed men on Oct. 6 while returning from a relief mission. One relief worker died in the attack and the fourth escaped.

DEC. 12 - The United States orders the evacuation of all U.S. dependents and non-essential staff from Somalia due to a rise in factional fighting, armed robberies and shootings. A few days earlier, Washington had advised Americans to leave Somalia and warned travelers against visiting.

DEC. 27 - The government says two gunmen are killed and more than 20 arrested in a shootout between security forces and armed gangs in a shantytown on the northern outskirts of Mogadishu. Unofficial reports reaching neighboring Kenya speak of many more deaths and hundreds of arrests.

Source: The World Almanac and Book of Facts

DEC. 28 - Somalian Information Minister Umar Muhammad Abd Al-Rahman appeals for public support for a crackdown on various armed gangs and rebels.

DEC. 30 - Battles are fought after armed attackers break into a warehouse, kill a senior army officer and steal $4,000 worth of Somali shillings, the British Broadcasting Corp. reports. At least 20 people are killed and more than 50 wounded, according to the BBC. The U.S. State Department says the battles seemed to have started when soldiers tried to confiscate weapons from "opponents" near the presidential palace.

DEC. 31 - The United States Congress claims to have seized the presidential palace, state radio and television and nearly all of the capital.

JAN. 1, 1991 - The rebels claim that Siad Barre is under rebel siege in a bunker near the airport and that 500 people have been killed in two days of fighting.

Foreigners evacuated from capital

By DIDRIKKE SCHANCHE
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya - Efforts were under way to evacuate foreigners from Somalia's chaotic capital today, where fighting between rebels and troops loyal to President Siad Barre threatened to degenerate into inter-tribal bloodletting.

Hundreds were reported dead in four days of fighting, many of them civilians.

Gunfire could be heard throughout the capital, Mogadishu, but the battle appeared concentrated at the airport, said an Italian diplomat in contact with his embassy in the city.

The rebels Tuesday claimed they had cornered Siad Barre in his bunker at the airport, where he reportedly has been living for several months as Mogadishu slipped further into anarchy.

They said more than 500 people had been killed in the fighting.

In Nairobi, an aid official with long experience in Somalia said colleagues evacuated to Kenya's capital by plane Tuesday night reported that an unknown number of government soldiers had defected to the opposition.

"But it doesn't sound to me like the Marchans have lost full control," he said. Siad Barre is a member of the Marehan clan as are most members of the elite Red Beret division that acts as his personal bodyguard.

The aid official said some of his colleagues reported that Red Berets captured by the United Somali Congress rebels were being summarily executed. "If that's the case, the Marehan will fight to the last man," he said.

The aid worker said the rebels had popular support and numbers, but not the heavy weapons of the army. This could be a prolonged struggle.

Telecommunications with the Horn of Africa nation of 8 million were cut Tuesday and it was not possible to obtain independent comment from Mogadishu.

However, George Guglielmino, press attache at the Italian embassy in Nairobi, said his counterpart in Mogadishu said via radio late Tuesday that indiscriminate shooting had made the roads extremely dangerous.

"It's not easy to spot who's on what side. They don't wear uniforms and are shooting at whomever," Guglielmino said he was told.

IN BRIEF

JUCO BASKETBALL

SCC men at home

SANFORD — The Seminole Community College men's basketball team will tune up for the start of Mid-Florida Conference play with a home game Friday night against North Florida Community College.

The game is set for a 7:30 p.m. start at SCC's Health and Physical Education Center. Admission is free of charge.

This will be the Raiders' first game in three weeks and will be their last game before opening conference play at home against St. John's River Community College next Wednesday.

Friday's game will also mark the first appearance of the season for Billy Freeman, a 6-foot-6, 250-pound freshman from Albany, Ga., who was ineligible the first semester. His size and shooting ability should help SCC's inside game.

The Raiders, 9-6 on the season, were playing their best ball of the season before the holiday having won seven of their last nine starts. The big guns for SCC have been guards Brian Nason, John Mackey and Tony DeJesus, forwards Robert Moore and Dennard Ford and center Leslie Cephus.

YOUTH BASEBALL

Seminole Pony registration

FIVE POINTS — Seminole Pony Baseball, Inc. will hold registration for the 1991 Spring Season on Saturday, Jan. 5 and Saturday, Jan. 12.

Registration will be held from 12 a.m.-2 p.m. at the Seminole Pony Baseball complex on Highway 419. Ages 5-16 can register for later team tryouts.

Registration costs are: $35, Shetland (ages 5-6); $55, Pinto (ages 7-8); $60, Mustang (ages 9-10); $65, Bronco (ages 11-12); $75, Pony (ages 13-14) and $75, Colt (ages 15-16). Family discounts are available.

A copy of the player's birth certificate is required for proof of age.

For more information, call Seminole Pony Baseball at 323-5570 and leave a message, including phone number.

GYMNASTICS

McDonald's Cup at Arena

ORLANDO — Orlando Arena will play host to the best gymnasts in the world February 22-23 when competitors from 13 countries vie for the 1991 McDonald's World Cup.

Expected to send teams are the Soviet Union, Romania and China as well as the United States.

Among the competitors for the U.S. will be Altamonte Springs resident and 1988 Olympian Brandy Johnson.

Tickets will be available at the Orlando Arena Box Office and all Ticketmaster outlets. Phone (407) 839-3309 or (813) 287-8844. Tickets are $9 and $11 Friday and $12 and $14 Saturday.

COLLEGE HOOPS

Tampa crushes Huntsville

TAMPA — Drexel Deveaux scored 40 points and teammates Bryan Williams and Rod Brooks each scored more than 20 to boost Tampa to a 128-82 victory over Alabama-Huntsville Tuesday.

Brooks scored 26 points, and Williams got 22 points and pulled down nine rebounds for Tampa. Matt Streff and Karel Dopwell each added 14.

Tampa (8-2) took a 55-34 lead at the half and outscored Alabama-Huntsville (4-6) by 73-48 in the second period.

Mike Morris scored 16 for Alabama-Huntsville. Jackie Cunigan scored 14 and Chris Cothron added 12.

GOLF

PGA Tour opens this weekend

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Five players, four of them foreigners, opted not to play in the Tournament of Champions that opens the 1991 PGA Tour schedule this weekend.

Missing from the field of 32 men who won four titles last season are Curtis Strange and Mark Calcavecchia, who failed to win last year and thus did not qualify, along with Nick Faldo and Jose Maria Olazabal. Faldo, the Englishman who won both the Masters and British Open last year, and the Spaniard Olazabal both chose not to play.

Three others are missing from the Senior Tour segment of the tournament, South African Gary Player, Bob Charles of New Zealand and Jack Nicklaus all declined to accept their invitations.

That left a field of 13 members of the over-50 set who will compete in a separate but simultaneous tournament at La Costa.

SAC titles up for grabs

By TONY DeBORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

Now that we're done with celebrating Christmas and ushering in the New Year, it's time to turn our thoughts to the business at hand, namely, the pursuit of the Seminole Athletic Conference championships.

It may not seem like it, but the girls' and boys' soccer seasons are better than half over. The girls will begin their district tournament in four weeks, on Jan. 30, while the boys start their state-title trek the following week, on Feb. 6.

As action picks up again this week, the defending Class 4A state champion Lake Brantley Patriots sit atop the SAC girls' soccer standings with a 6-0 conference mark, 12-1-1 overall. Lyman, which beat Lake Brantley in the semifinals of the Burger King Class before Christmas, is 5-1-1 in the SAC, 13-1-1 overall.

Trailing the Patriots and Greyhounds are Lake Mary (6-4-5 overall, 4-1-2 SAC), Lake Howell (9-6-2 overall, 4-2-1 SAC) and Seminole (7-6-0, 1-6 ). Records are unavailable for DeLand and Oviedo.

Lake Mary's Rams (7-4-1 overall) have a slight lead in the boys' soccer conference standings at 3-0-1 while the Lake Howell Silver Hawks, 6-2-2 after finishing fourth in the Pizza Hut Invitational last week, have a 2-0-2 mark in the SAC. Lake Mary's only tie is with Lake Howell.

Everyone else is still within striking distance. Lake Brantley is 4-5-1 overall, 2-2 in the SAC. The Patriots are followed by Lyman (7-3-2, 1-1-2) and Seminole (2-2-0, 1-2). Oviedo's and DeLand's records are unavailable.

Two undefeated teams also sit atop the girls' basketball conference standings, the Seminole Fighting Seminoles putting together a 3-0 SAC mark during its 9-0 start while the Lyman Greyhounds are also 3-0 against conference opponents, 6-3 overall.

Lake Mary, which lost to Seminole by one point on Dec. 4, is 3-1 in the conference, 7-5 overall. Lake Brantley (5-3 overall) and Lake Howell (5-9) are both 0-3 in conference play.

The boys' basketball season had barely gotten underway when we entered the holiday break. There have only been three conference games played, all on Dec. 14. Lake Brantley (6-4 overall) beating Seminole (2-6) 72-70 and Lake Howell (8-4) downing Lake Mary (4-4) 72-62. There was no report from the Oviedo-DeLand game.

Lyman, 1-7, has not played a conference game.

The Seminole Athletic Conference wrestling team champion will be decided at the conference tournament scheduled for Jan. 25 and 26 at Lake Mary High School.

In early season action, Lake Brantley topped defending SAC champ Lake Mary while Lyman finished first in its own Christmas Tournament ahead of Lake Brantley, Oviedo, Lake Mary and Lake Howell. Seminole has not yet seen any action against conference schools.

Holding on to first place

No. 1 Colorado tips Notre Dame

Associated Press

MIAMI — Colorado got one big break instead of five downs and claimed its first national championship.

Backup quarterback Charles Johnson, who scored the winning touchdown in the infamous fifth-down victory over Missouri, took over for injured Darian Hagan and led the top-ranked Buffaloes to a 10-9 win over No. 5 Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl on Tuesday night.

The victory was Colorado's first in eight bowl games and it almost got away in the final minute.

Notre Dame's Rocket Ismail returned a punt 91 yards for an apparent touchdown with 35 seconds left only to have it called back because of a clipping penalty on senior Greg Davis.

"We got a little lucky on the clip on Rocket's runback," Colorado coach Bill McCartney admitted.

"The return by Rocket was one of the greatest individual efforts I've seen," said Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz. "I don't know if the clip had anything to do with the run, I sure hope it did."

The victory apparently clinched the national title for the Buffaloes (11-1-1), a goal that eluded them last year when they were beaten by Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl.

Every top-ranked team that has won a bowl game has been crowned national champion, so it would be a major break with tradition if Colorado doesn't finish No. 1 when the final Associated Press poll is released on Wednesday.

"That's the way I feel," McCartney said. "I think historically if you play a team as worthy as

No. 2 Tech lays its claim to No. 1

Associated Press

ORLANDO — Georgia Tech proved it wasn't overranked and made a convincing case for being unranked.

The Yellow Jackets of the Atlantic Coast Conference, second-ranked for their undefeated record but first-doubted for their schedule, routed No. 19 Nebraska 45-21 in the Citrus Bowl on Tuesday and staked their claim to the national championship.

"We played. We're undefeated. We should be No. 1," coach Bobby Ross said.

"I feel that we deserve it right now," said Ross, who had played down Tech's quest for its first national title during the regular season, saying his team had other business to take care of.

The Yellow Jackets took care of the other business in grand style, completing an 11-0-1 season — the only major college team without a loss.

"I'm not going to gloat over it or wave a flag," Ross said. "I think we've done what we had to do."

The Yellow Jackets went into New Year's Day behind only Colorado in the poll. The Buffaloes (12-1-1) beat No. 5 Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl Tuesday night.

"I don't know what's going to happen," Ross, speaking via telephone from Williamsburg, Va., following the Orange Bowl game, said of the No. 1 ranking in the poll. "I'm not going to wave a flag for it. I do feel like we deserve it because of our won-lost record. We've always been kind of

No. 4 Hurricanes rout No. 3 Texas

Associated Press

DALLAS — The brash Miami Hurricanes are making no apologies for their daunting and taunting defense, and the Texas Longhorns say there's no excuse for their ineptness.

Fourth-ranked Miami bashed its way to a 46-3 rout of No. 3 Texas on Tuesday. The Hurricanes (10-2) were penalized a Cotton Bowl-record 16 times for 202 yards yet still produced the most points and largest margin of victory in Cotton Bowl history.

Dennis Erickson, who improved his record to 21-3 in two years as Miami's coach, said the penalties, many of them for celebrating plays, didn't bother him one bit.

"Hey, when you win 46-3, you don't worry about penalties," he said.

"I don't think we played dirty or anything," he added. "I think we just played harder, we had more intensity. And it takes two to tangle."

"You would think that by getting that many penalties, we would have been able to move the ball better," Texas coach David McWilliams said. "The tone of the game was set early. Miami taunted the Longhorns when they came onto the field before the game began, then was hit by consecutive personal foul and unsportsmanlike conduct penalties on the first series."

Miami overcame a first-and-40 following the two flags to take a 3-0 lead on Carlos Huerta's field goal, and the Hurricanes never looked back.

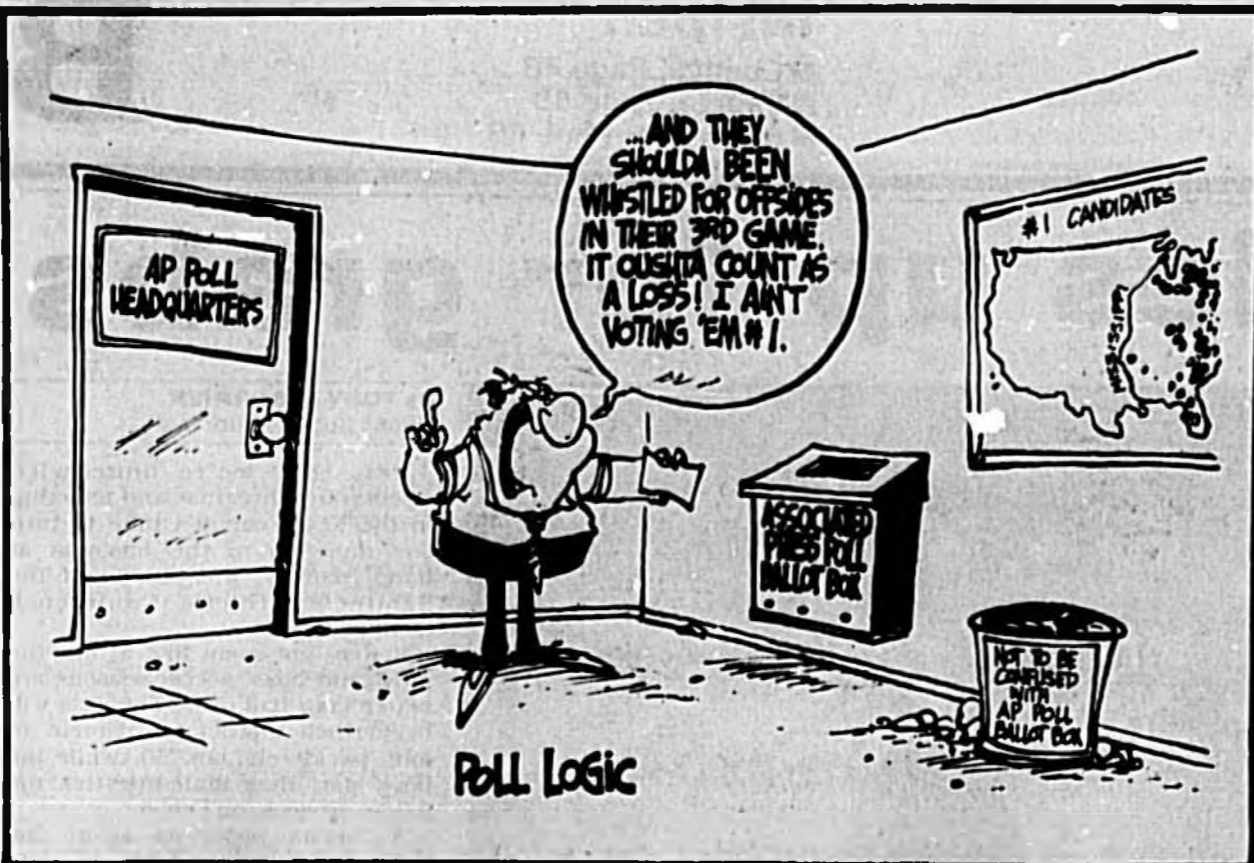

Defensive tackle Shane Curry said the pre-game intimidating had an immediate effect on the Longhorns.

"You could see it in their eyes," he said. "They

Rose: Washington outscores Iowa

Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — After Washington's 46-34 Rose Bowl victory over Iowa, a couple of Huskies players went up to Hawkeyes coach Hayden Fry and told him they hoped the teams could meet in a rematch in Pasadena next New Year's Day. That's a definite possibility.

Coach Don James returns 14 starters, seven on offense and seven on defense, from a 10-2 team that won the Pac-10 Conference championship.

And Fry has 13 regulars back from his Big Ten Conference co-championship club that went 8-4.

Washington's Mark Brunell, a sophomore quarterback with quick feet but a questionable arm, was selected as the player of the game.

He passed for two touchdowns to Mario Bailey and ran for two others.

Brunell's biggest touchdown came with 4:43 to go after Iowa rallied to close Washington's lead to 39-26. Brunell passed 31 yards into the end zone to a streaking Bailey for his fourth score.

At halftime, Washington had things its own way, leading 33-7. The Huskies were in front 39-14 after three quarters.

But the Hawkeyes didn't quit. They recovered two onside kicks in the fourth quarter and converted one of them into a touchdown.

The impetus of Washington's victory happened in the first quarter after the Huskies drove 67 yards in a dozen plays with the opening kickoff for a 23-yard field goal by Travis Hanson.

On a fourth-and-1 play from the Iowa 35, Hawkeyes punter Jim Hujak was supposed to pass. But Washington had all of Iowa's receivers covered and Andy Mason blocked Hujak's punt. Dana Hall picked up the ball and returned it 27 yards for a touchdown and a 10-0 Husky lead.

Brunell completed 14 of 22 passes for 163 yards and two touchdowns, including a 22-yard scoring pass to Bailey in the second quarter. Brunell ran 10 times for 28 yards and two touchdowns.

Sugar: No. 10 Vols rally past Cavs

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Tony Thompson ran for 151 yards and two touchdowns, the last with 31 seconds left Tuesday night, to rally 10th-ranked Tennessee to a 23-22 victory over Virginia.

It was the third time in the last five games that Virginia, ranked No. 1 in the nation midway through the season but unranked by bowl time, led by at least 14 points at halftime and lost.

Tennessee drove from its own 21-yard line in the final 2:31 and gambled on fourth-and-1 at the Cavaliers' 23, making the first down when Greg Amaler gained 6 yards with 50 seconds left.

Tennessee drove from its own 21-yard line in the final 2:31 and gambled on fourth-and-1 at the Cavaliers' 23, making the first down when Greg Amaler gained 6 yards with 50 seconds left.

Andy Kelly hit Alvin Harper on the left sideline at the 7, and Harper fought to get to the 4. Amaler moved it to the 1 with 34 seconds left, and Thompson went over for the winning score.

Kelly completed 24 of 35 passes for 273 yards with two interceptions, both in the first half. Thompson gained 151 yards on 28 carries.

Virginia quarterback Shawn Moore couldn't throw deep because of a surgically repaired right thumb, but he threw short often enough and ran well enough to give the Cavaliers a 22-17 lead with 2:34 remaining.

Virginia (8-4) also got big plays from a defense pummeled for 31 points over its last four games, shutting out Tennessee (9-2-2) through the first half, the first time this season that the Volunteers were shut out for a half.

The Cavaliers' scores came on a 10-yard run by Gary Steele on the first possession, a 1-yard run by Terry Kirby in the second quarter, and three field goals by Jake McInerney — 22 yards in the first quarter and 43 and 44 yards in the fourth.

Fame: No. 14 Clemson blanks Illinois

Associated Press

TAMPA — Clemson's defense made its usual promise to itself, then made good on it against Illinois in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

"Before every game we put a zero on the chalk board to signify that we want a shutout," linebacker John Johnson said Tuesday after the 14th-ranked Tigers forced four turnovers and used an efficient ball-control offense to dominate the Big Ten co-champions 30-0 at Tampa Stadium.

"We don't always get it," fellow linebacker Levon Kirkland added. "But this time we were able to pull it off in our biggest game of the season."

The victory extended Clemson's winning streak in bowl games to five and allowed the Tigers to finish with a 10-2 record for the fourth consecutive year. No. 16 Illinois (8-4) was shut out for the first time since 1986 when Ohio State beat the Illini 14-0.

"They're as talented on defense as anyone we saw this year," Illinois coach John Mackovic said. "They didn't give us a chance to have much success."

Clemson forced a fumble on Illinois' first play from scrimmage and scored a touchdown to take a 10-0 lead six seconds later. The Tigers led 24-0 at the half after Arlington Nunn intercepted Jason Verdusco's pass and returned it 34 yards for a touchdown.

Offensively, DeChane Cameron passed for 141 yards and two touchdowns and also rushed for 76 yards on 17 attempts. Chris Gardocki kicked field goals of 18, 28 and 43 yards — one of them set up by a blocked punt.

Fiesta: No. 18 Louisville rides Tide

Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — It was a new experience for Louisville to play in a bowl game, much less a New Year's Day game.

The 18th-ranked Cardinals made the most of it Tuesday by routing 25th-ranked Alabama 34-7 in the Fiesta Bowl.

"Coming to this game was a quantum leap for this program. Winning as big as we did was another quantum leap," said Louisville coach Howard Schnellenberger, who inherited a 2-9 team in 1985. "No way in my wildest dreams did I think we would be in this position."

The Crimson Tide, which led the nation in pass defense this season and had allowed only 38 points in the last seven games, probably thought there was no way Cardinals' senior quarterback Browning Nagle could shred them so easily.

Nagle threw for a bowl-record 451 yards, 223 during a 25-point first quarter, en route to being named the game's most valuable offensive player.

He completed 20 of 33 passes for three touchdowns with one interception. Nagle completed nine of 16 for two TDs in the first quarter alone and was rated for most of the second quarter.

He broke the bowl record of 422 passing yards set last year by Florida State's Peter Tom Willis.

"We took this game for everything it was worth," Nagle said. "We wanted to come out here and gain respect and that's what we did. It's a great tribute to the coaches for getting us focused."

Louisville, making its first postseason appearance since the 1977 Independence Bowl, finished 10-1-1 — the best record in school history.

Alabama, which started the season 0-3, wound up 7-5 after its worst bowl defeat since a 38-6 thrashing by Nebraska in the 1971 Orange Bowl.

Gator: No. 12 Michigan whips Ole Miss

Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — Mississippi coach Billy Brewer said all along that he thought Michigan would be the best team his club would face this season.

Brewer changed his mind Tuesday after watching the 12th-ranked Wolverines destroy his Rebels 35-3.

"They are the best football team we've ever played at Ole Miss... ever," said Brewer.

"They kept us spread out, and we didn't expect them to throw as much as they did," he added.

"We were able to mix up the run and the pass... able to open up into their secondary," Michigan first-year coach Gary Moeller said.

Elvis Grbac threw a career-high four touchdown passes, including two long scoring throws to Desmond Howard, as Michigan rolled up a Gator Bowl-record 715 yards and 35 first downs.

"We used play action most of the day to open things up," said Howard, who caught six passes for 187 yards.

The Wolverines scored three touchdowns in the third period, moving to a 35-3 advantage on Grbac's 31-yard TD pass to Derrick Alexander.

Grbac completed 16 of 25 for 296 yards before retiring in the final period.

Michigan accumulated 563 yards in the first three quarters, including 290 alone in the third period.

"We just exploded," said senior fullback Jarrod Bunch. "The truth is, we practiced so hard we were getting on each other's nerves."

Notre Dame and you beat them, you should hold your ranking. Comparative scores really mean nothing. If you look at what Colorado has done all year, the teams we've beaten, we should maintain our ranking."

Second-ranked Georgia Tech (11-0-1) bolstered its claim to the title by beating Nebraska 45-21 in the Citrus Bowl and No. 4 Miami (10-2) made its case by routing No. 3 Texas 46-3 in the Cotton Bowl. But it seems highly unlikely that either team will pass Colorado in the rankings.

Holtz was in no position to argue with either Colorado or Georgia Tech.

"Colorado was No. 1 going in and they beat us, so I guess that's who you have to give it to," he said.

knocked because of our schedule, but I think the ACC was vindicated in the bowl situation."

Ross said he saw "very little" of the Orange Bowl, but did see an exciting runback late in the game.

"I saw the punt return when I walked in my dad's apartment," he said. "I thought they had it."

Earlier, the Georgia Tech coach talked of his team's record.

"We're the only undefeated football team in the country, and I don't think we won well," Ross said. "I don't think we looked sloppy."

Jones had Georgia Tech's offense rolling from the start, driving 70 yards with the opening kickoff to start a surge to a 21-0 lead that Nebraska (9-3) was never able to overcome.

didn't know to talk back or walk away."

"We were the underdogs. We were in Texas," said Outland Trophy winner Russell Maryland. "We wanted to show them early on that nobody was going to run over us."

Curry said both teams did plenty of talking. "You just got to be able to back it up. If you want to be somebody, be it then. But be able to back it up first."

Texas was flagged eight times for 68 yards. But the Longhorns blamed the thrashing on poor play.

"I don't think we were intimidated as much as we didn't do a good job," said Texas running back Chris Samuels.

Strict diet could help spastic colon

MEDICINE
PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from spastic colon. While I'm on Lomotil and Anaspaz, the combination doesn't seem to help completely. I originally moved my bowels seven to 14 times per day; however, during the last 20 years, this has decreased to about three to five movements per day. Does the movement of small, marble-like feces indicate the presence of a problem I should pursue?

because of the gas, bloating and abdominal discomfort. If your doctor cannot control your symptoms using the methods I described, ask for a referral to a gastroenterologist who may be able to offer further advice.

To give you more information,

I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome."

DEAR READER: In my opinion, the nature of your bowel movements is not as important as their chronic frequency. Evidently, the contents of your intestine move through the bowel too quickly, resulting in frequent evacuations. Anti-diarrheal agents, such as Lomotil, and anti-spasmodics, such as Anaspaz (hyoscine), may help, but I suspect you'll continue to have problems until the cause of this "rapid transit" is discovered.

Spastic bowel (irritable colon) is a diagnosis of exclusion, meaning that other conditions have to be ruled out before the diagnosis is established. For example, you should have a stool analysis for infection or parasites, a sigmoidoscopic examination to look for polyps or inflammation and a complete blood analysis to make sure you don't have another affliction, such as pancreatic deficiency or hyperthyroidism, to explain your frequent stools.

If everything checks out, you may be helped by a strict diet (no roughage, beans or cabbage), Metamucil (a stool-bulking agent), stress counseling (because emotional upset can worsen irritable colon), and other, more effective anti-spasmodics, such as propantheline. In some cases, hypnosis or biofeedback may be useful in controlling symptoms.

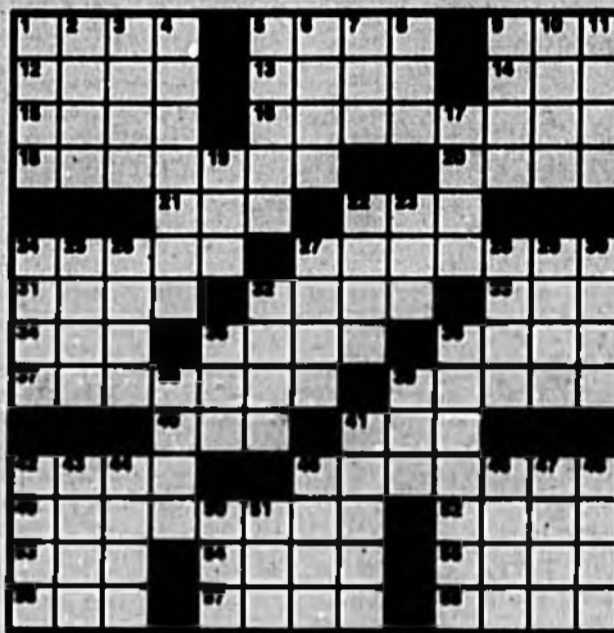

Irritable colon is a common disorder that does not cause ill-health. It is a nuisance to its sufferers, not only because of bowel frequency but also

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

"Bid to Win. Play for Pleasure" (Devyn Press) by George Rosenkrantz and Phillip Alder... is a remarkable bridge book. It elucidates a system of bidding, Romex, which has enabled George Rosenkrantz to win 10 North American Championships, but intersperses this detailing of system with entertaining and instructive deals from actual competition. So the reader becomes familiar with the bidding methods while being entertained by the exciting deals. Today's deal is one of these. Although South was minimum in high cards, the playing value of his cards mushroomed when his spade suit was supported, so he went right to game. West did his best by first leading the king of clubs and then switching to a heart. When declarer played a low heart from dummy, East won the jack and continued with the queen. So South took dummy's ace, cashed his A-K of spades while unblocking dummy's jack, and then ran all his trumps, coming down to Q-6 of diamonds in dummy. Poor West had to keep a high heart and the guarded king of diamonds. Even though he was able to throw away his ace of clubs, he was still helpless. Declarer played a heart, putting West on lead and forcing him to play away from the king of diamonds. For poor West, it was a case of having just too much in high cards.

Try to give fuller expression to your creative instincts in the year ahead. There is a possibility you might be able to turn one of your talents into something profitable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Sound advice given to you by your mate today will be worthy of consideration. It's likely to be better than suggestions you'll get from a hot-shot pal who lays claim to all the answers. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make that relationship work. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It could be rather easy for you to get a favorable response from people with little clout today, but very tough getting approval from those who have the real authority.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you don't have something nice to say about another today, it's best you say nothing, especially if you're discussing a person with someone who likes this individual better than this individual likes you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't be too glib for your own good today. An associate might set up a friendly little get-together to serve as a play to pressure you into a commitment that may not serve your best interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A present arrangement which is proceeding exactly as you planned could be jeopardized today if you let people interfere who have no place in the operation. Keep lobbyists out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to avoid making impulsive decisions today where important issues are concerned. You need time to think things over, because your first thoughts may not be your best ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have adequate financial smarts today, but you also have a streak of extravagance. Don't let the latter offset that which you gain with the former.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might have a bit of a problem getting your priorities in order today. Don't waste your efforts on the insignificant while giving only token attention to important matters.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might not get everything you request from another today, so don't have unrealistic expectations. Try to be grateful and appreciative rather than resentful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to keep your curiosity within proper bounds today when conversing with a secretive friend. This individual might get angry if you get too nosy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your views and opinions might not be in harmony with your mate's today. You can't win your mate over with reasoning; getting angry won't do the trick, either.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're not apt to be reluctant about poking a little fun at your companions today. However, when the shoe is on the other foot and they rib you, it might be a bit painful.

IN BRIEF

Local group sells cookbook collection

The Missing Children Center, Inc. is selling 20 different and unique cookbooks to benefit the center. Each cookbook contains 300 recipes, with such popular titles as: 300 Ways With Hamburger, 300 Ways to a Healthy Heart and 300 Ways With International Cuisine.

The members encourage the public to support this fund-raiser, as all proceeds will be used for providing services to families to locate missing children and reintegrate them into their families.

Cost is $4. Call Joan Thompson at 327-4403 to order or for more information.

Search is on for Mrs. Florida

The search is on to find Mrs. Florida, 1991, the woman who will represent the Sunshine State in the national telecast of the Mrs. America Pageant where she will compete for prizes and awards valued in excess of $50,000, and the opportunity to represent the U.S.A. in the Mrs. World Pageant.

The Florida pageant will take place at the Orlando Radisson Plaza Hotel the weekend of June 28-30.

To qualify, prospective entrants must be residents of Florida, married and living with their husbands, U.S. citizens in good health and they must be at least 21 as of Nov. 1, 1991. Judging is based on beauty of face and figure, poise, personality, street intelligence and overall appeal. No talent competition.

For free entry information, call toll free: 1-800-BEAUTY5, anytime, or send name, address, age and phone number to: Dixie Penner, Entries Director, Mrs. Florida Pageant, 11259-D Lockwood Dr., Silver Spings, Md. 20901.

CALENDAR

Seniors step out

If you are over 50, you are invited to attend the Over 50 Dance Club dance held every Wednesday, 2:30 - 4:30 p.m. at the Sanford Civic Center. Live music by the Deltonians 11-piece band. Donation $1.

Caretakers look after property, caregivers are for human beings

DEAR ABBY: I recently saw a letter in your column signed "Lonesome Caretaker." Well, Abby, my longtime companion and I take exception to the term "caretaker" when it's used to identify one who looks after the daily needs of another. The term "caregiver" seems kinder and much more loving and personal.

I have a terminal illness, and my longtime companion has now become my very loving caregiver. He does not take; he gives.

After all, what do caretakers actually do? Trim your shrubs? Paint your house? Fix your faucet? They maintain objects or property, or look after cemeteries.

Regardless of how the dictionary defines caretaker, I would like to see the word "caregiver" used when referring to one who lovingly cares for another. Abby, you can do a great deal toward making people aware of the difference and set a precedent for change.

GARY IN CACTUSLAND

DEAR GARY: Thank you for pointing out the important difference between caregiving and caretaking. I learned something today.

DEAR ABBY: This is my first letter to you. It concerns my daughter and her husband. My wife and I allowed them to occupy our home for two years for $600 per month. (We could have rented it out for double what we charged them.) My daughter had her first child near the end of the two-year term, and they asked for a six-month extension, which we granted.

Her husband was fired a year ago and refuses to look for another job. He baby sits while my daughter supports him. They haven't paid us a penny in the last six months.

I suggested they hire a baby sitter to come into their home. They told us they do not trust anyone else with their baby. I have contacted them three times asking for a plan by which they will pay us in the future and give us a moving date, so we can sell our home! Nothing is forthcoming except excuses. They say we are "harassing" them and are only concerned with receiving money.

ADVICE

Should I turn them out into the street? Should I sue for back rent? Our home is our only real investment, and we want to get on with our own lives. We love our daughter and grandson, but the problem is clear. Have you any suggestions?

IN A CORNER IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR IN A CORNER: Since you purchased the house as an investment for yourselves and not as a retirement home for your son-in-law, you need to talk with an attorney and get his advice on how to handle this. Unless your daughter can convince her husband to get a job, he will continue to be the baby sitter — at your expense.

They are blackmailing you emotionally because you are her parents. You are not villains because you expect them to act responsibly.
