Schools still hold prestige

WASHINGTON — Despite an overall drop in the number of applications, the nation's prestigious colleges and universities say they are maintaining freshman enrollment levels and quality, a survey of the schools said. But officials at Peterson's, the Princeton, N.J., education and career information company, suggested the lowered number of applications mean that the long-term decline in the number of 18-year-olds in the population is now having an effect on the colleges.

And, in what could point to a reversal of recent trends, many of the schools reported increases in the number of applications from minorities.

Smuggling case postponed

TAMPA — A federal judge postponed Monday a two-year-old drug case against a Sanford father and son accused of smuggling more than 200 pounds of cocaine into Florida.

The case stems from the June 7, 1988 arrests of eight people, including Joe Thomas Russell, 51, and his son Jeffrey Thomas Russell, 35, of Sanford. All were charged with the importation and possession of 220 pounds of cocaine.

Jeffrey Thomas Russell, an employee at his family-owned Russell's Seafood Market and Restaurant, said Monday prosecutors requested the delay. He said he was innocent, and would not agree to a plea bargain.

Longwood approves pay plan

LONGWOOD — City commissioners Monday night approved on first reading the proposed pay plan for city employees, making them eligible for a nine-percent annual increase.

The plan is based on job performance, and includes a four percent base increase for satisfactory work, and an additional one- to four-percent merit increase, depending on evaluation. The amendment will affect only non-union city employees.

A public hearing on the pay plan is scheduled for August 20.

Gas gouge probed

By DAN CARMICHAEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department is examining allegations that U.S. oil companies are capitalizing on Middle East turmoil by inflating gasoline prices when market factors do not justify such action.

Accusations of unjustified increases, or price gouging, touched off an avalanche of angry reaction from consumers and lawmakers, one of them said.

WASHINGTON — The five-ship amphibious force that left port Monday is to be joined in the Atlantic today by the aircraft carrier USS Saratoga and a 10-ship battle group that includes the battleship USS Wisconsin, two guided-missile cruisers and three destroyers.

Some 2,100 Marines are aboard the assault ship USS Inchon and four other amphibious warships that left port to beef up U.S. forces in the Middle East where Iraqi troops were poised on Saudi Arabia's border.

The naval movements come as Defense Secretary Dick Cheney reassures Saudi Arabia King Fahd of U.S. support and to try to persuade Iraq to withdraw.

According to Watts, the grant is in the amount of $43,278 which, coupled with the city's matching contribution of $42,276.50 will result in a total project cost of $85,554.50.

Martha Yancey, chairman of the city Scenic Improvement Board, said if the grant is accepted, the city will receive $43,278.

Shuler sentenced to life in prison in stabbing death

No early parole for murder, robbery of lone store clerk

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Jonathan Shuler, 20, of Sanford, has been sentenced to life in prison with no parole for at least 25 years in the first degree murder of Sanford convenience store assistant manager Mel Allen.

Shuler pleaded no contest to the charge of first degree murder and armed robbery, with prosecutors agreeing not to seek the death penalty. Shuler was sentenced by Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. in Sanford Monday.

When Allen was stabbed to death during a robbery for cigarettes at the Circle K convenience store in June of last year, city commissioners were considering an ordinance making it mandatory that two clerks be assigned to work in such stores at night, to help curb robberies. Allen, 48, was working alone and had taken the duty of another clerk who did not report for work the night he died, his wife said.

In the wake of Allen's murder the ordinance was passed and has been in effect about nine months, Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said today.

LONGWOOD — As an historic city, Longwood wants to look backwards in remodeling itself. But as a city moving forward into global times, it's also ready to face the future by taking on the Soviet Union — or at least a small part of it.

As part of an international cultural exchange program, Longwood is trying to establish a "sister city" in the USSR.

In January the city commission decided that Longwood should find a Soviet city similar to itself and join Sister Cities International, a program started shortly after World War II to promote better understanding between countries.

Right now, James Coleman, program administrator, is trying to pinpoint a Soviet city to exchange letters, students, business executives, and artists with Longwood. He says they're looking at the suburbs of Moscow and Kiev, and areas near the Black Sea.

"We want to stay as close a possible travel-wise, so we're looking at the western border of the USSR," Coleman said. "Also, the city should be similar to Longwood."

New river bridge due early

By BOB PEPYAW
Herald staff writer

This wooden swing bridge over the St. Johns River between Seminole and Volusia counties will be replaced a year earlier than anticipated because of the release of additional state funds.

SANFORD — An $11.3 million plan to replace the wooden swing bridge over the St. Johns River between Seminole and Volusia counties will get started one year early, the state Department of Transportation has announced.

Because of the release of additional state funds, the bridge replacement will begin in fiscal year 1991-92, one year earlier than had been scheduled.

Steve Homan, at DOT headquarters in DeLand, said, "We expect to open bids on the project around May of 1992, with construction probably getting underway in the Fall of 1992." Homan explained, "This is part of a statewide bridge replacement program that involves some 60 bridges throughout Florida, and several of them are in our district." Homan expects that the cost of the project will be in the neighborhood of $6.7 for the actual construction, with another $1.4 million going toward the approach on the Volusia County side of the bridge. "By the time we figure everything into the entire construction project," he said, "it will probably total around $11.3 million."

The bridge, which will be financed by state funding, is to be similar in construction to the present adjacent bridge on Interstate 4, with a clearance of 45 feet. "It's what is called a medium level fixed span bridge," said Homan. "It wouldn't be logical to have a bridge higher than the one on I-4."

Specific details on how traffic will be handled during the construction still remain to be determined.

"If this were a normal bridge," Homan said, "they would just build the new bridge next to the old one, and use the old one until construction is complete. But the present bridge swings, and it's too high to build the new one over the top of it, so we just don't know at this time."

Homan said the project is expected to take slightly less than two years to complete, with completion slated for spring of 1994.

As for the present wooden bridge, Homan said it may be donated to Seminole County to be put on display in the park at the boat launching ramp.

Bronson seeks probe of campaign

TALLAHASSEE — One of Palm Beach County Commissioner Ron Howard's opponents for the GOP nomination for Commissioner of Agriculture called Monday for an investigation of Howard's campaign practices.

Charles Bronson, a rancher from Ocoola County, accused Howard of using his county aide as a political operative on county time, billing campaign telephone calls to the county and billing the county for travel expenses incurred by his aide for non-public business.

In a news conference, Bronson said he intended to bring his allegations to the attention of the state attorney's office in Palm Beach County. He called upon Howard to join in seeking an investigation to at least clarify the legality of Howard's campaign practices.

"I call that fraud," Bronson said of Howard's use of his county aide, Joe D'Etore.

Bronson could not provide a full accounting of the misuse of county funds he alleged, but asserted it could run into thousands of dollars.

Diana bears down on Mexico

MIAMI — Newly christened Hurricane Diana took aim at the Mexico's Caribbean coast today with high winds and heavy rains as coastal regions prepared for up to 8 inches of rain.

Diana was upgraded from a tropical storm at 5:30 a.m. EDT as winds reached 76 mph and the hurricane continued on its westward path toward Mexico, where storm warnings extended almost the entire Gulf Coast.

At 5 a.m. EDT, the center of Diana was located about 115 miles east northeast of Nautla, Mexico, near latitude 20.5 north, longitude 95.7 west, and was moving due west at 14 mph.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said Diana was expected to make landfall on Mexico's Gulf Coast this afternoon.

The Mexican government issued a hurricane warning from Lerdo de Tejada north to La Pesca and a tropical storm warning from La Pesca north to Boca Jesus Maria, about 100 miles south of Brownsville, Texas.

Small boats were advised to remain in port from Baffin Bay, Texas, southward.

Tides between 2 feet and 4 feet above normal were expected at the center and to the north of where the storm makes landfall.

Diana is the second hurricane of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from May 1 to Nov. 30.

Leon County has highest accident rate

ST. PETERSBURG — State figures show Leon County has the highest traffic accident rate in Florida, while rural Baker County has the lowest.

Leon County, which includes Tallahassee, had 36.8 accidents per 1,000 licensed drivers last year. Baker County had 11.8 wrecks per thousand licensed drivers.

Statistically, northeast Florida is the safest place in the state to drive, since Clay County, near Jacksonville, had the second-lowest rate of accidents. That tied with Hernando County.

Statewide, the number of alcohol-related accidents last year was down nearly 4 percent from 1988. The number of fatalities went down by about the same amount.

Citizens action group formed

BELL — A citizens action group has formed to serve as a watchdog for the increasing number of dairy operations moving to north Florida.

Residents of the Suwannee County area worried that runoff from the dairies would increase groundwater and surface water pollution in the region.

The Suwannee River Basin Environmental Association met for the first time Monday night. Director Eugene Hyde said the group's first goal would be to enact stricter zoning laws in Gilchrist County to increase control over dairies.

The state already monitors some dairy operations. Mark Bardolph, a specialist with the Department of Environmental Regulation, said elevated nitrate levels had already been detected in some monitoring wells at dairies in the region.

Man arrested for buying LSD

HOLLY HILL — Volusia County authorities arrested a 23-year-old man on charges of buying LSD through the mail.

Police said David Fargas received mailings containing perforated sheets of paper coated with the hallucinogenic drug. The investigators said Fargas paid about $1,000 to get the drugs from a man he met in Hawaii, and sold them at $6 or $7 per dose.

After receiving a tip about the mailings, police asked the Postal Service to put a "postage due" hold on the shipments. Fargas was arrested Monday when he left the post office after picking up the mailing.

Associate degree holders make more entering the work force

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — People who earn a two-year degree may make more money initially than those with bachelor's degrees, according to a University of Florida study released Monday.

The study compared the wages of 2,810 workers eight years after their graduation with Associate in Arts degrees from five Florida community colleges with holders of bachelor's degrees, said Bruce Judd, who conducted the study as part of his doctoral dissertation at the University of Florida.

In five of eight employment categories, people who earned associate's degrees earned about the same or more money as bachelor's degree holders, the study showed.

"The Associate in Arts graduate who does not transfer to a university should not be considered a failure either academically or in terms of the effectiveness of the community college to fulfill its mission," Judd said.

Associate's degree holders did better than those with bachelor's degrees in two areas. Those with communications jobs — such as phone company workers — averaged $28,000 a year compared with $23,000 a year for those with four-year degrees, the study said.

Similarly, people working in public administration made an average of $25,300 compared with $21,500, Judd said.

In some cases, associate's degree holders earned higher salaries because they had been in the work force a little longer. But in many cases, employers substituted years of experience for higher education, Judd said.

The only work areas in which bachelor's degree holders earned more than those with an associate's degree were health care, law, management or retail. Many jobs within those occupations require a bachelor's degree at the entry level.

"Over the long haul, higher salaries will go to higher degree holders," said UF education professor J.T. Wattenbarger, who supervised Judd's research.

Employers seek associate's degree graduates because they get the same general education background as freshmen and sophomores at universities, said Judd.

AIDS patients wait for health care

United Press International

TAMPA — Patients in the Tampa area who test positive for the AIDS virus are having a tough time finding health care workers to treat them, and specialists who treat infectious diseases say they can't handle the growing numbers.

"Unfortunately, we're overwhelmed," said Dr. John Toney, a specialist at the University of South Florida who treats patients infected with the HIV virus.

The problem is twofold, experts say. On the one hand doctors are referring people who test HIV positive to a handful of specialists, although they can treat the ailments themselves. Meanwhile, the number of people who need treatment is growing.

Fear of AIDS is prompting doctors to turn away patients who test positive for the virus, said Dr. Lawrence Gaulkin, a family practitioner who treats HIV infection as part of his practice, a rarity in Tampa.

"The primary physicians that I know — rather than study the disease and try to cope with it — they say, 'Well, I don't feel I can cope with it,'" Gaulkin said. "I'm practically seeing a death per day now in this area. ... I have at least two or three (infected) patients in my office every day."

"Until AIDS, people were not wearing gloves," he said. "After HIV came along, all of a sudden everybody is yelling and screaming and putting on masks and gloves."

Residents fears eased; zoning OK'd

By ARY WILSON
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — About 25 angry homeowners showed up at last night's city commission meeting to protest the rezoning of 1.8 acres lying on the north side of Longwood Hills Road, east and west of Citrus Tree Lane, from A-1 agricultural to R-3 residential.

The homeowners were mostly members of Longwood Green Hills Homeowners Association. They said the type of residential zoning requested would allow the developer, Woodgreen Inc., to build low-income housing such as duplexes. The homeowners say that type of housing would create additional traffic hazards and would dilute from housing standards in the surrounding areas.

"We need a compromise position," said one homeowner. "We do not need duplexes in the front of these subdivisions."

The city commission passed the rezoning request after it was realized that certain deed restrictions would prohibit building duplexes on the land. The developer's attorney also had promised, "We are bound to building single family residential homes."

City administrator Mike Abels pointed out that the decision planning will not be brought back to the city commission — it would be left in the hands of city staff (planning and zoning).

"We're turning it loose," Hardy said. "Once it's rezoned, it's out of the hands of the city commission."

Also called into question was who controls the roads affected by the development — the homeowners or the parent companies, Woodgreen Inc. and Longwood Green Inc.

Acting city attorney Frank Kruppenbacher said the companies did control the roads, but then was presented with a quick claim deed which stated that the homeowners held control.

"The Florida Supreme Court is adamant that the opinion of the homeowners is not grounds on which the public body can act," he said. "We must have concrete grounds for the change — like traffic problems or water/sewer problems, not simply 'we don't like this project.'"

The vote was 3-0 to rezone the area, with Mayor Gene Farach and Deputy Mayor Jeff Morton absent.

Campaign contributions ease as election nears

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commission candidates have slowed campaign fund-raising as they near the Sept. 4 primary.

Although incumbent Bob Sturm, seeking a fourth term, raised the most total contributions to date, $91,557, he raised only $2,785 of that amount during the last campaign finance reporting from July 1 to July 27. Sturm's campaign was also donated a total of $1,704 in materials. Sturm has spent a total of $24,595 by July 27, he reported.

Candidates were required to file their contributions and expenses for the July 1 through July 27 period with the Seminole County supervisor of elections office by Aug. 3.

Apparently two candidates have missed that Aug. 3 deadline, said Sandra Goard, elections supervisor. As of this morning, Goard said she had not received finance reports from Robert "Bud" Feather, a Republican seeking the District 4 seat, and Larry Furlong, a Democrat seeking the same seat.

Goard said unless she receives the reports in the mail bearing Aug. 3 postmarks, each candidate could be required to pay $50 per day in late fees. Feather was required to pay a $50 fine in July for filing a report one day late.

Former Lake Mary mayor Dick Fess raised only $350 in contributions during the last reporting period, but loaned his campaign $20,000. Fess said he took out a second mortgage on his Lake Mary home to make the loan. According to his report, Fess has raised a total of $16,285 in contributions to date, excluding the loan, and received another $568 in donated services.

Fess has spent a total of $21,900 during his campaign, including more than $10,000 for signs during July.

In his first campaign report since qualifying, Robert Deamond, the third Republican seeking the District 2 nomination, reported receiving $600 in contributions and making a $1,770 loan to his campaign. Deamond reported spending $2,361 for his qualifying fee, leaving $8.40 in his campaign coffers.

Incumbent Sandra Glenn, seeking re-election to a fourth term as District 4 commissioner, reported receiving $1,900 in July, bringing her total contributions to $47,851. Glenn reported she has also received $620 in donated services or materials and has spent $7,917 to date.

Among the chief contributors to the campaign were:

- District 2:
 - Sturm: Milfred Construction Co., builder, $1,000 (value of donated tile board); Michael O. Funk, business manager, $500; Thomas H. Locker, vice president, finance group, $500; Nicholas Pope, attorney, $250; Luke Potter Dodge Inc., auto dealer, $250; Ridgewood Proerties Inc., motel management, $250; Briar Construction and Paving Co., site development, $250; John F. Lowndes, attorney, $200; Citizens and Taxpayers PAC, $100.

• Fess: Schrimaber Shopping Centers, management company, $250 (value of donated office space); Leo Trepanier, rancher, $200; Barbara Stenstrom, $100.

• Deamond: L. Lee Recovery Services, credit and collections, $600.

• District 4:

- Glenn: Lake Hayes Properties, developer, $1,000; Central Produce and Equipment Co., produce company owned by Jeno Paulucci, $500; Quality Inn, motel, $250; Donald R. Greer, $100.

All Americans freed by Disabilities Act

A wall of prejudice against the handicapped crumbled in Washington recently when President Bush signed the Americans with Disabilities Act. The action clears the way for 43 million disabled Americans to join the economic mainstream.

The sweeping new law — akin in scope to the 1964 Civil Rights Act — protects the disabled from discrimination in employment and public accommodations. It grants them equal access to everything from the workplace to movie theaters. Ultimately, every business with more than 25 employees will be required to make every reasonable effort to accommodate disabled workers.

Some small employers have complained that the law may be costly. But the benefits of this legislation outweigh the price of replacing stairs with ramps or lowering doorknobs. As the president said, the law unlocks "a splendid resource of untapped human potential" by granting the disabled "the freedom they could glimpse, but not grasp."

"Many of our fellow citizens with disabilities are unemployed, they want to work, they can work, and this is a tremendous pool of people," the president said to the emotional cheers of thousands of disabled people who had gathered for the signing ceremony.

Beyond the significant economic fallout, however, we hope there will be an even more powerful social impact. This historic new law frees Americans to mingle together as never before.

The sight of a disabled person in a restaurant, a ballpark or a corporate board room no longer will be unusual. Mutual interest will be discovered and shared. As physical and economic barriers fall, so, too, will the emotional barriers.

The Americans with Disabilities Act thus is a victory for all Americans. It frees us to discover common bonds that know no physical limits.

Dolphins shouldn't do our dirty work

Killer dolphins sound like a menace made for James Bond, but former trainers with the U.S. Navy maintain there is nothing fictional about them. They say that dolphins in a highly classified Navy program are being taught to kill enemy divers with nose-mounted guns and explosives. They also say that more than a dozen dolphins have been killed or injured in training.

Navy officials acknowledge that marine animals, including dolphins, are being trained in San Diego and at naval bases in Florida and Hawaii. However, they pointedly deny that marine animals are being trained to kill people.

Yet, the rumors persist about a practice that, if true, is "morally repugnant and ethically untenable" — to use the words of a proclamation adopted recently by international conservation groups meeting in Geneva.

Meanwhile, the Navy has suspended a plan to use bottle-nose dolphins to guard a nuclear submarine base in Washington state. Animal-rights groups had filed suit, claiming that the warm-water animals are not accustomed to the colder waters off the coast of Washington.

Twentysomething: Misunderstood

WASHINGTON — The average family probably has yet to figure out why its older members watch Johnny Carson and its younger members are watching that irreverent ape who nightly exalts his audience: "Let's get busy!"

Arsono Hall may come as close as any popular figure to defining the recurring generation gap. That gap begins with each successive generation shocking the older generation of the three middle-class, middle-aged, middle-minded power brokers, who blithely forget Santayana's warning that "Those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it." The old fogies in power have forgotten the intoxicating days of their youth and can't understand why their own values on such major issues as obscenity, abortion and racial equality are at odds with the younger generation's.

Recent studies and stories have placed the present younger generation under a gerontological microscope and come up with some inexplicable conclusions. Today's version of yesterday's hippies and flower children was recently designated by a Time cover story as the "twentysomething" generation (18-29), a variation on the name of the popular TV show "thirtysomething."

A Times Mirror company study, "The Age of Indifference," lamented that the under-30 generation (or tuned-out generation) "knows less, cares less, votes less, reads newspapers less and is less critical of its leaders" than any generation in the past five decades.

(Can you blame them?) But College Track, a market research company, completed a study in 1980 of undergraduates showing that 75 percent of them were registered to vote; 83 percent of those voted in the 1980 presidential election; 90 percent favor a woman's right to choose an abortion; 78 percent believe that equal opportunity is not available for all Americans; and many ranked Gorbachev's performance higher than Bush's. These are my kind of kids!

The old fogies in power have forgotten the intoxicating days of their youth.

While this member of the sixtysomething generation applauds them for their perspicacity, the Times Mirror study does point out one disturbing tendency: Only 41 percent of young people under 35 said they had watched a television newscast the previous day (down from 52 percent in 1965), and only 30 percent said they had read a newspaper the previous day (down from 67 percent in 1965). Yet, I don't fault their increasing disenchantment with the media.

The media is alienating them. I don't think any profession in America is more incautiously obsessed with its values, its performance and its stodgy, incomparably dull power brokers than the media. Because the media are controlled by the three middle-class, they consistently fail to anticipate changes among young people. Then, when the changes overwhelm existing values, editors and reporters scurry around, trying to understand why.

For example, power brokers cling to outmoded shibboleths about obscenity and abortion while young people have moved on to higher plateaus of freedom of expression, and the freedom to choose. One of the Time story's conclusions is that the twentysomething generation has no heroes. That's because the three-middle-class generation isn't producing any.

Rage, tears dim points of light

"A nine-year-old girl was shot in the head early yesterday in Brooklyn when a bullet the police said was fired by a man shooting wildly at an old enemy crashed into the car where she lay asleep, waiting to be carried to bed after a day at an amusement park." — New York Times, July 23.

"A one-year-old girl was critically wounded yesterday after her father was shot dead by a mystery gunman, sending the family auto careening wildly for two blocks in Brooklyn." — New York Daily News, July 25.

"A teenager who had danced on Broadway was killed in the Bronx early Tuesday morning when a sniper with a machine gun fired on his car and riddled it with bullets. The shots came from an apartment-building roof where young drug-gang members regularly shoot their weapons for thrills, the police said yesterday." — New York Times, July 26.

"A three-year-old Brooklyn boy was killed yesterday when gunmen fired more than 18 rounds from semi-automatic pistols through a steel-covered door as he slept in his family apartment." — New York Times, July 27.

"Don't worry, be happy." — Bush campaign song, and theme.

WASHINGTON — Pardon me, Mr. President, but many Americans are having a hard time getting with the program. Four children became random victims in one city in one week. That's a record that would shock Ulster, maybe even Beirut. Two years ago this month, accepting your nomination in New Orleans, you mentioned a thousand points of light. Muzzle flashes?

The day the one-year-old was shot, the President was in Manhattan in the Waldorf Astoria, in the presence of a thousand or so points of light (contributors), throwing down the gauntlet to the forces of darkness (Democrats): "Republicans want to allow the women of this state to be able to defend themselves with Mace, and liberal Democrats don't."

New York's Assembly, controlled by Democrats, killed a bill that would have legalized Mace devices. It is utopian to think that women, or men, could be safe venturing forth, from behind their triple-deadbolt locked doors, without a chemical-warfare capability.

Of course infants are not safe behind steel-covered doors, so powerful is the ordinance that perforated the apartment door behind which the three-year-old died while curled up asleep on a sofa with his 15-year-old sister. The apartment is in the Walt Whitman Houses. I hear American bullets singing.

The one-year-old, shot when her father was, died the next day in the hospital where, at about the same moment, the body of the 8-year-old was being prepared for the morgue. The one-year-old's father had been driving to court for sentencing. On a firearms charge.

The Times says the death of the dancer, 18, "came as no surprise" to residents of the building from which the fusillade came. "They nightly hear the jackhammer rattle of automatic gunfire from their roof." He was driving a car bought with money he earned dancing in "The Tap Dance Kid."

His father had planned to move the family to North Carolina this week to escape the urban mayhem that in recent months has claimed a 5-year-old hit in the head while sleeping by a stray bullet fired by his mother's former boyfriend, and a 10-year-old killed by stray bullets in a store when an argument between a customer and the owner erupted in gunfire.

But there is good news from New York. A two-year-old sitting on a window ledge survived a wound from a stray bullet fired in a fight in the building's courtyard. A 13-year-old survived the five wounds he received in the chest and abdomen when, walking to a store, he was caught in a shootout.

Last week, America's patience snapped. With a single vote the nation thundered, "Intolerable!" We are a people slow to anger but fierce when galvanized, as by Pearl Harbor or, as last week, by Roseanne Barr's rendition of "The Star-spangled Banner." The President weighed in, wasn't pleased.

Ms. Barr is a star and a slob. She is a star because the country has a robust appetite for slob television, the theme of which is: Crude is cute. Up to a point. There are limits.

Of course, the national anthem is hard to sing, even when you are trying, as Barr was not, to do it right. That is why some people want to replace it with "America the Beautiful." Trouble is, one verse of it says about America the Beautiful:

Thine alabaster cities gleam,
Undimmed by human tears!
Not now they don't, and they aren't.

Of course infants are not safe behind steel-covered doors.

Big new federal building on hold

WASHINGTON — Federal officials have put the brakes on a major boondoggle — a federal office building in downtown Washington, D.C., that would cater more to private businesses than to government and could cost as much as $1.1 billion.

In June, we exposed the flaws in a plan to build the lavish edifice, an International Cultural and Trade Center second only in size to the Pentagon. The project is tainted by cost overruns and possible contract steering.

Now, the General Services Administration has wisely decided to put the venture on hold because of its concerns about the financial commitment. The project was a bid idea in the first place — the brainchild of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corp., a presidential commission that has been overseeing the redevelopment of Washington's premier thoroughfare between the White House and the Capitol. The building is to house several federal offices and private businesses.

We have since learned that it also is to include a private club for international business people where the initiation fee would be $1,500 and the monthly dues would be $100.

Congressional sources told our associate Scott Sless that the project was shaping up into a major disaster. Construction has not yet begun and already the cost estimate has risen from $460 million to well over $800 million. Sources close to the project told us they feared the price could easily go to $1 billion.

Congressional investigators were looking into the way the PADC awarded the development contract. The panel gave the job to Delta Partnership, one of the high bidders, even though many federal and District of Columbia officials said Delta's proposal wasn't up to par because it didn't meet requirements for minority participation, a charge that Delta has denied. Investigators were also looking into the role played by Washington Mayor Marion Barry, who, as a member of the PADC, voted to give the contract to Delta. Federal procurement laws in many cases prohibit non-federal officials from committing federal funds. The PADC is not giving up. A spokesman told us the group would answer the financial questions, but had no plans to scale back the project. But knowledgeable sources told us the PADC will have no choice but to make the project more modest if it expects the federal government to lease the building. Richard Austin, head of the General Services Administration, decided not to sign the lease until the financial questions are answered. GSA estimates show that the project could face mounting debts and that federal agencies may not be able to afford the rent.

Despite those concerns, Congress had allowed the project to proceed until Austin refused to sign the lease. One of the few voices in Congress against the project came from Rep. Tom Petri, R-Wis., who said that on a government-waste scale of one to 10, the building ranked at least an eight.

Drug war is world war

The drug war, of necessity, is a world war fought against users and suppliers all over the globe. But on the international front, the effort is inadequate. Drug abuse in Europe is on the rise as are related deaths and crimes. Cocaine confiscation by police is up, but so are the supplies.

The project is tainted by cost overruns and possible contract steering.

Soviets issue guidelines to denationalize property

By JAMES MOORE
United Press International

MOSCOW — The Soviet government has adopted denationalization guidelines that would encourage the sale of small businesses to private owners but keep large companies and utilities under state control, the Interfax news service said.

Moscow created the recommendations to help Soviet republic and city governments sell off some state-owned enterprises, the independent news agency said Monday.

The guidelines urge local governments to set up "special denationalization commissions" of officials, economists, sociologists and attorneys to smooth the way for economic diversification.

In the Marxist terms that have governed the Soviet Union for seven decades, the regulations envision the emergence of a "petit bourgeoisie" of small shopkeepers — but not a nation of big-time capitalists.

As the Kremlin took another faltering step toward a market economy, Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin met with advisers drafting a radical reform package.

The radical Yeltsin, offering his latest innovative initiative, also announced an official contest with the equivalent of $8,500 in prize money for the person who writes the best new treaty to govern ties between the Russian government and smaller jurisdictions within the huge territory.

Vladimir Shcherbakov, chairman of the State Committee for Labor and Social Issues, told reporters the central government is gearing up for the possibility of "mass unemployment and high rates of inflation" during a turbulent transition to free enterprise.

"Denationalization — that is, the leasing or selling of property to individuals or cooperatives — will concern shops, restaurants, canteens, cafes, hair-styling salons, bathhouses, repair shops, trucking companies and small-industry operations," Interfax said of the new government standards.

"As far as larger public amenities equipped with expensive, sophisticated machines, such as hotels, are concerned, they should remain under state control," it said.

The Soviet Parliament this year adopted a law permitting a limited range of commercial holdings to be sold or leased, but the legislature put off action on a more sweeping measure until its fall session.

Under the guidelines adopted by Moscow, power plants, water pipes, natural gas mains and other utility facilities "meeting basic social needs" are to remain in the public domain.

Small businesses that are not sold or leased "may be reformed into shareholding companies," with capital stock divided through open subscription or distribution via charter funds, the recommendations say.

Yeltsin led a session of the working group he and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev agreed to form last week to develop a comprehensive economic program for the country.

Gorbachev invited Yeltsin, his one-time protégé and emerging rival for power, to join forces after Yeltsin unveiled a radical 500-day plan to privatize property and free prices in the Russian republic that makes up three-quarters of the Soviet Union.

The joint working group of the Soviet and Russian governments is using Yeltsin's plan as a blueprint for a program to present to Soviet Parliament early next month when it opens its fall session.

Shcherbakov, head of the state labor committee, said the Soviet government is divided between supporters of Yeltsin's strategy and a less radical plan of Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov, which calls for slower transition to a market economy.

Thousands return home after fire

By ROGER BENNETT
United Press International

Thousands of residents who were forced to flee from a 3,300-acre wildfire in a central Oregon resort area were allowed to return to their homes, while weary firefighters struggled to surround the blaze that destroyed 20 homes.

Temperatures climbed toward 100 degrees Monday, hampering efforts to combat the fire, which was about half-contained. Fire bosses said they did not expect to completely contain the blaze until Tuesday and hoped to have it under control by late Thursday.

More than 2,000 homes were evacuated, and an estimated 5,000 residents and visitors were forced to flee during the weekend as the fire raged over 6 square miles in a residential and resort area southwest of Bend, state Department of Forestry spokesman Doug Decker said.

Twenty homes, some worth up to $300,000, burned down in three subdivisions scattered among scenic lodgepole pines in central Oregon's high desert country, about 120 miles southeast of Portland. Authorities had believed 28 homes were lost but determined the other eight were sheds or barns.

"The folks that owned the destroyed homes were allowed back in with some professional escorts, such as the Red Cross, so they can deal with their loss," said Don Ferguson, another state forestry spokesman.

Roadblocks were posted to keep out sightseers and the general public, Ferguson said. There were no injuries, but damage was estimated at more than $5 million.

About 1,100 firefighters were working the fire with 65 fire engines, 14 bulldozers, six helicopters and six air tankers.

Millworker Ron Beckingham and his wife, Pat, were among the first to return to their home.

"It looked like kind of a ghost town," Beckingham said. "It did look a little spooky, but we're just happy to be back in here."

Pat Beckingham said they were forced to leave the house in a mess and with dishes in the sink when they fled Saturday night, but considering what others lost, she said, "It was absolutely wonderful to think that we had a home to come to."

In terms of residential losses, it was the state's most destructive wildfire since 1936, when a blaze roared through Bandon on the southern Oregon coast, killing 11 people and destroying 750 homes and businesses.

Myra Lee, administrator of the state Emergency Management Division, said the fire could be "sort of a forerunner of problems to come" in Oregon, as housing subdivisions push farther and farther into forested areas.

"As people continue to build in those areas, these problems are going to increase," Lee said. "I hope we don't get into the kind of thing California has experienced." Hundreds of homes in Santa Barbara, Calif., were destroyed by a wildfire earlier this year.

Terry Marsha of the National Weather Service predicted more lightning strikes — a common cause of forest fires — in much of central Oregon late in the week.

"It's going to be a pretty hairy week," he said. "I'd be awfully surprised if we get out of this week without a major lightning outbreak."

Four other fires were also burning in Oregon, the biggest covering 1,250 acres by late Monday. That fire was 80 percent contained, and the others were all surrounded by fire lines late Monday.

In central California's Sequoia National Forest, residents of about 150 houses in the mountain community of Wolford Heights were ordered to evacuate Monday in the face of a 950-acre fire fanned by erratic winds.

And nearly two dozen lightning-caused fires raged out of control in remote hard-to-reach areas of the Sierra National Forest east of Fresno.

The fires were started by dry lightning storms Sunday, said Sue Exline, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Forest Service.

Black Sea area has a small tourist industry, so we'd have that in common with them."

The city has enlisted the help of the University of Central Florida to track down a city similar to its own.

The university's office of international studies said Longwood could not have picked a better time to join the program, because UCF is in the process of establishing the Florida-USSR Institute, which will serve the state as an information pool and cultural, business and educational exchange program. Three other Florida cities — Tallahassee, Jacksonville and Panama City — also have Soviet sister cities.

"I think the Sister-Cities program is an excellent way to eliminate culture shock," said Anthony Cervone, coordinator of the UCF international studies department. "The ultimate result is a better understanding between countries, especially now, as our world is becoming a global village."

Cervone pointed out that the university offers courses in Russian language and civilization, as well as special certificate courses in Soviet studies that can enhance participation in the Sister-City program. He also said the newly-appointed director of the Florida-USSR Institute, Professor Henry Kennedy, is presently in the Soviet Union through a researcher exchange program.

After Longwood finds its city, Coleman said, it will apply to Sister Cities International. After that, the international group will serve mainly as an administrator and provide suggestions and advice — but mostly it's up to the cities to decide what to do with each other.

Jacksonville has done a lot with its sister city Murmansk, Russia, located north of the Arctic Circle. Already this year they sent the city's mayor and a delegation of educators to visit the city, and received a documentary on Murmansk showing what everyday life is like there through the eyes of two families.

Eight elementary schools from each city exchange pen pal letters, and within a year Jacksonville plans to display artwork from Murmansk children, send athletes to participate in the 1991 North Florida Festival in Murmansk, exchange students and educators, and perhaps arrange a two-hour live satellite uplink that will allow residents from each city to talk directly with their counterparts.

Metronome, a nine-member jazz band from Murmansk, will play in Jacksonville's Jazz Festival in October, and the Russian city invited a Jacksonville jazz band to play in its Festival of Modern Music next year.

The exchange possibilities between Longwood and its mystery Soviet sister city seem endless.

"Right now we're putting together a list of people who want to help after our city is identified," Coleman said. "We hope to establish a non-profit organization to work as a sister city committee. Although they won't receive a salary, those who belong to the group will be able to deduct their travel expenses from their taxes."

For more information, call James Coleman, Longwood City Hall, 280-3468.

money would be used to enhance the median strip.

"We would plant trees and flowers on the median, using of course, native plants and wild flowers which we would be required to use," she said. "There were 50 such projects submitted to the state with only 20 to be granted. We were number eight out of all those projects."

The matter will be brought up before the Sanford City Commission at the Aug. 13 meeting, with discussions to be held during the work session slated to begin at 5 p.m., and possibly a decision during the regular meeting which will begin at 7 p.m.

Mayor Bettye Smith said with the tight budget year, "There's no way of telling which way the Commission will go on this matter."

The Scenic Improvement Board has $7,000 toward the project, but a large portion of the matching contribution would still be required from the city's budget.

If the City elects to accept the grant, DOT will have to be notified, after which the district maintenance engineer's office in DeLand will issue a directive on the distribution of funds, the construction of the project and the agreements which must be signed. This must be accomplished within 60 days or the grant will be forfeited and awarded to the next highest ranked of the 50 applicants.

"It's a bit early to make a scientific determination (on the effectiveness of the ordinance)," Harriett said. "I can tell you that by August we would ordinarily have 13 robberies of convenience stores. We've had three. Two have been cleared by arrest on the following day," Harriett said. Added security measures in the stores helped lead to those arrests, Harriett said.

Harriett said personally he felt Shuler's sentence is too light. "I don't know as a police officer if I can offer an opinion. It was the state's judgement...so be it. The bottom line is a murder is no longer in society."

Seminole County and some other cities here have also passed ordinances requiring two clerks on duty at night at convenience-type stores. Other safety measures, such as clearing the view into windows, have also been ordered, along with detection devices that monitor activities in stores.

Americans rounded up in Kuwait; Far East markets take another hit

By ADAM KELLERMAN
United Press International

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, whose troops rounded up 28 Americans and hundreds of other foreigners in occupied Kuwait, told President Bush his nation's resolve in the crisis "is unlimited" but also said he wants "normal relations" with Washington.

Baghdad Radio, monitored in Beirut, reported that Saddam issued a veiled warning to Bush, telling Joseph Wilson, the U.S. charge d'affaires in Baghdad: "Iraq is capable of protecting its rights and interests whatever the pressures ... and the country's readiness to sacrifice for that cause is unlimited."

However, the radio reported that Saddam also accepted "legitimate international interests in the area" and wanted "normal relations with the United States on the basis of mutual respect."

The potentially volatile situation in the Middle East, source of much of the world's oil, further aggravated major financial markets Tuesday. Tokyo's key Nikkei average plunged 1,326.67 points, or 4.6 percent, during the morning session, before recovering in the afternoon to close down 946.46 points.

The Nikkei's drop followed a bad day on Wall Street where the Dow industrial suffered its seventh-biggest decline Monday in heavy trading, plunging more than 90 points.

The political uncertainty in the region has sent oil prices soaring and raised fears of inflation in oil-importing nations such as the United States and Japan.

Saudi and U.S. military officials prepared for a possible Iraqi attack on the oil-rich kingdom.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney went to Riyadh, reportedly to discuss strategy for sending U.S. troops into Saudi Arabia should Iraqi troops massed at the Kuwait-Saudi border attack. Saudi Arabia has long resisted allowing U.S. troops on its soil.

Saudi Arabia reportedly has fully mobilized its army and massed troops near a neutral zone of oil fields along the country's border with occupied Kuwait. In response, Iraq ordered drills to evacuate 4 million citizens from Baghdad in the event of an air attack and issued rifles to government supporters.

The Pentagon announced in Washington further U.S. naval vessels were assigned to strengthen forces in the vicinity of the crisis zone.

In New York, the U.N. Security Council imposed harsh economic sanctions aimed at pressuring Saddam to remove his forces from neighboring Kuwait, where he invaded Thursday with up to 100,000 troops and installed a provisional government. Sources said about 700 people were killed in the Iraqi invasion.

Iraq invaded its oil-rich neighbor after accusing it of overproducing oil and driving down prices.

Iraq: World's first post-Cold War crisis

By JAMES HANCOCK
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Bush's handling of the Iraq-Kuwait conflict is being carefully watched for more reasons than the immediate crisis, analysts said, noting that the outcome may set a tone for how the world deals with problems in the post-Cold War era.

"This is an enormous opportunity for the international community," said Donald McHenry, ambassador to the United Nations under President Carter who now is a foreign policy professor at Georgetown University.

"Iraq, it seems to me, is not going to stop here if it can get away with this step. Sooner or later it will get Saudi Arabia and it will get Israel," added McHenry. "This is an opportunity for the international community to stand together for once."

That strategy of showing a unified front was bolstered Monday at the United Nations where the Security Council took the rare step of voting unanimously to impose a worldwide economic and military embargo on Iraq. The sanctions had been pushed by Bush.

"I cannot remember a time when we had the world so strongly together," said British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher as she met with Bush at the White House.

Prices

Automobile Association said today.

While the cost of gasoline has surged since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait last week, some Seminole County dealers say they have been slow to raise their prices, waiting for their supplies to run out before imposing the increase.

Sylvester Chang, owner of Sanford Mobil Service, 2518 French Ave., Sanford, said, "I have not raised my prices since Friday. I have not gotten a new load since then. I still feel I'm competitive with other stations in the area."

"I will probably raise my prices in a day or two when I get a new load in," Chang said. "Diesel prices have gone up nine cents, and it's gone up two cents on the other grades, so that's what I'll have to deal with when I raise my prices later this week."

Chang is now charging $1.09 per gallon of regular unleaded, $1.19 for premium unleaded and $1.28 per gallon of super unleaded on self-serve pumps.

Pat Leonard, of Leonard's Shell, 2500 Park Ave., Sanford, said, "Our prices went up two cents on Monday morning. That was the first increase since Friday morning. We were able to keep prices down because we had enough gas in the ground to keep the lower prices."

Leonard is now charging $1.12 per gallon of regular unleaded, $1.22 for premium unleaded and $1.32 for super unleaded. Each grade is up two cents from Saturday.

Donna Russ, of the 7-Eleven store at 110 E. Lake Mary Blvd., Lake Mary, said prices at the store did not go up over the weekend.

"We haven't changed our prices at all over the weekend. That's really helped business in here, too," she said. "We had a lot of business yesterday and there's been a lot today and usually the beginning of the week is really slow. Everybody is fueling up."

Russ would not indicate the store's gas prices.

Wilkins said average gas prices in Seminole and Orange counties today were $1.11.1 per gallon of regular unleaded on self-serve pumps, compared to $1.05.5 per gallon on Thursday. Regular unleaded at full-serve pumps is $1.55.9 per gallon today, compared to $1.45.4 on Thursday, she said.

Self-serve unleaded gasoline was averaging about $1.15 a gallon Monday, spokesman George Petric of AAA said.

Gouging

whom asked the Justice Department to determine if there was illegal "collusive activity among oil refiners, wholesalers and retailers."

In a letter Monday to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas said, "Price-gouging is a harsh term, but it is a term that seems to most aptly describe the situation we are now witnessing."

Dole said gasoline prices in some areas "have risen by as much as 25 cents per gallon — all in a matter of a few days."

The sharp rise in U.S. prices since Iraq's invasion of Kuwait prompted the nation's largest consumer organization to call for boycotts, while the White House urged U.S. oil companies to exercise pricing restraint.

At a news conference Monday in front of a downtown Washington service station, the energy policy director of Citizen Action said oil company price increases were deliberate price gouging, and encouraged motorists to fight back.

"The gasoline price hikes of 5 cents to 15 cents (a gallon) that appeared on gasoline pumps literally hours after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait are not based on costs, competition, or any other market-based factors," Edwin Rothschild said.

"These unjustified price increases are blatant acts of economie aggression carried out by a handful of large multinational corporations intent on profiteering at a time of international tension."

White House Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater urged all oil companies not to be "anticipatory" when raising prices. "We assume that consumers will use their good sense in judging these activities and it would be most unfortunate if there were any gouging or anyone was trying to take advantage of this situation," he said.

The United States gets less than 5 percent of its crude oil from Iraq and Kuwait — and now has a three-to-four month oil reserve — but spot oil prices have skyrocketed as world markets fear a crisis in the Middle East may threaten supplies.

Raising concern about the overall state of the economy, Dole said, "If antitrust violations have anything to do with the soaring prices at the gas pumps, these violations should be identified and remedied without delay."

Meanwhile, Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., said he would hold a hearing Tuesday on a "feeding frenzy" and "price-gouging" by "the big oil companies."

Bryan said, "Our stockpile of oil is at the highest level in eight years. There is no supply shortage to justify these price increases."

him to allow U.S. forces to use his desert military bases for staging points.

The United States currently has a total of 34 warships in the Middle East and Persian Gulf region. With the expected arrival of the Saratoga and amphibious group in about 10 days, the United States will have 49 warships in the area.

With the new addition, the United States will have three aircraft carriers in the Middle East — the Saratoga and the USS Eisenhower in the Mediterranean and the USS Independence in the northern Arabian Sea, outside the Persian Gulf.

Each aircraft carrier is capable of launching up to 80 fighter and attack jets that could be used for tactical air strikes on Iraq.

U.S. seeks information on 28 Americans

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — With international diplomatic, economic and military pressure answering Iraqi aggression in the Middle East, the United States sought information Tuesday on 28 Americans believed to be among 300 Westerners seized in Kuwait and transported by bus to Baghdad.

A State Department official said the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad was checking on a "sketchy report" that 12 of the 28 Americans had arrived in Iraqi capital. There was no word on their location and U.S. officials restated that there was not enough information available to classify them as hostages.

Bush scheduled a cabinet meeting Tuesday morning and also planned to meet with CIA officials in the afternoon.

Meanwhile, Bush called for "full and total implementation" of Monday's United Nations Security Council decision to impose an economic and military embargo on Iraq as punishment for its invasion of oil-rich Kuwait last Thursday.

Approved by the U.N. Security Council by a 13-0 vote, Bush said the embargo "gives an awful lot of muscle to countries and we want to see them use it ..."

Leaky The crisis continues

Leaky blockade against Iraq will fall

By LEE STORER
United Press International

CAIRO, Egypt — The industrialized nations' strategy to bring Baghdad to its knees by throttling Iraqi oil will entail a tricky switch to alternative supplies, and can only work if the boycott is long-term and total, analysts said Monday.

Experts say the West's strategy has the potential to cripple Iraq's oil-based economy, and compel Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait.

But they say a long-term embargo which denies Iraq a market for its oil will be more effective, but also more difficult to sustain, than trying to intercept overland pipelines through Saudi Arabia and Turkey or using a naval blockade to stop any shipments through the Gulf.

"(Saddam) foresaw an international blockade ... but he felt he could survive because the West needs Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude," one Middle East diplomat said. "Iraq is hoping it can always sell its crude on the black market if sanctions are imposed."

Key consumers such as the United States, France, West Germany and Japan have already put short-term economic interests aside to punish Saddam, refusing to buy Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil and accepting the inevitable rise in the price of the crucial commodity.

More than 70 percent of the two nations' output was destined for Japan, the United States and the European Community.

Iraq admitted Monday that demand for its oil has fallen, and closed one of two pipelines passing through Turkish territory to the Mediterranean, reducing the flow in the second by 30 percent.

Experts believe the move was a tactical bluff aimed at showing it can survive the blockade now being put into place.

A total boycott of Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil (now controlled by Iraq) could cut world supplies by 4.84 million barrels a day — about 10 percent of the world's traded crude. But several other OPEC member-states have spare production capacities and could make up the difference.

The West's thirst for the vital fluid must be satisfied either by major producers like Saudi Arabia and Venezuela increasing production, or by using strategic oil reserves.

"Even if Turkey and Saudi Arabia refuse to shut down their oil pipelines, an international blockade could still be effective," said David Butler, editor of the London-based Middle East Economic Digest.

Monday's edition of the Cyprus-based oil industry newsletter, Middle East Economic Survey, said OPEC members would have to break current cartel quota levels if the shortfall caused by Iraq and Kuwait was to be compensated for.

"Have the key obviously lies with Saudi Arabia," the newsletter said. "But there must be considerable doubt as to how far the kingdom would be prepared to go in antagonizing Iraq."

Oil industry sources in the Gulf state of Bahrain said Turkey and Saudi Arabia would pay a price if they forbid Iraqi shipments.

Turkey receives 60 percent of its own oil and $250 million per year in transit fees from Iraq.

Even more ominous, the sources believed Saudi interference in the oil flow would be viewed by Baghdad as a declaration of war.

The wild card is whether key consumer nations, having overridden short-term economic interests, can sustain the strategy long-term.

"Key importers such as Japan have decided that if this situation continues, then the long-term future of the world economy will be in danger ... so they have decided that quick, firm action now is the best way to curb the effect on the world economy," one oil industry source said.

Former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger told NBC television network that an effective blockade would compel Baghdad to end its venture in Kuwait.

"If no oil is being bought from Iraq and Kuwait and if the economic blockade is made effective for several months, I think that then Iraq will have to withdraw."

Security Council imposes military embargo on Iraq

By J.Y. HOUSTON
United Press International

UNITED NATIONS — U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Thomas Pickering said the U.N. Security Council's imposition of a worldwide embargo on Iraq tells Baghdad it must pay "crippling political and economic costs" for its invasion and occupation of neighboring Kuwait.

The economic and military embargo ordered Monday compelled all 159 state members of the United Nations to abide immediately by the 15-nation Security Council's decision, which includes a ban on oil imports from Iraq or Kuwait and on arms sales to the Baghdad regime.

Kuwaiti Ambassador Mohammed Abulhassan thanked the council for the sanctions.

Iraq's U.N. ambassador, Abdul Amir Al-Anbari, told reporters before the vote that if the council adopts the measures, "Everyone will suffer" and said his government considered the measure "null and void" and denounced the United States for initiating it.

The council voted 13-0, with two abstentions, to impose the embargo, which will be enforced by a special U.N. commission. It was the third time in the United Nations' 45 years that such large-scale sanctions were imposed on a nation.

The vote was a clear victory for the United States. Pickering labored for three days to gain worldwide support.

Voting for the resolution were the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, China and France — the five permanent members of the Security Council. Non-permanent members who cast positive votes were Canada, Colombia, Ivory Coast, Ethiopia, Finland, Malaysia, Zaire and Romania. Cuba and Yemen abstained.

Crude oil prices surge as Iraq crisis escalates

By ISABELLE CLARY
United Press International

Crude oil prices shot up within $2.05 of the all-time high as tension steadily built up in the Middle East and the United Nations approved broad sanctions against Iraq.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange Monday, crude oil futures, which had gained $4.45 last week, soared continuously from the opening bell with the September contract gaining $3.56 to close at $28.05 a barrel.

Monday a week ago, crude contracts for September delivery closed at $20.21 a barrel.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate scored steady advances and seems headed for its all-time high of $30.15 reached in January 1984 during the Iran-Iraq war, which disrupted supplies from the Persian Gulf.

Volume was a relatively strong 149,524 estimated contracts.

On the spot market, crude oil prices also surged, reflecting traders' fears of heightened tension and tighter supplies, with the WTI gaining $3.35 to end the day at $28.05 a barrel.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent also gained $3.35 to close at $26.75, while the United Arab Emirates' Dubai Light, the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East, closed up $3.15 to $23.75.

Man says father was part of JFK murder scheme

By JEANIE STOKES
United Press International

DALLAS — An oil equipment salesman said Monday that his father, a former Dallas police officer, was one of three U.S. intelligence operatives who killed President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

The story that Ricky Don White and others who had investigated his evidence told reporters adds yet another theory to the assassination that has captivated history buffs for more than 25 years.

White, 29, of Midland, Texas, also said that evidence his late father, Roscoe Anthony White, left behind indicated that presumed Kennedy assassin Lee Harvey Oswald never fired a shot. Instead, he said, Oswald was set up to take the blame for the assassination as part of a plot that included the man who killed Oswald on Nov. 24, 1963, Jack Ruby.

White said he was shocked to learn in 1978 from a family friend who had worked for U.S. intelligence that his father had been a covert U.S. intelligence operative who used the code name "Mandarin." The friend also warned that it would eventually be revealed that Roscoe White, who died in an industrial accident and explosion in 1971, had been involved in the Kennedy assassination.

In 1982, Ricky White found his father's diary that detailed plans for the assassination. It called for Roscoe White to go to work for the Dallas police department in September 1963. In the diary, White outlined a plan involving three gunmen in Dealey Plaza in Dallas. Lee Harvey Oswald was not one of those men who fired a total of six shots, Ricky White said.

The diary also contained Roscoe White's admission that he, and not Oswald, killed Dallas Police officer J.D. Tippit during the manhunt for the presidential assassin. Tippit was a friend of the elder White's and an unwitting accomplice in the plot, he said.

Ricky White said the diary mysteriously disappeared from his home in 1988 shortly after he had shown it to FBI agents in Midland, but never confronted bureau officials about the missing diary.

"I know you all are taking one man's word on a diary that doesn't exist but I'm an individual that will tell you the truth. I'm here to tell you the truth, but through complications, I don't have the diary," White said Monday.

White says he was so badly shaken by his treatment at the hands of the federal agents, who grilled him for five hours, he will no longer work with the FBI.

"The FBI scared me so bad, I completely dropped my father's investigation," White said.

Tom Kirspe, supervisor of the Midland FBI office, would neither confirm nor deny the agents had seen the diary.

Young holds little hope in campaign

By KEN SUGAR
United Press International

ATLANTA — The former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, turned to faith as he wound up his Democratic primary campaign to become the state's first black governor, trailing rival Lt. Gov. Zell Miller in voter preference polls.

Going into Tuesday's balloting, polls showed Miller leading by 20 percentage points with 12 percent of the voters undecided.

Miller, whose key issues have been promoting a state lottery to benefit educational improvements and the establishment of boot camps for first-time criminal offenders, toured the state Monday.

"He's going to be talking about the same things he's been talking about for the last two years — new solutions to new problems," said Miller campaign manager, James Carville. "I suspect he feels pretty good at this point, but he doesn't want to let up."

Miller, a 16-year veteran of the lieutenant governor's office, beat Young by more than 10 percentage points when the two men captured the top spots in the July 17 primary.

Tuesday's runoff was necessary because neither candidate captured more than 50 percent of the vote in the July voting.

New PTL chief: World should forgive Bakker

By JUNE PRESTON
United Press International

FORT MILL, S.C. — Jewish-born Morris Cerullo, whose bid to buy PTL has won court approval, pledged to keep Jim Bakker's Christian retreat free of demon rum and said it is time to forgive the imprisoned evangelist.

"There will be no drinking and there will be no smoking," Cerullo, 58, said Monday at his first news conference since his $52 million bid for PTL was endorsed last week by a federal bankruptcy judge.

But Cerullo said neither Bakker nor his wife, Tammy Faye, will be offered roles in the new ministry, although they are welcome to visit whenever they like.

"We're not looking for their endorsement. We're not looking for them to have any role," Cerullo said. "They'll be welcome on the property, just as anyone would be welcome on the property."

Both Bakkers' elderly parents live on the grounds of Heritage USA, the secluded Christian retreat that Bakker lost in 1987 over a sex scandal.

Tammy Faye visited in March, but Bakker is not likely to visit anytime soon. He is serving a 45-year prison term at the Federal Medical Center in Rochester, Minn.

Gibson scores at nationals

INDIANAPOLIS — Lake Mary High School girls' cross country and track and field coach Mike Gibson fared well at the TAC/USA National Masters Track and Field Championships this past weekend at Indiana University.

Competing in the Men's 40-44 Division, Gibson was fourth in a field of 10 in the triple jump, leaping 28-2. The winning distance was 37-11.

In the shot put, Gibson threw the 16-pound shot 35-11 1/4, good for 10th out of 18. A throw of 47-0 took the gold. Gibson also was 12th out of 30 in the 800-mm javelin, his best toss of 108-7 way off the winning mark of 202.

Gibson had qualified for the national meet by placing in the top three of these events at the Southeastern Masters Championships at Winter Park's Showalter Field in July.

Physicals, meetings scheduled

With the start of the high school football season nine days away (first authorized day for practice is Aug. 15), local schools have scheduled times for prospective players to get their mandatory physicals.

No athlete may participate in high school athletics without first having a physical.

Seminole: Coach Emory Blake said that free physicals will be available for all prospective football players at 6 p.m. next Tuesday, Aug. 14, in the school training room. A parents' meeting is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 1.

History in the making

Oviedo in first Southern Regional

By TONY DEBORNER
Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — Every day, it's something new. Tonight, the Oviedo Junior League All-Stars will continue their venture through uncharted waters when they play Jeffersontown, Ky., at 7:30 p.m. in the first round of the Southern Region tournament at Dr. Phillips/Windermere Little League.

In today's first game, San Antonio, Texas, will play Dumfries, Va., at 5 p.m. The losers of tonight's two games will play in an elimination contest at 5 p.m. Wednesday with the two winners playing at 7:30 p.m.

The losers' bracket final will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, the survivor needing to win Friday's 7 p.m. game and again at 10:30 a.m. Saturday to advance to next week's Junior League World Series in Taylor, Mich.

Last Thursday night in Orange City, the Oviedo Juniors (who are all 13 years old) made league history by beating Seminole of Pinellas County for the state championship. It was the first state title at any level in Oviedo Little League history.

Oviedo will be hindered in its record-setting quest by the absence of Todd Bellhorn, who is in New Orleans this week with the SOYSA Raiders at the AAU Boys' Basketball National Championship Tournament.

Bellhorn, who combines with Richie DiTore and Byron Coffie to give Oviedo a very solid three-man pitching rotation, plays first base when not on the mound. But it won't be on defense where Bellhorn will really be missed, but on offense, where he bats third in the Oviedo lineup.

During last week's state tournament, Bellhorn missed the start of one game because of basketball practice. In that game, Oviedo manager Rich DiTore had his son Richie on the mound, moved Mike Duncan from shortstop to first base and inserted Brian McMahon in the lineup at short.

Richie DiTore, who has pitched and won several tough games already this All-Star season for Oviedo, probably will be on the mound tonight.

To get to Dr. Phillips/Windermere Little League: Take Interstate 4 west to Sand Lake Road. Turn right on Sand Lake Road and go to Dr. Phillips Boulevard (the second light). Turn right on Dr. Phillips and go to Wallace (the first light). Turn left on Wallace. The complex is behind the YMCA.

Lyman's Toth in the hunt at Hammond Tournament

From staff reports

ORLANDO — Some things never change.

Like the leaderboard in the Junior Golf Association of Central Florida. Once again, Lyman High School's John Toth has put himself in the front of the pack as he goes after an unprecedented fifth title in the seven-tournament summer tour.

But this one will not be easy. In the first round of two-day Donnie Hammond Junior Golf Tournament, Toth posted a 74, which put him in second place behind Charlie Harrelson of Osceola, who shot a 73 to lead the championship flight. Harrelson won one of the two tournaments which Toth did not win.

Also close to Harrelson are Lake Brantley's Mike Berzovich and Ryan Dillon.

The first round of the tournament was held at Winter Springs Country Club with the second being played today at Rosemont Country Club. The first groups teed off at 8 a.m. this morning.

Other Seminole County golfers still in the hunt include Lyman's Murphy Reynolds (78), Tommy Minton of Oviedo (78) and Lake Howell's Sean Ashby (79). Oviedo teammates Jimmy Sellers and Robbie Stock stand at 81 and 83, respectively.

In the second flight, Oviedo's Jarrett Brown also has a shot at winning the overall title as well as his flight after a round of 74, leaving him one shy of Edgewater's Colin Cone and Aaron Brabham. Allen Trammell and Curt Fisher both finished with 75s. Jason Roby of Oviedo shot an 84.

Andrew Taylor and Andrew Varnon will battle it out for the top spot in third flight. Taylor posted a 92 and Varnon a 93 on Tuesday. Jordan Jones, the only other third-flight participant, shot a 109.

Jonathan Gibson blistered his way to an 87 and a six-shot advantage in fourth flight action. Tyler Wright currently holds second with a 93 while Bryant Fannin is in third with a 96. Three others stand at 97.

Mike Trammell holds a three-shot lead in the fifth flight after shooting a 49 for nine holes. Jason Traedar trails Trammell by three shots after a 49. Matthew Kohn had a 51 while Scott Mankovich came in with a 52. Ricky Soldysko and Tommy Finwall stand seven back at 53.

Clay Taylor and Bo Morrison both shot 64s to tie for first place in the sixth flight. Todd Snapp stands in third after a 65 while Paul Fithin and Allen Peacock are four back at 68. Sixth flight also plays nine holes.

In the girls' 13-and-Over division, Rachel Poston took steps toward defending her title as overall girls' champion after posting a 74, five in front of Lyman's Becky Carr. Ann Pohira, who will attend Lake Howell next year, is six back after at 80.

Robin Rhein enters the last round with a nine-shot advantage in the girls' 12-and-Under flight. Brownyn Kohn (55) and Julie Komurke (57) are both within striking distance.

Winter Springs' Andrew Taylor holds a one-stroke lead in the third flight after Tuesday's opening round of the Donnie Hammond Junior Golf Tournament. Today's final round will be played at Rosemont Country Club.

Baseball World wins opening game in AAU World Series

From staff reports

DES MOINES, Iowa — For a team that hasn't been together for too long, the Baseball World All-Stars (representing Baseball World in Maryland) are off to a good start in the AAU 12-and-Under National World Series.

On Tuesday in the first night of pool play, Baseball World knocked off the Oklahoma Vipers 8-4. Baseball World is a team put together at the last minute by Baseball World's Tom Emanski with players from local Little Leagues.

The Oklahoma Vipers came into the tournament with a 92-8 record.

Baseball World will play the Utah Reds at 6 p.m. tonight as it continues pool play. The 21-team tournament is broken down into four pools. After each team plays everyone else in its pool once, the two teams with the best record in each pool advance to the playoff round.

Scheduled to begin Thursday, the eight remaining teams will play one round. The four winners will go on to play for the championship while the other four will participate in a single-elimination consolation bracket.

Danny Bogeajis (from the Altamonte Springs Little League) was the winning pitcher for Baseball World against Oklahoma, striking out six in 3 2/3 innings. Bradley Ramirez (Union Park LL) worked the last 2 1/3, striking out five.

Ramirez also led the offense, stroking a two-out, two-run home run that gave Baseball World its final four-run advantage. Ramirez's shot was one batter behind the solo home run by Nick Thomas (Goldenrod) put Baseball World up 6-4.

Also contributing to the attack were Jason Gronert (Altamonte Springs), who was 2 for 3 with a pair of doubles, a run scored and two RBI. Ricky Engleberg (Altamonte Springs) was 2 for 4 with a run scored, Matt Huston (Goldenrod) was 2 for 3, Peter Gill (Goldenrod) singled and scored

STATE OF FLORIDA DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL REGULATION NOTICE OF INTENT TO ISSUE

The Department of Environmental Regulation gives notice of its intent to issue the State Implementation Plan pursuant to 40 CFR Part 51, and issue a PSD permit to Florida Power & Light Company, P.O. Box 6000, West Palm Beach, Florida 33402.

The proposed project is subject to Prevention of Significant Deterioration (PSD) requirements. For particular concern, the maximum concentration due to the fuel burn alone is predicted to be less than the significant impact levels. For sulfur dioxide, the maximum concentration due to the Sanford plant and other sources is predicted to be below the AAQS and PSD Class II increments.

A person whose substantial interests are affected by the Department's proposed permitting decision may petition for an administrative hearing (hearing) in accordance with Section 120.57, F.S. The petition must contain the information set forth below and must be filed (received) in the Office of General Counsel at the Department of Environmental Regulation, 3300 Blair Stone Road, Tallahassee, Florida 32309-3400, within 14 days of publication of this notice.

The Petitioner shall contain the following information: (a) The name, address, and telephone number of each petitioner, the applicant's name and address, the Department Permit File Number and the county in which the project is proposed; (b) A statement of how and why the petitioner received notice of the Department's action or proposed action; (c) A statement of how each petitioner's substantial interests are affected by the Department's action or proposed action; (d) A statement of the material facts disputed by the petitioner; (e) A statement of facts which petitioner contends warrant reversal or modification of the Department's action or proposed action; (f) A statement of which rules or statutes petitioner contends require reversal or modification of the Department's action or proposed action; and (g) A statement of the relief sought by petitioner, stating precisely the action petitioner wants the Department to take with respect to the Department's action or proposed action.

If a petition is filed, the administrative hearing process is deemed to be commenced. Accordingly, the Department's final action may be different from the proposed agency action. Persons whose substantial interests will be affected by any decision of the Department with respect to the application have the right to petition to become a party to the proceeding. The petition must conform to the requirements specified above and be filed (received) within 14 days of publication of this notice in the Office of General Counsel at the above address of the Department. Failure to petition to intervene within the allowed time frame constitutes a waiver of any right such person has to administrative determination (hearing) under Section 120.57, F.S., and to participate as a party to this proceeding. Any subsequent intervention will only be at the approval of the presiding officer upon motion filed pursuant to Rule 35-3.307, F.A.C.

A copy of the PSD Application is available for public inspection during normal business hours at the following offices: Department of Environmental Regulation, 2400 Blair Stone Road, Twin Towers Office Building, Tallahassee, Florida 32309-2400; Department of Environmental Regulation, Central Florida District, 3319 Maguire Blvd., Suite 222 Orlando, Florida 32803-3747; Seminole County Public Library System, North Branch in Sanford, 150 N. Palmway Avenue, Sanford, Florida 32771.

Any persons may send written comments on the proposed action to Ms. Cindy Phillips at the Department's Tallahassee address. All comments mailed within 30 days of the publication of this notice will be considered in the Department's final decision. Furthermore, a public hearing will be held on September 6, 1990 at the DeBary Fire Hall No. 1792, 93 U.S. Highway 17/92, DeBary, Florida, for the purpose of hearing testimony and public comment on the proposed action.
