Florida Relays roundup

Local track and field athletes weren't intimidated by the competition during this weekend's Florida Relays in Jacksonville.

Many of them rose to the occasion and held their own against some of the best competition in the state.

Bird makes Magic disappear

It was just another game for the Orlando Magic, but for the Boston Celtics it was a key contest in their quest to catch Philadelphia in the Eastern Conference's Atlantic Division.

When you have your sights set on a playoff spot, regular season games become more meaningful.

Just ask Larry Bird, who pumped in 36 points to lead the lads in green to a 133-125 win over the woeful Magic and keep the Celtics within three games of the 76ers with nine games left to play.

CBS 1, Musburger 0

CBS sports anchor Brent Musburger will have his swan song tonight during the NCAA championship game in Denver.

Musburger, who has anchored the network's Sunday NFL telecasts for the past eight years, will be out of a job once the final horn sounds tonight.

Musburger and his agent brother couldn't reach an agreement with CBS on a new contract and the network decided it best to let Musburger go.

Lake Mary outage hits 100

About the only good thing that came out of the blackout of December 1989, is that it convinced the Lake Mary community to be prepared for this one. Lake Mary Police Chief Charles Lauderdale said today.

"This one" occurred Saturday night and affected about 100 people when wind and rain caused trees to fall into transformer lines.

"It was generally pretty scattered," said Marvin Whiteside construction services manager for Florida Power and Light. "It wasn't centered in one area. Some of the transformers were out for about an hour and half and it affected houses in groups of about two or three."

Whiteside said that F P L automatically transfers calls during such crises to a center Daytona and if calls overflow from there, they are transferred to West Palm Beach and Miami.

"But we didn't have to use those centers. The Daytona office handled them all."

But Lauderdale said that the police department felt the pinch: "We got the usual deluge of phone calls," Lauderdale said. "Everybody was trying to call us, because they couldn't get through to the power company. I wish they had some sort of system to handle all the calls."

Some of the game's top names converge on Heathrow courts

LAKE MARY — The Prudential-Bache Securities Tennis Classic, which has attracted some of the world's top professional tennis players, got under way here today.

An estimated 50,000 spectators are expected for the week-long event, being held at the Racquet Club at Heathrow.

This morning, the sun was bright and hot. Workers scurried about on the Plexi-cushion courts, checking the surface to be sure it was perfect for today's 11 a.m. matches.

Tournament Manager Debbie Pettit, walkie-talkie in hand, raced between her office in a trailer near center court, a tournament breakfast and celebrity golf tournament.

"There are some good seats left," she said. Popping into a chair behind her makeshift desk, she punched up some numbers on her black telephone, adding, "but we're expecting some 50,000 people between now and Sunday."

Cop wounded during shootout out of hospital

SANFORD — Seminole County Sheriff's Deputy Thomas Johnson, wounded Friday in a bank robbery-related shootout, was checking out of the hospital early this morning.

Deputy Paul Shuck, credited with saving Johnson's life by killing a bank robbery suspect while that man was shooting Johnson, was back on the job this morning making warrant arrests for the department.

The surviving Thomas Johnson bank robbery suspect, Graham Dobson, 33, an Australian citizen, remains in the Orange County jail without bond. He is charged with attempted first degree murder, second degree felony murder, armed robbery and use of a firearm in a felony. The murder charge stems from the death of Dobson's alleged accomplice in the Sun Bank robbery in rural Longwood, at about 2:30 p.m.

Robin Cary, 27, of Colorado, was shot and killed by Shuck while Cary was shooting Johnson, who had stopped the suspect's getaway car on Wekiva Springs Road. Two bullets hit Johnson in the center of his chest, but were deflected by his bulletproof vest, investigators said.

LEGISLATORS BACK AT WORK

Local lawmakers expect battle between Democrats and governor; not much else

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Given a muddled political climate and an election, two Seminole County lawmakers expect no major laws or programs to come out of the 1990 session of the Florida Legislature that begins tomorrow.

No major legislation is expected to tackle the looming problem of crowded, decaying roads or overworked social workers in the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, said Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, and Frank Stone, R-Casselberry.

Art Grindle

"In general, it will be hold on everything we can and avoid the issues," said Grindle. "But I'm still kind of optimistic about it. If (House Appropriations chairman) T.K. Wetherell can hold on to a leadership role, then I think we can accomplish something. But if (Speaker Tom) Gustafson gets in there, then I don't think anything will get done."

"I think the Democrats will be trying to embarrass the governor and the Republicans will be trying to fight back in some way and in the mean time, nothing gets done," Stone said.

Both Seminole County lawmakers offer no hope for substantial increases in road or expressway spending from the state, Grindle said because Gov. Bob Martinez is showing some favor for the four-cent

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's roads, education and social services are likely to get little help from the Legislature this spring as lawmakers devote their attention to winning re-election and dealing with a $1 billion budget deficit.

The Legislature has no end of important issues to address, including a horde of proposals to reform ethics laws governing lobbyists and a major rewriting of workers' compensation rules.

But political leaders say the big issue is how to pay for the programs needed by a growing state population that is straining the current infrastructure. And with Gov. Bob Martinez, the entire House of Representatives and more than half the Senate up for re-election, raising new taxes is very unlikely.

"It's not real good," said Rep. T.K. Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. "All the problems that have been accumulating have not been addressed."

Legislative analysts estimate the state has a $1 billion deficit, and the budget proposed by Martinez in February is not going to be enough to offset it. That means lawmakers are faced with new taxes and/or cutbacks to balance the budget.

Crowd hits streets for a tour of city's historic businesses

SANFORD — The trash blitz that took place Saturday was scheduled that day for a reason, say organizers.

It was scheduled for that day so that the city would be at its peak of cleanliness in preparation for the guided walking tour of Sanford's Historic Business District on Sunday, said Historic Preservation Board member Cal Conklin.

The tours were originated to keep the momentum going from a long list of positive experiences occurring in the city, said Monte Olinger, a member of the Sanford Historic Preservation Board and one of the tour guides.

They covered 22 buildings, each embossed with a bronze-colored plaque outlining the history of the structure.

"About 80 percent of what you see on the plaques you will find in the brochure," said Olinger. "It's meant to be that way. We want people to be able to walk up to one of the buildings and get an idea of what it meant to the town. It will probably be an annual event worked in with others during the year," said Olinger.

Witnesses said Lyman's wife was just leaving the victim's apartment when Lyman drove up. After the shooting, Lyman went to his office in the Nobleton community, where he was arrested a few hours later.

Chancellor says algebra a must for high school

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — While it is not a required course, Seminole County high school students are encouraged to take beginning-level algebra as a part of a college preparatory curriculum.

The head of Florida's university system suggested recently that such a plan be made imperative in all state public schools.

State University System Chancellor Charles Reed said students who now get credit for simple arithmetic — adding and subtracting, fractions and material from elementary school — should be better prepared to solve complex problems.

"Algebra never hurt me," Reed told The Tampa Tribune. "I took Algebra I, Algebra II, plane geometry and trig."

"That was in a little country school, and those kids taking vocational classes were sitting right next to me."

"I don't see that it would have much of an impact on Seminole County," said Clem Boyer, district coordinator of mathematics. "Right now, students could take three units of math and still be below the Algebra I level, but they are rare. A lot of students, even some in middle school, take Algebra I."

Algebra could help students mull through complex problems and tests of logic, a skill that students in the United States appear to be lacking, according to national scholastic tests, he said.

Carma Norman, assistant principal at Seminole High School in Sanford, said the SHS faculty "tries to encourage any student who is capable to take Algebra."

Seminole County high school students are required to take three credits of mathematics before they can graduate. "We feel algebra is so important to being in math and in other areas that require critical thinking as well," Norman said.

According to Boyer, adding Algebra I to the math requirements would force students to perform better. "They can't just take the class," he said. "They have to pass it."

A Department of Education mathematics specialist, Anne Tebo, said Monday that no formal proposal had been offered to make algebra a required course in Florida high schools.

"It would be up to the Division of Public School to implement a recommendation, and that hasn't happened yet," she said.

Reed has advocated changes throughout the entire education system, but the proposal his staff has developed involves only community colleges.

Reed proposed students who took only general mathematics in high school, and had low scores on the community college placement tests, be required to pass an algebra class before taking any college-credit courses.

The State Board of Community Colleges already has discussed the idea and opted to consider its recommendation.

But Tebo said Reed's idea may not work well on the high school level.

Not all high school educators agree with Tebo.

New eye in the sky

The Hubble space telescope, scheduled for a long-delayed launch in the shuttle Discovery this month, represents the most exciting advance in astronomy in 400 years. Peering into space with a clarity 10 times greater than can be achieved on Earth, the unmanned satellite might tell scientists how old the universe is and whether it contains other stars with planetary systems like our own.

It could possibly find life in the far reaches of the universe, where mankind's ground-based telescopes have never before been able to penetrate. Or it could reveal new homes among the stars for human beings of future generations.

As Galileo discovered four centuries ago, the atmosphere that is vital to life on Earth also seriously limits mankind's view of the heavens. The huge bubbles of gas that rise and fall incessantly everywhere over the Earth's surface filter and distort faint rays of light coming from outer space. The atmosphere makes the stars twinkle prettily, but it also frustrates our efforts to find answers to the most fundamental of mysteries: How was the universe created? How big is it? And how long will it last?

Discovery will lift the $1.5 billion Hubble telescope into an orbit 370 miles above the atmosphere. From there, vantage point, the satellite-telescope will give scientists a view of the universe never before obtained in the history of mankind. Some believe it may even see to the edge of the universe.

What makes the upcoming launch so thrilling is the possibility that the telescope might immediately reveal some exciting, or even threatening, discovery that no astronomer has even dreamed of. So little is known about the universe — fully 90 percent of it is too dark to be seen from Earth — that nobody knows quite what to expect when the Hubble telescope begins its mission. In all probability, its full contribution to science will be made over a lengthy period of its projected 15-year lifespan. But nobody can discount the chance that it might come up with an immediate cosmic surprise.

The best guess of scientists is that the universe was formed 15 billion years ago with an explosion known as the Big Bang. It was the late astronomer Edwin Hubble who discovered that the universe is still expanding. It seems fitting that mankind's first really good look into the secret recesses of the receding cosmos should be with a telescope named after such a distinguished American.

Wilder an electable running mate

WASHINGTON — Could it be that the Democrats are hoping that Doug Wilder will do to Jesse Jackson what Jimmy Carter did to George Wallace?

Recall that in the early 1970s the feisty governor of Alabama was driving the Democratic establishment crazy by entering presidential primaries far from his native South and either winning or drawing enough votes to back his claim that the party's candidates had lost touch with ordinary people.

Wallace's critics said he was getting votes by pandering to prejudice and fear and that no political party was going to enjoy more than passing success that way.

But they were clearly rattled by Wallace's successes in places like Maryland and Michigan, and when former Georgia Gov. Carter came along in 1976 to challenge Wallace, the Democrats were pleased.

The party elders were downright delighted to have Carter whip Wallace in Florida, although few of them realized how much momentum his early victories would give the Georgian.

Before they or such better known candidates as Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington or Birch Bayh of Indiana or Sargent Shriver knew what was happening, Carter had pulled into first place in the crowded race for the Democratic nomination and not only won it, but captured the presidency as well.

No one expects Wilder, who made history last fall as the first black to be elected governor of any state when he won the job in Virginia, to make a serious bid for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1992.

But after his election victory and a remarkably successful legislative session in which Wilder showed himself to be as fiscally cautious as any white governor the state has had in recent times, some people are talking about Wilder as a possible vice presidential candidate.

A lot of water has to flow under a number of bridges before serious consideration will be given to a Democratic vice presidential candidate. But the very fact that Wilder is being mentioned for the post so early in the 1988-1992 cycle probably has more to do with Jackson's perceived capacity to make problems for the party than Wilder's potential for broadening its base.

Some politicians believe that Jackson got a lot closer to a place on the national ticket in 1988 than in 1984, and if he succeeded in 1992, his color, his liberalism, his style or all of the above would not only guarantee defeat but also drag down many other Democratic candidates at every level.

But most of them will not say publicly that Jackson is political poison for fear of being accused of racism. They see a way of avoiding that by opposing Jackson on the basis of governmental experience and offering Wilder as a proven legislator, administrator and politician.

It is true that Wilder has appeared to ally himself with the so-called centrist or moderate wing of the Democratic Party. But it remains to be seen whether the first elected black governor will let himself be used against the first black with a plausible chance to win a place on a major party presidential ticket.

But most of them will not say publicly that Jackson is political poison for fear of being accused of racism.

Job pits woman against womb

BOSTON — When "The Handmaid's Tale" was published in 1986, the stark parable was written and read against the real-life background of the rising religious right. The country of Gilead was created as a joyless and perverse paradise of fundamentalism that reduced a woman to the sum of her reproductive parts.

But when Margaret Atwood's novel reappeared in film this month, something had changed in the atmosphere. This time, this eye was more conscious of Gilead as a toxic wasteland plagued by infertility. This time it was a land in which children were rare and longed-for. And a land in which motherhood was not empowered or enshrined but enforced.

The tale looked less like a warning about politics and more like a parable about the pitfalls of protection, female protection, fetal protection. In 1990, the very words "fetal protection" have taken on a meaning in real life that is nearly as chilling as "The Handmaid's Tale" is on the screen. They are used now to pit fetus against the woman. Indeed, when we talk about protecting the fetus, the woman is now designated as its enemy.

No case makes this more evident than the true story that will be retold before the Supreme Court. On March 26, the Court decided to hear a case brought by eight women who were forced to choose between their fertility and their jobs.

The Leadworker's Tale began back in 1982, when a Milwaukee battery manufacturer banned "women with childbearing capacity" from work in jobs that involved high lead exposure. Eventually a group of workers, one a 50-year-old single woman, another a 25-year-old who submitted to sterilization, charged Johnson Controls, Inc., with sex discrimination.

The company countered that they were not discriminating against women but protecting the fetus from the effects of lead exposure. So this case entered the public consciousness as another example of "the rights of women versus the fetus." Once again, woman against her womb. But it is not as simple, not as stark as that.

By any measure, Johnson Controls, Inc., is less interested in fetal protection from lead than in self-protection from liability suits. If they win this case, any woman "with childbearing capacity" could be banned from jobs as diverse as those of flight attendant and silicon-chip maker. Some 20 million industrial jobs could be closed to women whether or not they planned to get pregnant.

So in many ways, The Leadworker's Tale goes to the very heart of the old question: Is a woman's life from 12 to 50 to be governed by the possibility of pregnancy?

The appeals court that upheld the Johnson policy said yes and based their reasoning on a profound mistrust. They said, in effect, that a woman "might somehow rationally discount this clear risk" to her fetus. They defended a policy to guard any potential fetus against all fertile women.

In contrast, another judge — the Reagan appointed conservative Frank Easterbrook — wrote in a stinging dissent. "No legal or ethical principle, compels or allows Johnson to assume that women are less able than men to make intelligent decisions about the welfare of the next generation..."

But even if we assume the overriding importance of protecting the fetus, we still have to ask whether policies like Johnson's make sense. Banning women from the workplace is, after all, no health-insurance policy. Another dissenting judge compared the relative prospects of a "pregnant woman, unemployed or working for minimum wage... all-housed, fed and doctored" to that of her pregnant sister at Johnson and asked: "Whose fetus is at greater risk?"

And what of the father? A baby's health, like the baby itself, is the product of both parents. Male exposure to lead, research suggests, also affects their offspring. The passion to "protect" fertile women doesn't extend to men, but they are hardly invulnerable to reproductive damage. Ask the Vietnam vets exposed to agent orange or the British workers in a nuclear power station whose children have leukemia.

The parallels of this leadworker's tale are rich enough to provide the stuff of a sequel. In the fantasyland of Gilead, after all, men were not tested for infertility, fertile women were not free and the countryside was a wasteland.

In America, "fetal protection policies" protect women out of their jobs and leave men at risk to their health. But worst of all, the comforting myth leaves companies free to do their dirty business.

Is a woman's life from 12 to 50 to be governed by the possibility of pregnancy?

Cuts won't hurt foreign nationals

WASHINGTON — U.S. military personnel fully expect that they will carry the weight of defense budget cuts on their backs. But no one in the Bush administration is suggesting the same for the 121,107 foreigners who work at U.S. military bases overseas.

Bush's budget calls for eliminating 91,000 troops and 21,000 American civilians from the payroll over the next two years. Two battleships, two nuclear cruisers, 14 B-52s and eight nuclear submarines may be mothballed in 1991, along with several weapons systems — the Phoenix and Maverick missiles, the M-1 tank and the Apache helicopter.

But German citizens working at U.S. military bases will still get more holidays than their American counterparts, and Greeks will continue to get free transportation to get their jobs on U.S. bases.

Lawmakers in search of the elusive "peace dividend" would be amazed to hear the sweetheart deals cut with host nations on the treatment of foreign nationals.

For starters consider the 55,286 Germans on the Pentagon payroll who cost the taxpayers $1.5 billion last year. They get 12 holidays a year, including Whitmonday, the Day of German Unity, Day of Repentance and All Saints Day. The average American soldier or civilian gets eight holidays.

The military also pays Germans two-week pay as a Christmas bonus, and another vacation bonus. Germans on the U.S. payroll overseas are even entitled to "cure leave" — up to six weeks of recuperation time to relieve stress.

Our associate Jim Lynch has learned that the House Armed Services Subcommittee on Readiness will take a close look at the foreign nationals issue at an April 3 hearing.

U.S. taxpayers spent $78 million on 3,421 Italians working at military bases last year. The Pentagon picks up the tab for Christmas, Easter and annual leave bonuses.

It also pays to transport Greek employees to and from their work on U.S. bases. Greeks also get a broad array of special allowances for being married or having a college degree.

In spite of the pressure on the Pentagon to trim expenses, there are no plans to cut back on employing foreign nationals. A Pentagon spokesman told us that such cuts could be considered once the United States begins pulling back its overseas forces, but he noted that it is "too premature" to estimate when or how much. So far, the Pentagon just keeps hiring more foreign nationals while civilians in this country cope with cutbacks.

The generous employment agreements for foreigners are negotiated by teams of Pentagon and State Department officials, headed by ambassadors in the host countries. Most of the deals were struck when the dollar was stronger. It stands to reason that as the Pentagon looks for ways to save money, the host countries should be expected to pick up some of the fringe benefits for their citizens working for the U.S. military. That has not happened in Europe.

Japan has been far more accommodating, paying a portion of the fringe benefits package. The Japanese government has also agreed to increase its participation to pay for 55 percent of those benefits.

In spite of the pressure on the Pentagon to trim expenses, there are no plans to cut back on employing foreign nationals.

commission or a special referendum in each county of a state road district to approve it. If approved by the majority of counties in a district, the taxes would be used to pay for additional state road projects in only that district.

While Stone said the tax has a good chance of passing, he also expects Democrats to try to push a four- or five-cent gasoline tax for counties as a move to embarrass the governor.

Stone and Grindle said the Legislature probably won't approve any expressway packages after failing four attempts last year to do so. Grindle said it will be to Seminole County's benefit to build the expressway using bonds repaid by expressway tolls, because when the bonds are paid off, toll revenues can be used to build other roads in the county.

Both lawmakers are hopeful the Legislature will approve some form of Martinez' proposal to finance up to $3 billion by selling bonds during the next 10 years to buy land to preserve sensitive areas, endangered plants and wildlife.

"There's some sympathy and good support for it," Grindle said. "I think it has a real chance."

Should the bonding proposal fail, Grindle said another possible avenue of increasing state land purchases is by an increase in document filing fees paid to record land transfers at local courthouses. The fee is now 55 cents for each $100 of transfer value. Grindle said an increase has not been opposed by Realtors or other land brokers.

Grindle said through there is an increasing demand to address problems in the beleaguered HRS, budget deficits and the lack of leadership won't allow for substantial policy revisions or additional appropriations.

"With the House and Senate leadership trying to embarrass the governor, I don't think we can look to any major changes," Grindle said.

Stone, who chaired a task force on child abuse last year, agrees there may be no major review of HRS until 1991 when the elections have passed, although there may be some appropriations to hire more investigators or increase starting salaries.

Stone said the session may produce reforms in workman's compensation requirements. He said lawmakers are being lobbied heavily by businessmen to place a cap or even reduce premiums or to require binding mediation to lower legal costs in contested cases. Stone said penalties should be increased for employer's lax safety precautions and employee's fraudulent claims.

Grindle said one area that might be revised is the state comprehensive health coverage. He said it is too easy now for people with long-term illnesses to be covered through the state-financed health plan than it is to seek private coverage, straining the state budget.

Grindle said among the proposals that will be considered are increasing premiums, reducing the lifetime of benefits from 10 to five years and requiring people to exhaust all possible private coverage before they can be eligible for the state program.

Tours

The tour began at the DeForest Block at the corner of First Street and Magnolia Avenue. It is one of the oldest surviving brick buildings in town and the only building to survive a disastrous fire in 1887.

But while the space on the plaques may be finite, the effort to gather information on the buildings is not.

The Historical Preservation Board began the effort more than a year ago, when it hired an independent researcher to look into the records of the buildings when the area was still a part of Orange County.

The board also approached the staff of the Henry Shelton Sanford Museum and Library, which had already been seeking information on its own. The board then used the information from the museum staff and the researcher that it had hired as well as that garnered from Moore, also a member of the board, to produce the brochure.

But while the first brochures for the tour appeared in November, the research for that project used really began more than 10 years ago, said Museum Curator Alicia Clark.

"It started with a couple of graduate students in the 1970s whose research helped put many of the buildings on the historic register. That's where we got a lot of our information."

"We actively started pursuing this about three years ago," said Clark.

Clark said that their information came from a variety of sources such as fire insurance records, old telephone directories and microfilmed editions of The Sanford Herald.

"The Sanford Herald labeled it 'the celery city' in the 1908-1910 editions," said Clark. "We got a lot of our photos from the paper."

But while the tour may become an annual event, the research doesn't stop.

"This is by no means over," Clark said. "We are still actively seeking information. We're not planning on the plaques and brochures to be an end. That part of the project is concluded, but we're hoping that we will learn more about the other buildings that are not on the register as well as the ones that are."

Budget

meager budget," said Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Gwyn Margolis, D-North Miami.

"It doesn't really take care of the needs of the state. If he continues to say he's going to veto taxes, that's the kind of budget we're going to have to pass."

Legislators are being forced to find new taxes rather than raise old ones because Martinez is adamantly opposed to any increases in existing taxes.

For example, a special transportation task force has recommended to the Legislature a 4-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax increase to raise about $600 million for the state's road system. Martinez has vowed to veto any increase.

On the other hand, Martinez's budget calls for about $550 million in new taxes and fees, about half of which comes from a proposed 19-cent-per-pack increase in the cigarette tax.

Margolis said she does not think the Senate could support such a dramatic increase, but may pass some sort of cigarette tax increase.

Weiherril said he is not sure that cuts or taxes are going to be needed, but he said Martinez may not get everything he wants, including an ambitious bonding program to raise about $1 billion to buy environmentally sensitive lands over the next 10 years.

A major and constant concern is how the state's population growth is straining social services and infrastructure.

University System Chancellor Charles Reed says the system needs an additional $28 million to support about 7,000 unexpected new students who showed up last year. "We have tremendous pressure on us to grow," Reed said.

The state prison system also faces increasingly crowded conditions, but lawmakers are at odds over how to solve the problem. Some say reforms are needed in the criminal justice system, while Martinez wants to spend $150 million on 9,000 new prison beds.

Educators are especially concerned that the governor's budget does not provide enough money for growth and teachers' salaries.

Education Commissioner Betty Castor, who said public schools will have an additional 110,000 new students next fall, said this year is crucial for planning ahead for growth, but the governor's budget barely covers this year's needs in public education.

The governor's budget has nearly $8 billion in it for education, 8.45 percent more than for the 1989-90 fiscal year. But with inflation, the real dollars the governor plans to spend on students is 1.47 percent less than last year, Castor said.

Without more money for school construction, Castor said bigger class ratios are likely. "I don't think there's any doubt about it."

To avoid a statewide classroom crunch, the Education Department has proposed expanding the base of the gross receipts utility tax this year to include cable, sewer, water and solid waste utilities. The tax would be raised in subsequent years.

Castor said that would raise an additional $5.7 billion for education over the next 10 years and it has received a lot of bipartisan support. But the central question remains the same: Whether Martinez — as with most other budget issues this session — would veto the tax.

Sanford's shine day a success

By J. BRADLEY HILLING

SANFORD — Saturday's Make Sanford Shine project was even more of a success than had been anticipated. Martha Yancey, undoubtedly one of the project's most enthusiastic supporters, said today.

"It was a beautiful project," she said.

"I would like to thank all of the people of Sanford for coming out. We had the Boy Scouts. We had the Police Explorers. I just don't know what to say. It was so fantastic." The volunteers worked from 8 a.m. to noon, frequently in the rain.

"People were making rain ponchos out of trash bags, but they just stayed out there and worked."

Yancey said she wanted to thank Publix, Mister Donut, House of Bread and Central Florida Regional Hospital for donating food and coffee to the Women's Club to give to the volunteers.

"Make Sanford Shine" was the city's first trash bash, but it is not going to be the last. Yancey said.

Leaders of the 19 civic groups that participated will meet in the city hall conference room Friday at 8 a.m. to discuss the results of the project and make plans for the next one.

"I can't say exactly when the next one will be, but we will definitely have one near the end of the year in time for the St. Lucia festival.

The Arvida Company, which owns Heathrow, resurfaced one of its tennis courts and built two new ones with the new Plexi-cushion surface to attract the professional tournament to Seminole County.

"Plexi-cushion is a new product," Pettit said. "It plays like a hard surface, but there's some cushioning."

Pettit is employed by ProServ, a company which manages tennis tournaments all over the world. Though she is employed by the Orlando office and doesn't go to too many other tournaments, she said she was pleased by the efforts of Heathrow and the many volunteers.

She said that she was happy that this area was able to get a spring tournament.

"The spring timeslot on the ATP tour is a very favorable one," she said.

The tournament will conclude with the mens single championship match on Sunday. The field of 32 singles players and 18 doubles teams is vying for $250,000 in prize money.

Some of the top contenders include Brad Gilbert, who just returned to the U.S. after a Sunday singles match in Davis Cup competition in Czechoslovakia. Gilbert is ranked fifth in the world by the ATP.

More matches are scheduled for tonight on the stadium court, including Christo Van Renburg vs. Slovdan Zivojinovic in singles competition, and the team of Alexis Hombrecher-MalaVal Washington taking on Richard Schmidt-Gregg Van Emburgh in doubles play.

he spoke to Johnson this morning as Johnson was checking out of the hospital. Johnson was on his way to the home of relatives outside Seminole County to recuperate, Harrell said.

Johnson sustained three 9 mm semi-automatic pistol wounds: one to one leg and two to the other. Harrell said two bullets passed through Johnson's legs, and one was removed in surgery at Florida Hospital-Altamonte Springs, on Saturday. "He's doing well," Harrell said.

"I feel Paul saved Johnson's life by killing the gunman," Sheriff John Polk said today. Polk said Johnson didn't back down from the suspects, even when wounded.

"He's a good guy," Shuck said today of Johnson. Harrell said Shuck has reported to investigators his account of the showdown. Johnson will be questioned sometime this week. Polk said Saturday that both deputies did everything by the book in the showdown.

Witnesses to the $34,000 bank robbery on Miami Springs Road, described the suspects and told Johnson, who was on patrol, the direction of travel, investigators said. Johnson quickly caught up with the getaway car at 505 Wekiva Springs Road and forced it to stop in heavy traffic.

As he approached, brandishing his shotgun and ordering the two occupants out, Cary allegedly accelerated the car into a ditch and Dobson got out. Johnson had fired four shotgun blasts to disable the car's tires, deputies said.

Dobson walked to the rear of the car, and Johnson trained his gun on him. Cary opened fire on Johnson shooting from inside the car.

Shuck arrived and as Cary was shooting Johnson, Shuck shot Cary in the forehead with his 9 mm sidearm. Cary was killed. Dobson was physically subdued by other deputies and briefly hospitalized to receive more than 50 stitches. He was jailed Friday night here, then moved to Orange County, so he couldn't accuse Seminole County officials of abuse in jail. Capt. Roy Hughey said.

Johnson, 24, has been a deputy four years. Shuck, 32, has been a deputy 10 years. Hughey said Shuck is an expert marksman.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Senators say restrict weapons growth

WASHINGTON — It is time for the United States to speak out and act against the proliferation of nuclear weapons, two senators said, especially after the discovery of a shipment of potential bomb triggers going to Iraq.

Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., of the Senate Armed Services Committee said the expansion of nuclear and chemical weapons "is a problem we need to worry about, and I think it's a growing problem."

Appearing Sunday on the ABC News program "This Week With David Brinkley," Bingaman said, "There's a tremendous amount that needs to be done during the 1990s if we're going to restrict the proliferation of these types of weapons."

Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, agreed. "I don't think it's too late," he said. "I think that there's something that can still be done. I think we can definitely slow it."

Cohen, the ranking Republican on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, said the United States should be as hard on Iraq as it is on Libya when it comes to weapons proliferation.

European troop level may drop to 75,000

WASHINGTON — U.S. troop levels in Europe could be cut to as low as 75,000 by the end of the decade, Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, and former Defense Secretary Harold Brown said.

The two men made their comments while briefing reporters on a new study, "Changing Roles and Shifting Burdens in the Atlantic Alliance," written by a bipartisan group of politicians, academicians and former military leaders.

The study, sponsored by John Hopkins Foreign Policy Institute and prepared for release Monday, calls for gradual but far-reaching reductions in conventional and nuclear forces in Western Europe in light of changes in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union.

The study said the United States should abandon plans to upgrade the Lance short-range missile in Europe and initiate negotiations with the Soviets on short-range nuclear weapons as soon as a conventional arms pact is reached.

WORLD BRIEFS

Latin American economic overhaul urged

MONTREAL — Latin America and the Caribbean must completely overhaul their outdated economic policies or risk losing to Eastern Europe the competition for development financing, a senior official of West Germany's Dresdner Bank warned Sunday.

"Latin America and the Caribbean have but one option to finance development — a complete break with the inefficient economic policies of the past," Volker Burghagen, senior general manager of the Dresdner Bank, said on the eve of the annual meeting of the Inter-American Development Bank.

Burghagen, who was participating in a panel discussion on development financing for Latin America and the Caribbean, said Eastern Europe was emerging as a major competitor for scarce capital.

He said there is skepticism among industrialized countries whether Latin America will be able to implement market-based economic while "the expectation that Eastern Europe will transform her economy grows day by day."

Korean opposition wants new elections

SEOUL, South Korea — Opposition leader Kim Dae Jung renewed a demand Sunday that the present National Assembly be dissolved and new elections called to seek a popular verdict on the current political alignment.

Kim made the demand at an outdoor rally staged by his Party for Peace and Democracy, or PPD, in Puchon, 20 miles west of Seoul, to kick off a campaign to collect 10 million signatures against the new union of the ruling Democratic Liberal Party and former opposition groups.

"The present National Assembly is not in a position to represent the will of the people," said Kim, who leads the major remaining opposition group, now heavily outnumbered in the South Korean Parliament. "It should be dissolved and a new Assembly must be formed through new elections."

Kim was the main opposition leader until January, when Kim Young-sam and Kim Jong-pil, formerly government foes, joined President Roh Tae-woo to inaugurate the new ruling party through the merger of their groups.

The new government party controls 216 of the 299 parliamentary seats, enough to control passage of legislation. Kim Dae Jung's party has 70 seats. There are 11 independents and two seats remain vacant.

Sri Lankan leader returns in triumph

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka — One week after the last of 50,000 Indian troops withdrew from Sri Lanka, the leader of the victorious Tamil Tiger guerrillas said Sunday that his fighters will not lay down their arms and will continue the struggle of the Tamil-speaking people.

Tiger leader Velupillai Prabhakaran returned in triumph to Nallur in northern Jaffna peninsula two years after the skin of his pet leopard was displayed as a war trophy by Indian troops, who drove his 4,000 guerrillas into Sri Lanka's jungles but failed to disarm or pacify them.

Lithuania's Parliament mulls Gorbachev warning

By GERALD MADLER
United Press International

MOSCOW — Lithuania's Parliament was under mounting pressure from the Kremlin to give in today to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's demand to curtail its independence drive or face grave consequences, the Baltic republic's embattled president said.

Swedish and Danish television showed pictures of four heavily armored personnel carriers barreling through the center of Vilnius Sunday and past Parliament, where its presidium, or executive arm, was meeting.

Last weekend, the Soviet army sent an armored column of more than 100 vehicles, including some tanks, roaring past Parliament in a show of strength.

Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis, who was given a virtual ultimatum Saturday to annul the unilateral declaration of independence of March 11 or remain isolated, indicated the pressure was growing for Lithuania to back down.

In his twin appeals to the Lithuanian Parliament and the Lithuanian people, Gorbachev urged the lawmakers to rescind the declaration of independence as a condition for talks with Moscow. Failure to retract the declaration would bring "grave consequences," he warned.

Speaking Sunday on Lithuanian television, Landsbergis said the Lithuanian Parliament would consider Gorbachev's appeal Monday and Tuesday in what promises to be a dramatic session with the tiny republic suddenly driven into a corner.

"It cannot be now demanded that we annul everything we bore in our hearts," said Landsbergis, who founded Lithuania's Sajudis independence movement two years ago and then became the republic's president in March.

Gorbachev, in his appeal to the Lithuanian people, laid out what he said was acceptable for negotiating with Moscow.

"I am addressing you at a difficult time for our country," Gorbachev said. "The March 11 decisions of the Lithuanian Supreme Soviet have brought us to a difficult point."

"If the voice of reason is not heeded now, developments can have grave consequences for all of us," he said. "We must be united in striving to prevent this."

"I have appealed to the Lithuanian Supreme Soviet, proposing that it immediately annul the illegal acts it has adopted," he said. "This will open a possibility for discussing the entire range of problems on the solely acceptable basis — within the framework of the U.S.S.R. Constitution."

Gorbachev reiterated that the independence act was ruled illegal March 15 by a resolution of the Congress of People's Deputies, the Soviet Union's supreme legislative organ.

Other resolutions and acts adopted by the Lithuanian Parliament have said the laws of the Soviet Union have no force on Lithuanian territory.

"I would like to state once again that this path is ruinous and will lead only to a dead end," Gorbachev said.

The appeal was carried by the official Tass news agency and designated "urgent" and then read to the entire nation on the TV evening news show, "Vremya."

The statements represented the first definitive outline of Gorbachev's basis for a dialogue with the Lithuanians about their desire to leave the Soviet Union to which they were annexed in 1940.

British police investigate tax protest

By KARIN DAVIES
United Press International

LONDON — Scotland Yard opened an investigation Sunday of a protest against a newly imposed tax that degenerated into a riot, with hooligans overturning cars, setting fire to buildings and looting shops.

Scores of people were hurt as the rampage spread through central London Saturday night. Seventy-five civilians and 58 police were treated for injuries and seven people remained hospitalized Sunday.

A total of 341 people were arrested, mostly on public disorder charges, Scotland Yard said.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, at her country home of Chequers, expressed "absolute horror" at the violence.

"People have a right to demonstrate peacefully and that is what most of them were doing," she said. "They were taken over by some extreme groups and we saw some of the worst scenes of violence by people who have no consideration for other people at all, no consideration for their property."

The riot began as a peaceful demonstration in Trafalgar Square.

A crowd estimated at 40,000 by police and 150,000 by organizers gathered to show opposition to the new community charge, or poll tax, which went into effect Sunday in England and Wales, one year after it was imposed in Scotland.

The tax requires local city councils to set a flat sum that must be paid by every Briton who is at least 18 years old, with some exceptions.

Tokyo stocks crash, dollar up

By MARK KURAMITSU
United Press International

TOKYO — The Tokyo stock market, on a downward slide most of last month, suffered its second-steepest one-day fall today, losing 6.6 percent of its value amid speculation that Japan's economic boom could be coming to an end.

The key Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which plummeted 1,045.71 yen Friday, went into a sustained freefall, losing 1,978.36 yen, or 6.6 percent, to close Monday at the year's low of 28,002.07 yen.

The decline was blamed on a falling Japanese yen, rising interest rates and a report that insurance companies were selling off stocks. Insurance companies are the chief institutional investors in the stock market.

It was the second-worst single-day fall in the history of Japan's stock market, following a record loss of 3,836.48 yen in the aftermath of the "Black Monday" collapse of Oct. 20, 1987.

British stocks sharply lower

LONDON (UPI) — Stock prices were sharply lower at midday today on the London International stock exchange, hammered in part by the 6.6 percent decline in Tokyo.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 36.0 points overall last week including 15.1 points Friday, was down 23.3 points at 2,215.6. The narrower top 30 industrial average was off 23.2 points to 1,745.5.

Volume amounted to around 308 million shares, compared with 262 million shares traded during the same period Friday.

TOPIX, or the TSE Index of all listed major shares, plunged 158.15 points to 2,069.33. The dollar rose above the 160-yen level for the first time in 39 months before moving slightly lower to close at 159.95 yen, up 2.30 yen from Friday's close, the Bank of Japan said.

"We believe piercing 164 (yen to the dollar) is likely," said Kim Schoenholtz, an analyst for Salomon Brothers Asia.

Brokers said investors yielded to a pessimistic mood over fiscal 1990, which began today, and rushed to sell to reduce their losses.

The stock market was hurt by the decline of the yen and recent rise in interest rates.

"We are getting close to the dangerous point for the Japanese economy," said James Vestal, senior economist with Baring Securities Japan, a British company.

The risk of the Japanese economy "going down the tubes" has gone up, Vestal said.

If the yen continues to fall, companies may start raising prices, consumers could cut spending, business expansion may stall and the economy could enter a period of malaise, he said.

IN BRIEF

BASKETBALL

Garland's hoop lifts Clippers

LOS ANGELES — Winston Garland hit his only basket of the game with 7.8 seconds remaining Sunday night to give the Los Angeles Clippers a 104-103 victory over Seattle.

After Garland hit his 22-foot jumper from the top of the key, the Supersonics had two chances to win, but Nate McMillan's hurried jumper was short and Michael Cage missed a reverse layup at the buzzer.

Seattle's Dale Ellis led all scorers with 39, but was scoreless in the decisive fourth quarter. Xavier McDaniel added 22 for the Sonics, 35-36.

Danny Manning scored 22 off the bench to lead the Clippers as Charles Smith added 21.

Elsewhere in the NBA on Sunday, Cleveland stomped Indiana 121-91; Chicago dunked Miami 111-103; Philadelphia whipped Phoenix 141-112; Washington tipped New Jersey 105-97; Atlanta routed Golden State 142-116; the Los Angeles Lakers knocked off Utah 119-103; and Dallas stopped Milwaukee 86-72.

YOUTH BASEBALL

Junior Majors set to open

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department Junior Major Baseball League for boys 13 and 14 years of age will kick off its 1990 season today with opening day ceremonies starting at 5 p.m. at Chase Park.

Jim Adams, Athletic Supervisor for the Recreation Department and League Director, announced that activities will include the introduction of each team member, managers and coaches, an throwing out of the first ball and two exhibition games.

Regular season league play will start Wednesday with a pair of games scheduled to start at 6 and 8 p.m.

COLLEGE HOOPS

Florida names Kruger coach

GAINESVILLE — Florida Sunday named Kansas State basketball coach Lon Kruger to take over as the new head coach of the Gators' beleaguered program, university officials announced.

Kruger, 37, replaces Don DeVoe, who served as interim coach since last fall's resignation of head basketball coach Norm Sloan.

"His name has appeared among the list of the nation's top coaches for the last several years," Athletic Director Bill Arnsparger said in a statement.

"His appointment is an indicator to the collegiate community that the University of Florida basketball program is on solid ground."

Kruger led Kansas State into NCAA tournament play in each of his four years at the helm of the Big Eight school. Kruger leaves his alma mater with a combined coaching record of 81-46.

Sloan resigned Oct. 31 amid allegations that he and other Florida coaches violated NCAA rules by paying athletes. Sloan has denied those allegations.

HOCKEY

NHL wraps up regular season

The NHL season ended quietly Sunday night, a full between a wild, decisive weekend and two months of Stanley Cup playoff suspense.

Eight games were played with little left at stake after the weekend featured Boston's clinching the regular-season title and Adams Division. On Sunday, the New Jersey Devils tied the Bruins 3-3 to deny the Boston Garden crowd a finale victory.

Fittingly, though, Boston sealed its last available honor to cap its 100-point season: the Jennings Trophy for allowing the fewest goals.

Montreal's goaltending tandem of Patrick Roy and Brian Hayward had won the previous three Jennings Trophies. The Bruins, with Rejean Lemelin and Andy Moog in net, yielded 232 goals this season, two fewer than Montreal.

Elsewhere, Edmonton beat Winnipeg 4-2; Detroit and Philadelphia tied 3-3; Montreal and Hartford tied 1-1; Buffalo bombed Quebec 5-2; Washington edged the New York Rangers 3-2; Calgary clouted Los Angeles 8-4 and Chicago defeated Minnesota 4-1.

Locals shine at Relays

Jason Hobbs

From staff reports

GAINESVILLE — Competing against a field that drew competitors from all over the southeastern United States, Seminole County high school track and field athletes held their own in this past weekend's Florida Relays.

Held at Percy Beard Stadium in Gainesville, the event featured competition on the high school, college and invitational level.

The meet began with the Class 3A high school portion on Friday night, where Seminole's Carlo White finished second in the shot put and the quartet of Robert Moore, Henry Williams, Joseph Murphy and George Frison came in fifth in the 4 x 100 meters relay.

"The rest of the meet was rained out," said Seminole boys' coach Ken Brauman. "They continued the meet on Saturday, but our boys came back. They didn't stay overnight."

Right before the 300-meter intermediate hurdles, the lightning was so bad, they just called it [the rest of that night's competition] off."

A couple of Seminole High School graduates stood out during Saturday's college invitational portion of the meet. Dorchelle Webster, now a hurdler at the University of Florida, was named the Outstanding Female Athlete of the meet after winning the 400-meter hurdles and running the fastest leg of the Gators' first-place 4 x 100-meter relay.

Also, Leo Patterson, a 1986 graduate now in the Air Force, was fourth in the triple jump. Patterson is a member of the Air Force team.

In Saturday's Class 4A high school competition, the best local performances were turned in by the Lyman boys and the Lake Mary girls.

Just as he has most of his prep career, Teddy Mitchell paced the Lyman Greyhounds, finishing third in a special invitational 1,600-meter (metric mile) race. Then he ran the anchor leg of the Hounds winning distance medley relay, capping the efforts of Octavius Holliday, Howard Marshall and Kevin Padgett.

"Teddy's time in the 1,600 meters is the third fastest time in the United States this year," said Lyman coach Fred Fluke. "I believe our time in the distance medley (10:18.10) is the best time in the nation. It's better than what's listed in Track and Field News."

Lake Mary's girls gave an outstanding showing in the relay events, finishing second in the 3,200-meter, fourth in the 1,600-meter and sixth in the distance medley events.

Little Majors get break from rain

From staff reports

SANFORD — There is an old saying in Florida, "If you don't like the weather just wait five minutes and it'll change." Saturday at Fort Mellon Park was just another example of that axiom.

The day started cold, wet and miserable but ended sunny and beautiful as the first week of the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League came to a close with five games at Roy Holler Field.

After the first week the Disabled American Veterans Royals lead the American Division and the Railroaders Cubs and Rinker Materials Dodgers are tied for the National Division lead. All three teams are 2-0.

Little Major action this week has the Sun Bank Orioles making up a game with the First Union A's today at 8 p.m. On Tuesday, the National Division will play a pair of games while the American Division plays a pair of games Thursday. All teams play on Saturday.

Weekday games start at 6 and 8 p.m. and Saturday games start at 8 a.m. All games are played at Roy Holler Field in Fort Mellon Park.

DAV and the Sun Bank Orioles opened Saturday's action, DAV coming away with a 14-9 victory, DAV scored five runs in the third inning and four runs in the fourth to break a 3-3 tie and take the victory.

Alex Avosta was 3-for-4 with a double, three runs scored and three RBI to lead the DAV offense. Also contributing were Jamie Kilgore (single, run scored, RBI), Donnie Henson (single, RBI), Max Howard (single), Corey Williams (four runs scored), Sherman Hudson (two runs scored, RBI) and Chris Giovanelli, William Wynn, Alvin Kilgore and Marcus Beasley (one run scored each).

For Sun Bank, which outlit DAV 11-6, Cedric Church led the way by going 3-for-3 with a triple and three RBI. Also chipping in were Jermaine Mackey (single, double, three runs scored), James Young (single, double, Richard Reddicks (two singles, run scored), Albert Harris (single, three runs scored, RBI), Tony Guanciale (single, two RBI) and Shaun Councils (run scored).

Beasley went the distance on the mound, striking out nine and walking only five, to pick up the victory. Young struck out nine and gave up only six hits but suffered the loss.

In the second game, Adrean Knight and Harris Ellis combined on a four-hitter as the Railroaders defeated the First Federal of Seminole Cardinals 6-0.

In 13-15 Babe Ruth baseball, the Oviedo Maine Black Bears won their second straight game with a 19-0 win over the Longwood Orioles and the St. John's Redmen won their opening game of the season 21-1 over the Longwood Cards.

Chris MacFarland, Josh White, Jose Gonzalez and Kyle Hayde combined to toss a no-hitter for the Black Bears while Tony Beasley (grand slam), Jeff Spies (triple, three RBI) and Andrew Holmes (triple, two RBI) paced the offense.

In the Junior Bambino's (9-10), it was the Oviedo Royals taking a pair of wins, 5-0 over the Oviedo A's and 10-9 over the Oviedo Mariners, and the Pirates beating the A's 16-8.

Matt Tulip and Reggie Kohn combined on a one-hitter to pick up the pitching victory for the Royals while Ryan Wilder and Damon DiCharry suffered the loss for the A's despite giving up just three hits.

Getting the hits for the Royals were Kohn, Don Richards and Dave Chaves while DiCharry had the lone

Celtics beat Magic with third-quarter defensive stand

United Press International

BOSTON — The Boston Celtics, aware of Orlando's offensive capabilities, concentrated on their own defense and the Magic's lack of it during a key third-quarter stretch in the expansion team's first Boston Garden appearance.

Larry Bird scored a game-high 36 points and Reggie Lewis added 29 Sunday afternoon, powering the Celtics to a 131-125 victory over the high-scoring Magic.

Entering the contest, Orlando was last in the NBA in defense, allowing 119.2 points per game, but fifth in points scored.

Boston started off slowly in the contest before breaking the game open, with an 18-0 quarter closing run in the third.

In the first half, Boston, which held a 66-64 edge at intermission, attempted to match the Magic's offensive bursts and fought about defense. But late in the third period, the Celtics decided to try and contain Orlando's offense.

"We thought we were going to wear them down," said Boston forward Kevin McHale of the wide-open first half. "They can score 110 any game, but the problem is they give up 125. We just played well enough defensively for a few minutes."

After the Magic had regained the lead for the first time since the second quarter, 84-83, on Scott Skiles' short jumper along the left baseline 6:52 into the third, Boston took charge with its 18-6 quarter closing run.

"We finally shut them down in the final five minutes," said Joe Kleine, who contributed 7 points in the deciding stretch. "They just got a little rattled at the end."

Lewis ignored the spree with a pair of baskets 7 seconds apart. After Michael Ainsley scored for Orlando to make it 87-86, Kleine and McHale had baskets for Boston.

Former Celtic Mark Ayres converted a rebound inside for the Magic before the Celtics closed the final 2:38 of the period with 10-2 run. Kleine scored 5 in the spree.

Orlando, which shot 60 percent from the floor in the first half, was held to 38 percent in the third.

"We just wanted to run a lot and open it up against them," said Ayres. "It just didn't work long enough."

Boston, which held a 101-90 edge after three, busted the game open when Jun Paxson scored 6 straight points in an 8-0 run early in the final quarter.

With the Celtics leading 103-97, McHale nailed a jumper before Paxson nailed three straight jumpers in a just under a minute.

The Celtics had a hard time getting going, said Orlando coach Matt Gutkas. "But when they needed the shots they hit them."

The win was Boston's sixth straight at home and sent the Magic to their 10th loss in their last 11 games.

Allison Snell finished second to Brookwood, Ga., in a school-record time of 9:16.06 (they had not been below 10:15 all year). In the process, the Rams finished ahead of Winter Park (fourth) in the event for the first time this year.

"That 9:16.06 is the fastest time in the state this year as far as I've heard," said Lake Mary girls' coach Mike Gibson.

In the 1,600-meter relay

Roblehr, Boothe, Olson and Snell ran a 4:09.44, their best time of the year, to finish fourth. The foursome of Meredith Olive, Oiso, Kristi Hartwell and Helen Gutmann finished sixth in the distance medley with a time of 13:17.28.

Snell also finished second in the open 800-meter run by a photo finish. Palm Beach Lakes' Gigi Ganzy was declared the winner in 2:18.68 while Snell was clocked at 2:18.78. The third-place finisher was almost four seconds back.

Roblehr took a sixth in 300-meter low hurdles with a time of 48.70 while Vivian Jones finished sixth in the shot put with an effort of 24-7 1/2.

The Lake Mary boys also fared well. Charles Elberry, Tyrone Gibson, D.J. Lewis and Bob Robertson combined to place third in the distance medley with a school-record time of 10:31.02. Elberry, Lewis, Steve Heidt and Robertson also set a school record of 8:19.46 in the two-mile relay, finishing fifth.

Individually, Gibson was fourth in the long jump.

Amy Ginnette was Lake Brantley's top performer, finishing third in the 1,600-meter run and fifth in the 3,200-meter run. Mona Ariza placed second in the 300-meter low hurdles while Joyce Tullis was sixth in the 1,600-meter run. In the boys' competition, Jason Hobbs cleared 14 feet to place third in the pole vault.

Professional athletes aren't only ones with 'responsibility' to kids

While visiting my in-laws on Sunday, I read a disturbing story in The Tampa Tribune about a professional athlete, a sports writer who covers high school athletics, who was arrested for possession of crack cocaine, among other charges.

While the incident itself is a tragedy, it sparked a chain of personal realizations. How often do we read about professional athletes involved with drugs? How many times do we say that these men and women have a responsibility as role models to our children to stay away from illegal activities?

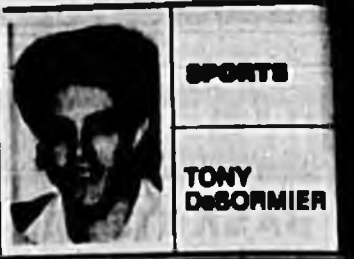

But that word cuts a wide swath. Certainly, professional athletes have a certain responsibility thrust upon them — however undeserved — to serve as proper role models to children. What we forget is that they are not alone in shouldering that responsibility.

I submit that organized youth sports is one of the most effective ways to keep children from getting into trouble on the streets. With games and practices, it gives boys and girls a sense of purpose, somewhere to be with something to do.

When parents stress that participation in organized sports is the privilege to be earned, not a right to be expected, children may think twice about getting into trouble if it threatens the opportunity to play ball.

By extension, the adults involved in these activities also have a responsibility to those children under their guidance. Like or not, coaches, umpires, administrators and, yes, even sports writers operate in the same glass bowl that professional athletes find themselves in every day of their career.

Just as the glamor of being a professional athlete adds impact to the actions of a pro athlete, the familiarity between a coach, etc., and a young athlete gives every word you say to a child extra weight. As a result, what we do or say in public is under close scrutiny.

SPORTS

Before you shake your head in disagreement and turn the page, think about that for a minute. For you who coach youth sports, how many times have you had a parent come up to you and say, "I wish I could get little Joey to listen to me at home like he listens to you at practice."

Now take a look at what we're trying to teach these children, aside from how to play a game. We stress, directly and indirectly, that the lessons learned on the playing field — hard work, perseverance, teamwork, being a good sport — carry over into daily life.

How often can we separate our personal habits off the field from what we teach the children on it? Can we teach one set of moral values on the field and live another set off the field?

Granted, what a person does in private is his or her own business. But when that private business becomes public and you suddenly find yourself being led away from a court house in handcuffs, it becomes a part of what defines you. If you work with children, it not only destroys your credibility, but the credibility of what you're trying to teach. And that's the real tragedy.

Trees can be protected

Fill dirt from construction harmful

CELESTE WHITE
GARDENING

Seminole County is experiencing a lot of growth and construction lately and we need to be aware of how this construction affects the existing trees. The addition and removal of soil around the root system or heavy equipment driving over roots can seriously disturb the delicate relationship between roots and soil and in some cases, can actually cause the tree to die now or in a few years.

In many instances, all dirt is brought in and added to a building site with little concern for how this might affect the existing trees. When fill is added over existing soils, the air and water, which are essential for the normal functioning of roots, is practically excluded. As a result, roots start to suffocate and begin to die. Symptoms like wilt, dieback, yellow or brown leaves may begin to appear above the ground.

However, the above ground symptoms may not appear right away and can take as long as several years to show. Trees can live on their stored reserves for quite a while and then appear to die suddenly for no apparent reason. The truth is that the damage can have occurred a year ago and the reserve runs out. Times of stress (like drought) can be the final blow that finishes the tree off.

The extent of the injury from adding fill soil around the base and roots of trees varies with the type, condition and age of the tree. The depth and type of fill and the drainage also play key roles. Maple, oak and evergreens seem to be the most seriously injured while elm, ash, willow, sycamore and locust seem to be the least affected.

The deeper the fill, the greater the disturbance to the roots. Clay and muck fills can cause the most injury because the fine texture of the soil shuts out air and water almost completely. An application of an inch or two of a clay or muck soil may cause severe injury. Sandy fills, because of their loose nature, can sometimes be applied to a depth of four inches without injury. Generally an application of two to four inches of fill will do no harm. The roots gradually become used to the added soil by producing new roots at the surface.

Little can be done to save a tree that is suffering from added fill dirt over the extended period. The root rot process has already begun. The only thing you can do is prevent damage to trees by excessive fill soil before it happens on your building site and tag the trees that you want to save. In some cases it may be less expensive to replace a tree than try and save it, especially if the tree is young. In poor condition, an undesirable species or susceptible to insect or disease problems.

If you decide that you want to save a tree, plan early to protect it during construction. Go out to your property and tag the trees you want to save. Let the builder or construction foreman know that you plan to save the tree and what preventative measures that you want done.

Remember that heavy equipment like trucks or bulldozers can seriously compact the soil. The best way to prevent this kind of damage is to fence or barricade the area around the tree off. Tree roots extend way beyond the drip line of the tree so try to barricade as much of the area as you can.

It may be necessary to get a professional consultant to let you know which trees are desirable to save and which are not. This person should also be able to tell you which trees are healthy, a good species etc. Basically, they will be able to evaluate your building site and make recommendations. Of course, this should be done in the planning stage of construction, not after it has started. Contact the Seminole County Forester Mike Martin for a tree consultant near you.

Spare the rod, spoil the child

DEAR ABBY: I go along with your answer to Jimmy Dunne, president of P.O.P.S. (People Opposed to Paddling Students Inc.). I, too, am opposed to using corporal punishment in order to discipline children in school — and at home.

I raised two children, a boy and a girl. They are in their 20s now. As young children, they were very hard to discipline. I got tired of spanking them, until I came up with the idea of making them write a sentence, such as, "I must clean up my room now." For the first offense, they had to write the sentence until they had filled 25 pages. For the second offense, 50 pages. Each page was from a notebook that was 10 1/2 by 8 inches — 31 lines to a page — which meant writing that sentence 1,550 times.

I assure you, Abby, that after spending three hours in their room writing, instead of playing with the neighborhood kids, watching television and doing their homework (which had to be done anyway), they did not forget the offense for which they were being punished, and they never had to be punished for the same offense twice!

My children are both married now, and they told me that they respected my disciplinary measures. Instead of wearing out my hand with spanking, I let them hear out their writing.

DONALDO CURTIS, HOUSTON

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR MR. CURTIS: My mail has been running 10-to-1 in favor of paddling. Read on for a typical pro-paddling letter.

DEAR ABBY: Since when is it not OK to punish a child by paddling, if all else fails to show the child that unruly behavior will not be tolerated?

Yes, paddling does create a sense of fear. I was paddled only twice in elementary school (it was legal in Michigan). I remembered it well, and I never felt abused. My self-esteem was not lowered and it made me remember that what I did was wrong, and never did it again.

You are right, Abby, when you say that teachers and principals should not be expected to do the work of parents, but we both know that many parents do not discipline their children. It's a fact that most children spend more time with their teachers than they do with their parents. Most parents know what their children are like, yet they feel that they are the teachers' responsibility as soon as they walk out the front door of their home. If a teacher were to give a disobedient child a paddling, that teacher would be slapped with a lawsuit from parents screaming "child abuser!"

How sad our society has come to consider paddling a form of child abuse. Since capital punishment has been abolished in many states, our crime rate has soared to an all-time high.

Why should the young conspire? They know they will either get probation or sentenced to a couple of years, depending on the crime and they'll probably be released in just a few years, because our prisons are so overcrowded that they can't keep them all.

Perhaps if they had been paddled at school, they would have thought twice about committing a crime, knowing that they would be punished.

B.K.S., DETROIT

DEAR ABBY: One of the biggest lies I ever heard was when my father turned me over his knee and gave me a good, hard spanking. He said, "This hurts me more than it hurts you."

TOM IN MARYVILLE, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: I have been told that when meeting people, stay away from subjects such as sex, politics and religion.

An Englishman once told me that Americans are considered rude because the first question they ask is, "What do you do for a living?"

I have also been told that it's very poor taste to ask what race or nationality people are. For example, if a person looks Oriental, you should not ask if he or she is Japanese, Chinese, Korean, Cambodian, Thai or Hawaiian.

Abby, I was taught that in order to make friends with people, you need to show an interest in them and find some common ground. So please tell me what to say after "What's your name?" and "My, that's a lovely dress" — or tie, or whatever.

It is frustrating to sit next to someone on a bus, plane or train without saying a word. Can you please help me out with a few suggestions on how to break an awkward silence? I'm friendly, not pushy.

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: The subject to initiate a conversation is, believe it or not, the weather. If you get a chilly response, cool it.

If you're traveling, you could ask, "Where are you heading?" Or, "Where's home?"

If the stranger is reading, or appears to be deeply engrossed in work, leave him or her alone. Most people appreciate a show of friendliness from a stranger, but not all do, so after you've initiated a conversation, where it leads will be up to the other party.

DEAR ABBY: Because you have been a good friend and booster of Overeaters Anonymous for years, I want to share this with you.

I had been going to O.A. for only a few weeks. On Tuesday night, I was running late and knew I couldn't make it on time, but I decided to go anyway. Zinc treatment for eye disease needs testing

DEAR DR. GOTT: You are incompletely informed as to the current evidence concerning the use of zinc supplements in treating macular degeneration, a disease of unknown cause that is a major cause of blindness. Also, you stated that 200 milligrams a day could be toxic.

I'm a practicing ophthalmologist and published a report in 1988 showing that zinc treatment helped to reduce visual loss in patients with macular degeneration. You are inadequately informing the public; the degree of misinformation already printed is great enough to require printing a clarification.

DEAR DOCTOR: Like many research specialists, you don't seem to do a very good job distinguishing between research data and practical consumer information. I said in my column that there is no known medical treatment for macular degeneration — and I stand by that statement. However, I am printing the "clarification" you requested and, in doing so, I am quoting from your very own study, which, I might add, closely corroborates my original column on this subject. Fasten your seat belt, doctor.

"It would be definitely premature to recommend the widespread use of oral zinc, since, as has been pointed out, zinc ingestion can be associated with a number of potentially serious side effects and complications, including anemia and worsening of cardiovascular disease."

"One possible adverse effect of oral zinc administration is the development of a copper-deficient anemia."

"It should be emphasized that some eyes in the zinc-treated group shared the worst outcome."

"Because of the pilot nature of the study and the possible toxic effect and complications of oral zinc administration, widespread use of zinc in macular degeneration is not now warranted."

Doctor, I understand the la-vorable results of your preliminary (pilot) study, and I hope your findings will be substantiated by other scientists. But on the strength of your report and its conclusions, I could hardly endorse the use of zinc for macular degeneration. However, if and when the treatment gains
