CRIMES

Talk isn't cheap

WINTER SPRINGS — A security guard found that talk isn't cheap when he was arrested Friday for making nearly $1,600 in "900" calls from the business he was guarding.

Richard Jeffrey Zamborowski, 25, Winter Park, was charged with grand theft by Seminole County deputies Friday morning at the Wells Fargo office in Casselberry. He was taken to the Seminole County jail where he was later released on $1,000 bond.

Zamborowski was working at the Macasphalt plant, 655 State Road 419, as a security guard for Vickers Security Services between March 29 and April 20. During those dates, and during the times he was working at the plant, $1,597 in long-distance telephone calls were made to such 900-exchange services as "USA Talk," "Phone Party" and "Talkline."

Firefighters kept busy

SANFORD — A fire at 111 Hidden Lake Drive kept Sanford firefighters busy Friday after they had to respond to the scene three times as the fire restarted, doing more than $10,000 in damage.

Firefighters first responded to the blaze at about 1:45 p.m. Friday. Although they thought they had extinguished the fire to the single-story vacant home, they were called out again at about 5:30 p.m. and again at about 11:30 p.m. after the fire kept rekindling.

Three arrested after shots fired

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A Sanford man and juvenile were among three people arrested for firing a shotgun at passersby Saturday morning.

Leonard Lucas, 21, a 17-year-old Sanford youth and another 17-year-old youth were charged by Seminole County deputies for the incident. Lucas was taken to the Seminole County jail where he was held on $3,000 bond. The two youths were taken to the Juvenile Detention Center.

City reports an 'oops'

SANFORD — City officials, through the cooperation of the Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service, have mailed out Water Conservation Action guides to all of Sanford's utility customers, and have offered copies to anyone, at Customer Service in the City Hall. But after the mailing, according to Bill Marcous, program coordinator for the city's utility department, "We found an 'oops'."

The phone number listed for the utility department in the Conservation Guide is wrong. "It should be 330-5641," said Marcous.

For those not receiving the guide, Marcous said, "Call us, but use the right phone number, 330-5641."

SANFORD — Colonel Allen Nelson, 72, 1215 Wynn Street, is not through fighting the Civil War. In fact, he's trying to raise a new "army."

Nelson, (the "Colonel" is honorary) and his wife June, are members of the Florida Reenactment Society. Each February, they travel to Olustee for a reenactment of the Battle of Olustee, the most prominent Florida skirmish of the war. Olustee is located about 16 miles East of Lake City, in extreme Northern Florida.

"They actually do the reenactment right in the park, which is rare, because they don't usually want state parks torn up with the mock battles. But this one," he said, "actually takes place on the same site as the original battle."

Nelson is currently trying to gather a group of volunteers, with which to form the 2nd Vermont Battalion, Company D., with a goal of having a unit which will fight in mock battles whenever and

Garbage: new way of living

Mandatory collection, recycling, rate hikes

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Garbage rates for many unincorporated residents of Seminole County may increase this September when the county reorganizes the way trash is collected and begins a recycling program.

Commissioners will hold a public hearing Aug. 14 at 7 p.m. to discuss adoption of the solid waste program. Although the program will directly affect unincorporated residents only, several cities are expected to participate.

Until the county begins mandatory garbage collection in 1991, county solid waste officials recommended granting garbage haulers a rate ceiling of $13.80 per month to collect both garbage and recyclable materials in a separate container.

Commissioners last week agreed to spend $169,000 to buy 50,000 plastic bins from a Palm Beach County company to distribute free to homes.

They also awarded a contract to Southeast Recycling Corp. of Longwood to take all of the county's recyclable materials. The county will receive a portion of the proceeds from the sale of

Special team curbs crime in volatile sections of county

By SUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The Special Enforcement Team of Seminole County sheriff's deputies, which has operated in high crime areas of the county for one month, is having a positive impact. Lt. Rocky Ford said.

Sgt. Mike Messer, who serves with Ford on the range, water and traffic patrol division of the sheriff's department, said the new force they supervise has been welcomed by the communities of Goldsboro, Midway, Jamestown, the outskirts of Oviedo, and rural Altamonte Springs.

Messer said the team of four deputies drawn from each of the four patrol shifts and school resource officers who work Friday nights, has made about 40 arrests. The team has also issued more than 70 traffic citations and has assisted citizens and other lawmen in 264 incidents.

The team varies its location and schedule in response to enforcement needs. When SET moves in, Ford said, patrol deputies normally assigned to that area move out. The team handles all calls and law enforcement needs in that area at that time.

New mayor faces Lake Mary

By AMY WILSON
Herald intern

LAKE MARY — A familiar bit of philosophy says that history repeats itself. However for Paul Tremel, newly appointed Mayor of Lake Mary, a city does not have to follow the precedent of those before it.

If Tremel, 41, a professor with his masters degree in history, could pull his own credo from the past, he would agree with Aristotle: that balance is the key to success — in one's personal life as well as the life of a city.

Relaxed and casual but by no means carefree, Tremel recently discussed himself and his obvious concern for the future of Lake Mary.

An adult high school instructor at Seminole Community College and an adjunct professor at the University of Central Florida, Tremel was awarded the Mayor's title at a recent city commission meeting, after Dick Fess resigned to run for county commission. Tremel was deputy mayor, and had served on the city commission since 1984.

"I grew up in Brevard County where there was no such thing as growth management," he said. "There were no regulations to make a convenience store attractive. It seemed like everywhere

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Bertolotti executed for murder

STARKE — A 38-year-old man was executed in Florida's electric chair Friday for the 1983 stabbing death of an Orlando housewife, in the first such execution since the chair malfunctioned in May.

Anthony Bertolotti was put to death at 7:07 p.m. EDT, two minutes after prison officials switched on the electric current. Officials said the state's electric chair performed without a problem.

Bertolotti's lawyers had failed to win an 11th hour stay from the U.S. Supreme Court, which previously had denied his appeals. A federal appeals court denied the stay request earlier Friday.

"I would like to say I leave with peace and love in my heart, no animosity," Bertolotti said just before prison officials strapped him in the chair. "For those I love, be strong and know that God is with them."

Officials later said a faulty sponge was to blame. Three small puffs of smoke rose from the electrode on Bertolotti's leg as he was executed.

Pet rooster helps heart patient

SEBRING — County officials are looking at awarding a special zoning exemption to a heart patient whose doctor says the man has an emotional attachment to his pet rooster.

A Highland County zoning inspector recently cited Ernie Shinn and his wife, Flo, for keeping the rooster at their mobile home. The inspector said the zoning code prohibits farm animals in areas zoned residential.

But the Shinn's contend that 18-month-old Chickie-Bid, an Easter gift last year, is therapy for 66-year-old Ernie. They've taught the rooster to eat his favorite meal scrambled eggs off a plate and to drink out of a glass.

Doctors at the Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Miami agree with the Shinn's. They said the county should not force Shinn to give up his pet rooster because that would upset him. And that's the last thing they want for Shinn, who underwent heart bypass surgery in September.

Couple sues rabbi for late wedding

FORT LAUDERDALE — A rabbi who united two young lawyers in marriage last year has been sued by the couple for $130,000 in damages because he allegedly arrived late for the ceremony.

Christine and Russell B. Adler claim in their suit that Rabbi Loring J. Frank's late arrival for their wedding ceremony in April 1989 caused them pain, suffering and inconvenience.

According to their filing, Frank was an hour and a half late. That led to a chain reaction of calamities — an inflated liquor bill as bored guests turned to drinking, vicious gossip that the marriage might be off, a long wait in a stifling room for the bride, the re-emergence of an old back injury for the groom, and "a rift between the plaintiffs."

Guns, taxes high on voters' minds

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's gubernatorial candidates could win more votes by promising to ban assault rifles and fight new taxes than by limiting campaign contributions, a new poll shows.

The poll shows a lot of enthusiasm for the central campaign issue of U.S. Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Melbourne, who was first to promise a ban on the sale of assault rifles, and some enthusiasm for Gov. Bob Martinez's no-new-taxes campaign platform.

But it shows a lack of enthusiasm for the central campaign issue of former U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, who has made the $100 limit on campaign contributions a central part of his campaign, pollsters said.

Klan, skinheads rally in Palm Beach

PALM BEACH — About 30 vocal Ku Klux Klansmen and Neo-Nazi skinheads paraded down ritzy Worth Avenue Saturday past a crowd of 1,000 boating residents, one of whom was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge.

Klansmen clad in white robes and skinheads dressed in gray fatigues quickly traversed the three-block route approved by city officials, stopping in Memorial Park near city hall to yell racial slogans.

None of the leaders of the white separatist groups addressed their followers or the crowd of jeering observers.

"The hate we see is from those idiots (the crowd) out there, not those who support white rights," said Richard Ford, a Klansman who organized the march.

A Florida judge earlier declared the album by the Miami band obscene, triggering a nationwide controversy.

Second tropical storm brewing

By DE'ANN WENNER
United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — A trough of low pressure over the East Coast kept Tropical Storm Bertha from moving closer to land Saturday, lessening the threat to Cape Canaveral, where the space shuttle Atlantis was sitting on a launch pad.

Bertha, the second tropical storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, was stationary in the Atlantic at latitude 26.7 north, longitude 75.6 west, or 280 miles east of Cape Canaveral.

The system, packing winds of 50 mph with higher speeds recorded in squalls to the north of the storm's center, was expected to begin drifting to the north during the next 24 hours.

"Conditions are not ideal, but we expect some gradual strengthening and it could become a weak hurricane over the next two or three days," said Todd Kimberlain, a meteorologist at the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

"Our projections show it moving toward the Carolinas over the next 24 hours but keep it off the Carolina coast. We think the trough will remain in place long enough to keep the storm offshore, but it is not strong enough to send it entirely out to sea," he said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration planned to keep the space shuttle on the launch pad, since no severe weather spawned by the storm appeared headed toward Cape Canaveral, said NASA spokesman Bruce Buckingham.

"It appears the storm is growing in intensity, but directionally looks like it's heading away from us," he said. "But we want to make absolutely sure that it poses no threat before making a final decision."

Coe says he contemplated killing himself

By VICTOR GALVAN
United Press International

FORT MYERS — A Polk County man on trial in the potty-training death of his 2-year-old stepson told jurors Friday he considered killing himself the night before his arrest, and thought his wife "got what she deserved" when she was initially charged with murder.

"I figured she deserved anything she got because she was always trying to start arguments," Thomas Coe, 23, said about his wife, Sheryl McCoe Coe, during his two hours of testimony.

"I mean, I know I failed to provide, but at least I always tried to keep the peace," he said. "I was seriously thinking about running to the Circle K and getting some single-edge razor blades."

Coe is charged with first degree murder and aggravated child abuse in connection with the July 1989 death of Bradley McCoe, and faces a possible death sentence if convicted.

The trial recessed at 3:30 p.m. EDT. Closing arguments are expected Monday.

Bradley's death led to unprecedented charges against four state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services workers, and sparked reform of Florida's child welfare system.

Coe's wife testified earlier this week that her husband subjected Bradley to brutal treatment, including forcing him to pick up feces with his mouth and putting cayenne pepper on his genitals.

Sheryl Coe, 21, pleaded no contest in March to a reduced charge of second-degree murder and aggravated child abuse and was sentenced to 30 years in prison. She agreed to testify against her husband as part of the plea agreement.

Andre Mitchell, 7, Sanford, tries out one of the many video games, featured at the new Fun World section of Flea World, which opened earlier this week.

New world dedicated to fun

By MICK PFEIFER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — There's a whole new world out there, and it's strictly dedicated to fun. Flea World has now opened its Fun World section, and young and old alike were out in full force between the rain showers yesterday.

Syd Levy, Owner of Flea World said the project has been seven months in the making, "and we're not finished yet, we have a lot more things to do out here." Presently, the two mini-golf courses, Fun Harbor and Dodge City are in operation, as are the Go-Karts, Bumper Boats, and a 10,000 square foot game room. The mini-golf courses are provide more of a challenge than most, and Levy said the par may be adjusted upward after more golfers have tried it. "Even Jack Nicklaus would probably go at least two over par on these courses," Levy said.

Still to be finished, Levy said, "We will have bumper cars, a carousel, kiddie rides, and nine batting cages, that will have different speeds for pitches, from slo pitch up to 70 miles per hour."

Levy is particularly proud of the restaurant food court and party center currently under construction. The restaurant will feature a variety of foods, but the main emphasis on half of the facility will be for parties such as birthday parties, little league gatherings and the like. The restaurant, when it is finished will be open from 10 a.m., until midnight.

"The entire Fun World section of Flea World sits on 10 acres of land including the additional parking area," said Levy. Cost of the new Fun World construction, buildings, equipment and electronic games is around $5 million.

One of the kiddie rides still to be completed consists of a half dozen, fiberglass elephants which rotate around a large simulated tub of peanuts. Levy said, "We had an unexpected problem with this one when we first put it up. The peanuts are real," he said, "but they were coated with a type of plastic to preserve their appearance. But even with the coating, the birds came along, pecked right through the plastic and ate the peanuts." Levy said the peanuts have now been replaced and an improved coating has been applied.

Flea World is open every day from 10 a.m. until midnight.

Migrating manatees being tracked

United Press International

GAINESVILLE — Researchers are using satellites and computers to track migrating manatee as the endangered sea cows travel along the coasts of Florida and south Georgia, university scientists said Friday.

The high-technology tracking system is being used to help researchers determine the dangers faced by the mammals, which sometimes travel hundreds of kilometers during the spring and summer, said Tom O'Shea, U.S. Fish and Wildlife biologist and adjunct professor at the University of Florida's Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

Florida has the only significant year-round population of the marine mammals in the United States. During the winter, about 1,200 manatees have been counted in the warm waters of power plant discharge areas and warm water springs.

The number of manatees, however, has been dwindling because of an increasing number of collisions with boats and shrinking habitat.

O'Shea said that in order for government agencies to grant waterfront development permits without endangering manatees they need information about manatee movements and habitat.

Man charged with child abuse

SANFORD — Parks Mason McCall, 28, 1100 Park Ave., Sanford, was charged with aggravated child abuse after investigators found numerous bruises they described as "excessive" on a three-year-old's back and buttocks. McCall told investigators he spanked the child for soiling its clothes. McCall was held at the Seminole County jail on $4,000 bond.

Arrest made in armed robbery

SANFORD — Kenneth McGill, 24, 2000 Airport Blvd., Sanford, was arrested Friday for armed robbery after a Sanford man reported he was robbed of three gold chains and more than $100 at knife point. Johnny Amaro told Seminole County deputies he was walking home on Southwest Road shortly after midnight July 23 when McGill, who he knew, jumped out from behind some bushes and grabbed the chains from his neck.

Amaro told deputies McGill demanded all of his money and when he refused, McGill produced a small knife. Amaro said he gave McGill about $106 in cash before McGill fled. McGill was held on $9,000 bond.

She said he then retrieved a shotgun and threatened to kill her and then himself. After a struggle, she escaped. Police report finding a loaded shotgun and two other guns in the home. Stokes was held on $1,000 bond.

Garbage

the materials which will be used to operate the recycling advertising program.

Homeowners will be limited to four cans at each pick-up time twice weekly to prevent non-paying homeowners from "piggy-backing" to avoid garbage fees.

Fred Blakeley, county solid waste manager, said rates for the 12 haulers operating in the county range from $7 to $14 each month. Gary Cinder, said the rate ceiling was needed to give haulers an opportunity to recoup expenses in buying $100,000 recycling trucks and the cost to separate glass, aluminum and newspapers at each household stop.

Commissioner Pat Warren said she was concerned about the potential increases for some homeowners, saying Lake Howell Condominium owners now pay $4 each month.

"I want it worked out so the citizens are not penalized," Warren said.

Gary Cinder, director of Seminole County Environmental Services, said when mandatory garbage collection begins next year, everyone will pay a common rate. Before then, the 12 haulers will be assigned franchises for sections of the county which will give them exclusive rights to collect garbage from homes in each area.

Although Cinder said 10 of the 12 haulers have agreed to the wording of the proposed contract and their assigned franchise area, two haulers told commissioners they could be driven out of business before new development could occur in their areas.

"This will require us to drive hundreds of miles just to pick up the same number of customers," said Shawn McFadden, general manager of Sure Sanitation Service Inc., which now serves the unincorporated Lake Mary area. "This area has a very low density. We need a higher density area in order to operate economically."

McFadden said Sure was originally assigned a portion of the Chuluota area and when he complained that area would not replace the number of customers he is now serving, the area was expanded to include Geneva.

"We went from the frying pan into the fire," McFadden said. "We went from a low-density area to an ultra-low density area."

Florida, concentrated in areas with the greatest drug problem," Ford said. "We infiltrate the area making our presence known by high visibility and arrest of those who break the law."

"We're trying to give the community back to the people who live there and take it out of the hands of the druggies," he said.

Messer said the team also serves outstanding warrants.

His troops, he said, normally wear patrol uniforms and drive marked patrol cars for high visibility in the community.

However, SET officers may go undercover. "This is proactive, not reactive," Ford said. "The team is trying to prevent or inhibit drug (sales or use) or criminal activity."

Team duty is a temporary assignment for the deputies. "It's not permanent. It takes one person off each shift to supplement the team," Ford said. He added that he doesn't know how long the team, developed at the suggestion of Lt. Donald Ealinger, commander of the City County Investigative Bureau, will exist.

Ealinger said SET deputies also coordinate with CCIB agents and sheriff's detectives in enforcement efforts. "They help police with recurring problems and look at the cause of problems," Ealinger said. "They will assist in establishment of homeowners' meetings, like Neighborhood Watch. They will become involved in the community."

SET deputies, Ealinger said, monitor people on parole and probation. They also identify career criminals in each area.

Ealinger is cautiously optimistic about the program.

"It wouldn't work in every area. When people are fearful of their safety in their own homes you've got a problem," Ealinger said. "I think it can work," he said, of SET's efforts to diffuse dangerous situations in specific locations.

Messer said certain criteria is used to choose deputies for the team. "We pick them based on ability and experience to get the job done. They are motivated."

NASA stumbles

The 1986 Challenger tragedy in which seven crew members lost their lives jolted the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and led to an unprecedented examination of the nation's space agency. It should be no surprise that practically all of the officials in charge of NASA at the time of the Challenger explosion are no longer there.

But their successors have apparently not learned the lessons that Americans thought NASA officials should have learned. And, although no lives have been lost in the recent foul-ups involving the Hubble Space Telescope and the grounded space shuttle fleet, there have been large financial costs and a serious deterioration of public confidence in NASA.

So it was entirely appropriate that President Bush ordered the creation of a panel of outside experts to investigate NASA's operations and make recommendations on how such snafus can be avoided in the future.

While the source of a liquid hydrogen fuel leak that was discovered in a space shuttle on June 29 has still not been pinpointed, NASA did take the correct course in postponing all such flights until the problem is fixed.

But the problem involving the $1.5 billion Hubble space telescope are much more disturbing — primarily because they are problems that NASA now admits could have been detected with a simple test that was not administered.

Basically, the problem is that one of the mirrors in the telescope was cut to an incorrect curvature, making some instruments in the Hubble unworkable. They cannot be fixed from the ground and must await help from a repair shuttle mission not expected to take off until 1993.

The Hubble was manufactured under contracts awarded to Perkin-Elmer Corp., now called the Hughes Danbury Optical Systems, Inc. The firm received the contract despite the fact that its proposal did not include the type of testing program that could have detected the incorrect curvature of the mirror.

Eastman Kodak Co., one of the firms not selected for the Hubble project, had submitted a proposal that did include the testing. Since the Hubble's problems have become evident, NASA officials have been fishing for reasons why they awarded the contract to the company that did not include a complete testing program in its proposal.

But no matter how NASA officials twist and turn, the fact is that the bid specifications they prepared in seeking contracts on the Hubble project should have included a requirement that a complete testing program be part of any proposal.

At first, NASA officials tried to sell the story that such testing would have been prohibitively costly — an idea that seems to pale in light of the costs and potential costs — the foul-up will place on the backs of taxpayers.

Richard Truly, NASA administrator, admitted to a congressional committee that the Hubble flaws could have been detected with an available test that is simple, safe and inexpensive.

Government documents obtained by the Associated Press showed recently that the then-Perkin-Elmer firm provided NASA in 1981 with reversed blueprints for the construction of the Hubble. By the time the mistake was discovered and corrected, a key subcontractor on the project, Composite Optics, Inc., of San Diego, had to be paid additional sums to rebuild parts that had been constructed backward.

The San Diego firm made a profit of more than 63 percent on the rebuilding operation, but the overburdened U.S. taxpayers too; it on the chin.

Certainly the panel of outside experts ordered by President Bush should take a close look at the qualifications of Truly and other top executives of the agency to see if they should keep their jobs.

We supposedly have some of the finest minds in the nation working on these projects. But it is truly mind-boggling to the average citizen that these talented people are drawing their blueprints backward and that important tests to determine the quality of our space bound vehicles are not being made.

At a time when threat of tax increases are surfacing in Washington, D.C., and vital programs are being placed on the chopping block, the United States cannot afford to waste valuable tax dollars because of shoddy work and slipshod management.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. All letters must be signed, include the address of the writer and a daytime telephone number. Letters should be on a single subject and be as brief as possible. Letters are subject to editing.

Our constitutional responsibility

The Constitution of the United States of America is a dynamic document that established the method by which citizens are governed. It not only provided the impetus from which our government became an actuality, but also contained structures for the eventuality of instituting changes.

The fifth Article of the Constitution delineates the amending process which involves federal and states' participation. Amendments to the Constitution command an abundance of time and effort. Congressional approval by a 2/3 vote of both houses and ratification by a vote of 3/4 of the state legislatures is mandated. Concern about citizen voting has precipitated four amendments during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Preoccupation with voting is not surprising, because of the centrality of voting to our form of government.

Reconstruction was in its seventh year when Article XV was ratified. It brought universal male suffrage.

The feminist movement in America held its first convention July 1848 in Seneca Falls and Rochester, New York. The cause espoused by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott was a Bill of Rights for Women. However, seventy-two years elapsed before the 19th amendment was ratified. This bestowed the franchise upon women.

SEMINOLE OPINION

LURLENE SWEETING

The practice of charging poll taxes in many states was a negative affirmation of the importance of voting. This device was employed to deny poor citizens the right to vote. Article XXIV, ratified in 1964, asserted the rights of citizens to vote in primaries and other elections for federal offices, without paying poll taxes.

Article XXVI, ratified in 1971, conferred the franchise upon eligible eighteen-year-old citizens. All these amendments confirm the importance of voting. Voting is a constitutional right and is necessary for the preservation of our government.

During the colonial period there were town criers who kept citizens informed. Consider me a 1990 town crier asking all Seminole citizens age 18 and above to register and vote.

The deadline for registering to vote in the primaries is Monday, August 6, 1990. Exactly eight days away. You may register at the County Voter Registration Office, 2nd floor, Seminole County Services Building, 1101 E. First Street, Sanford. Other options are to call the Supervisor of Elections Office — 321-1130 or consult your local newspaper for other registration sites throughout the County.

Seminole County electors will choose among a plethora of candidates for County Commissioners, School Board Members and Judges. State and federal candidates will also be on the ballot. Primaries eliminate candidates from contention. If there is no decisive winner, then the second primary eliminates one of the two highest contenders for the same position in the same party.

The candidates elected this fall will make crucial decisions affecting the quality of our lives in Seminole County. Our primary responsibility is to make informed choices through careful analysis and evaluation of each candidate's credentials. How each candidate has served this community and what experiences and expertise he/she will bring to the position sought. Rhetoric should not be our guide, rather past performance should be an important determinant.

Fellow voters, the future of Seminole County is in your hands. Exercise your constitutional responsibility. Register now and vote in the primary, Tuesday, September 4, 1990.

Marriage: a four-family affair

BOSTON — The usher greets the woman at the door to the church and inquires politely, "Are you with the bride's families or the groom's families?" It is the plural that stops this guest for a moment at the threshold. The bride's families? The groom's families?

The usher is, of course, accurate in his pin-striped propriety. If the church architecture were as up-to-date as his etiquette, there would be more than two aisles. The pews would be divided into four equal parts.

The young man and woman who are about to be wed were raised in kinship patterns familiar to anthropologists who study our culture of divorce. They each have parents and stepparents, four sets of family friends, a quartet of households and people who care about them. They are loaded down with extras.

Their ceremony this morning doesn't join two families. It takes place at a four-way intersection. This is a scene of earlier accidents. So the woman answers the usher carefully. She is with the bride's mother. He seats her accordingly.

As the music begins, this friend of the bride's mother is conscious not only of the costumes but of the choreography. The ceremony is as detailed, as elaborate, as any religious rite of passage. But the concern here is less for sacred proscriptions than for family. The two had staged their event, carefully avoiding the taboos of hurt feelings.

The bride walked down the aisle by herself because, she said publicly, a modern woman doesn't have to be "given away." Privately, she had worried about choosing between the father who gave her life and the stepfather who raised her.

The groom invited both pairs of parents to stand up for him, couple by couple. He insisted publicly that it was only fair since they had shared custody of his childhood. Privately, he admitted it would be awkward to see mom and dad reunited at his own altar.

Even the peripatetic photographer had gone along, carrying a lineage chart in her equipment bag beside lenses and film. She could be seen keeping track of the family quadrants as well as the f-stops and the guests as well as ASA ratings. There would be, of course, four separate albums.

By the time the ceremony was over, the cake was cut, the dances were danced, the guest found herself on a corner of the lawn, talking briefly with the bride. Scanning the assembly, the young woman said to her mother's friend with palpable relief, "It went well, didn't it?" "Without a hitch," said the guest and the two smiled at each other familiarly.

It occurred to the guest then that the confident and kind woman she had known since childhood had felt like the manager of this event more than the bride. It occurred to her that in other tribes the elders staged ceremonies for their children. But in the culture of divorce, the children were often the ones who held the responsibility.

If she went back through the snapshots of this bride's life, the guest could remember a girl who managed things almost from the moment of her parents' divorce. A six-year-old who packed her own bag for visiting. A 12-year-old who bought a dress for her father's wedding all by herself.

Moreover, every event that brought her parents together had been shadowed with an unavoidable tension. It didn't matter that their divorce was what we call "civilized." Birthdays, graduations, each big day that brought the tribe together, had been something to get through. Without a hitch.

A product of this culture, the bride was now a skilled negotiator: competent, independent. Raised in a background so similar they might have come from the same "old country," her husband had become an accomplished manager, a fine-tuned listener and mediator. They were the success stories, a credit to their own kind.

And yet, like their own kind, they had lost the parental umbrella at an early age. Christenings and grandchildren would go on in the pattern of shared custody, now multiplied by two. Holidays were likely to remain productions, more than celebrations, with rotating families. They would be the ones who kept track of turns, of trees, of turkeys. Yet they felt a loss of family that came with this surplus of families.

The guest counted their blessings. The bride had "handled" divorce well. The groom had muted the open hostilities between his parents long ago. But the new couple didn't want their own children to go through these same rites of passage. This is one thing about the adult children of divorce, the guest noted: They rarely want to pass on the totems and taboos of their own traditions.

So today, a friend of the bride's mother, watching this marriage of two of a kind, silently sends her best wishes. To these people of good and strong will, good luck from the tribe.

Kinship patterns familiar to anthropologists who study our culture of divorce.

Pan Am 103 probe now at a standstill

WASHINGTON — Imagine a sniper gunning down 270 people on any American Main Street, and then disappearing into the night. It isn't a crime that America would forget. Yet make the sniper a terrorist, the weapon a bomb and the setting Pan Am flight 103, and you have a formula for an eminently forgettable crime.

Americans feel powerless in the face of terrorism, and most would rather forget that they could just as easily fall victim to it. The families of the 270 victims feel powerless too, but they can't forget. In their persistence, those families have formed lobbying groups that will not be ignored, although it seems the federal government is doing its damndest. From the moment of the explosion on Dec. 21, 1988, the State Department, and then the Justice Department, have made communication a low priority.

It took the government days to figure out who had been on the plane that went down over Lockerbie, Scotland, so family members could be notified. The ensuing investigation has been so completely shrouded in secrecy that the families rightly fear little is happening.

The sluggish American response starts right at the top. We reported in January that President Bush had made a private pact with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to downplay the Pan Am investigation.

Both had learned that Iran may have paid Palestinian terrorists to do the job. Bush and Thatcher agreed that they were powerless to strike back against Iran, so the information would be best kept under wraps.

The attitude of secrecy is so pervasive that American investigators won't even acknowledge the smallest developments in the case. Last month, top investigators from around the world, representing all the nations with an interest in the Pan Am investigation, gathered outside Washington to compare notes. Justice Department officials first told us that there was no such meeting, but "nothing spectacular was discussed."

The President's Commission on Aviation Security and Terrorism issued its assessment of the Pan Am bombing in May — a strong treatise on America's inability to combat terrorism. The commission has no power to implement its recommendations and the White House is still thinking about them.

Earlier this month in Sweden, 11 Palestinians with ties to the terrorist organization that in all likelihood planned the bombing, were released from jail and kicked out of the country. Swedish authorities said they had gathered all the information they could from the 11 and there wasn't enough evidence to convict any of them. They will disappear into Damascus, Syria, out of the reach of the short arm of U.S. law.

Swedish prosecutors say they would have held on to the Palestinians if American or Scottish authorities wanted them to. But neither country asked.

Among the 11 were Jihad Shaaban and Samar Oufail, both known by West German intelligence to have lived in the apartment in Neuas, West Germany, where authorities, two months before the bombing, found the makings of a bomb like the one that blew up Pan Am 103.

The apartment turned out to be a European hideout for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — General Command, headed by terrorist Ahmed Jibril, the prime suspect in the Pan Am case.

The ensuing investigation has been so completely shrouded in secrecy that the families rightly fear little is happening.

U.S. to preserve Civil War battlefields

From staff and wire reports

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan has announced a campaign to preserve America's historic battlefields through cooperative efforts with states and private groups. Initially, the effort will focus on Civil War battlefields.

While he named 25 battlefields in 14 states as top priority areas to protect from encroaching development, The Olustee battlefield, in Northern Florida, was not mentioned. The battlefield, site of the most important battle fought in Florida, is an official State Park.

Regarding the national sites, the Interior Secretary said, "Let us begin with a clear understanding of the situation. Battlefields, especially Civil War battlefields, are a particularly important part of our national heritage, and they are worthy of our best efforts to protect them."

South

whenever needed. "That's a Northern unit," he said, "but if we go somewhere where there are already too many Northerners, we will take off the blue, put on the gray and represent the South. Nelson already has four volunteers. He wants more. "They have to be at least 16 though," he added, "because they won't let anyone younger participate on the battlefield." Nelson admitted that many who actually fought in the war were much younger than that.

For his next project, Nelson, and his "army", if he can raise one, will be heading to the site of Andersonville prison, in Georgia, October 6 and 7, for a reenactment of the events that occurred there in the summer of 1864 when, of the 32,000 Union prisoners who were confined, 13,000 died within a six month period. It was one of the great tragic events of the war.

There are also efforts underway to have a Civil War encampment set up for the upcoming Pioneer Craft Days, sponsored by the Seminole County Historical Society but scheduled for the same dates as the Andersonville event.

In addition to trying to form the reenactment group, Nelson and his wife are also trying to put together information concerning any skirmishes that may have occurred in the Central Florida area during the war, what life in this area was like during the war, and the name of the regiments represented by local men. The Nelsons would like this information.

One local skirmish in which they are interested, involves five Southern soldiers who were fleeing the Northern armies. They tried to escape up the St. Johns River by being towed by a rope behind a riverboat, from Palatka toward Enterprise, breathing through bamboo shoots. According to reports, one of the men was killed by an alligator near the Wekiva River but the other four made it safely to Enterprise, from where they fled on foot to an old abandoned house near Osteen. Eventually, their hiding place was discovered and the Northerners attacked, killing three of them. The fourth is said to have escaped to the New Smyrna Beach area. The old house, eventually known as the Sauls Mansion, complete with rifle shot embedded in the wood was to be moved to the Volusia County Fairgrounds and set up as a historical museum two dozen years ago, but was burned on the day before the move was to have been made.

The story was originally found in a book in the Sanford Public Library in the early 1960s, but can no longer be located, nor can the story be authenticated. But it is this type of information the Nelsons are trying to obtain.

The Nelsons urge anyone interested in joining the Florida Reenactment Society, or knowing information about regiments or skirmishes, to contact them at their home in Sanford, 323-6766. "It's a great family fun hobby," concluded June Nelson.

Baseball

The league concept is not to be a rival to the Senior Professional Baseball League, but to be an alternative to the leagues that play around the Caribbean during the winter. The concept is to bring together minor league players, veteran Major League players who have been injured or released and who are trying to play their way back into shape, and possibly a couple of retired players.

While the interest in putting a team in Sanford is appreciated by the local powers-that-be, the reaction can best be described as skeptical.

"They're interested in the stadium," said City Manager Frank Falson.

"It's a good stadium and Sanford is a good baseball town. But the stadium is under a long-term lease to Wea Rinker. Any business arrangements concerning the stadium would have to be done through Wea-

Falson said. "I think it's great they're interested and I hope it works out."

So does Rinker, but he feels there are certain problems surrounding the concept of the league.

Specifically, he thinks the league's financial operating scheme would be unappealing to investors and the planned player pool from which the league would draw is unrealistic.

"I don't think that they will be able to do it the way they've got it planned," said Rinker, who had been negotiating with the SPBL to moved the Orlando Juice to the stadium. "I don't think it's going to go over well."

Investors are going to be pretty choosy. If the league is going to have control of the ball parks and concessions like they make it sound, it's not going to be appealing to investors. They're asking investors to show $650,000 in a letter of credit and liquid assets committed for operating expenses. That's tough to do. And for that kind of money, an investor's going to want more control," he said.

If that wrinkle could be worked out, and Rinker does allow that the possibility exists for refinement in league strategy, Rinker feels another wrinkle exists in attracting current Major League players to participate in the WBL, even if they are coming off injuries or subpar years.

New gall bladder surgery performed

By MIKE PFEIFER
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — South Seminole Community Hospital, 555 West State Road 434, has now performed its first new gall bladder surgical technique that has revolutionized the medical procedure.

Dr. Jon Wiese, assisted by Dr. Roy Dement and the medical staff performed the revolutionary new surgery this past week on Bobbie Jurek, a registered nurse from Oviedo who opted for the new surgery as opposed to the traditional Cholecystectomy. The normal technique generally requires a five day stay at a hospital, while the new method can require as little as a 24 hour stay. Such was the case of Jurek, who not only went home 24 hours later, but was able to return to work within four days rather than the two to four week recovery time associated with gall bladder surgery.

The new technique, called Laparoscopic Cholecystectomy is performed by inserting a fiber-optic tube containing a tiny video camera through the navel, with other instruments inserted through a three and one half inch incision near the rib cage. The majority of the operation is then accomplished by physicians guided by two television monitors. The gall bladder may then be completely removed through the small incision. The operation is said to involve less blood loss and less pain as well as the shorter hospital stay which results in reduced overall expense for the patient.

cared for patients recovering from a cholecystectomy and the pain and time off work is something I didn't look forward to when I heard I needed the operation." She added, "There is just no comparison to the laparoscopic procedure. I was up and about, walking and even driving my car within a few days after the surgery."

According to Dr. Wiese, "There are anywhere from 500,000 to 600,000 cholecystectomies performed yearly in the United States alone. An overwhelming majority of these patients would qualify as candidates for this new surgery." In the months ahead, this procedure will gain momentum as more and more hospitals began using the new technique.

As for Bobbie Jurek, she is happy. "Now I can use my paid time off for a vacation instead of recuperation," she said.

Rat results may lead to treatment of scar tissue

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Scientists have succeeded in blocking kidney damage in rats, possibly opening the door to developing new ways to prevent the most common cause of kidney failure in humans, a report said.

Researchers from the University of Utah School of Medicine and the La Jolla Cancer Research Foundation said Wednesday they blocked the formation of kidney-damaging scar tissue in rats.

Similar excess scar tissue caused by an inflammation of the kidney's filtering system, called glomerulonephritis, can occur in humans. More than 200,000 Americans are stricken by glomerulonephritis each year.

She said that McCoy is not outspoken but is involved in work with young people and politicians at the city and county level. He is also actively involved with parents, students and teachers.

Though he is the president of the NAACP Chapter, Clayton was honored "for going above and beyond the call of duty and speaking out on unpopular

I went there were bulldozers."

Tremel's main goal as mayor-for-five-months is the same one that drew him to city government in the first place: regulation of development.

"I think there's a balance between the rights of the property owner and the rights of the citizens," he said. "Responsible developers will abide by the rules — problems arise when they don't know the rules."

Tremel was instrumental in passing Lake Mary's strict development ordinances, which regulate the size of signs, landscaping, and prevent overdevelopment.

Just as he strives for balance in the community, Tremel knows his personal priorities and is careful not to neglect anything. He's been married for seven years to his wife, Vanessa, and spends most of his free time with his son, Taylor, 5.

"For the last five years my major hobby has been my son," he said. "What's most important in life is spending time with your family. After my teaching job and my obligations to the city, there isn't much time for anything else."

Tremel did say that in his rare free moments he enjoys gardening. "I take pride in my tomatoes," he said.

A graduate of the University of Florida, Tremel received his master's degree in history from UCF. He moved to Lake Mary in 1977 and began working at SCC. Tremel has strong feelings about the importance of history, as well as getting a second chance.

"I think that young people who have had problems deserve a new start, and obviously without an education you can't accomplish much," he said of his job at the community college. He teaches mainly young adults who failed to acquire enough high school credits to get their diplomas.

Tremel says he ended up in Lake Mary "by chance" but soon discovered a real community there — a community which he wanted to help preserve.

"I decided that the city had the right idea (about regulating development) but there were no ordinances. You couldn't even require a developer to plant trees then," he said.

Tremel has also committed himself to regulating development outside of Lake Mary. For example, he served on the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council, the Seminole County Expressway Authority, and most recently a committee of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce to plan redevelopment and improvement of U.S. Hwy. 17-92.

Tremel said he had thought of running for Mayor before, but didn't because up until last year the mayor couldn't vote. Now that he has the seat, however, and is up for re-election at the end of this year, the question remains: will he run for mayor next year?

"I do plan on running for re-election — I don't know yet if it will be for county commission or mayor," he said.

issues and taking risks," according to Williams.

She added, the committee chose to honor Clayton because he is highly motivated and for his concern for young people.

The corporate award was given to the business in Seminole County which made the largest financial contribution to the local chapter. Williams declined to comment on the amount of the donation.

"We have honored those people in Seminole County who represent the commitment the NAACP hopes to make to the community," said Williams.

Non-partisan districts return

By VICKI DeBORNER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — "What goes around comes around," said Seminole County Superintendent of Schools Robert Hughes late Friday after hearing about the Supreme Court decision which will return the Palm Beach County school board elections to non-partisan status. "After all the legal comings and goings we're right back where we started: a non-partisan school district."

The ruling was issued at 4:55 p.m. Friday in a case similar to Seminole County's legal battle over its non-partisan status.

School board attorney Ned Julian said in response that tomorrow morning at 9 a.m. he will file motions with Circuit Court Judge Kenneth Leffler asking him to dismiss the law suit filed by William Krull, a Republican running for the District 1 school board seat, Wes Pennington, a former school board candidate, and the Republican Executive Committee. He will also ask Leffler to reverse the emergency ruling that made Seminole County's upcoming elections partisan.

"Our law suit isn't over yet," said Krull on Saturday morning. "I'm surprised that he (Julian) is going to go and open this up again. He should have left well enough alone."

Neither Pennington nor Jim Oeque, chairman of the Republican Executive Committee could be reached for comment.

"Oh my. This is my luck year," said Sandra Goad, county supervisor of elections. She said she will have to wait until Monday when she can speak to county attorney Larry Groot before she will know what her next move should be.

"We've never, ever encountered this before. I don't know what we're going to do next."

According to Julian, the governor will order a special one-day qualifying period in which the candidates would have to qualify as non-partisan. Candidates could qualify for the race who had missed the four-day qualifying earlier this month.

He added that qualifying fees paid by the candidates will have to be returned.

Candidates each paid $1,228.14, or six percent of the annual $20,469 school board salary. For non-partisan candidates, the qualifying fee is four percent ($818.76).

"Hey, it's good for me," Daryl McLain a Republican candidate for the District 5 seat said. "I get some money back and I don't have to worry about a primary."

McLain said that if he does not have to worry about the Sept. 4 primary election or the Oct. 2 run-off he will be able to take a vacation in August and come back refreshed and ready to do battle against the other candidates.

"It gives the voters more time to make up their minds," he added.

Oviedo trio limps down stretch

PALATKA — Down the stretch is when it counts.

Oviedo graduate Robert Stock couldn't deliver in the last five holes of the Don McNab Junior Invitational and, as a result, fell shy of winning his second junior tournament of the summer.

Stock finished at 73-77 for a total of 150 and fifth place. Six of Stock's 14 bogeys occurred in the last five holes of each round.

Typically, Stock started on fire, nailing birdies on the fifth and sixth holes on the first day of the tournament. But bogeys at 10, 11, 16 and 17 slowed Stock and he finished threeover par on the 6,000-yard, par-70 layout.

Oviedo senior Jurrett Brown didn't play very well at the two-day tourney either, posting rounds of 79-81, good for seventh place. Brown had five double bogeys.

Will McClave of Gainesville won the tournament with a score of 142 (73-69). Jon Balmer finished second at 145 while David Elder took fourth with a 145.

Jason Roby, a junior at Oviedo, also competed in the event, shooting a first-round 85 before withdrawing in the second round due to a leg injury.

Stock could take solace in the fact that he won a 10-player shootout at the end of the first day, chipping in from 20 yards in a sudden-death playoff.

Next on tap for the Oviedo trio is the Junior Golf Association of Central Florida's sixth competition of the summer at Ventura Country Club. Call 420-2121 for tee times.

Houston at Magic camp

ORLANDO — Former Seminole Community College basketball player Malcolm Houston has been invited to join the Orlando Magic's free-agent and rookie camp.

Houston, a 6-0 guard, will take the place of Clifford Lett who is still in the Denver Nuggets tryout camp.

Houston, a deadly 3-point shooter, was an all state player while at SCC after averaging over 20 points per game for his career and left as the all-time leading scorer.

S. Seminole off to bad start

LaCROSSE, Wis. — The Southeast Seminole Babe Ruth Baseball League Prep's All-Star team got off to a rough start during its trip to the Stars of Tomorrow Tournament in LaCrosse, Wisconsin.

The plane the team was supposed to fly out of Orlando on was delayed more than three hours by mechanical problems and the team was forced to take another airline.

The team ended up in Rochester, Minnesota and had to take a bus to LaCrosse. They lost their opening game to Iowa City and were going to have to turn right around and play again. The team is scheduled to return to Oviedo on Monday.

The Babe Ruth All-Stars (14 and 15 year olds) did not fair much better in their first as they lost to Sarasota 8-7 on a run in the bottom of the seventh inning. The best two-out-of-three tourney will conclude today.

YOUTH BASKETBALL

SBA Blue Streak defeated

SHEVEPORT, La. — A lethargic Sunshine Basketball Association Blue Streak team lost to Arkansas 48-35 in the Friendship Games of the AAU 15-and-Under Girl's National Basketball Championships.

Host Shreveport, which clobbered the Blue Streak in pool play, was still undefeated and played North Carolina for the Championship.

The Blue Streak trailed by only one point, 24-23, at halftime but injuries to key players Nikki Washington and Tracy Coalter were more than the team could overcome.

"We lacked the physical size and strength to match these other teams," said Coach Nancy Coalter. "but it was a great experience for the girls to see what god team basketball is like. It's a different world here than back in Florida."

The Blue Streak had the youngest team at the tournament and will return its whole team for next season, which should give them a great chance at the title.

Arkansas featured a balanced scoring attack with all 10 of its players scoring points and no one getting over nine.

Despite the injury Washington led the scoring with 11 points, followed by Caria DeLoach and Karen Morris (six points each), Shonda Sparrow (four points) and Coalter, Kristen Forst, Deliah Garcia and Hope Chernak (two points each).

Will Sanford support Pro's

Stadium's Rinker says positively

By TONY BOGGS
 Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD — Could the City of Sanford once again support professional baseball?

Wee Rinker thinks so. Operator of the Florida Baseball School and FBS Academy, Rinker is the sole tenant of Sanford Memorial Stadium, which he has on a long-term lease from the city.

In the past, Rinker has tried to bring different levels of Major and Minor League Baseball to the Stadium, Florida State League, the Orlando Twins, Major League spring training games . . . all have met with middling success.

"Seminole County is a great draw," said Rinker, who has been working out of the Stadium for 16 years. "And now we have Deltona right across the river. There are people, especially senior citizens, who would come to games."

"Sanford alone wouldn't draw, but all of Seminole County and West Volusia County could support a pro baseball team."

There's a reason for discussing Sanford's ability to support a baseball team. Once the spring training home of the New York Giants as well as minor league and countless semi-pro teams, Sanford is under consideration for a franchise in the Winter Baseball League.

"This is an entirely different concept than the Senior Professional Baseball League," said Sal Algieri of the WBL, which is shooting to begin play in December of 1991. "We don't want to be affiliated with or compared to the SPBL."

Instead of relying on the marquee value of retired players, the WBL would be staffed by current minor league players as well as some veteran Major League players trying to play their way back into shape from injuries or subpar seasons. There would also be room for the retired player who could compete at that level.

Basically, the league would be alternative to those played around the Caribbean during the winter. Instead of having to leave the country, a player could come to Florida.

What the WBL administration — which includes former Cincinnati Red Wayne Granger as league president, former Pittsburgh Pirate Bill Madlock as commissioner and Algieri — would like to see is an eight-team, bicoastal alignment. Cities being considered for franchises on Florida's east coast include Sanford, Vero Beach, Melbourne. □ See Support, Page 2B

Oviedo Senior's drop 10-9 thriller

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

DELTONA — "Like the Miller Light commercial says, 'It doesn't get any better than this.'"

With that statement Manager Colin O'Hara summed up his thoughts of Emerald Coast's 10-9, nine-inning victory over Oviedo in the finals of the Senior All-Star Section I Baseball Tournament at Deltona's Van Park.

The victory was Emerald Coast's second of the tournament over Oviedo and advances them to the State Tournament which opens Monday in Boca Raton. All three games were nail biters as Emerald won 6-4 on Tuesday and Oviedo won 4-3 on Thursday to set up the winner-take-all final.

Jeff Morris led off the bottom of the ninth for Emerald Coast and drew a walk. A stolen base and a passed ball moved Morris to third. After David Bennitt popped out to Mike Rugienius at third Morris scored on Chris Rosnick's slow roller to second base.

Oviedo had leads of 5-1 and 9-5 but Emerald Coast kept up the pressure and finally tied the score in the sixth inning.

Todd Davis led off the sixth inning with a walk but was forced at second base by a Joey Wickliffe grounder. Oviedo almost got out of the inning when Rugienius snared a line drive off the bat of Jason O'Hara and fired to first trying to get Wickliffe. But his throw pulled first baseman Chris Wisdom off the bag and Emerald Coast stayed alive.

A pair of walks then loaded the bases before Morris launched a 2-2 pitch off of reliever Drew Jackson for a grand slam just out of the reach of a leaping Curtis Livingston in center field and Emerald Coast had amazingly tied the game.

"They (Emerald Coast) knew we could come back and never gave up," said O'Hara. "We just kept using our run-and-gun style of offense. I like to call it Billy Martin baseball. We hit-and-run, steal bases and bunt a lot to put pressure on the defense."

"It's exciting for the players as well as the fans. We were scared to death of Oviedo and I sure am glad we don't have to face them again."

Emerald Coast, which draws its players from Mary Esther, Destin, Shalimar and Hurlburt Field in the Panhandle, does not get to savor its victory for long however, as it goes straight to Boca Raton from Deltona.

"We don't even get to go home," said O'Hara. "We have a meeting in Boca Sunday night, so we have to press on."

Oviedo got on the board in the top of the first inning when Drew Jackson walked, stole second and scored ahead of Livingston's long home run to center field. The homer was Livingston's second of the tournament.

Emerald Coast got a run back in the bottom of the first inning off Oviedo starting pitcher Livingston when Morris singled, stole second and scored on a double by Bennitt. Emerald Coast missed an opportunity to tie the game when Tony Williams popped an attempted

Drew Jackson shines in Sectional loss for Oviedo

.615 average not enough

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

DELTONA — The Oviedo Senior Little League All-Stars ended their season in a heart-breaking 10-9, nine-inning loss to Emerald Coast in the finals of the Section I Tournament at Deltona Friday night, but Drew Jackson again was one of the bright spots.

Batting lead-off and playing centerfield for Oviedo Jackson had a great tournament. He was 8-13 (.615) at the plate with a home run, nine runs scored, nine stolen bases and six RBI. He also pitched eight and 2/3 innings in two games allowing only two hits and four earned runs while striking out 10.

All this despite playing with a tendonitis problem in the rotator cuff of his throwing arm that had him in the doctor's office for three hours on Tuesday.

"I had a sore shoulder, but it didn't give me any problems in the tournament," said Jackson. Emerald Coast Coach Charles Harris was so impressed with Jackson that he was trying to get him a uniform so he could travel to Boca Raton with his team.

"Why don't you just sneak away with us, I sure would like to have you on our team," said Harris.

But despite his exploits on the baseball field the 15-year-old has another sports passion that is more important to him right now, football.

He led the Oviedo High School freshman team to a 6-1 record last fall and was the starting quarterback after spring drills and the sophomore-to-be relishes the opportunity.

"The opportunity for me in football is great," said Jackson. "We have an unbelievable offensive line coming back and the coaches have shown a lot of confidence in me. They are letting me throw the ball and Leon Lowman and Simon Harper are excellent receivers."

But while his first thought is football he will not be forgetting baseball.

"I'm looking forward to pitching for Coach Ferrell (Oviedo Head Coach Mike) and Coach Norton (assistant coach Eddie)," said Jackson. "I have known Coach Norton for a long time and it would be fun playing for him."

Drew Jackson was one of the leading forces behind the Oviedo Senior All-Stars advance to the finals of the Section I Tournament at Deltona this past week. Jackson will also be the starting quarterback for the Oviedo High School football team this winter.

Getting hooked requires immediate attention

A fish hook embedded in a hand or elsewhere is a painful experience that most fishermen undergo at one time or another. Using treble hooks on a regular basis has left me a reluctant expert on the subject.

Anyone who has had a hook in their flesh realizes that it is a situation that must be dealt with immediately as it is painfully uncomfortable. What should one do in such an emergency? Basically there are only two options: (1) Go immediately to a medical facility, or (2) Handle the situation on the water.

No matter which option you choose, the injured person should be comfortable and all extraneous hardware should be removed from the hook. A pair of wire cutters will easily detach the hook from a lure and a knife will easily separate line attached to a hook.

If the person is to be transported to a doctor, elevate the afflicted area and apply ice to help alleviate the pain. The doctor will administer shots to deaden the pain and the hook will usually be pushed through the flesh past the barb, cut off and then backed out.

A doctor in Cocoa Beach removed a hook from my finger in a split second with only a piece of twine. Having administered the pain shots, he pressed the eye of the hook down against my finger, lining the hook up with the point of entry. He then took some strong twine, placed it around the bend of the hook, and jerked it out backwards very smoothly and neatly. I could hardly believe how soon it was all over. Later on, he told me that he had learned this technique while working in Hawaii.

FISHING

Fish hook removal on the water is not for the faint of heart and should only be attempted if the hook can be pushed through the opposite side. I have done this several times, and those who attempt it must realize that flesh and skin is very tough. A fish hook usually penetrates the flesh with force, but when it is pushed out, there is not the forward momentum that force generates to easily exit the point of the hook.

Instead, it is a matter of tugging and pulling. Once the point of the hook finally comes out the other side, I take a pair of pliers, grip the tip of the point, and pull it out past the barb. Once the barb is exposed, cut the hook off below the barb and back it out.

Once the hook is out, cleanse the area with hydrogen peroxide or some other agent and make certain to examine the hook to see if it is free of rust, etc. A tetanus shot should be administered as soon as possible if the injured person is not up to date.

My bouts with hooks have convinced me that the best solution is not to subject yourself to all of the misery mentioned above, and for that reason I have been especially cautious the past few years. After all, hooks are made for fish, not people.

SHUPE'S SCOOP

Make it a point to use new hooks that are free of rust. It will be much safer for you or a fishing buddy in case of an accidental hooking episode.

FISHING FORECAST

George from George's Bait and Tackle reports that bream and catfish are hot in the river. The I-4 bridge and the nearby railroad trestle are still offering great fishing for small stripers, specks and bream.

If all goes as planned Sanford Memorial Stadium will be the home for one of the eight teams that will start play in the proposed Winter Baseball League in November of 1991.

The league will have a 60-game schedule and hopes to be an alternative to the Caribbean winter baseball leagues. 1,000 fans per game is needed to meet the league's minimum standards.

Daytona Beach and Jacksonville. On the west coast, the WBL is looking at Bradenton, Plant City, Port Charlotte, Ocala, St. Petersburg, Clearwater and Tampa.

"Conceivably, it might work," said Rinker, who also expressed certain misgivings about the concept. "It would have to be done with the cooperation of Major League Baseball."

Rinker's biggest concern with the WBL's proposed operating plan has to do with the way the league wants to handle its financial matters. After seeing some businesses get burned in their dealings with certain Senior Professional Baseball League teams, the WBL wants to have tighter control over every team's cash flow.

"It's going to be different than the SPBL," said Algeri, who was the media director for the Orlando Juice of the SPBL last year. "We're not charging a franchise fee. But every prospective owner will be put through strict investigation by our legal department. We don't want what happened in the SPBL to happen in our league."

According to Algeri, each team will have a salary cap of $565,000. The minimum salary would be $5,000 per month for the proposed three-month season with a maximum of $20,000 a month. The owners will be screened thoroughly and will have to post a letter of credit and show liquid assets of $950,000 to cover operating expenses.

Algeri said that if a team follows the league's proposed ticket scale of $5, $3 and $2 ("We feel that everybody should be able to afford to go to a game," commented Algeri), a team could break even with an average attendance of 1,000 per game (over a 30-game home schedule).

"If a prospective owner passes all the financial tests, then they will meet with our marketing department," said Algeri. "We hope to give out the franchises this December and hold our first draft this February.

"And when we come into a city, we want it to be a good marriage. We don't want to just take, we want to give. We haven't set on a figure, but the city would get a percentage of all ticket sales. We ask that the city work with the team and the team work with the city."

(It's not a major problem, but the City of Sanford would have little to do with the operations of a team at the Stadium. Rinker's lease with the city gives him complete control of what goes on at the Stadium. The WBL would have to deal with him, not the city).

"We want to protect the league, its investors and the businesses associated with us," said Algeri. "The league would have access to the money that an owner puts in for operating costs. That way, if a local business comes to us and says it hasn't been paid by a club for legitimate expenses, the league would pay the business from that club's operating budget."

According to Rinker, this could be a problem.

"I don't think it's going to go over well," said Rinker. "Investors are going to be pretty choosy."

Oviedo

squeeze bunt into an inning ending double play.

Oviedo added three more runs in the top of the second. Scott Hagge walked but was erased on a grounder by Matt Pipkin. A wild pick off attempt moved Pipkin to second from where he scored on a single by Ruglenius. Back-to-back walks to Jay Busse and Drew Jackson loaded the bases.

Jamie Jackson's grounder to shortstop was thrown away at the plate with Ruglenius scoring. Busse was thrown out trying to score on the same play. Livingston followed with a single to score Drew Jackson and Oviedo led 5-1.

Emerald Coast scored three runs in the third inning to cut the Oviedo lead to 5-4. A pair of fielder's choices, a wild pick off attempt and singles by Bennitt and Rosnick accounted for the scoring.

Oviedo came right back with four runs of its own in the top of the fourth inning to take a 9-5 advantage. Busse led off with a towering home run to left. Three walks loaded the bases before a Wisdom single scored Drew Jackson. Hagge then hit a fly to right field that was dropped for an error which allowed Jamie Jackson and Livingston to score.

But that would be all the scoring Oviedo would do as Marshall Harris came in to pitch for Emerald Coast and shut out Oviedo over the next five innings on four singles.

"He (Harris) had not pitched in the tournament," said O'Hara of his right-hander. "But his off speed pitches kept them off balance. Oviedo could hit the heat (fast ball pitchers) but they seemed to have trouble with breaking ball pitchers."

Manager Tommy Ferguson of Oviedo was understandably downcast after the game was in fairly good spirits.

"We almost pulled it off," said Ferguson. "We just couldn't get the big hit late in the game. Everything they hit seemed to find a hole while everything we hit went right at someone. We're proud though, we went farther than most people thought we would anyway."

Providing the offense for Emerald Coast were Morris (home run two singles, four runs scored, four RBI), Bennitt (double, single, two runs scored, two RBI), Rosnick (double, single, three RBI), Wickliffe (single, run scored), Cy Holmes and Davis (one single each) and Chris Kirkland, Jeremy Singleton and Harris (one run scored each).

Doing the damage for Oviedo were Livingston (home run, two singles, two runs scored, three RBI), Ruglenius (two singles, run scored, RBI), Wisdom (two singles, RBI), Busse (home run, run scored, RBI), Pipkin (single, run scored), Drew Jackson (three runs scored) and Jamie Jackson (run scored).

Adcock

But Senecck capped his four hit performance with a triple into the left-center field gap to score Clinger. Senecck later scored the insurance run on a balk.

Adcock kicked off the scoring in the second as Clinger walked and scored on a Senecck single.

Columbia took a 2-1 lead in the third when Jeff Nash drove in Frank Caputo and Quentin Chocon, who both had walked, with a single.

But Adcock came roaring back in the fourth. Clinger, Senecck, W.L. Gracey, Ray Adcock, and Bill Kerns all singled to score four runs for a 5-2 lead.

The lead disappeared quickly, though, as Columbia posted four runs of their own in the fifth. With two outs, Chocon, Nash, and Jim Guerin singled and a pair of Adcock errors helped Columbia regain the lead at 6-5.

Adcock tied the score as Senecck singled and scored on Gracey's base hit.

Adcock played the East Coast All Stars on Saturday in Buddy Lake League play. Adcock currently leads the league with a 14-5 record while East Coast is second at 11-5. The Wes Rinker Florida Baseball School Academy stands in third at 11-6. The F.B.S Academy also played East Coast on Saturday and those two teams meet in a double header on Sunday.

Business

IN BRIEF

Suzuki dealership complaint free

BANFORD — Jimmy Bryan Suzuki, a Sanford-based dealership, which opened its doors in September 1988, received no dealer-caused complaints in 1989. Jimmy Bryan Suzuki was one of 80 Suzuki dealerships nationwide to achieve this distinction.

"The performance of Jimmy Bryan Suzuki indicates that the dealership realizes the increasing importance of customer satisfaction in the automotive business," said Walter Jeger, national service manager for American Suzuki's Automotive Division. "We're extremely pleased to recognize the dealership for this accomplishment."

Listing contest names winners

Winners of a company-wide eight week listing contest have just been announced by Huskey Realty.

Ron Bayles of the Longwood office was runner-up with eight single family listings and receives a trip for two to the Bahamas.

Seminole Industries to be honored

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The area's top manufacturers and largest employers will be honored Friday as the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce names Seminole County's Industry of the Year at the Fourth Annual Industrial Appreciation Awards banquet.

The awards will be presented at the Chamber's August membership luncheon at the Park Suite Hotel in Altamonte Springs.

The Chamber will also name the Up and Comer of the Year and the Industry to Watch.

Beginning in January, the Chamber's awards committee, headed by Bernice Parker of Job Service of Florida, considered more than 140 manufacturers and major employers in Seminole County. From that list, 20 companies were chosen and interviews were conducted with each CEO. The committee investigated the capital investment, growth rate and civic involvement of each company.

The list was pared down to six finalists and after second interviews were conducted with company officers, the three winners were chosen.

The winner of Seminole

County's Industry of the Year will automatically be entered in the statewide contest. That winner will be announced in September during Industry Appreciation Week. The Seminole County winner has won the state title for two out of the last three years. The 1988 winner was Stromberg Carlson.

Also featured at the luncheon will be Pat Williams, president, general manager and the driving force behind the Orlando Magic and the Orlando SunRays.

The luncheon will begin at 11:45 a.m. and is being sponsored by Crown Savings. Reservations are required and can be made by calling 834-4404.

Tax plan would hit wealthy, low-income

WASHINGTON — The first tax hike plan floated by President Bush — increasing the cost of beer and wine and putting new limits on state tax deductions — would take its biggest bite out of lower-income people and the wealthy.

And in both cases, the proposals are likely to spark complaints from states and localities.

Bush has not formally presented the idea, but Republican lawmakers have openly spread word of the plan, which would increase the taxes on a six-pack of beer by about 65 cents, to 81 cents, and the tax on a normal bottle of wine by 73 cents, to 78 cents.

At the same time, the proposal — which supporters say could raise up to $3 billion in the next fiscal year — would limit deductions on state and local taxes to a maximum of $10,000.

Those two ideas would hit people most at vastly different ends of the income scale.

Economy on brink of recession

WASHINGTON — America's economy — struggling to avert a recession, strangled by tight-fisted spending and bumped by a dip in exports — managed only a 1.2 percent gain in the second quarter output of goods and services, the government said.

The Commerce Department also revised down its estimate of growth in the first quarter gross national product to 1.7 percent from 1.9 percent, further stunning economists who had expected a 1.5 percent gain in the second quarter.

"We are teetering on a borderline recession," Norman Robertson, chief economist at Mellon Bank in Pittsburgh, said Friday. He suggested the "soggy report" might force the Federal Reserve to act to slash interest rates further to bolster growth.

Zee Zee goes to jail

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. — Zee Zee Gabor, wearing slacks and a sweatshirt, began her three-day jail term in a city lockup for slapping a Beverly Hills motorcycle officer.

Gabor, 71, carrying a manuscript and a small valise, arrived at the El Segundo Police Station about 1 p.m. Friday, accompanied by her husband, Prince Frederick Von Anhalt, and her attorney.

"She's a very nice lady," said Fern Ruiz, a records supervisor for the tiny jail facility who met the actress as she was checked into her single cell.

The oft-married former glamour queen was convicted in September of slapping Beverly Hills officer Paul Kramer during a routine traffic stop last summer.

Mistrial called in McMartin case

LOS ANGELES — After six years as a defendant in the McMartin Pre-School molestation case — including the nation's longest and costliest criminal trial — Raymond Buckley wants to get a job and become anonymous.

The jury in Buckley's second trial told the judge Friday that it was hopelessly deadlocked on all counts, forcing a mistrial. Prosecutors said Buckley, after two trials, would not be tried again on the child molestation charges.

Governor names nominee

Forbes awaits confirmation

By VICKI BOGGS
Herald staff writer

CASSELBERRY — Clarence Forbes, 67, has been nominated by the governor to replace Dr. Julius Ringling on the Seminole Community College Board of Trustees.

Confirmation hearings for the position, which a spokesman for the governor calls, "a formality," will be held on Aug. 25.

If appointed, Forbes will serve until 1994.

Forbes, a Casselberry resident since Oct. 1985, is a retired civil servant, having spent 18 years in the U.S. General Accounting Office. At his retirement in 1985, he was the regional manager for the U.S.G.A.O. in New York.

He is also a retired lieutenant colonel in the army.

"I'm looking forward, if I'm

Clarence Forbes

appointed, to working on the SCC Board of Trustees," Forbes said. "I've always liked to do things for young people."

Both before and after his retirement, Forbes has been involved in drug education in the schools and in treatment centers. He has also been involved in teaching people to read. Most recently he has worked with the SCC literacy program.

"I think SCC has a great program in that area and most of their other programs are of the highest quality as well," he said.

Forbes said he is not going to make any plans for how he will contribute to the operation of the Board of Trustees until he is appointed formally.

"They tell me that it's just a formality, but until I'm confirmed, I'm going to continue with what I'm doing now," he said.

Forbes said he felt his background in both government work and in accounting qualified him to help SCC as a member of the board of trustees if he is confirmed next month.

"I hope I will be given the opportunity, and I am honored the governor nominated me," he said.

Will new court redefine activism?

By JOSEPH MARAWARY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Ever since Chief Justice Earl Warren led the Supreme Court on an aggressive liberal drive beginning in the 1950s, political conservatives have railed against "judicial activism." That may be about to change — and it wouldn't be the first time.

For more than 30 years, a favorite rallying cry of the political right has been that the high court has abandoned its proper role. Instead of merely interpreting the law, they have argued, the justices have too often created new laws — in effect "legislating from the bench."

It was precisely that type of activism, conservatives have complained, that was behind the 1973 Roe vs. Wade opinion guaranteeing a woman's right to abortion.

But now that President Bush has nominated David Souter to replace retiring liberal Justice William Brennan and conservatives may be about to enjoy their biggest majority on the

"We have lived through an era in which an activist court has been by and large a liberal court."

—Professor A.E. Dick Howard

court in years, some legal analysts say the traditional arguments may be up for review.

Political conservatives, hoping that the new high court will now hand down decisions solidly in their favor, may suddenly find themselves wanting the justices to move aggressively in that direction.

At the same time, political liberals hoping to preserve the Warren Court's legacy may now be looking for cautious judges who will not try to tear apart precedents.

Although more than a generation of Americans have come to equate judicial activism with liberalism, constitutional experts say it wasn't always that way.

"We have lived through an era in which an activist court has been by and large a liberal court, so it's easy to slip into a belief that activism equals liberalism," noted University of Virginia law professor A.E. Dick Howard.

"It is the custom of dissenters to accuse the majority of judicial activism," he added. "In the early part of this century it was the liberals who hurled the charges of judicial activism at the conservatives."

Conservative legal scholar Bruce Fein contends there is a dramatic difference between conservative politicians and conservative legal experts and argues that can cause confusion with the public.

"Political conservatives basically don't understand the Constitution. They just want results," noted Fein. "Political conservatives will do anything, so long as the results are good."

"Conservatives weren't always against activism," added Fein.

France hopes pardon leads to release

UPI Report

PARIS — France hopes the pardons of five pro-Iranians imprisoned for a decade for terrorism will lead to the release of Western hostages still held in the Middle East. Foreign Minister Roland Dumas said Saturday.

On the heels of those pardons there were reports in Lebanon that West Germany will soon release two convicted terrorists, apparently to gain the release of two German relief workers being held by the brother of one of them.

The pardon for terrorist Anis Naccache and four accomplices unleashed a storm of protest from the right and left when it was issued Friday by President Francois Mitterrand.

Dumas said he hoped the release of Naccache would lead to a "lowering of tension in the (Middle East) region and I also hope — we are working on it — the release of all Western hostages still being held."

Dumas said the clemency was aimed at "putting an end to the cycle of violence and tension" in Franco-Iranian relations.

There are 18 Western hostages being held in the Middle East, six of them American.

The foreign minister did not comment on widely reported allegations that Naccache's freedom was part of a deal for the release of French hostages held by a pro-Iranian group in Lebanon in 1988.

Former Prime Minister Jacques Chirac, who headed a conservative government in power in 1988, has denied there was a secret deal to free Naccache. Dumas said there had been no deals negotiated since the 1988 government change.

"There have never been any negotiations on our behalf with hostage takers," Dumas said.

Romance reigns at convention

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Romance reigns, a compilation of facts showed Saturday.

Romance writers crank out 100 new novels each month to feed a $1 billion paperback market supported by some 200 million women readers worldwide, according to figures presented at the 10th annual Romance Writers of America convention.

A highlight for fans Saturday was an autograph session with their favorite heart-throb authors at the Hyatt Regency hotel convention site in downtown San Francisco. Other activities included writing workshops and meetings on publishing goals by some 600 participating novelists and aspiring authors.

Among those present was award-winning writer Nora Roberts, the first author inducted into the Romance Writer's of America Hall of Fame, who just published "Public Secrets" for Bantam Books.

With 23 million books in print — 70 titles — the Maryland writer, who lives in the rural hills near the Antietam battle advice to fledgling writers.

"There are a lot of talented people that just don't have the confidence to begin," said Roberts. "I try to give them a little of that confidence and some knowledge to point them in the right direction."

Figures compiled by Bantam Books gave the following facts about romance genre readers, who are predominantly women:

- 60 percent own their own homes.
- 59 percent are employed.
- 70 percent are married.
- 64 percent are between the ages of 16 and 45, with the primary readership being between the ages of 25 and 49.
- 16.3 percent hold a college degree.
- 58 percent support the Equal Rights Amendment.

Characteristics that Bantam said readers like to see in a romance novel are mixed hero/heroine point of view; mature humor; a fairly complicated plot; several love scenes and detailed sexual descriptions. The average reader, said Bantam, spends up to $30 a month on romance books.

IN BRIEF

Eagle Scout Kevin Smith

Scout receives highest rank

Kevin Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Smith, Altamonte Springs, recently received the Boy Scout's highest rank: Eagle. The Eagle ceremony was the result of many months of planning and work by Kevin and his fellow scouts of BSA Troop 7. Kevin selected the Environmental Center for the site of his project because "the projects there seemed to be challenging, but within my reach, and beneficial to the community. I remembered how much fun I had going to the center and learning about nature when I was in elementary school, and I wanted to make it possible for other students to have the same opportunity I did."

Beginning last summer, work at the Environmental Center, a joint project of the Seminole County School District and Seminole County government, began as the scouts worked to clear campsites to be used by students in the center's overnight camping program. In the process, bald cypress trees were identified to be used at the bald cypress tree study site, and safety hazards were identified and highlighted with fluorescent markings. Ten fellow scouts and seven adults worked 200 hours to complete the project with Kevin.

Eagle Scout applicants are required to demonstrate leadership skills, using resources within the community to complete the project. Kevin received generous donations from Parker Lumber in Maitland and Prestige Lumber and Supplies in Longwood.

Kevin is a senior at Lyman High School and is an active member of First Presbyterian Church in Maitland.

Family wins grand prize

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Morelli and sons, Michael and Matthew, Longwood, were the recent grand prize winners of the "Family Double Dare" television game show.

The game pits two teams, each a family of four, against each other in a battle for cash and prizes.

To qualify, families must make up a skit and pass a physical challenge for an audition. The Morelli's successfully completed the challenge, and went on to win the game which gave them cash, prizes and a brand new automobile.

Mike works for Citibank Florida, Data Operations in Maitland. Vicki is with the Public Relations Office for AT&T in Maitland. Michael, 14, will be attending Bishop Moore High School. Matthew, 11, attends All Souls Catholic School in Sanford.

Kids adopt special grandmas

SANFORD — The Foster Grandparent Program has been in service for over 20 years. FGP involves approximately 30,000 volunteers nationwide plus Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Men and women age 60 and over volunteer their time and love to nearly 70,000 children through 245 projects.

Foster grandparents receive 40 hours of pre-service orientation and training with continuous in-service training. Volunteers receive modest, tax-free stipends to help defray the cost of volunteering. They also receive a transportation allowance.

Seminole County is involved in the FGP, however, this story is about three unsung heroines who give their love, time and patience to the emotionally mentally handicapped (EMH), profoundly mentally handicapped (PMH), trainable mentally handicapped (TMH), slow learning disability (SLD), and autistic children.

Ruby King is grandma to seven handicapped children during the summer program at Longwood Elementary School. This foster grandparent has in excess of 200 hours of service with the children she helps. Ruby is a Sanford resident who also works at Midway Elementary during the school year.

The teacher in charge of Ruby's classroom is Mary Thurston who says of Ruby, "I'd be lost without her. Every Tuesday and Thursday on our field trips to the pool, grandma gets into the water with the kids. They love her." Thurston also has a teacher's assistant, Marcy Bennett.

Every morning in the classroom, the youngsters have breakfast and everyone takes a turn making toast for the group.

On a recent field trip to a local

Grandma Ruby King helps Phillip Raulerson, 12, butter toast for his fellow students at Longwood Elementary School.

Grandma Adell Oliver assists Becky, a student in the Foster Grandparent Program at Midway Elementary, fish in Lake Monroe.

Laundromat, the children learned how to wash and dry their own clothes. They had been told to save their laundry at home for one week. As each child manipulated the machines, the event was recorded on video by Thurston. Later, they attentively viewed the video. The entire group thoroughly enjoyed seeing themselves on the TV monitor in their classroom.

During the daily activities, Grandma helps the kids learn to function in their world today and in society tomorrow.

Most rewarding to Ruby is the precious sight of TMH kids functioning and remembering how to make toast, use a computer, match items on a numbers chart and to recognize signs in the community by use of functional flash cards.

The mechanic is unusual lady

By BEVERLY BEST
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — In today's modern world there isn't too much a woman hasn't got involved in. Unlike years ago, women are being accepted in almost every professional field.

There are lady doctors, lady dentists, lady lawyers.

What about the navigation field?

Certainly! Amelia Earhart, the first woman to cross the Atlantic, was a lady pilot. And Bequeta Roebuck is a lady aircraft mechanic.

If there is to be a sign to be hung at the Central Florida Air Maintenance Building, at the Sanford Airport, it should read "The mechanic is a lady". Recently hired as crew member in the maintenance department, Roebuck has been accepted as just another mechanic, gender unnoticed.

"Hey, equal rights," says joint worker and mentor, Pete Ibrisky, when asked how he felt about Roebuck being the only female mechanic at the airfield.

He speaks highly of Roebuck's working

Fly the Friendly City's sky with aviator Savage

SANFORD — With four flight instructors and six aircraft, Savage Aviation, 2965 Carrier Avenue, at the Sanford Regional Airport, doesn't sound like the largest flight school in town, and for that matter, it isn't. But Tom Savage, who just turned 65, is rightfully proud of his accomplishments.

In addition to running a ground and flight school, Savage also serves as a Designated Federal Aviation Authority Pilot Examiner, Written Test Examiner, and Commercial Instrument Rating Examiner.

"Since November 14 of last year," said Savage, "I've given 135 flight tests and 157 written tests." Many private pilots and student pilots in the Sanford area attest to his abilities. Don Knight, owner of Knight's Shoe store in

Dream fulfilled for new citizen

Editor's note: The Herald received this letter from the daughters of Rita Bell, a native of England, who has lived in Sanford since 1971. Last week, she became an American citizen. They asked us to share the letter with our readers.

A wonderful event happened in our family recently that you might find newsworthy. My mother, Rita Bell, has lived in Sanford since 1971, but last week she fulfilled a dream of hers and became a United States citizen!

Born in Nottingham, England in 1932, she came to the United States after marrying in 1954. She describes her long trip on the Queen Elizabeth ship as "very rocky."

As a young woman in England, she danced professionally with a dance troupe called the "Follderoles." We have photo albums filled with her shows and experiences. She also taught dance in

I never plucked up the courage before, but it was so important to me that one day I thought I'd just do it!

- Rita Bell

Pennsylvania for some time after she came to the States.

She has always loved this country but was frightened of the test she had to take to become a citizen. Finally, after much study, my sister and I drove her to Tampa in April where she took and passed her test. She probably knows more about our country than we do!

But the best part was the beautiful ceremony in Orlando on July 16th. There were 71 people from all over the world that were sworn in as U.S. citizens. There was a color guard, a guest speaker and all of the new citizens saving their oath together as new citizens of the United States. It was very emotional and quite powerful, and it made us very grateful for what we often take for granted: being a citizen of the greatest country on Earth without having to take a test!

As a special gift to my mother, we called Senator Connie Mack and purchased a U.S. flag. The flag was special in the respect that it was flown over the capitol building in Washington on the day she was sworn in and came with a certificate stating when it was flown and for the purpose of Rita Bell becoming a citizen. We presented the flag to her along with the certificate and an autographed picture of Connie Mack at our church service July 22. Our Pastor, Jeff Krall of New Life Assembly, also sent her flowers on behalf of the church.

Many of us were glad to know and honor this woman and congratulate her on becoming a citizen.

WEDDINGS

Here's inside scoop on guide

Mr. and Mrs. Roger William Preble

Michelle Skiba weds in Sanford ceremony

SANFORD — Michelle Doreen Skiba and Roger William Preble are announcing their marriage today. The wedding was an event of June 2, 1990 at First Christian Church, Sanford. Rev. S. Edward Johnson performed the candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Skiba of Sanford, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Florence Preble and the late Mr. William Preble, Glendale, Arizona.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white, cathedral-length, satin gown with sweetheart neckline. The Queen Anne bodice was handbeaded with lace appliques of seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Leg-of-mutton sleeves were accented with matching lace and pearls. The skirt featured lace appliques, pearls, sequins, and a scalloped lace hemline. Her pearl-beaded crown held the two-tier fingertip illusion veil. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and blue delphiniums decorated with strings of pearls.

Christine Sweet of Sanford attended the bride as maid of honor. Matron of honor was Renee Keith, Sanford. Bridesmaid was Debbie Poore, also from Sanford. They wore identical twilight satin, floor-length, off-the-shoulder gowns with puffed sleeves and full skirts. They wore matching comb headpieces and carried bouquets of blue and white delphiniums with twilight streamers.

Ron Tarkowski, El Paso, Texas, served the groom as best man. Ushers were Aaron Keith of Sanford and Greg Dowell, Kansas City, Missouri.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Police Benevolent Association building in Sanford. Hostesses were Lorraine Ryan and Shawn Peterson.

After a wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec, Canada, the newlyweds are making their home in Bennington, Vermont. The bridegroom is employed by Stromberg-Carlson.

Mrs. Matthew David Hanes

Tammy Shoemaker weds in Sanford ceremony

SANFORD — Tammy Lynn Shoemaker and Matthew David Hanes are announcing their marriage today. The wedding was an event of July 7, 1990 at First United Methodist Church, Sanford. Rev. William S. McLoud performed the double-ring ceremony at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Shoemaker, Jr. of Sanford and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Hanes, Franklin, Ohio.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows a white slipper satin gown which featured a sweetheart neckline heavily embellished with seed pearls and sequins. The long Gibson sleeves fell to a point on her hand. The full satin skirt gently cascaded into a scalloped, cathedral-length train, which was bordered with lace and pearls. Larger beaded appliques adorned the skirt of the wedding gown. Her fingertip veil was held by a band of seed pearls and silk flowers. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and white miniature carnations lined with English ivy and white lace streamers.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Corso, attended the bride as Matron of Honor. She wore a teal satin, floor-length gown with shirred sleeves and natural waistline. Her teal-colored hairpiece of silk flowers and pearls was held in place by a comb worn on the right side. Her colonial bouquet was a mixture of spring-colored daisies, miniature carnations and white lace ribbon.

Bridesmaids were Lisa Greene Temple, Karen P. Gibby and Beverly Kremer. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

The groom's father, Donald M. Hanes, served the bridegroom as best man. Groomsmen were Luke Hanes, Robert Gray, Carmine Picciano and Chris Curtin.

A reception followed the ceremony at Timacuan Country Club, Lake Mary. Mrs. Jack Greene served as hostess at the church and was guest-book attendant.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas and Paradise Island, the newlyweds are making their home in Sanford.

Balloons drifted from the heaven-high ceiling and confetti rained over the balcony at the Heathrow home of Glenn and Shan Arnette last week. The couple hosted a cocktail reception for over 100 friends and business associates to celebrate the long awaited publication of "The Insiders' Guide to Greater Orlando," a labor of love for the Arnettes and Louis Gebbia, in charge of distribution, as well as authors Catharine Coward and Cynthia Hale Gross.

Glenn said the book was three years in the making and will serve as a guide to the community's economic life.

"It's a romance with Orlando's brightest and best," Glenn said.

Glenn promised an annual update of the "most comprehensive book ever written about Central Florida."

Louis said pre-sales of the first edition have been excellent, and distribution is international.

Available locally at Walden-Books, B. Dalton, Canterbury, Orange News, Eckerd Drugs, Walgreens, and the Navy base. Louis said: "You can buy it in London too."

The book is an extensively researched, finely detailed account of everything imaginable pertinent to Central Florida.

Catharine, who is the Publications Editor for the Greater Orlando Chamber of Commerce, also has worked in public relations for area colleges and hospitals.

Cynthia has lived all over the world and now writes for numerous publications. She has produced 19 educational tabloids.

Shan was a radiant hostess, who along with Ann Gebbia, prepared the elegant food. She said there is nothing she likes better than a house full of people.

"We love sharing our home. It makes us happy for everyone to have a good time," she said.

Everyone did.

Marianne Bassile explained, "It's always fun at Glenn and Shan's."

Chris Saunders summed up the gala event.

"Shan and Glenn are unquestionably people of good taste," he said.

Rotary plants trees
Lake Mary Rotary Club members didn't sleep late last Saturday. They were too busy enhancing the city's image as the arbor city. They dug in the dirt, watered, hauled, and planted new trees at Lake Mary Elementary School, under the supervision of Principal Bev Perrault.

Happy birthday, Paulee!

Lake Mary Senior activist Paulee Stevens celebrated her birthday last week, with a little help from her friends.

Alta Ombres, spokesman for Lake Mary Seniors, said between 35 and 40 people gathered to honor Paulee.

"She was totally surprised," Alta said. "We had a cake with three candles, balloons, and we all sang."

When asked to divulge Paulee's age, Alta declined.

"I wouldn't dare!" she said. "Let's just say she's young at heart."

Many new seniors attended the party, which was held in conjunction with the weekly seniors' gathering.

Tuesday is Seniors' Day in Lake Mary. Everyone over 55 is invited to the center at 158 N. Country Club Rd.

Lake Mary Elementary School Principal Bev Perrault shows Rotarian Ernie Cavallaro where to plant trees. Ernie owes the Rotary kitty $1 for appearing in the newspaper.

Postcards give students window to world

DEAR READERS: It all began when some fourth-through sixth-grade special-education students from Santa Maria, Calif., wrote me a letter asking my readers to please send picture postcards and state their occupations.

I published their request, assuring them that my readers were the nicest people in the world. Nine weeks later, I received this letter from Donna Eschen — their teacher:

DEAR ABBY: We have been overwhelmed with postcards and gifts from your readers! So far, more than 40,000 pieces of mail have been received! All seven continents are represented. Picture postcards from foreign countries from Zimbabwe to Antarctica to Iceland to New Zealand arrived. The generosity of your readers is unbelievable!

A King's cake arrived from New Orleans, and Nancy and Fred Hoffman sent a chunk of the Berlin Wall! The mail is still arriving: a postcard from Clint Eastwood, and gift certificates for the entire class for El Pollo Loco. A grandfather from Almonte, Ontario, Canada, bet the kids $25 they couldn't find his little town on the map. (He lost — and sent the money.) We've papered our classroom ceiling-to-floor with picture postcards from all over the world!

We have tallied more than 300 occupations, including bear hunter, alligator wrestler, coffee taster, priest, nun, grave digger, bounty hunter, shepherd, newspaper carrier and New York cabdriver.

The children love to read. That's what this project was all about — improving their literacy, fostering a love of reading, and gaining greater knowledge of geography and occupations.

The local postmaster came to tell the children how the mail works.

Four total strangers by the name of "Eschen" wrote, wondering if we could be related. And the advice most people wanted to convey was: "Stay in school, get an education, and don't do drugs!"

As I write this, an autographed picture just arrived from President Bush!

Thanks for making this project such an exciting and memorable one. You were right, Abby.

ENGAGEMENT

Christina DiBartolo and Billy Ray Lee Jr.

DiBartolo-Lee

SANFORD — Ms. Patricia DiBartolo of Sanford, announces the engagement of her daughter, Christina Marie DiBartolo to Billy Ray Lee Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Lee Sr., of Sanford.

Born in Sanford, the bride-elect is the maternal granddaughter of Mrs. Louise Tealo and the late Mr. Andrew Tealo, of Lake Mary, and the paternal granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Pacini of Monterey, Calif., and Victor DeBartolo of Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss DiBartolo is a 1980 graduate of Seminole High School where she was a member of the varsity cheerleaders and a cross country track runner. In 1985, she received a bachelor of arts degree in allied legal services from the University of Central Florida, Orlando. She is employed as a paralegal for the law firm of Brown, Killgore and Pearlman, P.A.

Her fiancé was born in Sanford and graduated in 1977 from Seminole High School, Sanford, where he was a member of the soccer team. He graduated in 1981 from the University of Central Florida, Orlando, with a bachelor of arts degree in criminal justice. He is presently employed as an investigator with the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, Sanford.

The wedding will be an event on Nov. 24, 1990, at 10 a.m. in the Church of the Nativity, Lake Mary.

Legion sponsors young leaders

SANFORD — Sanford American Legion Post 53 and Ladies Auxiliary recently sponsored area teens to Girls State and Boys State.

Sue Hill, chaplain of the auxiliary and Girls State Chairman, said the Sanford ladies are the only auxiliary to sponsor teens.

"We send two a year, hopefully three next year," Hill said of the program that recognizes students who are juniors in high school and who exhibit high morals, good character and leadership.

About 300 girls attend from across the state.

"We ask them if they will pledge the flag, too. They're nominated also for their interest in government," Hill said.

Girls usually precede the boys in attending the week long conference.

During the seminar, students actually nominate and elect all government officials to preside over the state that is set up just like Florida.

"They elect a governor, commissioners, mayors, right on down to the postmistress," Hill said.

High school counselors help select the students who attend the conferences.

"We rely on the counselors," Hill said.

Two outstanding girls from state are chosen to attend the national conference in Washington D.C.

Attending Girls State from Seminole High School were: Heather Pegram and Hope Weekley.

Attending Boys State from Seminole High School were: Christopher Lemon, William Litton and Joseph Govecek III. From Lake Mary High School, Matthew Bennett, Andrew Varnon and Scott Davidson attended.

Summer birthdays celebrated in style

Mt. Sinai M.B.C. Sunday, July 22, observed Rev. Louis Harrington's 88th birthday. He is one of the founders of this church. He is a retired landscaper. In 1980, he was called to the ministry. He served as superintendent of Congress No. 1 and his church for 35 years or more.

The catered dinner consisted of green beans, collard greens, potatoes, salad and baked or fried chicken. Birthday cake was enjoyed by all.

Rev. Harrington is the proud father of five children: Edward, son; daughters Susie and Bernice, Sanford; Ruby Hendrick, Winter Park; and Bobbie A. Columbia, Ga. Rev. Harrington has 11 grandchildren and 20 great grandchildren. Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. W.C. Haywood, Winter Haven; Mrs. Nicola Elliot, Portsmouth, Virginia; Lt. Jg Ingrid Phillip, USS Yellowstone, Norfolk, Virginia; and Rev. James Lynn, Orlando.

Hosts for the occasion, Mt. Sinai M.B.C. and Bethel Baptist Church, Winter Park. Mrs. Jackie Walton was coordinator for the occasion.

She's 95 years young
The Happy Birthday celebration was for Rosa Lee Heath who was born in Georgia, July 24, 1895. Mom Rosa as she is called has outlived three husbands, and her only living daughter, who lives with her, is Lillie Mae Collins. Rosa Lee celebrated her birthday with a big birthday cake and all the trimmings for a birthday dinner at her daughter's home where five of her close friends and family gathered. Rosa Lee boasts about her 11 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren, and three great-great-grandchildren. Many more happy natal days to the honoree.

Celebrate with friends
This morning at Trinity United Methodist Church, 528 Sanford Avenue, the community is invited to help celebrate Family and Friends Day at the 11 a.m.

Grandma

Continued from Page 1C ended now. In the fall, the children that Ruby has befriended will return to Keith Elementary School on Tuskawilla Road in Winter Springs and Grandma will return to Midway Elementary School on Jitway Avenue in Sanford.

The love shared between Grandma and the children lasts beyond the emotional parting at the end of every season.

Another grandma is Sallie Wight, a Sanford resident. Sallie is a foster grandparent at Goldsboro Elementary School, Sanford, for the summer program. She has also worked in activities at Idylwild Elementary School in Sanford. This is Sallie's third year in the FGP. Her classroom teacher is Anne Young who also teaches at Seminole High School.

Young says Sallie, "I don't know what I would do without my foster grandparent. Grandma is wonderful with the kids."

Sallie has been a widow for three years and joined the FGP after her husband died. She states, "We foster grandparents do not think that we are useless or a burden to anyone. We are working to fulfill our needs and do our best to help others. In return we are helping ourselves by keeping busy. Having time on our hands is boring and serving is gratifying. We are loved and show patience at all times."

Sallie will also miss her gang now that the summer program has ended.

"It's hard leaving the kids. We become close friends," she says, displaying a genuine fondness for her foster grandchildren.

FGP's third grandma, Adell Oliver, a Sanford resident, has been in the program for four years. She has served at Midway Elementary School for two years.

Adell recently enjoyed the final field trip at Fort Mellon Park at the small fish pond and picnic area. The cement table near the pond was laden with good things to eat for all of the kids. Some were in wheelchairs. Others, unable to manipulate a fishing pole, watched as Grandma taught the kids to catch fish. She caught two and a student caught one. Those who could, romped, played and fished. There were eight adults and twelve kids enjoying a sunny morning and picnic on the lakefront.

Grandma Susan Williams missed the outing due to illness. Teachers who work with the FGP at Midway are: Patty Hitchman, Jessica Jackson, Yvonne Johnson and Assistant Teacher Latasha.

Adell obviously loves being a foster grandparent and says, "I just love to do it and love the kids. It keeps me from sitting around. I have several grandchildren of my own also."

The children and adults all rode to the park in a Seminole County School bus driven by Geraldine Kelly.

Grandma Adell who has something nice to say about everyone, said, "The bus driver is the nicest person. She is so patient and helps a lot with the kids. She even helps feed them."

Kelly was standing on the bank in front of the kids in wheelchairs fishing for them as they couldn't do it themselves.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
July 29, 1990

Conditions both financially and careerwise look more encouraging for you in the year ahead than they have for quite awhile. There will be numerous opportunities on which you can capitalize, so always fire your best shot.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) That which you hope to accomplish today might not be achieved if you lack cooperation and support from others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a big difference today between having fixity of purpose or merely having a closed mind. Don't turn a deaf ear to the suggestions of people who want to help you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) When assessing financial matters today your judgment might be more optimistic than rational. Don't kid yourself about things that should be realistically evaluated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An objective you hope would be rather easy to achieve today might be more difficult than anticipated. However, it can still be done if you're resourceful and determined.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be very careful today not to let your ego get in the way and cause you to pretend to be knowledgeable about a subject about which you know little.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A well-intentioned friend may not be the right person with whom to discuss business matters today, because this person will tell you what you want to hear instead of giving you straight answers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something of significance can be achieved today, but not owing to the assistance of strong allies, but rather in spite of them. Try to work without partners.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is one of those days when you might make undesirable tasks even more unpleasant by doing them the hard way. Try to plan what you intend to do in advance.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Demands on your purse could be a bit more cumbersome than you anticipated today. Don't worsen matters by being extravagant where nonessentials are concerned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to avoid involvements today that bring you into close contact with people who are difficult and disagreeable. You are not apt to have the tolerance required to deal with them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In might peak over the horizon to cause you to switch targets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you should have two powerful attributes going for you. They are your optimism and your practicality which you will be able to mold into an effective force for something productive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A situation over which you have small influence can still be utilized to your advantage today. Instead of trying to call the shots, be extra supportive of the one who does.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your greatest benefits today are likely to come from involvements you have with friends with whom you share a mutual interest. However, the gains you derive will not be of a material nature.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be afraid to elevate your sights a bit at this time where your ambitious aims are concerned. Conditions are very favorable for pulling off something big.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Spare no efforts today in trying to create good will with people with whom you have commercial arrangements pending. The proper type of PR investments will yield dividends.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions in general are a trifle unusual today and at first glance it might appear you are luckier for another than you are for yourself. In the final analysis, the reverse may be true.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might have a chance today to take a relatively small opportunity and transform it into something meaningful. However, it won't be accomplished unaided.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There could be a market today for something you have or do that does not provide your primary source of income. Don't be greedy, but on the other hand, don't give away the store for free.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lady Luck will be a willing ally today in developments where you are expending your best efforts. Don't let difficult endeavors intimidate you. Roll up your sleeves and give it your all.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

What conclusion does a defender draw when the opponents quickly bid three no-trump without even a whisper of a search for a possible major-suit fit? The answer is that their weakness will likely be in a major suit. So West attacked spades in today's deal. West reasoned that his side was dealt two top tricks in diamonds and that the best chance for success would be to find East with length and strength in spades. There was a flaw in this reasoning. If South's jump to three no-trump showed 15 or more high-card points, East's strength would be very limited. In that case West's best chance would be to hope that the opponents had erred by settling in no-trump and that East held five or more diamonds. The king of diamonds led would be a winner, provided West continued with the ace and the 10. But a low diamond away from the A-10 after that opening lead would block the suit. There is a happy ending to this story. Although West's spade opening lead against the no-trump game let declarer make 12 tricks, the game was team-of-four, and defender West's teammates were still to be heard from. In the other room, in a more scientific bidding sequence, North reached six clubs, a makable contract as long as the defenders' trumps divided 3-2. Voila! A big pickup for the team even after West's inept choice of opening lead against three no-trump.

Mechanic

abilities, commenting that she does an excellent job of "opening, closing and lubricating the aircraft."

He displays some of her work as they discuss a faulty wire that was replaced on a Piper 325 she was working on.

Thirsky, and Roebuck explain the responsibilities of an aircraft mechanic which, "are tremendous."

"When a car breaks down, you can pull it over to the side of the road, but not so with an airplane," explains Roebuck.

There is less qualifying to be an auto mechanic, Roebuck explains. If something goes wrong, the aircraft mechanic is liable. It is a limited field because of the many restrictions that exist, Roebuck continues. The pay is also less than an auto mechanic, she says.

Thirsky says if aircraft mechanics "mess up," they are immediately reprimanded.

"They can face up to ten years in prison and a $25,000 fine," Thirsky says with a serious tone.

It is obvious that Roebuck takes her job seriously. She labels herself a tomboy since childhood. She is the oldest of five children, three of whom were boys. She also adds that she had all boy cousins, which helped contribute to her inquisitiveness about mechanics. It was nothing for her to take a car motor apart.

She married young and had four children, Teri, 17; Shelly, 15; Billy, 11; and Berry, who will be seven in September.

The only job Roebuck knew was homemaking. Because she knew how to do housework, she decided to earn extra money by doing industrial cleaning.

Two years ago, Roebuck faced a dilemma that is faced by a countless number of other women: a divorce, and no job or job training. She was now considered a "displaced homemaker" in society.

Roebuck says she had always been intrigued with aircraft. Still living in Oklahoma City, she enrolled at Metro Tech Aviation Career Center in Oklahoma City. The course took 13 months to complete in order for her to receive her license as a certified airframe mechanic. An additional three months is needed to get her power plant license, which would enable her to work on the engines of an aircraft. She enrolled in a university in Daytona Beach, only to be dismissed by the high tuition fee. Her determination is displayed as she speaks about continuing working towards the license through work experience. It doesn't matter to her that it will take a bit longer, since she will be learning from first-hand experience, she says.

Although her job may be considered masculine, Roebuck displays the typical radiance of a woman in love as she introduces her children and soon-to-be husband, Robert Pents, who owns B & R Landscaping Company in Longwood. Loving Pents lured Roebuck back to Sanford after a five-year romance. Pents visited Oklahoma City, Roebuck visited Sanford, and wedding plans began.

The date is set for August 4th on the dock overlooking the St. Johns River in Osteen on property jointly owned by Pents and several friends.

They chose the dock since they have spent much time together on the river since Qesta arrived in May.

When asked what he felt about his future bride's profession, Pents answers with a hug and a kiss on her cheek. "I think it is great, I love her."

Roebuck's four children share their views concerning their mom's career as an aircraft mechanic as being "neat and different."

She confesses the road hasn't always been easy in her attempt to get a job. She had tried several airports, including the Sanford Airport, but was refused. She was determined to get a job, so she continued to go back to the same airports that turned her down. Her determination paid off. She took a resume and candidly admitted to the man who was hiring, "I need a job." She was hired on the spot.

As one listens to this woman of 35, who was once considered a displaced homemaker, with no means of support, but with much seal and determination, one cannot help but admire her strength. She is an unusual lady who has an unusual name and definitely an unusual job.

Wouldn't it be appropriate to say to Qesta Roebuck, "You've come a long way, baby!"

Navajo world scene for mystery

Coyote Waits, by Tony Hillerman (Harper & Row, 299 pp., $19.95)

The Navajo world is one of order and balance. If something becomes untracked or off-center, the Navajos call a shaman to perform a ritual and restore harmony.

The forces that push the Navajo world askew are sometimes attributed to the mythical coyote, a creature that young people learn from childhood stories can be playful but adults discover can also be the enemy of order.

Tony Hillerman, in what may be his best effort yet, uses the mythology of Coyote as a metaphor to show what happens when greed and ambition are thrown together with the old reservation ways.

Hillerman's familiar detectives - Lt. Joe Leaphorn, who dreams of retiring, and young romantic Officer Jim Chee - are back together again. Hillerman does a superb job of weaving their tracks together as both men investigate the murder of a Navajo Tribal policeman and the arrest of an elderly shaman, Ashie Pinto.

Entwined in the tale is the story of Wild West outlaw Butch Cassidy and the murder of a teacher who once was a high-ranking Vietnamese army officer and Central Intelligence Agency confidant.

This is a masterful mystery by an author who keeps getting better. It also is a welcome return to the Navajo Reservation that Hillerman knows and loves, after his previous novel, "Talking God," spent so much time away from the reservation.

Goff leads business advisors

By VICKI DeBORRMAN
Herald staff writer

FERN PARK — Bob Goff keeps teasing the members of the Seminole County school district business advisory committee he chairs that he is going to start wearing a T-shirt to meetings with railroad tracks printed on it.

"I was railroaded into 'his job,'" he said with a laugh. "I think they made me chairman because the chairman doesn't get to say much and they figured they could shut me up that way."

Stopping short of calling the chairmanship an honorary position, Goff said he will not so much lead the group as he will help direct the energy generated by the combination of experts that comprise the committee.

"I'm not in charge," he said. "We all work as a single unit and I'm just helping to direct them."

The committee was formed in response to allegations during the failed bond issue in February that the board did not know how to run the district as a business and that expert advice was needed to help them do so.

"Our members are the best in their businesses," said Goff. "We've got one of only two strategic planners in the state (Dr. William Callarman) working for us. John Koegel, the CEO of one of the few successful savings and loans (Crown Savings of Casselberry) in the state is on our committee."

Goff, who is now a real estate and insurance businessman, with Elmer Bakakka Realty, 7000 S. Highway 17-92 in Fern Park, was previously the international editor of Swimming World magazine and a swim-

Bob Goff, the newly-elected chairman of the Seminole County school board's Business Advisory Committee, began his school involvement as a swimming coach and physical education teacher at Lyman High School in Longwood.

Winter Park Dr. in Casselberry, and Brittany, 9 is a third grader at Casselberry Elementary School, 1075 Crystal Bowl Circle in Casselberry.

Because he had three children, Goff said he had to make a choice in his life between a career in coaching and making money.

"Teachers did not make much money in those days," he said.

He said that these days he judges his success by comparing his income against that of Carlton Henley, the Lyman High School principal.

"I'm doing better than he is," Goff joked. He said that "all ex-teachers" gauge their economic success against that of former principals.

He describes himself as the "lightweight" on the committee, said he has always been involved in the government in the community, once "almost running" for the post of property appraiser.

In 1988, he had been convinced by a friend, Marvin Meltzer, to run for the property appraisers spot, because he felt that the property values in Seminole County were consistently underestimated causing a revenue shortfall. However, he decided just before qualifying time to pull his hat from the ring.

"It's the coach in me," he said. "I hate to lose."

After his short-lived career in the political limelight, Goff said he did not leave public service.

He has since served on various county and municipal-wide committees, including service as vice chairman of both the Seminole County Comprehensive Land Planning Committee and the Longwood Comprehensive Land Planning Committee and as chairman of the technical committee of the Seminole County Borrow Pit Committee.

Goff said neither he nor any of his Business Advisory Committee compatriots are "experts in the field of education," adding that is an area better left to the school board and district level employees.

"What we are there to do is to advise the board on business matters such as real estate acquisition, architecture, purchasing and engineering," he said.

The school district, according to Goff, is the largest business in the county and the challenge of helping it run more efficiently and of being able to provide adequate facilities for the rapidly-growing number of students with limited resources has "lit a fire under" the committee members.

Goff describes the group as "an apolitical board of solution finders not problem makers."

He said the group has no intention of getting involved in the politics of the school district.

"That is not the intention of this committee," said Goff. "We don't know about textbooks or censorship or things like that and we don't pretend to know those things."

One of the biggest challenges facing the committee is helping to find new architectural designs which are cost efficient while still meeting educational specifications and preparing the district for future technologies.

"We are all experts in our fields and together we will make this district strong again and make it an efficient business as well."

The committee has met every week for the last month plotting their strategy and working on an outline for their plan of action for the future. It is hoped they will be able to offer a plan for a possible proposal on a future, smaller bond issue as early as next year.

Rams make music in the sun

LAKE MARY — Despite temperatures in the 90s and afternoon thunderstorms, Lake Mary High School Marching Ram band and flag corps members and the Marionette dance troupe will be filling onto the athletic field at Don T. Reynolds stadium for the 10th annual Ram Band camp next month.

Beginning August 6, the 250-member band will spend a week getting ready for competitions and, most visably, the half time show at all Ram football games.

"We've got to get the kids into shape before the first football game," said Victor Rossi, the band's publicity director. "If they started the first day of school, they'd never been in shape for the first game."

Rossi said the students spend a few days in the classroom learning the music and doing paperwork. Then they hit the field to learn the formations and practice marching as a group.

Band boosters try to minimize the effect of the searing Central Florida sun by being sure the youngsters have plenty of coolers filled with water and sodas.

"They works very hard for the band, the least we can do is to help keep them cool," Rossi joked.

In the 10 years that the band camp has met in the heat of the summer, Rossi said there have not been any serious heat-related injuries, though there are "usually one or two kids who pass out."

The students do not practice in their heavy band uniforms with long sleeves, long pants and hats. Instead they wear shorts and red band camp shirts.

The band, which consistently receives "superior" ratings in competition for the separate units as well as for the whole band,

"There's a lot of blood, sweat and tears that go into this band's performances," Rossi said.

According to Rossi, there are usually not try-outs for new band members at the camp, since most of the members were chosen last school year. The incoming freshmen auditioned during their eighth grade year in middle school.

"I don't think Terry (band director Pattishall) would turn anyone away who wanted to join the band," Rossi said. He added that the band is made up of three sections of varying levels of competency, so that there is a place for all musicians who want to play.

The flag corps members and the Marionette dancers have their own tryouts and do not accept walk-ons at the camp.

"These young ladies work all summer, I believe," Rossi said.

Though they are part of the marching band formation, the dancers and flag corps members also perform at different events on their own.

The schedule of events for the camp:

● Monday, Aug. 6 through Friday, Aug. 10 from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.: Camp will be at the school, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Rd. in Lake Mary. Current members should have received all registration papers, schedule, medical form, and related papers in the mail. Those who should not should call the school at 323-2110 for more information.

● Thursday, Aug. 9 at 7 p.m.: There will be a Student/Parent ice cream social to celebrate the coming end of camp. There will also be a Parent/Band Booster general meeting. It is required that all parents attend the meeting. Committees will be organized at this time.

● Friday, Aug. 10 at 4:30 p.m.: A final run-through of the band's routine will take place in the stadium.

Dr. Stuart A. Lille

New VP at UCF

ORLANDO — Winter Park resident, Dr. Stuart A. Lille, a political scientist who joined the University of Central Florida faculty in 1972 has been named to head the university's undergraduate programs. He has, until being appointed to his new post, been serving as the interim dean of Arts and Sciences.

As associate vice president for academic affairs and dean of undergraduate studies, he will oversee the general education curricula, coordinate the honors, cooperative education, liberal studies, ROTC and selective minority student programs.

He will also supervise the offices of admission, financial aid and the registrar.

In his new position, Lille will replace Dr. Charles N. Micarelli, who will retire Aug. 8 after 23 years at the university. Micarelli was the charter dean of what was then called the college of Humanities and Social Sciences, it continued to head that college when it was called the college of Humanities and Fine Arts until a decade ago when he was appointed to the associate vice presidency.

Lille, who has in the past also chaired the UCF political science department, was recently described by Richard Astro, UCF provost, as "extraordinarily well qualified to take on the position (of associate vice president for academic affairs and dean of undergraduate studies). He is a gifted administrator who also brings to this new challenge some very valuable experience as a teacher and a scholar."
