

POLICE IN BRIEF

Longwood man arrested after alleged block-throwing incident

LONGWOOD — A man who allegedly threw a concrete block at a car and brandished another block against a person he allegedly beat with a garden hose, remains jailed in lieu of $5,000.

Robert Warren Simmons, 20, of 138 W. Bay Ave., Longwood, was arrested by Longwood police on a charge of aggravated battery at his house at about 8:27 a.m. Thursday.

Police reported Simmons allegedly attacked one of two persons who were leaving his house. The victim and the witness were not identified in the arrest report.

Simmons allegedly threw a concrete block at the witness' car. The victim got out of the car and walked toward Simmons, who allegedly beat the victim with a piece of hose and made threats to bash the victim's head in with another block, police said.

Two-dollar bill brings charges

CASSELBERRY — The victim of a burglary reportedly identified as his a $2 bill recovered by Casselberry police and as a result, a Casselberry man faces charges of burglary and grand theft.

Antonio Israel Pagan allegedly used the $2 bill stolen from a house at 241 Cypress Way, Casselberry, June 14, to pay another man to give him a ride to a house where Pagan allegedly sold a video recorder also stolen in the burglary.

Pagan was arrested Thursday at the Casselberry police station. He is free on $1,000 bond and scheduled to appear in court July 18.

Defective light brings drug find

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A traffic stop for a defective license tag light has led to a charge of possession of marijuana against a 27-year-old Longwood man.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report stopping the car of Michael Lawrence Wilde, of 1840 Lake Emma Road, at about 11:25 p.m. Thursday on Longwood Avenue in rural Altamonte Springs.

Wilde was charged because of the tag light, for having an unassigned license tag and for driving with a suspended license. After his arrest, his car was searched and marijuana reportedly found in the glovebox. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Marijuana charges filed

SANFORD — Police report they were suspicious of a man behind Uncle Nick's Oyster Bar, 2605 Park Drive, Sanford, at about 11:20 p.m. Thursday, so they searched him and reportedly found marijuana.

Freddy Joe Campbell, 22, of 2490 Orange Ave., Sanford, was charged with possession of marijuana after the search. He was being held in lieu of $500 bond.

Large suspect free on bond

SANFORD — A 600 pound man jailed in the Seminole County jail early Wednesday on cocaine trafficking charges, is free on $2,500 bond.

James David Roath, 31, of Altamonte Springs, who is 6'2 and measures 6'6 around the waist, was initially being held without bond. A judge set bond for him Thursday and he was released.

Jail officials had ordered over-sized jail garb for Roath, but he had the same diet as other inmates while jailed, officials said. He is scheduled to appear in court July 18, on three counts of drug trafficking.

Burglaries, thefts reported

SANFORD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies who responded to a burglar alarm at Kilarney Boats, 750 U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood Thursday night, report two boat propellers with a total value of $800 were missing from a fenced compound.

A $300 rifle and a $50 scope were stolen Thursday from the house of Richard Westfull, of 1628 Cleek Circle, Geneva, a sheriff's report said.

Sheriff's deputies have the name of a suspect who may have stolen the 1982 Chevrolet van of Terry Lisle, of 104 Bayberry Road, Altamonte Springs, Wednesday or Thursday.

Eleven boxes of marble valued at $550 were stolen Wednesday or Thursday from a construction site at Lot No. 37 Wingfield North, Longwood. A sheriff's report said the marble belongs to Basalt Marble and Granite, Inc., of Orlando.

A $300 cash register containing $100 was stolen Wednesday or Thursday from Video Traks, 1235 U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, a sheriff's report said.

The owner of Sobeks Subs, 409 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, Longwood, gave sheriff's deputies the name of a suspect who may have stolen $1,229, which was to be deposited in that business' bank account June 17. The deposit wasn't made.

Illinois Senate approves White Sox plan

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — The Senate has approved a proposal allowing the state to buy the Chicago White Sox and sell stock to the public.

The plan (H2993) moved to the House for consideration on a 38-18 tally Thursday and its sponsor, Sen. Greg Zito, D-Melrose Park, said he was hopeful the lower chamber would endorse the plan as well.

Florida officials have approved an incentives package to lure the team to St. Petersburg.

"I strongly believe this is a viable and the only alternative to the $150 million tax spending plan to keep the White Sox in Illinois," Zito said. "It does not use one dime of taxpayer money. It does not call for the state of Illinois to own a baseball team."

Under the plan, the state Commerce and Community Affairs Department could buy the team for $60 million and sell stock to the public during the next 10 years at a cost of no more than $10 per share.

An individual could buy no more than 5 percent of the team and a 100 percent vote of stockholders would be required to allow the team to move out of Illinois.

Contrary to Zito's statement, the proposal does use state funds — $60 million in Build Illinois funds to buy the team if up front money is needed and if stock sales do not meet the anticipated goal. But Zito said he expects stock sales to go well and he has no intention of seeking a state appropriation for the funds.

Sen. Richard Newhouse, Chicago Mayor Eugene Sawyer's point man on the White Sox, said he favored the plan.

"It is a matter of city pride," Newhouse said. "Citizens ought to have a chance to own a piece of the club that represents their city."

But Chicago Democratic Sen. William Marovitz, who is pushing a proposal for twin stadiums for the White Sox and Bears on the city's West Side, said Zito's plan was a joke.

"We can have a lot of fun with this, but I hope nobody in this body thinks that passage of this legislation is going to resolve the ultimate White Sox problem as to whether the White Sox stay here or not," Marovitz said. "The fact is major league baseball would never allow this to happen."

The owners of the White Sox have said the team is not for sale. But if the team was for sale, they would demand Florida prices, which they claim are higher than a price they could obtain in Illinois.

The White Sox owners also have said they will remain in Chicago if the Legislature approves a separate $60 million deal reached by the owners and the Sports Facilities Authority. The proposal includes a new $150 million stadium.

Gov. James Thompson is opposed to Zito's plan.

Home badly damaged by fire

LONGWOOD — A Sleepy Hollow home was nearly destroyed Thursday morning following a fire causing $250,000 in damage that apparently began in the garage.

Twenty-three firefighters from Seminole County, Longwood, Altamonte Springs and Rural Metro battled the blaze at 102 Ichabod Trail for nearly a half-hour to bring it under control, said George Burkett, deputy Seminole County fire marshal. Although two teens were in the house at the time a neighbor reported seeing smoke in the garage, they escaped uninjured, Burkett said.

One firefighter received minor injuries to a foot when he apparently stepped in a pile of burning embers and failed to immediately notice the heat.

Burkett said the firefighter was treated at the scene and released.

The neighbor reported seeing the smoke at about 10:35 a.m. Burkett said. He said the owner's two children, Michelle Entinger, 16, and James Entinger, 12, were in the home at the time the smoke was first reported. They reported to fire investigators that they heard muffled explosions in the garage as they were leaving.

Burkett said investigators are uncertain whether the explosions occurred before or during the fire. He said the garage had numerous paint and aerosol cans that might have exploded. Burkett said the fire apparently began in the garage although he is uncertain how it began. He said the flames spread throughout the home, damaging the entire structure and contents.

Convict's 'death' doesn't help him out of prison therefore has served his sentence.

Corning said the Court of Appeals, New York's highest court, has defined death "as the irreversible cessation of heart and respiratory systems." He said Rosenberg offered no evidence that proved he had suffered "irreversible" death.

But Rosenberg, who represented himself at the hearing in the Cayuga County Courthouse in Auburn, argued he had died based on reports by doctors and a definition of ventricular fibrillation, which he said doctors claimed he suffered while undergoing open heart surgery.

Pentagon probe: Paisley allegedly smuggled data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Evidence shows Melvyn Paisley, identified at the center of the defense corruption scandal, was able to maintain a flow of classified data to consulting clients after leaving his Pentagon post because other officials smuggled material to him, authorities say.

Investigators have identified one key supplier of restricted data as James Gaines, a former Paisley aide whose office was searched by the FBI last week as the Pentagon procurement scandal broke open, according to sources.

Officials in the Navy Office of Technology Transfer and Security Assistance, speaking on the condition of anonymity, delineated Thursday how Gaines and another civilian political appointee fed Paisley "incessantly" with classified information on contract bids and pending programs.

One source said that in 1987 he knew Gaines was supplying Paisley but did not report it to superiors because he feared for his job. The source noted that before resigning as assistant Navy secretary for procurement, Paisley had put his own appointees in charge of the operation.

The Los Angeles Times, which first revealed details of the Paisley-Gaines connection, quoted an unidentified law enforcement source, Tuesday, as saying Gaines "was giving stuff up the bucket."

The newspaper said Paisley was paid "staggering fees" by his biggest client, McDonnell Douglas Corp., for confidential information that could have affected bids on major defense projects. The Times added today that Vicki Paisley, his wife, was paid as much as $850,000 by a defense consulting firm in 1986 while the company founder was representing contractors doing business with the Navy.

Citing federal and state records, the Times said Mrs. Paisley was paid "as compensation for services" by VAMO Inc., a Virginia consulting firm formed by William Galvin, a consultant with offices among those searched by the FBI.

Virginia corporation records show VAMO was established

Jan. 28, 1986, by Galvin, his wife and another woman, Alice Backo. But 1988 records show control of the firm has been transferred to Mrs. Paisley, now listed as president, and a relative, Janet McKim. Mrs. Paisley had no comment on the report.

Authorities familiar with the burgeoning FBI-Naval Investigative Service inquiry into alleged fraud and bribery have described Paisley as a central figure. Law enforcement officials have said his twin offices in Washington and McLean, Va., were bugged and wiretapped for nearly a year.

At the White House Thursday, President Reagan clenched his fist when asked about the revelations that have raised the specter of massive corruption in the Pentagon's trillion-dollar defense expenditures of recent years.

"I have not only ordered a continued investigation, but they're going to give me a full report," Reagan said. He indicated it would be an interim update disclosing "where we are now ... how much do we know?"

Village buried under landslide; 150 feared dead

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Relentless rain has stalled rescue operations and prompted fears of more landslides in northeastern Turkey, where tons of mud and rock buried a village and swept across a highway, killing at least 150 people, authorities said.

Enver Hizlan, mayor of the Black Sea port of Trabzon near the disaster, said Thursday one landslide swept across a highway near the village of Catak. Hours later, a second slide devastated Catak, in the mountains overlooking Trabzon, about 400 miles northeast of Ankara.

Authorities said some villagers still may be alive in their homes under tons of mud, but heavy rains prevented rescuers from digging for fear of triggering more slides.

The semi-official Anatolia news agency quoted officials in the rugged, mountainous region as saying rescue work had not begun by late Thursday. A reporter for the agency said rescue workers were "helpless" and "have not done anything yet" because of the rain.

Bulldozers and other equipment were standing by and a makeshift hospital was set up near the disaster, the news agency said.

Hizlan said at least 150 people were killed in both landslides, but some news reports said the death toll could climb to 300.

A 5-mile stretch of road linking the mountain village of Torul to the city of Trabzon was buried in the first landslide, which hit at 2 a.m. after several hours of rainfall soaked the slopes, Hizlan said.

People riding in buses and other vehicles went to a coffee house in Catak to wait for the road to be cleared.

Two dead, 20 hurt in gas explosion

MONTERREY, Mexico (UPI) — More than 300 firefighters braved searing heat today to try to douse a fire fueled by more than a million gallons of gasoline after an explosion Thursday afternoon killed two people and injured 20 others.

The inferno at a gasoline tank farm forced the evacuation of 15,000 people, many of whom fled as soon as they heard the explosion, officials said.

A 1.3 million-gallon tank filled with gasoline at a state-owned Mexican Petroleum, or PEMEX, plant outside Monterrey exploded at 2:50 p.m. Thursday and the fire quickly spread to two smaller tanks, said PEMEX spokesman Jose Trejo.

Flames shot more than 100 feet into the sky and black smoke billowed over the city, 450 miles north of Mexico City.

The explosion was apparently sparked when gasoline spilled while the largest tank was being filled and spread along the ground to where five people were working with soldering tools, Trejo said.

Sparks from their work caused a fire that detonated the giant tank and in turn started fires in two nearby tanks, he said. Hours later, fire broke out in a fourth tank, fire officials said.

Trejo said two people were killed and 20 were injured, six of them seriously.

At 5 a.m. the fire in the giant tank was still being fought by 300 firefighters and members of the armed forces, fire officials said.

Monterrey firefighter Jose Luis Castillo said the fire in the largest tank would continue to burn for another five or six hours until the gasoline is completely burned up.

He estimated 15,000 people had been evacuated from surrounding neighborhoods. Norte de Monterrey newspaper reported several people were arrested for looting evacuated houses.

The tank farm is surrounded by 70 acres of warehouses, Trejo said, and residential neighborhoods lay beyond.

Trejo said dry chemicals were being used to control the fires.

Call a halt to this fire sale

Picture Uncle Sam, right hand raised in a gesture of peace, left hand offering a Stinger missile. That's the image we get after reading Secretary of State George Shultz's recent remarks at the United Nations. Shultz urged Third-World nations to help them reduce international tension by cutting their demand for arms.

His were words of wisdom. Unfortunately, they came at a time when the Reagan administration is asking Congress to substantially increase American arms sales abroad. We find it difficult to reconcile the administration's two impulses.

Addressing the General Assembly's special session on disarmament recently, Shultz pointed out that Third-World nations in 1986 increased their imports of modern weapons to $180 billion. That's an increase of 40 percent in five years. Buyers go to Warsaw Pact countries for half their arms purchases and to North Atlantic Treaty Organization members for 37 percent.

The administration that Shultz serves wants to increase business. It is proposing that this country sell more than $15 billion worth of weapons, $3.3 billion more than last year. And, there's no dearth of customers.

Egypt, for example, wants sophisticated American tanks and is willing to pay $2.7 billion to get them. Israel wants $3.6 billion worth of American fighters, helicopters and weapons. Pakistan wants more and so does the Philippines. Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and other Persian Gulf nations also are on the buying list.

Shultz pointed out that the developing countries so eager to buy our weapons are virtually doubling the size of their armaments industries. Between 1977 and 1981, he said, developing countries provided about 6 percent of their own armament. Since then, the figure has increased to 11 percent.

These are developing countries, all right: They have developed the expertise to produce ballistic missiles, chemical and bacteriological weapons — and nuclear arms.

Why toss a match to a conflagration? Why not, as a matter of policy, urge Third-World nations to follow the lead of the superpowers, which are beginning to scale down their nuclear arsenals? George Shultz knows the words to that admonition: It's time for his arms-hawking colleagues to learn the music.

A new look

Medicare is about to undergo the first major expansion in its 23-year history with the overwhelming passage by Congress of a catastrophic health insurance program. The Reagan administration supported the bill that should provide much needed health care for the nation's 32 million elderly and disabled Medicare recipients.

The bill is, however, no gift to the elderly. Medicare recipients will pay for the new program through higher premiums and with a tax surcharge for those senior citizens with large enough incomes to pay taxes.

But after making a one-a-year payment of $564 in 1989 and somewhat larger amounts thereafter, Medicare recipients will have their full hospital costs covered by the program. Medicare now only covers all hospital costs for 59 days.

But in expanding Medicare, Congress has still failed to deal with the issue of long-term nursing care for those too feeble to remain in their homes, but not sick enough for an acute-care hospital. And Congress a few days ago rejected a $28 billion plan to provide long-term health care for people who can remain in their homes.

Although home health care is cheaper than a nursing home, which in turn costs less than an acute hospital, Congress must still determine who will pay the bills. There is much work still to be done in the nation's Capitol.

President saluted by summit partners

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan delivered his swan song at the Economic Summit in Toronto, satisfied that he had sold his free market policies to the leaders of Western industrialized countries.

He won lavish praise from the allied partners, who viewed his impending departure from the world scene with sentimental tribute. Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, his host, saluted his "warmth and wisdom."

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher spoke of her "wholehearted support and affection for President Reagan."

Reagan stuck to his guns and sold his laissez faire philosophy, a throwback to another century, to the other leaders, who are enjoying expanding economies.

Except for some minor skirmishes with French leader Francois Mitterrand, who came to the summit with a re-election mandate, Reagan was able to prevail on the question of priming economies with free market policies, tax cuts and de-regulation.

He ran into a stone wall with Mitterrand in seeking to aid the fragile democracy in the Philippines. And could not budge the European Community on his goal of wiping out farm subsidies by the turn of the century.

The president, representing superpower, has always been treated with deference at such meetings, although there were times when Mitterrand tried to upstage him by arriving last.

But after eight summit gatherings with the leaders of Great Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Canada and Japan, Reagan began to get the feel of international diplomacy. It took a while. When he attended his first summit meeting in Ottawa in 1981, his top aides were afraid he could not back it and they insulated him in every way they could. Nevertheless, he seemed to be a fish out of water.

Since then, however, he has gotten the hang of such gatherings and learned that advance preparation makes a difference. As the years went on, Reagan won his spurs and got to size up the leaders.

Thatcher remained his loyal ally in all things. But friction arose from time to time with the other heads of government.

Reagan's own transformation, as he paved the way for greater acceptance of his economic ideology, was most apparent in terms of East-West relations.

He attributes the big change to his military buildup bringing the Soviets to the bargaining table on nuclear arms reduction.

It was not until his second year in office that Reagan gave any time or thought to arms control. His goal was a $1 trillion plus Pentagon infusion with new weapons programs given the green light.

His view of the Soviet Union seemed to be in concrete, and few would have predicted he would back off of his "evil empire" assessment of the Kremlin.

But while the president has changed his mind on very few things in terms of his conservative philosophy, he decided, as he so often repeated in recent years, that a "nuclear war should not be fought and could not be won."

New heart attack findings

By Lidia Wasowicz
UPI Science Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In surprising findings that could alter treatments for millions of patients, scientists reported Thursday they have identified an illness that may be the primary cause of heart attacks in people under 65.

A study indicates 2 percent of the population has the newly found syndrome, which may be more responsible for early heart attacks than high blood pressure, said Dr. Roger Williams, professor of internal medicine and director of the Cardiovascular Genetics Research Clinic at the University of Utah.

Williams found 69 of his 131 subjects — brothers and sisters under age 60 with mild hypertension — had abnormal levels of various types of blood fats called lipids, that have been linked to heart attacks in previous studies.

To our surprise, that pointed out they probably have an inherited metabolic abnormality that leads to abnormal blood lipids and high blood pressure. We have called this newly discovered illness familial dyslipoproteinemia or FDR, Williams said in an interview.

"Lipid abnormalities are a much stronger predictor of early heart attack than blood pressure elevations, and may account for most heart attacks previously blamed on high blood pressure," said Williams, concluded from his eight-month study, reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

This year as many as 1.5 million people in the United States will suffer a heart attack — the leading killer of Americans — and about 540,000 of them will die, according to the American Heart Association. Some 675,000 will be early heart attacks occurring in the under-65 age group.

An estimated 30 percent of Americans suffer from hypertension. Of those, 75 percent have mild high blood pressure, defined as 160 over 110 or lower. High blood pressure.

Lipids include cholesterol and its "cousins" triglyceride, an easily measured chemical that reflects the amount of VLDL (very low-density lipoprotein) cholesterol; HDL (high-density lipoprotein or "good") cholesterol; and LDL (low-density lipoprotein or "bad") cholesterol, he said.

Lipid abnormalities usually can be corrected with diet and medication, he said.

Where've you gone DiMaggio?

It's possible that there is someone, somewhere, who does not love baseball, but if so, I have not met him lately. He must live in Thailand, Nepal, Tibet, or some such place. Ever since I became relatively conscious back in the 1930's, the moment had a magical quality when I would emerge out of the tunnel at Ebbet's Field in Brooklyn and see the shocking green of the grass, the brilliant white of the lines and bases, and hear the sharp crack of the ball on the wood of the bat.

A recent survey of opinion among the professoriate at an Ivy League college reveals that the faculty does not think athletics have much to do with education or with intellect. That's because college professors are sometimes links and nerds.

Columbia University is fortunate to have a professor of literature who knows different. Michael Seidel, who has just published a splendid book titled, "Streak," about Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak in 1941. Professor Seidel interweaves his account of DiMaggio's great feat with a parallel account of the worldshaking events of that year.

As Professor Seidel knows, along with Aristotle and Homer, athletics in fact is often about intelligence.

"As for (Ted) Williams, the key lay elsewhere. When Babe Ruth saw him play early in the 1941 season, he told reporters that just watching the kid swing told him that Williams had a shot at .400. "A baseball comes at you too fast to begin thinking about it only after it leaves the pitcher's hand. Most hitters cheat by timing a bat swing to pick up on the rhythm of the pitcher's motion." The reason, Ruth went on, "that my number 3 was so visible on my back, even directly from center field, was that I exaggerated my backswing before the pitcher's release. But Williams waits much longer. The strength of his wrists, the speed of his swing, and the uncoupling of his hips are exceptional..." Ruth was merely shrewd on the mechanics; he wasn't privy yet, if he ever was, to Williams' elaborate theory of zoning the plate that made his selection of hittable pitches akin to Cartesian geometry."

Columbia's Professor Michael Seidel has written a wonderful book, a book radiant with intellect. Play ball!

Entrepreneurs sought for space station

By Jack Anderson and Joseph Spear

President Reagan wants to open space to private businesses and has turned the project over to Secretary of Commerce William Verity. Verity is pushing ahead with plans to launch a commercial space station in 1992. His first choice was to put a station on the moon. But the National Aeronautics and Space Administration overruled him, saying that an outpost on the moon would be too difficult to maintain.

Verity told us that his first priority is to work out financing for the space station. He hopes to put together a consortium of private companies to pay for it. They would be guaranteed a profit by the government, which would act as landlord, renting out the orbiting space facility for research purposes.

Verity believes the project could revitalize American enterprise, because the technologies of tomorrow will be developed on the space frontier.

3 keys to November

WASHINGTON (NEA) — After examining primary results and polls, campaign strategists in both parties agree that November's presidential election will be the closest since 1976. After a total of about 80 million ballots were cast in '76, Jimmy Carter defeated Gerald Ford by only about 1.7 million votes.

Now the experts generally agree that the key states in 1988 will be Florida, Texas and California. These three states account for almost 20 percent of the U.S. electoral votes — 97 out of a total of 5,080.

Both Republican and Democratic planners believe that neither Republican George Bush nor Democrat Michael Dukakis can win without carrying two of the three states — and if either carries all three, he will almost surely win.

Ronald Reagan became president by banking on a Southern-Western strategy anchored in Florida, Texas and California. George Bush's supporters would like to believe that their candidate can rely on the same base.

Democrats think 1988 is a very different year and that Bush is a very different candidate. They believe they can blunt this kind of strategy.

In either case, these three states — California, Texas and Florida — will likely become 1988's major battleground.

The big prize on Nov. 8 will be California with its 47 electoral votes. The state has not been carried by a Democrat since Lyndon Johnson in 1964. But the most recent statewide polling by the Field Organization shows Dukakis with a double digit lead in California.

Over the last 24 years, the Democratic party has always enjoyed a decided registration edge in California. But the GOP has managed to stay on top in the presidential contests. The Republican nominees have overwhelmingly been able to attract California's so-called "swing vote" — independents, young voters and generally conservative blue-collar workers.

Although whites represent a shrinking majority in the state, they continue to vote in very high percentages. In 1984, for example, whites represented 61 percent of the population, but cast 82 percent of the votes.

Democrats believe that Dukakis ethnicity, coupled with his proletarian, generally moderate economic stance, will appeal to many "swing" voters. Current polls giving Dukakis a 10 to 16 point lead in California seem to bear this out.

In addition, both the Democratic party and organized labor are spending millions on a registration effort they predict will bring about 1.5 million new voters, but getting them to the polls.

Hispanic voters will probably hold the key to Texas' 29 electoral votes. Perhaps more than in any other state in 1980 and 1984, generally conservative blue-collar voters in Texas deserted the Democratic Party to vote for Ronald Reagan.

before he would meet with Gorbachev. Deng made the same demand. The subsequent Soviet retreat may pave the way for a summit between the communist giants.

• George Bush was at it again the other day. He told a group of high school students that if he wanted to carry favor with the press and get plenty of coverage, he could attack Ronald Reagan. "What I would do is go out and criticize the president of the United States. It's man bites dog. I mean, that's a great story." We understand what you meant, George. We just hope the dog understood too.

• Just about the time that the Soviet Union is catching on to beauty pageants, some folks out in California remind us that beauty contests are sexist. While Miss Moscow is just getting used to her crown, the Miss California pageant is interrupted by protesters chanting, "Judge meat, not women." Beauty pageants took a beating in the 1960s, but lately it looked as if they were regaining ground along with other American standards like greed and crewcuts. We could dismiss this California brouhaha as an isolated incident, except we know that California is the birthplace of all trends. A word to the wise in Moscow: Get out of the beauty business while you still have your dignity.

• Once again a boatload of America's garbage is cruising the high seas looking for a dumping ground. This time it is 10,000 tons of ash from Philadelphia incinerators. The ship has been turned away from the Bahamas, the Dominican Republic, Honduras, Haiti and Guinea-Bissau. It is now headed for West Africa, but environmentalists are threatening to stop any attempts to dump the ash there. And well they should. The United States cannot continue to use the rest of the world as a garbage dump for the trash we won't tolerate at home. Our homeless garbage barges are a stinking message that it is time to get serious about recycling our waste. There was a time when "waste" meant squander.

Supreme Court upholds death sentence for black widow killer

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Supreme Court Thursday upheld the 1985 Orange County murder conviction and death sentence given to so-called "black widow" killer Judy Buenoano in the slow arsenic poisoning of her husband.

Buenoano, 45, is also serving a life sentence for drowning her invalid son, Michael, and a 12-year sentence for the attempted murder of her boyfriend, John Gentry.

She is also a suspect in the arsenic murder another boyfriend, Bobby Joe Morris, in Colorado.

In each of the cases, Buenoano's motive was to collect insurance benefits on the life of the deceased, according to court records.

Buenoano is one of five women under sentence of death in Florida. She is being held in a special unit for condemned women at Broward Correctional Institution.

The justices ruled 7-0 there was ample substantial evidence to support both her conviction and death sentence in the Sept. 16, 1971 death of Air Force Sgt. James Goodyear, who began suffering from nausea, vomiting and diarrhea shortly after his return from Vietnam.

Court rejects killer's appeal

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Supreme Court Thursday rejected an appeal by Leo Alexander Jones, sentenced to die for the May 23, 1981, murder of a Duval County sheriff's deputy after he reportedly vowed to "kill a pig."

In a unanimous ruling, the court declined to retroactively apply a 1987 ruling barring confessions obtained when police prevent the accused from talking to their lawyers until after they obtain the confessions.

The justices said applying the ruling against "egregious" police conduct to Jones' case would be inappropriate because the ruling "placed new limitations on police action which reasonably could not have been foreseen" at the time Jones was questioned.

The justices also rejected Jones' arguments his trial lawyer made numerous errors in defending him for the murder of Deputy Thomas Sztramski.

The deputy was shot as he sat in a patrol car at a traffic light in a run-down area of Jacksonville.

Police discovered Jones and his cousin, Bobby Hammond, in an apartment building across the street, along with several high-powered rifles, according to court records.

Police said while resisting arrest for an earlier traffic infraction, Jones said "he was tired of the police hassling him, he had guns, too, and intended to kill a pig."

Emissions bill becomes law

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Gov. Bob Martinez signed a bill Thursday requiring auto emissions testing in six of Florida's most populated counties, and hailed the achievement as a major step toward improving the urban environment.

"With this law we'll begin the process of making our urban areas a cleaner place to live in," Martinez said in a news conference.

Along with new solid waste legislation he was expected to sign Friday, "we think a good start has been made in the urban environment, to compliment all the hard work that's gone on in the natural environment," Martinez said.

Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Duval, Pinellas and Hillsborough counties, home to more than 80 percent of Florida's residents, would be the first counties affected by the Clean Outdoor Air Act recently approved by the legislature.

The law mandates emissions testing beginning March 1, 1990, in any county that fails air quality standards established by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Crew error blamed for derailment

CROFTON, Ky. (UPI) — The crew of a train that derailed and sparked a fire in a phosphorus tank car — spewing a huge toxic cloud that forced about 15,000 people to flee their homes — was apparently unaware of a "slow order" on the track, authorities said Thursday.

"It appears the engineer was going 35 miles per hour under a 10 mile per hour slow order," said CSX spokesman Lloyd Lewis.

CSX spokesman Tim Hensley told a news conference the slow order had been issued for the section of track about the length of a city block Wednesday because extreme heat, which can cause the track to expand.

He said the railroad had been unable to determine if a warning marker one mile before the section had been properly raised or if a computerized message was sent to the crew aboard the train advising them of the speed limit.

But Hensley said the crew said they never were alerted to the order before the accident and a warning marker at the site of the track was raised only when the accident occurred about 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The derailment ignited one tank car — the only one carrying phosphorus — a chemical used in military explosives and soft drinks.

Officials assess insect damage

BENNINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Northeast forestry officials met Thursday to map a battle plan against tiny insects that have ravaged up to 1 million acres of forest in Vermont, damaging precious maple sugar trees already beset by years of acid rain and an unusually dry spring.

An estimated 500,000 acres suffered moderate to heavy damage this spring at the hands of a tiny, bud-eating insect called the pear thrip, and another 500,000 acres have been less severely affected, said Conrad Motyla, director of forestry for the state's Parks, Forests and Recreation Department.

"If this happens again, if there is a second invasion next year and there is another drought, then our maple trees could be destroyed," said Gov. Madeleine Kunin.

Kunin, who toured the affected areas by air last week, said she was dismayed by the damage.

"From the air, you just saw a pattern of browned maple trees," Kunin said.

Kunin said she plans to pull together a group of high-level state officials to deal with the problem, which has affected all of the New England states.

The pear thrip has been a threat to fruit trees ever since it arrived in California around the turn of the century, said Vermont Agriculture Department entomologist Jon Turmel.

"I understand their strategy, but it won't work. There are vital differences between the two candidates," Atwater contended. "There is no better way to help our Southern campaign than for Michael Dukakis to come down. We want him to spend all the time and money he can in the South."

Atwater said the Bush campaign strategy this summer will be "not to fall precipitously behind so that when the game starts you really can't get back into the game."

You never really need to be in the situation where you're ahead in the polls, although I hope the vice president will go ahead in the polls, even though I don't anticipate it and don't think it's that important," he added.

Dukakis' trip to Dixie — the first major campaign tour since he clinched the nomination — was designed to show Bush that he would have to fight and spend money in every corner of the country. Dukakis insisted throughout the trip that he would not concede a single state to the vice president.

At almost each stop throughout the trip, Dukakis was preceded by a Bush surrogate campaigner, who blasted the governor for being too liberal.

Atwater predicted Thursday that Democrats would eventually try to "belly up" to George Bush and fuzz the issues and say, "We are good Republican conservatives too."

But, Atwater said, "On every vital issue, there is a giant difference between these two candidates."

South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell, Bush's Southern campaign chairman, said the region must be in the Republican camp for Bush to win the November election, but he suggested that the vice president choose a running mate from the West or Midwest. He suggested Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, who was a bitter opponent of Bush during the primary season.

Murder-for-hire suspect may run for sheriff

MILTON (UPI) — A former county official scheduled to be tried in August on charges of trying to hire someone to kill a long-time political rival may run for sheriff, election officials said Thursday.

David McDonald, supervisor of elections in Santa Rosa County, said he got a telephone call last Friday from Clifford Wilson asking that forms be mailed to him. The form is a first step for anyone who wants to run for county office.

Kansas City television station fined for 'indecent exposure'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission fined a Kansas City, Mo., television station $2,000 Thursday for broadcasting a sexually explicit film, the first ever such penalty against a TV station.

The commission determined by a 2-1 vote that KZKC-TV Channel 62 violated federal indecency laws when it broadcast a movie entitled "Private Lessons" during prime time on May 26, 1987.

The film, about a 15-year-old boy who is seduced by his father's housekeeper, contains "nudity and scenes depicting sexual matters which were dealt with in a pandering and titillating manner," the FCC said.

Under a complex federal standard that prohibits broadcast of "obscene" material, but allows broadcast of less offensive "indecent" material at certain hours of the day, the station could have showed the film without penalty after midnight, when children were less likely to be watching.

But because it was shown at 8 p.m., when an estimated 84,000 children in the Kansas City metropolitan area were watching television, the station violated the law, the commission ruled.

Police protest upcoming concert

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Irate unionized police are protesting planned concerts by Willie Nelson in Rhode Island because the country crooner sang at a benefit for a convicted cop-killer.

"We don't take too kindly to people raising money for a killer of policemen," said Wayne Sacco, president of the statewide Fraternal Order of Police.

Sacco's 3,000-member-strong group was upset over a 1987 concert featuring Nelson and Kris Kristofferson that raised money for Leonard Peltier, the American Indian activist convicted in the slayings of two FBI agents.

A source close to the Nelson entourage said Nelson participated in the event at the Pacific Amphitheater in Costa Mesa, Calif., but explained police failed to recognize that the concert was organized by people who felt Peltier wasn't given a fair trial.

"People have to do their homework before they start making accusations," the source said Thursday.

Nelson's manager was not available for comment.

Peltier, 42, is serving two consecutive life sentences at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., for the shooting deaths of two FBI agents on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota in 1975. He maintains he is innocent.

Israelis, Palestinians clash; much of country blacked out

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israeli soldiers clashed with Palestinians in scattered unrest in the occupied territories Thursday and a severed cable caused a power outage that blacked out much of the country.

The outage, which hit occurred at midday, was not caused by Palestinian sabotage, an electric company spokesman said. Palestinian activists have called for attacks on Israeli industry and agriculture.

Utility officials said a severed high-tension cable 30 yards above a major intersection outside Tel Aviv caused the outage, Israel Radio reported. There was no explanation of how the cable was severed.

Troops sent to quell protest

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet troops have been sent to Nagorno Karabakh, where four months of ethnic Armenian strikes and demonstrations have crippled the economy and threatened a new outbreak of violence, Pravda said Thursday.

The Communist Party newspaper said the situation had continued to deteriorate in the region, where workers have ignored party orders to end the strikes and protest and return to work.

Nagorno Karabakh is an enclave of 165,000 people ruled by the Moslem Soviet republic of Azerbaijan, which borders Turkey. But 80 percent of the region's population are ethnic Christian Armenians who have been rivals of the Moslem Azeries for centuries.

Crowded jail could bring heavy fines

KEY WEST (UPI) — A 1980 lawsuit brought by an inmate citing overcrowded conditions at the Monroe County Jail may force the county sheriff's department to begin releasing prisoners or face a $1,000-a-day fine, officials said Thursday.

Federal magistrate Hugh Morgan told Monroe County officials he is going to recommend placing a cap of 220 on the number of prisoners to be housed at the Key West, Fla., facility.

On June 22, there were 224 prisoners at the jail, Bruce Rogow, lawyer for the prisoners, told the magistrate that on some days the prison population reaches 250.

If the federal magistrate's recommendation, made during a special hearing Wednesday afternoon, is accepted by U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler in Miami, Monroe County would have 72 hours to release prisoners over the cap or be fined $1,000 a day for every day the limit is exceeded.

Morgan did not recommend a date when the process should begin. Monroe County Attorney Lucian Proby asked Morgan to wait until the county's new jail addition opens around Aug. 8. Rogow, a professor from the Nova University Law Center in Fort Lauderdale, wanted the cap in place immediately.

"I'll let judge Hoeveler make that decision," Morgan said.

The hearing was an outgrowth of an original lawsuit dating back to 1980 in which former inmate Edward Kue McIntyre sued the county.

At the time of the original suit, he was able to get a judicial ruling of "certification of class," which had the effect of bringing into the lawsuit every subsequent inmate at the jail.

On Tuesday, the Monroe County Commission agreed to pay McIntyre's legal expenses, which total more than $53,000.

Rogow noted the jail's capacity, citing Department of Corrections statistics indicated the facility could hold 118 prisoners. At the present 224, the jail is nearly 100 percent overpopulated, he said.

Man surrenders after standoff with police

PENSACOLA (UPI) — A 26-year-old armed robbery suspect surrendered without incident Thursday morning after he barricaded himself in an apartment and kept police at bay for some four hours, police said.

The standoff began before dawn when police tried to serve some warrants on Ernest Middleton of Pensacola. Armed with a .45 caliber weapon, he ran to a nearby apartment and barricaded himself inside, police said.

A SWAT team was called in and negotiators tried to talk Middleton out of the building. Police also brought some of the suspect's relatives to the scene to convince him to surrender.

No shots were fired during the ordeal and Middleton walked out of the building and surrendered about 7 a.m. CDT. He was charged with aggravated assault and other violations.

Engineer: Cruise ship fire system was replaced, but went untested

MIAMI (UPI) — The fire-fighting system that failed aboard a cruise liner during an emergency in March has been replaced, but the company has not tested the system to see if it actually works, a crew member said Thursday.

Anker Nissen, a relief chief engineer aboard the SeaEscape luxury cruise ship, Scandinavian Star, also told surprised investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board that another fire broke out aboard the ship on Sunday.

Crew members used a handheld fire extinguisher to control the blaze that was caused by a broken lubricating pipe in the auxiliary engine room, Nissen said. He did not elaborate.

The cruise ship, which was heavily damaged March 15 by an engine room fire, resumed one-day cruise service out of the port of Miami in June, a SeaEscape spokeswoman said.

During the second day of a NTSB hearing into the March blaze, Nissen described how he and another crew member released carbon dioxide by hand from pressurized bottles in order to fight the fire.

He said a remote, pressurized system had failed to accomplish the task of releasing the chemical because of an apparent leak in the piping system.

A manually operated backup system for releasing all 36 bottles simultaneously also failed when two levers broke, Nissen said. The second crew member then opened the bottles individually by hand.

"It would have been faster, of course, if we could have released them all at once," Nissen said.

The carbon dioxide eventually helped to suppress the fire, which resulted in minor injuries to two crew members and one passenger but no fatalities.

The ship was returning to Tampa, Fla., from a two-day cruise to Mexico at the time the fire broke out about midnight.

Other crew members testified Thursday that the two triggering mechanisms had never actually been used to release a bottle of carbon dioxide.

NTSB officials suspect that the system may have been crippled by other design flaws, including a plunger that was not long enough to function properly and by a steel bar that blocked movement of some release valves.

On Thursday, Nissen said the system has been redesigned, but the company has not used it to release a bottle of carbon dioxide. Instead, calculations were performed that indicate the system is functional, he said.

Nissen was the seventh witness to testify during the hearing, which is expected to last at least one more day. Earlier Thursday, the five-member board of inquiry heard from two people who were aboard the Star at the time of the blaze.

One passenger, Leon Anders of St. Petersburg, Fla., criticized the company for what he said were communication problems among crew members and between passengers and crew.

"The crew acted great, except for the language barrier," Anders said in an interview. "They were not able to communicate verbally. If it was on a menu, you're OK then they could understand you."

Anders described the ordeal as a terrifying experience.

"There was a lot of smoke. It was covering the decks," he said.

The NTSB investigation has focused in part on whether language barriers among the crew hampered the emergency response.

Some retailers nix lottery ticket sales

MIAMI (UPI) — A small number of lottery retailers, citing slow ticket sales and excesses by gamblers, have decided to forego the trade they once thought lucrative.

"A lot of these retailers are borderline businesses, like a dress shop or something like that, and their regular clientele is not the type to buy lottery tickets," said Florida Lottery spokesman Ed George.

George said Thursday 184 lottery retailers dropped the scratch-off tickets since the games began Jan. 12.

Most said they had poor ticket sales, but a Hialeah jewelry store manager, Jose Vazquez, said he turned in his lottery license after a woman came into his store crying, saying her husband spent his paycheck on lottery tickets and neglected to buy a week's worth of groceries.

"I ordered the tickets originally, and I really had hopes of selling the tickets and attracting more business."

"But after that woman came crying into the store, telling me her husband had not bought

Louganis won't take trials for granted

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Greg Louganis, at 28 the "old man" of international diving, Thursday said he is still improving, but doesn't take for granted a spot on the 1988 Olympic team.

"A lot of people are saying, 'You're slipping a little bit.' I don't see it that way," Louganis said. "I feel like I'm improving, really. I can't be satisfied with just maintaining. I have to work on improving, because the world's not going to stand still."

Louganis has been the preeminent American diver for well over a decade. He won a 1976 Olympic silver medal, was denied by the 1980 Olympic boycott, then earned gold medals in springboard and platform diving in the 1984 Olympics. He is a five-time world champion, the winner of a record 44 national titles, and has swept in the past three Pan American Games.

He was elected to the Olympic Hall of Fame in 1985 and won the Sullivan Award in 1984 as the nation's top amateur athlete.

Louganis, however, in Annapolis for a three-day pre-Olympic trial meet starting Friday, said he is not certain of a spot on this year's Olympic team.

World Cup soccer may come to U.S.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Clive Toye, one of soccer's prime movers in North America, predicts within two weeks the 1994 World Cup will belong to the United States.

"I'm not a betting man, I'm a believing man," he said. "And I believe the United States will get the World Cup."

The United States is vying with Brazil and Morocco for the 1994 World Cup. Italy will stage the next edition of soccer's premier event in 1990. FIFA, world soccer's governing body, will announce the 1994 site from its Swiss headquarters July 4.

Toye says a number of factors favor the United States spectators, television, facilities and merchandising. He acknowledges Brazil's great soccer tradition, but points to its ailing economy and internal soccer problems.

Gene continues equine rags-to-riches story

LIVONIA, Mich. (UPI) — Gene, a one-time $150 horse who is spinning an equine rags-to-riches story, picked up his 12th victory Thursday at Ladbrokes DRC, the most of any thoroughbred in the nation, track officials said.

Damon Thayer, a DRC spokesman, said Gene has sold bloodlines, having been sired by Fappiano.

But the horse suffered serious physical problems, prompting Florida owner and breeder John Nerud to sell him for a mere $150 to Robert Patrick, who owns and trains horses in the Tampa and Detroit areas, Thayer said.

Masur derails McEnroe

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Australian Wally Masur derailed John McEnroe's Wimbledon comeback Thursday, defeating the three-time champion, 7-5, 7-6 (7-5), 6-3, in a second-round match of the $4.3 million championships.

Following the 2-hour and 26-minute contest, McEnroe said he would "quit tomorrow" if he can't improve.

McEnroe, despite his efforts at reformation, had an unpleasant incident when he argued with West German umpire Rudi Berger after receiving a warning for hitting his racket on the ground following a disputed point.

"It's that's the best I've got to give. I'll quit tomorrow," the eighth-seeded American said. "It was a disgusting effort. I just didn't get into my game. I just left. I wasn't in sync. I am lowering myself to other people's levels. I am not pushing myself to play the best I can play."

Masur, ranked 64th in the world, said McEnroe was only a shadow of the man who ruled the tennis world.

"I didn't do anything spectacular, but I was solid and that was good enough to win," Masur said. "I just know he wasn't the player of three or four years ago. His concentration was sporadic throughout. It definitely wasn't vintage John McEnroe out there."

A packed Wimbledon Center Court — scene of McEnroe's triumphs in 1981, 1983 and 1984 — saw Masur take the initiative from the start, never allowing the 29-year-old left-hander to get to the net.

McEnroe, who vowed never to return to Wimbledon after his 1985 quarterfinal exit, was subdued throughout the first half of the match but then his infamous temper, which has been held in check since McEnroe returned from a seven-month sabbatical, began to boil.

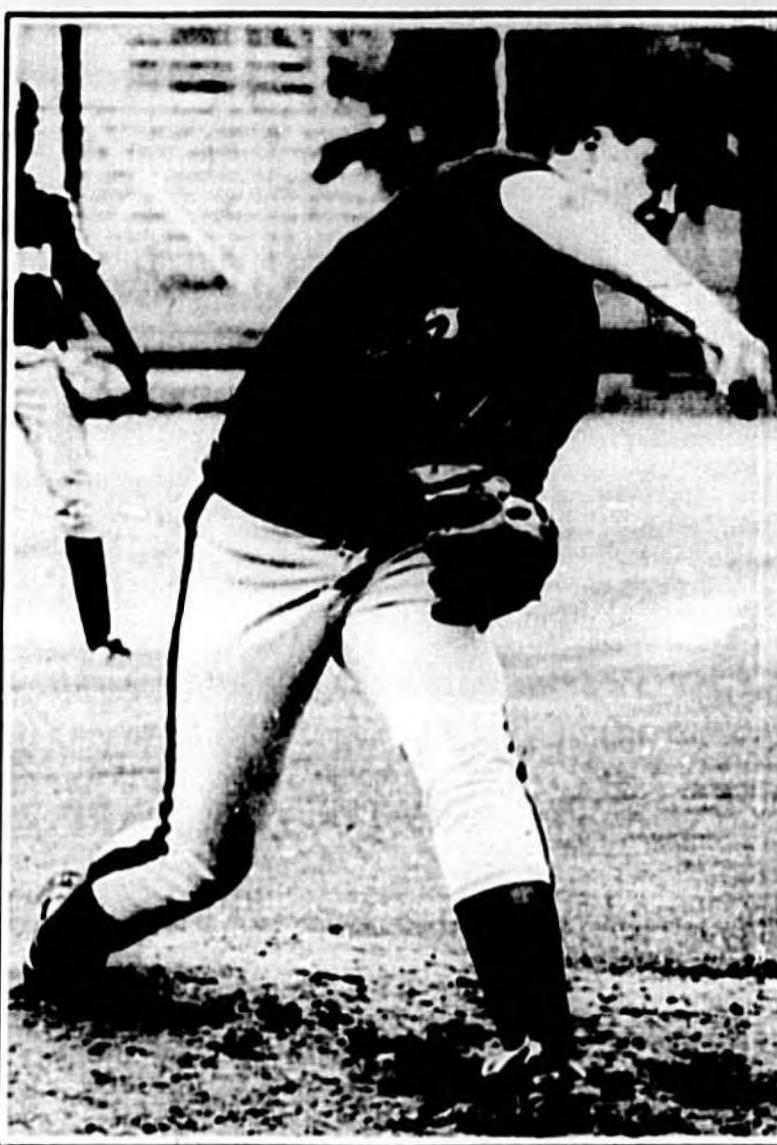

His first outburst came on the fourth point of the second-set tie-breaker when a call went against him. "How can you call that out? It was ball on the line," McEnroe complained.

In the seventh game of the third set, Masur hit a shot close to the baseline. McEnroe, who did not attempt to play the ball, slammed his racket to the ground when the linesman did not call the ball out. The disputed call came at a crucial stage, on deuce in a game in which McEnroe was pushing hard to nullify an earlier break.

This proved to be McEnroe's last chance as Masur went on to serve out for victory two games later.

McEnroe admitted he should

Tyson plans to unmask Spinks

Title match slated for Monday

By Jeff Hascen
UPI Sports Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Fast hands and slow feet will be keys Monday night when Mike Tyson exposes Michael Spinks as a heavyweight with serious deficiencies.

The hands belong to Tyson, the heavyweight with the most rapid-fire delivery of punches since Muhammad Ali unleashed such impressive barrages a dozen years ago. Sure, Tyson is powerful, but ask Trevor Berbick, Pinklon Thomas and Tyrell Biggs if the problem was speed or strength.

The feet belong to Spinks and they haven't danced a true St. Louis boogie since the right knee met a surgeon's scalpel in 1979. Now the left knee gives Spinks fits. Can an immobile Spinks stay away from Tyson?

"Against Tyson, you need to go in-and-out, side-to-side," says veteran trainer Angelo Dundee. "Spinks ain't got the wheels."

Tyson's problems — with

SPINKS VS. TYSON

What does Spinks have over Tyson?

Experience? Spinks has been a professional since 1977, but Tyson has more fights — 34-31.

Power? Tyson's punches are on their way to being legendary. As a heavyweight, Spinks has fought an aging Larry Holmes, an overmatched Steffan Tangstad and a media-created stiff named Gary Cooney. Has Spinks proved he has dynamite in his fists?

Ring savvy? Earlier in his career, Tyson was frustrated in the ring. Lately, he hasn't looked confused.

Ability to take a punch? Spinks was one blow from dropping in the 14th round of the second Holmes fight in Las Vegas. If Holmes had doubled the left hook, there would have been Spinks-Holmes III. No one has downed Tyson, or even come close.

Against Tyson, you need to go in-and-out, side-to-side," says veteran trainer Angelo Dundee. "Spinks ain't got the wheels."

Altamonte tops Oviedo, 9-6

ALTAMONTE — The Altamonte Senior League Mets dropped the first game, 13-9, Thursday night to the Oviedo Angels before coming back in the second game to take a 9-6 victory to advance to the district finals of the Top Team Tournament.

The Mets will return to action tonight at 7 at the Oviedo Complex and will be playing the winner of the Windermere-Pine Hills matchup. The first game was a continuation from Wednesday night when the two teams played three innings before the game was called at the curfew time of 11 with Oviedo holding a 9-5 lead.

In the second game the Mets' Kevin Morro came up with a nice performance as he tossed a seven-hitter with five strikeouts and three walks. Morro gave up just three runs until the top of the seventh when Oviedo came up with its only rally of the game.

Altamonte showed its power in the bottom half of the first inning to establish control early. T.J. Giulfrida led off the frame with a walk and scored on T.J. Hamilton's line drive home run that easily cleared the left center field fence of the Eastmonte Complex. Tanner Morrison followed with a towering home run into the left field lights to give the Mets a 3-0 lead.

The Angels answered with a single run in the top of the second but would come no closer after that. After an out Mario Ambrosio singled and was thrown out at second on a fielder's choice by Kelly Kohn. A balk sent Kohn to second and a single by Jason Steiner scored him. Steiner was then thrown out attempting to steal second for the final out of the inning.

Altamonte added a run in the bottom of the third, then broke the game open with five runs in the bottom of the fifth inning. Errors helped the Mets as both Giulfrida and Hamilton reached safely on Oviedo miscues. Morrison came up with a walk to load the bases as Morro helped his cause with a two-run single. Jeff Ostle followed with a run scoring single as Jay Kane walked to bring in a run before Giulfrida came back up and drew a run scoring walk to build the lead to 9-1.

The Angels scored twice in the top of the fifth, as with two outs Steiner started things off with a

Yankees fire Martin, rehire Piniella

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees spun their managerial merry-go-round again Thursday when they fired Manager Billy Martin for the fifth time and brought back Lou Piniella to the dugout.

Piniella previously managed the Yankees for two seasons and began the year in the front office. He was in uniform Thursday night for the start of a four-game series with the Cleveland Indians.

The team said in a statement the "mutual" decision was made by team owner George Steinbrenner and Bob Quinn. Quinn replaced Piniella as general manager after Piniella resigned Memorial Day to do other front-office work.

"I was not comfortable as a GM," Piniella said at a clubhouse news conference. "I didn't like the clerical detail of the general manager job or the long hours."

Martin's dismissal follows a three-game sweep by Detroit that allowed the Tigers to overtake the Yankees for first place in the American League East. The Yankees lost two of those games in extra innings and one after leading 6-1 with two outs in the ninth. The Yankees, 40-28, were 2 1/2 games out of first entering Thursday night.

"I feel terrible for Billy," Piniella said. "He worked very hard for this team and except for the injuries they might still be in first place. We have to get them all healthy and play ball and have some fun."

The Yankees also fired three of Martin's coaches — Art Fowler, Clete Boyer and George Mitterwald. They and Martin are to be reassigned within the organization.

"I found out when I walked in, they were cleaning out my locker," said Fowler. Martin's managed them in 1986 and '87 and had a 179-145 record. He said he is not an interim manager.

"I need and got the authority," Piniella said. "I'm in control of this ballclub."

It was the Yankees' 14th managerial change since Steinbrenner assumed control of the team in 1973. Piniella's previous tenure as manager was marked by arguments with Steinbrenner.

"Well, we both have learned from that," Piniella said. "We both made commitments to each other which I think we'll keep and I don't think what happened in the past will happen again."

Martin, 60, has been fired nine times in his career: five with New York and once each with Minnesota, Detroit, Texas and Oakland.

"Frankly, I feel good," said shortstop Rafael Santana, who had become Martin's scapegoat.

Martin harshly criticized Santana for dropping a routine double-play ball in Toronto April 22 in a game the Blue Jays turned into a rout.

"My differences with Martin had been straightened out," Santana said. "I don't like to see anyone lose his job. I don't want to lose mine, which no one seemed to worry about for a while."

This season alone Martin was fined twice and suspended once over dirt-kicking incidents with umpires. He also was severely cut in an incident at a topless bar in Texas.

This week he antagonized Steinbrenner by questioning the owner's decision to activate catcher Don Slaught from the disabled list.

Martin became the fifth manager fired this season, joining Cal Ripken Sr. (Baltimore).

New York triumphs in Piniella's return

United Press International

Lou II began much the same as Billy V ended: With the home team winning in its final at-bat.

Only for Lou Piniella, his return as manager of the Yankees was a success. Billy Martin ended his fifth tenure as New York manager with four straight losses — the last three to Detroit, in which the Tigers supplanted the first-place Yankees, winning each game in their last-licks.

Piniella, who managed New York in 1986-87 before moving to the front office when Martin was hired last fall, replaced the fired Martin Thursday afternoon. At night, he saw "his" Yankees come from behind to defeat the Cleveland Indians 4-3.

"This was a helluva ballgame for us to win," Piniella said. "Down three runs and win it in the ninth."

Dave Winfield raised his average to .355, banging out three hits, knocking in the Yankees' first run — his major league-leading 60th RBI of the season, and scoring twice — including the winner in the ninth.

"I come to play every day," Winfield said. "Billy Martin thought we could win and so does Piniella, we'll see what happens."

The guys came from a really rough road trip," said Winfield of New York's 2-7 trek to Boston, Cleveland and Detroit. "They weren't down or anything, and they came ready to play."

Gary Ward, apparently, came to play, after being relegated to spot duty by Martin. Ward was a regular last year under Piniella, but then again, Jack Clark was still in St. Louis.

Ward tied the score with a seventh-inning homer and won the game with a ninth-inning single.

Winfield started the winning rally with an infield single and took second on Clark's fly to left, beating a lackadaisical throw by Mel Hall.

"When Clark hit the ball, I figured, 'Why not tag up?' It's the best way to get to second."

"Mel Hall was caught flat-footed, he didn't expect him to go," Cleveland Manager Doc Edwards said. "Give Winfield credit, it was a really heads-up play."

Ward followed with soft liner, and even though drawn-in right fielder Cory Snyder threw a one-hop strike to the plate, Winfield slid under the tag of catcher Andy Allanson.

Ward hit his second home run of the year, in the seventh, to tie the score 3-3, one out after Winfield collected his second double of the game.

Cleveland took a 2-0 lead in the first. Joe Carter hit a sacrifice fly and Hall an RBI double. Hall's third-inning homer gave the Indians a 3-0 edge.

The Yankees pulled to 3-1 in the fourth when Don Mattingly singled, upping his hitting streak to 15 games, and scored on Winfield's double.

Franco's infield hit in the second gave him eight consecutive hits, but he made out his next at-bat.

Dave Righetti, 2-0, won his first game since April 20 after Rick Rhoden pitched eight innings. Indians reliever Jon Pertman, 0-1, worked 2 1/3 innings in relief of Scott Bailes.

Elsewhere in the American League, Toronto downed Baltimore 5-2.

In the National League, St. Louis blanked Philadelphia 2-0. Pittsburgh bested Montreal 6-4 and Chicago defeated New York 4-1.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 2

At Toronto, Tony Fernandez drove in two runs with a triple and a double to help Jim Clancy, 4-9. Baltimore's first two batters of the game — Ken Gerhart and Fred Lynn — each homered. Dave Wells earned his fourth save. Jay Tibbs, 2-4, lost.

Cardinals 2, Phillies 0

At St. Louis, John Tudor threw a two-hitter, retired 16 straight Philadelphia batters and Lou Piniella was back in pinstripes as the New York Yankees' manager Thursday night. The Yanks gave Piniella a victory to begin his second stint at the helm. Piniella took over for Billy Martin, who was fired for the fifth time by owner George Steinbrenner.

faced only one more than the minimum in improving to 4-2 and lowering his major league-leading ERA to 1.08. Willie McGee had two steals and an RBI and Vince Coleman added three steals.

Pirates 6, Expos 4

At Montreal, Sid Bream knocked in four runs with a homer and a double to help Pittsburgh. The Pirates entered the game scoreless in its 20 previous innings and stopped Montreal's three-game winning streak. Jeff Robinson, 4-2, got the win; Jim Gott his eighth save and Jeff Garrett, 5-2, the loss.

Cubs 4, Mets 1

At Chicago, Greg Maddux, 13-3, scattered seven hits to become the majors' first 13-game winner. Andre Dawson hit a solo homer and Dave Martinez a two-run shot off Sid Fernandez, 3-6.

Tale of two injured outfielders

By RICHARD L. BROOKS
UPI Sports Writer

Gary Pettis of the Detroit Tigers helps his team by playing. Rickey Henderson of the New York Yankees, hurts his club by sitting out.

Pettis went 0 for 10 while Detroit was sweeping a three-game series from New York to take first place from the Yankees.

Henderson sat out the first two games of the series with a bad right ankle. Then in the third game he surprised Manager Billy Martin by announcing just before game time he could start.

His performance Wednesday night was a marvel of self-indulgence. He singled and scored a run his first time up, hit a solo home run his second turn at bat, then batted two more times before being taken out by Martin due to a leg cramp. New York lost, 3-2, in 10 innings.

The way he went out was a beauty, too. He fouled a pitch off a toe on his left foot, which caused a cramp in the leg. Henderson spent five full minutes immobile or walking gingerly around before completing his strikeout. Martin took him out of the game when he got back to the dugout.

Henderson was not at full speed even before the leg cramp, that was visible. But if he could get two hits and score twice playing at three-quarter speed, might he not have made a difference in the first two games operating at half-speed?

It's not like Detroit blew New York out. The Tigers won the first in the bottom of the 10th on a solo home run by Tom Brookens and won the second in the bottom of the ninth on a two-out, two-strike grand slam by Alan Trammell.

Before we go further, let's get one thing straight. This is not a slam at Henderson's manhood. It's macho to play with pain and there is no intent here to portray Henderson, a highly skilled and intelligent individual, as a wimp.

One person can never know another person's pain. If someone says they are hurting, we must believe them. Clearly, Henderson has a lower pain threshold than most athletes.

But by accepting roughly $2 million a year to play baseball, Henderson also accepts other responsibilities. To management, to his teammates and to the fans. One of those responsibilities is to play when he can.

ago. He cannot swing effectively.

Martin picked up on that right away, when Detroit manager Sparky Anderson ordered Pettis to bunt with two strikes on him, two out and two runners on base his first time up in the series. After that, Martin had his third baseman and his first baseman playing so close to Pettis the Detroit outfielder could count the lines on their faces.

Pettis underscored his inability to swing with authority by striking out eight straight times. The record, if you're interested, is 12 and it's held by that renowned slugger, Sandy Koufax.

Anderson talked to Pettis before the New York series. He told him he didn't care if Pettis did nothing offensively, but he needed him in the lineup for his defense.

Pettis, although aware he would look bad at the plate and the fans would boo him, agreed to play.

"As long as my teammates know what's going on and understand, it's okay," Pettis said.

Henderson's importance to the Yankees is a matter of record. He scores runs and he drives them in. Anderson is absolutely delighted when he finds out Henderson isn't going to be in the lineup against his Tigers.

walk. Brian Hart then drew a pinch hit walk with Ervin Alexander following with a walk to load the bases. Mayhood then ripped a double to left field to bring in both Steiner and Hart.

The Angels came up with their final three runs in the top of the seventh but proved to be too little, too late. Kohn opened the inning with a connecting on a double before Steiner jumped on a fast ball and sent it over the center field fence. After an out Alexander singled, after the second out Tyson Crist walked followed by a double by Bubba Fore to score Alexander. Morris then got a ground out to get out of the game with the Mets advancing into tonight's final.

In the first game Thursday night, the Angels managed to hold their four-run lead over the final four innings and force the second game. Oviedo scored four runs in the top of the fourth inning to complete its scoring for the game and build an eight-run lead.

Ambrosio opened the top of the fourth with a single but was thrown out at second when Mike Williams hit into a fielder's choice. After the second out Hart walked before Alexander followed with a walk to load the bases. B.J. Mayhood then stroked a single to score two runs followed by a single by Crist to score two more runs. Crist was thrown out trying for second base but not until the Angels had built a 13-5 bulge.

The Mets were held scoreless in the fourth but scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth to narrow the lead to 13-9 to pressure the Angels. Giuffrida and Morrison each had two run singles in the inning to pace the attack.

Fore, pitching for the Angels, was able to get out of the inning with any further damage and put Altamonte down in the final two innings to hang on for the win. Fore finished the game with 10 strike outs while walking nine. Fore finished with three strike outs and two walks in the final four innings and kept the Mets shut down enough to force the second game.

MAJORS AT APOPKA

The Altamonte Athletics will compete in the Top Team Tournament Major Division district playoff round starting tonight. The Athletics will take on Oviedo at 7 p.m. at the Apopka Little League Complex.

The A's advanced to the district playoffs with a 10-0 rout of Apopka in which Todd Herrbach pitched a no-hitter. Oviedo is considered one of the strongest teams in the district and manager George Pahakis expects a good game tonight.

Altamonte's Daniel Hench lays down a sacrifice bunt in Thursday's Top Team Tournament game vs. the Oviedo Angels. Altamonte dropped the first game of the doubleheader, but rallied to win the second and advances to the district finals which begin tonight at Oviedo.

Heat opts for draft as best way to build to two rounds after this year.

Most of the players selected were under 20. The exceptions are Kramer, Williams, Hastings, Sundvold and Stroeder, who was the last player selected in the draft. Henry and Turner are free agents, but they have reached an agreement with the Heat to report to summer camp.

Part owner Billy Cunningham and personnel director Stu Inman said they expect Hastings, 28, and Sundvold, 26, to provide leadership on what will be a young, inexperienced team. Both players were picked for their basketball skills as well as for what Heat officials called their outstanding character.

Cunningham also said it was possible Miami could make more deals before Tuesday's college draft. Because the Heat collected so many additional draft picks, Inman said the team was very pleased with its first player-related moves in the NBA.

"We have met basically all of the goals we set for ourselves," said Inman, who was with the Portland Trail Blazers when they were formed.

The Heat still has not named a coach, and will not do so until after the college draft, Cunningham said. He also said he has not reached a decision whether to give up his job as a commentator with CBS and stay with the team.

Cunningham, who has a contract with CBS stating he cannot be affiliated with the Heat and keep his announcing job, said he will decide what he wants to do after the draft.

HORNETS SATISFIED

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — The Charlotte Hornets pronounced themselves more than satisfied Thursday after an expansion draft brought five former NBA first-round draft choices and a trade for a sixth, former all-star Kelly Tripucka.

"We're excited about this beginning," said Carl Scheer, the team's vice president and general manager. "(Owner) George Shinn has made a statement that we're serious. We want to be as competitive as quickly as possible."

Tripucka came from Utah for Mike Brown, whom the Hornets chose from Chicago with the 8th pick of the expansion draft.

Help on way for Clippers?

BASKETBALL

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Once a 20th this year, the Los Angeles Clippers came so close to the NBA title — about eight miles.

That's approximately the distance from the Sports Arena to the Forum, where the cross-town Lakers beat the Detroit Pistons for the league crown. But in terms of talent, the Clippers are nowhere near the neighboring two-time champions.

Los Angeles, though feels help is on the way. By winning last month's NBA Lottery, it owns the No. 1 pick in Tuesday's NBA Draft, which will be used to select 6-foot-10 forward Danny Manning of NCAA champion Kansas. And barring a late trade, the Clippers possess the sixth overall selection as well.

Manning, the 1988 College Player of the Year who is expected to earn around $3 million as a rookie, averaged 24.8 points and 9 rebounds his senior season. He will probably have gone for Mats' shot, despite knowing it was out.

"I should have hit that ball anyway," he said. "Me expecting to get a good call is absurd. That's stupid, but you do dumb things on a court and that was one of them."

McEnroe's second-round loss was his earliest exit at Wimbledon since 1978 when he was eliminated by Erik Van Dillen. Following 1978, he went on to reach the final in five of seven years, including five straight times from 1980 to 1984.

Sweden's Mats Wilander, winner of this year's first two Grand Slam events, and compatriot Stefan Edberg, the second and third seeds, advanced to the third round.

Fifth-seeded American Jimmy Connors, at 35 the oldest man in the tournament, downed 18-year-old Australian Jason Stoltenberg, 7-6(7-1), 6-3, 6-3.

In women's action Thursday, second-seeded Martina Navratilova, champion the past six years, ousted fellow American Elly Hakami, 6-2, 6-1.

Fifth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina and sixth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia each won in straight sets.

Sleep problems need diagnosis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTTL: After only two hours' sleep, I awake with a swollen mouth, tongue, lips and cheeks, clicking in my ears, a wicked headache, pain and double vision. My doctor doesn't believe me because he doesn't see it. He says he can't put me in the hospital just to watch me sleep. What do you think?

DEAR READER: I think that the doctor should put you in the hospital to observe your sleep pattern.

Your complaints are unusual and deserve confirmation. The doctor doesn't hospitalize you because he isn't interested in these complaints. It's easier to say he doesn't believe you. This beats taking you home to observe you himself or arranging for another health professional, such as a registered nurse, to monitor you in your own home.

Ask for a referral to another doctor for a second opinion that will, I hope, be more helpful than disbelief — or find another doctor on your own. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Choosing a Physician." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTTL: I had genital warts during pregnancy. My daughter contracted papillomas because of the warts. I really don't understand why the doctor didn't do a Caesarian, knowing the connection between the two diseases.

DEAR READER: I don't know why either, except that he may not have believed your daughter would develop a problem from your warts. In addition, Caesarian section carries some risk, so he was probably exercising caution. Why not ask your doctor directly?

DEAR DR. GOTTL: For 10 years I have been disabled by a strange neuromuscular disease undiagnosed by dozens of specialists. If I use any of my voluntary muscles too much, they become painful and useless for two weeks. I can only type 80 words a day or perform 15 minutes of physical work. I'm only 43. Have you ever heard of something like this?

DEAR READER: Yours is an unusual story. Because you seem to be suffering from a muscle disorder, I think that you should have a biopsy, during which a small portion of a muscle is removed and examined under a microscope. This test may provide a diagnosis. In addition, some metabolic diseases (such as hypothyroidism) and autoimmune disorders (such as lupus erythematosus) can affect muscle function.

I cannot possibly second-guess

Peter H.
Gott, M.D.

the platoon of specialists you have seen. However, I think that your most appropriate next step is to request referral to the diagnostic clinic of a university hospital. In such a setting, doctors are trained and equipped to diagnose unusual ailments.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Drew Cannell of Canada and Panama is not afraid to bid. In today's deal, he got into the bidding early. When his partner showed considerable playing strength with a club bid, Drew introduced his second suit. Although the opponents could not come close to making four spades, it was better to play five diamonds doubled if it could be made. That required a bit of luck, as well as declarer ingenuity.

East won the heart ace and returned the queen of hearts. Declarer played the king. West ruffed and led a spade. Declarer ruffed, drew two rounds of trumps and led the queen of clubs. When that held, he continued with the jack, happily noting the fall of East's 10. But there was more work. Declarer ruffed a heart, ruffed a spade from dummy and led his last heart. If you were West, what would you do as a card?

If West threw a spade, declarer would ruff a spade, and the jack in dummy would become a winner. If West let go a club, declarer would cash dummy's club ace before ruffing a spade to his hand so he could cash the good nine of clubs. Either way declarer Cannell had 11 tricks and his doubled contract.

What The Day Will Bring...

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
JUNE 28, 1988

The aspects indicate that you may form an extremely important alliance in the year ahead. It will produce the types of mutual benefits that a good partnership arrangement should.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have been a bit neglectful lately, try to be more attentive to your loved one today. Plan something special for just the two of you. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Get your year ahead predictions by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be ready and available if a family member is in need of your assistance today. You'll feel good about helping those with whom you have strong, emotional bonds.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Continue to give top priority today to a secret ambition that you have been nurturing. You're on the right track and any step you take brings you closer to fulfillment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Something subtle may develop today that will have the potential to strengthen your financial position. It will be triggered by someone who has your interest at heart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Your natural charm and enchantment that others find so appealing will be used constructively today. You'll be able to get what you want without appearing aggressive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) The people who will be the most helpful to you today will be those with compassionate natures.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others will be looking to you for leadership today in your group involvements. It's a sound choice because you're definitely the person who should be up front.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Continue to give top priority to your natural charm and enchantment that others find so appealing. You're on the right track and any step you take brings you closer to fulfillment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Your greatest asset today is your ability to present things in a pleasant manner. Criticisms will sound like compliments because your critique will be constructive and kind.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A matter that another has mismanaged may be lashed to your broad shoulders today. Fortunately, you will be able to sort things out quickly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not discount your mate's views or suggestions today regarding a critical issue that is important to both. He/she may see the picture more clearly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Procedures can be modified and improved upon today regarding a task which you have found difficult to perform. The innovations you make will lighten the load considerably.

GARDENING

Collards grow easily in Florida

A fresh, steaming pot of collards is a delight few "true" Southerners can resist. It is as much a part of traditional Southern cooking as black-eyed peas and cornbread. That is why the collard, a green leafy vegetable with nutritious cabbage-like leaves, is a common sight in home gardens throughout Florida and the South.

The edible portions of the collard plant are the dark, green leaves, sprouting in a circular cluster around an upright, stocky main stem. These long stemmed leaves closely resemble cabbage leaves, but they are oval in shape.

The collard is a biennial, which means it sends up a flower stalk in the second season of its growth. In Florida, the collard thrives in a wide range of growing conditions and can be easily grown throughout most of the year.

While some of the best quality collards are those planted in the fall and matured during light frost periods of early winter, the best yields result from early spring plantings.

The standard and old-time favorite collard variety is "Georgia," also known as "Southern." There are several strains of this variety and collectively they are known as the "Georgia strains."

"Georgia" is characterized by its smooth leaves and whitish stems. The main stem of the plant grows to be approximately three feet. Three other varieties of collards recommended for Florida are "Vates," which has waxy leaves; "Morris Heading" and "Louisiana Sweet."

Collards can be seeded directly in the garden, but better results will be obtained by using transplants. Rows should be spaced 24 to 36 inches apart with plants 10 to 18 inches apart.

For direct seeding, use one-fourth ounce of seed for every 100 feet of row. When the collards begin to sprout, thin out the rows, leaving properly spaced plants for harvest. The young plants taken from the garden during this thinning can be cooked whole. Transplants may be purchased at local garden centers or started from seeds in flats, containers or outdoor seed beds.

Collards grow well in fertile soils, especially those with a high nitrogen content. Liberal amounts of compost or manure worked into rows two or three weeks before planting will greatly benefit the crop. If you prefer an inorganic fertilizer, use 2 to 5 pounds of a 6-6-6 or similar fertilizer per 100 square feet. Broadcast half the fertilizer over the rows and spread the rest in furrows 3 to 4 inches away from the plants.

Several applications of fertilizer during the growing season also will help your collards. Use a 6-6-6 or similar fertilizer at one pound per 100 square feet as a side-dressing about once per month during the growing season.

The most troublesome pest a gardener is likely to encounter when growing collards is the cabbage looper. The cabbage looper will chew holes in the collard leaves if not checked, but can be controlled biologically with weekly sprayings of Bacillus thuringiensis (BT), commonly found in the garden centers as Dipel or Thuricide. This spray also will control other pesty caterpillars, like the imported cabbage worm. Sevin insecticide could be used as well.

Downy mildew, alternaria leaf spot and other leaf diseases that may occur can be controlled by using zineb or maneb fungicides. Soil-borne diseases like damping off and nematode problems are best controlled by soil fumigation prior to planting.

Collard greens will usually be ready for harvest approximately 6 to 8 weeks after planting. One method to harvest the greens is to cut and remove entire plants as needed. Another method is to cut away two-thirds of the plant at a time. After 10 days or so, you will have enough new growth to cut again. This pattern can be repeated as many as six times, extending your harvest period. The popular way to harvest the greens is to pull off the lower leaves of the plant as they become desirable for eating. The young tops are left for later harvests.

Freshly harvested collard greens should be washed and then immediately cooled. The greens should be stored in the refrigerator until they are ready to be cooked.

If you are not harvesting any collards now, consider planting them in your fall garden for a taste of the South.

DEAR ABBY

Readers disagree about Grandma's wayward birthday check

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the grandmother who has always sent her adult grandchildren a $50 check for their birthdays. It seems that she made a mistake and sent Todd a check for $16 made out to the telephone company. Todd returned the errant check, but Grandma never replaced it, so Todd's father (Grandma's son) reminded her that Todd missed his usual $50 birthday check, but Grandma ignored the reminder. Then Todd's mother asked you if she and her husband should reimburse Todd for the $50 and let Grandma know about it.

You told them that if they chose to reimburse Todd for the botched birthday gift, to do it quietly, but to make no mention of it to Grandma because if she decided to forget it—so be it.

Abby, you missed the entire point. I think Todd's father should write to his mother and politely ask her to correct her mistake. Whatever happens after that is trivial. The important thing is that Todd will know that his father will go to bat for him in such matters.

JOHN MERKLE,
KNOXVILLE, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: That letter about Todd and the $50 birthday check he failed to receive from his grandmother is the most disgusting example of greed you have ever printed! It really struck a raw nerve with me because it demonstrates a common phenomenon which is all around us: the greed of adult children and grandchildren vis-a-vis their grandparents and parents.

Todd's mother should die of shame before writing to an advice columnist for help in how to twist Grandmother's arm to extort a $50 birthday check for a presumably able-bodied adult son who should be out there earning his own money. Todd's mother doesn't mention that she or her adult children ever sent $50 birthday checks to Grandma. Want to bet they don't? Yet, they feel that for as long as Grandma lives, she should send her grandchildren money for their birthdays—and probably all the other gift-giving occasions as well. And what do they give Grandma? Dollies? A scarf? A box of cheap bath powder?

And what if Grandma decides that now that the grandchildren are adults, she'll send them cards for their birthdays? Would they sue her in small claims court for their $50 checks? Or would they punish her by not visiting her anymore?

Abby, you would be shocked by the number of children and grandchildren who use these tactics to keep the presents coming. Somehow they make it clear to the grandparents that they have to keep paying their dues if they expect to be loved, called and visited.

I hope Grandma reads your column and does what she should have done when the grandchildren turned 18: Send them all birthday cards, and buy herself a nice treat instead. Sign me.

Judge suggests North trial up to Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal judge in the Iran-Contra case, aggravated by the sticky issue of classified data, is suggesting it may be up to President Reagan to decide whether Oliver North and the other defendants stand trial.

At a pre-trial hearing to discuss the status of the case, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell warned Thursday that if the issue is not resolved soon at top levels of the administration, "there's not going to be a trial."

Gesell said he had hoped to set a trial date a week from today for North, the fired White House aide and central figure in the arms-and-aid conspiracy case pursued by independent prosecutor Lawrence Walsh. But remaining issues over defense access to classified documents are keeping the case from moving along.

Thus far, a government interagency group has gathered thousands of secret documents for review before release to the defense but tens of thousands more remain. Under the Classified Information Procedures Act, which governs the use of classified documents in criminal cases, the attorney general has the final decision on which secret documents can be used in open court.

"I'm just wondering whether we don't need a clear decision from the administration itself whether they want to try this case or whether they don't want to try this case," said Gesell, who presided over several key aspects of the Watergate scandal 15 years ago.

Earlier, the judge warned, "I want this case to move, focusing on a trial — and if we can't get a trial going soon, there's not going to be a trial."

Walsh's team reported Thursday that the administration review group is still perusing about 150,000 documents. The defense contends those documents — most from the CIA and Justice Department — might be relevant to its case.

Walsh already has submitted 40,000 core documents but characterized the remaining documents as marginal.

Gesell indicated he fears both sides will go through the arduous process of reviewing the secret documents only to have the Justice Department decide they are too sensitive to be revealed publicly at trial.

The judge suggested Walsh and a representative of Attorney General Edwin Meese confer and confront the classified documents issue. He also expressed concern about ensuring North's constitutional right to a speedy trial.

North, the retired Marine lieutenant colonel, has been designated the first of three central defendants to be tried on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government and obstruction of justice.

The charges are the same as those handed down March 16 against his former boss John Poindexter, the retired Navy rear admiral ousted as White House national security adviser because of his role in the president's worst crisis.

Richard Secord, a retired Air Force major general and Iranian-born arms dealer Albert Hakim, Secord's business partner, also were indicted on conspiracy charges for their role as North's private operatives in the sale of U.S. arms to Iran and diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Walsh wanted to try all four men together on the 23-count indictment, but Gesell ordered last month that they stand trial separately to help secure the protection they gained from Congress regarding public testimony last summer.

In an attempt to speed the case, Gesell Thursday rescheduled a closed hearing with North and his attorneys from July 14 to July 6 to discuss the classified documents they expect to introduce in open court during trial.

Walsh had faced a July 1 deadline to submit to the defense the remaining classified documents he will use, but he requested an extension until July 31, citing the interagency group's efforts to remove sensitive parts of the data.

Writers reject contract

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A vote by screen writers to continue a 4-month strike against producers could further delay the fall TV schedule and draw greater numbers of viewers away from major networks, entertainment executives said.

Writers Guild of America members voted overwhelmingly to reject a "final" contract offer from film and television producers and continue the walkout that has already cost the entertainment industry millions of dollars, officials said Thursday.

Of the 3,722 members of the Writers Guild of America who voted in Los Angeles and New York Wednesday night, 2,789, or 74.9 percent, opposed the producers' latest offer, said WGA spokeswoman Cheryl Rhoden. A total of 933 union members, or 25.1 percent, voted in favor of the proposal.

Herb Steinberg, a spokesman for the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers, said no further talks would be held and that "the only way we will return to negotiate is if the writers come with pen in hand ready to sign the contract we've already offered."

News of the contract rejection spread quickly through Hollywood with many in the industry predicting work stoppages of weeks or months.

Elections office to open Saturdays

SANFORD — The county elections office will begin opening on Saturdays beginning July 9 to give citizens who work during the week an opportunity to register within the 30-day deadline before the Sept. 6 primary election.

The office of the supervisor of elections in the Seminole County Services Building at 1101 E. First St., Sanford, is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Branch offices at Altamonte Park Plaza, 995 N. State Road 434, Suite 503, Altamonte Springs, and Wishing Plaza, 859 Seminole Blvd., Suite 177, Casselberry, are open 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 2:30 p.m. All offices will be open on Saturdays, July 9, 16, 23 and 30, and Aug. 6.

To register to vote in Seminole County residents must be at least 18 years old, a citizen of the United States and have proof of residence (driver's license, utility bill or anything else with their address). The first primary will be held Sept. 6; the second primary on Oct. 4, and the general election on Nov. 8. All registration books close 30 days prior to an election. Persons may register during that time, but will not be allowed to vote until the following election.

For convenience of voters, special times for registration will also be at the following times and locations:

Market active, stocks up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher today in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 3.91 Thursday, was up 7.47 to 2155.70 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 416-319 among the 1,177 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 12,000,000 shares.

Stocks suffered modest losses Thursday in active trading as cautious investors stepped aside to ponder the market's next move and others decided to take profits in wake of its sharp two-day advance.

Despite the modest pullback, Miller said, "the market did manage to hold its own, which must be considered a positive," especially in light of the pressures to take profits at these levels.

Dollar opens higher; gold, silver lower

By United Press International

The dollar was higher today in moderate trading on most major foreign currency markets. Gold and silver fell.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar continued to climb against the Japanese yen in brisk trading, closing out the week at 129.70 yen, up 1.15 from 128.55 yen on Thursday.

Friday's close was the dollar's highest rate in Japan since March 4, when the dollar closed at 129.22 yen.

Currency dealers in Japan said the dollar made an upturn following local news reports that the United States would tolerate the dollar's rise to the 130-yen level.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.794 West German marks, up slightly from Thursday's close of 1.7918.

The dollar opened the day in Zurich at 1.4885 Swiss francs, up from 1.4775, and was unchanged at the opening in Amsterdam at 2.0235 Dutch guilders.

The dollar started the day in Brussels at 37.88 Belgian francs, up from 37.64, and was 1.33150 lire in Milan, up from 1.330.60.

In London, the pound sterling slipped to $1.7465, down from $1.7605 on Thursday.

But the dollar dipped slightly in Paris to 6.0405 French francs, down from 6.041.

In early New York trading, the dollar was sharply higher against key foreign currencies in brisk trading.

On the bullion markets, gold slipped $2 an ounce in Zurich to $446, and dipped $2.75 in London to $446.50.

Porcelain children are cheering, cherished

Story and photos
By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

They're so well behaved, perhaps that's why they're known as "the world's most beloved children." But as cheering and cherished as the rosy-cheeked, porcelain children known as "Hummels" are, they are simply figurines, not the real thing.

The attraction of these cherubic, German-made figurines has endured since they were developed in 1935. Although the West German nun, Sister Maria Innocentia, whose sketches of her childhood memories and the children she knew developed into the creations known as Hummels, never gave birth, she has populated the world with children based on her original concept.

Both men and women are drawn to these collectibles, and pursuing them often is a "family" hobby.

American GIs, stationed in Europe, who brought gifts of Hummels home, helped to popularize the them in the U.S., where their appeal is enduring. Americans' attraction to these figures outstrips that in their land of origin, according to Hummel collector Karoline Finkeldey. Mrs. Finkeldey, and her husband Paul said their personal interest in Hummels had grown so over the years, that they have become dealers. They sell Hummels in a flea market south of Sanford. Mrs. Finkeldey said her mother introduced her to Hummels.

Charles and Patsy Hudnall, who got hooked on Hummels when he was stationed in Germany in the U.S. Air Force in the 1960s, spent time during a recent vacation to Germany pursuing Hummels. However, as soon as they returned home they visited the Finkeldeys' shop to find better deals on Hummels than were available in Germany. The devalued U.S. dollar, and other factors, Hudnall said, make the figures about one-third more costly overseas.

"I didn't know what they were until she bought a couple," Mr. Hudnall said, of the figurines, which can range in price from $35 up to $16,000 for a life-size Hummel available at Walt Disney World.

Mrs. Hudnall said she has an aunt who has a large collection of Hummels, and who has been a collector for years. But, she and her husband didn't fall for Hummels until they were exposed to them in Germany. They own about 10 of the figures, which are displayed in their home.

They explain the attraction by saying the Hummels have sweet faces and are made with fine detail. There have been forgeries and copies of Hummels made, but the Hudnalls said they are easy to pick out because of poor workmanship.

Finkeldey added that a Hummel that has been broken and repaired is worthless, no matter what its original value might have been.

Although the value of Hummels can skyrocket, with some early versions selling for $20,000 or more, the Finkeldeys and the Hudnalls said, they don't buy Hummels as an investment. "They do seem to go up in value year after year, but you don't think about that," Finkeldey said.

"You get so attached to them," Mrs. Finkeldey said. "I don't know what it is. We have one lady who buys them who says they remind her of her childhood." Many buyers also buy Hummels because they are theme related. Although she's seen most any and all Hummel designs, Mrs. Finkeldey said, she can't pass a Hummel shop without checking out the figures.

The most popular Hummel, she said, are two boy and girl figures, shaded by umbrellas. These are about twice the size of more of the standard figures, which are about 3 inches to 4 inches tall.

Mr. Hudnall said he's especially fond of the "Chimney Sweep," because when he was stationed in Germany, chimney sweeps were a familiar sight. He and his wife were also shopping for a "Girl in a Chapel" Hummel.

Linda Rento, of Deltona, said that when she returned from a stay in Germany several years ago she brought home a Hummel Chimney Sweep "for good luck." But, she said, she didn't get hooked on Hummels as many do. Rento said Hummels are a bit too cute for her taste.

There are about half a dozen "generations" of Hummels, each with a different marking on the bottom by the maker, Goebel, of W. Germany. The marks indicate the age of the figures, which Mrs. Finkeldey said, show slight differences in designs of specific pieces from one Hummel generation to the next.

Once a design is introduced the molds are broken and slight changes are made when that design is produced again.

Hummels, which include not only figurines, but bells, plates, wall hangings and other objects featuring these easily recognizable children, all bear the marking of "M.I. Hummel" on the base.

The name is the original name of the nun who developed the design and through her convent licensed Goebel to begin production of Hummels in 1935. She died in 1946, but her "children" live on.

Bill Cosby, the warm and gentle comedian

By Ken Franchling
UPI Feature Writer

MANSFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — For Bill Cosby, turning 50 felt like a trip to the Fun House when he was a kid, playing games with both mind and body.

The king of TV situation comedy rolls his eyes and breaks into an elastic grin as he talks about the way things are breaking down.

He grabs two thick handfuls of waistline that didn't used to reside around his middle.

"I know it's fat," he says, "because when I pinch it, it doesn't hurt."

On the stand-up comedy circuit, where his craft was honed long before television discovered him, Cosby now examines the landscape of life from the perspective of a mule

Emma Bonbeck.

This night before a near-sellout crowd at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts, Cosby is dressed in black sweatpants, an emerald windbreaker over a Hampden University sweatshirt, a baseball hat and sneakers. A chair and microphone are his only props on the orchestra-size stage.

He snaps the elastic waistband on his baggy pants.

"My waist is 38," Cosby says. "My 'ego' pants at home are 34 — and I promised them I'd be back."

He looks down, then mentions how he can only see the tips of his feet in the shower. ("At least I hope they're mine.")

Many in the audience nod in agreement, nudging their companions and laughing until it brings tears.

But it isn't just the body that plays tricks on us. Cosby spends 10 minutes of his two-hour schtick showing, and telling, what happens when the mind goes sour. Forgetting what you went into another room to get. Dialing the phone and as it rings, forgetting whom you're calling.

"I don't know why my brain does this to me, because I was good to my brain when I was young," Cosby said. "I took care of it."

Everyday life has always been fertile ground for Cosby's universal truths.

He offered a localized zinger on driving in Boston, a place he says that many outsiders believe is where the Pilgrims live.

"You don't expect Boston people to be going sideways and cursing at each other," Cosby says. "Once you get to downtown Boston you might as well sell your car. Any turn you make is wrong."

On stage, he is the guy next door. Not America's favorite TV dad. Not the face in the prime-time commercials. Not the shrewd businessman. Not one of the richest performers alive.

In his early comedy days, Cosby racked up five Grammy awards for his comedy albums. He talked of growing up. The stories of his younger brother Russell, of Fat Albert. The imagined conversation in which God tells a skeptical Noah to build an ark.

It's a family affair

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Tommy Chong makes his solo screen debut, minus his former comedy partner Cheech Marin, in "Far Out Man," with his family making up the rest of the cast.

Chong, who is also writing and directing the CineTel Films movie, co-stars with his wife, Shelby Fiddis, his daughters, Robbi Chong and Rae Dawn Chong, and sons Paris, 13, and Gibraum, 7. Also in the cast is Rae Dawn's beau, C. Thomas Howell.

"Far Out Man!" is about an aging hippie from the 1960s who stumbles on his long-lost family.

Santana, Shorter team up for tour

By Ken Franchling
UPI Jazz Writer

Rock guitarist Carlos Santana's musical heroes are jazz greats Miles Davis, Wayne Shorter and Herbie Hancock, whom he sees as constant reminders that creativity means always moving ahead, never to stagnate.

In what figures to be a historic tour, Santana has hit the road with one of those greats. He and Shorter, the veteran jazz saxophonist, are off a five-week jazz festival tour taking them to nine U.S. cities followed by 18 more in Europe.

Both musicians defy categorization. The co-leaders promise the same of the music that will filter through their band in concerts stretching from the Mellon Jazz Festival in Pittsburgh on June 24 to their finale July 31 in Athens, Greece.

The band includes Patrick Rushen on piano and Chester Thompson, a longtime Santana colleague, on keyboards; bassist Alphonso Johnson; drummer Ndugu Chandler and percussionist Armando Peraza.

"There is a spirit to our sound," Santana said during a break from rehearsals last week in San Francisco. "It has that 12 o'clock noon street festival rejoining, and that 12 o'clock midnight party atmosphere. I like people to put aside their worries, their tool, and just enjoy. I love all that."

Both men said the repertoire will evolve from show to show, shifting as the mood and inspirations dictate.

Shorter has written several new songs. Santana is throwing in some new melodic ideas, and they're pulling from a diverse mix of composers — from "Las Vegas Tango" by jazz composer Gil Evans to Jimi Hendrix and reggae master Bob Marley.

"We're pulling from all kinds of elements. We're leaving a lot of room so we can just call things. When it flows through you spontaneously, it makes the best kind of music anyway," Santana said. "The spirits are knocking, and we're going to be receivers and project. Our imaginations are working overtime."

Santana said the project in some respects is a "throwback to the 1960s, when musicians could just get together regardless of label. The word 'fusion' wasn't created yet. We need to bring that back."

These two former street kids have similar backgrounds.

Santana, a major rock figure for 20 years, is the Mexican-born son of a mariachi musician. He grew up in Tijuana and San Francisco, and drew both the hard blues and Latin music into his sound.

Shorter grew up in Newark, N.J., then cut his jazz teeth with Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers beginning in 1959. Five years later, Miles Davis hired him for his pioneering fusion band that included Herbie Hancock and Tony Williams. Shorter stayed for six years and 13 albums, leaving in 1971 to form the fusion band Weather Report with keyboard ace Joe Zawinul.

Shorter says the music this new band will be making — to be recorded live at some point on the tour — may be unpredictable. That, for him, is part of the excitement.

"Carlos will just shoot out some statements and songs. We've got to be receptive to capture it, and work together to present it for the world," Shorter said.

"We're sticking our necks out. It takes a lot of guts. You may hear something familiar played in a fresh and welcoming way, or something unfamiliar in the same way — and be glad of it."

"This kind of musical effort will bring a lot of the same kind of procedure children use when they go outside and play — they create a whole new thing and won't go home for dinner, and can't wait to continue it the next day."

"It feeds instincts," Shorter said. "When we were kids, we did something different on the same vacant lot each day. That was the fun of it."

Shorter said he feels the same kind of "mystical" rapport with Santana as he did in the '60s with Davis and Hancock, and later with Chick Corea.

"It is something you can't put your finger on," Shorter said.

Santana, veteran of the consciousness-raising Woodstock Festival, gave it a stab. "Music is the ultimate communicator," he said. "The universal language."

The U.S. itinerary for the Santana-Shorter tour is the Mellon Jazz Festival, Pittsburgh, June 24; the Great Woods Jazz and Blues Festival, Mansfield, Mass., June 25; the Mellon Jazz Festival, Philadelphia, June 26; Meadowbrook Jazz special event, Detroit, June 27; Riverside Theater, Milwaukee, June 28; JVC Jazz Festival, Avery Fisher Hall, New York, June 30; Nautica, Cleveland, Ohio, July 1; Newport Jazz at Finger Lakes, Canandaigua, N.Y., July 2; and Newport Jazz at Saratoga, N.Y., July 3.

What sent the angel to 'Heaven'?

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me how Jonathan (Michael Landon) on "Highway to Heaven" died and subsequently became an angel? — J.A.Y., Bagdad, Mich.

Dear J.A.Y.: There have been several explanations for Jonathan's demise offered. In one episode, for example, he told Mark (Victor French) he smoked too much and died of lung cancer. But there have been other reasons given on other episodes. When pressed, an NBC executive simply shrugged and said, "This is television — what can I tell you?"

Dear Dick: When I was a kid in the '50s, I saw a movie "The Iron Mistress," with Alan Ladd as Jim Bowie. When was it made and are copies available? — E.O.L., Reidsville, N.C.

Dear E.O.L.: That film which also starred Virginia Mayo, was made in 1952. It has not been put on a video cassette. There is no real demand for it — it was a second-rate western to begin with, and they were a dime a dozen.

Dear Dick: I'm trying to find the name of a movie from the '30s about a young man (Joel McCrea) who was shipwrecked on an island, controlled by an evil man. He was given a chance to survive if he could outrun and hide from all the weapons aimed at him. — Mrs. A.S., Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Dear Mrs. A.S.: The film "The Most Dangerous Game" was released in 1932.

Dear Dick: Isn't Deborah Parentino, who plays Susan the "handyman" on "Hooperman," the same actress who was the sophisticated Sloane Denning on the daytime soap, "Capitol"? But it doesn't seem to me that was her name. I thought she had an Irish name. — B.C., Lowell, Mass.

Dear B.C.: She did. She was Deborah Mullowney then, but she married actor James

Dick Kleiner

Parentino and took his name. She thought of hyphenating it but Deborah Mullowney Parentino would have taken up three lines in the TV listings. She now spells her first name Debrah.

Dear Dick: Could you please tell me who the girl is that plays Maggie on "A Different World"? Did she ever star in any of the daytime soaps? — H.K., St. Marys, Ohio.

Dear H.K.: Marisa Tomei plays the role of Maggie. She played Marcie Thompson on "As the World Turns" in 1983.

Dear Dick: Can you tell me the name of the song about New Orleans at the beginning of "Frank's Place" and who sings it? It's marvelous. — P.H., Kalamazoo, Mich.

Dear P.H.: That is the famous Louis Armstrong record "Do You Know What It Means to Miss New Orleans?" If you want to hear all of it look for it on several of his albums.

Dear Dick: Ten or 15 years ago I saw a movie based on a true story (I think). Alan Alda played a rapist who posed as a police officer, then raped his victims. He was innocent of this murder but executed in the gas chamber. While in prison he became his own attorney and wrote several books. What was the name of that movie and the book it came from? — C.M., Candor, N.Y.

Dear C.M.: That was "Kill Me If You Can" based on the true story of Gary Chessman. It was not taken from a book, but from a screenplay by John Gay — although Chessman did write his autobiography, "Cell 2455: Death Row," which covers the same ground.

Dear Dick: Do you think Shelley Long will come back to "Cheers"? Why did she leave? The show is good now, but it was better with her in it. Something is missing without her in it. — A.L., Virginia, Minn.

Dear A.L.: Anything is possible but the odds that she will return to the show are slim. It is what you might call a long shot. She left to pursue a feature film career. I think she will make it and be a big big screen star. And I also think Kirstie Alley is doing a fine job as the new woman in town on "Cheers."

Dear Dick: Please settle an argument between my sister and me. She says Emmanuel Lewis of "Webster" is eight and I say he is 17. Which one of us is right? — D.C., Nineveh, Ind.

Dear D.C.: You are right on the button. He was born on March 9, 1971, which makes him sweet 17.

Hollywood goes to bat for sports films

By Vernon Scott

UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Pictures about sports hardly ever succeed, especially baseball movies.

So what's happening this summer? Three movies about baseball are being released: "Bull Durham," starring Kevin Costner; "Eight Men Out," starring Charlie Sheen; and "Stealing Home," starring Mark Harmon.

The saw about sports films like most Hollywood cliches has more than a kernel of truth in it. The box office take for movies based on athletic competition sometimes reads like the game stats for the Chicago Cubs.

All the same, many a Hollywood producer has insisted that that the historic love affair between the boys of summer and the public will eventually result in a major hit.

Baseball is the national pastime, right? Millions of Americans go to the ballpark every season, right? So, millions of fans will go to movies about baseball, right?

Wrong.

There has never been an unqualified hit — much less a triple or home run — ever registered by a baseball flick.

Let's start with Gary Cooper (one of the most popular stars of all time) playing the legendary Lou Gehrig in "Pride of the Yankees" in 1942, including the immortal Babe Ruth paying himself. Not exactly a box office bonanza.

Then there was the film biography "The Babe Ruth Story" in 1948 with William Bendix playing the Sultan of Swat. Another strikeout.

Other biographical baseball films included "The Stratton Story," starting Jimmy Stewart in 1949. A year later it was "The Jackie Robinson Story," with Robinson playing the lead. Another box office thud.

If baseball biographies weren't making millions, what about fictional accounts of the Great American Pastime?

"It Happens Every Spring" (1949), "Angel in the Outfield" (1951) and "Fear Strikes Out" (1957). Crash, crash, crash.

"Fear Strikes Out" was the biography of Boston's Jerry Piersall, who suffered mental problems, and starred Anthony Perkins, who looked as comfortable in a baseball uniform as Orson Welles in a tux.

Nearly 30 years later, superstar Robert Redford played a super slugger in "The Natural" in 1984, a story with a little fantasy and a little romance thrown in. Hardcore Redford fans loved it, but everybody else stayed away.

One of the best baseball pictures ever made also failed to generate box office excitement, "The Bingo Long Travelling All Stars and Motor Kings," in 1976, an account of the old Negro National League starring Billy Dee Williams, James Earl Jones and Richard Pryor.

But "Bull Durham" could change the losing streak of baseball movies. It stars Kevin Costner as a washed-up minor league catcher and Susan Sarandon as a fading baseball groupie.

Much of the credit should go to writer-director Ron Shelton, who played second base for five years for the Rochester (N.Y.) Redwings, the farm team for the Baltimore Orioles, and posted a lifetime batting average of .265.

Sitting in his tiny office in a ramshackle studio, Shelton said his picture almost never made the lineup.

"It had two strikes against it," he said. "First it was about baseball. Second, I was a first-time director. In this league they only give you two strikes and you're out."

"All of the major studios turned it down, even though I had Costner ready to star in the film. Then a funny thing happened. I took the script to Orion knowing they already had a baseball movie in the works — "Eight Men Out" — and, surprisingly, they put up the financing. I was shocked."

"I was aware that baseball pictures are supposed to be box office poison, but I'm also aware that a dozen years ago it was etched in stone that box office could never succeed again. Then along came 'Rocky.'

"(Sylvester) Stallone took the curse off fight films. And I hope that's what "Bull Durham" will do for baseball.

Shelton had heard all the arguments against sports pictures when he wrote "The Best of Times," an unsuccessful football film starring Robin Williams and Kurt Russell, especially the argument that women hate sports pictures.

"But women are responding to "Bull Durham" almost more than men," he said. "Women go to see men in movies or women talking about men. The background structure is not all that important. A good movie is about relationships, whether in sports or action films or romance."

"Any sports picture that works is successful for the same reason that other pictures work. If the audience can identify with the characters then it doesn't matter if the setting is Wall Street, the Old West or a baseball field."

Shelton chose his actor-athletes with care, then hired professional coaches with the Atlanta Braves to work with them.

"Kevin (Costner) was a very good high school player and a fine natural athlete," Shelton said. "He plays the role with the easy grace of a professional."

The movie, he said, is a "story of working-class heroes, guys doing their jobs every day. Most sports films fail because they include the false story of the home run in the last of the ninth inning with the bases loaded. That's just too fake."

"What made 'Rocky' a hit was that he didn't win the championship. He went the distance. And that's what my movie is about. Audiences identify with the struggle, not just the victory."
