Court Rules 1,200-Acre Heathrow Development Not In Lake Mary

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

The fifth District Court of Appeal at Daytona Beach has denied the city of Lake Mary's appeal to keep the 1,200-acre proposed Heathrow planned unit development within the city's bounds.

But the case may not be over. Mayor Walter Sorenson said today his personal feeling is that the city should appeal to the Florida Supreme Court. But, he quickly added the City Council will make that decision probably at its Oct. 7 regular meeting.

And before then Sorenson said he will meet with City Attorney Robert Petree and special attorney on this specific case, Gary Massey, to come up with a consensus of opinion on the city's chances in the high court.

The issue has been in the courts for the past five years and cost the city about $5,000 ($1,000 per year), estimated Sorenson today.

"But the issue is an important one," the mayor said.

The ruling from the Appellate Court, Massey said, leaves the city with the avenue of taking the matter to the Supreme Court for review or to drop the case all together.

Massey in the appeal to the Appellate Court challenged the constitutionality of the state law which allows an appeal of a city legislative act to the Circuit Court.

The court tangle began soon after the city annexed the property west of Interstate 4 and north of Lake Mary Boulevard in July 1977.

Paulucci Enterprises petitioned the city for annexation and the city agreed.

The County Commission, however, challenged the annexation by filing suit in the circuit court at Sanford, saying it violated state law forbidding the creation of enclaves.

A three-judge panel of circuit judges at Sanford ruled against Lake Mary in the annexation, excluding that territory from the city.

Then Paulucci Enterprises attempted to withdraw its petition of annexation from the city, but the City Council refused and instead ordered Massey to appeal the case.

Tom Stevenson, director of real estate operations for Paulucci, said today if the case is not appealed to the Supreme Court, the development company is ready to start construction at the site by November.

The first phase, which would be started then, would cost $2 million to $3 million and include the plotting of lots and pavement of the entrance road into the development.

He said plans are to build a mixture of single family homes, condominiums, townhouses, patio homes and commercial enterprises at the site. A fire station site and a school site would also be provided.

Stevenson said plans at this point are for the development to have its own security force to police the property.

While the enclave was the major issue in the case at the circuit court level, Massey in the appeal challenged the constitutionality of the law which permitted the circuit court to review city laws.

If the issue were taken on to the Supreme Court, the only part the higher court could consider would be the constitutional challenge by Massey.

And the enclave question would remain. It has been the contention of Seminole cities that an enclave is a section of land in county territory completely surrounded by property within a city's limits.

The county has contended that an enclave is a section of county land, completely or partially surrounded by land within a city's borders.

When the county first filed its case against Lake Mary, Massey was city attorney, and Paulucci Enterprises was represented by attorney Joe Davis.

More than five years have passed and no work has been done at the site because of the court action.

Railroad May Move Offices From Sanford

The Seaboard Coast Line Railroad will file an application with the Florida Public Service Commission Oct. 1 seeking authority to move two mobile agencies from Sanford to Orlando.

Orlando is more centrally located to serve the areas included in the mobile station territory, bounded by Kissimmee to the south, Tavares and Umatilla to the north and Groveland and Clermont to the west, said Owen Pride, spokesman for the railroad.

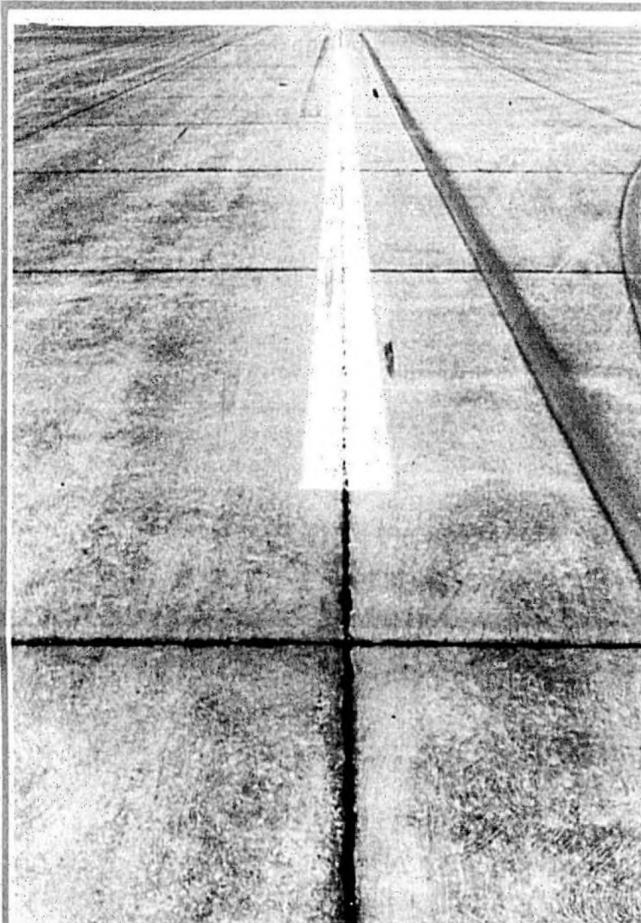

Pride said the mobile stations are vans equipped with radio telephones, connected to the various area train stations as they travel from station to station transacting railroad business.

The same persons who man the stations at Sanford will be manning them in the Orlando area, Pride said, if they have seniority.

He said if the employees have at least three years service with the railroad, their employment is protected.

Mobile Agency 1 will serve the following stations presently on the system: Apopka, Zephyr, Lake Jem, Tavares, Eustis, Umatilla, Ellsworth, Astutula and Mount Dora, and new ones to be added are Plymouth, Sorrento and Forest City.

Mobile Station 2 would continue to serve Oviedo, Winter Garden, Clermont, Groveland, Oakland, Roan, Minneola and Ocoee. The Kissimmee station would be added, if the Public Service Commission agrees. — DONNA ESTES

A $600,000 project to overlay a Sanford Airport runway will be underway within a few months, thanks to a federal grant for more than two-thirds of the funding. The runway is part concrete and part asphalt. Cracks have widened over the years, creating bumpy landings and takeoffs. Grass freely grows through many of the cracks.

Sanford Gets $433,500 For Airport Work

Construction should begin within the next five-to-six months on the $600,000-plus resurfacing of the north-south runway—Runway 18-36—at the Sanford Airport.

The project, planned for several years, received approval for a $433,500 grant from the Federal Aeronautics Administration (FAA) and the grant was accepted by authority members at a noon meeting today.

The project has been planned for several years, Airport Authority Executive Director J.S. "Red" Cleveland said today.

The difference between the estimated costs of the improvement and the federal grant will be paid in part by state funding, Cleveland said, with the balance paid from airport authority funds.

The runway is 6,000 feet long and 150 feet wide.

Cleveland said several months will be taken by Bristol, Childs and Associates engineering the project and preparing plans before bids are taken. Once a bid is accepted, he said, construction is expected to take about 90 days.

Cleveland emphasized the $600,000 cost is an estimate and bids could come in somewhat less than that.

FAA grants come from a trust fund generated through the 8 percent federal tax on airline tickets.

The resurfacing project was outlined in the airport's master plan for development for some years. The surfacing job is about a year ahead of the schedule in that master plan, which was conducted by Bristol, Childs and Associates.

J.S. "RED" CLEVELAND

In other airport improvements, Cleveland noted the state has agreed to fund one-half of the $210,000 estimated cost, for the construction of taxiways for the T-hangers at the airport.

Currently the airport has 54 T-H hangars—small private hangars for aircraft—and plans to build another 30 or so, Cleveland said.

In addition, the state has sent a letter of "no prejudice" to the authority to provide "up front" funding of $20,000 toward the cost of the air cargo units on the north side of the airport.

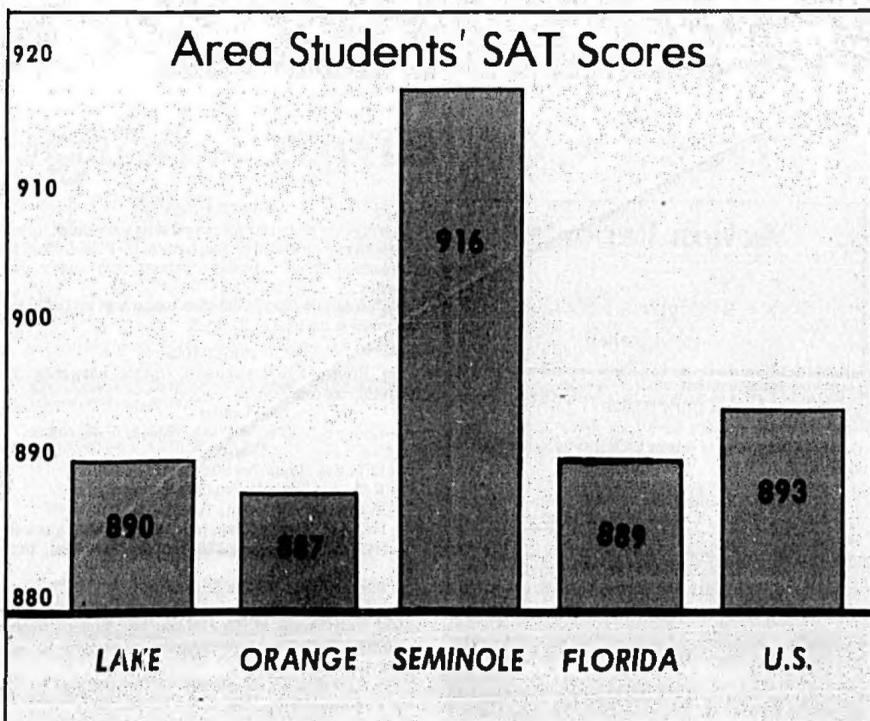

Cleveland said the letter of "no prejudice" means the funds will be allocated to the Sanford Airport if money is available. — DONNA ESTES

Seminole County Students Are The Best Around, SAT Scores Show

By MICHAEL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County students flexed their academic muscles on this year's Scholastic Aptitude Test. They not only beat the state and national averages, they also outscored neighboring counties, and by healthy margins.

Seminole County's average of 916 on the grueling examination topped Orange County by 29 points and was 26 points higher than the Lake County average. Figures for Volusia County were unavailable today.

Seminole County students improved both their verbal and math scores to improve their performance on the test by seven points from 1980-81. Seminole students averaged 435 on the verbal portion of the test and 481 on the math.

In Orange County, the average verbal score was 422, up one point from last year's average. The math score, 465 remained unchanged from 1980-81. Lake County students scored 415 on the verbal portion and 475 on the math.

Bob King, assistant for testing in Seminole County, said scores in the county have remained steady over the past few years.

In 1976-77 the scores averaged 907. The following year they dropped to 901. Then, in 1978-79 the average shot back up to 914 and in 1979-80 the average climbed to 919. Last year it declined to 909.

King predicts the average in Seminole County will continue to climb. A new code of conduct, which school officials hope will eliminate disturbances in the classroom, should help and smaller writing classes which have been set up in the high schools also will be a factor, he said.

The economy also may play a role, King said. "The economy will create more competition for scholarships."

Many colleges and universities use the SAT as a requirement for admission. At some prestigious schools a score of 550 is necessary for admission.

Officials from College Board, the New York group which administers the test, claim there is a direct relationship between the number of students who take the test and the averages. The more students who take it, the lower the average.

In Seminole County the percentage of students taking the SAT has been about as stable as the scores. About 46 percent of the students take the SAT each year, King said.

He said Iowa, which ranks at the top for state average, has only about 2 percent of the students taking the SAT. Most Midwestern students take the American College Testing test, he said.

Nationally, about 33 percent of students take the SAT each year, College Board officials said.

In Orange County, 38 percent of the students took the test and school officials are pleased with the average, slightly below the national and state averages, because so many students took the test.

Boys outscored the girls in Seminole County. The 465 boys who took the test averaged 444 for the verbal and 509 for the math. The average for the 559 girls was 428 for the verbal and 457 for the math.

The trend also was reflected in Lake County. There, boys averaged 420 on the verbal and 494 on the math. The girls averaged 411 on the verbal and 458 on the math. Overall the boys scored 55 points higher than the girls.

Dr. Norman Duncan, testing director in Lake County has also noticed an unusual trend among female students there.

According to Dr. Duncan, scores for the girls drop significantly in the odd-numbered years. He said girls averaged 404 on the verbal in 1977-78. The following year the average climbed to 439 but in 1979-80 it fell again to 407. In 1980-81, the average was 430. This year's average was 411.

IN BRIEF

Koch Is Upset In N.Y. Democratic Governor's Bid

NEW YORK (UPI) — Liberal Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo has scored the biggest upset of the 1982 primary season, defeating popular New York City Mayor Edward Koch in the bitterly fought battle for the New York Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Koch, who once said in a widely publicized interview that living in rural America was "a joke," lost upstate New York by 100,000 votes — nearly twice his margin of defeat statewide.

The defeat was a major setback for the popular New York City mayor who many thought would launch a presidential campaign through the governorship. A Koch victory in November also would have meant City Council President Carol Bellamy would have inherited his job — giving New York its first woman mayor.

'Death List' Convinced Jury

HAYWARD, Calif. (UPI) — Jurors said the presentation of Juan Corona's "death list" — a work ledger with the names of eight murder victims — convinced them to convict him again for the hacking slayings of 25 farm laborers.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated 10 days in the retrial, which cost California taxpayers more than $5 million and sparked charges of needless extravagance. The first trial cost only $415,000.

Despite the second conviction, Corona is eligible to apply for a parole hearing upon his return to the state Department of Corrections on the basis of his 11½ years in prison. However, parole officials said any immediate decision on his release was unlikely.

Satellite-To-Home TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission has given its approval to what may become the nation's first television service to be broadcast direct from a satellite to the living room.

On a 6-1 vote Thursday, the FCC granted an application by Satellite Television Corp. to begin setting up a system that eventually would offer three channels of programming to all 50 states for a monthly fee.

STC, a subsidiary of Communications Satellite Corp., is the first of nine firms seeking permission to operate such a service, hailed by some observers as the next big step in television and on a par with the introduction of color. The FCC staff said it expected to act on the remaining applications within the next several weeks.

Educators Endorse Library Bond Issue

The Executive Board of the Seminole Education Association (SEA) has endorsed the library bond issue which will go before the voters Oct. 5. Helen Goodson, SEA president, explained the group's stand by saying, "No other service offered to the public from municipal government has such a close partnership to our schools as does the library system. We as the educators of Seminole County recognize the need to improve this most valuable program to our patrons."

Finances generated from the sale of the bonds will be used to:

Purchase 50,000 new books, relocate the Casselberry branch into a permanent site, expand the Sanford branch, and build four new library sites — Forest City-Wekiva, Lake Howell-Tuskawilla, Oviedo, and Lake Mary.

"Voters are encouraged to take this opportunity to put into the hands of our citizens, especially our youth, the treasures of literature that can only be provided if we have adequate library facilities," Goodson said.

United Way Red Cross, Other Agencies Help Many In Need

(Throughout the 1982 United Way of Seminole County fund, the Herald will spotlight various agencies which will receive in the coming year a share of the funds raised. The goal this year is $338,000.)

Living in the "Hurricane Belt," people are all aware of Red Cross Disaster Services and the assistance the American Red Cross provides to victims of natural disasters, but it was a tornado and devastating hail storm that brought a Red Cross National Disaster team into northern Seminole County this past April with over $58,000 worth of assistance.

Seventy three families from Sanford to Geneva received some kind of financial assistance from Red Cross after the storm and each family was treated on an individual basis. One particular case brought a multitude of problems for the Red Cross.

A home visit to assess the damage on a Sanford man's home confirmed the home was uninhabitable, but after the man was placed in a local hotel, it was learned that it was not economically feasible to repair his home.

Red Cross was finally able to find someone who offered to repair the home, but another problem arose. Under the emergency assistance program, time allocated for temporary shelter was running out.

The Red Cross then had to find someone who was willing to temporarily give the man a place to live until his home could be repaired. The man has since returned to his home and is reportedly doing well. Although not typical, the case does serve as an example of the individuality of each application for Red Cross disaster assistance.

Most of these cases, however, are not the result of storms.

One family burnouts are by far the largest need for Red Cross disaster services each year. During the past year, for example, the Central Florida Chapter responded to 33 individual one family fires in Seminole County alone.

American Red Cross Disaster Services is, however, only one agency which falls under a massive humanitarian organization known as the American Red Cross. Other such agencies include Red Cross Blood Services, Red Cross Safety Services, Red Cross Health Services, Red Cross Service to Military Families and Veterans, and several others.

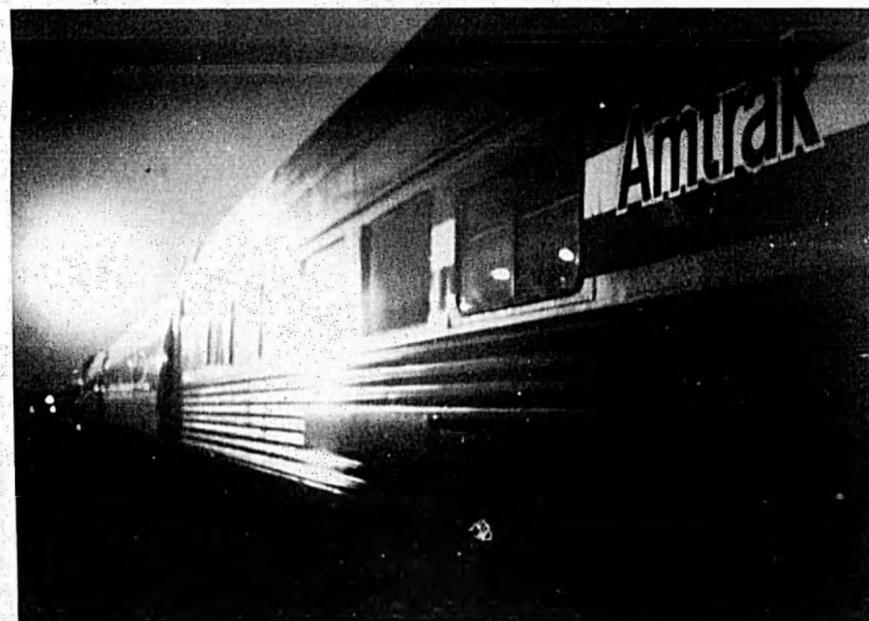

All of the services are available to citizens of Seminole County through the central Florida Chapter Seminole Service Center in Casselberry which is financially supported by the Seminole County United Way.

A new service now provided by American Red Cross Community Volunteer Services is an infant car seat loan service known as K.I.S.S. ("Keep Infants Seated Safely"). Florida State law beginning next July will require youngsters from birth to 5 years of age to be restrained while riding in vehicles. The Central Florida Chapter loans safety-approved seats to parents of small youngsters for a small deposit. Most of the deposit is returned to the family when the seat is returned.

For information on any of the Red Cross agencies or to become a Red Cross volunteer, persons may call 831-3000 in Casselberry or visit the Seminole County Service Center at 350 N. Highway 17-92.

United Way agencies include the American Red Cross, Boy Scouts of America, Catholic Social Services, Children's Home Society, Community Coordinated Child Care, Consumer Credit Counseling Service, Federation of Senior Citizens, Girl Scouts of America, Good Samaritan Home, Grove Counseling Center, Hospice of Central Florida, Jewish Family Service, Omega Workshop, Retired Senior Volunteer Program, Salvation Army, Spouse Abuse, Inc., USO, Visiting Nurse Association, We Care and YMCA.

Following a four-day nationwide rail strike, the trains were rolling again in Sanford Thursday night. This Amtrak train pulled into the station about 7:45 p.m., but no one got on or off.

Accused Of Firing Worker Called For Jury Duty

S&L Executive Faces Contempt Charge

An executive of the Pioneer Federal Savings & Loan has been ordered to appear in Seminole Circuit Court Oct. 5 to face a possible contempt of court charge for allegedly firing a subordinate because he refused to ignore a summons for jury duty.

Robert Fintel, a Pioneer assistant vice president and comptroller in the firm's Clearwater office, has been ordered to appear before Judge Kenneth M. Leffler to show cause why he shouldn't be held in contempt for the July 6 firing of Carl W. Neidhart, a former Pioneer accounting clerk.

If Fintel is found in contempt, he could be jailed for up to 60 days and fined as much as $500.

Florida law prohibits an employer from dismissing or threatening to fire an employee because of jury duty.

An investigation was begun into the matter July 13 when the 28-year-old Neidhart told court officials that he had lost his job a week before because of a dispute over his serving on a jury. According to court records, Neidhart was living temporarily in Clearwater while working for Pioneer which had employed him for two years in its Winter Park office.

After returning to his Lake Mary home from a week's vacation in early July, Neidhart said he received his jury summons.

Neidhart said he told Fintel about the summons on July 6, adding that Fintel asked him not to appear and promised at one point to take care of the summons.

In a sworn statement, Neidhart said he insisted on performing jury duty and was fired.

DUI ARRESTS

The following persons have been arrested in Seminole County on the charge of driving under the influence (DUI) of alcohol:

- Dennis Leo Blodgett, 31, Orlando, was stopped for speeding at 2:30 a.m. Tuesday on State Road 436 at Howell Branch Road.
- Jane Rose Grenier, 43, of 1221 Lancelot Way, Casselberry, was arrested Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. on 17-92 in Longwood after she was stopped for driving on the wrong side of the road.
- George L. Barnes, 31, Orlando, was arrested at 9:25 p.m. Thursday on Lake Mary Blvd. for having one headlight out.
- Gary E. Peters, 19, 1505 W. 25th St., Sanford, was involved in a traffic accident on 17-92 about 11:20 p.m. and also was cited for DUI.

Two Unopposed Candidates Must Run In Altamonte

Although incumbents Bob Reis and Lee Constantine have no opposition in their bids for re-election to the Altamonte Springs city commission, the city charter requires their names be on the ballot in the Nov. 2 election.

Printing a ballot for each registered voter in the city at 18 cents a vote will cost the city about $1,600, City Manager Jeff Etchberger said. There are 9,003 registered voters in the city, but the books will be open until Oct. 2 for others to register.

"It could be worse," Etchberger added, "since the city election coincides with the county and state election this year, Camie (County Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce) has graciously agreed to let her county election poll workers handle the city ballots as well."

"It will mean a savings of between $13,000 and $15,000 for us," he said. "Last year, there was no county or state election so the city had to have its own election even though the candidates were unopposed." The city last year had to hire 33 poll workers who were paid $40 each to man the city's 15 precincts.

Ooey Goey Fire

INDUSTRY, Calif. (UPI) — A fire at the American Rubber Band Co. melted half-a-billion rubber bands into an oozing goo. Company officials said the 220,000 pounds of rubber bands were worth $500,000.

Smelly smoke billowed into the air when the roof of the 60-by-9 foot building collapsed early Thursday, firefighters said. There were no injuries.

It took six fire companies about an hour to extinguish the blaze.

BAG BAGGED

A travel bag containing $560 worth of personal property was stolen from a car owned by Stephanie Helen Findel, 36, of 128 Cottesmore Circle, Longwood, between 2:15 and 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Ms. Findel told sheriff's deputies her car was parked in her driveway at the time of the theft.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Privacy Is Greater At Home Than Office

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court says citizens do not enjoy the same right of privacy in their offices as they do in their homes.

In a 6-0 ruling Thursday, the high court refused to expand a controversial earlier decision and upheld the conviction of a Hollywood pawn broker for attempted trafficking in stolen property based primarily on evidence gathered by a "body bug" radio transmitter worn by a police informer.

Defendant Alex Morningstar was seeking to have the evidence suppressed on the grounds that his privacy was unlawfully invaded by the use of a hidden transmitter in his office.

Morningstar cited a ruling last year by the court that an undercover police officer had violated the state Constitution by wearing a body bug into an alleged drug dealer's home without a warrant.

But the justices drew a distinction between an office and a home and ruled that the degree of privacy guaranteed for each by the state Constitution is not the same.

Miami Port Still Blocked

MIAMI (UPI)—The danger from dangerous chemicals is over, but an aging, 225-foot freighter blocked the Miami River for the third day today.

Coast Guard and Florida Marine Patrol spokesmen said they hoped today to remove the aging, 225-foot freighter Poinciana from the spot where it ran aground Wednesday. The ship partially sank and threatened for more than a day to create toxic chlorine fumes by spilling hypochlorides into the water.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI)—The four crew members of the first operational space shuttle prepared today to put the Columbia through its paces in a mock blastoff that will simulate their scheduled Veterans Day Launch.

No engines will be fired during the dry countdown lift off, but the test is designed to simulate launch day, including a crew breakfast and a brief physical.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Israeli General Resigns; Troops Arrive In Beirut

United Press International

A force of 350 French paratroopers, backed by U.S. Marines offshore, landed in Beirut today to lead the peacekeeping force sent to restore calm in Lebanon, and a top Israeli general quit over the Palestinian refugee camp massacre.

Lebanon's new president, Amin Gemayel ordered an investigation into the massacre of hundreds of Palestinians in west Beirut last week by Israel's Christian Phalangist allies, Beirut newspapers said.

Brig. Gen. Amram Mitzna, one of the Israeli army's most successful and promising top-level officers, resigned saying he could no longer serve due to the "past days' events in Beirut," an Israeli military spokesman said.

The resignation came as a news report said top Israeli army officials knew of the deaths of "300 civilians and terrorists" at refugee camps in Beirut only hours after the 36-hour Christian militia rampage began.

Palace Intruder Innocent

LONDON (UPI)—British newspapers lashed out today at the acquittal of Michael Fagan, the Buckingham Palace intruder, in a bizarre trial they said was more reminiscent of "Alice in Wonderland" than the Old Bailey.

Fagan, who told Britain's highest criminal court he "did the queen a favor" by twice breaking into Buckingham Palace and once sitting on her bed, was found innocent Thursday of stealing wine on his first trip to the royal pad. He was detained on his second visit when he spent an hour roaming the building before he allegedly woke the queen in her bedroom.

"I wanted to show the queen was not too safe...I could have been a rapist or something," the 31-year-old unemployed laborer said. "In my opinion I have done the Queen a favor, I proved her security was not one up."

Helms' Measure Not Given A Prayer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate failed in a fourth — and final — effort Thursday to stop a liberal filibuster against Sen. Jesse Helms' school prayer proposal, probably killing the measure for this year.

"It's time to move on," Senate Republican leader Howard Baker bluntly told his colleagues after the fourth cloture attempt this week came up short. The vote was 53-45, seven shy of the 60 needed to cut off debate.

"At some point this has to end, and this is that point," Baker said.

Baker, threatening a "very late" session, pressed for passage by day's end of a crucial bill to boost the national debt ceiling which has been the vehicle for the two-month debate on the New Right's social agenda of anti-abortion and school prayer measures.

Economic Issues Are Expected To Dominate Time Left In Session

The GOP leader said he had met his promise to give conservatives a debate on their social issues. Noting the Senate had consumed more than 50 hours over a month's time, Baker said, "Certainly no one can claim we haven't had that debate."

Baker, of Tennessee, moved to strip the debt bill of all amendments in order to send the House-passed version of it directly to President Reagan.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said Democrats would try to get approval of amendments dealing with jobs and unemployment benefits. But Baker's forces were confident they could muster the votes to keep the bill "clean."

The bill, raising the limit on the debt from $1.143 trillion to $1.290 trillion, must be enacted by Oct. 1 to keep the government running.

In a last-gasp parliamentary maneuver, Helms, R-N.C., moved to recommit the debt limit bill to committee with instructions to write the prayer measure into it.

But Baker moved to kill Helms' latest tactic and the Senate tabled it 51-48.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., one of the leaders of the filibuster, said he believed the New Right's "balloon has been punctured."

"Most Americans are concerned with economic, gut, pocketbook issues," Baucus said. "I'd be very surprised if it comes up again this year."

President Reagan, who went to bat for a Helms anti-abortion measure that also fell victim to the filibuster, has been in the background during the school prayer debate.

In his radio speech last Saturday, Reagan repeated his call for a constitutional amendment to allow prayer but did not mention the Helms' proposal to strip the Supreme Court of power to review state prayer laws.

Ray Donovan: Excess Baggage

The investigation of Labor Secretary Ray Donovan has been closed again by Leon Silverman, the prosecutor who closed it once before and then reopened it to consider new evidence linking the Cabinet member to organized crime.

We wish we could share the satisfaction of the White House in this outcome of the belated probing into Donovan's business affairs, but we cannot.

Silverman has satisfied himself that there is no case for criminal prosecution of Donovan in the stories of bribery, kickbacks, and other unsavory dealings involving him and his construction firm in New Jersey. That is the substance of the special prosecutor's statement. The allegations against Donovan cannot be corroborated, and some of the informants have changed their stories since the charges first were made.

It is significant that when Silverman was asked by a reporter if he were giving the secretary "a clean bill of health," he would only refer back to his original statement.

That is something less than a wholehearted vindication — even though that is what Donovan and the White House would like to make of it.

We are left with a labor secretary with associations in an area of New Jersey labor and politics which has been a breeding ground for scandal. We are left with the apparent gangland slaying of a witness in the special prosecutor's investigation. We are left with the fact that the FBI had deliberately curtailed its inquiry into Donovan's past prior to his Senate confirmation.

Donovan's appointment to the Cabinet may have been tied to his performance as a political fund-raiser. Whatever the case, it is abundantly clear that President Reagan could have done better in filling the Labor Department post.

He can do better now. Presidents often review their cabinets for possible changes at the midway point in their terms. Mr. Reagan is approaching that two-year mark, which offers an auspicious time to ask Donovan to make way for a successor.

The president is strong on personal loyalty to members of his team, but Donovan's troublesome past is dragging down the team with excess baggage it could do without.

Window Of Hope

In Washington, Congress may decide to deal with its own political nemesis after the Nov. election.

Sen. Robert Dole is urging President Reagan to call a special session of Congress after the election to take up Social Security issues that may be too sensitive to address under any other circumstances.

Dole sees November and December as a "window of opportunity" for Social Security reform because the expiring Congress will have a certain immunity to the political demagoguery that the issue attracts. The election will be safely behind. Members who are retiring at the end of the year will be in a position to act in the interest of what is best for the Social Security system—not what will do the least damage politically.

That kind of objective treatment is what Social Security needs. To those who would argue that a lame-duck Congress should not deal with such an important subject, we would point out that the 97th Congress was elected in 1980 to deal with urgent national problems, and Social Security was near the top of the list. The subject belongs on the agenda of this Congress—not the next one.

It's a sad commentary on representative government when elected lawmakers become petrified by the political consequences of doing what they were elected to do. But politics is always the art of the possible. The best possibility for responsible action putting Social Security back on its feet may lie in a special session of Congress this fall.

If the bi-partisan commission created by President Reagan last year to study the Social Security problem and recommend solutions can make its report in time, the president should give serious consideration to Dole's suggestion.

BERRY'S WORLD

"When I grow up, I'm going to be successful and not have much time to spend with my kids, too!"

By MICHAEL BEHA

There was good news for Seminole County school officials Wednesday with the word that seniors who took the Scholastic Aptitude Test scored above the national and state averages and improved their average score from last year.

But one person who perhaps did not do as well on the SAT test was the United Press International writer who wrote this opening sentence to the story on the test scores:

"Florida High School seniors who took the Scholastic Aptitude test last year scored slightly below the national average, but fared better than Floridians did two years ago on the grueling college entrance exam."

In other words, they fared fairly well on the exam.

Superintendent Robert W. Hughes of the Seminole County School District announced that the week of Oct. 3-9 has been declared School Bus Safety Week in Florida.

"Governor Graham recently signed a proclamation and called on the citizens of the state to exercise constant courtesy and caution when near school buses," said Superintendent Hughes.

"In Florida, we have over 7,000 school buses. They transport more than 700,000 students to and from school each school day and travel nearly 122 million miles a year," added Hughes. He went on to say that the Seminole County School System uses 200 school buses to transport 18,955 students more than 14,000 miles per school day. That means Seminole County's school bus drivers drive more than 3,000,000 miles per year.

"During School Bus Safety Week," he said, "we want to inform the citizens of Seminole County about our outstanding transportation program. We are also asking for their cooperation in helping us to maintain or even improve our safety record. Our Seminole County school bus drivers are doing a great job, but they need the cooperation of other motorists."

One of the most common school bus driver complaints, according to Hughes, is that other motorists frequently violate the school bus stop law. "Motorists are required to stop for stopped school buses that are displaying flashing red lights and a stop arm," he said. "Sometimes the drivers are not fully alert and pass a stopped school bus. This is a very dangerous situation for our students, especially the younger children who may not be watching as closely as they should."

"We have an outstanding school bus safety record in Seminole County," Hughes said, "and we want to keep it that way."

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

On The Elderly Dictators

NEW YORK (NEA)—The recent game of musical chairs in Peking, and the rumors of Brezhnev's impending retirement in Moscow, serve to remind us that the world's two leading dictatorships are both gerontocracies—societies ruled by old men—and that major changes are impending and cannot be long delayed in both cases.

Brezhnev is 75 and in falling health; Deng Hsiao-ping, the de facto dictator of Red China whatever his actual title, is 78 and apparently fairly spry, but not (as the saying goes) getting any younger. Both are surrounded by allies and advisers in their 70s, or—in the case of Deng, who has just carried out a "reform" intended to rejuvenate the leadership—by a couple of spring chickens in their 60s. Say what you will, it's an elderly crowd in both cases.

The reason, of course, is that dictatorships find the transfer of power from one generation to another the most difficult of all tricks to pull off. Despots who survive into their 60s and 70s have usually taken care to surround themselves with fawning yes-men who are adequate to fill fountain pens but hardly the sort you'd want to turn a country over to.

Worse yet, however, are the shadowy types out on the fringes of power—men perhaps truly capable of supreme rule, but suspect, and often resentful, for that very reason. So the old tyrants hang on and on, afraid to relinquish the supreme authority that they know very well may subsequently be used against them.

The Soviet rulers, having had a couple of decades' more experience than their Chinese counterparts, have occasionally allowed losers in the power struggle to opt for what was called "retirement," though it has seldom been truly voluntary. Ordinarily, as in the cases of Malenkov, Molotov (for a time) and Khrushchev, it amounted to little more than internal exile.

In Peking, however, the Gang of Four will be lucky if they manage to settle for life imprisonment. Their nemesis, Hua Kuo-feng, though, may be more fortunate. Perhaps Deng will confer on him the sort of non-person status that Brezhnev finally allowed Khrushchev, and thus permit him to die in bed.

All this is, curiously enough, probably to the good as far as the real world is concerned. Old dictators are seldom very venturesome; their instinct, naturally enough, is to play it safe. The Soviet Union and Red China undoubtedly seem—and are—menacing enough to their neighbors; but in point of fact neither one is causing anything like the trouble it could.

It is young dictators that the world must look out for—men who can reasonably look forward to decades in which to enjoy the fruits of aggression. Chairman Mao was only 48 when he completed his conquest of the Chinese mainland, Stalin just 44 when Lenin died and left Russia effectively in his hands. Hitler was 43 when he became chancellor of Germany, and Napoleon had barely turned 30 when he assumed leadership of France.

If rumor is to be believed, Leonid Brezhnev may be planning some sort of semi-retirement at the end of this year; but you can bet your bottom ruble that nobody in Moscow is counting on his surrendering real control. Like Deng Hsiao-ping, Brezhnev will probably give up a few tedious, day-to-day responsibilities, while clinging grimly to the reality of power.

Hussein As Vulnerable As Gemayel

WASHINGTON — The assassination of Bashir Gemayel demonstrated the danger of a U.S. policy dependent on a single individual in an area where murders and coups are commonplace. Yet this is the position the United States has put itself in by the crucial role it assigns to Jordan's King Hussein in the Reagan peace plan for the Middle East.

The scary fact is that Hussein is nearly as vulnerable to violent overthrow as Gemayel was—and from many of the same sources. If anything, there are even more discontented elements that have reason to get rid of Hussein by any means available.

Both the CIA and the State Department consider Israel to be Hussein's gravest threat. Indeed, CIA sources told my associate Dale Van Atta the Israelis are believed to have tried in the past to terminate Hussein's rule and possibly his life.

Well aware of the Israeli menace, Hussein has formed a new palace guard of loyal Bedouins whose twin mission is to protect him from Israeli covert attacks as well as Palestinian terrorists. President Reagan, informed of the CIA's suspicions, is known to be upset at past Israeli attempts to oust Hussein and suspects the Israelis are still

A City Comes Back

CLEVELAND, Ohio — If the United States is to emerge from the current recession and enjoy a major business and industrial revival, the old cities of the heartland must regain their former vitality.

Happily, there are signs that one of those cities, Cleveland — long-identified with American success and prosperity, appears to be on the road back.

For some years, Cleveland suffered from a bad image. It experienced disastrous municipal leadership. Remember "Dennis the Menace" Ducinich, the youthful populist mayor? The city encountered severe financial difficulty and other problems.

All that has changed, however. Cleveland now has a very capable mayor in the person of George Volonich. His first act as mayor was to recruit 90 business executives to review and examine city finances and operations. In 1980, Cleveland emerged from default.

Restoration of sound municipal government has been the most important advance for Cleveland. The city has a comprehensive financial recovery strategy, and city government has been streamlined.

Most significantly, there has been a strong, new financial commitment to downtown Cleveland, as evidenced by large-scale private investment in new buildings and the renovation of old ones. Sohio is building a $200 million headquarters building in the heart of downtown. New construction includes the 31-story Medical Mutual Building and Ohio Bell's $41 million corporate headquarters. Other multi-million dollar business structures are in place or being built. These investments represent the business community's faith in Cleveland's future.

This is not to say that Cleveland's problems are solved. The downturn in heavy industry in the U.S. has had an impact on this and other Midwestern cities. Traditionally, Cleveland's wealth has been related to the steel, automobile and machine tool industries. Each of these industries is in trouble and in process of change. Iron mines in Michigan's upper peninsula, which ship their ore to Cleveland, are shut down. In time, however, these industries will revive as the economy revives.

Cleveland has a huge reservoir of skilled workers. The city is the home of people of a rich variety of ethnic backgrounds. The descendants of Central and east European immigrants are skilled, hard-working, self-reliant, and community-minded. They represent a great resource for the city in the future, as they have in the past. It would be a mistake for Americans elsewhere to write off a heartland city such as Cleveland.

As is the case with other older industrial cities, there must be a profound adjustment to changed conditions in industrial work. Old plants must be modernized to compete successfully against foreign enterprises. Need exists for an upgrading of the labor force to adjust to the computer and electronics revolution which is transforming industrial societies everywhere in the world. Cleveland's industrial workers are in competition with workers in South Korea, for example, and must understand that fact. The old ways in unionized industrial plants represent a dead end. Industry here also will have to move into the automatic factory era.

In these and other areas, successful adjustment depends on understanding and determination by management and labor. Where there's a will, there's a way. Recent events in Cleveland reflect a strong will to overcome the decay of recent decades and to restore the prosperity that made this one of the great American cities.

remains to be seen. But he has survived for more than 30 years now, through a combination of political skill, personal courage and a little bit of luck.

In July 1951, the teenage Hussein was standing beside his grandfather, King Abdullah, when assassins murdered the monarch at a mosque in East Jerusalem. Hussein escaped death when a bullet was deflected by a medal on his chest. A year later he became king when his father was removed because of mental illness.

Since that first miraculous escape, the diminutive king has survived at least 16 assassination attempts, and has also managed to survive his own death-defying stunts at the controls of high-speed cars, planes and helicopters. Some of his escapes have been bizarre. Once acid was substituted for Hussein's nose drops; but the royal sinuses apparently cleared up before he had to reach for the deadly medicine dropper. On another occasion, he strayed into Syrian air space in an unarmed plane, and eluded the pursuing MiGs by diving straight down and hugging the landscape all the way back to Jordan.

DON GRAFF

Hussein: Natural Survivor

It should come as no surprise that Jordan's King Hussein is at the Mideast center stage.

He's been there, or very close to it, often enough before in a 30-year reign almost as long as the Arab-Israeli wars themselves.

He started early, at 15, with the assassination of his grandfather, King Abdullah, in Jerusalem. Hussein was there, narrowly escaping a bullet himself. He became king two years later when his mentally unstable father was put aside.

The odds at that time on his being able to hold the throne were not good. The young king had acquired a chunk of largely arid real estate decreed a country by the British Foreign Office for the convenience of his Hashemite family, driven out of the ancestral domain in what is now Saudi Arabia by Ibn Saud.

Jordan shared none of the oil wealth of its Arab neighbors, but it had something else in dangerous abundance—Palestinians. Refugees from the 1948 war or residents of the West Bank annexed by Abdullah, they outnumbered the native bedouins whose loyalty, plus the British-trained Arab Legion, kept Hussein in power.

Hussein held a weak hand in a rough game. The dealer was Gamal Abdel Nasser, who made no secret of his contempt for the Western-oriented king. Hussein lost his one ally with the 1958 revolution in Iraq. His cousin, King Faisal, was hanged in the streets of Baghdad.

Hussein, however, has survived not only Faisal of Iraq but Nasser and Sadat in Egypt, the shah in Iran and four Saudi kings, among other Mideastern movers and shakers. In two short but sharp clashes in the early '70s, he drove the armed PLO out of Jordan.

Hussein is now the key—in Washington's view, at least—to the Reagan administration's plans for a post-Lebanon resolution of the Palestinian problem. It is believed his willingness to negotiate on the proposed Palestinian West Bank affiliated with Jordan would compel Israel to do likewise.

Hussein's initial reaction to the proposal is in interesting contrast to his response to the 1978 Camp David agreements. Back then he was also seen as a key, and was under intense pressure to join the American-brokered Israeli-Egyptian settlement.

He resisted, publicly accusing the Carter administration of "arm-twisting" in threatening to hold up economic and military aid to Jordan. He predicted his country's relations with the United States would be negatively affected for a long time to come.

The informed explanation then was that Hussein was under intense political and economic pressure. He had no choice but to go along with the Arab ostracism of Egypt.

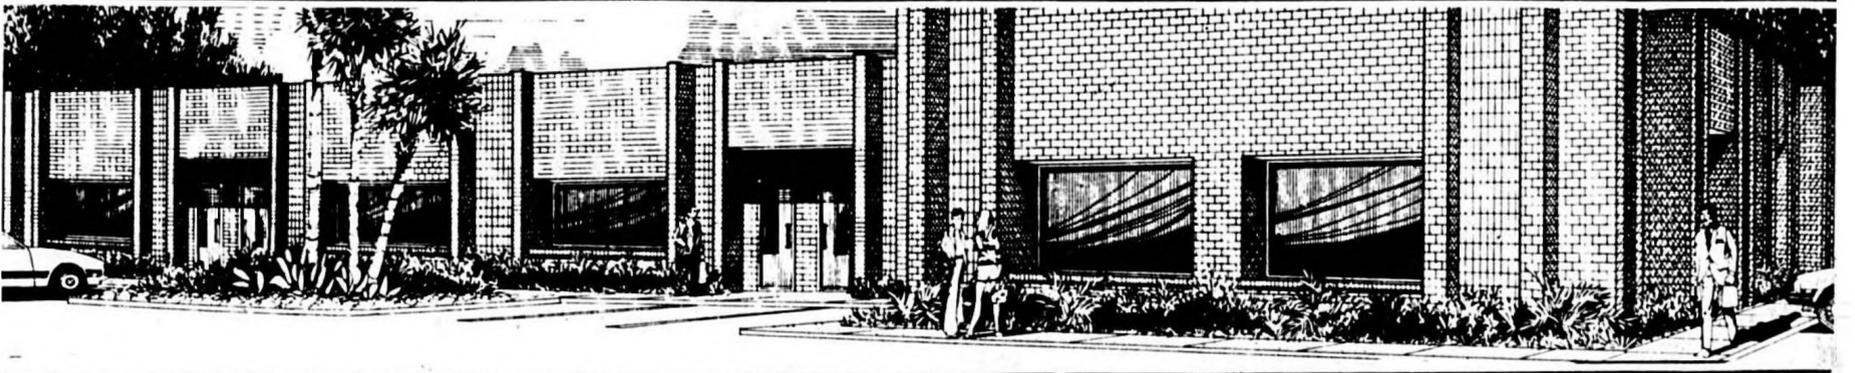

This time, he isn't saying exactly yes, but it's certainly not no. Even following the Arab summit in Morocco, which produced a Palestinian proposal contradicting Washington's on the most important points—West Bank independence and the primacy of the PLO as Palestinian representative—he continues to indicate interest in at least talking about possibly talking.

*More than once, Hussein has snuffed out rebellion among his army officers by the gutsy expedient of appearing in their midst and daring them to kill him. His motorcade has been ambushed on a number of occasions, and though others in his party were killed, Hussein always came through.

The greatest threat to his regime came from the Palestinian guerrillas who flooded into Jordan from the West Bank after the 1967 war. In 1970, faced with anarchy, Hussein unleashed his loyal Bedouin-led army on the Palestine Liberation Organization forces and drove them out of Jordan.

Today, though Palestinians make up 65 percent of Jordan's population and dominate the major professions, Hussein "will not accede to PLO demands for an expanded presence in Jordan," according to a Pentagon intelligence report. Nor will he let the PLO use his country as a base against Israel. Despite this, the Israelis still want to get rid of the king.

Footnote: Any allegation that the Israeli government had or was attempting to overthrow or do bodily harm to King Hussein, said an Israeli Embassy spokesperson, is "nonsense."

WESTERN AUTO FACELIFT

This architectural rendering designed by Kevin Spolski shows the new look to be given the former Western Auto building at 301 W. First St., Sanford. Plans for converting the store to a professional office to be known as The First Professional

Building were approved by the Sanford Planning and Zoning Board Thursday night. Work is scheduled to begin Monday on the complete renovation of the 50-year-old building purchased in July by Spolski and his partner in Designed Structures, Inc. from Robert Ball Sr. The project, which will include a brick exterior, and five offices with a total of 11,000 sq. ft. of lease space, is due for completion in 60 days, and is expected to cost about $300,000. Bart Peterson of Inland Realty handled the sale. They plan to cater to lawyers and doctors.

Artificial Blood Cells Tested

CHICAGO (UPI) — A bio-engineer is testing miniature artificial red blood cells he says could someday solve blood transfusion problems and might make it possible to convert animal blood for use in human veins.

Irving Miller says the new cells can be used with any blood type, ending the need for cross-matching blood transfusions to prevent potentially deadly reactions, and can be stored indefinitely.

Miller outlined his finding Monday during an American Medical Association conference for science writers.

The experimental cells were made from natural blood, which was broken down in a kitchen blender. The artificial cells are only about one-tenth the size of natural cells.

He says perfecting the artificial cells could avoid the risk of hepatitis from transfusions — a problem in many parts of the world — and make possible the temporary replacement of a patient's entire blood supply during surgery.

Ultimately it may even be possible to turn oxygen-carrying hemoglobin from the blood of slaughtered cattle into artificial cells for humans because all hemoglobin is the same, he said.

Miller, associate vice chancellor for research at the University of Illinois, is working on the new blood cells with Dr. Ljubomir Djordjević at Chicago's Rush-Presbyterian St. Luke's Medical Center. The research started seven years ago.

Miller says test animals have recovered fully from having up to half their blood replaced by the artificial cells, although rats who received total transfusions of artificial cells eventually died of shock.

"Assuming we run into no major problems, we'll probably be ready for human trials within the next decade," Miller said.

"Natural blood was not meant to be transfused," he said. Miller said protein in natural blood cell walls can trigger tissue rejection in a transfusion, much as donated organs may be rejected after they are transplanted.

He said his process should get around that problem by stripping away the natural cell walls, getting rid of the protein with its tissue rejection threat and ending the need for cross-matching.

The remaining hemoglobin and most other normal cell contents then are wrapped with a new skin of lecithin and cholesterol, fatty substances like those in the original skin. Miller said he believes the process eliminates such bloodborne diseases as hepatitis, although that has not yet been proven.

"We create a bag of hemoglobin, but it's not a living cell," Miller said.

Because the artificial cells are not living tissue, he said, they can also be stored indefinitely. Blood banks must now discard blood that remains in storage for more than 35 days.

Miller said his tiny artificial cells represent an improvement over fluorocarbon blood substitutes, which have been used in experiments but carry only one-sixth as much oxygen as normal blood.

Uncle Sam Wants No Reluctant Soldiers

FORT McCLELLAN, Ala. (NEA) — Six weeks after he volunteered to join the Army for two years, the young recruit decided he'd made a mistake. He didn't like the routine, the rigors or the discipline of the service, so he told friends in his basic training unit here that he was going to get out.

"How?" they asked.

"Watch," he said. That week he purposely missed all of the targets during qualification shooting at the rifle range. He was ordered to try again, several times, but he refused to record a score. Therefore, since the Army will not accept candidates who do not pass weapons qualifications, he was subsequently discharged.

And his case is not unusual in today's military. The recruit, who cannot be identified for reasons of his right to privacy, is only one of hundreds of thousands of men and women who are demanding and being given premature service separations in the four branches of the All Volunteer Force.

They join at their own choosing. They sign contracts pledging to stay in through their enlistments. But then they quit whenever they wish. For example, the aforementioned recruit served with a military police training unit in which fewer than half the enlistees completed the first four months.

That dropout rate was registered at Company E of the 10th MP Training Battalion, and it is said to be somewhat unusual. But even the average rate of resignations today is sky high. Pentagon administrators say at least one of every three people who join the Army quits before finishing his enlistment.

And they quit with little or no trouble. Officers at the MP training unit here say anyone who chooses can get out of the AVF. The excuses are only a formality. Some soldiers fail to shoot straight, others purposely flunk other tests. Many recruits are separated for refusing to obey regulations.

"There are thousand ploys," says a colonel who has seen them all. "A month ago we had a kid who climbed on the roof and wouldn't come down. Last year there was a guy who threatened to cut his fingers off. I remember a boy who showed up one day wearing lipstick; he put a kiss on the mess sergeant."

The colonel shakes his head at the telling. And he refers to changing times. "If you tried to quit the Army 10 years ago you'd be thrown in prison, or drummed out in shame. Now there's a different policy. We don't want deadwood anymore, we don't want to keep soldiers who don't want to stay."

So that's why the dropout rate is so high. Quietly, and without any announcement, the military has in recent years broken with its tradition of forcing soldiers to serve their terms. A Pentagon spokesman says that the present attitude is: "Let them go if they want to go, and good riddance."

He says good riddance because the services have had to spend too much time coping with misfits. The AVF has lowered its standards considerably, to fill the ranks, and in the process it has attracted a large number of what the spokesman calls "badly educated, poorly motivated and mostly reluctant turkeys."

And that's no way to bolster the national defense. Old hands say that reluctant troops are more trouble than they are worth. Senior sergeants at Fort McClellan claim they slow down the training, they hold back the other enlistees, and, more important, they cause most of the day-to-day turmoil. One sergeant cites this illustration: "We had a woman recruit from Newark, N.J., who didn't want to train, who didn't want to work, and who didn't want to wear boots. The only thing she wanted to do was to find a boyfriend. I'll never forget it. I spent most of my time trying to keep her from sneaking into the bushes with the men."

What happened?

"She finally got pregnant, thank God, so she quit and went back home. I'll tell you this, she was very disruptive." She was also statistically commonplace. For women are far more likely than men to quit the armed forces before their time. Personnel authorities at the Pentagon say at least 44 percent of the female recruits are prematurely discharged; most of them complain that they are unable to adapt.

By the way, most men who quit also say they are unable to adapt to their enlistments. And this is the part of the dropout phenomenon that has service veterans worried. If today's young men and women can not adapt to a military force at peace, what would happen if the nation was threatened by war?

"I'll tell you what would happen," says a Fort McClellan master sergeant. "If we continue to let people come and go here as they please, if we make the Army more and more like a civilian job, then 10 minutes after somebody takes the next shot at us we won't have anybody left in uniform to shoot back."

Guess What's Cooking At The Field Museum?

CHICAGO (UPI) — Every now and then, Chicago police drop by the Field Museum to see what's cooking.

It could be an elephant. Or a rhinoceros. Or a human torso.

The visitors from headquarters are also interested in the beetles.

Busy at work in their glass cages, the beetles can strip the corpse of a small mammal to the bare bones overnight. They are encouraged to do so. They are, presumably, happy beetles.

The police do not come for cultural enrichment at one of the world's four or five great museums of natural history.

They just feel a need to check the museum's chest-high vats where the flesh is boiled off once-living creatures so scientists can get down to the skeletal essentials.

To the police mind, this is too neat a way to dispose of a body to be ignored. And human bodies are sometimes boiled down at the Field Museum in the interests of medicine. Some hospitals lack adequate facilities for bone stripping.

Body disposal has long been a professional interest of the Chicago police and the city's murderers. It is a mere sideline at the Field Museum.

Its business and its boast is to introduce the world, the great globe itself, to anyone who wants to know where he is, where he came from and where he is going.

It is a hulk of a place close by the Lake Michigan shore covering 20 acres of floor space and containing about 16 million exhibits (although only about half are shown at one time).

For most of the past year, it has been run by a doctor of international law who quit 12 years as president of the University of Iowa to try a new way of drumming enlightenment into the Middle West and the rest of America.

Willard Lee "Sandy" Boyd is a cockwaddled Minnesotan who came to Iowa more than 27 years ago, rose through the law school to the presidency and survived the student turnouts of the '60s with aplomb. He is an unabashed intellectual who became one of the most popular men in the state and then jolted everybody by announcing he was quitting to become caretaker of a bunch of stuffed animals and assorted artifacts.

"I'm still teaching youth," Boyd said in an interview. "I was 54 and when I had an occasion got up to the altar with some other universities I backed away because it seemed to me it would be replicative of what I was doing."

"I thought I'd better inhale and do something else. "This is a world I've never been in before. It's a different way of coming after education. We've got the whole universe here."

"Forty percent of the visitors who come here are in formal educational contexts. We've got 3,000 continuing education students here on evening classes. We've got school children ... we range from a children's museum to a research institute."

"We even have a football team across the street. I'm used to that."

Boyd used to be used to the University of Iowa Hawkeyes, but he is now laying claim to the Chicago Bears. They play their home games across the street in Soldier Field.

It takes an athlete of NFL caliber to play an afternoon at the Field Museum.

There is hardly a native Chicagoan who was not dragged by parental hands into its great hall, who will not remember for life the first sight of the fighting elephants or the cretaceous dinosaur (in skeleton form) which have lorded it there as long as mature memory can reach.

There is hardly a Chicago parent who has not brought at least one child or the semblance of a stampeding herd of children to the museum.

Agog, amazed, the children charge from the dinosaur to the elephants, to the replicas of primitive man (cozy scenes about the home cave), to the ostriches, the albatross, the jackass penguin, the bongo (antelope; bouscous avrycarus), the hyenas, the lion, the giraffes, the panda labeled as shot personally by Theodore Roosevelt, and, maybe, if the parent's stamina lasts, a charming and poignant scene of a Pawnee girl about to be sacrificed as a tribute to the morning star.

The parent's legs ache. His feet protest bitterly. He seriously considers the advantages of changing his lot for a place on the line of the Chicago Bears.

The endurance test at the Field Museum is part of the code of family life in Chicago. It is just something that a dutiful parent does and a child must do.

Neither the parents nor the children are likely to have a genuine perception of what they are seeing or even where they really are.

They are, Boyd likes to think, in a university. Its four major subjects are anthropology, botany, geology and zoology. It seeks to span the essentials of human knowledge.

The basic faculty consists of curators, many of them globetrotting Ph.D's. Far corners of the world are often where they must do their research and the essential work of a museum, collecting.

Boyd is fond of quoting another university president, the late Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, on the true conception of his museum.

"As an educational institution, Field Museum possesses certain special advantages," Hutchins said in 1943. "It has no football team. It gives no course credits or course examinations and awards no degrees."

"The museum is seductive. Perhaps because it does not perform seduction, but woos the learner with artful wiles, it continues to deceive him into educating himself as long as he lives."

Nothing To Lose For Lake Mary, Hornets Tonight

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald Sports Writer

Tonight's matchup between Bishop Moore and Lake Mary at the Rams home field will be a battle of two teams that have everything to gain and not much to lose.

The Rams and Hornets are both after win number one. Lake Mary, going after its first varsity win ever and Bishop Moore trying to start a winning tradition after being dubbed as underdogs for so many seasons in the past.

"It's something our students and fans are sick of hearing about," Bishop Moore coach Jack Bloomingdale said of his team's role of the underdog. "We have more experience and a lot more size this year and would like to start a winning tradition here."

Lake Mary coach Roger Beathard believes that the Rams are capable of claiming win number one over Bishop Moore. "I sincerely believe that Bishop Moore will be our first victory," Beathard said.

So far in '82 the Hornets have suffered defeat at the hands of Lake Howell (20-9) and powerful Eustis (21-6).

"We need to improve our passing attack," Bloomingdale said. "If we get a couple of sustained drives and put the ball in the end zone a few times, we will be okay."

The Hornets have a pair of capable quarterbacks in Tim Scheffelin and Chris Saunders while Tommy Lomas and Pete Stapp are the leading ball carriers.

The offensive and defensive lines are both solid and sizeable. Tackles Mike Gentile (6-2, 220) and Paul Yerashunas (6-3, 235) bolster the offensive line while Bob Cannon (6-3, 230) and Greg Prose (5-11, 195) anchor the defensive line.

"We are solid defensively," Bloomingdale said. "All we need is to keep the defense off the field to give it some rest and keep away from mistakes in important situations."

Bloomingdale feels, as far as experience and size goes, the Hornets have the advantage. "But we lack speed in the backfield and in receivers." Still, Bloomingdale said he expects a close game. "They (Lake Mary) are very inexperienced and that's hurting them. Their defense is pretty solid at times and I know they are going to be prepared to make it a tough game."

Lake Mary has had trouble in establishing production from its offense. Beathard saw some improvement a week ago against Bartow and believes his squad will improve more with every game.

Lake Mary's 9-2 record includes losses to Rockledge, 23-0, and Bartow, 29-0. Both of those teams are usually around the top in their area.

The Rams are entering the part of its schedule where it will face its weakest competition. Next week, the Rams host lowly Wynmore Tech, and if Lake Mary doesn't get its first win against Bishop Moore, it has a good opportunity to get it against Wynmore.

Tribe Looks For First 'W'

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor

Edgewater football coach Bob Dolce knows how it feels to be on top. The last two years, however, he's found his Eagles floundering in the second division.

It doesn't look much different this year. Edgewater is 0-2 entering tonight's 8 o'clock game with coach Jerry Posey's similar 0-2 Fighting Seminoles at Seminole High.

While some coaches are unable to point the finger on why a program suddenly goes from productive to unproductive, Dolce, a Longwood resident, knows just where to point the finger.

"In 1979 the (Orange County) school board redistricted our school zones and we lost a lot of good players from our sophomore class," said the articulate mentor. "They were trying to build up the Apopka enrollment, but the new area they gave us was dry of talent."

The Eagles lost the talent-rich Tealwood Cove area which has plummeted the once powerful Edgewater program down to the level of rival Boone, a perennial doormat in the Metro Conference.

"We're just about in the same category as Boone," continued Dolce. Boone was the only team the Eagles beat last year, although Edgewater came close to another one, dropping a classic, four-overtime thriller to Sanford at the Tangerine Bowl.

Dolce doesn't feel his 1982 edition is quite up to par with last year's club.

Prep Football

"We're still pretty young," he said Thursday. "We're not close to the size Seminoles is, but I think we compare pretty well at the skill positions."

Leading the Eagle attack is senior quarterback Marvin Zander. The 6-1, 190-pounder possesses a strong, but sometimes erratic arm. "He's pretty poised and is a lot improved over last year," said Dolce.

Zander's favorite target is wide receiver Rodney Long while senior tailback Kenny Jones carries the brunt of Edgewater's ground game.

Dolce, two games into his 12th season as head coach at Edgewater, points to his defensive secondary as the team's strong point.

"We've only allowed four completions in two games and the opposition threw about 20 times," said Dolce whose Eagles have lost to Satellite Beach (27-8) and Winter Park (28-0). "Anthony Hood (strong safety) is a college prospect. He'll come up and strike you."

Although Dolce laments the redistricting move which has depleted his talent, Seminoles' Posey is taking a wary stance concerning the Eagles. "Bob says that every year," said Posey. "I'm sure it had an effect, but he has some talent. Rodney Long is the fastest back we'll face this year. He's probably faster than (Titusville Astronaut's) Scott McConico and potentially a better prospect."

Posey had no problem recalling the 64-yard reverse Long pulled on Sanford last year. "They run an offense like Lake Howell's (veer) where they'll fake to the fullback and run Long back inside," pointed out Posey. "And he can really move."

The 'Noles, after narrow losses to powerful Astronaut and strong Lake Howell, were hindered by injuries all week in practice. One day only 29 of the 40 players suited up. Starting guard Ed Rinkavage will miss the game tonight with an injured neck. The junior lineman may miss three weeks.

Running backs Rendell Manley and Tim Lawrence are coming off strong showing and they should cause plenty of trouble for the Eagle defenders. Sophomore Fred Brinson has been working out at fullback while Ronald Burke has split time at halfback and fullback.

PREDICTIONS — Look for the 'Noles to break into the win column this week. Seminoles by 10 over Edgewater. Bishop Moore by 24 over Lake Mary. Winter Park by 7 over Lyman. Titusville Astronaut by 6 over Lake Howell. Lake Brantley by 3 over Boone. Trinity Prep by 12 over Shorecrest. VMI over UCF by 24. Florida over Mississippi State by 10. Southern Mississippi over Florida State by 1. Alabama over Vanderbilt by 47. Miami over Michigan State by 4. UCLA over Michigan by 7. Overall, 20-4.

Prolific Lyman Offense Tests 'Cats Defense

The Lyman Greyhounds and the Winter Park Wildcats both know how to put points on the scoreboard. Lyman has scored 54 points in two games while the Wildcats have scored 42.

But, that's as far as the parallels go. When it comes to defense, Winter Park seems to have the upper hand. The Wildcats have allowed opponents only seven points in two games while posting a 2-0 record.

"I've been pleased with the performance of the defense," Winter Park coach Larry Gergley said prior to tonight's matchup at Lyman High. "They've had two strong performances."

Lyman's defense has shown signs of inconsistency so far. The 'Hounds shut down Boone (28-6) the first week, then relinquished 28 points in last week's loss to Daytona Beach Mainland.

Offensively, Winter Park has the second leading rusher in the central Florida area, 265-pound running back Dennis Gareau. In two games, Gareau has carried 32 times for 274 yards and three touchdowns and trails only St. Cloud's phenomenal Brent Fullwood (31 carries, 353 yards) in the rushing leaders category.

The Wildcats also have two of the area's top pass receivers, Brian Jocken and Frank Baker.

Although Winter Park has allowed its opponents only seven points in two games, its passing defense is questionable and often penetrable. Opposing quarterbacks have passed for 206 yards in two games versus the Wildcats.

Passing is the key ingredient in Lyman's offense. Quarterback Jerry Axley leads county with 405 yards passing (23 of 45) and receiver Todd Marriott also leads the county with 13 receptions for 313 yards and three touchdowns.

"We are going to have to step up our pass defense for Lyman," Gergley said. "We can't let them eat us up with the long pass plays."

Against the run, Winter Park has a solid defense. Opposing backs have gained only 66 yards in two games against the Wildcats.

But Lyman will have an added dimension to its running attack. Speedy senior running back Vince Presley is coming off an injury and should see plenty of action against Winter Park.

Not only will Lyman need production from its offense, it will have to contain Gareau and the rest of the Wildcats' offense. Linebacker Mike Hill anchors the defense and has been backed by the efforts of Tyrone Simpson, Paul Arckey and David Williams, solidifying the 'Hounds defense. Now all the Greyhounds need is a little consistency on defense from a team standpoint according to Scott.

Gergley believes it will be a hard-fought game and should be a close one. "If we can contain Lyman's passing game and get a good game from Gareau, we have a good chance," Gergley said. — CHRIS FISTER

Astronaut Invades Howell For 'Biggie'

Lake Howell vs. Titusville Astronaut.

In one of the top matchups in the state this week, Jay Donnelly's Astronaut War Eagles, ranked second in the state's 3A football poll, and Mike Biscaglia's Silver Hawks, clash in what promises to be a brutal game at the Hawks' home field.

"I can see why they the War Eagles are ranked second in the state," Biscaglia said. "They have a hell of a football team."

The War Eagles have nine seniors starting on offense and are led by bruising fullback Wendell Marshall, brother of the Florida Gators' Wilber, who has 196 yards rushing in two games.

Last week, Astronaut used a balanced attack to upend Melbourne, 34-7. Ethan Waldron directs the offense at quarterback and has a talented receiver in Seattle McConico. Marshall's running mate is Ivan Wilson, who rushed for 75 yards against Melbourne.

"We threw the ball a little bit more last week," Donnelly said. "I was pleased with the improvement we showed, we got some balance on offense."

Defensively, the War Eagles have given up 17 points in two games and Donnelly says Lake Howell's offense will be a tough test for Astronaut's defense.

"They (Lake Howell) have a good offensive system and Jay Robey is an excellent back. We have to try and stop the things they like to do on offense. There are certain plays that, if you don't stop, they will run up and down the field all day long," he said.

So far in 1982, the War Eagles defense has been anchored by linebackers Ben Burke and Danny Evans along with safety Dwayne Glover.

Offensively, Astronaut will look for balance and Donnelly would like his offense to control the ball for sustained drives. "We are going to have to control the line of scrimmage. They have a fine defensive front and linebackers that cover a lot of ground. Their defense puts a lot of pressure on you to control the line of scrimmage."

The Lake Howell defense is anchored by Defensive Burger King Player of the Week Joe Navarro at defensive end, linebacker David Hart and safety Bill Lang.

"Lake Howell will be our stiffest competition of the season," Donnelly said. "They are solid both offensively and defensively, they have good size and a sound team overall."

Both the War Eagles and Silver Hawks are 2-0 going into the third week of the season. A victory for Astronaut could put it at the top of the 3A polls while a Silver Hawk win could vault Howell into the 4A rankings.

Titusville Astronaut has been fortunate enough to avoid any injuries so far while the Silver Hawks have suffered a few. "We're in good shape as far as injuries go," Donnelly said. "Everybody's healthy and will be at 100 percent Friday night."

The two coaches expect tonight's game to be a tough, hard-fought battle down to the wire. One person who knows how tough these two squads are is Seminoles High coach Jerry Posey.

The 'Noles lost to Astronaut, 16-10 in its first game and dropped a 13-10 decision to Lake Howell a week ago.

The final outcome, according to both coaches, will be decided by which team is able to control the line of scrimmage.

"Football games are won on the line of scrimmage," Biscaglia said. "Our offensive and defensive lines are the strong points of this team."

Boone Should Be Good Medicine For Patriots

For a team which hasn't dented the end zone in two losses, Lake Brantley has a prescription tonight at 8 in Orlando that is just what the doctor ordered.

No, it's not "take two aspirin and call me in the morning."

It's "take two aspirin and call the Boone Braves."

Coach Bob Whittington's ballclub has been a doormat in the Metro Conference for years. The Braves can be counted on for a win a year, usually near the end of the season.

It's early in the season now, however, and coach Dave Tullis' Patriots are hungry for a "W" after lopsided losses to Colonial (20-0) and Apopka (23-0).

"We're looking forward to Boone, that's for sure," said Tullis after Friday's setback at Apopka.

The Braves dress out just 26 players. Two years ago, they had one of the top sophomores in the state, but he saw the handwriting on the wall and now Gerald White is one of the most highly-sought seniors for Merritt Island.

"We're kind of thin in numbers," confirmed Whittington. "But we do have a pretty good backfield."

Fullback Greg Burden leads the Boone attack. He is considered one of the top backs in the Metro, although certainly not the caliber of a Gerald White. Harold Hill is another solid runner and wideout David Hepburn has good hands.

Saints Battle Injury-Stricken St. Pete Shorecrest

ST. PETERSBURG—Shorecrest Preparatory School was rumored to be bigger and physically stronger than number-one ranked Frostproof.

That rumor, though, seeped out before Friday's 7-0 loss to Tampa Temple Heights which cost Shorecrest its quarterback, running back and wide receiver.

"That's three pretty doggone important people to lose," said Shorecrest coach Phil Hayford. "Especially when they also play linebacker, defensive end and defensive back."

The three injuries trim the Shorecrest roster to 19 while Trinity Prep, tonight's opponent at 8, carries 18 players. Comparing scores, coach Ron Vierling's Saints have the edge. While Temple Heights shut out Shorecrest, Trinity nipped Temple, 14-13, in overtime.

"Trinity is a power football team," continued Hayford. "They run it right at you. That's what concerns me. Without our linebacker (Jim Fischer), we're not very sound defensively."

While Fischer won't be available, Steve Moore, a 6-3, 230-pound defensive tackle, will be. Moore received votes for the 1A All-State Team last year.

Another potential all-stater is running back Rob Johnson who will be moved to fullback this week for the disabled Parnell Sullivan. Johnson is 5-11 and 185 pounds.

The Saints, meanwhile, have a heavenly feeling after battling tough Frostproof even during the first half before losing to the perennial powerhouse, 12-0, last week to square their record at 1-1.

Brian Butler, a 6-3, 190-pounder, continues to punish opposing defenders. Last week, Butler churned out 75 yards in 14 carries.

Butler was also a tower of strength defensively with eight tackles. Linebacker Chris Lucas checked in with eight stops too.

Hayward Legs Import Long-Distance Success For Pats

JOANNE HAYWARD
... super sophomore

She's not ready to be classified with England's Sebastian Coe or Vivian Leigh, but Lake Brantley's Kathryn Hayward is making a pretty good impression with her legs on American soil.

Hayward, the 10th best cross country runner in the state, came to the United States a "couple of years ago," according to coach Jim Marshall who's pretty pleased with his English import. "She's been fantastic," said Marshall about the pretty junior who's taken a leadership role on the Patriots while senior Ellen Stern has been bothered by assorted physical ailments.

Hayward's time of 12:25 for two miles out distances Lyman's Schowonda Williams by over 13 seconds. The fact that Marshall got a package deal — sophomore sister Joanne (13:23) — has the Brantley boss humming a few verses of God Save the Queen every night.

Brantley had a top-notch team last year and was ranked in the top five in the state pre-season poll. The Patriots haven't lived up to their pre-season billing, though, something Marshall hopes to correct beginning Saturday.

Cross Country

The Patriot Invitational kicks off with a 9 a.m. start Saturday at the Seminole Community College course. Four of the state's top 4A girls' teams are expected to compete.

"We've got to get it together by the end of October," assessed Marshall. "Our main problem has been Stern hasn't run."

A consistent winner in the early meets last year, Stern has been plagued by a contact lens problem which caused her to miss the Edgewater Invitational last Thursday. Her best time this fall is just 13:03 while at last year's state meet she ran a 12:11.

"The early season doesn't really matter," continued Marshall. "But we'd like to get it together pretty soon."

Following K. Hayward, Stern and J. Hayward are sophomore Kim Lubenow (13:25), Dana Miller (13:41) and Barbara Holmes (13:51). The Pats lost Tracy Rowland for the season when she injured her ankle while practicing. "The radiologist report isn't in yet," said Marshall. "We don't know if it's sprained or broken."

Saturday's meet will draw 18 girls' teams from around the state. Coach Joe Laughlin's Lyman Greyhounds, ranked fourth in the state, are the favorites. Boone (fifth), Lake Howell (eighth) and Lake Brantley (ninth) will challenge the 'Hounds. Spruce Creek's Carmen Gardner should run away with individual honors as usual.

"Lyman ran all summer," informed Howell coach Tom Hammontree. "That's why they're so good right now. We'll see if they're still that good by the end of the year."

Howell's girls have been pretty good too. Senior Kerri Ryter and sophomore Lyn Lucas have been the pacesetters. Ryter has the third best time in the county (12:45) while Lucas clocks in at 13:26, 10th best.

For the boys, coach David Huggins' Lyman crew is the favorite. The Greyhounds were edged by Winter Park in the Edgewater meet, but the Wildcats won't be in attendance Saturday.

Juniors Doug McBroom and Brian Hunter lead the 'Hounds, although they'll probably be on Lake Howell's

Kenny Cheeseman's shoes at the finish line.

"Lyman and Rockledge will battle for first," predicts Marshall. "Seminole and Lake Howell will be right behind them."

Oviedo, Lake Mary and Trinity Prep will also compete. —SAM COOK

Seminole Edges Lake Howell; Rams, 'Hounds Run Wild In Wins

By GREGORY GIORDANO
Herald Sports Writer

Seminole junior varsity coach Mike Ferrell was pleased by a sparkling defensive effort which led to his first win as Seminole coach, 14-6, against the Silverhawks of Lake Howell Thursday night.

At the beginning, it looked as though Seminole might have been heading for a loss, as Lake Howell broke off a 40-yard scoring run on its first play from scrimmage, after recovering a Tribe opening kick-off fumble. But, the Tribe pulled itself together with a little over three minutes to play in the first half.

"We fumbled two more times, but then we really came alive. We scored a TD, and that's when we became a football team," Ferrell said.

The score came when speedster Deron Thompson ran for three yards and a touchdown, behind some marvelous offensive line blocking by David Hanson, Strickland Smith, James Morgan, Jerry Walsh, Scott Larson, and Paul Mock.

Quarterback Mike Wheelchel then hit split end Ricky Whittaker for the two point conversion, and Seminole took an 8-6 lead into the locker room.

During the second half, Seminole employed a tough defense and a staunch running game to ward off any further Lake Howell scoring threats.

"Our defense was really strong — they controlled the game. I believe Lake Howell was held for minus yardage the rest of the game, except for that first long run. Darryl Edgenon did a good job tonight. He had a couple of sacks, and from scrimmage on a 60-yard touchdown run but the Lake Mary defense shut Spruce Creek down the remainder of the night.

Underwood got the Rams on the board with a 10-yard burst and Kent Alloway's 12-yard run put the Rams ahead to stay. Scott Sperrazzo dove on a fumble after a mishandled Spruce Creek punt for Lake Mary's third TD and a 21-7 lead.

Late in the game, another Spruce Creek punt attempt fizzled and it wound up as a safety for the final, 23-7.

The JV Rams now stand 2-0 and will battle Seminole's JV next Thursday.

In other JV action, Mike Henley scored two touchdowns and the Lyman offense racked up 300 total yards en route to a 12-0 victory over Apopka Thursday night at Apopka.

On the game's first play from scrimmage, Henley took the pitch on an option and received a key downfield block from Mike Cresto as he went 48-yards for a TD to put Lyman up 6-0.

Early in the second quarter, Henley went over right guard Rick Volkema for one yard and the 'Hounds second touchdown. The two-point run failed and Lyman took a 12-0 lead.

Although the Greyhounds had other scoring opportunities, the game was scoreless after Henley's second TD run. Lyman is now 2-0 after an opening win over the Hastings High varsity, 28-0.

Henley carried seven times for 47 yards while teammate Avery Meriwether carried 11 times for 97 yards.

Orioles Drop 2nd Straight; Phillies Cling To Flag Hopes

By United Press International

The Baltimore Orioles are going after the American League East pennant as if they were asking Raquel Welch for a date.

They're stumbling all over themselves. With a chance to gain ground on the idle Milwaukee Brewers Thursday night, the Orioles went out and committed five errors and gave up four home runs as the Detroit Tigers whipped them, 10-5. It was the second straight beating the Orioles have received at the hands of the Tigers, who won Tuesday night's contest 11-1.

Baltimore's Ken Singleton said the Orioles seemed to be more concerned with the three-game series against Milwaukee, which begins tonight, than they were about Detroit and, as a result, the Tigers clawed them badly.

"Everybody talked about Milwaukee for the past two days," Singleton said. "We were supposed to be playing Detroit."

Larry Herndon blasted a pair of two-run homers, Howard Johnson added a two-run homer and Mike Ivie hit a solo blast as the Tigers raked the Orioles' pitchers for 15 hits.

"They hit four balls out of the park and they got all of our pitchers," said Orioles' manager Earl Weaver.

Rangers 5, Angels 4
California did not play quite as poorly as Baltimore did but the Angels also missed an opportunity to improve its lead in the AL West. The Angels, who had completed a three-game sweep of Kansas City to move into first place in the division, still lead the Royals by 2 1/2 games.

At Arlington, Texas, the Angels lost when catcher Bob Boone's throwing error allowed pinch runner Nick Capra to score from third base with one out in the ninth inning.

Baseball

Dave Hostetter singled to left with one out and Mike Richard singled to left-center, sending pinch runner Capra to third base. Mike Witt's first pitch to Pete O'Brien was outside for a ball and when Boone fired to third trying to pick Capra off, the ball got past third baseman Doug DeCinces into shallow left. Capra barely beat left fielder Brian Downing's throw to the plate.

White Sox 12, Mariners 4
At Seattle, Tom Paciorek belted a three-run homer and Harold Baines and Vance Law each collected three RBI to spark the White Sox. Rudy Law reached base four times and scored each time in helping Jerry Kosman, 11-6, to his ninth victory in his last 11 decisions. Vance Law and Marc Hill also homered for Chicago and Julio Cruz and John Moses connected for Seattle.

Hope sprung eternal for the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday night. But for the Montreal Expos, it was more like desperation.

"This win is going to keep us in the pennant race," Philadelphia manager Pat Corales said after his team pulled out a 2-0, 11-inning victory over the Expos and moved to within 4 1/2 games of first-place St. Louis in the National League East.

"We just have to keep on winning and hope the Cards start losing," he said. "We don't play them anymore ourselves."

Gary Matthews doubled home the tie-breaking run in the 11th to score pinch-hitter George Vukovich with the go-ahead run and lift the Phillies to the rain-delayed victory.

Vukovich opened the 11th with a single off loser Steve Rogers, 17-8, and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt before Matthews — who had difficulty all night with Rogers — delivered his game-winning hit.

"Rogers had my number, but I guess I finally got to him," Matthews said. "I was 0-for-4 before I hit that double. We're going to make a run at St. Louis, but the Cardinals will be tough to beat."

The Phillies added another in the 11th when Mike Schmidt walked to load the bases and Bo Diaz hit a sacrifice fly.

The Expos threatened in the ninth, loading the bases with one out, but reliever Porfi Altamirano got Gary Carter on a pop to the catcher and struck out Tim Wallach to notch his second save.

Pirates 5, Cardinals 3
At St. Louis, Mike Easler's single with one out in the top of the 11th drove in Rafael Belliard from second base and sparked the Pirates.

Giants 11, Reds 7
At Cincinnati, Reggie Smith and Darrell Evans each scored three runs to lead San Francisco and move the Giants to within four games of Los Angeles in the NL West. San Francisco broke the game open in the seventh by batting around and scoring five times. Smith hit his 18th homer, a two-run shot, in the fifth. Reliever Altee Hammaker raised his record to 11-8.

Mets 5, Cubs 4
At Chicago, George Foster and Dave Kingman hit back-to-back RBI doubles in the third inning and Mookie Wilson scored two runs with a double and triple to help the Mets. Ed Lynch, 4-7, earned the victory while Jesse Orosco, who relieved with the bases loaded and one out in the eighth, earned his fourth save. Doug Bird, 9-13, was the loser.

Players Seek Alternative

NEW YORK (UPI) — As the NFL players' strike drags on, it's beginning to look like the next game involving NFL players will take place Oct. 10 at RFK Stadium in Washington.

The game would be the start of a four- or six-team league comprised of top players to be carried on cable television by the Turner Broadcasting System, owned and operated by sports tycoon Ted Turner. Shortly after the NFL's announcement Thursday that the slate of 12 games scheduled for Sunday will not be played, the union went to court to gain the right to play in the renegade league.

Atlanta superstation, WTBS.

In Washington, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said the suit was filed in U.S. District Court and "seeks a declaration that the players should be free to play during a strike, which has been brought on by unfair labor practices of the league, clubs and Management Council."

There was no indication when the suit, which names as defendants the 28 teams and the council, would be heard. Judge John Penn will hear the suit.

If the union wins in court, it will proceed with plans for an 18-game schedule. Garvey said the strikers received ballots last week to choose players for the league. The all-star league's second game is planned for Oct. 11.

"On July 13, we offered the union a proposal that concentrated on the topic of insurance because we weren't getting anywhere with their proposal for 55 percent of the gross revenues.

Oviedo Starters Rescue Subs; Tribe, Lyman JV's Triumph

Using mostly substitutes the first two games of the match, the Oviedo volleyball squad went to its starters in the deciding game and came away with a 16-14, 10-15, 15-3 victory over Luther High Thursday night at Oviedo.

"We got ahead 12-4 in the first game so I started putting the subs in," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "I played a lot of subs the first two games."

Sandy Stevens put the Lady Lions in control, serving eight straight points to open the third game. Fayette Robinson played her usual fine match on the front line.

Sophomore Mary Lokers served four straight points and Kim Boston served the final three points to clinch the victory for Oviedo, which raised its record to 6-1. Oviedo will host Lyman on Monday.

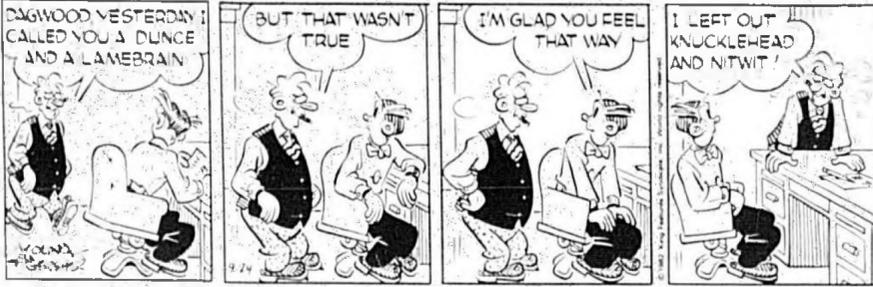

In junior varsity action, Katie Barber had an exceptional night at the net to lead the Seminole JVs to a 15-6, 15-2 rout of Lake Howell at Seminole High.

Cindy Hogan and Janet Hauck each served five straight points for the Tribe. Three of Hauck's service points were aces. Barber led the offensive surge with four spikes as the 'Noles record improved to 3-1.

The Lyman junior varsity took advantage of Lake Brantley errors to claim a 15-5, 15-7 victory Thursday night at Lyman.

Regan Stump served four straight points, two aces, and had two spikes

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Blood Pressure Fluctuations OK?

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have fluctuating blood pressure, wide swings up and down, and I wonder what causes this. I am aware that emotional upsets can have a bearing and that people's pressure changes during the day. But with no upsets and no apparent reason, why would my pressure be 120 over 90 in the morning and go to 140 over 90 or 160 over 100 by mid-afternoon?

Would you please tell me what effect this would have in the long run?

I'm 55 years old. DEAR READER—Blood pressure is really a balance between the amount of blood your heart pumps and the size of your arteries. If your arteries constrict the pressure rises. And they can constrict in a reflex fashion in response to stress. If your arteries stay the same but your heart speeds up and pumps more blood your pressure will also rise.

I notice that your diastolic pressure (lower reading) does not change much but your systolic pressure (upper reading) rises during the day. That is more apt to be from an increase in the amount of blood your heart pumps. As you become more active or involved with the day that may explain your reaction. Your pressure is not bad but it is certainly not optimal. There really is no such thing as a normal level. We often say 140 over 90 is borderline but the people who have the lowest risk of medical complications through the years, such as heart attacks and strokes, tend to have lower values. A reading of 115 over 75 would be preferable on a long term basis. Doctors still hesitate to treat pressure as low as yours because the benefits compared to the problems of the medicines are not always that great.

However, I would stongly recommend that you eliminate any extra body fat you might have under your skin and eliminate adding salt to your diet. People with fluctuating blood pressure often do well with a very mild dose of Inderal which neutralizes the effects of adrenaline, the stress hormone.

To give you a more complete understanding of blood pressure and what you should be doing I am sending you The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure. DEAR DR. LAMB—I was concerned about the lady who had cold feet and had cold feet and had to suffer through a long list of doctors and felt like I was cracking up. A test finally showed that I did not have a pulse in the right leg. I tried to tell them I couldn't find one but I am only a nurse's aide, how could I know this?

I was ready to see a doctor about confusion but I was not confused—I needed a femoral by-pass operation. It is great having both legs again.

DEAR READER—Thanks for being concerned. There are many reasons for cold feet, and cramps in the legs. One reason can be poor circulation. It can often be suspected from a simple physical examination, from the color of the feet and whether or not you can feel all the pulses.

If there is a localized blockage in an artery to the leg (femoral) it can often be bypassed with a graft. This was done successfully years before coronary by-pass surgery became popular for blocked arteries to the heart. When the femoral by-pass is used in localized blockage it can often produce remarkably good results. I'm glad you have two good legs again.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

September 25, 1982
Material benefits which you feel are due you, but which have not been forthcoming, could suddenly get loose this coming year. Luck will be a large factor in bringing this about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) As long as nice things are happening for you today you'll be the most pleasant person to be around. Once they stop, the growing could begin. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birthday and where to look for your luck and opportunities are in your Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You won't have any problem dealing with large issues today, but you could have difficulties with trifles. Don't let insignificant matters spoil a promising day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are involved in an important matter today which could affect your security, it's best to keep what you're doing as secret as possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When left to your own devices you are a very capable performer today, but when others try to interfere the results may be less than satisfactory.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your hunches or instincts may be more on target today than what you glean from surface information. When in doubt, follow your impulses.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) As long as you adhere to your ideals, things should go smoothly for you today. All will fizzle, however, if you operate at a lesser level.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's best not to talk too much today about a lucky break that has come your way. You may spill the beans on something which was never intended for outside ears.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Listen carefully when a deal is being offered to you today. If you lack understanding, you could get the signals mixed and upset the appcart for all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There isn't anything you wouldn't do for those you love today, as long as the thought originates with you. When they make a request, it may be a different story.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Keep the romance in your life today by not trying to overanalyze everything that's said by the one you love. Listen to your heart when negative thoughts creep in.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Please yourself today when adding those little artistic touches to your home. Don't be influenced or disturbed by busybodies whose tastes might differ.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Expansive and optimistic thinking are great assets when socializing today, but if you try to think likewise about financial affairs the bubble may burst.

In today's hand we see him putting a nine spot to work to defeat a three no-trump contract that was made at nearly every other table in a really big tournament room. Of course, Sidney had a little help in playing that nine. He was playing with a partner who could be depended on to have no more than four cards when he opened a deuce.

The seven of spades was played from dummy at trick one and Sidney covered with the nine. South took his 10 and led a club to Sidney's ace.

Now Sidney played the ace and three of spades. The defense got three spade tricks plus two aces for practically all the marbles.

South claimed Sidney had been lucky, pointing out that had he held king-10 instead of queen-10 of spades, Sidney's play would have been a loser.

South's claim was wrong. South was sure of two spade tricks with king-10 holding irrespective of Sidney's play. The play of the nine was shrewd, not lucky. Because of it, South got just one spade instead of the two made all around the room with the actual holding.

Gardening

Webworms, Bugs Attack Dry Lawns

Hot weather brings two undesirable visitors to Florida lawns — sod webworms and chinch bugs. Either insect in large numbers can ruin a large section of lawn in a very short period of time, especially when the grass is under stress from lack of moisture.

The tropical sod webworm feeds on all of the Florida lawngrasses. The adults are small brown moths but the damaging stage is the larvae which are small, greenish caterpillars. The newly hatched webworm larvae are so small they can't bite out pieces of the grass leaves, but only scrape away the outer layer of cells of the leaf, thus causing little visible damage.

When the worms reach maturity damage appears to show up almost overnight. Leaves are notched and chewed to a ragged appearance. When the grass is severely

Desmond Hastings

Urban Horticulturist
323-2500
Est. 1981

damaged during hot, dry weather it may be killed.

To check the lawn for webworms, closely observe the grass in the off-color areas. Leaves will be chewed like other caterpillar damage. The worms rest at the soil line during the day and feed only at night so you won't see them in action unless you get out your flashlight.

When you have proved that webworms are the problem, start control measures immediately. Sevin or diazinon are the recommended insecticides. Spraying every three or four weeks throughout the season may be necessary.

The other troublesome summer insect is the chinchbug which is the number one pest of St. Augustine grass. It is not a serious threat to other Florida lawn grasses.

Chinch bugs suck the plant juices from the grass which results in irregular yellowish to brownish patches in the lawn. Injured areas are often first noticed along edges of lawns and particularly during dry periods.

The immature chinch bugs are only about the size of a pinhead and are bright red with a white band across the back. Adult bugs are about 1-5 inch long and black with white wings.

There are two ways to find the bugs. When they are present in sufficient numbers to cause yellowing and crowning they can be found by parting the grass at the margin of the injured areas and closely examining the thatch and base of the grass. The bugs may be seen crawling over the grass and in heavy infestations can be seen crawling over sidewalks.

If you can't see the bugs try the coffee can technique. Cut both ends out of a large coffee can and sharpen one edge so it can be pushed two or three inches into the soil at the edge of the yellowish area of grass. Fill the can with water and maintain water in the can until the bugs float to the surface. Check several areas around the lawn.

When it is definitely established that chinch bugs are the problem start control measures immediately. Effective insecticides include Ethion, Diazinon, Aspon, Dursban and Baygon. Two or three treatments per year are needed in Central Florida.

MR. AND MRS. ANDREW MITCHELL

Miss Fossitt, Andrew Mitchell Exchange Vows

Frankie Mae Fossitt and Andrew Mitchell were united in marriage Aug. 28, at 2 p.m. in the West Sanford Freewill Holiness Church. Elder Ezekiah Ross performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Fossitt, 2411 Hughey St. Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Mitchell, 2711 West 23rd St., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her brother the Rev. Willie Fossitt, the bride chose for her vows a white satin gown with a natural waist, princess-style bodice, long slim sleeves and round neckline with the English net yoke accented with Venice lace. The skirt satin flowed into a sweeping chapel train accented with Venice lace. Her fingertip net veil was secured to a Juliet cap edged with lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses with white and blue streamers.

Ammiel Debose attended the bride as matron of honor. She wore a rose pink gown with a polyester chiffon ruffled jacket. She carried a matching bouquet.

Lorene Fossitt, Philomena Fossitt and Dianne Jess were bridesmaids. They wore blue gowns with split capelet sleeves and pleated skirts and carried matching bouquets.

Bernard T. Mitchell served his brother as best man. Isiah Fossitt, Aloysius Smith, Phillip Washington were the groomsmen. Cherita Johnson was flower girl and Katria Marie Fossitt carried the bride's chapel train.

The reception was held at the church annex. The couple reside in Sanford, where the bride is a keypunch operator for Stromberg-Carlson and the groom is a construction worker.

FIVE GENERATIONS

Eleven members of the Forrest Family from Sanford traveled to Virginia to celebrate the 90th birthday of the family matriarch Mrs. Janey B. Forrest on Aug. 19. Mrs. Forrest holds the newest family addition, her great granddaughter Angela Dawn Mann, daughter of Rick Mann (behind Mrs. Forrest) and his wife Janice. Completing the family portrait are Mrs. Theresa Kenis, left, and her daughter, Pat Scott. Other family members attending the Virginia reunion were Richard Scott, Charnly Mann, Donny Mann (who was 24 on Aug. 19), Richie and Bobby Scott and George Kenis Jr.

Fearful Child Molester Asks For Help 'Soon'

DEAR ABBY: I am over 50, retired from the Army, and am currently on parole, having served a sentence for repeated child molesting. I have been attracted to little girls as long as I can remember. (I am a male.) I have gone through a sex-offenders program and have also had private counseling. Neither has had a lasting effect on me.

The desire for sexual relations with children has been with me all my life. I am now getting weary of the constant fear of once again molesting a little girl and going back to prison. I have grandchildren, and I want to be around them without the feeling that almost always comes over me when they are near.

I would like to be castrated, but I can't find a doctor who will do it. Can you help me?

If I don't get help soon, I'm afraid I may molest another child — perhaps one of my grandchildren. Please address your reply to "G.D. in Seattle" Those are not my initials, and I do not live in Seattle, but I will know it's for me. Thank you.

G.D.

DEAR G.D.: My psychiatric consultant informs me that a drug is available that destroys the sex urge. It must be prescribed by a physician and administered under strict supervision.

If your physician is not aware of this drug, the generic name for it is "medroxyprogesterone acetate." Please acknowledge that you have seen this, and let me know what you are doing about it.

DEAR ABBY: Last year my young daughter and her girlfriend decided to exchange Christmas gifts. I thought they would exchange some inexpensive little gifts. Well, without my knowledge, my daughter took a gold chain with a religious medal out of my drawer, wrapped it and gave it to her friend. Abby, it was my mother's — she had given it to me just before she died.

Needless to say, I was heartaick. I finally got the courage to phone the girl's mother. I offered to buy her something else if she would return the chain and medal. (It really wasn't all that expensive, but it means so much to me.) She said she'd return it, but she never did.

When I see her on the street she turns away from me. Abby, if you have space in your column, please print this. Maybe she will see it, and realize how much this means to me. No names, please, as this is a small town. Thank you.

Dear Abby

4-H — a family affair

HEAVYHEARTED

DEAR HEAVY: And what if she doesn't see it? Please don't agonize over this any longer. Take her a little gift and ask her to please return the chain and medal.

DEAR ABBY: Re the 52-year-old divorced male who contracted gonorrhea from a 44-year-old divorcee who swore she had not been intimate with anyone since she left her husband 15 months previously: It is possible that she was telling the truth, and you were right to advise the man to give her the benefit of the doubt.

Moreover, this situation is not peculiar to our times, as was illustrated in a case involving James Boswell, the biographer of Samuel Johnson. In 1763 Boswell acquired the second of his many gonococcal infections after an amorous affair with a well-known leading actress of the London stage. Like your correspondent, Boswell refused to believe that she had not been intimate with anyone else during or in the several months prior to their encounters. Not only did he dismiss the lady with an ungentlemanly note, he charged her for his medical expenses!

HAROLD VARMUS, M.D., SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: I feel terrible. School is starting soon and I failed my grade, so I'll be in 11th grade again this year. That means I won't be able to graduate with my class. I failed because my grades were poor and I missed too much school. This year I plan to do better. Abby, how am I going to face my friends and the other kids when they start picking on me and teasing me? I feel bad enough as it is. What should I say? How should I act?

A FAILURE AND SCARED

DEAR SCARED: No one is a "failure" because he stumbled once. Consider this a valuable learning experience. And the kids who would tease you or pick on you aren't worth worrying about. Give it all you've got, hang in there and don't be ashamed of having failed. If you've learned something from the experience, it's a victory.

NEW ARRIVALS

Mr. and Mrs. John Scott (Judy) Kirk of Banana Lake, Sanford, announce the birth of a son, William Scott, who arrived prematurely, weighing 3 lbs., 11 ozs., on Aug. 4, at Orlando Regional Hospital. A family spokesman said mother and child are fine.

Beth, nearly 3, welcomed her baby brother home. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George Coffey, Orlando. Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Kirk, Sanford.

Headliners

THE Salon in Sanford and Surrounding Area

once again returns Triumphant from the Florida State Hair Competition. Using the trend, American Shapes, the styles LYNDA brought back from the National Show, HEADLINERS brought in awards from the top ten in the state.

In total elegance, models LAURIE BROWN and BRIAN ADAMSON gave a superb runway and floor demonstration that projected the perfect image of elegance and fashion, and along with hair, brought them to a thunderous and well deserved second place, after tying for first.

LYNDA'S over-40 model, JEAN HARRIS, proved that you can be beautiful at any age, as she proudly displayed the cocktail fashions and styles and graciously accepted the award as they placed among the Top Ten of State.

In fantasy fanfare LYNDA'S model LAURIE BROWN, drew in rounds of applause as she modeled the design of LYNDA'S futuristic fashions, placing them among the top five.

So, positive, that HEADLINERS gives you nothing but the very best, when it comes to that New Look.

Science And Math Scholars Are Scarce

NEW YORK (UPI) — Young scientists may be scarce on the American scene by the year 2,000, and the same for young mathematicians.

Numerous studies, experts, and prognostications point in that direction. Not enough scientists and mathematicians, they say, are in the pipeline right now in the high schools or colleges.

The forecasters see this as an ominous trend for the United States, coming at a time when the nation and the world are rocketing into a technological society. The experts say that even to survive in such a society, people who don't make their living at science or mathematics will need enough knowledge in those fields to make intelligent decisions about everyday life.

The National Society for Teachers of Mathematics, the National Academy of Sciences and National Science Teachers Association are among those signaling S.O.S. over the crisis in science and math.

The latest report is in "Chemical & Engineering News," an American Chemical Society publication.

... a pair of long-brewing problems in U.S. education recently have achieved bona fide crisis status," the report said. "One... is that the public, by most objective measures, is becoming increasingly ignorant of things mathematical, scientific and technological."

"The other, related to the first, is a current and worsening shortage of persons competent and willing to teach those subjects to students in elementary and secondary schools."

... the two have been lumped into one official crisis — the crisis in pre-college education in science and mathematics."

At a National Academy of Sciences conference on the subject, Paul DeHart, emeritus professor of education, Stanford University, California, said:

—Only 34 percent of U.S. high school graduates have finished 3 years of mathematics. Of those, only 8 percent have taken calculus, which is taught in only 31 percent of the high schools.

—Fewer than 20 percent of the graduates have had 3 years of science. Most seniors have had a course in biology and 37 percent have had chemistry. But only 19 percent have had physics.

—If you narrow the study to only those students in precollege courses, who comprise about 40 percent of the high school population, the figures are only somewhat higher. DeHart said 55 percent had had 3 or more years of math; 41 percent had had 3 or more years of science.

—Among the 60 percent of high school students who pursue general or vocational courses, only 20 percent have had 3 years of math and just about 10 percent have had 3 years of science.

There are other signs pointing to a lessening of the quality of science and math education in high schools. Mean scores in math on the Scholastic Achievement Test (SAT) declined from 502 in 1963 to 466 in 1980. The top score on the test is 800, the lowest possible, 200.

Another sign: the proportion of students scoring more than 700 points on the SAT math test skidded 15 percent between 1967 and 1975. The proportion scoring fewer than 300 increased 38 percent.

Still another: national assessments of science achievement — made in 1969, 1972, and 1976 and measuring 9-, 13- and 17-year-olds — showed continuing drops in achievement with the biggest declines among 17-year-olds.

"Although there's room for debate about how much science-math education is enough or about how good it should be, there's hardly any argument that the science and math substructures of U.S. elementary and secondary education are crumbling," Ward Worthy, of Chemical & Engineering News' Chicago bureau, says.

More proof came when Sarah E. Klein, retiring president of the National Science Teachers Association, put some facts before the Science, Mathematics and Technology Subcommittee of the National Commission on Excellence in Education.

She said a 1981 survey of state science supervisors showed a critical shortage of chemistry teachers in 10 states and a shortage in 27. For physics and math teachers, the situation was even worse.

The survey Klein cited was done by Trevor G. Howe and Jack A. Gerlovich of the University of Iowa's Science Education center. It was based on response from science supervisors in 43 states.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT SITE

This 13.7-acre parcel of land behind the Zayre Shopping Plaza in Sanford could be the new home of the Seminole County Health Department's Sanford clinic. The county agency is also looking for new offices and discussions have recently been held by county officials about the purchase of the site. County Attorney Nikki Clayton said the property could probably be obtained for about $20,000 an acre.

Altamonte Fish Breathe Easier

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald Staff Writer

Altamonte Springs City Manager Jeff Etchberger was optimistic this morning about conditions at Lake Adelade where the city has been involved in an all-out effort to save the lake's fish since Wednesday afternoon.

"The lake looks better this morning," he said. "The dissolved oxygen count is up a couple of tenths from yesterday when it hit zero oxygen. It looks encouraging, but the sun is not cooperating and we are making plans to maintain the operation through the weekend."

The air compressors and one recycling pump are being used in an effort to raise the oxygen content in the lake and prevent more fish from suffocating. Motorboats also have been circling the lake to help with the aeration.

Etchberger said less than a half dozen dead fish were found in the lake this morning. A hundred or more dead fish were removed from the water with nets Thursday morning and placed in a pit for burial.

Residents around the lake first reported seeing large schools of fish on or near the surface gasping for breath early Wednesday afternoon and city crews began the around-the-clock operation.

The cost of the operation to the city has not yet been tallied. Etchberger predicts the cost will be at least several thousand dollars. A few key men will be paid overtime, he said.

The cause of the problem is thought to be a heavy growth of algae in the lake, combined with cloudy days. The lack of sunshine killed the algae, which consumed oxygen in the lake in the rotting process.

Development around the lake and drainage from streets and yards are contributing to the pollution problem, officials said.

One of several pairs of nesting bald eagles recently photographed at the Kennedy Space Center.

America's Symbol Making Comeback

When the founding fathers settled upon the bald eagle as the symbol of this nation in 1782, the bird could be commonly seen almost anywhere. Today, only 15,000 breeding pairs remain, most of which live in Alaska.

In the lower 48 states, one of today's greatest concentrations of the birds is in Florida, and it is here that a years-long project to photograph nesting eagles has finally borne fruit.

At NASA's John F. Kennedy Space Center, wildlife has long prospered amid some of the most advanced technology in the world. Most of the center's 140,000 acres of land and water has been set aside as a wildlife refuge.

The vast expanse of the center has been the state for several wildlife success stories.

Chief among the success stories is that of the Southern bald eagle.

From an original Florida population estimated at over 1000 breeding pairs, there are today only about 400 pairs in the state. In the remainder of the bird's range, along the coasts of California, the Gulf Coast and South Atlantic States, an additional 50 breeding pairs may exist.

Like other eagles, the Southern bald eagle nearly succumbed to the one-two punch dealt by the disappearance of suitable habitat and the widespread use of persistent pesticides.

In Florida, the heavy use of DDT as a mosquito control agent resulted in the cumulative poisoning of some birds and the weakening of egg shells among the survivors. Some birds died before they reached sexual maturity at five years. Others survived but failed to breed successfully due to DDT induced thin-shelled eggs. The weakened eggs often broke during laying or incubation, further reducing the numbers of chicks born.

...Bald Eagles Caught On Film At Space Center

In recent years, efforts to clean up the waterways upon which eagles depend for their fish and waterfowl diet, and the establishment of protection laws for the birds and their habitat have paid off. Eagle numbers are slowly rising again.

One pair of eagles which survived the gauntlet of hazards has nested on Kennedy Space Center since 1966, according to U.S. Fish and Wildlife records. The pair built its current nest in 1973, picking an unlikely-for-eagles location only a few yards from a heavily travelled highway. The ease of accessibility and viewer popularity of the nest prompted one man to attempt photography of the eagles during their breeding season.

Klaus Wilckens, a photographer for Technicolor Graphics, Inc. at the space center, was that man. Working with engineers and in constant consultation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, he developed a remote control camera box that could be mounted up in the nest tree and triggered from an observation blind.

The camera box had to be mounted in the tree in late summer each year and allowed to remain in place the entire breeding season — from September through June. This is due to the federal laws which prohibit harassment of eagles. Several years were to pass before Wilckens, by trial and error, managed to work out all the bugs and snags in the revolutionary camera system.

Some years the eagles returned early from their summer haunts in Canada, meaning that the camera could not be set up at all. Other times, various mechanical problems prevented pictures from being taken. In 1981, partial success tantalized Wilckens: everything worked until one of the eagles pecked through the release wires leading to the camera.

But the lens, located only a few feet from the eight foot diameter nest, had caught the first weeks of breeding activity. The pictures stopped just before that year's egg would be laid.

As luck would have it, complete success finally came in 1982, the Bicentennial Year of the Bald Eagle. From the 250 exposure roll of film came nearly 130 usable pictures in full color. As the pictures emerged from automatic developing equipment on the space center, Wilckens smiled the smile of long-deferred success.

The photo history depicts the eagles from early nest rebuilding (including a shot of the female eagle in flight with a stick in her beak through pictures of twin fuzzy eagle chicks to a dramatic picture of a young eagle hovering before the lens on one of its first flights.

The dramatic pictures are made even more exciting when one considers that only a few miles from the eagle nest sits the launch pad for NASA's Space Shuttle. The eagles do not seem to mind the periodic thunder of space launches, and seem to be equally indifferent to the more than two million visitors who tour the space center each year.

One of the two chicks raised this year, in fact, performed its first solo flight away from the nest on March 19, only three days before the launch of STS-3, the third test launch of the Space Shuttle Columbia.

The coexistence of the eagles and the Space Shuttle seem particularly fitting. As the nation celebrates the first 200 years of its national symbol, so also does it celebrate the first year of what could also be called a symbol of the United States, the Space Shuttle.

In the skies over Kennedy Space Center, both soar triumphantly.

Burghoff Is The Long 'M★A★S★H' Original

DEAR DICK: My boss and I have a bet on the cast of the movie "M A S H." We agree on Donald Sutherland. But he says Alan Alda was in it, I say Elliott Gould. He also thinks Loretta Swit was Hot Lips, I think it was Sally Kellerman. And we have both forgotten who played the commanding officer. K.D., Kimball, Neb.

You're right — Sutherland, Gould, Kellerman, Robert Duvall and Jo Ann Pflug (as Lt. Dish, a part not included in the TV show) were stars of the movie "M A S H." The commanding officer was played on film by Roger Bowen. Alda was not in the movie. Gary Burghoff, as Radar, was the only one of the film's stars who segued into the TV series.

DEAR DICK: Whatever happened to the beautiful Hedy Lamarr, who starred in so many films in the '40s? R.A.C., Albuquerque, N.M.

Poor, gorgeous Hedy has had a tough transition to upper-middle age. Now 67, she lives in New York (at last report) and she's had her troubles. There were several operations on her eyes. There was an embarrassing shoplifting episode. There was her autobiography, "Ecstasy and Me," which was totally shoddy. It isn't easy, being an ex-glamour gal.

DEAR DICK: I read your column regularly. You once gave a list of book titles relating to Bette Davis. Could you supply this faithful reader with a list of books written about Katharine Hepburn? L.B., Eureka, Calif.

Ask Dick Kleiner

This won't be a complete list, but here are the best, in my opinion: Charles Higham's "Kate" is a total biography; Garson Kanin's "Tracy and Hepburn" is a good look at that relationship; Homer Duker's "The Films of Hepburn" and Alvin Marill's book in the Pyramid series on movie stars both are thorough looks at her film accomplishments.

DEAR DICK: Will you settle an argument between my husband and myself? I am referring to the movie "Ride Beyond Vengeance," which we saw on TV recently. It starred Chuck Connors. My husband says the man who was going to marry Connors' wife was Phillip Carey. I say no. Who's right? J.A.S., Leachville, Ark.

The movie stars Connors, Michael Rennie, Gary Merrill, Bill Bixby, James MacArthur. Carey's name is not listed among those present.

DEAR DICK: I have been a fan of Larry Wilcox since he was on "Lassie" and I've watched "CHiPs" since it began. When I heard he was quitting the show I read every magazine and newspaper article I could find to find out why. Each one had a conflicting story. Why did he quit? And what will he do now? C.K.M., Rolla, Mo.

It's basically a simple, familiar story. After five years on "CHiPs" — and not very happy years, despite the success — he felt it was time to move on. "I wanted to say something more than '10-4,'" Wilcox says. He'll still act, but he also wants to move into producing and directing.

DEAR DICK: I will always believe, despite the stories in the paper recently, that Marilyn Monroe took an overdose by mistake. It would be hard for me to change my mind. I don't think she was murdered, do you? B.C., Rock Hill, S.C.

Good for you! We Americans like to see murders and conspiracies and plots when generally there are none. And we waste time and millions of dollars-taxpayers' money on investigations that never prove anything. Monroe undoubtedly killed herself — accidentally or on purpose — and no new probe will change that.

'Cheers' Drinking Up Keg Of Commendation

Raise your glass to NBC's "Cheers" — it may very well be the hit of the fall season.

Why "Cheers?" "Well," says Shelley Long, who stars as Diane Chambers, an upper-middle-class, slightly dizzy, pseudo-intellectual who goes from teaching assistant to cocktail waitress in the premiere episode, "It's very funny and that doesn't hurt."

There are laughs to be had watching "Cheers," not uproarious knee-slapping laughs, but warm, hearty ones. They derive more from the characters' personalities than from funny jokes in the dialogue — personalities that seem recognizable and human rather than cardboard cutouts. No wonder; this is written, produced and directed by the team that created "Taxi."

It has the look of "Taxi" and a similarly workable situation: like a taxi driver, a bartender sees the world go by.

The bartender in this case is Sam, played by Ted Danson ("Body Heat"), an ex-ballplayer, recovering alcoholic, tall, sexy womanizer. He's immediately likeable, as is everyone else in the premiere.

"People want something with a little heart in it," says Miss Long, who starred in "Caveman," "Night Shift" and "Tijuana." "We're talking about real people in comedic situations, people who have a propensity for making mistakes, who unwillingly or unknowingly put themselves on the line.

"These are people you care about," she says, "because they care about each other."

How much will the characters of Sam and Diane care about each other in episodes to come? Miss Long acknowledges that gentle sparks flew between them in the premiere but, she says, even the producers won't say for sure.

"The seeds were planted in the first episode. Once that starts, you don't back away from it."

Network TV Quality?

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Maybe it's the threat of all those would-be censors. Maybe it's just that the American public has dined on prime time garbage to the point of indigestion, but something obviously has changed in the network board rooms.

It's an insidious thing, and audiences may not know how to handle it, but this season, a bit of genuine quality seems to be seeping into the television schedule.

Both ABC and CBS are set this week to unveil series that are downright watchable.

The Moral Majority may not agree — there are pretty girls, torrid teases and a measure of old-fashioned two-fisted violence in both — but at least this year we are spared the sight of brains being blown out in slow motion or characters who patently have none to blow at any speed.

"Matt Houston," which ABC will unveil Sunday in a two-hour pilot from 8-10 p.m. EDT, is the tale of a tall Texan far less interested in the running of his multimillion-dollar empire than in his hobby, which is playing detective.

Viewers may find the old "Maverick" theme running through their heads as the plot unfolds.

Lee Horsley, who plays the title character, is practically a word-and-gesture carbon copy of James Garner's laid-back gambler-adventurer, but far from committing literary larceny, he plays the role with his own special flair.

The premiere begins with a number of nasty people gathered for the launching of a giant oil tanker. In the course of the ceremony, a villain who truly needs killing is tricked into christening the big ship with a champagne bottle full of nitroglycerin.

Since everyone at the party wanted said villain dead — and after that gaffe, he most certainly is — detective Houston, called into the case by a sexy siren of past acquaintance, finds his hands full of more motives and suspects than a bronc buster has bruises.

What follows is a deliciously convoluted plot and conclusion that would have done credit to Raymond Chandler.

If the pilot can sustain its punch in series, "Matt Houston" should be a ratings champ.

At CBS, "Bring 'Em Back Alive" is pure 1940s film vintage. It even has the hero — the legendary Frank Buck, portrayed with high camp by Bruce Boxleitner — doing a Tarzan gig to rescue a fair damsel from a river crawling with crocodiles.

Never mind that the real Frank Buck, a world-famed explorer and collector of wild animals, was a soft-spoken soul who did most of his work in Africa and had nothing whatsoever to do with World War II.

This is fantasy anyway and the scenario absolutely demands that he be a swash-buckling womanizer in Maylaya in 1939 so that he can take time off between fighers to fight the Japanese who are about to invade Singapore.

The famed Raffles Hotel in Singapore is recreated as the setting for all the international intrigue. The pilot, set to air in two parts beginning Friday, with the wrap-up slated for Tuesday, Sept. 28, even has an oily Peter Lorre soundalike to slink among the potted palms, peddling services to the highest bidder.

The best thing about "Bring 'Em Back Alive" is its refusal to take itself seriously

HBO's 'Camelot' Lackluster

Richard Harris and Meg Bussert as Arthur and Guenevere.

out for some humor and spontaneity. The story's theme of old-fashioned chivalry, or "might for right," is basic kiddie stuff that is just taken too seriously here.

through. The one character who exudes energy is Pellinore (Barrie Ingham), Arthur's eccentric old friend.

If you can stay awake till the very end, you'll see Harris give off some genuine emotion, even cry what appear to be real tears. All in all, "Camelot" is a nice musical but a letdown as a play. The production cries

HBO's much bally-hooded production of Lerner and Loewe's "Camelot," starring Richard Harris, makes its debut Sunday, Sept. 26.

The musical, based on the medieval legend of King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table, was originally produced for Broadway in 1960 and revived again last year, with Harris replacing Richard Burton as King Arthur. (Harris also starred in the 1967 film version.)

HBO's production, restaged at New York's Winter Garden Theater after the play's run, is successful in the textbook sense. It has all the right ingredients — a classic story line with two tragic heroes and a fair maid, lots of colorful costumes and elaborate sets, and fine actors and music.

But the whole doesn't equal the sum of its parts; this is a lackluster production in which the choreography seems almost nonexistent. In HBO's screening room the sound on the video monitor kept fading, as if to remark on the sagging energy level among the cast members.

With all its pageantry and grandeur, "Camelot" must have been a difficult musical to adapt for TV. Director Marty Callner went overboard in trying to tone things down — the actors are so staid they appear to be going through the motions. Even the most potentially dramatic scenes, such as the joust between Lancelot and Arthur's knights and Lancelot's subsequent "miracle," are reduced to drama-workshop exercises.

Harris is a likeable King Arthur, a bit on the roguish side and kind of scraggly looking. But he seems tired and his singing can only be rated adequate. One wonders why big-name stars who can't really sing are recruited for musicals; thankfully the lesser-known supporting cast sounds wonderful.

Lancelot (Richard Muenz) is a do-gooder with no sense of humor. Meg Bussert's Guenevere is so refined that not much personality shows

'Couples' A Reality Soap Opera

By DAVID HANDLER

"Couples" is to the field of analysis what "People's Court" is to our system of justice. Except you feel even worse about yourself for watching, and enjoying, this one.

I suppose you'd have to classify "Couples" as a reality soap opera. This is that bold new syndicated daytime show that promises to "remove the mysteries of what actually goes on behind the doctor's door."

Translation: We spend a half-hour witnessing members of a real-life couple — married, unmarried, gay, you name it — expose their deepest troubles, often to do with sex, to a real-life therapist, Dr. Walter Bracklemanns.

Bracklemanns in turn asks a few probing questions, dishes up some self-help book platitudes, then comes up with an instant solution. And then all is well in "Couples" land. Next couple, please.

Here is the ideal junk vehicle for the '80s, a show that is both voyeuristic and oversimplified. What more can we ask for than easy answers and dirt?

Mind you, this is not a game show. We are not watching a grinning Bob Eubanks egg on blushing newlywed couples to disclose embarrassing little moments, often to do with sex. There is no cheering studio audience, no blinking lights or jazzy combo or all-expense-paid trip for two to bee-yoo-teeful Acapulco.

"Couples" takes itself very seriously. The set is spare and drab. Bracklemanns, our earnest, deacon-like host, actually seems to feel he can get to the bottom of deep-seated psychological problems and solve them in a half-hour. Our real-life couples seem to believe it, too.

First he talks to one member of the couple (presumably while the other is backstage in a soundproof booth), then the other. After that, he brings the two together for some frank three-week talk.

Meet Couple No. 728, Stephanie and James. They argue. He hits. "James," she confesses, "he gets uncontrollable. He's given me a couple of black eyes. He gets in these moods sometimes. He had a rough childhood."

After a word from our sponsor, we meet James, a large, fearsome man with eyes like gun barrels. Bracklemanns asks him for his side.

"Sexually, Stephanie is an A-One lady," he says. "But she has to learn her responsibilities to the kids and the house. I'm not a bully. I'm not bad Hercules. But a person gets on my nerves, the only way I know how to get him off me is with my hands."

Bracklemanns clears his throat and delicately suggests, "James, you come across as a guy who's angry."

James shrugs "I just don't like people to feel they can walk all over me."

After another word from our sponsor, we bring our couple together for Bracklemanns' diagnosis.

To James, he says "You have to get in touch with your anger. You have to learn to talk about what you feel. You must not hit this lady."

James nods grudgingly, head bowed.

To Stephanie, Bracklemanns says, "You both must learn to talk to each other more."

She nods. The credits roll. Another couple has been saved. You have a nagging doubt that it's all a bit more complicated than that. And it is, in the real world.

Just don't make the mistake of thinking that "Couples" is the real world. It's television.

Eagles Hold Their Own In Florida

Aerial surveys of nesting bald eagles show that these endangered birds appear to be holding their own in Florida and a few may be accepting some human encroachment into their territories, according to a report issued by Doris Mager of the Florida Conservation Foundation.

The surveys were made during the 1981-1982 eagle nesting season in an area extending from Pulman to Dade Counties.

For the first time since starting the surveys in 1973, Mrs. Mager believes that she has identified new nests built by formerly immature eagles. This would indicate that environmental conditions that affect the majestic, sensitive birds are locally satisfactory.

Mrs. Mager believes that these are not nests that were overlooked in previous years. Although the new nests did not produce any young this first year, they may be successful next year. Eagles mate for life and may live 50 years or longer.

Overall, Mrs. Mager's survey covered 270 nests and 183 territories in 17 1/2 counties. Of those, 138 were "active" nests and 95 produced a total of 137 young, for an average production of 1.44 young per active nest. That average is considered indicative of a healthy breeding population of eagles.

A new pair of eagles was observed nesting on Lake Apopka in an old territory where there had been no breeding activity for 9 years. Although eggs were laid and incubated, no young were produced this season but this pair will be watched carefully next year. Another pair, on the north shore of the lake, had not been successful for the past four seasons, but this year did produce its first young eagle. Present efforts to halt the dumping of wastewater into Lake Apopka and fish stocking might be having beneficial effects on the eagles, according to Mrs. Mager.

Mrs. Mager is also reporting more examples of eagles accepting human encroachment. In Osceola County, a home was built within 25 feet of an active nest, which is illegal but did not discourage the eagles. In Deltona, condominiums were built within 50 feet of an active nest. Federal agents observed this nest, in which the eagles did lay and incubate eggs although no chicks hatched. A second clutch was laid, however, and two young successfully fledged in late July.

Bald Eagles are protected by federal and state laws, and persons convicted of injuring or killing eagles face fines of up to $5,000 and one year in jail. Persons working on the surveys release information on nests per county but do not release information on specific sites which could lead to unintentional harassment of the birds.

Visual Trade Mag Prospers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The old saw about the man who builds a better mousetrap is alive and well and working hard for Tom Madden — an ex-network speechwriter who decided video technology was "the printing press of the future" and promptly started setting type.

Madden, who once ghosted the words with which NBC executives extolled their network at conventions and trade shows, now records such events on videotape to produce what he claims is the first trade magazine in the medium.

His Video Newscasting Network — a visual version of such industry trade publications as Broadcasting and Variety — now goes to 255 television stations, and advertisers eagerly pay several thousand dollars a minute for the privilege of including "informercials" plugging their products.

Two years ago, all Madden had was a view of changes sweeping the television industry and a mandate to research them for his bosses.

He found it paradoxical that he was doing all the research through the print media.

"It always struck me as odd that there was no visual counterpart," he said. "So the idea formed that this should be on videotape. I sent up a trial balloon and got 85 stations right off the bat — sight unseen."

What Madden now sends to his subscribers, on a bi-monthly basis for $495 a year, are 30-minute videotape cassettes featuring conventions, trade shows, technological developments and interviews with government figures whose views and actions are likely to affect the industry.

The appeal to advertisers lies in the ability of videotape actually to demonstrate such high-tech goodies as "Star Wars" style character generators rather than just to write about them — and to demonstrate them directly to the people most likely to buy.

When a few local stations recently revived old 3-D movies in their markets, Madden offered a sample segment and sent along the cardboard-rimmed glasses necessary to view them.

He also did an analysis of the revival's success in terms of audiences and advertising revenues and suddenly stations were handing out glasses and beating the 3-D drum all over the country.

Of necessity, Madden's shows are not designed for general audiences.

"I always emphasize that we are not a consumer show so people we interview can talk very frankly," he said. "They can use the jargon of the industry. They're talking to their colleagues — it's really peer-to-peer communication."

The "peers" on VNN cassettes are a stellar lot — FCC Chairman Mark Fowler, Ralph Nader and former CBS News President Bill Leonard among them — and every cassette bears the mark of full network production.

Madden even has a full-time Washington correspondent — former FCC chairman Richard Wiley.

"I couldn't get a better guy to figure Washington out," he said.

With station managers using VNN cassettes at sales and staff conferences, Madden was determined to give them their money's worth.

"A guy is taking valuable time away from a very busy schedule and he had better get something better than just, 'oh, wasn't that interesting,'" he said.

"He had better learn something that is going to help him manage more effectively, make some more money, get an idea that is stimulating, arouse his staff and motivate ... If he can get an idea or two a year that's going to result in more money, then this service pays for itself ten-fold."

"I think video is the printing press of the future," he said. "I think trade publication is going to turn to video."
