

Clerk Unionists Move To Oust Leader, Cut Affiliation With SEA

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

Dissatisfied with their leadership, several members of the Seminole Educational Clerical Association Inc. (SECA) are today mounting an effort to oust their president. Additionally, a vote will be attempted at a Wednesday 7:30 p.m. meeting at First Federal Bldg., Altamonte Springs, to end the affiliation of SECA with the Seminole Education Association (SEA).

The president, Ann Finch, is being held responsible by the members for being active in an effort to withhold salary increases from SECA members. The members signing the letter represented SECA at contract negotiations several weeks ago and during one late evening meeting settled the contract which called for a 4.8 percent raise.

Since that settlement, Gene Grooms, chief spokesman for SECA and SEA executive director has filed an unfair labor practice suit against the

ANN FINCH

Although there are about 430 county clerical personnel, there are approximately 125 paid SECA members, the remaining are non-paying members and have little or no voice in the organization's internal affairs.

It is this 125 that the letters are being sent to because they are the only ones who, according to the charter, can vote which negotiated the agreement represented the majority of SECA.

She added that the meeting was uncheduled and the team should have waited for the scheduled meeting. Additionally, at a negotiating session last week, Mrs. Finch brought in a new bargaining unit but the old one refused to give up their seats.

According to the union's by-laws the president has the right to appoint members of the bargaining team. Today, one of the signers of the letter, Faye Wilhelm said that at the meeting an attempt will also be made to change the by-laws.

"This loss of pay is due to suits filed by SECA President Ann Finch and SEA Executive Director Gene Grooms.

"Mr. Grooms has stated there are approximately 125 SECA members. If this is true, SEA was paid more than $6,000.00 by on internal matters. The entire group can only vote on rejecting or accepting a contract.

In the letters members are being asked to "remove Ann Finch from the office of president by a majority vote and to elect a president who will work for the clerical people until the next regular election."

The letter also addresses the point of the money the members claim they are losing, as well as the affiliation with SEA. "The loss of pay for July and August for a twelve-month secretary with five years experience is approximately $600.00. Aides are losing up to $29.00 per month.

The drivers of this car and truck escaped serious injury when they collided at Sanford Avenue at 25th Place in Sanford about 6:30 p.m. Monday. Both men were treated and released at Seminole Memorial Hospital following the accident.

Stage Set For Limiting County's Taxing Power

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County Commission this morning authorized the advancement of a proposed ordinance to be placed on the ballot Nov. 7 limiting this county government's taxing power.

A definite date for a public hearing was not set, but County Attorney Harry Stewart said Oct. 7 is the final day for the board to get the necessary documents to Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce to have the matter placed on the ballot.

Commission Chairman Dick Williams said the ordinance would have to receive final approval of the board by the Tuesday prior to Oct. 7 or Oct. 3. A public hearing must be held before county approval.

But, the commissioners were far from a unanimous approval on what the limit of its taxing authority will ultimately be in the ordinance. The proposed ordinance currently contains a cap of $7 per $1,000, which Stewart said he included in the ordinance for discussion purposes.

Commissioner Harry Kwiatkowski criticized the $7 figure, calling it possibly a "smokescreen to help candidates" and questioning the purpose of the referendum.

If the question put to the voters "is whether they want their taxes to go up or down, the answer is obvious," he said.

Kwiatkowski predicted it will be a long time, if ever, before the county will be under pressure to raise taxes to $7. Taxes for the current year are proposed at $6.60. Kwiatkowski also urged that the voters be asked to designate what services they wish to give up in exchange for the tax cap.

Commissioner John Alexander proposed that the cap be $6 and that a section be added to the ordinance calling for the number of county employees to be limited to a ratio of the county population. He mentioned one-half percent as the ratio considered by the state.

He received no support for either proposal. Commissioner Robert French stated that his intention has been to include in the tax limitation only those items the county has full control over.

He said that the budgets of the constitutional officers — sheriff, tax collector, tax appraiser, supervisor of elections, clerk of the circuit court — should be excluded from the cap since the county commission does not specifically control those budgets.

Alexander said French's proposal, if approved, would be committing "a sham on the public."

"I'm not amenable to a sham," said Alexander, adding, "You can't tell the people you are going to place a cap on taxes and exclude the whole world. We can exercise what limited control we have. To pass the problem with taxes onto the constitutional officers is erroneous." French said he did not know the meaning of the word "sham."

Alexander noted the sheriff's budget alone amounts to nearly half of the taxes levied by the county. Excluding the constitutional officers, Alexander said, should then call for a tax limitation of $2 or $3 and the public would not understand.

According to state law, Alexander noted, with a nod of agreement from the county attorney, all the constitutional officers, with the exception of Mrs. Bruce, can appeal their county approved budgets to an appeal board of Cabinet members.

Carter Setting Stage For Mideast Summit

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Carter says he will act as a full partner in the unprecedented Middle East peace parley he is convening to seek compromises and common ground with Israeli Premier Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

U.S. officials, briefing reporters before the summit meetings, said the president also has ready a variety of ideas to introduce in the open-ended discussions if and when he thinks they would be useful. But he will not seek to impose a U.S. peace plan in any form.

Sadat, who stopped over for dinner in Paris with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, was expected to arrive first in the early afternoon at Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, D.C.

Begin, who rested overnight in New York, was due at the same Air Force installation a few hours later.

Both leaders were expected to make short arrival statements before flying by U.S. Marine helicopters to the heavily guarded retreat in the nearby Catoctin Mountains of Maryland.

U.S. officials said President Carter would meet each separately and show them to their quarters in the rustic country lodges. It was not known if all three would meet informally tonight, but formal negotiating sessions begin Wednesday.

Carter, in a solemn mood, settled into Camp David more than 24 hours before his high-level guests.

Leaving the White House Monday, he warned: "Compromises will be mandatory. Without them, no progress can be expected."

"My own role will be that of a full partner, not trying to impose the will of the United States on others but searching for common ground on which agreements can be reached and searching for exchanges of compromise that are mutually advantageous to all nations involved," he said.

Aides said the U.S. objective is to break through a number of obstacles at the top political level. If this can be done, then Begin and Sadat would send new instructions to lower level negotiators who will carry on the talks in weeks ahead.

Under a virtual media blackout, the summit participants hope to hold exhaustive discussions of the issues.

"We just wanted to go where the telephone doesn't ring," said one top U.S. official.

The current violence in Lebanon may also be reviewed by the three leaders although it is not a formal agenda item, officials said.

Carter summoned ambassadors Samuel Lewis from Israel and Herman Eilat from Egypt to assist.

The administration has been generally silent about U.S. proposals that may be put forward to encourage a breakthrough.

Spot Reducing Is Nothing But A Myth

DEAR DR. LAMB: - I am a 21-year-old female who jogs 15 minutes every day. Inside the house in bad weather or outside in fair. My goal is to slim down my hips and thighs. Since I'm 5 foot 5 and weigh 110 pounds I don't want to cut down on what I eat but the weight I do carry is in my hips.

Jogging is one exercise I really enjoy and therefore, do. However, several people have told me that jogging every day tears down cells, slanting the hips, while jogging every other day gives the cells time to strengthen and build bigger hips and thighs. Is there any truth to that at all?

I've also heard that swift running builds one up while a slow jog slims one down. Is this true? Certainly I'm getting fatter but what does it take in the way of jogging to get my smaller hip and thigh measurements?

DEAR READER - It depends how you jog. Your hip and thigh measurements should start with. There is no such thing as spot reducing and if you have to lose body fat, of course, you might develop muscles at the same time if you're on an exercise program and if you have a well-rounded exercise program that may make your overall body look better.

There's absolutely no truth to the stories you have heard about jogging every day or every other day. It's the way of getting rid of body fat depends on how many calories you use.

If you jog two miles every day, you're obviously going to use more calories than if you jog two miles every other day. Under those circumstances, jogging every day would certainly be more effective. The speed makes no difference either in terms of building your muscles or slimming your body.

Hereditary traits are important. Some families just tend to have larger hips and thighs than others. You shouldn't be surprised about this in human beings as we see it all the time in the animal kingdom. For example, different breeds of horses, and different breeds of cattle have different tendencies toward developing body fat deposits. Nevertheless, even if you inherit characteristics that you don't like, you can do a certain amount to control them through proper dietary and exercise programs.

YOUR BIRTHDAY September 6, 1978. Things that appear to offer quick happiness are not necessarily so. You'll find it in the long run. This coming year offers you an opportunity to build a strong foundation, if you'll take advantage of the slow but sure.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You must face up to realistic facts today. If you allow yourself to romanticize about objectives you could lose out completely. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Make 50 cents for each and a long, well-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Be careful you're not out of line with the favor you ask today. What might be nice for you could be an extreme imposition on another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) If you take things for granted today it's very likely you'll lose out on an opportunity that comes your way. Be alert and ready to respond.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Chance are your generosity will pay off today, but it's partially your fault. You'll make a commitment in order to show your work.

WIN AT BRIDGE

If you have a balanced hand with 7 high card points just pass when your partner opens a no trump. You don't belong in game.

With 10-14 you belong in game. With a poor 8, stop at the 10. With 9, a good 8, invite game. Treat a good 9 as 10 and bid game.

West gets off to his best lead, a diamond, and South sees he has no line to develop the club suit. Reaching with a heart, he goes up with four spades. The spade finesse works and he winds up with four spades, three hearts, two diamonds and the necessary nine tricks.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag. The standard no trump opening is 15-17 points. You prefer something different. Most experts do use 15-17. However, don't use a scatter-gun no trump, such as 15-18. The no trump opening should be a picture bid and wide range puts the picture out of focus.

Top Midge Warrior Here: 'They Can't Be Eradicated'

Labor Day, 1978 - Views On Workers

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall today called 1978 "so far a very good year for the working people." But his sentiments were not universally shared. A few examples:

GOP Chairman Bill Brock: "The dreams of working men and women to achieve a better life for themselves and their children is fast becoming the unattainable American dream."

AFL-CIO President George Meany: "The labor movement has been under concerted attack for the past two years and now is the target of a vicious, distorted and unfair barrage of propaganda."

Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees: "Irrational measures now gaining popularity are an ill-considered response to the needs of workers who carry the load for fast cars."

David Fitzmaurice, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers: "The powerful influence of business thinking at every level of government and in all aspects of our lives holds no rich promises for working people and their families."

United Rubber Workers President Peter Pomeroy: "Our patience is wearing thin, but our determination is growing stronger."

DECLINES TREATMENT
An out-of-state driver accused earlier today in this incident which occurred Sunday at 3 a.m. The driver was identified as David Graft by a spokesman for Seminoke Memorial Hospital. The spokesman said Graft declined emergency room treatment. The night-car accident occurred at Park Avenue and 26th Street in Sanford. A spokesman for the Sanford Police Department said an investigation is continuing and no additional information was available as of this morning.

A Word To The Wise Is Sufficient?

It is always helpful for the more experienced in our society to help their contemporaries over the hurdles as they begin a new endeavor.

Such is the case particularly with worldly-wise second-graders in Seminole County who try to make life easier for first-graders by sharing a few tips as they embark on their education career.

What do they advise? To find out Herald staffer Tom Vincent went to Sanford's Hopper Elementary school and Leonard Krausdorf to Casselberry Elementary.

Dr. Arshad Ali, the scientist who will head up the program, will be present to answer questions. Who is Dr. Arshad Ali?

Dr. Arshad Ali is an intense man, obviously devoted to science. As he discusses research, his very dark brown, probing eyes demand attention, much like a college professor. When told he should be a teacher, his reply is: "I was a teacher for a time."

He also has a way of answering what must be very old layman's questions with enthusiasm, and almost an insistence that the questioner learn the answers so that they won't have to be asked again. The first lesson is that the standard labrifer does not have blind insecurities.

"Blind mosquito is not the proper name. The proper name is 'Chironomus tentacle midge,'" said Dr. Ali, who has devoted the past five years of his life to writing on the creature. "The word mosquito is misleading to people."

"They look like mosquitoes. The species here has two wings and flies. It is not biting. Its mouth does not have stinging parts and it is not known to transmit disease. The adults have a fairly small. They are harmless creatures. The numbers which emerge are what bothers people. The midges are here, in California, Canada and some other parts of the world."

"They cannot be eradicated. They are an important part of the food chain. They help clean the lake bottom of organic matter. Several species of fish feed on the immature midges," said Dr. Ali.
