Fourth waterfront meeting

SANFORD — The fourth meeting on a Waterfront Master Plan will be held tomorrow morning. It is labeled as "Decision Time."

City Planner Jay Marder, who is organizing the meetings, commented, "The fourth and last programmed meeting of the Waterfront Master Plan project promises to be a 'rubber hits the road' session."

Following an organizational meeting, two public meetings were held in which to receive input on the public desires toward improvements of the lakefront. The area of concern runs along the entire southern side of Lake Monroe from Sanford to Interstate-4.

This meeting will bring back the steering committee, for an intensive final session.

Included in items of consideration Marder lists the following: review of input; establishment of implementation strategies, time and money; proposals for a development management structure; review of documents as a basis for a physical plan; prioritizing the projects; and initiating a beginner project.

"Based on feedback from the all-day meeting on April 17," Marder said, "this meeting has been shortened to a morning session only."

The steering committee session is scheduled at 9 a.m. at the Holiday Inn Conference Room, Sanford Marina Isle.

Longwood Code Board meeting

LONGWOOD — The Longwood Code Enforcement Board will hold a regularly scheduled meeting tonight. There is a possibility however, that the meeting may be postponed due to the lack of a quorum.

A spokesperson at Longwood City Hall said two board members had recently resigned, leaving only five active members. Of that number, one has already indicated she could not be in attendance at tonight's meeting.

The CEB meeting is presently scheduled to begin at 7:30 tonight, in the commission chambers of Longwood City Hall, 175 W. Warren Avenue.

Thrift stores dubbed grunge HQ

JACKSONVILLE — Four Salvation Army thrift stores have dubbed themselves "grunge headquarters," hyping their huge stores of used jeans, costume jewelry and other clothing for those into the latest fashion wave.

"We've got such a wide selection of grungable attire. We can be an outlet for people interested in becoming grungy," said the Salvation Army's Bill Keskey.

It's Chief Russell!

Acting no more; Sanford police leader named

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Former Acting Police Chief Ralph Russell, 50, is officially Sanford's new police chief after being appointed to the post during last night's city commission meeting.

"I'm certainly glad all of this is over," Russell said this morning. "Now we can get back to business here at the department, and get some things accomplished."

Efforts to reduce the requirements to enable the hiring of Russell have been underway since mid January.

Commissioner Lon Howell called for Russell's hiring. When the commission voted its approval, a round of applause burst out. The larger than normal audience contained several members of the police department.

Although she voted against the ordinance reducing the requirements, Mayor Bettye Smith went along with the other commissioners in approving Russell's appointment.

During previous discussions of the ordinances, she had said she was voting against the move as she did not want the city to lower standards required for its chief of police.

One of the ordinances adopted on second reading last night, reduced the requirement for a four year college degree. It lowered it to a two year degree, but extended the required length of law enforcement experience from five to ten years.

Although Russell was among three who originally applied for the position, City Manager Bill Simmons readjusted (in-house) for applicants after it became apparent the qualifications would be changed by the commission.

This time, Russell was the only person who submitted an application.

Russell joined the Sanford police department in 1965 as a patrolman. In 1967 he became a

Stalking law challenged

SANFORD — Seminole Circuit Court Judge Alan Dickey will review court briefs and case law before handing down a decision on the constitutionality of the stalking law.

The stalking law has been challenged in other counties and ultimately, Dickey said, its constitutionality will be decided by the Florida Supreme Court.

Dickey heard arguments Monday from Public Defender Eugene Feliciani and Assistant State Attorney Allan Campbell. Feliciani had asked the court to rule the stalking law unconstitutional and to dismiss stalking cases against two men he SANFORD — Seminole County won't pursue construction of a sidewalk along Markham Woods Road until other sidewalk needs are reviewed throughout the county.

With a potential cost of $100,000 or more for the two-mile walkway, commissioners unanimously agreed Monday to direct county staff to stop investigating the costs of building the sidewalk and instead, join with school and sheriff's officials in determining the sidewalk priorities elsewhere in the county. They agreed to form a study committee with the school board.

Son copes with father's slaying

BIRMINGHAM — The son of a doctor killed during an anti-abortion protest outside a Florida clinic says it's getting tougher to speak about his father's slaying, but he'll continue to do so.

"At first, it was easy because I was so angry, and I had that to fuel me. But now that that's subsided somewhat, it's gotten a little more difficult," said David Gunn Jr., 22, a student at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. "I'm not one for the spotlight."

It has fallen squarely on him, though. He testified before a congressional subcommittee after the March 10 killing of David Gunn Sr. and will speak at a feminist rally next month in Pensacola, Fla., where his father was shot while going to work at an abortion clinic.

Pregnant girl slain

JACKSONVILLE — Police have arrested two teenage boys in the murder of a pregnant 13-year-old.

One of the 15-year-old suspects in the slaying of Teresa Stokes is the father of her unborn child, said William Odol, the city's grandfather. The boy, despite that, The Florida Times Union in Jacksonville reported today.

Stokes, whose body was found in a wooded area on the city's Northside, had turned 13 on April 2 and was three months pregnant, Odol said.

Autopsy results were not released, but authorities said she was stabbed more than once. A cinderblock and knife apparently used in the killing were recovered yesterday.

The slaying occurred during a dispute over having sex in the woods, authorities said. Police would not discuss the sex connection.

They also would not name the suspects because they are juveniles. The two were arrested late Sunday.

On Monday, a judge ordered the boys held without bond in the Duval Regional Juvenile Detention Center pending a May 6 arraignment.

Odol said he and other family members were pleased with the arrest.

"I feel a lot better now," he said. "I just hope they do something about it."

Assistant State Attorney Angela Corey Lee said she plans to consult with State Attorney Harry Shorstein about seeking first-degree murder indictments in the case.

She said she wants the youths charged as adults, if that happens and they are convicted of first-degree murder, they could face the death penalty.

"It's a scary example of what's going on in this country," Corey Lee said. "It's time for this country to wake up."

School board acts on policy

Citizenship policy revised for extra-curricular activities

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Seminole County school board will consider the citizenship policy for students who participate in school-sponsored extra-curricular activities for the final time today.

The policy, which has been revised and reworked many times over the last three years, is ready to be advertised for the final time before being adopted by the board.

While the policy remains much like it was during the last discussion, the sentence regarding the use of abusive language has been deleted.

No longer included in the policy is the sentence which states "an extra-curricular student will not use abusive language such as slander, public accusations, racial, ethnic, sexual orientation or religious slurs."

The policy which began as a policy at Lake Mary High School three years ago that tried to curb the use of alcohol and illegal substances by athletes and students involved in extra-curricular activities by taking away their privileges to participate in those activities.

Board members had objected to the use of the policy only in one school while the other schools had no policy or policies with different penalties.

Parents objected to the policy because it affected the students 365 days a year, 24 hours a day.

The revised version will apply only during the activity season, whether it occurs during the school year or prior to the start of classes or during the summer.

Law suits saying the policy violated the students rights were threatened, but never filed. Attorneys from the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) have been monitoring the transformation of the policy.

Extra-curricular students will not be allowed to, among other things, illegally gamble; carry and/or possess any false identification; possess, smoke or use any tobacco product; possess any illegal drug; possess, illegally use or be under the influence of alcohol or any controlled or chemical substance.

They also may not commit arson, assault, battery, blackmail, coercion, extortion, forgery, rioting, robbery, theft, vandalism, sex offenses, bomb threats or false alarms, possess or sell illegal explosives, sell or distribute alcohol or chemical/controlled substances, or illegally possess or use knives, guns or firearms.

Punishments range from five days suspension, excluding try-outs and practices, from all school-sponsored extra-curricular activities for the first violation on the charge of possessing or using a tobacco product, for example, to a one calendar year suspension from all school-sponsored extra-curricular activities for the second violation for selling or distributing a controlled/chemical substance or alcohol, for example.

Students will be asked to sign a contract stating that they understand and agree to the parameters of the policy before they can participate in any school-sponsored extra-curricular activity. Those who refuse to sign will not be allowed to participate.

The board will take public comment on the policy tonight during its 7 p.m. meeting at the district offices, 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Robbery

Granny steals and pushes gun-toting deliverymen

Two robbers armed with semi-automatic weapons got away with some household goods, but not until after they got a finger-shaking scolding and taunting from a protective grandmother.

The men escaped with a safe full of jewelry, some doll jewelry and Christmas decorations, said police, who got detailed descriptions and were still searching for the men Monday.

The men posed as flower deliverymen. But when Patricia Marshall opened the door Sunday afternoon, one of the men pointed a gun in her face. They forced her inside.

The 60-year-old woman didn't cooperate.

"She pushed me, she pushed me back," said Marshall, a slight, grey-haired woman who was distressed by jabbing a finger into a reporter's shoulder. "I said: 'You're a poor robber. You're more nervous than I am. You're shaking like a leaf. Is that your first time?'"

She continued to scold the robbers as police and the men searched the house. Perhaps rattled, they slipped some valuable items before leaving. Police said the stolen goods value remained undetermined Monday.

Black-centered schools offered for Hillsborough

By Associated Press

TAMPA — More than 20 years after desegregation was ordered in Hillsborough County, a black activist has suggested black parents be allowed to send their children to predominantly black public schools.

"I don't see where integrated schools have helped us," said Marzuq Al-Hakim, who made his proposal earlier this month. "Why not create schools that can focus on the problems of African-American children and give them the opportunity they deserve?"

But so far, it has garnered little support.

Helen LaCount of Tampa's NAACP chapter called it segregation, and said segregation didn't work 20 years ago and it won't work today.

"There are some problems. There are some severe problems," LaCount said. "But before we start jumping ship, we need to explore accountability. Parents and the community must become more accountable."

Hillsborough Schools Superintendent Water Sickles and school board members have also said they will stand behind the county's desegregation plan.

The county was ordered by a federal court in 1971 to eliminate separate schools for black children and integrate the system to reflect the population as closely as possible. That meant schools would have 80 percent white students and 20 percent minority ones.

3 carjack killers get life terms without parole

By The Associated Press

ORLANDO — Three armed carjackers who killed two youths and wounded a third have been sentenced to life in federal prison without parole.

The three were the first convicted under a federal law enacted last October which provides harsh sentences in carjacking cases involving violence. They will now be tried in state circuit court on murder charges, which carry the death penalty.

U.S. District Judge Patricia Fawcett, following sentencing guidelines, Monday handed down the terms of life plus 25 years to Jermaine Foster, 19, Gerard Booker, 22, and Alf Catholic, 19.

They admitted the theft of two vehicles, robbing their victims and shooting two of them as they lay naked on the ground in a rural area of Osceola County on Nov. 29.

Teresa Faiella, mother of one of the victims, Anthony Faiella, 17, said of the prison sentences, "Maybe other children will be safe because of this. . . I lost him to a bunch of animals who had no concern for his life."

Her son and Anthony Clifton, 20, were killed by shots to the head. A third youth, Michael Rentas, 20, was wounded in the hand and played dead until the attackers drove off in Faiella's utility vehicle.

Clifton's girlfriend, Tammy George, 26, was unhurt. She told the jury the black attackers cursed her for going out with whites but that they did not want to kill "a sister." All the victims were white.

Each of the defendants was convicted of conspiracy, two counts of armed carjacking resulting in death and two counts of using a firearm during a felony.

Defense lawyers are appealing the verdicts. They contended the auto thefts were an afterthought to robbery and said the case did not belong in the federal system under the carjack law.

A fourth defendant, Leondre Henderson, pleaded guilty and testified against the other three. He is to be sentenced later.

Girls killed, mother attempts suicide

By The Associated Press

KISSIMMEE — Two young sisters were smothered and their mother tried to kill herself, investigators said.

A Monday afternoon call to 911 by the mother, Donna J. Brown, 36, of northeast Indiana near Fort Wayne, led investigators to the bodies of Carrie Elizabeth Brown, 5, and Casey Renee Brown, 3, at a motel west of Walt Disney World, the Osceola County Sheriff's Office reported.

Donna Brown was being treated Monday night in the intensive care unit of Osceola Regional Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Investigators said late Monday no charges had been filed against the woman, and further information would not be released until today.

Sheriff's Lt. July Rivers said the woman, who had slit her wrists, made the emergency call from a pay phone.

Paramedics pronounced the two girls, aged 3 and 5, dead at the scene, Rivers said.

Rivers said investigators were trying to reconstruct the events of the day and contact the woman's family. He said he had no information on the girls' father.

Sheriff's Capt. Larry Taggett said the case is being investigated as a double homicide, he said.

Congratulations, Chief Russell

The City of Sanford has not had an official chief of police for 116 days. Last night, the city commission voted to hire Capt. Ralph Russell to serve in that position.

After two ordinances allowing the hiring were approved during last night's meeting, City Commissioner Lon Howell called for Russell's appointment.

The final vote on his recommendation was unanimous.

Russell has been serving as acting chief since the resignation of Steve Harriett, effective on Dec. 31.

Although two other men had applied for the position, Russell had a front-line opportunity to show the city what he could do.

The hiring required a reduction in qualifications, changing the college requirements from four years to two.

In addition, it increased the years of previous law enforcement experience from five to 10. Russell has been with the Sanford police since 1985, and has worked his way through the ranks to the position of captain, and served as second in command under Harriett.

Both of the two other applicants also have excellent credentials. We hope they will be given serious consideration now that Russell's captain position is vacant.

During over three months that the top job has been vacant, many officers and police department employees submitted petitions or voiced their preferences for one of the three.

Now that a decision has been made, we hope the members of the department will return to a cooperative mood and operate as a strong force in the fight against crime.

We urge the citizens to show their acceptance of the new chief by continuing to support all law enforcement activities.

Congratulations to Sanford Police Chief Ralph Russell.

Vigilante sends a scary message

She had stood outside the courtroom with the man accused of molesting her little boy. She was sure that he smirked at her. As though he knew that he would beat the rap or get off with a light sentence. It made her blood boil.

So as Daniel Mark Driver sat in the dock in a Tuolumne County, Calif., courtroom a fortnight ago, Ellie Nealer walked up and shot him dead. She was unwilling to let justice take its course.

To some minds, Nealer is a heroine. But closer to the truth is that she is a symbol. She represents the growing number of Americans who feel that the criminal justice system has broken down; that the scales of justice tilt decidedly in favor of criminals over their victims.

This is not an untenable view. It is substantiated by the annual crime data compiled by the Bureau of Justice Statistics.

Of 100 felony complaints filed by private citizens in a given year, only 30 result in arrests. Of the 30 arrests, only 20 are prosecuted. Of the 20 prosecuted, only 15 yield convictions.

Of the 15 convictions, only five result in sentences of more than one year in prison. Of the five sentences, not even one is served in full measure.

Ellie Nealer thought that she would improve the odds that Driver was punished for his crime. She could not bear the thought that he might receive probation, like he did some years back after pleading guilty to molesting a little San Jose, Calif., day-care center. So she took the law into her own hands.

While such acts of personal vengeance cannot be condoned, they are an inevitable consequence when people lose faith in the criminal justice system. Throughout the land, the law-abiding are telling the cops and the prosecutors, the judges and the wardens: "We're as mad as hell and we're not going to take it anymore."

People want to see some semblance of balance in American justice. They wonder why the law is so efficient, say, in penalizing motorists who commit minor traffic violations, yet so ineffectual in punishing felons who commit the most vile and heinous crimes.

No one feels safe in this country anymore. Not when 34 million people are touched by crime every year. Not when someone is raped, assaulted or done some other bodily harm every 11 minutes. Not when someone is murdered every 24 minutes.

The shots fired in the Tuolumne County courtroom this month may have ushered in a new era of vigilantism in America. People simply don't trust their government to protect them anymore. So they're cordoning off their streets. They're buying guns. They're hiring private security.

Who can blame them? Here in California, for instance, more than 15,000 violent offenders are legally walking the streets, having been turned out of the state's prisons.

Included in this figure are more than 3,000 sex offenders, nearly half of whom have been convicted of engaging in lewd acts with children. Another 3,900 were convicted of assault. In most cases with a deadly weapon. And 1,500 -- a frightening total -- were convicted of murder.

SARAH OVERSTREET

Who's to blame for Spur Posse?

A group of Lakewood, Calif., high-school lads attracted a lot of attention recently for their alleged sexual prowess. I say alleged, because if we had a nickel for every fabricated sexual exploit related by American high-school boys, we could retire the national debt. However, here is a synopsis of the brouhaha:

Either 20 or 30 (The New York Times wasn't sure) teenage and 20-year-old boys belong to a little troop called the Spur Posse.

Instead of collecting merit badges for their chests, they collect notches on their belts -- they compete to see how many girls they can have sex with. The Times didn't say how the contest results were tabulated, whether Price Waterhouse was called in or the word of these impeccable sources was simply accepted, but the winner claims to be up to 67.

The contest in Lakewood, a suburb of Los Angeles, came to light after one father found out that his daughter had had an abortion and the girl told him that she had been forced to have sex with Posse members. Other girls were then interviewed, and six more told similar stories of sex. Nine of the Posse members were rounded up and put in jail; eight were later released, but one was held on charges of lewd conduct with a minor.

Here are the highlights (in the vox populi): "Aren't they virile specimens?... All man.... The girls were giving it away." -- Father of two Posse members, one of them among the nine arrested.

"They (Posse members) say stuff like, 'Oh, come on, I'm in love.' They pretend to be real sweet and then they tell everybody afterward and give out her phone number." Also: "These girls were all willing; they even bragged about it. I know one girl who did every Spur, and she was proud of it." -- Two girls waiting to try out for cheerleader at Lakewood High School.

Boy hanging out near the high school: "The girls are not the prettiest, you know." Boy's girlfriend: "So they take whatever they can get." Boy's brother: "That's how they're trying to get popular, by doing my friends." -- Non-arrested Posse member; his girlfriend; and his brother.

She says she stocked his room with "rubbers" since discovering he was sexually active at age 14. "What should I have done different?" -- Mother of Posse member.

"I don't see these kids acting much different from professional athletes, like when Will Chamberlain said he had 20,000 women." -- Father of another Posse member.

"They pass out condoms, teach pregnancy this and pregnancy that. But they don't teach us any rules." -- One of the jailed Posse members.

There was never such a club when I was in high school. But I remember learning about similar situations, hearing the same comments about both the boys and the girls, the same rationalizations. My brothers, 20 years older than I, remember much the same dramas being acted out when they were in high school. They say that from what our father told them, it was the same in the 1920s. Take away the element of the "club" and its contest, and the attitudes span several generations.

The Spur Posse gang and some of their parents argue that these kids are acting on the message society is giving them. Is that message drastically different from the message my generation or my father's heard? Nothing as complicated as a society can be measured by only one element. But the one constant message among American teens is their music and music videos.

Ban the gill nets

As an active member and representative of the largest portion of this state's poor, its farmworkers, I can tell you that we are not beneficiaries of gill netting. On the contrary, we suffer because it is allowed. Fish that were once plentiful and easy for us to catch are becoming more and more scarce. With primitive tackle, cane poles, strings tied around cans, sticks, etc., we could once go out and catch enough fish to feed our families. Well, not anymore.

What is an insult to the intelligence of the people of this state, is the excuse the gill netters use, that they are "feeding the poor." How can they be, when they are depleting a once plentiful food supply? Fishing for food was one of the ways we poor could feed ourselves. Ban the gill nets! Allow this once inexpensive and accessible food supply to replenish, and you will give us back at least that much of our independence.

This "feeding the poor" excuse is just another form of exploitation, capitalizing on the economic plight of the poor. What these "poverty pimps" would have you believe is a lie. They are not feeding the poor, they are fast destroying one of the ways we poor have of feeding ourselves.

If you really want to help the poor, get rid of the gill nets.

Will Clinton stop land grab?

One of the biggest public land grabs in recent history is now under way in the Western United States. If President Clinton acts quickly to stop it, he can begin redeeming his damaged promise to protect the resources of the public domain.

The promise was delivered in the president's February economic message in which he called for an end to environmentally destructive subsidies on public land mainly within 11 Western states. Below-cost timber sales from national forests were to stop. Fees for grazing on public rangeland were to be set high enough to at least cover the cost of administering the program. The archaic 1872 Mining Law was to get the long overdue reform of finally charging a royalty payable to the Treasury for the gold, copper and other hard rock minerals extracted from public land. Together, the administration said, these measures can generate $1 billion in savings and revenue over the next five years.

But a bloc of Western senators convinced Mr. Clinton to begin dismantling his own program by stripping it of the mining and grazing provisions. The timber issue had already been relegated to a legislative track separate from the centerpiece economic package. This retreat, in the eyes of many environmentalists, compromised the integrity of the president's entire program.

Now, the president has renewed his pledge to see the reforms through as distinct legislative initiatives. That's where the land grab comes in.

One of the Mining Law's worst provisions allows prospectors to buy public land for a low of $2.50 and a high of $5 per acre -- 1872 prices. An area the size of Connecticut has been virtually given away this way, land rich in minerals once owned by the American public.

Sensing reform on the horizon, claim holders are rushing to buy up their stakes before the practice is brought to a halt. In Montana, for example, the Stillwater Mining Co. has the paperwork moving to buy 2,036 acres of the Gallatin and Custer National Forests for the princely sum of $10,180. According to Stillwater's own estimate, the land is laden with over $30 billion worth of platinum and palladium at today's prices.

By the end of fiscal 1992, according to government records, the backlog of applications in the miners' rush to buy up public land totaled 160,900 acres. During fiscal 1992, the records show, new applications were filed to buy 36,821 acres of public land. That figure represents a 91 percent jump from the previous year's applications.

To demonstrate his conviction and commitment, President Clinton should immediately ask Congress to pass a moratorium to end the giveaway.

Further, Mr. Clinton should urge Congress to pass a complete reform of the Mining Law, including a fair royalty like that paid for coal, oil and natural gas taken from public land.

The timber, mining and grazing issues are cases of public land abuse that have festered for years. Congress has failed to remedy them because they have been relegated to the regional prerogative of the West. Senators from Western states, exercising the disproportionate influence their states cannot command in the House of Representatives, have consistently stymied reform.

The fundamental point, however, is that these public lands belong to the entire nation. The husbanding of their resources is profoundly a national concern, not a mere regional prerogative. If regional interests are subsidized in exploiting these resources, it is the entire nation that pays the subsidy. If the resource is degraded in the way it is exploited, the entire nation suffers.

When President Clinton elevated these concerns to the national agenda by linking them to his economic package, he set the stage to break the stranglehold of regional prerogative that has for so long stifled reform. When he then stripped them from his national agenda, the appearance of a cave-in was unavoidable.

Far more than money is at stake here. Whether vast tracks of our national forests will permanently become little more than huge tree plantations is at issue. So is the recovery of millions of acres of badly overgrazed public rangeland. And so too is whether deep pit mines will continue to be allowed to become massive holes with heavy metal concentrations that contaminate underground water resources once the gold and silver are gone.

President Clinton says he will now pursue the needed reforms separately through individual bills to be considered by Congress. Just how vigorously he does so will be a sign of his commitment to the environment and his commitment to changing the status quo.

Clinton can begin redeeming his damaged promise to protect the resources of the public domain.

Vote Smart tracks winning candidates

Associated Press
TALLAHASSEE — Starting in Florida, a nonpartisan group that helped voters check on candidates in November is enabling them to track the winners' performance in office, board president Richard Kimball said.

"For the first time, people are going to be able to supervise these folks just like they are their employees," Kimball said at a Monday news conference announcing the start of Project Vote Smart's tracking service.

After testing its database and computer systems with Florida callers, the service will expand nationwide Thursday, the 100th day of President Clinton's administration, Kimball said.

With a free phone call, he said, people can "find out what is being done to them, or for them, on a day-to-day basis, and compare it with what those candidates said they would do when they were applying for the job."

Citizens can get the information by calling 1-800-822-SMART.

of the girls. According to Inv. Barry Little of the Sanford Police Department, the girls entered a kindergarten classroom group through an unlocked door.

Once the youngsters gained access to one classroom, they were able to walk between that room and three other adjoining kindergarten rooms.

He said they poured glue onto the tables and floors, scattered toys and school supplies around the room and turned over chairs.

There was "a big mess" in each of the four classrooms, Little said.

"Basically, if they did these things at home, their parents would decapitate them," Little said. "I guess they thought it was pretty nifty to trash the rooms."

He said there was no serious damage to the rooms, but that "everything had been turned upside-down."

Little said investigators found a small piece of paper that had been burned around the edges. He declined to speculate if the suspects had watched the paper burn and had put it out or if they had left it behind to burn and it had extinguished itself.

Little added that if the classroom door had been locked, he didn't believe the incident would have occurred.

According to Little, the school has not yet reported anything missing from the classrooms.

"But with kindergarten classrooms sometimes you don't notice some little toy is missing until you go looking for it," he said. "It was a mess in the rooms."

Principal Dave Scott of Hamilton Elementary, was unavailable for comment this morning.

Meanwhile, Little said, investigators will continue to look into the matter. They plan to question one of the girls some time within the next few days.

Little would not speculate on when or if charges would be filed in this case.

Larry Sellers, Public Works director, told commissioners Monday the two-mile sidewalk from Lake Mary Boulevard to Fieldwood Boulevard to serve Heathrow Elementary would cost about $140,000. Sellers said the county has developer agreements to complete about 5,500 feet of the 11,700-foot path, but permitting requirements would still leave the county's share at $98,000.

County Engineer Jerry McCollum said the St. Johns River Water Management District will require a permit for the sidewalk that will require a design to include drainage.

Commissioners decided the cost was too high and agreed to the Markham-Woods Road sidewalk should be considered along with other sidewalk needs in the county. They will also ask the water district to reconsider their permitting requirements for sidewalks.

Several commissioners were, however, quick to say the county should increase the height of development walls along Red Bug Lake Road. When the county completed the widening of the road between Autumn Glen Road and Tusawilla Road, sidewalks were installed two or more feet above the prior ground level.

As a result, several of the homeowners living next to "Red Bug Road" found strollers peering over the shorter fences into their back yards and into windows. Residents attending the meeting Monday afternoon said they were concerned about children climbing over the fences, now only two feet high in some places, and drowning in their pools. Other residents said they were concerned about their homes being "cased" by burglars.

Each commissioner but Bob Sturm said the county had a "moral" or "ethical" obligation to restore the residents' security and privacy. But Sturm accepted the advice of county staff that the costs were too high and the county may be legally prevented from spending public taxes to benefit private property owners.

McCollum said the cost of the wall could reach $200,000 because building codes have changed since most of the walls were built. The entire one- to 1 1/2-mile section of fences would have to be torn down and replaced with a fence built to current construction codes, McCollum said.

Commissioner Pat Warren suggested paying the money directly to the homeowner's associations. But County Attorney Bob McMillan said several court decisions have prevented local governments from making payments based on "moral" reasons. Commissioners directed staff to investigate the needs of each subdivision and report back to them.

Stalking

represents, John Polson and Daniel Emerson. The defense attorney claims the law is vague. Campbell countered by saying the law is specific in identifying actions willfully, maliciously and repeatedly made as stalking.

Feliciani said a judge in Ft. Lauderdale has ruled the stalking law unconstitutional.

Dickey noted that in a Palm Beach County case, a judge recommended to the legislature changes be made in the stalking law which would give a suspect the opportunity to explain his conduct, as it is in the loitering statute.

The public defender argued that the law is vague and that innocent people could be arrested for stalking. He presented the example of an unconventionally dressed man wearing black clothing, a mohawk hair cut with earrings walking the same route to work each day. If another individual took the same route, beginning the walk shortly before the unconventionally dressed person, he or she might be frightened. They might begin to think they were being stalked and contact the police, when the situation was merely a coincidence of two people going somewhere at the same time.

Campbell countered that the police would have the right to ask the alleged "stalker" about the situation.

"Don't police officers arrest people all the time who claim they haven't committed a crime?" Dickey asked.

It was also noted that what might be frightening to one person might not frighten another individual in a stalking scenario.

Prior to the resignation of former Chief Steve Harriett, effective Dec. 31, he had served as second in command of the department. As of Jan. 1, until last night, Russell has been acting chief.

His educational background consists of an associate degree in police science from Seminole Community College, where he graduated magna cum laude. He has also attended numerous training courses including those sponsored by the state, FBI and U.S. Treasury Department.

The courses included hostage negotiations, narcotics, dangerous drugs, fingerprinting, firearms training, defensive tactics, child pornography, criminal drug enforcement, and advanced criminal investigations.

The job vacancy announcement indicated the position of police chief pays $38,555.30 per year.

In making the motion for Russell's appointment last night, Commissioner Lon Howell moved that the salary be "left open to negotiation."

for your role in outstanding service to the city of Sanford.

The presentation was made at the opening of the meeting, with the official proclamation read by City Attorney Bill Colbert.

With applause from friends and family in the audience, he accepted the award with a hand shake from members of the commission.

The award was named in honor of "Pete" Knowles, former city manager of Sanford. Knowles was present earlier in the evening during a workshop meeting, but was unable to attend the awards presentation. Knowles and his wife are presently living in Englewood, in southwest Florida.

Mitchell is serving, or has served in a number of organizations. He is vice president of the Georgetown Community Association; past member of the Board of Directors for the Seminole County Mental Care unit; a member of Concerned Citizens of Sanford; the Cemetery Advisory Board, Code Enforcement Board; and president of the Concerned Organized Men in Action (COMA).

In his civic involvement he is exalted ruler of Celery City Lodge #542, and the Improved Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the World.

Mitchell was born on Nov. 17, 1950, in Sanford. He is the fifth of Louise Robinson Mitchell and Allen L. Mitchell's seven children. He is married to the former Beverly Stephens and is the father of four children, Kevin, Teresa, Bernard Jr., and Barcarie.

Mitchell is a graduate of Crooms High School in Sanford, and holds an Associate of Science degree from Miami Dade Community College Mortuary Science Department.

He is a licensed funeral director and licensed embalmer, and was recently honored as Mortician of the Year.

Mitchell is employed at Wilson-Eicheberger Mortuary, 1110 Pine Avenue in Sanford.

Even front yard not safe after earth opened up

By DONNA DE LA CRUZ
Associated Press Writer

NORTH BRUNSWICK, N.J. — Fearful children now stay on the sidewalks, and inspectors are fielding calls about possible sinkholes in residents' yards after the ground swallowed up a 7-year-old boy outside his home.

First-grader Kwame Sharif was playing with his twin brother, Kwazi, outside the North Brunswick Manor Apartments on Saturday when he stuck his foot in a hole and the ground gave way.

It took rescue workers seven hours to pull the boy's body from an underground cavern 8 feet below the surface. An autopsy showed he had suffocated within minutes.

"My children are afraid to walk on the ground — we only walk on the sidewalks now," Anita Prince said Monday as she stood near the abyss, now cordoned off with a fence. "They don't want to go outside anymore."

A bouquet of flowers lay nearby. Fastened to the fence was a sheet of bright green paper, with Kwame's name misspelled in a hand-lettered message: "In Memory of Kwami."

Prince said her two children have nightmares they will be swallowed up when they leave their apartment. Her children, ages 6 and 9, were playmates of the Sharif twins.

Fran Watson, an aide to the township's business administrator, said inspectors have already been sent out in response to more than a dozen calls. "There could have been a well or the remnants of an outhouse, or there could have been a swamp here at one time," or buried construction debris, he said.

Officials in this working-class community in central New Jersey assured residents they will check every inch of the North Brunswick Manor grounds — along with other developments by the same builder — to make sure what hhy the ground opened up. Two 12-foot tree stumps and roots and branches were found in the sinkhole.

North Brunswick Manor was built in the 1970s on what used to be woods.

Lowell Douglas, a professor of soil science at Rutgers University, said that in the 1960s and 1970s, some developers cleared woods and just buried the stumps and limbs in a hole on the site.

"That could certainly cause a sinkhole because the trees erode, enabling a water pathway to get through the ground, making it soft," Douglas said.

David Samuel, the township's consulting engineer, said there are a number of other possible causes. "There could have been a well or the remnants of an outhouse, or there could have been a swamp here at one time," or buried construction debris, he said.

Lawyers question finding that cultists set the fatal fire

By JAMIE ARON
Associated Press Writer

WACO, Texas — Lawyers for some of the Branch Davidians questioned the impartiality of an outside team of investigators that concluded the doomsday cultists themselves set the fire that destroyed their prairie compound.

The team of arson investigators rejected survivors' claims that the fire began when an FBI tank that punched holes through a wall knocked over a lantern.

Lawyers for several cultists noted that the wife of the team's leader, Paul Gray, works for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms as a secretary in Houston. Gray himself has taught at the ATF's academy, and he and other members of the team were recommended by the ATF.

A Feb. 28 raid by the ATF left four agents dead and began the 51-day siege that ended with the April 19 fire. Eighty-six people, including cult leader David Koresh, are believed to have died in the blaze.

Jack Zimmermann, an attorney who represented one of the victims, Koresh deputy Steven Schneider, said he still believes cult members' version of what happened.

"Until I see the evidence from an independent, impartial expert, I choose to believe the firsthand account of eyewitnesses who were in the center who said there was no fire started by the Branch Davidians," he said.

Another cultist's attorney, Dan Cogdell, told The New York Times, "It's stretching it to say that they are bringing any kind of true independent judgment."

Gray, the assistant chief fire investigator in Houston, said Monday that he and three colleagues believe "this fire was intentionally set by persons inside the compound."

"This fire started in the interior of the building in at least two separate locations at approximately the same time," he said.

Gray said hay inside the wooden compound, along with gaseous liquids, no firewalls and 30 mph winds helped burn the place to the ground in less than 45 minutes.

Clinton administration: The first 100 days

Budget chief: Clinton's proposals face uphill battle

By MIKE ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's plans for the economy, aid to Russia and free trade with Mexico are all in trouble on Capitol Hill, his budget director says in a dose of candor reflecting political realities as Clinton nears his 100th day in office.

Budget Director Leon Panetta and House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., say Clinton might want to hold off on his plan to make health care services available to all Americans and stem their skyrocketing costs.

And Clinton, himself, following a week in which his $16 billion jobs-stimulus package disintegrated in the Senate, said over the weekend that he may have spread himself too thin.

The sobering reflections came as the administration moved toward its 100-day mark on Thursday.

Foley told an annual meeting of The Associated Press on Monday that most of Clinton's jobs package, blocked last week by a Republican filibuster, would eventually be approved "in one form or another."

But he said overhauling the health care system could prove a tough sell with the American public and lawmakers alike. The cost of the plan has been estimated at $90 billion or more.

"I'm troubled because the country is not ready for the challenge of providing the kind of coverage that we want to do to ensure universality," the House speaker said. He indicated that the problem was the cost of financing it.

Clinton had aimed to unveil the proposal next month. The administration has considered asking Congress for a value-added tax to finance the program. That is essentially a national sales tax imposed at each stage of production.

But Foley said it would be unwise to set deadlines for unveiling such a complex proposal.

"I think it's more important to get it right than to get it on time," he said. He said after his speech that many Americans believe they will be able to maintain the same level of medical services at no more cost.

"That is an expectation that can't be met," he said. "This program in the short term is going to cost more money."

Panetta, in a candid, wide-ranging talk, said Monday that Clinton must get his priorities in order if he is to successfully steer his proposals through Capitol Hill.

First-termers: What kind of impact have they made?

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The House's 110-member freshman class — swept in on an expectation of reform — gets partial credit for going deeper on deficit reduction than President Clinton sought. It also forced the cuts-before-spending tack House lawmakers took on the $16 billion jobs bill.

But bringing about big change remains an elusive goal.

Asked about the freshmen's sway during the first 100 days of the Clinton administration, Rep. Nathan Deal, D-Ga., replied "Have we had ANY?"

The class of '92 is the largest crop of newcomers in 50 years.

Ironically, the 47 Republicans — who would normally be the least powerful since they're minority first-termers — are seen as flexing more muscle to date than their Democratic counterparts.

GOP freshmen forced a vote on the abolition of four select House committees. Plus, they took on their party's veterans, voting to put limits on how long Republicans can serve as a ranking committee member.

But that isn't enough of an impact for first-termer Terry Everett, R-Ala.

"We thought we were elected as a group to change things," said Everett. "I thought we could make a difference. I'm disappointed."

There are 63 new Democrats, but their congressional reform proposals created frustration for some. There was no effort to limit committee chairmen terms — which would spread the power around — or lay out specific spending cuts for committees, or place limits on mailing privileges.

And the campaign finance portion didn't go as far as many reformers wanted, because it still allows for "bundling" that lets political action committees pool their donations.

"What you have is a bunch of well-intentioned people who over-promised that they would be the broom that swept Washington clean," said Ross K. Baker, a political scientist at Rutgers University.

"I don't know that we should write their obituary yet," added Christopher Deering, a congressional expert at George Washington University. "but as new members have found, you don't come in and take over the store."

Perhaps one reason that the Democratic class hasn't gelled and started out quickly is that there's no common agenda.

"What's called reform by some is not reform to others," said Rep. Leslie Byrne, D-Va.

For instance, women and minorities who benefit from PAC "bundling" didn't want to do away with that. Other lawmakers balked at tinkering with the committee system, assuming they one day would, pluck a chairmanship.

Republicans chide the freshmen Democrats as cowering to the leadership and backing off chairmen limits out of fear their own committee assignments would be yanked away.

"The leadership didn't nip them in the bud — they nipped themselves in the bud," said one veteran House Democrat in a power post, who asked to go unnamed.

"They had a ready-made reform base, and they didn't seize the moment," said this veteran, arguing the freshmen could have gone further on campaign finance. "It's not heads up politics. There are some stars in this class, but the personalities haven't meshed right, or something."

Byrne noted that nearly three-fourths of the freshmen came from state and local governments, meaning they're still game-players amenable to changing the system from within — not throwing it out and starting over.

"Those who want to see us take this place apart brick by brick are going to be disappointed," she said.

Arabs and Israel resume talks after recess

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — Israel and the Arabs are opening a new round of negotiations under the watchful eye of the Clinton administration — which is about to have its first brush with Mideast peace talks.

Today's session at the State Department ends a four-month recess, with the Clinton administration playing the role of "full partner."

In wooing the Palestinians back to the table, Secretary of State Warren M. Christopher offered a number of assurances, and he said the talks might lead to self-government.

Christopher also told an Arab-American group last Friday night: "I am determined that we not only seem even-handed but that we actually are even-handed."

The statement seemed to signal appreciation of the long-voiced Arab complaint that the United States tilts toward Israel.

Christopher's pledge that the administration would be a "full partner" in the talks appeared responsive to appeals from the Palestinians and Arab governments that the United States take on a more assertive role.

The words convey "our strong desire to become a full partner and an honest broker in the next phase of peace negotiations and to consider fully the views of all parties," said State Department spokesman Richard A. Boucher.

Boucher also said "there's no change in our relationship (with Israel) or policy. The secretary deeply values our special relationship with Israel and remains committed as we have been all along to work closely with Israel as we move the peace process forward."

The Palestinians, reluctant at first to resume, are bound to press their human rights complaints against Israel. Chief Israeli negotiator Elyakim Rubinstein gave assurances last week his side would be "open-minded" and consider them.

Israel and Syria are expected to pick up where they left off in mid-December. Israel had offered a withdrawal on the Golan Heights, and is waiting to hear Syria's peace terms before saying how much of the strategic land it may be willing to give up.

On Sunday, concessions to the Palestinians came from Jerusalem. Israel said it would permit 30 deportees to be repatriated and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin offered Palestinians a role in directing $75 million in investments toward the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

But on Monday, nearly 400 Palestinian deportees marched on an Israeli army outpost in Lebanon and settled down on straw rugs for an overnight vigil to protest the resumption of the talks.

The negotiations, which first opened in October 1991, are supposed to produce a temporary system of self-rule on the West Bank and in Gaza, with the final status of the Israeli-held territory to be determined later on.

AROUND THE STATE

FIU signs blue chipper

MIAMI — Eric Lawson, an Illinois high school guard who averaged 18.3 points a game during his senior year, signed a national letter of intent Monday with Florida International.

Gainesville Raceway gets fix

GAINESVILLE — Parking areas around the Gainesville Raceway will be overhauled under a $1 million project announced Monday by the National Hot Rod Association.

Last month, heavy rains forced some parking areas to be closed during the Motorcraft Gatornationals as drainage problems hampered traffic flow, the NHRA said.

AROUND THE NATION

Florida native beats Marlins

CINCINNATI — Orlando's Joe Oliver broke Charlie Hough's knuckleball spell with an RBI single in the seventh inning, sending the Cincinnati Reds to a 3-0 victory Monday night over the Florida Marlins.

The Marlins got just three hits off Jose Rijo (2-1), Steve Foster and Jeff Reardon, who pitched the ninth for his first save with the Reds and the 358th of his career.

The 45-year-old Hough (2-2) struck out nine — all swinging — and allowed just four hits in 6 1-3 innings with a knuckleball that kept the Reds guessing and gawking. It was his first nine-strikeout game in two years.

Rijo struck out just one in seven innings but held the Marlins to a couple of singles. Reardon provided an appropriate ending — he has added a knuckler this year to prolong his career.

Torretta goes late

NEW YORK — Heisman Trophy winner Gino Torretta of Miami was selected in the seventh round — 192nd overall — by the Minnesota Vikings as the NFL concluded its two-day draft with the final four rounds.

Brewers get pitcher

MILWAUKEE — The Milwaukee Brewers acquired right-hander Mike Boddicker from the Kansas City Royals for a player to be named.

The 35-year-old Boddicker, who underwent arthroscopic surgery March 3 to repair cartilage in his left knee, was 0-2 with a 4.60 ERA in three starts during a rehabilitation assignment with Omaha of the American Association. He's 131-111 with a 3.75 ERA in 13 seasons with Baltimore, Boston and Kansas City.

Gooden hurt

NEW YORK — Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets was scratched from his scheduled start against Los Angeles because of a bruised right shoulder blade. The Mets said Gooden, scheduled to pitch this afternoon, was "bumped in the clubhouse in a freak accident."

Felix honored

NEW YORK — Seattle pitcher Chris Bosio and California first baseman J.T. Snow were named co-players of the week in the American League and Florida outfielder Junior Felix was honored in the National League.

Bosio threw the season's first no-hitter, beating Boston 7-0 on Thursday night. Snow hit .455 with four home runs and eight RBIs. Felix hit .421 with three homers and 10 RBIs.

Delay dooms Tribe

New Smyrna edges Seminole 4-3

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald Sports Writer

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The halftime intermission killed Seminole High School Monday night.

In the opening round of the 1993 Lake Brantley Diamond Classic at Patriot Field, a 20-minute delay before the start of the bottom of the fifth inning to correct a problem with the lighting system seemed to take the momentum away from the Tribe and New Smyrna Beach came back to post a 4-3 victory on a leadoff home run by Chris Tracy in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Seminole had scored two runs in the top of the fifth inning to break a 1-1 tie and junior hurler Todd Braden was cruising along with a one-hitter.

But the delay, caused as the umpires waited for the lights on a pole behind the third base dugout to come on, allowed the Barracudas to regroup and they responded by scoring a run in the fifth inning and another in the sixth to tie the score.

The Tribe had numerous opportunities to take the victory later, but they could not get the big hit, stranding seven base runners over the final four innings.

New Smyrna Beach finally took advantage of the chances as Chris Tracy led off the bottom of the ninth inning and blasted a Jeremy Chunut delivery well beyond the 368-foot mark in left-center field. "This is a good bunch of kids," said New Smyrna Beach head coach David Moskovits of his team. "It's nice to finally win one like this. We've felt like we could play with anyone, but we needed to win one to give us confidence. This is a huge win heading into the district tournament next week."

The Barracudas improved to 8-10 with the victory, while the Tribe fell to 18-8. New Smyrna will meet host Lake Brantley at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, with Seminole taking on Colonial Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

The Tribe took a 1-0 in the top of the first inning as David Eckstein led off the game with a double off the foul line in right field. Scott Ferguson followed with a walk and Eckstein scored on a ground out by Matt Diemer and Matt Freeman.

Braden made the lead stand up despite being very erratic. He got a double play ball in the first inning to SANFORD — It's all over in the National Division.

The Railroaders Cubs of the Little Major Baseball League became the first Sanford Recreation Department youth team to clinch a division title Monday, eliminating their nearest competitors in the standings, the Rinker Materials Dodgers, 5-4 at Roy Holler Field.

The victory kept the Cubs undefeated at 12-0, while the Dodgers fell to 9-3. And with only one game remaining in the regular season the race is over.

In the other game Monday night, the D.A.V. (Disabled American Veterans) Royals, 10-2,

There will be another important game at Roy Holler Field today as the Security National Bank Orioles will host the Sunniland Corporation Red Sox at 5:45 p.m. The Red Sox must win to remain in contention for the American Division title. The Red Sox are the two-time defending division champs.

The Cubs took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning on a walk to Terrance Daniels and an inside-the-park home run by Freddie Hawkins.

Look-alike games in Babe Ruth

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — Monday was a day of similarities in the Sanford Recreation Department Babe Ruth Baseball League.

Among the similarities were: If you scored nine runs you won the game. If you scored seven runs, you lost. If you had the better record of the two teams playing, you won. If you scored the first run of the game, you lost. And if you had the most hits, you did not necessarily win.

The American Division leading Kiwanis Club Orioles and second place Rotary Club Royals both won 9-7 Monday, over the R.E. Templeton Co. Inc. Blue Jays and Woodmen of the World A's, respectively.

NASCAR stars on capitol hill

Associated Press
DAYTONA BEACH - Five NASCAR Winston Cup drivers will do some lobbying Tuesday in the nation's capital.
 As part of efforts coordinated by the National Motorsports Council, Davey Allison, Bill Elliott, Mark Martin, Ricky Rudd and Darrell Waltrip will meet with congressional representatives to express concerns about President Clinton's proposed cuts of tax deductions for business entertainment expenses.
 Corporate hospitality is commonly used by businesses at major sporting events, the council said.
 The drivers will meet with congressional representatives from their various home states and other states in the stock-car circuit.
 "Business entertainment is good for major sporting events," said Waltrip. "There is no question that if deductibility levels are reduced, companies will cut back on entertainment spending."
 "This could also hurt our race teams," said Waltrip, who will meet with Rep. Don Sundquist, R-Tenn. "Our sponsors' involvement includes entertainment of customers, which is used to stimulate business. This proposal could affect what they do, and might change their thinking about involvement with us."
 Waltrip urged fans to write to their representatives in Congress.
 Allison will meet with representatives from Alabama, while Elliott will meet with Georgia representatives. Martin will meet with Arkansas representatives, and Rudd with those from Virginia.

TAMPA - John Lynch isn't interested in becoming the NFL's next two-sport star. He plans to give up baseball for a career with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.
 The Bucs selected the Stanford safety in the third round of the draft but only after receiving assurances that he wants to be a football player and not a pitcher for the Florida Marlins.
 Although he still has to work out the details of leaving the Marlins' minor-league system, Lynch stressed Monday that he intends to keep his word to coach Sam Wyche and join the Bucs this summer.
 "The only definite right now is I'll be playing for the Buccaneers this year," Lynch said by telephone from his home near San Diego.
 "I've yet to talk to the Marlins, and until that time, I've been advised to not really address the issue. We need to talk to them to get some sort of plan for what I'm going to do."
 The Marlins, attracted to a fastball that's been clocked at more than 90 mph, selected Lynch in the second round of the June baseball draft last summer. At that point, pro football didn't seem like an option for the one-time quarterback who played safety his last two seasons at Stanford.
 He was the first pitcher to start a game for the Marlins organization and the Eric, Pa., hat wore in the New York-Penn League game in on display at the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.
 However, Lynch never got football out of his system. He was projected as a starting strong safety last season and the opportunity to play for Bill Walsh was another reason he wanted to return to Sanford for his final season of eligibility.
 "A year ago today my focus was completely on becoming a professional baseball player. Despite that, I did want to come back for my senior year kind of as the last hurrah. ... So I come back and have a pretty good year, and all these other opportunities open up to me."
 Lynch led Stanford with 76 tackles and also intercepted four passes and recovered one fumble as a senior. The Bucs liked him but, remembering Bo Jackson once spurned them for baseball, asked Lynch to give them his word that he wants a football career.
 "I've made the commitment to Tampa that football is going to be my primary sport, and that's what I'm focusing on right now," Lynch said. "I made that decision based on the fact that over the last couple of months I really realized that while I enjoy baseball, I have a passion for playing football."
 Bucs coach Sam Wyche talked to Lynch several times before the draft and "got his promise and word that this is what he wants to do."
 "The guy hits like a ton of bricks," Wyche said. "I talked with Bill (Walsh) and he said don't worry about him. He's a player."
 Lynch, assigned to the Marlins' Kane County (Ill.) Class A Midwest League farm team, plans to attend Tampa Bay's mini-camp this weekend. Although he hasn't ruled out the possibility of returning to baseball some day, he doesn't foresee himself trying to juggle two careers.
 "To be honest, the Marlins knew it was a project. But they had enough confidence in my athletic ability that I could make it," said Lynch, who played little baseball at Stanford, pitching only 20 innings.
 The Bucs drafted six players Sunday and four more Monday, including California defensive tackle Chidi Ahanotu (sixth round) and wide receivers Tyree Davis of Central Arkansas (seventh) and Darrick Branch of Hawaii (eighth). Akron kicker Daron Alcorn (eighth) was the 224th and final pick of the draft, giving him the title of Mr. Irrelevant XVIII. He will be the featured guest of the annual Irrelevant Week celebration in Orange County, Calif., in June.

 overcome an error, then hit two batters in the second inning, but got out of the jam unscathed.
 In the third inning, the righthander allowed a leadoff walk but looked 'like' he would pitch around it as the next two batters made out. But Chris Tracy lined a single to right-center to score Brian Mitchell with the tying run.
 Seminole took the lead back in the fifth inning with two runs. Phillip King led off with a walk and stole second. Eckstein then laid down a beautiful bunt and King scored all the way from second when the pitcher threw the ball away at first base in an attempt to get Eckstein, who wound up on second.
 Ferguson moved Eckstein to third with a sacrifice bunt and Diemer ripped a single to center to score Eckstein.
 After the delay, New Smyrna got a run back without the benefit of a hit.
 A walk, a hit batter and a ground out put runners on second and third with one out. Chris Tracy then lifted a sacrifice fly to right to score Mitchell, who had walked, and reached when the Tribe right fielder dropped the ball. After a strike out, Braden hit his fourth batter of the game to load the bases, but got a ground out to end the threat and preserve the lead.
 The Buccaneers tied the score in the sixth inning. Braden walked the leadoff batter and Diemer was brought in to pitch. Diemer struck out the first two men he faced, but pinch runner Tracy Richardson stole second and scored on a single by Lorne Jones, only the Cub's second hit of the game, to left field.

 Seminole got out of a huge jam in the eighth inning as a single by Steve Barongi, a force out, and a double by Doug Tracy chased Diemer and put the winning run on third base with only one out. Chunut was brought in to pitch and after intentionally walking the first batter, got a pair of strike outs to squeeze the jam.
 But all of the havoc went for naught as Chris Tracy ruined the night for the locals with his balst leading off the next inning.
 Chris Tracy had a big night for New Smyrna, going two-for-four and driving in three runs, as well as pitching two innings of hitless relief. Also doing damage for the Buccaneers were Doug Tracy (double), Jones (single, RBI), Barongi (single), Mitchell (run), and Richardson (run). Mitchell was the winning pitcher working two shutout innings to run his record to 2-0.
 Pacing the Seminole attack were King (two-for-three, run), Cory Gochee (two singles), Eckstein (double, two runs), Diemer (single, RBI), Robbie Morgan (single) and Freeman (RBI).

 Burdick.
 The Cubs took the lead for good in the bottom of the fourth inning, scoring a run without a hit. A walk to David Sanders, a hit batter and two more walks, with Hawkins getting the RBI, accounted for the runs.
 The Cubs added two more runs in the fifth inning on a walk to Aaron Richardson, an RBI double by Jonathan Justice, a stolen base and an obstruction call.
 The Dodgers tried to rally in the sixth inning, scoring two runs, but coming up just short. A single by Theo Williams, an RBI single by David Bridle and an RBI single by Burdick accounted for the runs.
 Pacing the Cubs attack were Hawkins (home run, single, run, three RBI), Benji Chisolm (triple), Justice (double, run, RBI), Terrance Daniels (single, run) and Richardson and Sanders (one run each).
 Doing the hitting for the Dodgers were Barry Porter (triple, single, run, RBI), Burdick (two singles, two RBI), Bridle (single, run, RBI), Williams (single, run, RBI), Brian Porter (single) and Justin O'Grady (run).
 The Expos took a 3-1 lead into the bottom of the fourth inning and the score was tied at 5-5 heading into the bottom of the fifth inning. That's when the Royals took over.
 Three walks and a passed ball put the Royals ahead to stay, then Clyde Stephens ripped a double to score two more. Stephens later scored the fourth run of the inning on a ground out.
 Contributing to the Royals offense were Randy Casey (double, single, two runs, two RBI), Stephens (double, run, two RBI), Chris Calhoun (double), Nick Johnson (single, two runs), Alex Anderson (RBI), Dwayne Tillman (two runs) and Robert Wilds (run).
 Doing the damage for the Expos were Jay Cornell (two singles, two RBI), Aaron Hubbard (double, run), Donovan Daniels (single, two runs, RBI), Danny Weyh (RBI) and Michael White and Bill Smith (one run each).

 The victory by the Orioles clinched them a spot in the city playoffs. The Royals still need a win to secure the other American Division opening in the four-team playoffs.
 The Orioles are the only team in the division with a winning record, featuring a 6-3 record. The Royals are 4-5 and the A's and Blue Jays are both 1-6.
 The National Division will play a doubleheader Wednesday, with the Moose Lodge Pirates taking on the Korg USA Expos inside Sanford Memorial Stadium and the division leading Knights of Columbus Cardinals facing the Cubs on Zinn Beck Field. Both games will start at 5:45 p.m

Ballet Guild turns 25 in style

Patrons thrilled with revival of longtime favorite dances

By ED KORSAN
Herald Correspondent

The 25th Anniversary celebration "Young at Heart," was presented by the Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole at Lake Mary High School Auditorium. Once again, the guild dancers, male guest dancers and alumnae dancers treated everyone to a delightful and exciting array of dancing.

The production, artistically directed by Valerie Weld and Miriam Doktor, was a review of the many faces of the talented pair since the inaugural beginning of BGS in 1968. The blend traversed time from the premier of "The Blue and the Grey" in the "Diddy Trilogy" of the 1988-1992 era.

The show opened with "Heaven Hop" an upbeat number danced by guild dancers and guest dancers. Each dancer, representing heavenly angel ushers and usherettes, looked exquisite in their white outfits trimmed in silver sequins. The number was an excerpt from last year's "Lilly Chantilly" and set the tone for the remainder of the evening.

The directors' clever use of vignettes throughout the show gave the stage crews time to make the changes backstage. Not only were dancers used but board members and local celebrities joined in to the delight of the audience. Betty Smith, Sanford's mayor, joined with her granddaughter, Chelsea Smith, to portray the past, present and future.

In the show's first vignette, "Heaven Hop's" Lilly Chantilly, Linda Zern, expounded on her adventures since she was seen last year and then gave way to Jivin Jack, Bob Meyers of "Doo Wah Diddy" fame (1989) who then got everyone ready for the 1990s.

"Rock Around the Clock" danced by a contingent of all the dancers (guild, alumni and guests) was just as good as it was three years ago. The Nutty Buddies; Miriam Doktor, Kimmie LoDwama and Natalie Weld and the Ding-a-Lings; Sandra Orwig, Holly Kurimal Ricker and Amy Simmons, were a thrill to watch as each danced and played their parts well. The number was backed up by excellent dance choreography.

The vignette "Alumni Memories" presented by Susan Largen Hicks and Sara Lee Roberts Smith presented a preview of what was to come. Both were members of the first BGS company and danced in the original choreography of "The Blue and the Grey."

"Amazing Grace" (1973) performed by the alumni dancers was beautiful. The long flowing robes and the reverence of the choreography added to the expertise of the dancers. The alumni dancers were Alison Lee Aten, Jolane Meinke Brown, Margo Dowlen, Stormey Finch, Susan Largen Hicks, Geraldyn Jones, Joanna King, Francie Echols Lundquist, Maureen Kelly Maguire, Sandra Orwig, Robin Scott, Sarah Williams Small, Sara Lee Roberts, Smith, Linda Wheelchel, Welker and Gina Hattaway Williams.

Choreographed for the 1975 BGS production "Walk Him Up", presented by another contingent of dancers, looked extremely good and well rehearsed. The dancing of some of the younger guild members was exciting to watch. Most notable among the dancers was the work of Kim Beck, Melissa Garris, Kimmie Louwama, Kelly Mann, Krista Simmons, Jennifer Sutton, Natalie Weld and Jacob Twilleager.

"May Day Celebration" premiered in 1987. The dance with its ribbons and Maypole could easily be confusing but the current dancers carried the choreography out with perfection. The costumes of many different colors, were beautiful and the dancing and smiling faces presented "May Day" in an elegant fashion.

One of the guild's most popular dances of the 80s was "Jump Shout." The number was premiered in 1982 and was used many more times throughout the 80s. This year's rendition was just as dynamic as it has been in the past. Its fast-moving pace presented many opportunities for dance mistakes. If there were any, they were not noticed. The recruits Mike Ferrell, Scott Ferguson, Emmial Fields, Foreman Heard, Larry Holbrook, Bob Maguire, Bob Meyers, Phil Ricker, Mizrum Rodriguez, Jacob Twilleager and Tim Winkle should be commended for their work in the dance. Most significant in the dance was Natalie Weld and Jacob Twilleager who were couple number three in the dance contest. They both looked superb. The only other persons who have danced that particular part in the many times it has been performed was her aunt, Miriam Doktor, and her partner.

The treat of the evening came from former BGS members Laura Moore, Alabama Ballet, and Jack Hansen, Southern Ballet Theatre. Their rendition of "Le Corsaire" was beautiful. The poise and the perfection displayed by Moore and the height and gracefulness Hansen achieved in his jumps was just outstanding and they should provide a model for the current BGS dancers to follow in their quest for stardom.

Not so much can be said about "The Blue and the Grey" that hasn't already been said. It is a dance that has withstood the test of time. The staging and the choreography is just as good as it was 10 years ago when it was revived and 25 years ago when it was conceived. It is an inspiration to anyone who is lucky enough to see it danced.

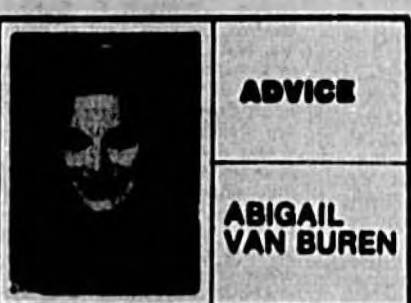

The presentations of "the Grand Tarantella," "Hoedown," "1-800-SOUL," "Young at Heart" and "The Trenchcoat Dance" were equally exciting. Costuming was beautiful and the dancing and smiling faces presented "May Day" in an elegant fashion.

Patient's friends lighten heavy load

DEAR ABBY: May I share with you the incredible courage shown by a young friend of mine. She is Gail Aachenbrenner of Portland, Ore. She works in an office of the U.S. Forest Service there.

At this writing, Gail is in remission from lymphoma, a form of cancer. The following is a copy of her letter of thanks to her colleagues and her many friends:

WHY I'M ALIVE TODAY
I'm alive today...because I finally went to the doctor.
I'm alive today...because of great advances in chemotherapy, especially over the last five years.
I'm alive today...because you've donated hundreds of hours of your hard-earned annual leave, allowing me to keep paying my insurance premiums and have the luxury of staying home to recover from five months of difficult treatments.

ADVICE

I'm alive today...because of all the cards, messages, phone calls and prayers you've sent me. Whenever I wanted to give up, I thought of you and your positive thoughts.

I'm alive today...and paying those old and new medical bills that my insurance doesn't. Thanks to the terrific folks at Wind River Ranger District and Nursery who raised $2,000 auctioning off goods and services.
I'm alive today...and getting better all the time. Because of physical suffering, I know what health is. Because of emotional heartache, I know what peace is. Because you were there for me when I was bald, blistered and bloated, I know what friendship is.

I'm alive today...and "thank you" seems inadequate. No matter what the future brings, I will always remember what you did for me.

Your friend,
Gail Aachenbrenner
Personally to me, Gail wrote: "I believe that my illness and suffering were given to me as a gift so that I will be able to recognize the many miracles of life while still young. I also feel that having fought this battle, it should be shared so that others may know a little better what endless possibilities for boundless joy await them if only to have health and love, and little else."

My response to Gail, in part: When the volunteers for the American Cancer Society come to our doors, we will remember you, Gail. Your brave words inspire us with renewed determination to help gain the victory for this noble cause.

REFERENCE BU-JUVE
DEAR ABBY: What memories the letter signed "Bugged in St.

Paul" brought back to me. My late husband rose from a country boy with an eighth-grade education to an executive in a large (and famous) nationally known corporation. He was called upon to make many speeches, and I cringed every time I heard him say, "I seen."

After years of keeping my mouth shut, I said, "Darling, don't say, 'I seen,' say either, 'I saw' or 'I have seen.'" He said, "Sure."

To my horror, the next time, it came out "I have saw..." After that, I gave up. (I liked "I seen" better.)

He's been gone for 34 years, and how I'd love to hear him say "I seen" again. By the way, I'm 91 and taking classes in German and Spanish and chair-dancing.

EXECUTIVE'S BUDWIG

DEAR ABBY: "Not Afraid of the Dark," who complains about searchlights glaring into the sky, is talking about "light pollution." This little-known type of pollution is gradually stealing the pleasure of skyviewing from tens of millions of people. Bright skies hide the stars and planets from us.

Light that shines upward is wasted. A few communities, largely near major observatories, have ordinances requiring hoods. Why should we pay for light that doesn't go where we want it?

We should all try to limit light pollution by having our own lights and our town and city lights shine only on the ground, not above the horizontal, and by shutting off those lights whenever they are not needed.

DEAR ABBY: In your column to the Greenville (Texas) Herald-Banner, I noticed that several people mentioned the signs they had on their front doors to discourage solicitors. I have one that is better than any you mentioned — and it works!

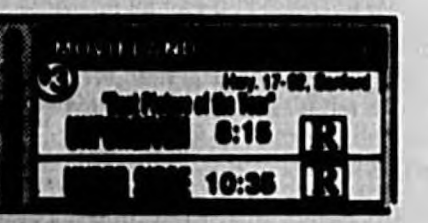

WE SHOOT EVERY THIRD SALESPERSON.

Please don't mention my name — just sign me...

Getting help for a bladder disorder

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 77-year-old male. My bladder does not function normally any more, and I have to catheterize myself four to five times a day. My doctor says nothing can be done, and the physician I saw for a second opinion agrees. I want to live out the rest of my life normally, and this is a difficult situation.

DEAR READER: Indeed, it is. I suspect that you have a neurogenic bladder. The bladder doesn't contract properly because of an interruption of the nerve supply to it. This permanent problem can result from diabetes and a host of neurological disorders. With repeated self-catheterizations, you run the risk of introducing infection into the bladder; this could eventually spread to the kidneys.

Thus, I believe you should examine other options, such as a permanent catheter or some other mechanism to empty the bladder at intervals. I suggest that you request a referral to a urology clinic in a teaching hospital, where super-specialists deal with especially troublesome problems such as yours.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How can I tell the difference between poor circulation, pressure on my nerves from carpal tunnel syndrome and pressure on the nerves at the back of my neck? I have a tingling on the left side of my face, my left hand and fingers. I've had right carpal tunnel repair and Meniere's syndrome that may be caused by poor blood circulation, so I'm confused what my newest problem might be related to.

DEAR READER: A physical examination, during which the doctor checks your pulses and nerve functions, should provide the answer you seek. This can be followed up by specialized tests, such as a nerve conduction study, if necessary.

Carpal tunnel syndrome (pressure on the nerves in the heel of the hand) does not cause facial tingling. However, it often affects both hands. Because you've already had one side repaired, I'd be suspicious that the other side might be acting up now.

A pinched nerve in your neck may cause tingling in your upper extremity, but it won't affect your face, as will conditions such as neuralgia of the facial nerve.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

In most North American sports, you win prize money. But in bridge tournaments, you win nothing (except masterpoints). Professionals make money when they are hired as partners.

In the rest of the world, cash prizes are commonplace, but the American Contract Bridge League has always been against them. Now, though, the ACBL is dabbling its toe into the water with a tournament at the Las Vegas Hilton May 4-8. For details, call (901) 332-5588, ext. 243.

Today's deal occurred at one of the most popular money tournaments. In Juan-les-Pins on the Cote d'Azur. How should the club suit be played?

The bidding is given as it occurred, though some of the actions will not meet with understood approval.

Declarer ruffed the second round of diamonds and cashed his three top trumps, getting the bad news. Now he had to play the club suit for one loser.

The normal play is to finesse the nine. If it loses to the queen or king, you finesse the jack next. But as there is only one dummy entry, this line is impractical. The choices are to cash the ace or to enter dummy and lead a low club to the jack. Both work if the suit is 2-2. The former wins when West has a singleton queen or king; the latter when West has a singleton 10. However, given that East opened the bidding, leading to the jack isn't so unreasonable.

The actual declarer went into the dummy and led a club to the ace. "This line," he wrote, "is still causing me sleepless nights."

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
April 28, 1993

In the year ahead, others will be attracted to endeavors that you personally initiate. However, you must be extremely careful to be sure those you recruit can make solid contributions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A normal amount of curiosity could stimulate your mental processes today. However, if you are merely curious for invalid reasons, you might poke your nose into situations where it doesn't belong. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Taurus' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4465, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best not to pass hearsay information onto others today that isn't substantiated by facts. Loose remarks could hurt someone's reputation.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might become involved in an unproductive partnership arrangement today. The reason it lacks vitality could be the fact that neither party is forthright with the other.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will resent it today if someone with whom you're associated tries to do your thinking for you. Conversely, others will find it equally irritating if you try to think for them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually you are a rather self-disciplined person, but today you might be tantalized and yield to temptations you would normally resist. Be careful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In order to fulfill your expectations today, you must have continuity of purpose. If this factor isn't operative, you may start things you'll never finish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You might have to deal with someone who is numbered among your less favorite people today. If you treat this development negatively, it could create complications.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are selling or promoting something important today, you'd be wise to have some backup available to help you close the deal. There's a possibility you might blow it on your own.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you don't know what you want today or how you intend to get it, don't expect others to figure things out for you. You'll have to be both self-reliant and methodical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your hunches might be based upon your emotions rather than your logic today, so don't put too much stock in your intuitive perceptions.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It would be best not to borrow anything from friends at all today, but if you have no choice, pay back the loan as promptly as possible or return borrowed items in the same state you received them.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're not likely to be very productive today if you approach your objectives in a wishy-washy manner. Take a firm stance once you assume a specific position. (C)1993. NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
