DAYTONA BEACH (AP) - Three Orlando men were in jail today under $75,000 bond each after, police say, they engaged in a 30-minute weekend gun battle with officers over a planeload of marijuana on an abandoned airstrip. Police said the men were attempting to reach a small plane stuffed with $1.1 million in marijuana that was parked on the weedgrown runway in a remote area near here.

Prisoners 'Demonstrate' At Orlando

ORLANDO (AP) — Violence erupted at the Orange County Jail twice Sunday as prisoners in a fifth floor cellblock hurled flaming objects through windows and shouted obscenities at passersby, police said.

During the first outbreak from 1 to 6 p.m., Sheriff's Deputy Howard Hair suffered what authorities termed a "stroke while on duty." He was reported in fair condition at Orange Memorial Hospital.

said. Authorities roped off the area around the courthouse housing the jail. Assistant Fire Chief Calvin Bookhardt said pressure hoses were turned on in the cellblock to douse blazing objects.

Prisoners ripped light fixtures from ceilings, and set fire to blankets, plastic plates and other flammable objects, police said.

When prisoners were told their visitation privileges had been suspended because of the afternoon violence, trouble began again at 10 p.m. Police said it was quelled in an hour, Authorities said all prisoners in the cellblock were involved, but declined to give the specific number. It usually has more than 100 prisoners.

Sunday's incident is the fifth in recent weeks, authorities said. Last month seven prisoners escaped from the jail, including "black satin" murderer James (Pete) Christian. Christian and four others were captur-

LONGWOOD - A two year struggle to bring his Vietnamese wife to the United States ended at McCoy Airport at 2 o'clock this morning for Robert Whittemore. The Vietnam veteran rushed to his wife as she disembarked from the plane and held her in a long embrace. Then he saw and kissed his son, Robert Whitemore Jr., for the first time.

Also welcomed in a similar manner by the Longwood man was Phoue and Kim Anh Truong, Mrs. Whittemore's children by a former marriage.

Following the happy reunion the family was driven to their Longwood home by Mrs. Lawrence Burgess. Mrs. Burgess was accompanied to the airport by Commander Merle Harris, of VFW Post 8207, and his wife, Harriet, president of the post's gess, service officer for Vete-Auxiliary Unit, and Mrs. Eve- rans of Foreign Wars Post lyn Hart, unit treasurer, all of 8207, suffered a heart attack whom added their greetings to Saturday. hat so many of Florida's counties find themselves. We refer to the smaller ones in acreage who now find that growth with a capital G has amplified the responsibilities of local and county governments to

A relative young county, inheritor of a tradition of gracious living and ability to govern itself with small-town politics. Seminole now is confronted with a major task of transformation. Holding on to what is good in the past. Reaching out for the promise

The burden of these comments is to say that unified action on levels where such action is essential must now get the sober consideration by county leaders which it always has merited.

One aspect of this can be glimpsed in the matter of funding. To be specific, we mean federal funding. This has been obtained and is visible in such widely separated areas as the sewers in Altamonte

From time to time, wise leaders in the county have looked into and then backed off quite briskly from the one move which is inevitable, although distasteful to some powerful interests. This is a consolidation of the cities for the purpose of achieving better services by mustering all of the assets of the cities into a solid front to attack the over-all needs in such common fields as drainage

Now a group of cities along the southern rim of the county, which refused to join in with Sanford to discuss such a move and now are banded into a council of local governments, appear considering the hiring of one more bureaucrat who would become a specialist in finding out what federal funds are available - say for parks - and then learn the ropes which would snare these dollars for Seminole.

and coordinate growth, subdivisions hastily built a decade ago have generated the school, transportation and sewage crisis of today. In this new patchwork metropolis, solutions to these and other problems become increasingly costly to all."

But solutions are available. That they already need overhauling and improvement to cut away the It is a time for action!

Thus we would strongly support, as we have in the past, the consolidation of local governments, where that can be done with no loss of independent In its final report the prestigious Southeastern policy decisions.

A persistent insistence that in every function of county government - especially in the public schools -a full dollar of productivity is bought by each tax dollar spent must be exerted.

Consolidation may be a long way off. If so, then Seminole County will be overlooking the one process by which the overwhelming needs for municipal services - the unknown requirements of the Walt Disney World are a real and challenging factor - can be best met. This is a time for more than thought.

Billboards Again!

Even if no penalty were involved in delay, it is high time North Carolina did something about removing the advertising billboards that line its interstate and primary highways. Unless it does, the state is now likely to lose $9 million in federal highway funds. A 1967 state law gives the Highway Commission the right to acquire, by condemnation if necessary, billboards erected within 660 feet of interstate or primary highways and to set regulations on placement of billboards in zoned and unzoned areas.

Billboard control has long been in contention here and in other states. Because the panels are profitable to the owners, and presumably to the lessees, any proposal to remove them has always met opposition, Land rentals for billboard purposes are also cherished by farmers. We believe, however, that a proliferation of billboards along the highway creates an unsightly situation that diverts motoring vision, obscures scenic attractions and "opllutes" the North Carolina's interstate routes are not yet over-exploited for advertising purposes, although there is beginning evidence of this. The time to remove them, and to ban future signs in proximity to the road rights-of-way, is now. - Asheville (N.C.) Citizen

Who'll Be There?

Accoustical studies at two universities -Wyoming and North Carolina State - report that the six-foot distance between individuals carrying on a normal conversation on city street corners today will be reduced to half that distance by 1985 because of the rising incidence of vehicular and aircraft noise.

Oh, well. By 1985, unless air pollution is reduced faster than noise pollution increases, no one will venture out into the streets anyway. - Dicmingham (Ala.) News

Who Should Wear The Pants?

History Shows Skirted Men

NEA Women's Editor NEW YORK - (NEA) Today's "liberated" woman may believe her pantsuit to be a symbol of equality between the writing in the May issuel of Sexual Behavior magazine, says

"That women wear skirts and men trousers has as much to do with sexuality as pink and blue booties," she says. To support her point Dr. Stannard, a former teacher of Diglish at the University of California at Berkeley now devoting full time to writing and research, takes a fascinating look back into history. Her findings may give quite a turn not only to the "liberated ladies" but to the males who feel they were chosen by nature to wear
