Two meetings to decide cops' fate

By RUSS WHITE Herald Staff Writer

By sunset today, Sanford's newly-selected Law Enforcement Options Committee should have a distinct sense of direction.

The committee meets tête-htête at 5 p.m. with Public AdGeorge Hubler, who wrote a critical management review report on the Sanford Police Department.

Hubler is prepared to explain every detail of his report in which he labeled the SPD as "flawed...below average." He is here to clarify the role and the procedure the (one member called it a "Blue Ribbon") committee will take in preparing its recommendations to the Sanford City Commission.

Sanford City Commission.

Essentially, there are three options: a.) Fix up the SPD, b.) fix it up and purchase limited lechnical and support services from the county sheriff, c.) contract the sheriff for full law Bes Cops, Page 4A

Schools hold special place for volunteers

By JEANA HUGHES

Their services are worth more than 84.5 million, but they are not paid in dollars. Their pay comes in the form of hugs, smiles and thank-yous. They are the 10.000 Dividend volunteers that give their time and services to Seminole County Public Schools. And there is a place for everyone. That was the message from Seminole County Public School Partnership Specialist Jane Lane at a Dividend Breakfast held recently at Hamilton Elementary School.

Dividend volunteers provide a variety of services. Volunteers choose the school, day and time that is convenient for them. There are approximately 20 programs in place for volunteers to choose, from that cover virtually every aspect of school life. Most of the volunteer opportunities require little or no experience. Training, when needed, and materials are provided.

Lane outlined the various opportunities to the potential volunteers present at the breakfast. Volunteers can help the staff with elerical duties or work in classrooms secisting tenchers. Art-See volunteers are trained to make presentations to students using prints. artifacts and slides. Green Circle volunteers help students learn about circles of friends and including friends who may be different from themselves. Dividends may share their interest in math, science, reading and language. Bilingual volunteers are needed to maxim non-English speaking students See Volunteers, Page SA

BY DAVID PRAFIER
Herald Staff Writer

The Casselberry Police Department conducted a decoy prostitution sting through the evening of Friday, Oct. 3, to the early hours of Saturday, Oct. 4. This is part of Casselberry's ongoing effort to curb street level vice problems and promote public health and safety.

During the evening, 15 arrests were made. Charges were broken down as follows:
15 assignations to commit prostitution: three narcotics related charges: one violation

one carrying concealed weapon; and, three criminal traffic charges.

According to Casselberry
Police Information Officer Sgt.
Dennis Stewart, one of the defendant's accidentally turned his car into the side of a marked police car that was sitting beside him in a median break. The patrol car wan not moving and had emergency lights engaged at the time of the crash. There were no bijuries and very little demegic in the low speed impact crash. The driver was on felony probation for prior burglar, charges and had also been drinking.

Each of the arrestees face up to a possible 60 days in jail and a 8500 fine for the prostitution charges. The state may revoke their driving privileges for up to one year for using a vehicle in prostitution. cording to Stewart, the danger of robbery, theft, AIDS, and other sexually transmitted discoses is always present in street level prostitution. also stated that this seemingly victimless crime (prostitution) may have enormous life impact on the arrestee, their family. future sexual partners and the social/health care systems due to STD exposure.

Commissioner Brogan said Volunteering is as vital to our schools today as it was 50 years ago - now more than ever, because we must all make a commitment to higher standards and greater opportunity for our children. Volunteer of the week

Woman, 93, grades prison ministry papers

By SUSAN WENNER Herald Staff Writer

Georgia Chorpening, age 93, is involved in so many volunteer efforts that she finds some days fly by so fast that she loses track of her time. Although some mornings she cited that she would like to curl up and do a million other things she said that "I've never really thought about why I do what I do. I feel like I'm filling a need and God guides me and wants me to do these things."

She has served as a"pink lady" auxilian with the local hospital for over 40 years. Her work has kept her busy some five times a month.

Chorpening also works as a volunteer at the Christian Sharing Center. She works a 9 a.m. to noon shift approximately twice a month.

As a member of First United Methodist Church. Chorpening is also active as a circle chairman and secretary of her Sunday school class. She is always willing to help in whatever other capacity needed there.

Her love of God and the church also brought about another work that she has assisted with for 10 years. Chorpening grades papers for the Good News Jail & Prison Ministry.

"My good friend, Mabel Thomas, got me involved," she said, "I knew what she was doing with the work. Every month we have luncheons at different churches. One month I went and after listening to the speakers and knowing what Mabel was doing I decided to get in-volunteers trained by the County Extension Service personnel and University of Florida staff. The program is being offered in 43 out of Florida's 67 Counties and their mission is to educate and provide re-search-based information to Ploridians about gardening. In a single year, more than 1,600 Florida Master Cardeners do-noted over 125,000 hours teaching citizens how to create and maintain sustainable plant and landscape communities and landscape communities.

Seminole County Master Gardeners: The Volunteer Master Gardener program has been in existence for approxi-mately 15 years in Seminole County. During that time, vol-unteers have donated thousands of hours answering phone questions on lawns, plants, insects, etc.; assist in plant clinics; conduct soil tests pH: man information booths'at fairs; sponsor plant sales; do program presenta-tions for garden clubs, Home-Associations. and school children. All Master Gardeners attend an Intense 50-75 hours of training that cover all aspects of gardening. including subjects such as soil science, plant nutrition, fertilizers, vegetables, fruit trees, ornamentals, herbs, and plant pest and disease management. Education a smart investment

DEAR ABBY: I am a retired credit executive with more than 40 years of experience dealing with people mired in credit card payments.

In your column on credit card debt, "Free and Clear in Florida" wrote: "... it is not uncommon for people to be caught up in the vicious cycle of paying for things on credit and being able to afford only the minimum monthly payments."

We have a large segment of the population who are economically illiterate consumers and do not understand how to spend intelligently, save wisely, invest, or do simple financial planning.

Yes, the credit card companies and other credit granters are par-tially to blame for encouraging peo-ple to live beyond their means, which creates financial stress for the debtors and their families. However, debtors who are poorly informed about money matters should shoulder some of the responsibility for their own difficulties.

The problem is of serious nationwide concern. An estimated 1.1 million individuals filed for bankruptcy in 1996 (up 27 percent from 1995)! Besides the emotional stress for these accordances. these people, such losses become part of the cost of doing business and cause consumers to pay higher prices, higher interest rates and There's now talk about revampng and toughening the nation's bankruptcy code. In my opinion, such revisions are merely Band-Aid solutions. The flaw is not only in the bankruptcy code, but also in our failure to provide programs that give students a head start in under-standing consumer economics (along with the rights and responsi-bilities of using credit). A financial education curriculum could help students develop financial skills and money sense — knowledge that can help them use their money to the greatest benefit. Such a pro-gram would benefit both students and credit granters.

If school funds are not available now to finance a money manage-ment program, this would be a pro-ject worthy of support from public and corporate funds. REN BERMAN, LOS ANGELES

Sanford's Jeff Blake (No. 6) dives for a touchdown (top) that got the Cincinatti Bengals close, but most of the time the All-Pro guarterback was spending the day running for his life as the Bengala dropped a 21-13 decision to the Jacksonville Jaguars on Sunday. Blake had a good day statistically, rushing for a team-high75 yards and completing 16 of 27 passes for 232 yards and no Interceptions.

Normally, Blake is as affable as any player in the league, but Sunday, after being rosated on Jacksonville radio stations and hearing some of the first criticism of his career. Blake quickly left the building without commenting.

According to Bengala' publiciata, Blake had many friends and family members in the stands and left to see them before flying back to Cincinnett Sunday night.

Blake's problems started last Sunday night when he was driven back to his Cincinnati home by an on-duty police officer who had pulled over Blake's car. The following day, the officer resigned before an inquiry as to why he drove Blake home while on duty.

There was no sobriety test taken at the site, but the matter has been the news of the week in Cincinnati. On the field, he and the Bengals haven't gotten untracked. Their record fell to 1-4 in the AFC Central, three games behind Jacksonville. The rough start has squashed the Bengals high hopes they had entering the season. Last year, after hiring Bruce Costett at the season's midway point, the Bengals were one of the hottest teams in the NFL and Blake was never hap-

Regaining balance after a stroke

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 87 years old and had a stroke last year that left me weak on one side. Following this, I fell and broke my hip. Although I can get around with a cane, my balance is ter-rible and I am very afraid of falling

I am under the care of a very capable orthopedic surgeon, who con-fessed that he cannot help me with my poor balance. How can I regain my lost balance and confidence?

DEAR READER: With hard work and patience, you may be able to gain back some of the skills you have lost. You should be enrolled in an intense rehabilitation program, under the supervision of a physiatrist (a special-ist in rehab medicine). Such programs are available through most hospitals, as well as from private non-affiliated therapy groups. You will be trained in a series of active and passive exercis-es to re-train your damaged muscles and nerves. In addition, the therapists will teach you techniques to help you compensate for your poor balance. There may also be many minor alter-ations that you can make in your home which will render your environment safer. Such alterations include better lighting, use of hand rails, avoidance of scatter rugs, relocation of your furniture, an elevator for your stairs, a change to more secure footwear, and the use of home health aides to assist you in everyday living. As I mentioned, your recovery will take hard work and commitment under professional guidance, but the potential benefits may make all the effort worthwhile. To give you information on your condition, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Stroke." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed. stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I take several. kinds of pills, as well as eyedrops, for a number of medical afflictions. For the past four months, I have been greatly bothered by an extremely itchy rash that periodically appears on my face. Actually, it never goes away, but is clearly much worse from time to time. The rash looks like hives when it is really bad. My internist is stumped. What can I do?

DEAR READER: Make an appointment with a dermatologist. First, you need a diagnosis. This is the job of the skin specialist.

If my hunch is correct, you may be suffering from an allergy to one of your prescription medications. In this case, the dermatologist will have to work closely with your internist - or with an allergist - to discover which drug (or cosmetic or factor in your environment) may be causing your rash. You should not ignore this reaction, because if you have developed an allergy to one of your drugs, the con-tinued use of the medication could lead to serious and possibly fatal conequences, such as asthma or kidney failure. Let me know what your doctors conclude.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on the fact that falling barometric pressure can worsen the pain of arthritis.

DEAR READER: I don't have an explanation for this phenomenon, but I believe that it is real. Some patients with arthritis — and many with old fractures of bones — experience pain and stiffness when the weather and stiffness when the weather changes, especially if the barometer falls. In fact, my patients who experience this are usually more accurate than the meteorologists in predicting bad weather. When these patients complain, I batten down the hatches.

To give you more information on how to deal with your condition, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain."

The low promotion

By Phillip Alder

Woodrow Wilson, in discussing promotion, said, "Every man who takes office in Washington either grows or own resources, South would probably swells, and when I give a man an of-I watch him carefully to se whether he is swelling or growing."

In bridge, we have promotion too. Which is the lowest card that can effect a trump promotion?

Having typed that, I sat and thought about the problem. I have a deal in which a four does the job. Then it occurred to me a simple modification would make the three work too. And almost immediately I realized that if I don't specify a 4-4 fit, even a two would do what's necessary - as in this deal.

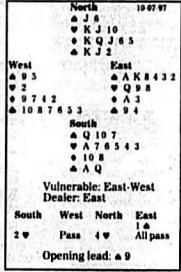

overcalled two hearts. Hardly ideal, with that worrisome spade holding.

but the sixth heart and two aces left him no choice. North went straight to game, of course.

East took the first two tricks with his top spades. He could see a third trick in the diamond ace. But where was number four coming from? Left to his guess who held the heart queen beopening bid. Ar ly West didn't have a winner. So, there was only one choice. After cashing the diamond ace, at trick four East returned a spade, which West ruffed with the heart two. When declarer overruffed with dummy's 10, East's trump holding had grown — or swelled, according to choice — into a trick: one down.

What if the opponents are in a 5-4 fit? Then I think the lowest possible trump promotion is with a three. Yet After East opened one spade, South perhaps you can prove me wrong!
