Chamber plans turkey event

SANFORD — The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is setting up an annual turkey give-away event. The actual give-away will be held two days before Thanksgiving.

The event is being co-sponsored by Creative Cribs, Inc., of Sanford, through its president, Michael Mainelli.

According to Dave Farr, executive director of the Chamber, "Mainelli will be purchasing 50 turkeys which will be distributed to deserving families in Sanford."

The turkeys will be allocated to various local clubs and civic organizations, who will be supplying tickets to selected families who might otherwise not have turkey dinners for the holiday.

While Creative Cribs is starting the project with 50 turkeys, Farr hopes the project will grow, possibly even double with donations from others.

Mainelli is challenging other local businesses and civic leaders to join Creative Crib's efforts. "A $10 donation will provide one turkey for a needy family."

Business people as well as citizens interested in giving a donation to the project are asked to send them to the Chamber at 400 E. First Street in downtown Sanford.

For further information, contact the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce at 322-2212.

Workers cry favoritism

School board employees file petition over promotions

By GEORGE DUNCAN
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Thirty-five employees of the Seminole County Maintenance Department are calling for an investigation into the hiring and promotions policies of Maintenance Director Don Nicholas.

The employees charge that favoritism, not merit, is the main reason for promotion in the department.

The employees, most of whom are in the landscaping department, met Wednesday to sign a petition objecting to the promotion of a female employee to assistant foreman. Other, more qualified employees were passed over, they claimed.

David Graham, a representative of NIPSCO (Non-instructional personnel of Seminole County) said the promotion decision "was the straw that broke the camel's back. In the maintenance division, abilities don't matter. Everything is who you know and whether you kowtow to management."

Nicholas said the charges were untrue and that

SANFORD — It was the eleventh hour of the eleventh day in the eleventh month. The anniversary of the armistice which saw fighting end in World War I in 1918.

In observing what was originally called Armistice Day, and now Veterans Day, a small but enthusiastic number of people marched through downtown Sanford at 11 a.m. yesterday morning.

Everyone from small children to elderly folks stood waving plastic American flags along the route of the Seminole County Veterans Advisory Committee Veteran's Day Parade in Sanford.

"I never fought in a war," said Lawrence Singletary of Lake Mary who came to Sanford

Two dead in Sanford car wreck

SANFORD — Traffic was rerouted from State Road 46 near the new Rinehart Road extension after a late night accident which left two Illinois residents dead and three people with minor injuries.

The Florida Highway Patrol responded to a two-car accident at that location about 10 p.m., they said.

Because the investigation into the fatalities took several hours, State Road 46 was closed in the eastbound direction until early this morning, a spokesman for the Highway Patrol said.

Traffic was rerouted from Sanford south to Lake Mary from Rinehart Road to State Road 46-A until about 1 a.m., the Highway Patrol reported.

GENEVA — Even as area scout leaders are planning their next round of protest over a district scout council proposal to sell Camp David W. Hedrick near here, the chief executive of the seven county council said they are trying to take a broad point of view.

"We are not singling out Camp Hedrick," said Wayne Brock, executive director of the Central Florida Council of the Boy Scouts of America. "We have to ask ourselves what it is that we can do with the resources available to us."

Leaders of Troop 837 in Geneva are organizing another "Support Our Camp" campout sometime within the next 30 days, said Dave Young, assistant scoutmaster of the troop. The last protest Oct. 31 attracted about a dozen scouts

Lake Mary Homecoming: Dancing in the streets

LAKE MARY — There was cheering and dancing in the streets around Lake Mary High School yesterday afternoon.

The Rams' Homecoming Week celebrations took to the streets for the third annual parade that wound its way down Greenway Boulevard from Greenwood Lakes Middle School to Lake Mary High School.

Motorists were stopped or turned away from Greenway Boulevard for nearly an hour while the parade participants formed and marched to the delight of those who came to see them.

Laurie Williams of Longwood had planned to avoid the heavy traffic on Lake Mary Boulevard by taking Greenway Boulevard from Longwood-Lake Mary Road to Lake Emma Road.

"But when I saw the sign that said 'Parade in Progress,' I had to stay," she said. "I love parades."

Most of the others there were at the parade by choice.

Interstate sniper-arrest
Police nab two teen-age gang members in attack

By RON WOOD
Associated Press

JACKSONVILLE — Police investigating a string of attacks on Interstate 295 announced the arrests of two teen-age gang members on attempted murder charges Wednesday in the July shooting of a motorist.

we've solved the problem out there," he said.

McMillan displayed a pellet gun and several simulated weapons that officers obtained during the arrest of the 16-year-old suspect Wednesday.

The 17-year-old was arrested Tuesday night, he said. "We have statements from one of the suspects involving them in the case," said McMillan, who did not specify which teenager.

The break in the case came from an informant who knew someone associated with the shooting, McMillan said. "We've got some pretty good evidence," the sheriff said, noting that the suspects were driving a blue Trans-Am when the shooting occurred, one of the few things Mrs. Lewis remembers in the July 29 shooting.

The sheriff said the 16-year-old was stopped near I-295 late Tuesday after shots were heard, but he was not arrested. The teen also had been arrested and charged in August with conspiracy to shoot into a vehicle in another I-295 incident, according to McMillan who didn't elaborate on that case.

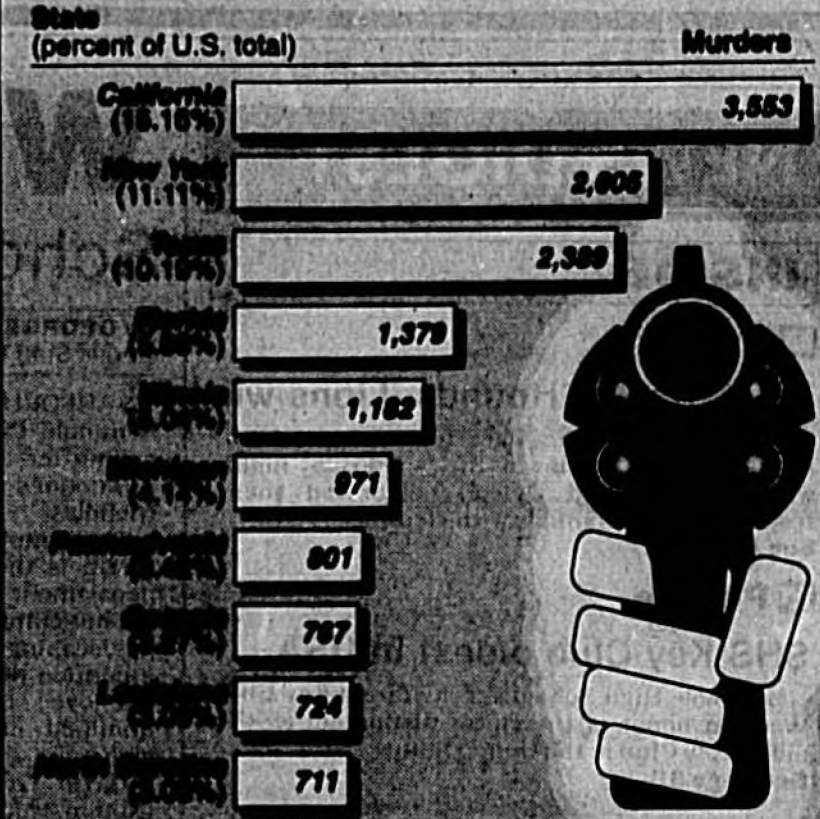

Brig. Gen. Richard Kappe announced the Florida National Guard would continue to patrol the area, the scene of some 37 shootings and rock-throwing incidents.

Mrs. Lewis is one of three people injured in the attacks. William Klinedinst was killed July 4 when he was hit in the head by a piece of concrete apparently dropped from an overpass and lost control of his car.

The American Automobile Association had begun warning motorists last week not to drive on I-295. Bill Dodd, a AAA official, said Wednesday that officials weren't ready to drop the warning.

AAA contributes $10,000 for conviction of snipers

By NICK PFEPAUF
Herald Staff Writer

HEATHROW — Additional arrests in the sniper attacks along Interstate 295 near Jacksonville may be enhanced through the efforts of AAA, headquartered in Heathrow. The organization has contributed $10,000 as reward money.

Following several months of attacks along the busy highway, two arrests were made yesterday. Others are still contemplated.

Before the arrests however, AAA contributed the $10,000 to help lead to the arrest and conviction of people responsible for the acts of violence.

AAA made nationwide news in early September when it issued a travel advisory urging members to use caution along I-295 at night.

This week, AAA is upgrading that advisory and urging its members to completely avoid I-295 until the attacks have been resolved.

Movie producer under investigation

ORLANDO — Movie producer Hugh Parks Jr., is being investigated by the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service amid accusations he embezzled his investors' money, a newspaper reported.

Parks, who founded Quest Studios and Quest Entertainment after retiring as a vice president at Martin Marietta, allegedly used the cash to support his girlfriends and pay for a luxury lakefront estate, a Jaguar and a 48-foot yacht.

FBI and IRS agents raided Parks' home and a rental warehouse Monday, seizing two computers, his passport and more than eighty boxes of personal, corporate and banking records.

FBI agent Steven Lanzer and IRS agent Orian Smith said in an affidavit presented to U.S. Magistrate Donald Dietrich that Parks, 57, his companies and associates have been probed for six months for potential fraud, bankruptcy, money laundering and tax violations.

Delta pilot heads Baptist Convention

FORT MYERS — A Delta Airlines pilot has been elected president of the Florida Baptist State Convention, the first layperson to hold the post in 12 years.

In the election Tuesday at the organization's annual meeting, Tim Locher of Hollywood received 55 percent of the vote, defeating Darrell Orman, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Stuart.

Edwin Mason of Tallahassee, who was elected in 1980, was the last president who was not an ordained minister. Only four laypersons have been president since 1850.

The convention also passed a resolution promising to pray for President-elect Bill Clinton, who is a Southern Baptist, and asking him to renounce his stated positions on abortion and minority status for homosexuals.

Sheriff's dispatchers face reprimands

PENACOLA — Two sheriff's dispatchers face reprimands and basketball goals will be removed from walls of exercise yards because of a jail inmate's escape that went unnoticed for a full day.

The dispatchers will receive counseling letters for failing to respond to calls by a citizen, sheriff's Sgt. Bill Truabel said Tuesday.

He said the caller reported seeing a man who turned out to be the escapee running through the neighborhood near the Escambia County Jail nearly 24 hours before jailers noticed he was missing.

Meanwhile, Maj. Gerald Russo, the jail administrator, has ordered removal of basketball goals escapes Orlando Peoples, 24, apparently used to get over the 30-foot wall of an exercise yard Sunday.

Salvage crew to clean up plane debris

DANIA — Pieces of a cargo plane that ditched intact 50 yards offshore last week floated ashore as salvage operators waited for rain and high seas to die down before clearing out the mess.

The John U. Lloyd Beach State Recreation Area in Broward County remained closed Wednesday to prevent accidents near the wreck, which was breaking apart in about 15 feet of water and emitted a powerful smell.

"We need reasonably good weather," said Norman Halverton, business manager of Redline Towing and Salvage in Fort Lauderdale. "Right now it's too dangerous to do anything."

Halverton said the plane's cargo was not as hazardous as feared. He said the firm would remove any dangerous chemicals and what remains of the textiles, tires and auto parts on board before hauling it further off shore.

Palm Beach may ban panhandling

WEST PALM BEACH — Street-corner appeals to "work for food" would be banned in Palm Beach County if some commissioners have their way.

Carl Roberts persuaded his fellow commissioners on Tuesday to consider outlawing the activity, saying constituents have complained about aggressive panhandling and the image it leaves with tourists.

"I just want to see what we can do to provide better protection for our residents and a better look to the entrance to our county and our community," Roberts said.

But forcing unfortunate people out of the public eye is not only bad public policy, it is unconstitutional, said Barry Silver, a Boca Raton attorney who helped overturn a law banning blind-bled hot dog vendors.

"They don't pose any type of hazard in the county that I've seen," said Silver. "The only problem I can see is that they make people feel a little guilty. I think people are uncomfortable confronting the homeless."

Children lacking in insurance

South: 46 percent of nation's uninsured youth

By LAUREN GIBSON
Associated Press

ATLANTA — About 5.1 million children in the South have no private or public health coverage, but thousands of them could get federal dollars for basic care if it weren't for red tape, according to a new study.

The Southern Institute on Children and Families reported Wednesday that 46 percent of the nation's 11.2 million uninsured children live in the South, even though the region has only 37 percent of all U.S. children.

Lack of insurance means most of these children don't receive basic health care, the institute said.

"It is a failure of society when any child is denied health care because of an inability to pay," said former South Carolina Gov. Richard W. Riley, chairman of the public policy organization. "It has become really commonplace for families with children to seek primary health care at the door of a hospital emergency room. "Even more disturbing are children who do without, allowing minor health problems to turn into major ones." Many uninsured children are eligible for Medicaid but were denied the federal coverage, usually because their parents filled out forms wrong, the report said.

States should immediately enroll all eligible children in Medicaid, said Sarah Shuptrine, president of the Columbia, S.C.-based institute.

The non-profit institute, formed last year to study problems facing children, released the report during a meeting in Atlanta. It surveyed 17 Southern states and the District of Columbia to come up with the region's first look at uninsured children.

Nationwide, 17.6 percent of children are uninsured, compared with 22 percent in the South, the report said. The lowest percentage in the region was in Georgia, where 14.9 percent of children are uninsured, and the highest, 34.2 percent, was in Washington, D.C., it said.

Only six Southern locales could calculate their numbers of potential child Medicaid recipients: 58 percent of Arkansas' 177,000 uninsured children; 30 percent in Florida; 21.4 percent in Oklahoma; 20 percent in West Virginia; 10.3 percent in Washington, D.C.; and 2 percent in Kentucky.

The report added that eight states set Medicaid eligibility levels lower than federal law allows — Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma, Virginia and West Virginia.

The institute praised Florida and Oklahoma for planning universal health coverage for all residents, and five other states — Delaware, Florida, Kentucky, North Carolina and Virginia — for funding care for poor children who aren't eligible for Medicaid.

Cruisers host vintage car show on Saturday

By BOB PRINCE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Celery City Cruisers are presenting their 9th annual car show this Saturday. The event, on the downtown streets of Sanford, promises to be the largest ever.

According to Dave Scott, organizer of the show, "We had about 175 cars entered in the event last year. This year we could have as many as 200, and bring over 5,000 visitors into the downtown area."

Scott said cars will be on display on First Street between Sanford Ave. and Oak Ave., down N. Park to the lakefront area, and on part of S. Park up to 2nd Street.

Some of the vehicles to be shown are completely restored vintage cars from the late 1920's. Others, although from the same era, have been modified. In all, cars and trucks will be divided into 24 separate categories, based on the year of manufacturing, their use, specific models, and the way they have been modified.

Prizes will be awarded for each category, with the grand prize to be "Best of Show".

"In addition to the car show," Scott said, "we will also be having a nostalgia show-off event, and there will be booths and displays near Palmetto and Sanford Avenues."

The entire event is free to the public. Advance registration for vehicles has already closed, but registration will be accepted on the day of the event, for $15 per vehicle. The registration desk will be set up at the Sanford City Hall parking lot, near the corner of Fulton Street and N. Park Avenue.

The car show and nostalgia show-off will be held from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

For information, phone the Celery City Cruisers, 323-8844.

Abolishing archaic law would benefit Sanford airport

Cosmologists can tell you that infinity is not the only thing that lasts forever. Some federal laws hang around a long time too.

The troubling part is that most of those federal laws were bad laws to begin with and get even worse as the years go by.

Local airport officials can tell you that Sanford is on the receiving end of one of those bad federal laws.

Airport Director Stephen Coote has been trying to bring Southwest Airlines to Sanford. Negotiations and talks between Sanford and the airline have been going on for some time.

However, Southwest flies out of Love Field in Dallas and a federal law - the Wright Amendment - limits direct, non-stop flights to Love Field to Texas and its four contiguous states. The law makes no commercial or economic sense, but making no financial sense has never stopped a federal law from being passed.

The amendment was backed by former Speaker of the House Jim Wright who used it to ensure the viability of a neighboring airport in his home district.

The spirit of the law is that passengers who are flying between Dallas and any state other than Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas and New Mexico must fly to one of the contiguous states, acquire with luggage, purchase a new ticket and board a connecting flight for Dallas.

The procedure in the case for flights out of Dallas. Under the Wright Amendment, a flight headed for Florida must stop at one of the four contiguous states to Texas, even though Oklahoma is a major long-haul jet port. When heading to Oklahoma, the Wright Amendment "prohibits" the law makes non-stop flights to a number of states, including Florida, by a number of airlines. The amendment is an attempt to get the amendment repealed.

The question is: Why? The Wright Amendment repeal has passed in the House and the amendment of the Senate. The bill is now in the President's hands. The bill is now in the President's hands. The bill is now in the President's hands.

In addition to this, other Florida congressmen should support the repeal. Airports in their districts would certainly benefit by the repeal of the law.

Since the Wright Amendment has the backing of the Texas delegation, Florida's two senators, Connie Mack and Bob Graham, need to join the coalition opposing the law.

There is no moral, economic or financial reason for the Wright Amendment to remain as law. The Florida delegation can help repeal it next year.

Pointing the finger for GOP debacle

I have promised myself to use these post-election weeks to write columns on a number of worthy subjects that got pushed aside by the pressure of campaign events. And so I shall; but indulge me one more time before we drop the subject of the campaign for good. President Bush may be able to forbid his subordinates to "point the finger of blame" for his defeat, and I have a few pointers to distribute.

For starters, Mr. Bush isn't just being chivalrous when he offers to shoulder the blame. He personally deserves a lot of it. His handling of his famous pledge "I had my eye on New Mexico" is in the running for the biggest egg ever laid in American politics, right up there with "I am a Roman and a rebel." There was nothing wrong with the policy, though any sensible politician would have left himself a little wiggle room. But having made a pledge that resonated and that unequivocal on a subject that important, George Bush simply had no choice but to keep his word. If a time came when the country's best interests compelled him to break it, the truly honorable course would have been to resign and let President Quayle agree to new taxes. Instead, Mr. Bush coolly broke his word - and then, in a positively Freudian twist, insisted in running on the slogan, as laughable as it was ungrammatical, "Who do you trust?"

Next, maybe his economic advisers deserve the blame (for having misinformed him), but Mr. Bush's breezy attitude toward the continued recession, over a period of nearly a year, was positively painful to behold. "Wait for my State of the Union speech" and "Wait for my acceptance speech" (neither of which, by the way, was all that impressive) were no substitutes for action. True enough, Mr. Bush put a recovery program before the Democratic Congress, which predictably failed to act on it. But that exculpated the president only partially.

First, to signal his personal determination to end the recession quickly at all costs, Mr. Bush ought to have fired both Treasury Secretary Brady and OMB Director Darman and replaced them with Kemp types early this year, rather than hinting in panic, in the closing weeks of the campaign, that he would do so in his second administration.

Second, as a Republican president yoked to a Democratic Congress that clearly preferred to let the recession continue until Election Day rather than help him dig the country out of it, Mr. Bush should have taken a leaf from Harry Truman's book and absolutely demonized "that good-for-nothing, do-nothing 102nd Congress." Instead, he got snookered into arguing that he wanted to resemble Harry Truman - which he doesn't, and shouldn't, and which Margaret Truman was on hand to swear he didn't.

Third, the Bush campaign managers made a monumental blunder when they failed, early on, to defend the Willie Horton ads of Mr. Bush's 1988 campaign. No less a liberal authority than The Washington Post said, in an editorial dated Oct. 25, 1988, that there was nothing in the least "racist" about those ads. The Republicans ought to have insisted on that point, citing the Post, and added, for good measure, that they would run similar ads about Gov. Clinton if he began furloughing convicted Arkansas murderers under sentence of life without parole.

Instead Mr. Bush's managers crumpled and pledged that they would never, ever run a comparable ad.

JOSEPH SPEAR

Modern values erode the heroes of past

Somewhere in this United States, somebody is preparing to trash Benjamin Franklin. Ben Franklin? Printer, statesman, diplomat, author Ben Franklin? The kindly, corpulent old gentleman who invented bifocals, flew kites and preached about saving pennies? The universal man of letters who helped write the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution? That Ben Franklin?

That's the one. He's got a big birthday coming up in the year 2008. Number 300, to be exact. And as sure as I am pounding this keyboard, some revisionist historian is in the early stages of planning a literary assault on the Ben's character.

The fledgling author will prow through the archives in search of scandal and scuttisbutt and publish a tome bearing a title something like "The Franklin Fallacy." It will surely dwell on Franklin's libido and his illegitimate son, and one chapter at least will be devoted to his efforts to bribe the British into granting land to himself and some American friends.

It's a new American industry, invented by the Politically Correct crowd. You take an icon, check to see when a birthday or the anniversary of a big event is coming up, and you run the icon through the ideological filters of the present time. "Presentism," the traditional historians call it - judging the past by the standards of today.

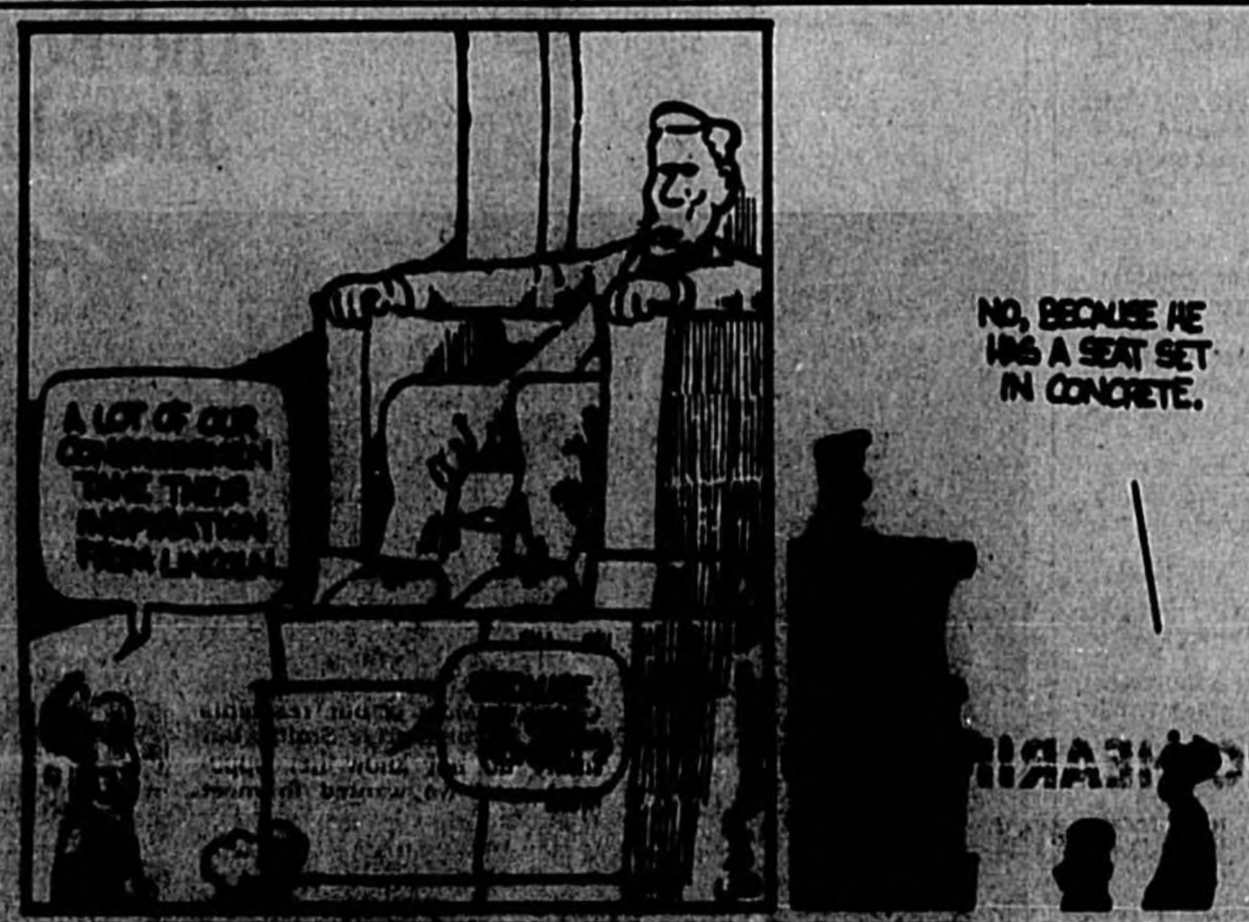

Isn't that delicious? The Politically Correct crowd, the people who invented all those "isms" like "heightism" and "specicism" and "acemism" now have an "ism" to call their own. They engage in the scurvy practice of "presentism."

Take Christopher Columbus, for example. When the 500th anniversary of his inaugural voyage rolled around this year, the PC crowd was waiting to turn the wayfaring weaver's son into a monster. He was personally responsible for the deaths of as many as 30 million indigenous people, they said. He was liable for the deaths of another 30 million Africans who perished in slave galleys. He imposed a militaristic European value system on peace-loving, environmentally upright Native Americans.

Now the revisionists are doing a number on Thomas Jefferson, whose 250th birthday rolls around in April. For all his talk about people being born equal, the critics say, and despite his anti-slavery writings, he failed to free his own slaves. He probably sired children by a slave mistress, they say, and he firmly believed that the races could never be successfully integrated and that blacks should be emancipated and resettled as a discrete community.

This is presentism run amok. As historian Douglas Wilson puts it in the November issue of The Atlantic Monthly, the more appropriate question is this: "How did a man who was born into a slaveholding society, whose family and admired friends owned slaves, who inherited a fortune that was dependent on slaves and slave labor, decide at an early age that slavery was morally wrong and brazenly declare that it ought to be abolished?"

I do not know how Jefferson rationalized the reprehensible practice of holding slaves. Indeed, I cannot know because I have no way of comprehending the mores that impelled him or the motives that drove him. Was it a matter of crude economics? Was he convinced he was playing a revisionist's role?

Secretary of State Powell?

Here in the nation's capital, where the only heavy industry is the printing of bills, bills, the southwesterly of western bills have been with their own bill line of State Dept. for Secretary of State.

They've been a perennial source of the great American dream. Christopher (who says he's not a Christian) Powell, who says he's not a secretary, Gen. Bush (who says he's not a secret choice of Democratic centrists who know State, not Defense, is what he wants), et al.

But the lawmakers have overlooked the person whom Bill Clinton should most want for secretary of state: Gen. Colin Powell.

The main reason Clinton should select Powell is that his qualifications are outstanding. Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and former Reagan national security adviser, is already on history's short list of Americans distinguished in both the military and diplomacy. The list is headed by Gen. George C. Marshall, who became Truman's secretary of state - and whose Marshall Plan gave life to Europe.

Another reason Clinton should pick Powell is, simply, that it is right. Clinton campaigned promising that the face of his administration will look like the face of America. There is no better way than to name the first Afro-American secretary of state.

In an impressive new book, "Colin Powell: Soldier/Diplomat" - published by the publisher Random House - Powell is the "Soldier/Diplomat" who, indeed, has been much more than around Colin Powell's desk. It is the book about his life after the military. It is a book that should be read by all Americans.

Consider the general's record. Gen. Powell's last military assignment, as deputy adviser, Powell helped restore an operation shattered by the Iran-contra scandal - and even pleaded for two cooperative witnesses. As George Bush's military chief, Powell was both a voice of rational caution and a leader in helping and inspiring the global coalition that won the Persian Gulf War.

Consider the general's diplomatic record. Powell's previous assignments have been engaged by President Clinton. Powell's previous assignments have been engaged by President Clinton. Powell's previous assignments have been engaged by President Clinton.

He is, at all, it was Powell, as NBC adviser, who was the last minute and ended funding of the Contras.

Powell's resume has but one blemish: Newly discovered notes of ex-Defense Secretary Weinberger show his then-military adviser, Powell, told him Hawk missiles "can't be given to Israel or Iran (without Congressional notification)." But in a congressional deposition, Powell merely said: "We may have talked about it briefly, but I have no specific recollection if we did, or if we did, what was said about it." Not untrue, but not really candid.

Says biographer Means: "Powell learned what he wanted to learn - and didn't learn the things that he could have learned but didn't want to know." Hopefully, Powell learned from that the full extent of constitutional duty and the folly of unbridled loyalty.

A chief of foreign aid, Ex-Secretary of State Elliot Abrams was convicted of lying to Congress about the Central Intelligence Agency's support of the Contras. "My name is Powell," Abrams said. "I'd say he's a Clinton-Gore type of person." And Jesse Jackson (who may have shared a paragraph with Clinton) says of Powell: "His defense for the Willie Horton campaign is well known. He has a sense of dignity that he doesn't negotiate away."

America has moved beyond the time when presidents will promise to place blacks in high positions. It is time to place blacks in high positions. It is time to place blacks in high positions. It is time to place blacks in high positions.

They've given a grasshopper a seat in the smart hunches.

for the parade. "But I think that I owe it to those who fought for my right to do the things I want to do."

Mary Stein, 8, of Sanford said that her father, who was a work, is a veteran of Operation Desert Storm. She and her mother, Deana, came to the parade to cheer others who had served their country.

"I wanted to say thanks to them," she said.

The parade, with about 20 units, made its way slowly down First Street and then north on Park Avenue to the lakefront where a short ceremony honored those who have served their country.

The Seminole High School Band and their Junior ROTC group joined the military band and marching units from the Disabled American Veterans and the American Legion in playing music and presenting the colors.

Mayor Bettye Smith spoke briefly to the crowd, which gathered at the Sanford Veteran's Memorial Park at the foot of the giant flag on Seminole Boulevard.

"We want to thank those who served our country during hot wars and during cold wars," said Smith. "We thank you."

Smith said that the community owed a debt to the veterans for their continued service to the community.

"In the war against drugs, the war against poverty, the war against ignorance of all kinds," Smith said, "the veterans continue to fight every day."

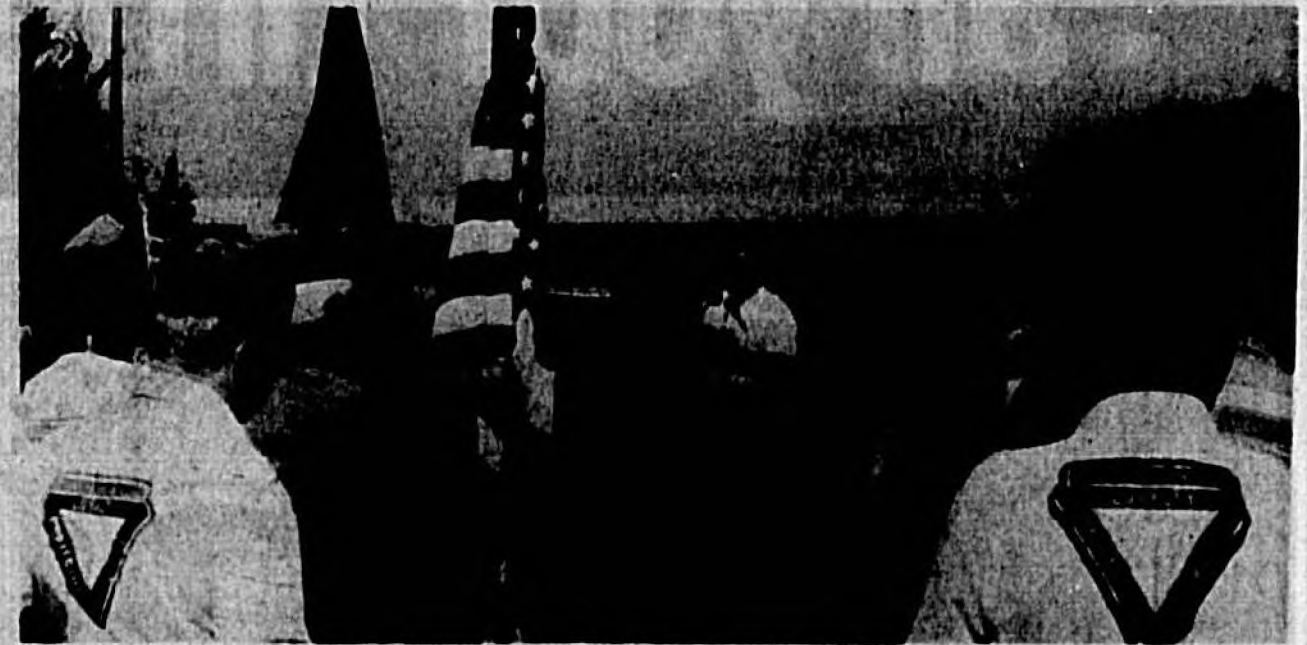

As the Veterans Day Parade wound to a close, a member of

Horace Paul, of the Fleet Reserve Association in Sanford, spoke briefly about the service to country given by all veterans in war as well as peace time, before introducing guest speaker the Disabled Americans Veteran band and one from the Seminole High School Band played "Taps."

Hats were held solemnly over hearts as some tears were shed for those who fought but did not return home.

The holiday observance has had its share of confusion. It was originally called Armistice Day and was first observed in 1926. In 1954, Congress changed the name to Veterans Day.

Another change made by Congress, in 1971, declared that the event should be celebrated on the fourth Monday of October, but most states continued to honor Nov. 11, and refused to acknowledge the Monday holiday concept.

With a law signed in 1975 and effective in 1976, the date, rather than the Monday observance was reinstated by Congress.

In addition to the two more common names of the holiday, it has also been known as Remembrance Day, Victory Day, and World War I Memorial Day.

In Sanford yesterday, our local veterans of military service may have been marching in a Veterans Day parade, but they were remembering all wars, all victories, and all of their friends who may have given their lives in exchange for the ability to freely march down the streets of Sanford.

IN BRIEF

AROUND THE STATE

Lightning strike Red Wings

TAMPA — The expansion Tampa Bay Lightning climbed into a tie for first place in the Norris Division as Chris Kontos scored twice in a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Red Wings on Wednesday night.

The Lightning improved to 8-8-2, good for 18 points and a share of the division lead with Toronto, which has played three fewer games. Tampa Bay has won three in a row and is 4-0-1 in its last five games.

Kontos, who had previously never scored more than eight goals in a full season, scored his 17th and 18th in Tampa Bay's 18th game, leaving him behind only Pittsburgh's Mario Lemieux, who has 22.

Gentry makes move at title

KEY WEST — Tom Gentry drove Gentry Eagle to an overall Superboat class win Wednesday, moving toward a fourth offshore world powerboat title at the Budweiser Key West World Championship.

The second and final event of the two-race series is set for Saturday.

Gentry, a Hawaiian real estate developer, averaged 89.65 mph over the 147-mile course, the best time of the day for the 78 boats that registered for the world championship.

FSU announces hoop signings

TALLAHASSEE — Florida State signed three players Wednesday to basketball scholarships, including a high-scoring guard from Jacksonville considered one of the state's top college prospects.

James Collins, a 6-foot-4 senior at Jackson High, averaged 26.9 points, 15.3 rebounds and 8.5 assists per game as a junior last year.

Coach Pat Kennedy said Collins will immediately fill a void left when current seniors Sam Cassell and Chuck Graham leave the Seminoles following this season.

Two other recruits were signed Wednesday: 6-foot-7 forward David Grabuloff of Middletown, Penn., and 6-foot-10 forward/center Kirk Luehman of Medford Lakes, N.J.

Gators in 'must win' scenario

GAINESVILLE — The Florida Gators practiced for two hours Wednesday in preparation for their must-win Southeastern Conference game Saturday against South Carolina.

The Gators are two SEC victories away from the league championship game Dec. 5.

Aside from guard Dexter Smith (groin), every regular was expected to be ready for play — although backup cornerback Lawrence Hatch (shoulder), who practiced in pads and a non-contact jersey on Wednesday, was still uncertain for Saturday.

'Noles prepare for Tulane

TALLAHASSEE — Noseguard Enzo Armella's sprained ankle was the only injury reported Wednesday as fifth-ranked Florida State worked out in the rain for their upcoming matchup against Tulane.

"I'm hopeful that we can duplicate our performance last Saturday," said coach Bobby Bowden, referring to the Seminoles' homecoming win over Maryland. "We can not afford to take this Tulane team lightly."

Florida State, which will host Saturday's game, has won the previous nine meetings between the two schools.

AROUND THE NATION

Maddux wins Cy Young

NEW YORK — Greg Maddux, already an attractive free agent, increased his value when he outdueled Atlanta's Tom Glavine for the NL Cy Young Award.

Maddux, 20-11 with a 2.18 ERA for Chicago, received 20 of the 24 first-place votes from a panel of the Baseball Writers' Association of America made up of two writers in each league city. He was second on the remaining four ballots and finished with 112 points.

Glavine, trying to become the NL's first repeat winner since Sandy Koufax in 1966, was 20-8 with a 2.76 ERA. He received the other four first-place votes and finished second.

Mourning signs . . . sort of CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Charlotte reached a contract agreement with No. 2 draft pick Alonzo Mourning, but will apparently have to make a trade to get him signed, team owner George Shinn said.

Shinn would not reveal financial details of the former Georgetown center's multiyear contract. The Charlotte Observer reported that a source close to the negotiations said Mourning would receive "less than $2.5" million in first-year salary.

Crazy Wings-Lambert Erectors delivers title to Heilig Meyers

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — So much for playoffs. Just when it looked like Heilig Meyers and Touchdown Pub were headed for a playoff to decide the championship of the Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Men's Slowpitch Softball League, Crazy Wings/Lambert Erectors decided to take a hand.

Heilig Meyers did its share to set up a winner-take-all showdown by shutting out Bamboo Cafe 13-0. But Crazy Wings/Lambert Erectors dashed that, defeating Touchdown Pub 14-9 and handing the league title to Heilig Meyers.

DeLand Nissan capped the season with a 14-3 win over Beer: 30.

With the victory, Heilig Meyers finishes the season at 8-2, a game up on Touchdown Pub (7-3). Bamboo Cafe and Crazy Wings/Lambert Erectors (both 5-5) share third ahead of DeLand Nissan (4-6) and Beer: 30 (1-9).

Joel Lipscomb collected three singles and scored three runs to lead the 13-hit effort of Heilig Meyers. Keith Acree added a double, single, two runs and an RBI. Robert Stevens hit two singles, scored a run and drove in two more. Robert Dalgle also singled twice and scored a run.

Other contributors were Donnie McCoy (single, run, two RBI), Aaron Johns (single, two runs, one RBI), Sam Raines (single, two runs), Mike Broderick (single, one run) and Tom Boyd (RBI).

For Bamboo Cafe, Carl Brown was 3-for-3 with a double and two singles. Brian Poe, James Troxell, Bill Warnock and Chris Colon each hit a single.

SCC women open with victory

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — It's one thing to score a lot of points and win but quite another to have to score a lot of points in order to win.

That's where the Seminole Community College women's basketball team found itself Wednesday night, needing every one of its points to hold off out-numbered Polk Community College 85-78 at the SCC Health and Physical Education Center.

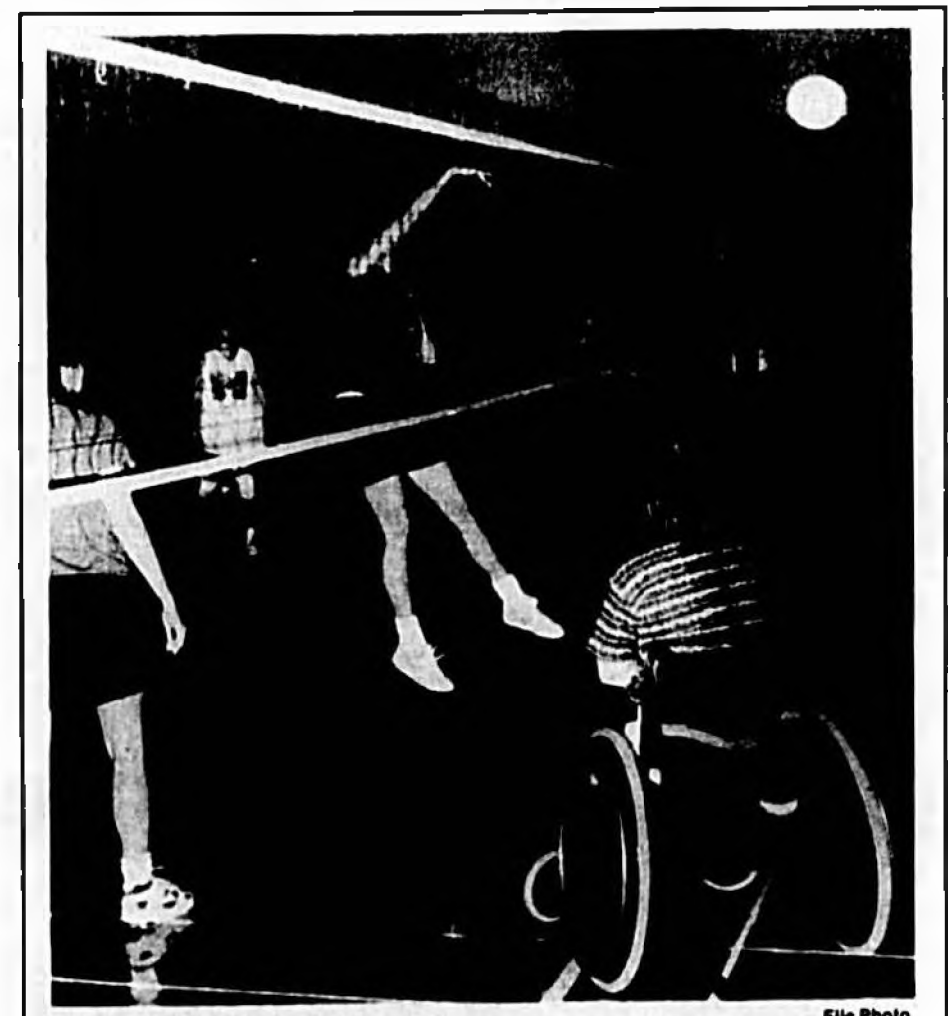

Using just about every combination that her roster of 15 players affords her, SCC coach Ileana Gallagher was frustrated by the way Polk's five-player team managed to stay with the Raiders.

"It's a win, I guess," said Gallagher philosophically. "We used a lot of different combinations tonight to get ready for our game with St. Petersburg (this Friday night)."

"I'm only disappointed with our defense. We gave up too many easy shots. They must have scored eight or 10 points on fastbreaks while we were standing around under our

Late Model pilots to challenge for 'Cup'

By PAUL MARSEOLIA
 Special to the Herald

SAMSULA — Hailed by many as the Super Bowl of Late Model stock car racing in the Sunshine State, the 28th annual 200-lap Governor's Cup State Late Model Championship is scheduled for this Saturday, Nov. 14, at New Smyrna Speedway.

A total purse in excess of $26,000 will be up for grabs.

The Governor's Cup dates back to 1965, when it was first run at the old Golden Gate Speedway in Tampa under the promotion of Frank Derby. Haydon Burns, Florida's governor at the time, arranged for the trophy and a great Florida racing tradition was begun.

The event is a memorial to Al Keller, a transplant from Buffalo, N.Y., who successfully campaigned stock cars, midgets and modifieds throughout Florida. Keller scored victories in a Modified owned by Derby at several Tampa area tracks.

In 1961, Keller finished fifth in the Indianapolis 500 after starting from the 26th position. That same year, Keller died at Phoenix, Ariz., after setting a new track record.

The Governor's Cup race was conducted at Golden Gate Speedway until 1983. After a five-year hiatus, it resumed at the half-mile, high banked oval of New Smyrna Speedway and has been an annual event ever since.

Top drivers and teams from throughout the southeast are expected to compete in this year's race. Defending champion Bobby Gill won the event in 1990 and 1991.

The winner of the FASCAR (Florida Association of Stock Car Automobile Racing) sanctioned event will receive $5,000 with an additional $2,000 to be posted in lap money. The fast time award will be

St. Petersburg prepares to wage war for Giants

By FRED GOODALL
 AP Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG — St. Petersburg hoped it would never come to this. But after seven unsuccessful bids, to land a major league baseball team, it's ready to fight back.

A lawsuit city officials are contemplating is expected to challenge baseball's antitrust exemption, as well as the decision by National League owners to block the proposed move of the San Francisco Giants to the Tampa Bay area.

The two-year-old, $138 million Florida Suncoast Dome still doesn't have a major tenant because an exclusive contract a group of Tampa Bay investors had to purchase the Giants was "tortiously interfered with," said city attorney Mike Davis.

Lead investor Vincent Nalmoll and supporters of the effort to bring the Giants to Florida say they played by the rules and once again the reward from major league baseball was rejection.

And even though a lawsuit likely won't endear the area to baseball, St. Petersburg mayor David Fischer, assistant city manager Rick Dodge and others say it's time the owners be held accountable for their actions.

"This is not an issue of what the city did right, the ownership group did right or the community did right. It's what baseball did wrong," said Dodge.

"They change the rules as they go," said Jack Critchfield, the Florida Progress Corp. chairman who organized the latest effort to get a team.

"Ultimately, they are going to have to act in an ethical and businesslike fashion," Critchfield added. "And ultimately, we will get baseball."

City officials were to meet today with lawyers from the office of Florida attorney general Bob Butterworth, who has agreed to join the city in legal action.

There have also been discussions recently with the Houston law firm of Jamail & Koltus, which helped Pennzoil Co., win a $10.3 billion antitrust judgement against Texaco seven years ago.

Once the city's legal strategy is determined and a decision to file a lawsuit is made, the next step would be getting approval from the City Council.

The city reportedly has nearly $4 million from two stadium building funds available to assist in legal costs. Meanwhile, Dodge said officials have received numerous calls from people eager to contribute to a defense fund, although a decision has not been made on whether to accept donations.

Support offered women seeking sobriety

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, you published a letter from a woman who signed herself "Sober and Happy." She wanted to publicize the organization Women for Sobriety.

That letter prompted thousands of women to write to us about their alcohol addiction. Many joined our non-profit group, and are now leading sober, happy lives.

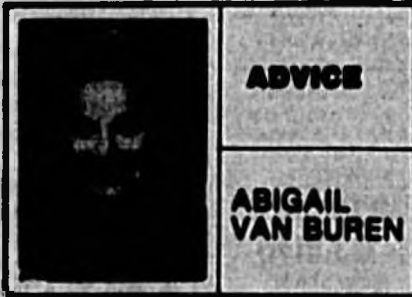

Abby, there is still a stigma attached to women alcoholics. Will you please run that letter again?

ANTOINETTE PARRIS-MOCK, DIRECTOR, WOMEN FOR SOBRIETY INC.

DEAR ANTOINETTE: Yes, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Whenever a woman writes about her drinking problem, you recommend that she seek help from Alcoholics Anonymous, which is a wonderful organization. But AA doesn't work for everyone. I speak from experience. I attended a few meetings and left feeling depressed and alone. Then I heard about a group for women called Women for Sobriety. They have weekly meetings, so I attended one. I felt so at home and was able to open up with them far more easily than in the AA group with both men and women.

I have had a happy sobriety for six years now. Women for Sobriety concentrates on mind power, making the best of the present instead of dwelling on the past. Interested women can write for information to: W.F.S. Inc., P.O. Box 618, Quakertown, Pa. 19951. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, as this is a non-profit organization.

SOBER AND HAPPY

DEAR ABBY: I respect your advice, and have a question for you. I feel strongly that with all the beautiful, warm, synthetic fabrics available today, there is no reason to wear the fur of an animal. To me, it symbolizes cruelty and selfishness. However, I generally keep this opinion to myself, and I doubt that even my closest friends are aware of my feelings.

My husband and I are planning a cocktail party before a formal event, and I am sure that some of our guests will show up wearing fur. What my guests choose to wear is their own business, but I will not allow anyone who is wearing fur to be a guest in my home. How should I make my guests aware of this?

KATE BARRY, NEWPORT NEWS, VA.

DEAR KATE: I suggest that you telephone your guests in advance and tell them.

It is highly unusual for a woman who is passionately opposed to wearing fur to keep this fact from her closest friends. An activist for any cause is totally ineffective unless he or she speaks out at every opportunity. (A "closet activist" is an oxymoron.)

Please, warn your guests in advance that fur-wearing folks are not welcome — or fur will fly!

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged woman who has not been sexually active for six years. I recently met a very nice gentleman who I thought had all the qualities I was looking for in a partner. (I'll call him Bob.)

On a routine appointment with my physician I mentioned that I was considering becoming intimate with a new man in my life. The doctor gave me a long list of diseases I could possibly contract, and at the top of the list was AIDS. Without a moment's hesitation, I asked Bob to be tested for HIV.

He has been married for 22 years and only recently divorced. Although we are both considered "very low risk," I felt it was necessary to be tested for HIV, and I asked Bob to do the same.

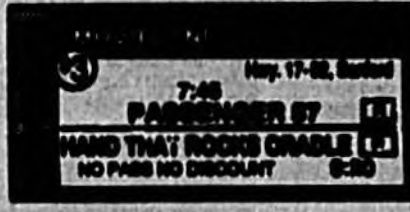

He was insulted that I would even suggest that he had been sleeping with other women, and said he was glad he found out early that there would never be any "deep trust" between us! Bob chose to make a big issue out of this rather than simply agreeing to be tested, and I haven't heard from him since!

I was terribly disappointed in him, Abby. How do you see it?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Your doctor did you a great favor in reminding you of the risks involved in becoming intimate with a new man. It is possible your "nice" gentleman friend reacted negatively because it never occurred to him during his long marriage that AIDS could impact his own life, but obviously, Bob is unfamiliar with the realities of sex in the '90s. Your request that he be tested for HIV was neither unreasonable nor insulting, and I think you are lucky that he disappeared.

Theories link MS to various causes

DEAR DR. GOTT: Some time ago I read one of your columns that indicated there is a suspected correlation between multiple sclerosis and drug use. This is not my perception and I wonder where your information came from.

DEAR READER: Because the cause of multiple sclerosis is unknown, many theories have been advanced to explain the disease. These include "slow" virus infection, inheritance, an immunologic abnormality, and various environmental factors, such as place of residence (in temperate climates) and drug use. Until scientists discover the cause of this neurological disorder, a definitive answer will be elusive.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Multiple Sclerosis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

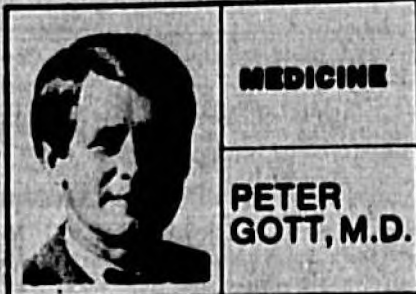

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on copper bracelets. DEAR READER: Several years ago, copper bracelets enjoyed widespread popularity as a supposed arthritis preventive. This was a medical fad. Such bracelets failed to survive the test of scientific scrutiny.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 74-year-old man with asbestosis. I'm in good health otherwise but tire very easily. Can you suggest exercise or medication that would help in this situation?

DEAR READER: Asbestosis is a serious, chronic lung disorder resulting from the long-term inhalation of asbestos fibers in the mining, milling or manufacturing occupations, or in jobs related to the use of asbestos insulation, such as seen in plumbing and auto repair (brake drums are often lined with asbestos compounds).

Once inhaled, these microscopic, crystal fibers imbed in lung tissue, leading -- over time -- to marked scarring and symptoms of breathlessness and exercise intolerance.

Asbestosis is also associated with two forms of pulmonary malignancy: lung cancer and Hugh Kelley is one of the best bridge writers. In his books, he mixes deals on which the "normal" is sometimes right and sometimes wrong. You, the reader, have to decide which is which.

Kelley's latest mini quiz book, "Test Your Card Play 6" (published by Gollancz and available for $8.95 from The Bridge World, 39 West 94th Street, New York, NY 10025), contains nine defensive and 27 declarer-play problems that will challenge anyone below expert level. Today's deal is the sixth in the book. Is it "normal" or not?
West leads the club king against your four-heart contract. You win with the ace and play the heart king. West wins with the ace and continues with the club queen. East discarding the spade two. How should you play from here?

You have 10 tricks if only you can get to the spade queen. Probably your first thought is to hope that West has the diamond ace, but is that likely? Where are East's points for his one-spade response?
Perhaps West has queen doubleton in diamonds, but a better line is to try to endplay East. You should ruff the club queen with the heart six. Next cash one top trump. Here West discards a club. Take one more top trump and then unblock the A-K of spades. Finally, exit with the heart two. East must either lead a spade into dummy's Q-10 tenace or play a diamond, allowing you to score a trick with dummy's king. You get two tricks back for the one given away.
If West follows to the second heart, cash the A-K of spades and lead the heart two, hoping East started with three trumps.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Nov. 13, 1992

You could do better than usual in the year ahead in your material affairs as well as in your social life. However, you must be careful to maintain a harmonious balance between the two.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be modest today regarding your recent accomplishments; boasting is not likely to go over too well with those you want to impress. Get a jump on life by understanding the influences governing you in the year ahead. Send for Scorpio's Astro-Graph predictions today by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Something that worked out rather well for a friend might not work out for you -- if you try to replicate your pal's tactics and procedures. Think for yourself. don't be a copycat.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan.

19) Trying too hard to be your own person today could have its drawbacks. If everyone is moving in one direction, ask yourself why you're motivated to do the opposite.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In order to be productive today where tasks are concerned, follow practical procedures. Don't attempt to do in one step something that could take several.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Stick to managing your own affairs today as best you can, instead of butting in and trying to run things for others. You'll have your hands full doing a good job on your own.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your judgment might not be up to its usual high standard today, so be sure to take adequate time to carefully think each step through when dealing with critical issues.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If friends feel you are asking of them things you're equipped to do for yourself today, they might back off from helping you. Don't be dependent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you are wasteful with your resources now, spender's remorse is likely later. Keep the future in mind before giving your credit cards a workout.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Avoid the inclination today to take serious situations for granted. Things you usually do rather easily could be beset with complications.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) There is a big difference between healthy optimism and wishful thinking. Unfortunately, you might not be able to distinguish between the two today.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you go to the shopping mall today, it might be wise to leave your cash and credit cards at home. The tendency to purchase things you really don't need could be rather strong.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Do not rely too heavily upon Lady Luck today in developments that affect your career or status. Success can be achieved through tenaciousness, not on a roll of the dice.
