

UNIVERSAL RECEIVER PLANS ARE EXPLAINED FOR YOUNG RADIO FANS

Radio fans, young and old, amateur and professional, will be interested in the plans outlined for a Universal Receiver by Zeh Bouck, in the Radio Department of the December issue of Boys' Life.

The receiver described is capable of receiving on any wave length. It not only brings in the concerts in a way that very few other sets can equal, but it gets right down to two hundred meters, the amateur's hunting ground where all their intercommunication and traffic is carried on. Best of all, says Bouck, it goes up just as efficiently to where the trans-Atlantic stations are sending slow code day and night—the ideal code practice.

While the Boys' Life radio expert is talking primarily to Boy Scouts, his plans are of equal value to anyone anxious to install an equipment that will get everything that is going. Moreover, the cost of the equipment described is within reach of even the average purse.

The Boy Scouts, Zeh Bouck, points out, is fundamentally a code man. He takes radio much more seriously than his friend, the broadcast enthusiast. The Scout is interested in code as a companion to his wig-wag system. He desires to learn the code, a really difficult feat requiring diligence and practice running into many months. The Universal Receiver enables him to secure this practice, for a good deal of the trans-oceanic traffic is transmitted at about twelve words a minute, and in many cases each word is repeated. Code is the most fascinating side of the radio game. The equipment needed for the radio receiver is as follows:

On three-coil honeycomb mounting. Sets of three coils for the waves desired.

Grid condenser and leak, "CC." Two variable condensers from .0005 mid. to .0015 mid. maximum capacities. "C," and "C2."

Phone condensers, "C3." One series-parallel switch.

One panel, bakelite, hard rubber or wood. If the set is built with the detector only the panel should be about 7 inches by 15 inches, and if the two-stage amplifier is included, 7 inches by 24 inches.

One closed circuit telephone jack, "J1."

One rheostat (six ohm). Two knobs and dials for the condensers.

This set may be constructed with the built-in two-stage audio amplifier. If the amplifier is to be included, the following additional equipment will be necessary:

Two standard sockets. Two reostats for UV201A tubes.

Two audio frequency amplifying transformers, "trans."

One closed-circuit jack, "J2."

One open-circuit jack, "J3."

The article, of course, carries diagrams showing how this equipment should be installed, special emphasis being given the all-important point of wiring.

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE MILANE.

In one of the most thrilling fight scenes that has ever been photographed in the production of western photodramas, Big Boy Williams, the star in "$1,000.00 Reward," and the two bad men were staging a desperate fight on the very edge of a high cliff. The fight progressed as it should, when suddenly one of the actors stumbled back from a blow by Big Boy, and losing his balance started to topple over the edge of the cliff.

Big Boy fairly dived and grabbed his legs as the man fell over and holding on kept him from falling to his death.

It is only one of the countless thrilling scenes that happened in the filming of "$1,000.00 Reward" which is showing at the Milane Theatre tonight.

AT THE PRINCESS.

William S. Hart in "The Man Killer" at the Princess Theatre tonight. One of the most remarkable bits of acting ever done by William S. Hart is said to be a feature of his new play, where he plays the part of "The Man Killer" whose killings number more than a score. Denounced by a young girl as nothing more than a common murderer, the outlaw first flies into a terrific rage and then gives way to grief and despair as the truth of the girl's accusation is brought home to him. Margery Wilson is seen as the girl.

Kiddies and Old Folks Turn Out to See Sparks Wild Animal Circus Today

The Sparks Circus reached the city early this morning on its all-new steel trains and as it is the time honored custom of circuses, it arrived before daylight, so that when the sun appeared to warm the day into regular old fashioned circus weather the "tented city" had already taken form as if by magic at the Maple and Holly avenue grounds. Promptly at 10:30 the strident notes of the sllp-horns emanating from the band wagon in the lead rounded the corner onto the main streets where the vast multitudes were awaiting this big feature. And they were not disappointed in the least for true to the advance billing the Sparks Circus has grown into the "big show" class and the parade proved a worthy criterion for the excellent performance that followed in the big top this afternoon.

"Echoes from the reign of King Tut" to the closing number—that of an English Fox Hunt, the program of the Sparks Circus embraced act after act of exceptional merit. In this spectacle all of the vast resources of the circus in elephants, camels, zebras and horses—all gaily bedecked in gorgeous blankets—have been drawn upon to the fullest extent and in addition several hundred human participants featuring Bessie Harvey, original "Prima-Donna of the white tops", a corps of premier dancers, musicians playing weird instruments and a large chorus are prime factors of this novel offering.

Trained wild beasts predominate in the circus proper and they included polar bears with dogs and ponies intermingling fearlessly, five fighting lions and a group of beautiful bengal tigers. Those of a less ferocious type were two large elephant groups with lady trainers, the Capt. Tiebor musical and acrobatic seals, the Bibb County pigs, trained llamas and even the lumbersome ostrich has been taught to do astounding stunts by the wily trainer.

This circus has always been famed for its wonderful horses and a 1923 acquisition is a remarkable group of sixteen German trained Rotation horses direct from the Stellinghen training quarters and their equal has never been seen in this or any other country. The extreme height of animal intelligence was displayed in their wonderful offering this afternoon during which they were greeted with round after round of applause. The equine aristocrats of the horse-world—the Sparks Dancing Horses featuring Minnie Thompson, horse-woman of world-wide repute was another important feature, as was Bessie Harvey with her trained pigeons and thoroughbred Arabian mount Hassen-Bey. Other displays included dainty Flora Bedini, Walter Guice, Melvin and Bessie Hollis—each a "rosinback" rider of renown. Clowns that were positively funny to the extreme were in abundance at all times during the performance with a number of "up-to-the-split-second" conceits. The two hour's program is brought to an ending with the reproduction of a genuine English Fox

Hunt in which a round dozen hurdle horses featuring King George, Champion broad jumper of the world participated—the latter ridden by Florence Harris, a rider of renown in the horse-world. Another performance of this truly great circus will be given tonight at 8, with the doors opening at 7, during which period a popular musical program will be rendered by the Jack Phillips Circus Band.

More than a million sermons and addresses were delivered upon the subject of education during the week. The response of the churches was much greater than has been the case in previous years. Clubs of all kinds, particularly noonday luncheon clubs, Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, and others, were notably active in the campaign. A new feature of the week's observance this year was the active participation of the motion picture theaters of the country who were liberal in permitting information about education on their screens.

Indiana Lady Says She Was Run-Down, Suffered With Her Back, Took Cardui, and Got Well.

Richmond, Ind.—"I thought I would write a line or so, to say that I owe my good health and strength to Cardui," says a letter from Mrs. Cora Courtney, 31 Railroad Street, this city.

"I was all run-down until my family thought they would lose me," writes Mrs. Courtney. "My husband coaxed me to take Cardui, so, to please him, I did, and will say I do not regret it, for I am able to do all my work and do my shopping."

"I have five children, four in school, my husband and a boarder to do for, and I do all my own work for all of us, and find time to play. We all praise Cardui. Every sick and run-down woman should take this wonderful medicine."

"I suffered with my back; a very weak feeling in my limbs."

"I felt hardly able to drag; just tired—so tired all the time."

"It was an effort for me to do anything, but Cardui helped me so I felt like a different woman."

"If you are in a run-down physical condition, suffering as this Indiana lady says she did, give Cardui a fair trial. It should help you."

APPEALING STORY OF THE SORROWING MOTHER

Morris Diamond, held on murder charge, and his five-year-old son, David, who is the image of his father, at the same age.

By STEVE HANNAGAN
 NEA Service Staff Writer
 BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 2.—"I'd have choked him to death then had I ever thought he would grow up to be a gunman," wailed Mrs. Dora Diamond as she pointed to a baby picture of her son, Morris Barlow Diamond, taken when he was three months old.
 Morris, 27, and his brother Joseph, 21, are in jail charged with murder in connection with the shooting and death of two bank messengers and escaping with $4,000.
 Six other suspects have been taken by the police who expect to round up a big gang.
 Mrs. Diamond sobbed hysterically, beating her head with her closed fists her black hair streaked with silver, turning gray with grief as one looked on.
 "They were both such fine boys," she sobbed. "Never a night passed but Morris would come and tuck the covers around me as I lay in bed. And how Joseph used to smother me with kisses! These boys couldn't have taken another man's life."
 Solemnly, with perfect intonation she unraveled incidents of their childhood climaxing them in a picture of her sons behind prison bars. Then she broke down.
 "Where is my daddy?" innocently asks five-year-old David, motherless son of Maurice.
 But none will tell him the truth. David is a bright little chap with blue eyes and blonde hair. He was well-mannered and noiseless as he played with his toys.
 "Morris was just like that when he was his age," said David's grandmother. "The son is a replica of his father—can you imagine a sweet boy like that growing to be a killer?"
 There are four sisters in the Diamond family. Two of them are strikingly pretty.
 "Three of us had to resign our positions as soon as our brothers were arrested—and June had to stop attending school," said Sally, the eldest.
 "Yes, but my firm wrote and told me they did not believe my brothers guilty and to come back," broke in Elizabeth.
 "People are so cruel," commented Jane, 16, and popular in high school. Leona, always sickly, has been confined to her bed since the sparkle of joy has been replaced with shadows of gloom in the Diamond household in rapidly growing Bensonhurst, 45 minutes from Broadway.
 "Only one month ago I borrowed $1500 from the West End Bank," said Mrs. Diamond.
 Messengers of this bank, just a stone's throw from the Diamond home were those robbed and killed.
 "For 17 years we have lived here—and now we are disgraced, talked about and curiously gazed upon—and all for something I know my boys couldn't have done," said Mrs. Diamond.
 She is 52 years old and has been a widow and head of her family for two years.
 Morris, handsome and athletic, was a football star in high school. Cups and trophies Morris won as a fancy ballroom dancer adorn the comfortably furnished and happy home until misfortune wrought havoc.
 "A man who has any knowledge of a murder, or is suspected of it in New York, has two paths to follow. He can take his chance with the electric chair—or 'squeal,' be called a 'rat' and be murdered when he is set free. It's death in any case," mused Morris, the eldest of the brothers.

UNIFORM VEHICLE SIGNALS ADOPTED

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 3.—Uniform vehicle signals devised with the view of regulating traffic in the cities and towns of Florida are recommended in a report submitted to the Florida League of Municipalities, at its last quarterly meeting held here last week. The signals suggested are similar which the committee said already have been into operation by many of the large cities throughout the United States. They incorporate suggestions for use of the arrow as the basis for all signs directing traffic which, it is stated, may be easily distinguished from the multiplicity of advertising signs and will avoid confusion for drivers of automobiles. In addition, recommendation is made that the following hand signals be given by drivers of automobiles:
 Before turning to the left, the driver of any vehicle shall warn or notify other drivers, pedestrians and traffic officers in the immediate vicinity by means of an arm extended horizontally from side of vehicle fully fifteen inches; before turning to the right, an arm shall be extended as aforesaid at an approximate angle of 45 degrees above said horizontal position; before materially decreasing speed or stopping, an arm be extended as aforesaid at an approximate angle of 45 degrees below said horizontal position; or a mechanical signal with a semaphore blade four to five inches wide at its outer end, which must be extended outwardly from side of vehicle at or near the windshield fully fifteen and not more than eighteen inches may be used in lieu of arm aforesaid, providing the same must be adopted to assume the identical positions as hereinbefore designated for arm signals.
 "We recommend further," the committee's report went on, "the following hand signals to be used by traffic officers:
 "1. To stop traffic, stand with shoulders parallel to moving traffic, hand extended, fingers joined, palm toward traffic to be stopped. Repeat movement with other hand to stop traffic in opposite direction.
 "2. To move traffic, face so that shoulders are parallel with line of traffic to be moved. Extend right arm and hand full length to height of shoulder, toward said traffic, fingers extended and joined, palm downward; bring hand smartly across the body in direction in which traffic is to proceed. Face about and repeat movement to move traffic proceeding from opposite direction.
 "Lights—Where traffic is to be controlled by lights, the colored lights in use by the Railroad Signal Association were adopted as standard lights (by the International Association of Chiefs of Police at their second annual convention in New York, May, 1923) for use in the control of vehicular traffic, which we, your committee, recommend be adopted by the cities of Florida, namely: Red for "Stop," Yellow for "Proceed with caution," and Green for "Proceed."

PLACE FOR REHEARSAL CHANGED
 A chorus rehearsal of the music department of the Woman's Club will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Frank Woodruff. The change of plans is necessary because Episcopalians will hold their bazaar at the club house tomorrow afternoon.
 When you do not want to light your oven just to cook the meringue on your pie or pudding, drop it by spoonfuls into a pan of boiling water for a few minutes, then slide it gently over the pastry which it is to decorate.
