Draftees Almost Gone

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army is down to its last 25,000 draftees, representing only about 3 per cent of its strength. Draftees will be completing their two-year service and leaving the Army at the rate of about 5,000 a month during the summer and fall. Only a few will be left in uniform after that. But the last 85 draftees will not be discharged until June, 1975.

'Kind Of Spooky'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—"It's kind of spooky, sometimes. It's eerie when you stop and think that people had funeral services and were married and worshipped here." So says Donald Beaumont, who bought the Old Zoar Church four miles north of the southeastern Wisconsin farming community of Plymouth and has opened an antique shop and flea market in the 101-year-old structure. He says he may eventually live there with his wife and six children. Beaumont says he feels the flavor of his old building, complete with a large bronze bell still working in the belfry, will lead many travelers to stop and investigate.

Wyeth House Unwanted

CUSHING, Maine (AP)—A farmhouse in this village made famous in paintings by Andrew Wyeth has become the center of a dispute between the artist and some local residents. Wyeth's wife said Wednesday that "I had a hard time convincing Andrew to come back to Cushing this summer, and we're thinking of leaving permanently." The controversy centers around the farmhouse depicted in Wyeth's "Christina's World." The structure was used as a museum for Wyeth's work in 1971. But it was closed last summer after two lawsuits and complaints from residents about the heavy tourist traffic.

Opry To Visit Russia

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Singer Tennessee Ernie Ford and a dozen other performers from Opryland USA will entertain in the Soviet Union during a month-long tour this September. The trip will be sponsored by the U. S. State Department, the state of Tennessee and Opryland, Opryland officials said Wednesday. Opryland USA is an amusement park which opened here in 1971 and is the new location of the Grand Ole Opry House.

Duke Ellington's Estate

NEW YORK (AP)—Initially estimated at $200,000, the estate of composer Duke Ellington is to be administered by his son, Mercer K. Ellington. Ellington, 75, died May 24, leaving no will. Arrangements were made for the son, Ellington's only child, to serve as administrator in Surrogate Court here. The late Ellington's attorney, E. Link Wycoff Jr., estimated the estate is worth $200,000. But he said it is expected to reach a much higher figure when royalties, copyrights, manuscripts are assayed, with other property.

Better Rabies Serum

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration says a new antirabies serum produced from the blood of humans instead of horses can provide safer treatment for persons bitten by rabid animals. The FDA announced Wednesday that it has licensed the new "Hyperbar" serum manufactured by Cutter Laboratories of Berkeley, Calif. The company said the product would be available beginning in August but in limited supply, because of a shortage of human donors to provide blood containing rabies antibodies.

House For Veeps

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has passed a resolution to establish an official residence for the vice president. Under the measure approved Wednesday, Vice President Gerald R. Ford would be able to move into an 81-year-old house on grounds of the Naval Observatory in northwest Washington. It is occupied now by the chief of naval operations.

Humphrey, Mills Tied To Illegal Dairy Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—The staff of the Senate Watergate committee says it has evidence Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey's former campaign manager helped engineer a scheme to funnel $137,000 in illegal corporate aid to Democrats, including Humphrey. The campaign manager, Minneapolis attorney Jack L.

Chestnut, refused to testify under oath about the affair on grounds he might tend to incriminate himself, the staff said in a confidential report. A former top campaign aide to Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, Joe P. Johnson, also invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify about apparently illegal aid to Mills' brief 1972 presidential campaign, the report said. It said Humphrey's 1972 presidential campaign got $25,000 from the milk producers and $1,000 from a sister dairy co-op, Mid-America Dairymen, Inc. Also, both Humphrey and Mills received previously undisclosed campaign gifts of $1,000 each from Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co., the report said. U.S. Mayors Ask Detente With Nixon

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The new president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors has invited President Nixon to establish a reconciliation with city leaders and create "a domestic detente" on the urban front. San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, a Democrat, said the problems of the cities demand as much attention from the President as do international affairs. Alioto took over leadership of the conference Wednesday from Norfolk Mayor Roy B. Martin Jr., also a Democrat, at the conclusion of the organization's 42nd annual meeting.

VIPs Highlight Plumbers Trial

WASHINGTON (AP)—Only three prospective jurors were dismissed for doubts that they could be objective and give the defendants a fair trial. Daniel E. Schultz, attorney for Manjares and Barker, disclosed after Wednesday's session that his clients will be seeking work while in Washington for the trial. He said both their families in Miami are supported by their wives and he indicated funds for legal fees were running short. Liddy reported in a court brief that his wife is supporting their five children. The conspiracy Watergate conspirator said his personal cash assets amount to $25 in a checking account.

Church Turns Down Male Pastor

CHICAGO (AP)—A Chicago Methodist congregation that wants a woman pastor has rejected its bishop's appointment of a man. A member of the Parish of the Holy Covenant explained Wednesday that the congregation "felt we had to take a stand because women are not getting support" from the Methodist Church. But United Methodist Bishop Paul A. Washburn says the congregation can't refuse the appointment because "the act is provided for in the law of the Methodist Church." And the Rev. Charles Peterson, named to the position three weeks ago but yet to assume it, says he's marking time until the dispute is "worked out between the bishop and the church." For the past two weeks, congregation members have taken over the Sunday worship services and daily functions of the church, says the Rev. Donald Elmsberg, a minister member of the congregation not assigned to the church. He says the parish first requested a woman minister this spring when its pastor of 14 years announced his retirement. "We had good experiences with several women seminarians over the past two years, and we decided having a woman pastor now would encourage women in the church," said the Rev. Mr. Elmer, whose wife is a co-director of a national Methodist group to advance women's rights in society and the church. He said the congregation "wanted someone with experience—not a woman just for the sake of having a woman." He said women, who make up less than 1 per cent of Methodist pastors, "have traditionally been placed in the smaller, rural churches where they have little career mobility."

Panel Pares Nixon Witness List

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney James D. St. Clair is opening President Nixon's impeachment defense before a House Judiciary Committee panel that has rejected his request that six witnesses be called on Nixon's behalf. At a closed session today, the panel was expected to hear St. Clair respond to impeachment evidence presented by the committee staff over the past six weeks. The committee agreed Wednesday to call two witnesses suggested by St. Clair and said the others may be called if staff interviews indicate they have pertinent information to provide. An effort to win approval of St. Clair's full list of witnesses failed on a 12-9 vote that produced a sharp partisan split in the committee and may have influenced some Republicans to vote against impeachment. Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr., R-N.J., who offered the witness list, said he still was undecided about how to vote. "But if I don't hear from the witnesses I want to hear I'll never vote for impeachment," he said. Rep. Thomas F. Rallsback, R-Ill., also undecided on impeachment, said he thought the committee had made "a very bad mistake" in rebuffing St. Clair. In other Watergate-related developments: A confidential staff report of the Senate Watergate committee said former top campaign officials for Hubert H. Humphrey and Wilbur D. Mills have refused to testify about apparently illegal campaign donations. The Judiciary Committee named five witnesses who definitely would be called and listed five others to be interviewed by the staff to see if their testimony is wanted.

Liberals To Fight Later For Tax Reform

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate liberals have pledged to fight another day for tax reform after giving up on their efforts to attach such measures to the debt-limit increase bill. But their chances of finding another vehicle for the fight in the 1974 session seemed dubious. And their hopes of enacting an income tax cut, which they also tried unsuccessfully to attach to the debt ceiling measure, appeared to be slim, especially if the economy moves upward in the second half of the year as the Nixon administration predicts. The liberals abandoned their fight on the debt limit bill Wednesday after falling far short in another attempt to impose closure and cut off a filibuster against their riders to the bill. The Senate then passed the bill 58-37 and sent it to President Nixon, who is expected to sign it promptly in Moscow. The measure boosts the temporary $47.5-billion debt limit to $49 billion through next March 31. Unless it is signed by Sunday, the ceiling will drop to the permanent $40-billion figure, which would cause serious financial difficulties. The federal debt now is close to $475 billion. Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Senate Finance Committee told the liberals the House is working on two tax reform bills on which they could renew their battle when these reach the Senate. But one, a bill boosting levies on oil companies, is before the House Rules Committee, where its fate is uncertain. The other, a broad tax-reform measure, still is under consideration in the Ways and Means Committee. Its chances of passing the House seem to depend on whether it is ready before the Judiciary Committee acts on the impeachment issue.

Southeast Gains Non-Farm Jobs

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The U. S. Department of Labor says nonagricultural jobs are increasing in the Southeast, with a one-year rise of 351,000 jobs—nearly a third of them in Florida. Florida gained 112,300 nonagricultural jobs in the last year, Alabama 29,700 and Georgia 36,200. There were 12,421,500 nonagricultural jobs in Florida, Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia in April 1973 compared to 12,772,600 in April this year. A report by the Labor Department shows, however, that employment in manufacturing was down 4,200 from March of this year. The largest increase in employment, the report showed, was in government jobs, up by 97,700 in the past year.

It's Impossible To Say Who Really Runs Our Government

By BENJAMIN SHORE
The Herald Services

WASHINGTON—Who really runs things in Washington? The senator, or his top staff aides? The Cabinet officer appointed by the president, or the nameless, faceless civil servant who has been toiling for 23 years in that department? Interviews with a score of civil servants, elected legislators and appointed officials lead to one conclusion: There is no simple answer to that question. But as government grows larger and more complex, the ability of government's visible leaders to exert direct control over how the government functions is diminished, according to persons on both sides of the fence. Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-

Calif., a member of the House Armed Services Committee, recalls taking a few years ago and then Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard and envying his being able to control "90 per cent" of the Pentagon's operations. "Would you believe 15 per cent?" Packard replied without joking. Then who runs the military machine, if not its top civilian officials? Leggett, who has been wrestling with the Pentagon both as a cost-conscious member of the Armed Services Committee and as a congressman from a district with several military facilities, says flatly, "It's the brass," and the 70,000 white-collar civilian technicians in Washington.

What about Leggett's committee? How does it assess all those complex weapons systems, personnel demands, new aircraft carriers? It, too, has to rely on staff. He and several other members of Congress described a kind of Catch-22 situation: Congress needs more experts to cope with complex issues and to balance the experts in the government agencies, but so complex are these issues and so busy are most congressmen that they come to rely more and more on staff judgments. Over on the Senate side, they tell the story of a young, bright, aggressive freshman senator whose proposal for legislation on a very technical issue was rejected by a much older, less bright committee chairman in a letter drafted by his top committee expert. The young senator asked to meet with the chairman to discuss the issue. The chairman had his committee aide present during the meeting, at which the young senator launched into a highly detailed explanation of why his bill should get a committee hearing. The chairman didn't understand the issue, and furthermore, didn't like the young senator's implication that if only the chairman understood the issue, he would grant a hearing. Unable to take it any longer, the chairman ended the meeting by abruptly snapping: "Well, I've heard enough and I'm going to stand on that letter I wrote you."

As the frustrated young senator walked away, the chairman turned to his staff aide and whispered: "What was in that letter we wrote?" A longtime committee staff member in the Senate says staffs reflect their chairman's degree of leadership and expertise. "If a chairman is weak, this sometimes allows his committee chairman to seize large chunks of power," he said. "But there are a few major committees where the chairman seems willing to let their top staff people make the decisions. The same story is told on the House side. Leggett said a powerful chairman of the Armed Services Committee who, for example, might want to modify a major weapons system "will consult with his committee staff more than with other committee members."

A House committee staff member, with 12 years' experience under the same chairman, said he can affect the course of legislation simply by pigeonholing some bills and bringing others to the attention of his chairman. "Of course, I have a pretty good idea of how my chairman wants us to handle legislation," he said, but he conceded that with the huge number and complexity of bills, staffs are playing increasingly independent and significant roles. The same is true of the staffs in the individual offices of representatives and senators. The top aides who advise the elected officials on how to vote or how to take with a government agency on a project crucial to their districts or states wield substantial power. The influence of congressional staff personnel is so surprising when one learns that the 435 representatives employ a total of 6,000 staffers in their individual offices and another 1,500 on their 21 committees. The Senate has a total of 5,000 staff workers for its 100 members and its 17 committees. Downtown in the executive branch of the government, the numbers grow to overwhelming proportions. There are roughly 250,000 white-collar civil servants in Washington alone, ranging from messengers and typists to highly experienced and educated administrators. Sometimes it works, sometimes not. Who really runs the government? It's impossible to say with precision. "About the best we can hope for," said one Department of Health, Education and Welfare official speaking of the administration, "is to create the illusion that the President and his appointees are running things—and then work like hell to accomplish at least half of what we'd like to see done."

Sugar Loaf Getting Shave

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Rio's famous Sugar Loaf mountain is getting a shave. The barbers, dozens of men with scythes and herbicides, are stripping away grass that has spread over much of the hillside overlooking Guanabara Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. "Years ago, the mountain's slopes were covered with lush forest. Tourists who embarked on Sugar Loaf's cable car hardly noticed the small area of Guinea grass that strived for life at the foot of the mountain. The weed dried with the summer heat and easily caught fire. The fire killed other plants, but the grass remained rooted in the earth and showed up after rain."

Editorial People Demand Watergate Truth

We doubt that many Americans burst out in cheers on the second anniversary of the break-in at the Watergate Hotel on June 17, 1972. If we read the public mood correctly, most would have liked to have Watergate behind us long ago.

Unfortunately, however, the end of Watergate is not in sight. This fact is underscored by President Nixon's firm statement that he has determined not to furnish the House Judiciary Committee additional recordings of the White House conversations—a step which will delay the final outcome even further.

It seems likely that the committee will eventually get more tapes because the ultimate judges of what should or should not be delivered are the citizens of the United States themselves. And we believe that the people want nothing less than the complete truth even if it means stripping of the toes of executive privilege.

By the same token, the House Judiciary Committee has been less than galvanic in its effort to bring the Watergate matter to a head. Legally futile subpoenas may serve to focus public attention, but they also have a lot to be desired in terms of the influence that a congressional

The Pleasures Of Venice Are An Interlude In Life

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER
The Herald Staff

VENICE—in all our lives there are certain experiences so pleasurable and so perfect that they remain forever encapsulated in memory. I have just been through one such experience, and I would like to turn away, for a day, from the world and its problems and share it with you.

I had been to Venice four times previously in the past sixteen years, and considered myself in a modest way an expert on its delights. I had "done" the world-famous area around the Piazza San Marco and the Doges Palace repeatedly, and photographed a number of charming perspectives. I had taken the obligatory gondola ride and had recently begun showing others around this lovely city, in an effort to recapture its initial impact through their marveling eyes.

Then last year, in a New York bookstore, I came across a small volume entitled "Venice For Pleasure," by an Englishman named J.G. Links (W.W. Norton & Co., 1973). Mr. Links is in that inimitable British tradition of travel writers who are at once highly informative, intensely personal and immensely entertaining. He is equalled by few. A 4 oz. 1 wear a size 8 1/2 glove and one tablespoon is a handful and all I can grasp. Mirix is approximately 3.5 lbs. in 40 handfuls.

Also, where do these fire ants transport these scale insects? Orange pickers tell me they never see fire ant nests in orange groves.

Why not give people the exact law, both federal and state? What is the predominant food of these insects. How is this known? How is it known that the fire ant attacks the lady beetle? This is vital information for the "Royal Scarab Society," as the lady beetle is a member of the scarab family.

What reasons does the CIS have that would lead to the conclusion that would become a dominant predator in the ecosystem? In particular, that it destroys other ant predators or does DIS really mean predator ants?

Just making a little information, CIS. Where is this available?

AMERICAN MORALITY TODAY

By MARK McNEELY
The Herald Staff

The author is a reporter for the Knoxville News-Sentinel.

KNOXVILLE—(NEA)—In early March, a long line of theatergoers here shivered in the crisp evening weather outside the Gay Street Cinema. Middle-aged, well-situated businessmen with their wives, blue-jean-clad University of Tennessee students, and the usual array of faces one sees at the supermarket, shopping mall or church all huddled against the chill.

When the box office opened, about 400 persons crammed into the theater, and several end-of-the-liners were turned away because there was no more room. The feature was not "The Exorcist." It was "Deep Throat," which had been banned statewide by a Chattanooga judge in 1973.

But Tennessee, in early March, was without an obscene law to define those aspects of "Deep Throat" which have some as repulsive to the Chattanooga judge.

The movie's arrival in Knoxville was unheralded and the news spread mostly by word of mouth. A year earlier, the film was making its debut in three other large Tennessee cities—Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga.

It was banned in each city. But in Knoxville, a small newspaper advertisement was the only hint the pop pornography cell had arrived. The theater marquee did not even reveal the movie being shown inside. But the long lines did.

And when the film was banned, a state obscenity law had been the enforcing dictum. The Tennessee Supreme Court, on Feb. 19, declared the law unconstitutional, ruling it was "vague and overbroad." District Attorneys from across the state screamed "error," contending that at least 10 other states have obscenity laws more broad than Tennessee's.

The state legislature enacted a substitute obscenity law by mid-March and the measure was immediately signed into law by Gov. Winfield Dunn. Two days after the law was signed, "Deep Throat" vanished.

The new law follows the U.S. Supreme Court definition of obscenity with the test being a violation of contemporary community standards.

"Community," as defined by the new state law, is the entire state of Tennessee, from the 800,000 persons living in metropolitan Memphis to 180 residents of Laurel, 500 miles away in the mountains of East Tennessee.

The state's new obscenity law is "clear and concise," says Knoxville City Atty. Gen. Ronald Webster, who quickly put the law to rest to prohibit showing of the film, "Devil's Due," at a Knoxville theater.

The mixture of the Chinese experience and the alien philosophy of Marxism-Leninism, cannot push up through the undergrowth and grow roots of its own.

This, diplomats and China experts here say, is the central fact of the continuing and worrisome movement against Confucius.

Others may see in it a devious intrigue involving Premier Chou En-lai, or a stage for confrontation between the left and the right wings of Chinese communism.

But Mao regards it as a struggle for the survival of the political thought called "Maoism."

Labor Camp Cleanup

APOPKA, Fla. (AP)—The Orange County Health Department has ordered the owner of a farm labor camp near here to clean up his property and face legal action.

Following an inspection of the so-called Grey Yard Camp, the Health Department Wednesday directed owner Ralph W. Cumble to repair leaking septic tanks and clean up insectbreeding garbage.

The county acted in the wake of a campaign by Donna Longfield-Smith, an Orlando housewife, to improve conditions at the camp for about 75 families.

Jury Questions Carlton

MIAMI (AP)—Vassar B. Carlton, former chief justice of the Florida Supreme Court, says prosecutors questioned him about his acquaintances when he went before a federal grand jury investigating alleged gambling activities.

Carlton, who retired unexpectedly in January amid reports that he was the subject of an investigation by the state Judicial Qualifications Commission, spent more than an hour Wednesday before the grand jury.

"The smart thing to do was to take the Fifth Amendment, but I did not," Carlton said. "I wanted to tell them as much as I could, but I couldn't recall all the details for some of their questions."

"The trouble with not taking the Fifth is that when you can't remember all the details, they sometimes get people on perjury."

Import Insect Committee

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Florida nursery and farming interests have agreed to join with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to form a special committee to improve methods of protecting the state against foreign-bred insects and diseases.

Discussion of establishing such a committee has been going on for some time, but the decision to act came in the wake of Japan's rejection of two shipments of Florida citrus fruit to be contaminated by Caribbean and Mexican fruit flies.

Thomas Darling of the USDA's animal and plant health inspection service acknowledged during a Wednesday meeting with growers that the federal government could not guarantee that contaminated produce from foreign ports was not reaching Florida.

For example, Darling said, USDA import restrictions do not apply to Puerto Rico, the home of the sugar cane borer weevil which one citrus grower said had been found near Apopka.

Judge Says Law Bans All Marijuana Species

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—A judge who will be presiding nearly nine of 25 tons of marijuana hauled in. At the time, authorities said it was the largest pot bust in the nation's history.

Defense lawyers had hoped to establish in Wednesday's pre-trial hearing that the type of marijuana in question was "cannabis sativa," and therefore not illegal since Florida law specifically mentions only "cannabis sativa."

Expert witnesses presented by both sides disagreed on whether there is one or several "cannabis" species, and the judge finally ruled that it made no difference anyway.

Jax Hitchhiker Possible Third 'Army' Victim

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A reported abduction has Jacksonville police wondering if a black using the name Black Liberation Army has struck for a third time.

A hitchhiker, whose name was withheld, said he saw a second hitchhiker—a white youth—forced into a car by three black men along the Jacksonville Expressway late Tuesday.

Homicide Sgt. D.C. Mangum said after questioning the witness again Wednesday that police believe the abduction did happen as described.

Detective Chief Matt Touchton said that if the same bunch was involved, police could expect to find a third body.

The band using the BLA name lives on the bodies of a loving person. He loved Steve A. Orlando, 18, found everywhere."

Askew Kills Migrant Farm-Worker Bill

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Gov. Reubin Askew has vetoed a bill he says would have left most migrant farmworkers who pick citrus at the mercy of any unscrupulous crew leaders.

The veto was one of four issued Wednesday by the governor. He also nullified two local liquor-license bills and a measure that would have required counties to sell license plates bearing the "68" prefix.

He said the farm-worker bill would have exempted some 1,500 citrus dealers from an existing law regulating the activities of crew leaders who direct the work of such migrant farmworkers, and for whom he said the law would be removed.

"The effect would be to remove very substantial numbers of farm workers from the protection and benefits the law intended to provide," Askew said.

"The abusive treatment of migrant and seasonal farm workers by some unscrupulous crew leaders in the crew leader system has been a continuing problem in Florida," he added.

"To my knowledge, nothing has transpired to change the vulnerability of the farm workers in the citrus industry, nor to the number of crew leaders who exploit them for their own profit."

"I have long opposed the establishment of special licenses either by local act or general legislation," Askew said.

"I would not ask the Board of Business Regulation to work with legislative committees in developing recommendations for reform of liquor-licenses procedures."

"Only with overall uniform procedures can the difficult details of licensing be made in a fair and consistent manner," Askew said.

"The provision that led to veto of the auto license bill was an amendment added to a measure intended to increase the fee for mailing new tags and registration papers."

"The amended bill provided that all counties would have to sell the 68-number tags in addition to the series designated for that county."

"Tags of the 68 series have been sold by the Division of Motor Vehicles to persons out of state who need Florida tags, such as military personnel."

"Askew said state and local tag officials had convinced him the extra burden would "undo the recent improvements made in the sale and distribution of automobile tags."

"The cost of production of the additional '68' tags required under this bill has been estimated at more than $900,000 and no additional appropriation was provided," he said.

DeLand Considering Growth Impact Fees

DeLand is moving toward adopting growth-impact fees for sewer connections to single-family homes. The fees would increase in proportion to the size of a new building.

Sanford's utility fees, held in a special capital improvement fund for off-site utility expansions and improvements, were not proposed by developers after a series of public hearings, according to City Manager Warren Knowles.

Sanford adopted special utility connection fees in April 1973 and has collected $275 for water hookups and $540 for sewer connections to single-family homes. The fees would increase in proportion to the size of a new building.

State Pollution Board Chairman, New Member Named By Governor

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The newest member of the Florida Pollution Control Board is a Jacksonville businessman who says he wants to learn all he can about the job.

Gov. Reubin Askew named Richard G. Cravolo to replace resigning chairman David Levin of Pensacola.

Askew named W.D. Frederick, an Orlando attorney and board member since May 1973, as chairman.

Levin has asked that his resignation become effective Friday. He said he wanted to devote more time to his Pensacola law practice and to campaign for Askew's re-election.

The appointments of Hall and Frederick were among several made Wednesday by Askew.

"I think I'm like most everybody else," Hall said in a telephone interview. "I'm interested in pollution control with reason. I'm not expert at this, I haven't found much of anybody that is. I'm trying to learn and that's all I can do."

Hall is chairman of the board of Rex Packaging Co. and president of an marine insurance firm, Y.E. Hall Inc. The packaging firm makes folding cartons for cigars and bacon.

"I just consider myself a businessman," he said. "Just like anybody else, I'll sit there and reason and try to do the best job I can for everybody."

Hall, who has been a member of the Jacksonville Port Authority, has submitted his resignation from that position, Askew's office said in a news release.

Jury Hears Former O'Malley Associates

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Leon County grand jury that is investigating the financial affairs of state Insurance Commissioner Thomas O'Malley hears today from two of his former associates.

Ricardo G. Cravolo and Bennett H. Feldman of Miami were subpoenaed to appear before the 18-member panel.

Special prosecutor T. Edward Austin, guiding the grand jury, said he has already subpoenaed bank records pertaining to the two lawyers as well as to O'Malley, his wife and several sons of their friends.

Records of the Florida Bar indicated that O'Malley shared office space with Cravolo and Feldman in 1970. Former state Sen. Gerald Lewis, D-Miami, later moved into the offices.

O'Malley and Cravolo were partners in 1971 and Feldman and Cravolo are partners now, according to legal records.

Austin has already subpoenaed financial records of Lewis, Cravolo and Feldman.

Lex Hood, vice president of the State Bank of Jacksonville, was the only witness to go before the jury Wednesday.

The grand jury is said to be conducting a complex probe of O'Malley, including allegations that insurance companies were pressured into buying paintings at a Miami art show sponsored by Mrs. O'Malley.

The grand jury is also investigating allegations that O'Malley may have accepted $40,000 from a fuel marketers group that was seeking to keep self-service gasoline stations out of Florida.

O'Malley has denied receiving any money from the Florida Petroleum Marketers' Association. He also denied that there was any pressure on insurance firms in the 1972 art show.

The grand jury issued a new subpoena Wednesday for Ollie Evans Jr., the insurance department's general counsel, to appear before it next week.

Florida Department of Law Enforcement agents had been unable to serve him with a subpoena issued last week by O'Malley's staff.

Jerry Davies, O'Malley's press aide, said Wednesday that Evans was with O'Malley in California late Tuesday continuing an investigation of alleged improprieties in the state's purchase of land on St. George Island in the Gulf of Mexico near Apalachicola.

Davies said he didn't know that O'Malley and Evans would return to Tallahassee.

From The Mailbag

Editor The Herald Sanford, Fla.

Dear Sir:

I am a believer in self-determination and decision-making at the local level. I supported the incorporation of Lake Mary. I did not feel Lake Mary should be governed by either the Seminole County Commissioners or the Sanford City Commission. They both sit in Sanford, and local Lake Mary representation is thus diluted. I preferred and I still prefer all officials of our community to be elected by and from Lake Mary residents. The result of this is a fee for the local sentiments and needs, which is certainly presently claimed by several elected officials.

I question the claim of certain officials that they are voting based upon "What the people want." This has appeared in newspaper articles, and I have heard this from elected officials in Lake Mary City Council meetings. We elect officials on the basis of qualifications which include integrity, judgment, and ability. The duty of each elected official is to carefully consider all opinions and facts concerning an issue, and then vote intelligently. Any official who says that on all issues we must vote the will of the citizens imposes the burden of sacrosancting on each separate issue beyond a reasonable doubt exactly what that will may be. Without a referendum on each individual issue, I do not see how this may be done. Although it may be possible, it certainly seems impractical.

The Lake Mary city government has not set up on this basis, however. The legally constituted government, serving under an oath of office taken by each person, is one that is charged with voting the issues and facts. It should not be permitted to allow to wishes of the voters without absolute proof of those wishes. At all times, each official is wholly and individually responsible for each vote (s) he casts.

I am very much in favor of our present form of government—one which should be operated to give equal treatment under the law to all, to hear the viewpoints in public

Confucius' New Foe None Other Than Mao

TOKYO (AP)—Over the past 2,000 years Chinese rebels unsuccessfully fought a daunting foe named Confucius. Communist revolutionaries Mao Tse-tung has joined the seemingly endless battle.

To outsiders, the campaign being waged by the 80-year-old chairman of the Chinese Communist party seems a curious one, wrapped up as it is in denunciation of a recently dead Red hero named Lin Biao and entwined in the threads of political intrigue.

But to Mao—a scholar, poet, calligrapher, historian and political thinker—it is a significant and important as any past battle he has fought on his way to power.

For millions of Chinese still alive by the ethical system handed down by Confucius 25 centuries ago, precepts which have seeped into the Chinese bloodstream.

The sayings of Confucius are legion. But essentially what he stood for was perfect order in human society. To achieve it, he advocated a freeing of the Chinese classes, a place for everyone and everyone in his place.

Above all, he counseled loyalty—to sons to fathers, wives to husbands, of the ruled to the ruler, of the people to the emperor.

Federal Funds Aid Workers

TALLAHASSEE—More than 15 million in federal funds will aid older workers, veterans, minorities and youth in diversified programs throughout Florida this summer, according to the Florida Department of Commerce.
 The bulk of the money, $11,712,733, is allocated to the State Manpower Services Council, which administers funds for areas that do not have local prime sponsors, received $3,977,598 of the total for summer job programs.
 A new program, designed to train disabled Vietnam era veterans in fields where skilled workers are at a premium, is funded with $63,000 under the Manpower Development Training Act. Training in health, personal services, industrial and environmental skills will be offered to disabled veterans through the Florida State Employment Service.
 Jobless persons 50 years and older with incomes below the federally established poverty level and poor employment prospect are eligible for part-time jobs with one of the national organizations that sponsors older worker programs. A total of $464,000 will fund these part-time positions.
 The State Manpower Services Council is cooperating with the local prime sponsors and national organizations to assure the program's success.

New Voter Registration Hours

Seminole Supervisor of Elections Camilla Bruce has set special evening and Saturday hours during July to give the 9,000 persons whose names have been purged from voter rolls and others an opportunity to register to vote.
 Before rolls were purged the first of the year, 47,377 were registered. Those now qualified to vote in Seminole County, city, state and national elections as of May 31 total 38,893.
 Under the system used by Mrs. Bruce's office, new registration cards are sent out to voters every two years. Those who return the cards are kept on the rolls, while the other names are purged.
 During July in addition to the regular 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. open hours Monday through Friday at the Seminole courthouse office in Sanford and the Seminole Plaza branch office in Casselberry, both offices will be open on Tuesday evenings until 9 p.m. and on Saturdays from 8:30 to 5 p.m.
 A new state law requires the books to close at 5 p.m., July 27, 45 days prior to the first September primary.
 Any resident of the state, 18, years and older, may qualify. There is no length of residence required.
 Mrs. Bruce reminds voters to be certain they have a yellow voter's registration card which indicates they are in good standing. Other information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Bruce's courthouse office.

Altamonte Requires Detectors In Homes

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer
 ALTAMONTE SPRINGS—Builders of single family homes and duplexes in this city will have to install smoke detectors in bedroom areas to comply with the city's new fire code.
 City Council earlier this week adopted a fire code amendment requiring the smoke detectors by a 3 to 1 vote. Although the law is not retroactive and does not apply to old houses, those owners making major renovations will also have to install the detectors.
 During lengthy discussion, the amendment appeared headed toward a deadlocked 2-2 death, until Fire Chief Tom Siegfried persuaded Councilman Helen Keyser to go along with Mayor Norman Floyd and Councilman Don Myers to grant approval. Councilman Dan Dorfman is in New York on business.
 Siegfried said today the price range of smoke detectors required is $60 to $150. Most homes will need only one detector in the bedroom area, he said.
 He described major renovations as the enclosing of a garage or the addition of rooms.
 Siegfried told councilmen that a study completed in Ohio by the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) showed that 73.9 per cent of loss of life in house fires is caused by smoke asphyxiation and only 23.6 per cent from burns suffered in uncontrolled fires.
 Sellers of new homes will have to certify the type of equipment used, Siegfried said.
 Councilman Cal DeVoney, saying he personally will be installing the detector in his home, argued against the beefed up code. He said the people should have the option of whether to purchase the smoke detectors.

Sixth Grader Reads Better Than Seniors

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
 Ph.D., M.D.
 CASE, Aeron Nixon is a cute girl in sixth grade who supervises the Nursery during the sermon hour.
 Recently I took Natty Bo into that playroom and stayed for half an hour, visiting with Lynn. She was very self-reliant and alert, so I quizzed her about school topics.
 Then I asked her to read this phrase, which I printed on sheet of paper: "Because of preceding generations."
 She never hesitated, but read it aloud, with perfect pronunciation.
 "Dr. Crane," she asked, "why did you ask me to read that aloud?"
 "Well," I replied, "I wanted to see how good a reader you are."
 "For in one of our large Chicago Senior High Schools, the hygiene teacher wrote that phrase on the blackboard."
 "Then he requested his senior students to read it aloud, just as I asked you to do."
 "Lynn, it may shock you to learn that 50 per cent of all those senior students, who were 17 and 18 years old, couldn't even pronounce that first word 'Because.'
 "And not one of those seniors could pronounce 'preceding' or 'generations.'
 "So you can read far better than the senior students in that big Chicago High School!"
 A tragedy occurred in our public school system when brain-trusters got control and ruled out such splendid reading books as the McGuffey Readers.
 Those classic school text dramatized the content of the stories assigned to grammar schoolers.
 They didn't limit the children to name statements like "See the dog, Jack has a dog. See the cat, Jack has a cat." Instead, they included a narrative plot in the early days.
 (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents for cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Nuclear Disadvantage Out, U.S. Tells Reds

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)—The Nixon administration, in a presumptuous tactic, has put Soviet leaders on notice that it will not accept a nuclear disadvantage and is prepared to continue the arms race "as long as we must."

At the same time, the administration has taken the precaution of notifying the American people that they shouldn't expect too much in the way of weapons controls from President Nixon's Kremlin talks with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev.

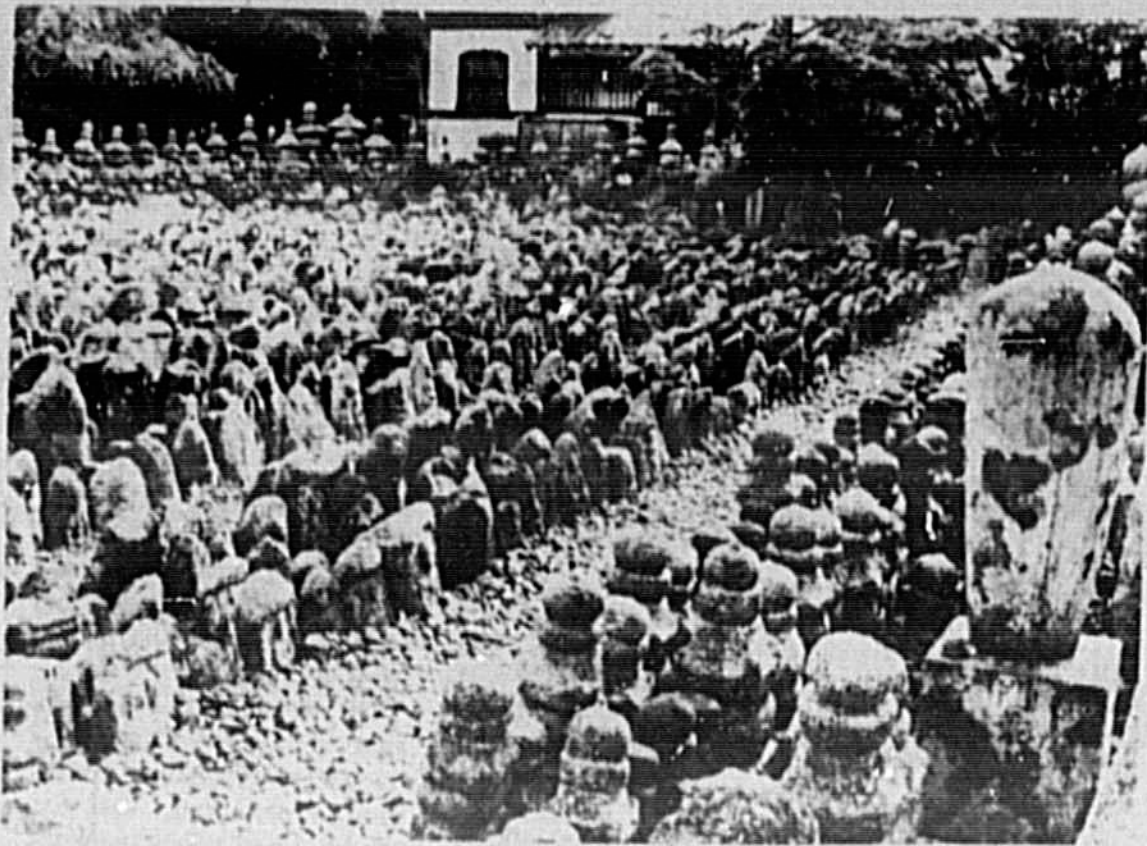

The double set of signals was flashed at a Brussels news conference Wednesday night by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The United States probably retains an overall weapons advantage because of its edge in deployed warheads and delivery systems, Kissinger said. But there has been a technological explosion since the 1972 interim nuclear arms treaty that puts pressure on both the big powers.

On the Soviet side, missiles with multiple independently targetable (MIRV) warheads may soon be deployed, Kissinger reported. But he added, "at what rate they will deploy them, it is not yet fully possible to foretell."

The secretary said that unless Washington and Moscow can agree on limitations within the next 18 months, it will be almost impossible to reverse the development of Soviet arms.

Moreover, he said, "it is impossible that there will be an extension of the interim agreement unless it is tied to some substantial agreement on multiple warheads, and that probably will also not be fully achieved at the summit."

Lebanon Asks Oil Cutbacks To Halt Israeli Attacks

By The Associated Press

Lebanon has decided to ask the Arab countries to reimpose oil production cutbacks if Israel continues to attack Palestinian positions in Lebanon in reprisal for guerrilla raids, the right-wing Beirut newspaper Al-Jadid reported today.

The paper said Lebanese Premier Takiyeddin Solh will make the request at the emergency meeting of the Arab League defense council called in Cairo Monday to discuss the Israeli raids into Lebanon.

The council is made up of defense and foreign ministers of the league's 21 member states. A government spokesman said the premier was heading the Lebanese delegation to help impress on the conference "the urgent need for collective and effective Arab action to deter Israel."

The spokesman declined to comment on the report that Solh would seek reversal of the oil war.

Arab gunners and Israeli forces traded artillery fire across the Lebanese border on the western slopes of Mt. Hermon today, the Israeli military command said.

A communique said several mortar shells were fired from Lebanese territory at the Har Dov sector and fire was returned. No Israeli casualties were reported, the command said.

The Lebanese territory below Har Dov is controlled by the Palestinian guerrillas.

Three out of four Israelis believe the bombing of terrorist bases in Lebanon should continue, a public opinion poll indicated today.

So far, however, there has been no air action in retaliation for the Palestinian raid Tuesday in the town of Nabatiya in which four Israelis were killed.

British Probing Spy's Death

LONDON (AP)—An inquest opened today to probe the death of former British spy Sir Peregrine Heneker-Heaton, whose skeleton was found locked in a room of his home three years after he disappeared.

The coroner referred to the "intolerable strain" undergone by the family, and adjourned the inquest for one week pending further inquiries.

Heneker-Heaton served with British intelligence during World War II. He went for a walk Oct. 5, 1971 and never returned.

The find was made by Yvo, Heneker-Heaton's 20-year-old son. He was looking for a cabinet to store phonograph records when he came across the key to the locked room.

Steel Prices Up

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—Price increases announced by U.S. Steel Corp. for a wide range of products might foreshadow higher consumer prices for automobiles and appliances.

The company's second price hike this month, announced Wednesday and effective Monday, also affects rails and plate steel used in construction. The company said the price boosts averaged 15 per cent. U.S. Steel had boosted prices 8 per cent on June 11.

The firm refused to say what precipitated the price hike, which averages 5.5 per cent over the total product line.

A spokesman also refused to say what effect the price increases might have on prices for consumer goods.

Bank Shopping

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department is searching for new ways to guarantee consumers the opportunity to shop around for the best deal in bank services.

The department's antitrust division had hoped for a Supreme Court decision blocking certain big bank mergers that the department considers potentially harmful to millions of bank customers.

The antitrust division prefers to see communities served by several banks and financial institutions aggressively wooing consumers with such things as free checking accounts, quick service on home mortgages and a willingness to make relatively high-risk consumer loans.

But the court Wednesday ruled against the department and paved the way for a major Seattle bank to take over a major Spokane bank.

Coupons Encourage Vacations At Home

TALLAHASSEE—An average 500 Florida residents a day are receiving coupons allowing them to take special gifts at attractions around the state as part of a Florida Chamber of Commerce campaign to encourage Floridians to spend their summer vacations here this year.

Billed as an energy conservation effort as well as an "improving business" program, the campaign is entitled "See Florida First." It began this month with the placement of promotional material and coupon entry blanks in grocery stores and other sales outlets throughout the state by Florida Bottlers of Coca-Cola.

"It's a little early yet to tell whether our efforts to encourage in-state summer vacations are working. Our projection was to distribute coupon books affecting 50,000 persons a month and we are encouraged by our 150 per cent in request each week since June 1," noted Lee A. Everhart, President of the Florida Chamber.

"This program was conceived as a idea to aid in conserving energy and, even though there appears to be plenty of gas available, still feel this is necessary. We also hope to help increase the tourist business for this summer season," he added.

To participate in the program, anyone in Florida can pick up a coupon book request in a store of their choosing and send it along with 24 plastic crown liners from Coca-Cola bottle caps to the Florida Chamber of Commerce office in Tallahassee.

The Florida Chamber then sends a "Florida Family Bonus Book" with coupons entitling the family to reduced rates or special gifts at any of 40 attractions around the state.

The program will last until September 30 and the Florida Chamber estimates an average family of four could save about $60 of regular prices if they visited each participating attraction.

Oil Swindle List Reads Like 'Who's Who'

NEW YORK (AP)—Martin Breigman, producer of the police movie "Serpico," was explaining why he was among the widely known personalities who invested in a reported $100 million oil drilling swindle that could be the biggest of its kind.

"We believed the people, we saw the facilities and, when you look at the list, we were in good company," he said.

"The people," according to the Wall Street Journal, were Home-State Production Co., Tulsa, Okla., tax-shelter oil-drilling firm that was declared insolvent last September by the Securities and Exchange Commission and is under SEC investigation.

"The facilities," according to the Journal, consisted of five oil wells drilled on a vegetable farm near Santa Marta, Calif., in the late 1960s. The newspaper said one well was legitimate and 5,500-foot deep but at least three of the others were 900-foot dry holes.

Facilities included irrigation pipes painted with the consent of the farmer to resemble oil pipelines, the Journal said Wednesday.

"The list" of investors included some of the best company in the worlds of entertainment, law, finance and other fields.

According to the Journal, singer Andy Williams invested $338,000. At least a dozen present and former General Electric officials put in $3.7 million. Fashion designer Oleg Cassini supplied $7,000 and Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., $28,500.

Other investors were Jack Benny, Dianah Carroll, Barbara Streisand, Bobbie Gent, Mia Farrow, Jonathan Winters, Tony Curtis, Faye Dunaway, Buddy Hackett, Bob Dylan, Alan Alda and Candice Bergen. Other investors listed included Paul Miller, chairman of the Gannett Co. and board chairman of the Associated Press; James R. Shepley, president of Time Inc.; former Florida Gov. Claude R. Kirk; Washington lawyers Earl W. Kintner and Henry J. Fox; Thomas S. Gates, former defense secretary and director and ex-chairman of Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.; federal judge Murray I. Gurfin; Walter B. Wriston, board chairman of First National City Bank; Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., and Chester W. Nimitz, chairman of Perkin-Elmer Corp. and former Navy rear admiral.

Restricted Economy Is Groaning Louder

NEW YORK (AP)—The groans of an economy straining against its limitations are being heard now from almost every direction.

The latest report of tension comes from the banking industry, where a survey shows that losses on commercial loans rose 24 per cent last year to an average of $26 for each $10,000 of business. The average in 1972 was $21.

The survey, by Robert Morris Associates, made up of bank loan and credit officers, shows that total write-offs by the 72 banks surveyed amounted to $374 million. The banks involved in the study represent about 85 per cent of commercial bank loans.

This survey report follows one by Business Week magazine that suggests many utilities are feeling the strain too, and are trying to cover it over from investors by paying out more in dividends than they are earning.

Of 21 utilities studied, it said, actual profits fell short of dividends by $340.3 million.

DeLand city manager David Brandt, currently assistant city manager of Coral Springs in southwest Florida.

Brandt, 40, will succeed Wayne Sanborn who resigned as DeLand city manager effective June 14 to join a local development company.

The city commission's selection had been narrowed to two candidates by Wednesday night. Brandt and Thomas Sprowl, former city manager of Cocoa Beach and currently serving at the University of Tennessee Technical Advisory Service as a municipal consultant.

Brandt agreed to accept the position at an annual salary of $18,500 with $1,800 car allowance and retirement benefits.

Former Seminole County commissioner and Sanford mayor and city commissioner David Gatchell requested his name be withdrawn from consideration earlier Wednesday.

A renewed effort by Seminole County commissioners to regulate the garbage collection industry may be underway after a dramatic increase in the number of complaints reaching commission offices.

Commissioner Mike Hattaway, who in April and May formed part of the majority against a proposed exclusive franchise ordinance, now says "something has to be done."

Hattaway, lone Democrat on the board, said his office has been flooded with calls protesting increasing collection rates and changing standards of service.

At the time of the May 14 public hearings—enlivened by overwhelming public opposition—commissioners indicated they might turn to a strict licensing alternative rather than exclusive franchise ordinance.

Tuesday, Hattaway asked staff to investigate national programs to see if a strict licensing system can give the board added controls.

Some alleged investors reached said they had agreed with business advisers that Home-State appeared to be a legitimate tax-shelter investment. Spokesmen for firms whose officers were allegedly involved said company policies were not involved in any way.

The Journal described Home-State as a "Ponzi Scheme," named after Charles Ponzi of Boston, who took more than $10 million from investors in 1919-20.

County May Consider Garbage Firm Rules

County Atty. Howard Marsee said he and commissioner Sid Vihlen Jr. will have to review the Sanford Air Port Authority's proposed lease for the renovated jail project.

Marsee said the proposed $42,000 annual lease, renewable every two years, is not acceptable in its present form, but presents "no serious problems which can't be resolved."

The board set a Monday work session on the lease. Sheriff John Polk has said he hopes to get construction underway next month, and is aiming for occupancy by early January.

Commissioners defeated by a narrow 3-2 vote a proposed small office district on SR 434 just off the west of Longwood, even though developers had been encouraged for three public hearings over six months to meet the objections of the Rolling Hills Civic Association.

Commissioners John Kimbrough, Dick Williams and Greg Drummond formed the majority over colleagues Hattaway and Vihlen.

Developer's representative David Farr said he was stunned by Drummond's apparent about face and last minute switch to opposition about lack of service roads in view of the

It's No Accident That GM Got To Be World's Biggest

NEW YORK (AP)—General Motors executives invited 150 stock market analysts to their marble-walled company cafeteria on Fifth Avenue this week and presented an unusually upbeat forecast of things to come.

The company's various problems are now solved or close to being solved, Oscar Lundin, the executive vice president of finance, assured the analysts. Fuel economy, emission problems, safety, deal profits, etc.

This isn't the same type of report a company gives to the government or to buyers when it announces a price increase, as GM has several times in the past few months. But it's what GM likes the analysts to hear. It's understandable.

With charts and graphs and meticulously practiced answers to questions, the executives sought to assure these people, whose opinions influence many investment decisions, that GM was seizing one opportunity after another.

GM's share of the market was rising, to 43.6 per cent of all car sales, said Richard Terrell, also an executive vice president. The gasoline shortage is less critical, and besides, he said, GM was aware of the impending shortfall.

It had, moreover, been prepared for the small-car demand, Terrell said. White letters flashed on a red background: "GM aware of energy situation and trend toward smaller cars several years ago." Some analysts were surprised to hear and read this, remembering those big inventories of larger vehicles.

Buyers will obtain 12 to 13 per cent more mileage per gallon on 1975 models, said Elliott Estes, another executive vice president. Customers will save at least $100 a year on fuel and lower maintenance, he promised.

Fuel economy on rotary engines has been made comparable with piston engine performance, said Estes, even though there is work still to be done on reducing emissions. He promised a sporty subcompact rotary sometime in 1975.

New techniques for reducing weight are being discovered, he said, now that engineers can look at their models in their entirety rather than responding in short lead time to regulatory demands. You would never guess the new cars weigh more.

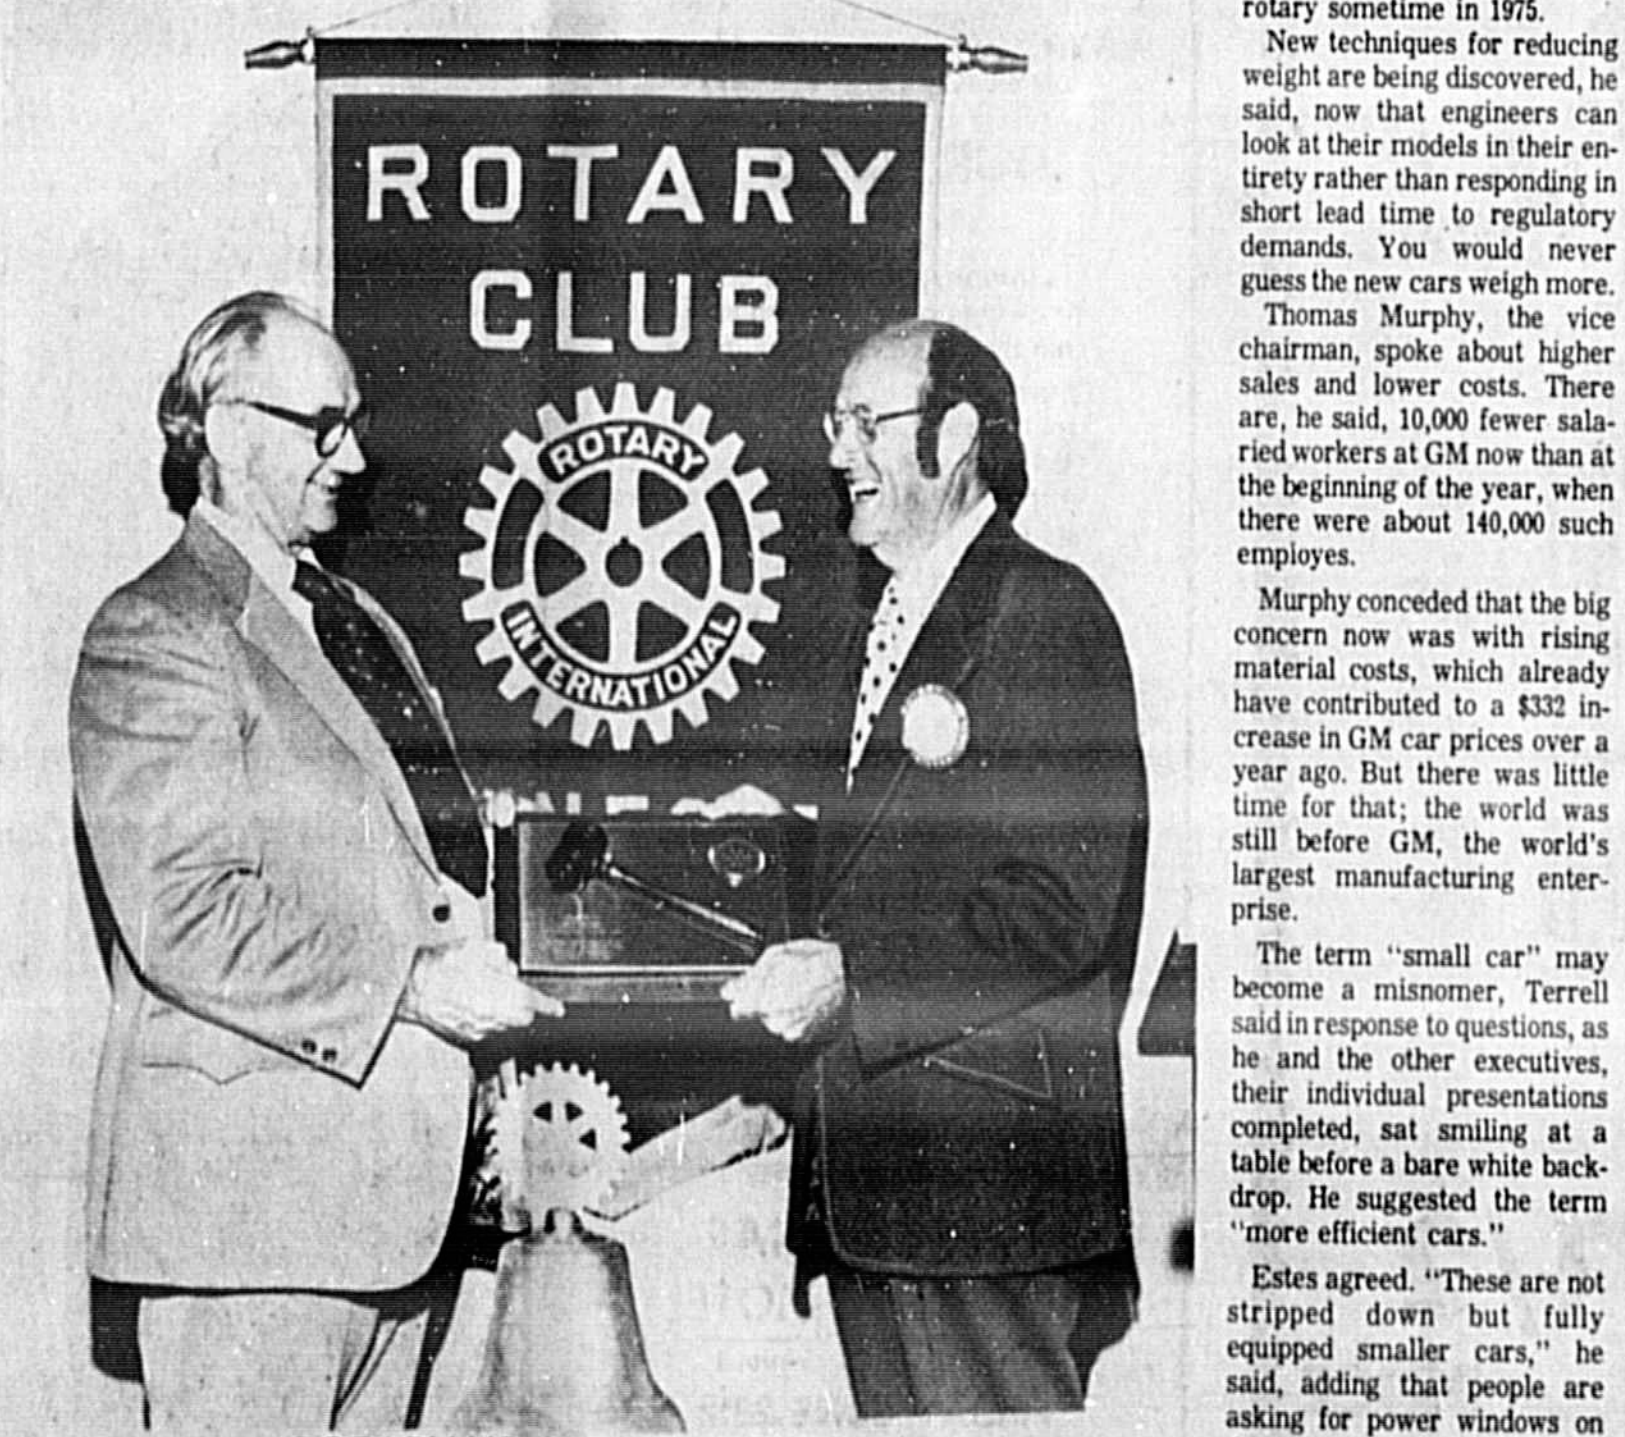

Thomas Murphy, the vice chairman, spoke about higher sales and lower costs. There are, he said, 10,000 fewer salaried workers in GM now than at the beginning of the year, when there were about 140,000 such employees.

Murphy conceded that the big concern now was with rising material costs, which already have contributed to a $32 increase in GM car prices over a year ago. But there was little time for that; the world was still before GM, the world's largest manufacturing enterprise.

The term "small car" may become a misnomer, Terrell said in response to questions, as he and the other executives, their individual presentations completed, sat smiling at a table before a bare white backdrop. He suggested the term "more efficient cars."

Estes agreed. "These are not stripped down but fully equipped smaller cars," he said, adding that people are asking for power windows on their Vegas, GM's smallest car.

But the fact is, as the GM men pointed out, there is a tremendous profit opportunity today in fattening up those little cars with old-time luxuries, such as air-conditioning, stereo, electric defrosters, vinyl roofs.

Public Fighting Inflation

MILWAUKEE—The public seems ready "to bite the bullet and take whatever action is necessary to bring inflation under control," the executive vice president of the American Bankers Association (ABA) said.

"The American public, in showing new firmness in its demands that effective measures be taken to bring inflation under control, even if such measures mean discomfort over the short run," stated Willis W. Alexander.

Alexander, addressing a meeting of the Wisconsin Bankers Association, said: "For the first time in our history, there is no widespread public demand for a tax cut in an election year."

"The public seems to understand that such a tax cut would probably only fuel inflationary fires."

Alexander said the only way to bring inflation under control is to decrease consumption and increase productivity.

The ABA executive vice president also attributed much of the public's loss of faith in the government, press and business to the system's inability to bring inflation under control.

"For eight years, we have tried just about everything, from jawboning to outright price controls," he said, "and still the rate of inflation has skyrocketed."

"All this has done is a cynicism about the effectiveness of our system and now ingrained expectation that inflation will continue."

Harry Named Administrator

Jesse F. Harry has been named administrator of the Sanford Naval Academy, after returning to the school following a year's service on the administrative staff of Teague Middle School, Forest City.

Harry will direct all programs at the academy with the exception of the senior school's academic department. Burch Cornelius, headmaster since the academy was established in 1963, will continue in that capacity.

Harry came to the Academy as an instructor in 1964 and has served as athletic director, admissions officer and a headmaster of the Academy's junior school.

Engine Manual Available

DETROIT — Chrysler performance engines have published a concise "Kit Car Engine Manual."

The book has 28 pages of text and 19 pages of illustration. The book sections include step-by-step advice and information on: engine parts, engine preparation, engine assembly, accessories, and break-in.

"The publication provides the average mechanic with the 'know how' to build a competition engine," said Larry Rathberg, Manager-Stock Car Programs. "We have all worked to simplify the language and the procedures. Maurice Petty has made some key contributions to the text."

The pamphlet, priced at $2.00, is available from Larry Rathberg, Chrysler Corporation, P. O. Box 1919, CIMM 416-15-07, Detroit, Michigan 48231.

Credit Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Loans under a proposed emergency credit program for the embattled livestock industry may not reach producers until August or later, government testimony at a congressional hearing suggests.

Spokesmen for the Department of Agriculture said "several weeks of interpretation" would be necessary before drafting regulations for a program with "many complex, novel features."

The administration opposes the emergency loans though it is expected to acquiesce in the program.

"We are not unaware of the realities" of probable passage, said William E. Erwin, assistant secretary of agriculture, at a House Agriculture hearing Tuesday.

Erwin said, however, the administration planned to propose limits such as cutting poultry producers out of the program, lowering the maximum loan amount for an individual and shortening repayment periods.

The Agriculture Department would need at least another 30 days from the time Nixon signs the bill to draft the regulations. —

AAA Fuel Gauge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Automobile Association reports that for a fifth straight week, the average price of regular gasoline across the nation has remained stable at 56 cents a gallon.

The AAA also said Tuesday that according to spot checks of 5,556 stations in all states except Alaska, the average price of premium gasoline has stayed at 60 cents a gallon for two weeks in a row.

Slight improvement was reported in the availability of gasoline on evenings and weekends, although the AAA said the proportion of stations completely out of gas increased from 0.2 per cent a week ago to 0.6 per cent this week.

Hawaii had the highest average prices—61 cents for regular and 64 cents for premium. Michigan and Illinois averaged second highest in regular fuel prices at 59 cents while Vermont was second in premium prices at 63 cents.

Sales Increase 20 Per Cent

Sales at Winn-Dixie's 969 supermarkets in the local sector and throughout the South increased 20.06 per cent during the four weeks ended June 1 compared with the corresponding period last year.

The volume totaled $20,471,845 against $16,646,530, and advance of $3,825,315. A gain also was shown for the 46 weeks ended June 1, when sales were $2,321,283,386 compared with $1,847,706,185, an increase of $473,577,201 or 25.51 per cent.

Psychologists Helping People Lose Weight

CHICAGO (AP) — Psychologists are succeeding where physicians have failed in helping fat people lose weight, a California psychiatrist says.

And, he said, they're doing it without special diets.

Dr. Albert J. Stunkard said that in the past three or four years effectiveness of weight reduction programs has improved 50 per cent through the use of what psychologists call behavior modification or operant conditioning.

Stunkard, chairman of the psychiatry department at Stanford University, told newsmen at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association Monday that the medical profession "has been very backward" in using this new, proven technique to help persons lose weight. He said "psychologists all over the map are doing it."

The psychiatrist, who described the technique at the AMA meeting, said he has been involved with about 130 obese patients at the University of Pennsylvania, where he formerly taught, and at Stanford.

Obese patients enrolled in these group therapy programs do not have to go on special

Nutrition Expert Challenges FDA

By SUSAN FORREST
The Herald Services

"Breast milk is the only food we can say was intended for man," said Dr. Carlton Fredericks, nutrition expert. "It is the only thing on the face of the earth we are sure about."

Fredericks, educator and author, believes this nation's poor nutrition begins with the baby's formula and continues with baby desserts through sweet rewards to the adult who consumes an average 100 pounds of sugar a year.

"It is one of the most common problems in nutrition here," he said in an interview. "We have been starting babies on junk foods from the cradle."

Among its nutritional superlatives, human milk has more niacinamide than cow milk, said Dr. Fredericks, whose latest book is "Eating Right for You." Without at least 10 milligrams of this a day a human will become schizophrenic in six months, he maintains.

Fredericks, whose show "Living Should Be Fun" has informed radio audiences since 1941, warns about proposed regulations on vitamins by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. Vitamins he believes are necessary for the nation's health that began to deteriorate with bottle feeding.

"The FDA would like to destroy the vitamin industry except on prescription, and also the health food industry," he claims. "These products reflect unfavorably on ordinary products and on the ability of the FDA to protect the nation's health."

Already prescriptions must be written for vitamin A in amounts over 10,000 U.S. Pharmaceutical units and amounts over 400 USP units of vitamin D.

"Why don't they limit the amount of table salt?" questioned Fredericks. "It is more toxic than vitamin A."

He said the FDA's toxic level of vitamin A is 100 times the recommended adult allowance, but the lethal dose of salt is only 15 times the amount most people use, 15 grams.

"The limit on vitamin A is 10,000 USP units, but a glass of carrot juice has 19,000 and a plate with liver, sweet potato and spinach has 76,000. With the FDA reasoning, you should drop dead from a meal like that."

Fredericks, an adjunct professor of nutrition at New York Institute of Technology, believes the FDA already has enough power to remove vitamins from shelves if fraud

Could Man Survive Long Space Flight?

By FRANK MACOMBER
The Herald Services

Another Apollo Astronaut Edwin E. (Buzz) Aldrin's recurring mental depressions opens a whole new argument over whether the man is ready psychologically to travel to the distant planets.

Aldrin was the second man to walk on the moon, after Apollo 11 commander Neil Armstrong, in 1969. He developed the depression in 1971, and later discussed it in a book, "Return to Earth." He was named chairman of the National Mental Health Association last November.

Aldrin was to have addressed the District of Columbia Mental Health Association last month, but canceled the speech the day before and remained in his Los Angeles home because of recurring symptoms of mental depression that developed after the Apollo adventure.

John Perry, director of communications for the national association, says Aldrin's condition occurs in cycles two or three times a year, lasting anywhere from four days to six weeks.

Aldrin's courage in telling publicly the story of his mental troubles has triggered arguments among psychiatrists and psychologists over whether the historic Apollo 11 flight to the moon is to blame. His condition also naturally raised the question of what impact prolonged space journeys—hundreds of millions of miles to the nearest planets instead of the half-million-mile-plus round-trip to the moon—might have on the human mind and body.

But those close to the U.S. space program believe man ultimately will accept the challenge of interplanetary travel.

withstand weightlessness well enough to travel to Mars and return without serious psychological scars.

He concedes the safe way to find out for sure is a six-month manned space flight. The longest of the three Skylab missions lasted only 12 weeks. All three Skylab missions showed some physical changes in astronauts who flew the Skylab missions. Skylab III was more than six times as long as the Apollo 11 flight to the moon.

Dr. Berry concedes some measures might be necessary to counter the changes that lack of gravity causes in men—especially the continuing loss of calcium from bones.

Some way to prevent bones from being seriously weakened on such long-duration missions as one to Mars certainly would have to be achieved, Dr. Berry says. But he does not believe the problem is insurmountable.

Four of the nine Skylab crew members suffered from motion sickness during their flights for periods of about five days as the body's balancing system tried to adjust to weightlessness. Skylab noises indicated that man adjusts to space conditions and that long exposure does not seriously affect the body as some doctors have warned it would, according to Dr. Berry.

But neither Dr. Fletcher nor Dr. Berry talks about the possible psychological impact of prolonged space flight. What he does mention is anxiety, thoughts of home, the "out-of-this-world" syndrome experienced even by some airplane pilots.

This is the field most likely to kindle dispute among the experts for many years before man at last tries to find his way millions of miles to the unfriendly skies around Mars.

Old Age Fears Are Unfolded

By DON FREEMAN
The Herald Services
HOLLYWOOD — "Is there so much to fear about age?" asks Dr. Isaac Asimov, the noted science-fiction writer. "Is the world really exclusively for the young? Is it only the young who are beautiful, who are intelligent, sexy and athletic? I mean, things are supposed to fade with age, but how fast? If old people are constantly told they're no good, they'll be no good. We create myths about age that are self-fulfilling."

It is an altogether fascinating topic, this whole issue of age. In his late years, Maurice Chevalier was asked how he felt about being 75. "It is fine," Chevalier replied, "when you consider the alternative."

One, I remember asking Arthur Fiedler, the extraordinarily durable conductor of the Boston Pops, why it was that leaders of symphony orchestras seem to defy the inroads of age and are often still waving their batons in their 70s and 80s.

I had assumed that constant involvement with creativity might be a reason and that, perhaps, it was the enrichment of music itself that lifted the spirit and invigorated a conductor with continually renewed vitality.

But Dr. Fiedler's answer was more prosaic. The creativity helped, the music certainly was far from harmful, he admitted. "The big thing is the exercise," said Dr. Fiedler, waving his arms by the way of illustration. "Conducting a symphony is enormously good exercise. You perspire profusely. You move constantly. One cannot be the equivalent of a set of tennis."

Such thoughts occurred as "The Pursuit of Youth," an NBC Isaac special, unfolded with Asimov making his television writing partner. Although he is best known for his writings in the science-fiction field, Dr. Asimov's total of 150 books pursue a wide range of subjects. He also happens to be one of the foremost authorities in biochemistry.

It was quite a project. The producer, Larry Jarvis, took a production crew to various spots in this country, in Switzerland and the Caribbean Islands. They went to chemists in Romania and to the clinics of plastic surgeons.

"Twenty-five years from now, half of our population will be middle-aged," says Mrs. Jarvis. "We should be prepared for this. We should find ways now of utilizing the vigor and productivity of the older members of our society."

"Today, hundreds of thousands of Americans are over 70. The interesting lives they lead should inspire us to spend more time and money to restructure our life-style, to make life more meaningful."

TRASH DUMPERS BEWARE

VOLUSIA SHERIFF Edward Duff has announced a crackdown on illegal trash dumping in southwest Volusia. Deputies are patrolling areas, including one shown above at Deltona, and making spot checks in efforts to stop the flood of trash. Representatives of Deltona Civic Association met recently with county officials on the dumping problem and Duff said civic organizations that get involved in the community make his department's job easier through their cooperation.

Commonwealth Mortgages Unaffected By Re-Organizing

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — People holding mortgages serviced by the Tallahassee Commonwealth Mortgage Corp. will not be affected by the firm's reorganization, officials say. Grady Moore, Commonwealth vice president, said in an interview Tuesday that the reorganization petition would "have absolutely no effect" on people whose mortgages are held or serviced by the mortgage banking firm.

"The only thing that could happen if we were bought by a new corporation, the name would be different, Moore said. Commonwealth, one of the Southeast's largest mortgage bankers, filed for the reorganization and said it "currently is unable to meet its obligations."

Petition filed with the U.S. District Court here show the corporation has bank overdrafts totaling $6.7 million. U.S. Dist. Judge David Middlebrooks issued an order shortly after the petition was filed to prevent actions by the firm's creditors against it.

Back in the 1920s there was an amusement park known as Central Park which was located just on the outskirts of town. This was in the era immediately following World War I — a time of carefree gaiety, of elaborate dance halls and pleasure palaces, when the big name bands ruled supreme.

Central Park was not a large place, but it was a popular one. There was a big pavilion where dances were held every Saturday night and many of the famous name bands played there. There was a romantic dreamy quality to much of the music, the couples waited to such tunes as "Three O'Clock in the Morning," "That Naughty Waltz," "Peggy O'Neill" and "Alice Blue Gown."

Then of course there were the livelier fox-trots such as "That Certain Party," "Clap Hands, Here Comes Charlie," "If You Knew Susie" and "Collegiate."

Watergate Figures Doing 'Easy Time'

By DANIEL J. FOLEY
The Herald Services
WASHINGTON — It may be one of the ironies of the Watergate scandal that some of those once-powerful White House aides may end up in prison making odd desks for their successors in the executive branch.

It's not unlikely that precisely that will happen. More than one-quarter of the 430 inmates at the Federal Prison Camp, Allenwood, Pa., where a number of the Watergate defendants have served or are serving time, build executive furniture, the fancier wooden ones available only to those ranked GS-15 or higher.

The 33 facilities operated by the Federal Bureau of Prisons throughout the country, Allenwood is one of four considered minimum security camps. The others are at Montgomery, Ala.; Elgin, Fla., and Safford, Ariz.

The minimum security camps are for individuals who are not considered custody risks and who either are serving short terms (three years or less) or finishing up longer terms, according to Larry Taylor, Bureau of Prisons executive assistant.

As of mid-June, Egl Krogh Jr. was completing a two-to-six month sentence at Allenwood and Jeb Stuart Magruder was beginning a sentence of 10 months to four years. E. Howard Hunt also served in Allenwood for a time. All three are former White House aides who pleaded guilty to various Watergate crimes.

The four Miami men who were involved in the original Watergate break-in — Bernard L. Barker, Virgilio Gonzalez, Eugenio Martinez and Frank A. Sturgis — also served time in minimum security facilities at Elgin, Fla., and Safford, Ariz.

Director Donald Segretti served four months in a minimum security facility at Lompoc, Calif., which is located adjacent to a medium security federal correctional institution there.

In fact, about the only Watergate defendant who has been jailed in other than a minimum security facility is the still silent G. Gordon Liddy, who remains in District of Columbia jail.

at the facility are not considered a threat to society, if they do escape, and they are aware they will lose the relative freedom of the minimum security facility if they do try to walk off, he said.

Liddy is serving a sentence for contempt of court for refusing to testify in the Watergate case. Once that term is completed, he will be transferred to a federal facility to serve a sentence of from six years, eight months to 20 years for his participation in the Watergate burglary.

Liddy, who works in the jail's classification office handling routine requests of inmates to see outsiders, according to a jail official, is locked in at all times.

In contrast, the Watergate defendants at minimum security facilities are not confined. The Allenwood camp, for instance, has no outside perimeter, according to Taylor.

The inmates at Allenwood live 50 or 60 to a dormitory (not unlike an Army barracks), Taylor said. Individual cots and desks are free to come and go — to work, to school, to the cafeteria — as they wish.

Since there is no perimeter fence, they are even free to take off if they can walk across the fields without being spotted, and some occasionally do, Taylor noted. But the inmates

DEAR DR. LAMB—I wonder if you could give me some information on diabetes. I am a diabetic and am trying to find foods that contain inulin, such as artichokes, art sweet leeks. Could you help me or tell me where to write for the information?

DEAR READER—I don't know where you got the idea, but you might as well forget about it. Inulin is a complex protein. That means it is formed by hooking together over 50 amino acids. All proteins are formed by hooking together letters in the alphabet.

The rub is that your digestive system is designed to break down proteins into the original building blocks of amino acids, and in most places it is required. As a result our children are not exposed to many diseases that are milk borne.

Widespread areas of the Midwest once had cattle with brucellosis, a disease they transmitted to humans who drank the raw, infected milk. This is only one disease that milk can carry. Milk is good food, even for growing kids. You don't need to tell me anything else about that diet. It is as far off the truth as the bit about raw milk indicates, it is probably a public health menace. Throw it away and save yourself the doctor bills it could cause you.

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB Insulin Isn't Found In Foods

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
The Herald Services
Insulin is not found in any food, and it is not active in the body. Diabetic insulin is just a collection of disconnected amino acids and has no effect on diabetes or the blood sugar.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I sent for a book advertised in the Farmer's Almanac titled "Stale Food Vs. Fresh Food" and was really shocked at some of the things they said were bad for your arteries, like flour and cereals and ham and bacon and you should drink raw milk. Is there any truth in a diet like that, and would you get some other disease drinking raw milk? Would like to have opinion on this diet as I do have trouble with arthritis and my husband has arthritis with his arteries.

I just wondered by eating all fresh food and raw milk whether it really would improve your arteries.

DEAR READER—In a word "GHASTLY." Raw milk went out with the dark ages. Happily you do have pasteurized milk and in most places it is required. As a result our children are not exposed to many diseases that are milk borne.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Real Jersey Battle: Casino Guidelines

By JAMES J. BRODELL
The Herald Services
TRENTON, N.J.—State residents will be asked this fall to vote on the Las Vegas of the East. There's no doubt the answer will be a resounding "yes!"

A vote in the closing hours of the Legislature gave the state a leg up on neighboring Delaware in the race to be the first in the East with legalized casino gambling.

New Jersey lawmakers authorized a November referendum. The guidelines to be decided later can be far broader than the state's law-and-order Democratic governor publicly says he wants.

The whole idea is a disaster, according to the head of the state police, who warns the mob is moving in, prostitution will get a shot in the arm and legal operations just can't compete with the illegal.

The average suburban homeowner in this state of suburbs pays up to $1,500 a year in property tax under a system much criticized but little changed for decades. That's one reason why approval of the gambling referendum is assured.

Even progambling forces admit an income tax is certain before the first cuts from legal casinos find the way to the state treasury, perhaps as early as mid-1976.

Despite this warning, the bulk of the Legislature and the population view gambling as a painless way to raise millions to balance the budget.

After an antgambling provision in the state constitution is eliminated by the November voting, politicians still must draw up laws to govern casinos. That's when the real battling begins. Ex-Judge Brendan Byrne won the governorship with the slogan "the man who couldn't be bought." That's what top Mafia chiefs called him four years ago in telephone conversations recorded by federal crime busters.

Byrne still may find himself getting trampled. The governor insists that casino gambling be run by the state on a five-year trial in just a few locations in Atlantic City, the hard-pressed seashore resort that is just used to pack them in like sardines.

Memory Aids Blind Angler

CINCINNATI (AP) — "You give me good friends, a fishing pole and plenty of water and I'm happy," says 66-year-old Merrill Cook.

In that respect, Cook differs little from the nation's army of 70 million anglers. What distinguishes the aging outdoorsman as a breed apart from his colleagues is his blindness.

While the exhilaration of seeing his finned quarry fight the line is gone, the loss of sight has not diminished his love of the sport.

Cook, a body shop operator until disabled by an eye disease in 1971, lost his sight while on a grouse-hunting venture in southern Ohio.

The spunky oldtimer's lifelong pursuit of fishing a razor-sharp memory has helped him locate many of his favorite haunts.

"I used to fish seven days a week, but now I can only make twice a week. But I still have a mental picture of my best spots. I should. I spent enough time at them. I tell my friends the way I remember it—if there's a stump nearby or a big rock. It's just like a professional golfer. You never forget some things," said Cook.

One of his companions says Cook's years of fishing allow him to transcend his handicap. Casting problems are quickly overcome with some advice from his friends.

"After a couple of casts he can hit that shoreline as well as you or I without fouling the bait, something those so-called experts can't even do," says fishing mate Bob Peach.

"The rest of it is reduced to angling instincts and the 'feel' technique. His favorite fish: The black bass is the sportiest fish in these parts," says Cook.

The most optimistic annual estimate, based on widespread casino gambling, says New Jersey locations would gross $200 million. That's a far cry from the $700 million Nevada's ropes. Some 80 acres of urban renewal land has been barren since 1967.

The governor said he wants to learn how to avoid all the evil influences that may hover around casino gambling. Atlantic City already has had Peach remembers the first time Cook's appetite won out over a fear of burning himself. "He called me to come over during lunch and cook the fish, but I couldn't get away," remembers Peach.

"So Cookie cooked his own fish and ate them. How did he do it? Well, he told me just put them in the skillet and counted up to 100, which he figured was three minutes of cooking time and then turned off the stove," said Peach.

Polka Dots!

A polka dot revival is going on at Mary Esther's

A great looking red & white polka dot pantsuit by Mary Martin is just one of the things we didn't stop here. We have yellow and blue polka dot dresses, long & short of soft as silk, polyester easy wear, easy care.

Put Mary Esther's polka in the fashion swing today—

Mary Esther's

300 N. Park Sanford, Fl.

By LUCINDA COULTER
It's 4 a.m. The temperature has dropped from 88 to 47 in the last hour, the wind has increased from 22 to 27 miles an hour and the atmospheric pressure is rising.

Three Seminole Junior College (SJC) students watch their instruments intently as the chill mist falls, condensing on their noses in Bat Cave, N.C. Four more students trap insects, putting them in sample bottles, labeling time and location.

"All right now, what's happening?" Pete Gray, SJC science instructor, adjusts his baseball cap over his ears and fires questions at the group. "Why? What can we expect will happen tomorrow?"

It is not your ordinary class, for sure. Bio-Physical Ecology is total immersion in the subject. Offered twice a year during the summer terms, students receive six hours credit for weekly work that can vary from 20 to 40 hours.

"It's very demanding physically," said Gray, one of the two instructors team-teaching the course. "You're out in the wilds without all the conveniences."

"There are no notes and no tests," Gray emphasizes. "It's a doing laboratory. I grade students, my teammate Ken King grades students, and students grade each other."

"The course functions to get a student to a situation where he can look at an environment and tell if it is healthy. If it is healthy, he should be able to tell if it is threatened, and from what. If it is not healthy, the student should be able to suggest sources of illness and determine how to rectify the problem."

What do they study? "Plants, animal life, soil, simple aquatic life, weather, rocks, everything," Gray scratches his high forehead. "Students run chemical analysis on water and soil. They look for phosphates, nitrates, or dissolved oxygen."

The class, which is limited to 24 students, went on the North Carolina field trip last summer. Gray went ahead of the others, spending five days there preparing instruction. King and the class followed to spend nine days. They stayed in a house Gray owns in the mountains, sleeping on the floors and outside.

"It's the ideal situation for learning," Gray says. "The class is 'locked in.' They collect all day and discuss results immediately. Most days classes run 18 hours. At least once they run 24 hours."

"Personal ties become great. Team spirit is developed. Everyone is doing projects and each one's project may depend upon observations and records made by other students. Everyone is responsible to everyone else for results. I watch and supervise."

Ken King, young red-headed, blue-eyed, and perpetually sunburned geneticist and entomologist concentrates on pointing out various kinds of interactions between insects and their environment.

Community service has ever been the guiding principle for the operation of First Federal of Seminole County.

In 1934, when the Association came into being, its founders met the need for a secure savings service to overcome the uncertainty that stemmed from those recessions. Also, there was the recognized need of a helping two basic American longings - thrift and to become owners - has been and continues to be a basic goal of First Federal of Seminole.

Throughout the four decades of our service, the confidence of you, the friendly folks who have been our customers, has been a tremendous asset. It is one that each of us should be proud to have. Our appreciation to each of our customers is shown in the annually mounting financial statements, which are sent to you. Although First Federal Family treasures. Our appreciation to each of our customers is shown in the annually mounting financial statements, which are sent to you. Although First Federal Family treasures. Our appreciation to each of our customers is shown in the annually mounting financial statements, which are sent to you.

"THANK YOU"

Our growth throughout the 40 years may be symbolized by the modern new building that we are now dedicating. As you, our customers and friends have increased in number, so have we been loan and savings services. Without your continued confidence and support, the additional space just would not have been needed.

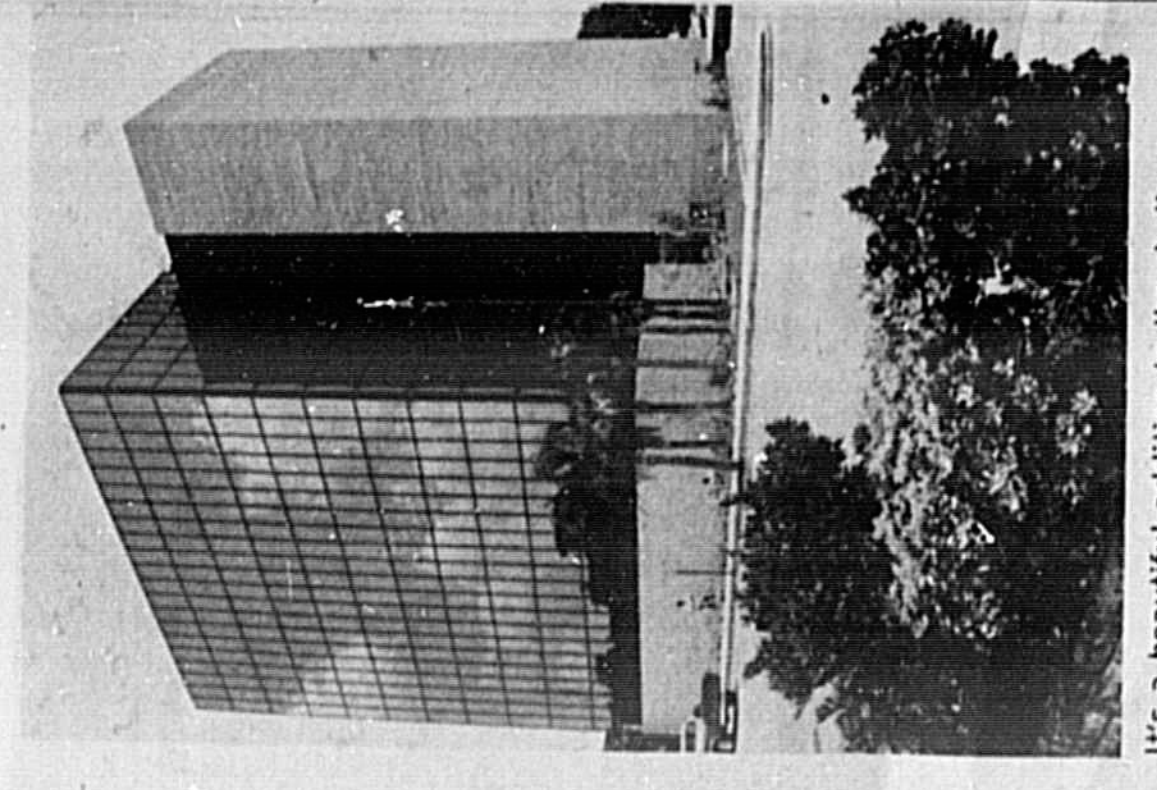

Community service, as we see it, means not only expanded facilities, but expanded conveniences - community meeting rooms, safe deposit boxes, money orders and many others. It means, too, a recognized responsibility to the area as it grows and strives to retain the beauty that to everyone means "Florida".

It is our hope that our new facilities reflect our desire to create an indoor and outdoor environment that is more relaxed and enjoyable - a better spot in the commercial area. We recognize not only this responsibility, but that of financial and personal support of worthwhile civic projects. Our staff members offer their time and talents by serving on committees whose purpose is to promote the best interests of the neighborhoods we serve.

So, we say again, THANK YOU for helping us to grow into new buildings and to increase our assets year by year. We stress the fact that the BIG asset, not shown on our statements, is YOU, our friendly neighbor.

Sincerely,
Gib Edmonds

Humphrey: It's MY Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, stung by a Senate Watergate Committee staff report on his 1972 presidential campaign finances, says he did nothing illegal in using more than $100,000 of his own money in his campaign and concealing that fact from the public.

"With the Lord Jesus Christ as my guide, that was as honest a deal as kissing your mother," the Minnesota Democrat said.

Humphrey, in a sometimes emotional, late-night telephone call to an Associated Press reporter Thursday, said the money represented "a lifetime of investment" by himself and his wife Muriel.

Humphrey said he omitted any mention of the use of personal funds when he voluntarily disclosed his finances during Democratic presidential primaries because at that time the law didn't require full disclosure and because he wanted to conceal the matter from his family.

"I didn't like to have to contribute that money, but we had to do it if we were going to campaign," Humphrey said.

Humphrey said the Watergate staff report was written by a Republican staff member, Donald Sanders, and he said he resented the tone and implications of the report. "It just ends up that you look like a burglar," he said.

Meanwhile, the committee staff on Thursday circulated a new report dealing with presidential campaign finances of Democrats George McGovern and John V. Lindsay.

It said McGovern is campaigning for Senate re-election this year with the aid of $340,417 in left-over 1972 presidential funds. It said he shifted these funds out of presidential campaign committees while these committees were forcing creditors to write off $35,322 as bad debts. Such transfer of funds has been used by other candidates and the report did not challenge its legality.

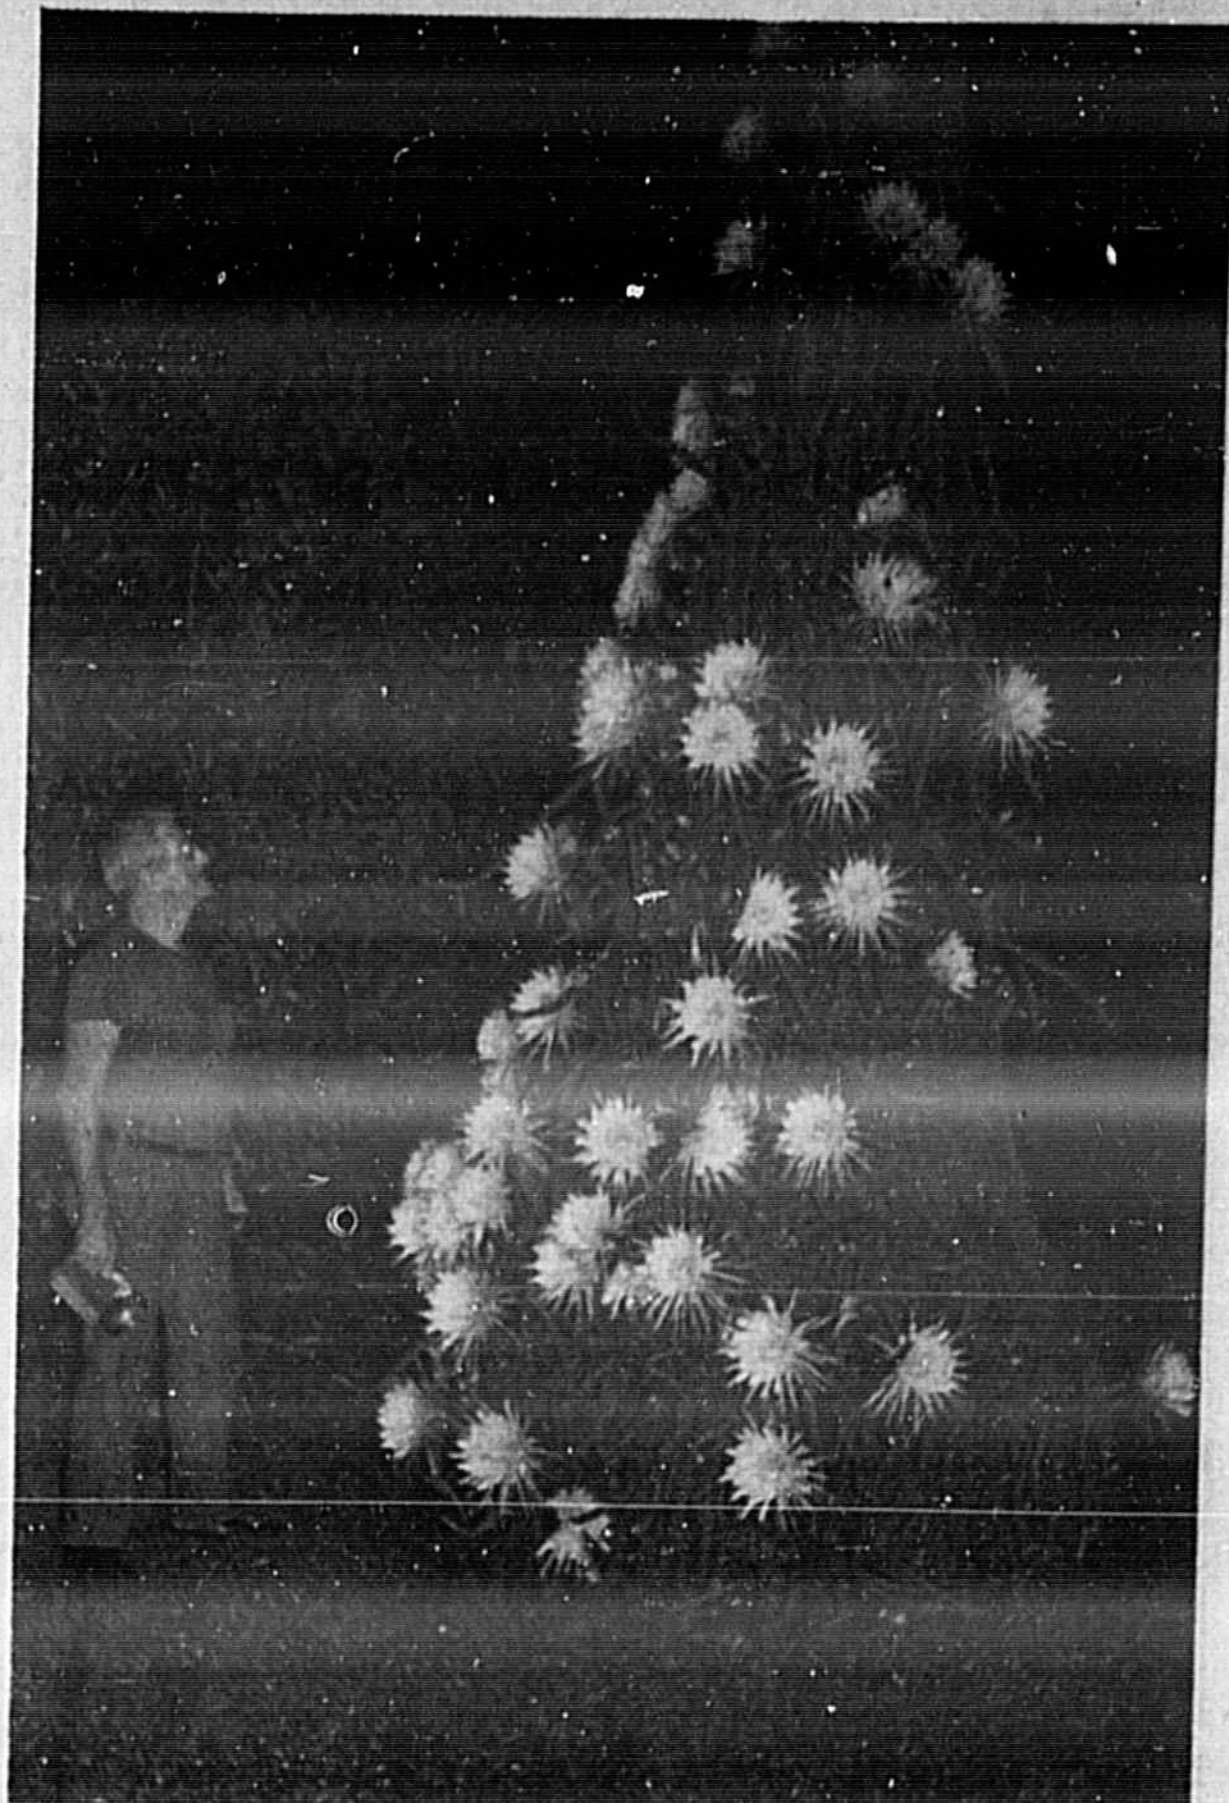

But it said the maneuver raises a question of whether McGovern violated at least the spirit of the federal law banning corporate gifts to federal candidates.

A McGovern spokesman, John Holm, said the left-over presidential money was shifted to the Senate race on the orders of several state and local presidential finance chairmen who controlled the money. Holm said McGovern would try to keep the senators on the Watergate committee from adopting the staff's findings.

The report said $10,000 in cash was raised for former New York Mayor Lindsay's presidential campaign by a city Highway Department official who solicited the money from two contractors who later got a $1.7-million job to supply the city with asphalt.

It said the money, in $20 bills stuffed into an envelope, passed through the hands of Lindsay's top campaign aide, Richard Aurelio, and cannot be accounted for.

Aurelio responded by calling the report an example of "sloppy reporting by the committee staff" and said all the cash had been properly recorded and reported publicly. The committee staff's review of Lindsay finance records "fails to reveal any recording of the cash contributions.

66th Year, No. 266 Price 10 Cents

By John A. Spolski

Who sees the age of chivalry is dead. There was this car in line at the Sanford Atlantic Bank drive-in, when all of a sudden, smoke and flames leaped out from under the hood.

The fire department was called. Before they arrived on the scene, an unidentified young man got out of his car, took off his shirt and fought the flames several minutes while trying to put out the blaze.

His shirt was destroyed. If I knew the identity of this individual, he would certainly receive our Clock-watcher's salute of "Mister Good Citizen!"

From the "hot" line (in this case, burned-up) . . . "How can the city of Sanford, via its utility tax, charge tax on a tax?"

This reader cited his latest electric bill wherein the infamous fuel adjustment charge (another way of saying tax) was added to his regular charges for kilowatt hours used. And then Sanford comes along and taxes him another 10 per cent!

It's bad enough that all of us are presently struggling to pay these exorbitant light bills. It doesn't seem fair to add to the burden with this additional taxation.

In looking over this particular bill, it really doesn't seem like it would amount to too awfully much, but . . .

The fuel adjustment amounts to an average of $15 per customer these days, which means Sanford is collecting another $150 from the consumer . . . ON THE FUEL ADJUSTMENT ALONE!

Now just for the fun of it, supposing we have 7,000 connections in the city. And if we multiply that times $150 . . . lemme see, that's an extra $10,500 per month windfall, right? Hm'mmmmm.

Ge, it's hard to believe. On July 1 actor James Cagney will be 70. (Watching him do his "Thing" in TV's Yankee Doodle Dandy has me remembering Cagney as the original "Fountain of Youth".)

School Board Changes Negotiator's Contract

By MARK WEINTZ
Herald Staff Writer

The Seminole County School Board has formally adopted the state guidelines for negotiations and ordered the contract of their hired negotiator, Dr. Jerry Lee Hart, to be rewritten from a flat-fee of $10,000 a per diem schedule.

Board members also voted to rescind the negotiation policy of Dr. Jerry Lee Hart because neither side complied with the stipulations of the policy in the specified time.

The Seminole Education Association (SEA) had charged Hart's policy was "unilateral and negative and intended to prompt non-compliance in order to preclude the negotiations."

The board also voted to formally adopt the new state guidelines on negotiations.

"Under the law we are unable to negotiate until next year," Board Chairman Davis Sims said.

Although the new state law does not become effective until Jan. 1, 1975 the SEA claims negotiations can occur prior to that day.

"Other counties are at the bargaining table right now," Steve Rosenthal, SEA negotiator told the board.

"The counties that are bargaining right now are those counties that started the process before the new state law was passed," Sims explained.

"I sincerely feel we did all we could to effect those negotiations before the law came up and that is the SEA's own fault that we are not negotiating now," Sims said.

The grand jury has reportedly been probing the relations of Swofford and various city officials with land developers, contractors and building industry, the sources indicate.

Witnesses last week reportedly detailed earlier public charges Swofford and other city officials intervened in behalf of builders, contractors and developers to waive or relax city building and fire codes.

Swofford Faces Grand Jury

By CHRIS NELSON
Herald Staff Writer

Former Altamonte Springs mayor Lawrence Swofford kept his promised date with the Seminole Grand Jury today, marching into the courthouse shortly before 11 a.m.

The 38-year-old political veteran, looking directly at the jury, walked down the hall arm-in-arm with former city bookkeeper Carol Eustale, also scheduled as a witness.

The grand jury has reportedly been probing the relations of Swofford and various city officials with land developers, contractors and building industry, the sources indicate.

Witnesses last week reportedly detailed earlier public charges Swofford and other city officials intervened in behalf of builders, contractors and developers to waive or relax city building and fire codes.

Rains Hit Casselberry Hardest

By MARK WEINTZ
Herald Staff Writer

Torrential rain during the past four days has flooded streets and lowlands in Seminole County, with the "worst damage" occurring in Casselberry where city workers have worked around the clock spreading chlorine on raw sewage that spewed onto streets around an overburdened sewage pump station.

"I have nothing to hide. I've never had anything to hide," Swofford added, charging "the boys" (several young past and present city officials who have charged him with wrongdoing) with being out to get him.

Testifying Thursday for more than an hour was Altamonte City Councilman Helen Keyser, Seminole County Planner Roger Neiswander, and former city and county building official Joseph Turanchik also appeared.

Wednesday, the grand jurors heard from developer Lester Mandell, a Swofford campaign contributor who formerly owned the Altamonte Mall site, and Mrs. Lorraine Schreiner, who recently quit after 10 years as Mandell's personal secretary.

Other witnesses Wednesday included developers Lester Zimmerman and Wilson Knott, former building official Frank Jenner, clothier Leslie Gibbs, and former fireman Don Harkins.

Wednesday, Swofford told the Herald he ordered Harkins to stop "harrasing property owners" by inspectors, saying he did so because Harkins was a volunteer and not on the city payroll.

However, Harkins Thursday told the Herald, he was on the city payroll for more than a year. Tom Siegfried, the man through whom Swofford said he relayed the call-off orders actually took his place on the city payroll, Harkins added.

Harkins testimony was expected to back up the earlier testimony of Siegfried, now city fire chief, and Gary Kaiser, former fire chief and presently Seminole County fire administrator.

Siegrfried and Kaiser earlier told The Herald Swofford fought their attempts to enforce fire codes, and that a survey carried out this year on the orders of Mayor Norman Floyd show that most multi-story buildings built under Swofford's administration are in "substantial violation" of city fire codes.

It was also reported the Rolling Hills area was affected by flooding, but no homes were reported to be damaged.

Adair said the levels of the lakes are "way up" and "that is a desirable benefit" of the excess rain.
