Students scoring higher in math, science

By VICILI Descent Horaki Staff Writer

SANFORD - Students are doing better in math and science a decade after American education was rebuked for a "rising tide of mediocrity." but their reading and writing skills have remained stagnant, the Education Department said last

The findings by the National Assessment of Educational Progress. Inster known as the Nation's Report Card, reflect achools' increased is on science and math.

Locally, students have shown a similar pattern of large increases in math, but smaller ones in reading and writing skills. This is, however, because the Seminole County scores have been high all along, Dave Winger, director of testing for the district, said,

There has also been an emphasis on encourag-ing students, especially females and minorities, to take more upper level math and acience courses.

The scores in those areas nave increased while the reading and writing scores have simply remained high.

-Dave Winger

The scores in those areas have increased while the reading and writing scores have simply remained high," Winger said.

The nation's commitment to improve learning in math and science is starting to show some rewards," Education Secretary Richard Riley said.

The report said 9- and 13-year-olds in 1992 showed better understanding of math and science fundamentals than students in the same age group in the late 1970s.

In both math and science, students were taking more advanced courses. In 1992, 92 percent of 17-year-olds had taken blology. up from 88 percent in 1986. Increases also were registered for chemistry. to 49 percent from 40 percent, and

In 1992, 76 percent of 17-year-olds said science should be a required subject, up from 62 percent in 1977.

With reading and writing performance generally flat. Riley called on parents to help their children.

"Children who read and are read to, who see their parents read, who have a variety of reading materials in the home, and who write letters or notes at home read and write better." he said.

There has been a similar effort in Seminole County schools to ensure that students use reading and writing skills in an integrated approach to learning all subjects.

KKK protests white baby abortions

MELBOURNE, Fla. - Nine members of the Ku Klux Klan protested Saturday outside a clinic to condemn the abortion of white babies and the presence of court-ordered federal marshals.

When asked if he would protest the abortion of non-white babies, Klan member J.D. Alder said: "We wouldn't bother in the least. ... I can't feign concern for someone I don't care about. ... I consider the abortion of white babies tantamount to racial suicide.'

Dressed in robes carrying the KKK insignia, the Klansmen picketed the Aware Woman Center For Choice, criticizing Attorney General Janet Reno for deploying U.S. marshals to enforce a court-endorsed buffer zone at the clinic.

Reno's action followed last month's shooting deaths of an abortion doctor and his escort outside a Pensacola abortion clinic.

One sign read "Reno - call off the shock troops," and another read, "Federal tyranny."

John Baumgardner, a former grand dragon of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the KKK in Florida and protest organizer, said the marshals were sent to intimidate anti-abortion protesters and curtail their First Amendment rights.

About half-dozen demonstrators from the pro-choice group Refuse and Resist also were on hand, chanting. "Operation Rescue and the KKK - same tactics to get their way."

Clinton tightens Cuban sanctions

WASHINGTON - Moving to punish and further isolate Fidel Castro, President Clinton slapped new sanctions on Cuba's Communist government Saturday that will cut off an important source of hard currency: payments by Cuban-Americans to their relatives back home.

Accusing Castro of trying to defuse unrest at home by provoking Cuban citizens to flee to Florida, Clinton declared: "The solution to Cuba's many problems is not an uncontrolled exodus, it is freedom and democracy."

In a written and broadcast statement. Clinton said he was barring cash payments by Cuban-Americans to relatives in Cuba and putting new limits on flights between the United States and the island nation. He also pledged increased and amplified U.S. radio broadcasts into Cuba warning residents not to take to the seas.

The Cuban Foreign Ministry denounced the action and denied the Cuban government had encouraged residents to flee.

"The U.S. government in no way tackles the essence of the problem, which is the fact that there is a policy deliberately aimed at making life unbearable in Cuba," Carlos Fernandez. director of the ministry's North American section, told CNN. "The natural and logical outcome is to have people wanting to leave the country.'

Departures from Cuba continued in a steady stream. The Coast Guard said it rescued 575 Cubans from boats and rafts on Friday and had intercepted 468 by midafternoon Saturday.

Nobel laureate Linus Pauling dead at 93

SAN FRANCISCO - Two-time Nobel laureate Linus Pauling charted the chemical underpinnings of life itself, worked for nuclear peace and helped start America's health craze by touting the benefits of vitamin C. This 20th century Renaissance man in a floppy beret was also "the greatest of teachers ... a fantastic showman." one colleague fondly recalled Saturday.

Pauling died late Friday at the age of 93 at his home in Big Sur. 110 miles south of San Francisco. A son and daughter were with him, said Stephen Lawson of the Linus Pauling Institute of Science and Medicine at Palo Alto.

An advocate of vitamin C as a life-extender, Pauling had maintained a vigorous schedule until recent months when the prostate cancer diagnosed in 1991 began to take a toll, said Dorothy Munro, a spokeswoman for the Pauling Institute.

"It may be that my vitamin C put the cancer off by 20 years," he once said. He took 18,000 milligrams of vitamin C a SANFORD - Despite on-going physical abuse and threats from her boyfriend during their rela-tionship, Michele Roger testified Friday "I was crazy about him. I didn't want to break-up." The pair reunited after breakups because "We had a stong physical attraction and sometimes we were like a brother and sister, we had real fun.'

Roger, 28, is on trial for second degree murder in the stabbing death of David Richmond who disappeared two years ago. His body has never been found. Just prior to the opening of the trial Roger's father and brother described moving Richmond's body from the Oviedo condominum where he died and disposing of it in the ocean.

After working until 3 a.m. Sept. 6, 1992, Roger described how she stabbed Richmond as the two argued in their home after he attempted to push her face onto a hot stove burner where she was heating water for tea. She kicked him in the crotch which loosened his grip on her hair, then she grabbed a fruit knife from the counter. She told him to leave, he hesitated then punched her in the face and said "I'm going to f——in' kill you." As he started to punch her again. Roger said she stabbed him in the chest.

Roger said she grabbed the counter because she almost fainted and thought she was going to throw up as she saw Richmond stagger backward. She went to him, crying, "David, say something," shaking him trying to get a response. "I pulled the knife out because it was hurting him." she re-counted, "but he didn't say anything."

A bridge over troubled waters? By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer LAKE MARY - Wood Street is the connecting road between Van Buren Avenue and Hum-phrey Road in Lake Mary. It is also flooded, and closed to through traffic.

At least one city commissioner suggested putting up a bridge across a heavy rainfall runoff area.

Wood Street will, for the time being, remain closed at one point, pending approval of the city's installation of larger drainage pipes. Police Chief Richard Beary said the closure would not prevent public safety vehicles from going into the area, as access would be from two other streets.

Beary said he was pleased the city was considering the Wood Street problem, anone police car-had already been damaged because of a flooded area on the street, prior to the closure.

Although not scheduled on the agenda for Thursday night's city commission meeting, the matter was brought up early for extensive discussion.

Soldiers Creek, a small stream of water, flows through Wood Street as well as other areas in the city including Calico Road, Wagonwheel Way, Austin Street and even C.R. 427.

In heavy rain periods, such as have occurred recently, the creek begins to flow rapidly, and where adequate drainage is not available, it often begins to flood nearby property.

Such is the case on Wood Street now, where the city has been forced to close the street at the Soldiers Creek underpass.

Director of Public Works Bill Temby explained how, two years ago, a temporary repair job was made to pipes connected with drainings of Soldiers Creek. The problem however is partially Readers speak: Should cadet shave her head?

SANFORD - There has been much talk over the years about equal rights for men and women. Our Constitution states that all men are created equal. Most recently a woman named Shannon Faulkner has pursued a military school, the pursued a military school, the Citadel, for her training. She fought persistently to obtain entrance. One requirement of this private establishment versus the other three gov-ernment military schools was that students are required to shave their heads. At the present, Citadel is an all male school. Faulkner, would be the school. Faulkner would be the first female to gain admission there. Should also be required to shave her head like "all the guys?" Dahmer comic books prevail in suit

MILWAUKEE — Relatives of Jeffrey Dahmer's victims lost a court suit against a comic book about the serial killer. Judge James P. Doherty ruled Friday the eight relatives cannot base a claim on names and likenesses of people who are dead.

The suit was aimed at "Jeffrey Dahmer, an Unauthorized Biography of a Serial Killer," a $2.50 comic book produced by Boneyard Press of Champaign, Ill.,

The cartoon subjects were based on imagination and not on

DUI charges resolved in court Former chief for state attorney fined, placed on probation

By SANDRA ELLIOTT Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The former chief of operations in State Attorney Norm Wolfinger's Sanford office who resigned last year after being arrested on a drunken driving charge had his driver's license revoked for six months, was placed on supervised probation with standard conditions, and must attend an alcohol education school. He was also ordered to perform 50 hours of community service.

Dominic John (Jack) Scalera III was not present at the hearing Wednesday before county court Judge Mariene M. Alva when his attorney submitted the written pleas of no contest and not guilty to driving under the influence and failure to drive in a single lanc.

For the DUI charge he was fined $250 plus court costs and other fees totaling $477.50. In addition, he was placed on six months supervised probation and ordered to perform 50 hours of community service. The judge permitted a buy out of the community service duties at a rate of $10 per hour.

Court records show Scalera paid the court clerk $977.50 on Thursday. Early termination of the supervised probation was also allowed under the sentence. Scalera was to pay $40 a month for cost of supervision.

This was one of the places to to after a date, a school event, a fall game, or whatever happenng there was in Sanford. You went to see all your friends - of all ages - and the milkshakes were a huge plus. Cars would be parked all along the pavement reserved for curb service and sometimes on the grass on either side. There were only a couple of tables inside as curb service was the thing.

McReynolds even had delivery service; not just of prescriptions, but of most anything else they sold. I remember as a child when I would have baby sitters, we would order Pepst and they would deliver! Later we craved milkshakes, so we'd call 90 and pretty soon here would be one of tradition a the delivery boys from continued.

Doc McReynolds moved his drugstore to 2553 Park Drive (where Sanford Carpet is now) in the early 1950s, but to me, it was never quite the same. Curb service there lasted only a couple of years, but the milkshakes continued to be excellent. Students from Seminole High would hang out there every afternoon after school, so part of the tradition as a gathering place

I remember that I bought my prescriptions there during the 1960s when I was first teaching at Seminole High. I would charge them, but Doc rarely sent a bill. Two or three times a year I would go in and pay what I owed. My dad had done the same thing at the old store.

Gordon Kellett bought the drugstore probably in the late 1980s and it continued to have a good business for several years. Competition came, though, with the chain stores and also soda fountains became passe', so a memorable institution closed.

On Saturday nights we would sometimes aign out from the Celery Crate and walk to Touchtons. And those of us who were in Girl Scouts had a weekly ritual from the time we were in junior high until we graduated from Seminole High. Every Friday afternoon we would walk from school down to Touchtons where we'd fill up several booths and order chocolate or vanilla pepsis or perhaps a cherry coke. From there we would wander into McCrorys for a quick look around and sometimes buy salted peanuts to eat as we walked on down to Scouts for for a sandwich. During my our 4 p.m. meeting. This restaurant was certainly not much to look at, either outside or in, but it sure served good food. It was located on Sanford Avenue just south of McReynolds on the oppostie side of the street; Caribbean Delights occupies the building now.

The original owner was Price Angel: later his son, Buddy, ran the restaurant. This was the father and brother of John Angel, former Seminole County superintendent of schools. "Miss Alma" Roland was waltress there for years.

As far back as I can remember. my parents and I would go there quite often for our evening meal. I'm sure they had many other things on their menu, but their hamburger steaks were so delicious that that's all 1 ever remember ordering. Grilled onions were ten cents extra: I believe that made the total cost $1 for the meal which also included french fries, cole slaw. and bread. My dad would also get the hamburger steak, while my mother would opt for fried shrimp.

We would also go there sometimes after Sunday night church bandmaster Ernie Cowley would often join us there then so he and my dad could talk over plans for the Mardi Gras trip. I often wondered how Mr. Cowley could sleep after drinking cup after cup of collee during the evening.

Angels was also a favorite hangout for teen-agers after a date as it had curb service and on the south side of the building it was relatively dark.

The Pig and Whistle

"The Pig" was located on the southeast corner of Park Avenue and 25th St. in the vicinity of the present Central Forida Educators Credit Union building. It had a huge parking space for curb service so it was another popular spot for the younger set., They served delicious pork and beef barbecue sandwiches; if you wanted a full meal you could go inside. I can remember going there at various times with friends and visiting with others all over the parking lot. It was a great place to see people, as were all the other places mentioned previously.

Instead of International Drive. we Sanford teen-agers of the 1950s would cruise from the Pig to McReynolds and then drive around Angels. When we'd see someone we knew, we'd stop awhile for a chat and then drive on to the next place. I'm sure it all sounds tame to teen-agers of today but it was a different time. Sanford then was a small, unsophisticated town and we all knew almost everyone else who lived here. It was truly a great time and place in which to grow because the drainage lines have been determined to be insufficient to handle the flow, and the fact that two of the lines have already become partially col-lapsed. Some suggestions were that heavy trucks driving over the pipes, buried under possibly as little as one foot of dirt on the roadway, were causing them to collapse.

Other ideas included digging up the roadway to a depression near the creek crossing, which would allow for a cross-flow in cases of heavy rainwater flows.

One suggestion was different however. Commissioner Shella Sawyer proposed the possibility of building a bridge over the water-flow area on Wood Street. "This would resolve most of the problems and still allow the road to be open to through traffic without having to have dips or additional pipelines," she said.

Although several commissioners considered the idea as a good suggestion, they brought up the cost of building such a bridge as opposed to replacing the two 25 foot long pipes under the road surface.

Following a lengthy discussion, it was decided to replace the pipes with the larger ones.

Ban assault weapons

Most citizens don't have the foggiest idea of what is going on in our nation's capitol. Either we aren't being told, or we are ignoring the information on the various matters pending before congress.

Whenever any information is available, most people just read and hear about the basics. If we would know about and publish the full details, they would be so lengthy no one would read about them or listen.

One item which comes to mind is the gun control legislation being tossed back and forth. A big disagreement is over assault weapons. Those are the kind which can fire dozens of rounds in a very short period of time. They are similar to military assault rifles we see in the movies.

One side says there is no need to place control on such guns, as they are seldom used by street criminals.

The other faction says any use of such a weapon could wipe out a room full of people in a moment, and should be banned for public

Others, who claim to be sportsmen, say they don't want the right to have a fully automatic weapon banned. They say they have a right to carry any type weapon they want when they go hunting. (hunting for what?)

Gary Kleck, a criminologist at Florida State University says criminals rarely use assault weapons. Yet if only one person uses such a weapon in a room full of people, the results would be devastating. With just one occur-rence, those who don't want them banned.

We suggest congress completely ban these assault weapons from the public. If, (and that should be a highly-qualified if), someone really needs one, there could be some special type of license available.

Political parties and primaries

The 19th century witnessed the advent of political parties in Europe and the United States. Political parties were and are groups organized for the purpose of achieving and exercising power within a political system.

Prerevolutiontary aristocratic and monarchiat regimes gave birth to the unfolding of the political process. Cliques and factions were grouped around noblemen or influential personalities. Some cliques were formed around princes, dukes while others included bankers, merchants, industrialists and businessmen.

There were two fundamental types of political parties, cadre parties and mass based parties. Mass based parties courted the masses. Cadre parties appealed to an elite few. This set the stage for conflict between the aristocracy and the bourgeoisie. The bourgeoisie was comprised of merchants, tradesmen, bankers and professionals.

Seventeenth century English philosopher John Locke is credited with extolling the bourgeois liberal ideology. The eighteenth century brought French philosophers into the fold of liberal ideology. The liberal ideology was embraced by the bourgeoisic who desired to change the privileges of the aristocracy and remove the economic restraints of feudalism and mercantilism. Bourgeoisic liberalism ascribed to an egalitarian ideal and a demand for liberty, aspirations with which all mankind could identify.

The Revolutionary War might be viewed in the context of the struggle between conservative aristocracy represented by the king and his supporters and the insurgents representing bourgeosie liberalism. The Civil War might be examined as a second confrontation between conservatives and liberals. Southern aristocratic spirits buttressed by the institution of slavery and land ownership pitted against liberals who valued the preservation of the federal government.

The Revolutionary War and the Constitution preserved basic liberal egalitarian philosophy in America. The largest emerging parties in the United States, the Democratic Party and the Republican Party concur relative to legal equality but differ dramatically relative to the means of achieving particular objectives. Actually, the late 19th century and early 20th century saw the rise of machine politics. A wealth of information has been written about machine politics in New York and Chicago. The, excesses of political machines, utilized to exclude persons not selected by the party from running as candidates for elective office, brought forth the establishment of the primary system. Between 1900-1920 the majority of states adopted some kind of primary system. The purpose of the primary elections was to deprive party leaders of solely selecting candidates for election. The goal was to open to the general public the opportunity of running for elective, office. Possibly one of the most formidable deterrents, to running for elective office today is the steep, financial costs of candidacy. There is a direct, correlation of cost relative to the number of citizens a candidate must address and the costs. For example, running for the presidency is the, costlicst of endeavors.

The first primary will be held Thursday Sept. 8, 1994. The date was changed from Tuesday because of the Jewish holiday. In primary elections voters are limited to voting for the, candidates of the party with which they are, registered. Primary elections are not known for attracting high voter turnout. However, their undisputed importance is that they determine the party's choices for all elective offices. All registered voters should take time and vote Thursday, Sept. 8, 1994.

ELLEN GOODMAN Inhabiting a multidigital life

BOSTON - In the great lottery of modern life, I have just been handed another number. This four-digit beauty is a timely addition to the extensive and highly esteemed collection i of personal ID numbers that I am happy to call my own.

By merely pressing these handsome new little numbers on an electronic pad. I can make the security gate lift. Then I can drive my car with its designated license plate number onto the office parking lot that sits on a ZIP code number of its very own.

I can even gain entrance to the building where I already have been assigned a niceim ploye n umb.er. gmployee number, 1 hasten to add, is different from my health care plan number which I have memorized in case I'm carried into a strange emergency room bleeding from f tyou want to know how many the head. By the way, I can be reached other crucial at this office by a digits are telephone number competing for with an area code room in my number or, if you prefer, a fax number. If you fail to reach brain's floppy disk, teke a number. me and get a re cording. I can retrieve your message merely by activating my voice mailmumber. I also have an AT&T credit card number which I can use to call you back from any phone booth. I also have an AT&T credit card number which I can use to call you back from any phone booth. This number is long. How long? Well, let's just say that I can either call a foreign country or write a brief libretto in memory of Alexander Graham Bell. These are not the only numbers that have ' exponentially increased. On the way home from my office to a house in a different ZIP code, for example, I can get cash merely by employing my ATM number. I can then enter my house without setting off the alarm, by pushing the alarm code. Once in, I can check the messages on my home phone by dialing a different voice mail number. I also have a Social Security number, but you guessed that. This number is - bless you, Registry of Motor Vehicles - the same as my license number. I have not one but five frequent flier numbers which I use in conjunction with my VISA, Mastercard or American Express numbers. If you want to know how many other crucial digits are competing for room in the limited storage space of my brain's floppy disk, stand in line. Or should I say, take a number Frankly. I am not sure how I came to inhabit such a multidigital life. I am from a numerically simple background. I was born the second child of two parents with nothing more than birth date to call my own. As a grade school child, I shared one telephone number with three people. At 17, 1 got an SAT number which was, I hasten to add, not very impressive in the math department. But sometime during the last decade, the entire industrialized, computerized world has been subject to a numbercal explosion that dwarfs the population explosion. In America, the average middle-class citizen has more numbers to call her own than cousins. Moreover, every friend on my Rolodex. every business card that passes my hands, carries a list of nubers for the faxes. computers, beepers and phones that litter offices, homes, cars and pockets. It's now clear that the old identity crisis which once plagued our young nation has been replaced by the new ID crisis.

We suggest concerned individuals contact our members of congress and voice their opinion.

For those congressmen who are against banning this type of weapon, we can only wonder who is behind them and persuading them to keep our crime legislation stalled.

Rare gem

In December of 1992 I went to Dr. Willie B. Newman for the first time after learning that I was pregnant.

I was considered a high-risk patient with several medical problems.

Dr. Newman, of course, was guite concerned with my medical problems. Therefore, he monitored my condition carefully. Because of my condition I had to visit him practically every

Not once did he make me feel like he didn't want to be bothered or rush me out of his office. He was always patient, thoughtful and had a sense of humor.

He made me feel that he was not only my obstetrician but a friend or a big brother, someone that I could always come to for advice concerning my problem.

On Aug. 24, 1993, I delivered a baby girl and had some complications. During the birth of my baby I had severe complications which Dr. Newman handled with expertise.

There were still more problems. Severe depression and premature menopause entered the picture and Dr. Newman was concerned enough to arrange for a nurse and a social worker to come to my house and did what he had to do so that my insurance took care of the payments.

I've taken a teen-ager to Dr. Newman who was regnant with no health insurance and not sure that she could even pay the bill, but he was more concerned with her health than how the bill was going to be paid.

On July 31, 1994, I called Dr. Newman after 10 p.m. because my sister was here visiting me. She is four months pregnant and very sick. She needed to be seen by a doctor. He told me to bring her to the hospital and he would be there when we got there. It didn't matter to him that she wasn't his patient, he was still going to give her the best care possible because he was such a concerned physician.

I do have several friends who go to Dr. Newman and all of them speak highly of him.

The words that come to my mind when I try to describe Dr. Newman to you are: caring, patient, thoughtful, understanding, dedicated, supportive and friendly with a sense of humor. I thank you, Dr. Newman, for going above and beyond the call of a physician.

Judaism on the rise

In the beginning there was darkness. A seed is so small.

Birth is a miracle only God can perform. But rebirth is what we can do, be it on the farm or in the laboratory or in the home.

in my neighborhood of North Beach or south of Surfaide. Miami Beach, there is a growing movement towards Judaiam. All the grocery stores are stocking Shabbat candles and Yahrzeit candles. A non kosher or kosher style dell store became Glatt Kosher recently.

The old Surf Theatre put on a Jewish showand a cantorial concert was planned.

About one mile north of me on Sept. 4. two days before Rosh Hashana, a ribbon will be cut to open a multi-million dollar House of God. It is called the Shui. It was built by the people for the people and it will not perish from this earth.

This writer is proud of my late brother Martin (Mendel), myself and all those visible and those in the background who gave their time, money and moral support to this community endeavor. Yes, we all gave.

They name this time of giving, charity or tradaks. The greatest type of charity is of one who gives with one's heart.

Yes, Judaism in South Florida is on the rise. Maybe it is a cycle. To say that in had times. religion grows, might be true.

He served well

This letter is in regards to the column by Joe Perkins which ran June 14, 1994 in the Sanford Herald written about D-Day

My husband, Sgt. Melvin F. Williamson, was in Bastogne, Belgium during World War II in Germany and D-Day.

In reading the story it brought back memorics of the war when he sat down one evening and told me of his experience in the Battle of the Bulge. He was in that battle and the Germans were coming through to get into Bastogne. Our soldiers had spent many days building the Siegfried line of concrete and barbed wire so the Germans could not pencirate it. Just at dawn as they were coming through the line, our men were ordered by Gen. George Patton, who was known as "Old Blood and Guts" in the infantry, to move on towards the Germans. General Patton was four miles behind the lines and ordered the ground troops to proceed foreward and they were covered by the 82nd Airborne Division. Gen. Patton ordered the lieutenant to proceed and light the bomb to blow up the Siegfried line.

The lieutenant started down the hill a few feet and suddenly turned around, white as a ghost from fear, and said. "Bgt. Williamson, I can't go. you go and come back if you can." Sgt. Williamson had to obey the order. So he took the withinian rad bioey the other, so he took take bomb, lit it and blew up the line and came back without a scretch. He spent two years in Germany and Bastogne and came home with many stories about the beauty of the country and the cleanliness of the homes. He said the military went through many homes abandoned by the families and almost every home had a plano and other musical instruments. He said they would alt down among the dead and dying and eat C-rations to survive. He came home without a scratch and did not tell me this story or even mention the battles for several months. Then in Fi. Benning, Gs., he told me this story and never mentioned it again. He was in the Army 19 years and 8½ months and asked me if I wanted him to re-enlist. I told him he had served this country well and to stay home. He died in Sanford in 1963 - 13 years ago. He served his country well.

Speaking out

In reference to your reader's letters on Sunday, Aug. 14, 1994: I am glad to see citizens are concerned with democracy and elected officials. If people do have concerns, we must remember that the citizens of Sanford hold the power in addressing these concerns. The voting citizen decides what form government will take. If attendance at town meetings is any indicator of public participation in government, shame on us for pointing our finger.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. All letters must be signed, include the address of the writer and a daytime telephone number. Letters should be on a single subject and be as brief as possible. The letters are subject to editing.

Continued from Page 1A Local winners for the races included Mike Suddeth of Sanford. Eric Hartman and Jason Hurd of Lake Mary, and Andy Mohr of Mailtand, Various prizes were awarded, such as cash, trophies, bicycle lubricant and gift certificates.

York Sommerville, of Showtime Productions and Lee Hogan, of WLOQ radio, were promoters of the races. They commented about the program. 'lt's a beautiful day. The course was great. We had some enthusiastic riders. We got to try riders with mountain bikes on the road. This is the first time this has been done in Florida. We modeled it after a race called the Cactus Cup, where they used fat tires on the street."

Children participated in the bicycle rodeo. The event was coordinated with efforts from law enforcement officials. The emphasis was on teaching children safety on the road and obeying traffic signs and signals. Katherine Waldhiem, 8, and Whitney Waldhiem, 10, manuevered a course through sponges placed at equal distances on the pavement. "We had fun. It was neat," they said. Several young people from Crank-N-Bike, in Sanford, demonstrated various tricks with freestyle bicycles. They performed stunts on ramps and mid air tricks.

In-line hockey experts were available for instruction on proper handling of equipment and safety in the sport. Sara Gladwin, 11, and brother David. 9. watched and walted in anticipation for their turn in the arena. Sara said, "I want to try the hockey, but my brother can't because he broke his finger. I have my skates and stick ready."

There were also demonstrations of personal watercraft.

The event continues today, until 5 p.m., with more trick bike demonstrations, a high wheel race, and other bicycle races.

In Lake Mary, the Seminole Family YMCA sponsored their fourth annual Corporate Fun-A-Rama, Eight teams competed in events such the Double Mazing Wheelbarrow. Balance Beam Pass, Silly Ski Shuffle, The Crazy Obstacle Course, Waiter Water Relay, Rubber Raft Relay and Sling Shot Shoot. Yes, all of those staunch executives from Barnett Bank, Sun Bank, Continuous Forms, Florida Polymners, Target, the French Team, the team and Olive Garden, "Y" shed their ties and business wear for shorts and running shoes to duke it out on the playing fields.

The mission of the Fun-A-Rama is to promote health and filness on a community wide basis. The proceeds from the event will enable Seminole Family YMCA to provide programs for underprivileged youth. In 1993, more than $7,000 was raised to help send children to Summer Day Camp and after school care.

The major sponsors for the event were Barnett Bank, Del-Air, Deloitte & Touche, Rich Plan and Florida Polymers.

To ensure fun for the children, Puzzles the Clown was on hand. giving out balloons and candy. Blockbuster Video donated their time to come and make video Kidprinia for children attending the event. By noon, they had made almost 40 Kidprints. Each child received a mug as well. Hot dogs, hamburgers and sports drink were also available for the kids and weary competitors,.

As for awards, Continuous Forms took first place, the Target team took second and Florida Polymers came in third. A speical award was given to Florida Polymers for "Most Spirited.'

After the awards various donated items were raffled off. The pool was then opened for free awimmind.

No shelf space needed for encyclopedias

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald SHIP Patrolman

Camputers can do wonderful things. They make mincement of really big numbers, whatever that means. They'll check your spelling. let you balance the household or business books, make an airline reservation, wash the car... Well. they can't wash the car. In fact, you don't need a computer to do any of these things, but computers enable you to do these things quicker (ex-cept wash the car), and maybe better with fewer errors.

There are few things a com-puter can do that can't be done otherwise (except crash, wiping out hours of work and your day in general), but a new form of learning tool called the CD-ROM encyclope-dia or multimedia encyclopedia may be one of 'em.

No. encyclopedias are noth-ing new. They've been around for...well, a long time. But with the advent of computers packed full of sound capabilities and CD-ROMs, these new programs offer a whole new way of tackling learn-ing. A quick review. Computers you know. Computers are capable of reproducing sounds, such as digital recordings of speech and mu-sic, using a "sound card." Unless you're working in a stuffy office environment, your computer probably already has one, especially if it came with a pair of speakers. (Not the tinny little thing that beeps at you every time you do something your computer doesn't like, which is pretty often here at the SHIP Station.) CD-ROMs are actually pretty much the same compact disks you use to play music, but instead of music, they make an awful-sound-ing noise. When you plug 'em in your CD-ROM-equipped computer. you'll find they contain information or pictures or games or whatever. Because of the way CDs are made. they can hold lots of information. CD-ROM encyclopedias became a natural outgrowth of these technologies. Needless to say, to take full advantage of them, you need a computer equipped with a sound card and speakers and a CD-ROM player. Most household computers are being sold with those things already installed.

All this and Bill Oates, too ...

Encarta is the Microsoft entry into the CD-ROM encyclopedia playing field. And of the two surveyed here, it takes the fullest advantage of sound, image and motion. Encarta is based on the Funk & Wagnalis Encyclopedia. While not as extensive in number as the Grolier entry, I found several of the articles went into more depth. Go figure.

Unlike a printed encyclope-dia, which is divided into alphabetical volumes, Encarta is divided into subject categories and subcategories. Among the major categories are physical science and technol-ogy, religion and philosophy, and performing arts. From those groups, you go to plants and mam-mais; mythology; literature and dance: and so on. You can work your way through this branching system using the "Category Browser" if you're just fishin' on a topic. Using the "Find Wizard," you can track down a subject using cat-egories and whether you want a bibliography, sound clips, anima-tion or whatever. You can also simply type in a word and with the click of a button. Encarta takes off and finds every instance of that word. For example, "Kennedy" not only produces the president and his politically-inclined brothers, but "Kennedy Space Center," and even Melbourne, Fla. because it is "near Kennedy Space Center." The search found the word in a total of 111 places. A search of this type can take a minute or two, but may be worth it in your explorations.

Encarta allows you to call up a word processor or to attach notes to a topic. With my Windows system, the word processor feature worked fine with Write, a simple program that comes with the system. But I had problems calling up Amt Pro. which is the fat program used to bring you "Superhighway Patrol." Encarta started Ami Pro, but then ments, suggestions or abuse, you told me it couldn't start it properly and then took over my screen, aland then took over my screen, al- Sanford Herald, 300 N. More morsels...

The New Groller Multimedia Encyclopedia is laid out in a similar format to Encorta in that it's "Knowledge Tree" feature is structured into six categories, each of which are divided into neveral subcategories. You'll quickly notice a difference between Grolier and Encarta if you have a chance-to peruse through both in a store. Instead of a lot of graphic buttons and pictures to click on. Groller's presents you with text lists for subcategories after clicking on the first button or two. Even the "Timeline" feature is a 5,544-line text list of key years and the trends that marked them. The greater reliance on text instead of image could be because Groller has more than 33,000 articles, about a third more than Encarta. The Grolier CD-ROM encyclopedia is based on the 21volume Academic American Encyclopedia.

While the Grolier encyclope-dia has more entries than Encarta. It doesn't necessarily have more information than the Microsoft product. For example, Groller had a short entry with a photograph for the important fleat Generation author William S. Burroughs, but Encarta did not. But Encarta offered a 12-page article on the his-tory and function of sewage collec-tion and treatment (don't ask why t looked this one up), whereas Grolier offered only five pages with much less detail about the entire subject.

Magic file grievance

ORLANDO - The Orlando Magic has filed a grievance with the NBA protesting the rejection of the team's contract with Horace Orant.

Grant, an unrestricted free agent who played the past seven seasons with the Chicago Bulls, signed a 6-year contract worth $22 million last month with the Magic.

But the NBA refused to approve it, citing an exception to the salary cap. "This is the way for us to kick start the whole process," John Gabriel, Magic vice president of basketball operations, said of the grievance filed Friday. "This formalizes our right to dispute their disqualification of the contract." The clause in question allows Grant to become a free agent after one season and permits the Magic to sweeten his earnings without regard to salary cap restrictions.

Gender equity: Fair play or Pandora's Box?

By TONY Desormier Herald Sports Editor

SANFORD - Incoming freshman girls will reap the benefits of the six Seminole County public high schools' efforts to meet the legislativelymandated objective of gender equity in athletics. According to the county's Education Equity Act Plan of 1994, submitted to the state department of education's Equal Education Opportunity Program in May, the schools plan to offer freshman teams in girls' volleyball, basketball, and soccer this year as the first step toward achieving gender equity. "We conducted a self-study of the high schools," said John Reichert, ombudsman and equal employment opportunity coordinator for the Seminole County school district. "The athletic directors and staff members looked at their particular situation and put the facts and figures together. "One thing that was decided on for the 1994-95 school year is that the schools are going to look at offering freshman teams in girls volleybail, girls' basketball, and girls' soccer."

The self-study revealed that Seminole County schools didn't vary much from the statewide numbers of male and female participation in athletics.

For example, while there were alightly more boys enrolled in Florida high schools than girls last year, the boys involved in athletics out-numbered the girls by nearly a 2-1 margin — 103,129 to 54,123.

A year ago, the Florida Legislature amended the Florida Educational Equity Act of 1984 in an effort to bring about gender equity in athletics at Florida schools. It began with a switch from slowpltch to fastpitch softball for high schools and community colleges. Where does it go from there?

Reduced to percentages, girls made up 49 percent of the overall student population by accounted for only 34 percent of the state's prep athletes.

Samplings of the numbers from across Seminole County:

· Using an unduplicated count, which counts a multiple sport athlete as a single participant rather than as a participant in each sport in which he or she competes, 63.8 percent of the varsily athletes at Lake Brantley High School were boys and 36.1 percent girls.

· While the breakdown of varsity athletes at Lake Howell is 56 percent boys and 44 percent girls, unduplicated, 72 percent of the athletes playing on junior varsity and freshman teams are boys. • At Lake Mary, 59 percent, unduplicated, of • At Lake Mary, 59 percent, unduplicated, of undiplicated, of the athletes on junior varsity and ficshman teams are boys.

• The unduplicated participation rate of girls in valsity athletics at Lyman is 37.9 percent.

While the schools' reports did not include a breakdown of percentages, both Ovledo and Seminole's summary of the "Accomodations of Interists and Abilities" stated that the opportunities for males and females to participate were not substantially proportionate.

Also, four schools are looking to improve the facilities for their softball teams. Lyman plans to add lights to its field by 1997-98. Lake Mary is in the process of building an on-campus facility with lights while Oviedo plans to do so by 1996-97. Seminole will "continue to develop the softball facility until it is comparable to the baseball facility."

While the addition of three freshman teams for girls will help offset the imbalance of participation on the non-varsity level, there remains the problem of disproportionate varsity opportunities created by the lack of equivalent girls' sports to football, wrestling, and weightlifting.

"One thing that will be done is that once the schools are in session, they will do a survey of all the females enrolled to determine if there's any interest in any other sport being offered," said Reichert.

The problem with such a survey, Reichert agreed, is that the lack of prior participation in sports like field hockey or flag football, the two most-often mentioned possibilities, might make it difficult for there to be any real concensus as to Bee Bouity, Page 33

BROOKLYN, Mich. - Ernie Irvan, one of the brightest stars in NASCAR's elite Winston Cup slock car series, was in criticial condition and on life support Saturday following a devastating crash at Michigan International

The 35-year-old Irvan, a native of Salinas. Calif., hit the wall nearly head-on at the exit to turn two on the 2-mile, high-banked oval during practice for Sunday's OM Goodwrench Dealers 400. Witnesses said the incident apparently was caused by a cut tire on the right-front of the Ford Thunderbird.

He had been running laps at about 176 mph. Irvan, who now makes his home in Rockwell, N.C., sustained multiple injuries, the most severe a fractured skull and collapsed lungs, and remained on life support systems at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti, about 50 miles away. He was transported by helicopter to the hospital minutes after the early morning crash. Dr. Errol Erlandson, a vascular surgeon who was the trauma surgeon on duty at the hospital when Irvan arrived, said during a mid-afternoon news conference, "His injuries at this time seem to be confined to the greatest severity to two areas, the first, a rather severe brain or head injury.

"He has sustained injury to the head including a fracture of the skull which has resulted ... in swelling of the brain throughout all areas of the brain including the brain stem.

"Second, his severest injuries seem to involve the lungs. Although he has very little evidence of external injury to the chest or chest wall, his lungs have been severely bruised (and) are accumulating a lot of fluid. He is requiring full respiratory support with a ventilator. He is being ventilated through a small tracheoscopy in the neck.

Dr. Erlandson added, "In addition, he has severe Bee Irvan, Page 3B

Logan said researchers plan to release up to eight female cougars into four areas to introduce new genetic material to the panther population to overcome the con-sequences of inbreading that has occurred among the panthers during the past centu-ry. Scientists also plan to redesign the captive breeding plan and begin producing panther/cougar kittens in captivity for release into the wild later release into the wild later.

Under natural conditions, an exchange of genetic material would occur among the various cougar subspecies that inhabit North America. However, the barriers

"The introduction of cougan will restore will the genetic character they will restore will be genetic character they will restore will be genetic character they will restore the the population that is more adapted to the populations in Florids. Mittems produced by the panthers and fougars will have full protection under endangered species laws. "The genetic restoration project offers the resources researchers need in the battle to ave the Florids panther from the threat of extinction." Logan said.

injuries of the soft tissues of the face and the head and neck. There has been some contusion, some areas of bleeding. Our assessment at this time of his abdomen, pelvis region and all four extremities is that there is no penetrating injury and no obvious injury that effects those areas of the body.

"At the present time he is being evaluated and treated by a full team, including a neurosurgical specialist, a pulmonary specialist. He is receiving minute-to-minute monitoring of his blood presoure, of the filling pressures of his heart, of his intra cranial pressure and of the fluid in the ventricular areas of the brain. He is not alert at this time."

Asked to assess Irvan's chances of survival, Dr. Erlandson said. "He has received some severe injuries to two major systems, either one of which in their severity as assessed at this time could be fatal. In this business, I believe the prognosis cannot be stated. ... We trust with minute-tominute ... support, the best outcome will occur. I cannot predict.

Irvan was followed to the hospital by wife Kim. car-owner Robert Yates and crew chief Larry McReynolds, all of whom were at the track when the accident occured.

Brian Vandercook, spokesman for the Robert Yates Racing team, said, "Like the doctor explained, we don't know what's going to happen right now, but we do know several things: Ernic is a fighter and that he always has a good attitude when the odds are tough. And we believe that will put him in good hands in the days and weeks to come.'

Irvan joined Robert Yates Racing last September as the full-time replacement for Davey Allison, who was killed in July 1993 in a helicopter accident. That was the second major blow of last season for NASCAR. which also lost 1992 Winston Cup champion Alan Kulwicki in the crash of a private plane in April.

The 1994 season then got off to a tragic start in February at Daytona with the deaths of veteran Nell Bonnett and rookie Rodney Orr in separate crashes during practice for the Daytona 500.

But, in the ensuing 20 events this season, there had been no other serious injuries until Irvan's crash on Saturday on the 2-mile, high-banked Michigan oval.

The last bad accident at MIS was in August 1992 when Clifford Allison, Davey's younger brother, was fatally injured in a crash during practice for a Busch Grand National race. He is the only racing fatality at Michigan since the track opened in October 1968.

Since buying out the remaining year and a half of his contract with Morgan-McClure Racing for a reported $400,000 in order to move to Yates' potent black No. 28, Irvan has won five of 29 starts and has 21 top-10 finishes.

He has been among the most consistent competitors this season. finishing in the top 10 in 15 of 20 races and in the top five 14 times. Coming into the weekend, Irvan trailed Winston Cup points leader Dale Earnhardt by just 27 points.

Irvan has led the points for 13 of the 20 race weeks this season, most recently losing the lead to Earnhardt after a 17th-place finish three weeks ago in the Brickyard 400 at Indianapolis. In that race, Iryan was battling eventual winner Jen Gordon for the lead when he had a tire deflate with just five laps remaining.

Last week, Irvan finished second to Mark Martin at Watkins Glen. On Friday, he qualified 19th for Sunday's race. The Yates team was expected to withdraw from Sunday's event. Irvan began his Winston Cup career with five starts for D.K. Ulrich in 1987. He continued driving for Ulrich the next two season, then, after three races with Junie Donlavey at the start of the 1990 season, joined Morgan-McClure.

what sport to offer.

"It'll be hard to tell until we actually conduct the survey." said Reichert. "We had this discussion in the meeting with the schools' athletic directors. A sport will be offered if the interest is there. They won't make a decision based on athletic talent or prior participation.

"We have discussed the possible development or creation of sports for girls, if the interest is there. But until the survey is done, let's see what's out there as far as legitimate sports for girls."

The high number of duplicate, multiple sport, female athletes also clouds the issue.

"It's been suggested that we re-introduce slowpitch softball as another sport," Reichert said. "But are there another 30 or so players at each school that would go out for slowpitch or would it be the same group of girls that are playing fastpitch? Would we be offering another sport but the relative participation remains the same?

"Finances also will play a part in what we do and do not offer. For example, if there was an interest in girls' weightlifting, there wouldn't be a cost factor since all the equipment is already in place. A sport, like weightlifting for girls could be implemented immediately if the Interest is there."

The self-study was not without its positives. Over recent years. Seminole County schools have a strong record of the equitable distribution of equipment and facilities (with the exception of football, wrestling, and weightlifting).

"The county's athletic directors, anistant AD's, and boosters clubs do an outstanding job at looking at equity when making decisions." said Reichert. "The results of the self-studies show that clearly." He added that this was just the beginning of a never-ending task for the schools.

"We'll be conducting annual evaluations," and Reichert. "It (achieving gender equity) will be an ongoing process."

Next week: Where does Seminole Community College stand and what plans has it made towards achieving gender equity*

IN BRIEF

TEC adds to Heathrow

HEATHROW - TEC Homes, is presently building what it considers the most exciting and innovative executive home designs of the decade, at Heathrow. Located in the neighborhood of East Camden on a heavily-treed lot, the "Carrington" is a two-story four-bedroom, four-and-a-half bath residential home.

"This is one of the most outstanding designs we have ever had the privilege to build." said Michael L. Palombi, vice president with TEC, located at 106 Commerce Street, suite 102. in Lake Mary.

With many features, the Carrington is priced at $469,000, and is listed through Joan Alexander at Stirling Realty.

Speedy award

LONGWOOD - Bob Hurd, who operates the Sir Speedy Printing Center on S.R. 434 in Longwood, has received the Century Club award for extraordinary sales and customer service during 1993.

The award was announced by Sir Speedy President Don Lowe during the company's recent 17th annual international convention in Washington.

Driver award

LONGWOOD - David Smoleroff, a delivery driver for United Parcel Service, was recently recognized by the company for completing 10 years of driving without an accident. He presently provides delivery service in the Silverstar/Mercy Drive area from the Bennett Drive facility.

Smoleroff, his wife and daughter live in DeLand.

Club elects officers

LAKE MARY - Daniel A. Wallace, president of GulfAtlantic Title Agency, has been elected vice president of the Economics Club of Orlando (ECO) during recent elections for officers and the board of directors. Vicki Helmick, a Certified Public Accountant was elected president.

The ECO has 200 members, and is currently in its 17th year of operation.

The firm will also design the second phase expansion consisting of 20,000 square feet.

Scott has also been selected to design two new Orlando-area Scotty's stores, to be on S.R. 436 and on U.S. 441.

Hold the real estate Davgar makes moves to concentrate on restaurants

By NICK PFEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - There have been changes made at the corporate level Davgar Restaurants, Inc., owner of Burger King restau-rants, but it will not have any affect on local store locations and/or operations.

Davgar's main office is located in Winter Park.

According to Frank Thomas, CEO of FACT Investments, Inc., who handles strategic planning for the company through his firm, "This is basically a real estate and business loan agreement. There will be no ownership changes or transfers what-so-ever."

In a strategic move designed to position itself for growth of its restaurant operations. Davgar Restaurants, Inc., has an-nounced the completion of a sale and leaseback of its Burger King Restaurant properties with Franchise Finance Corporation of America for $20 million and a of America for $29 million, and a business locan program with Franchise Mortgage Acceptance Comany for $17 million.

Manny Garcia, CEO of Davgar said, "We at Davgar feel there has been a great improvement in the management of Burger King Corporation over the past two ycars."

Regarding the financial moves he added, "These transactions set r new strategic and financial direction for Davgar by taking us of America, of Scottsdale, Ariz. out of the real estate business and placing our full attention on operating restaurants."

There are 64 Burger King restaurants in Florida and South Georgia. In Central Florida, they include those in Sanford, at 2930 Orlando Drive, Lake Mary at 879 W. Lake Mary Boulevard, and Oviedo at 1197 Alafaya Trail.

Other local Burger King res-taurants are located at Longwood, Winter Springs, Alta-monte Springs, and Casselberry. The three-way alliance will merge Davgar's operating expertise with the resources of the financial community.

Davgir's real estate partner is Franchise Finance Corporation

FFCA will lease the restaurants to Davgar and purchase or build additional Burger Kings after approving sites that Davgar has selected. FACT Investments initiated this transaction and led the negotiations as well as acting as financial advisor to Davgar. Thomas said special recognition for the activity should also go to Robert Saltsman. Tax and Corporate Attorney for Davgar, and Barry Curran, Controller of Davgar.

"We look forward to a long prosperous relationship with both FFCA and FMAC as we continue to build our business," Garcia concluded.

Mary Schmidt is still on Cloud Nine after her big 80th birthday celebration on Aug. 13.

"Oh, it was fabulous," said. "It spolled me rotten."

Hosted by her son, Dick Schmidt and his wife, Melanie, and Mary's daughter, Jean Harrington of Troy, Ala., the lovely Saturday afternoon party was held at Mary's Maylair home. About 80 friends and relatives called during the appointed afternoon hours.

Mary received her guests wearing a blue and white dress and jacket ensemble complemented with a corsage of three tiny orchids.

A highlight to Mary was the surprise arrival of her sister, Matilda Krach Keil, and her brother, William Drach, both frm St. Louis. Also, Jean's son, Bryant Harrington and his date attended from Valdosts, Os.

Mary said. "Jean did the outside and Melanie did the inside." Jean is in the nursery business in Alabama and arrived bearing colorful plants to enhance the outside of her mother's home.

Assisting Melanie with the decorations was Amy Schmidt, a granddaughter.

The beverage table, identical to the refreshment table, held punch and coffee service. Spencer Schmidt assisted as floating host, Stephanie Schmidt presided at the guest registry and Bill Schmidt was the family photographer.

Mary received a variety of gifts, cards and flowers, much to her delight and surprise.

Born in St. Louis on Aug. 14. 1914, Mary arrived in Orlando in 1949, later moved to Oak Hill and then came to Sanford 16 years ago. Her late husband was a contractor and they enjoyed traveling in their travel trajec. They traveled all of the United States and various points in Mexico and Canada.

Tillman family gathers for a 3-day reunion and celebration

Tiliman's Ponderosa gates syung open early in the week as family members began to arrive for the week-end celebration of the Tillman family reunion. The affair began on Friday evening with an old-fashioned fish-fry. yes, hot, from the cooker to the plate, with all the trimmings. The hosting Tillmans really set the pace for a great three-day celebration. The three day's activities continued with a Saturday picnic at Lake Sylvan Park where family members, friends and extended family gathered to enjoy the day with fun, food. chit-chat and a fun-filled softball same between Georgia and Florida, well after a few changes in the rules. Georgia won 11-10, not bad for a few nonprofessional teams. The praying family remem-bered to put God first in every-thing. The Tillman family gathered to give thanks, pray, worship and praise on Sunday morning at the Triumph Church of the New Age. Prince Gradey Roberson is the shepherd of its flock. The worship devotion was led by Deacons William and Ralph Tiliman; the spirit was indeed in the house of worship. Ericka Tillman presided over the services with the family choir taking the stand. With Eloise Williams-George at the console the beautiful voices began the praises as the choir sang "Victo-with an " ry is Mine."

The welcome and occasion of the history of the Tillman family was given by Hetty Tillman Roberson. Gresham assigned to Camp David Muzeka to head MDA campaign

Pic. Ian Gresham recently re-turned to Lake Mary after graduating from boot camp. Private Gresham is honored to be one of three out of over 300 chosen for the presidential support group. Gresham will be posted at Marine Barrack 8th and I Street. This post, the most elite in the Marines, is the quarters and heart of the Marine Corps. In use since the late 1700s, this barrack provides Marines for Camp David, the White House and as travel escorts for the president. Gresham has been tentatively assigned to Camp David. At Camp David, some of the duties might include jogging with the president, taking part in military ceremonies, as well as perimeter guard duty. Before he goes to his post. Private Gresham still must go to two Marine schools. The first will be in Camp LeJeune. From there, he will go to Marine Security Forces School in Damneck, Va. Gresham will need top accurity clearance for his new past, as more in depth background checks will follow the one he has already passed. Ian Greaham grew up in Texas and moved to Florida with his family when he was 13. He attended Lake Mary High School and was a draw major for two and was a drum major for two years. After high school, he went to University of Central Florida for one year and was on the crew team. Gresham chose to go into the Marines because of their Esprit D'Corps and their determination.

Pfc. Ian Gresham

The Marine Corps Institute offers correspondence courses to Marines which count toward promotions. Gresham is already planning to take at least five of these as soon as he can. His long term goal is to be an officer in the Marines. An officer commission requires & degree which Gresham hopes to get as soon as his post with the presidential support group is up. There is a two-year maximum on this post.

Heavenly hobby: Crocheted angels

By BUBAN WENNER Herald Correspondent

SANFORD - A recent trip to the Garden Club of Sanford found an array of heavenly hosts. What began as a humid Florida afternoon melted into crystal white angels sitting daintily on a desk. No. there was no experience with transparent angels. The only angels present were those made of crochet thread.

Their creator was Barbara Bradshaw, a resident of Sanford for more than 17 years. She and her husband, Brent, who she referred to as "a brilliant engineer," and their son, Brent, "an honor student and band participant." love this small town. "I like the feeling of bumping into someone I know at the grocery," she said. "That's what I love about Sanford. It's small town appeal."

Bradshaw has volunteered at the Garden Center in Sanford for eight to nine years and previously put in a large amount of Dividend hours with the Seminole County Schools. Besides her crocheted angels Bradshaw said, "I love gardening, I also raise seven cats."

Bradshaw began her crocheting efforts as a teen-ager. "I taught myself when I was a teen-ager," she said. "My dad said he'd buy my thread. He almost went broke because I can go through $3 to $4 worth of thread a day. I do like to cross stitch, and do braided rugs too but the angles I seem to do the most of." She spoke of her beginnings with her beautiful crocheted angels. "I saw a pattern and decided I'd make one. I do crochet them according to the pattern but I branch out as I go." she said. laughed as she said. "I guess I've always been a square pcg in a round hole."

Barbara Bradshaw taught herself to crochet as a teenager.

A few tricks of the trade, so to speak, were shared, "After 1 crochet the angel I use a stiffener to give it the shape. I don't use a commercial stiffener. I just use Elmer's glue and water. It's easily available and you don't have to go to a craft store to get it." A favorite from Bradshaw used to give the angels shape was cited as "a soy sauce bottle."

Tips on indivdualizing the angels was discussed. "I do white and plain light colors." she said. "You could spray paint them and add roses, pearls and lace or even touch up the face with cyclashes, lipstick and such."

Ornaments were another cre-ation that Bradahaw makes from crochet thread. "I crochet the ornaments," she said. "After I crochet them I dip the piece in water and wring it out and apply the glue. Then I blow up a balloon and form the crochet piece around the balloon and let it dry. It will stiffen and then you just pop the balloon."

In keeping with the holiday spirit of Christmas. Bradahaw stitches small candy canes. "The candy canes are just cotton crocheted thread twisted on a cord," she said. "It's important that it's cotton and not polyester thread because the polyester doesn't absorb the glue as well and hold its shape.

Siegel addresses STOP

STOP (Stop Turning Out Pris-oners) held a meeting Wednes-day. Aug. 10 at the Lake Mary Police Department. STOP had hoped to have their petition on the November ballot. Unfortu-nately, the Florida Supreme Court rejected the STOP peti-tion. Of the seven Florida Supreme Court justices, five Supreme Court justices. five have rejected the petition based on the wording. One of the key issues was how to define 85 percent of a life sentence. The crux of the STOP petition is that prisoners should serve at least 5 percent of their sentence. The justices also pointed out that the summary did not mention stop has been delayed, but

The diet consists of chicken. fish, potatoes, vegetables, egg whites and oatmeal and no bread and absolutely no chest-ing. He kept a daily journal of what, how much and now often he ate. Tony Vargas of World Oym was responsible for the diet, says Mike. "It was so hard, the most difficult thing I've ever done." The training consisted of a six day per week commitment of two hours in the morning and two hours in the evening of working out. Bill Trochleil, a state level competitor, trained with Mike which helped him to stay focused and motivated.

Family feel like commoners

Editor's Note: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following in a selection of some of her favorite past letters from the early 1970s.

DEAR ABET I am writing to you about a family problem. My grandmother just got married again. Grandpa died 12 years ago. and Grandma has lived with us ever since. (Grandma owns the house, but my dad did all the remodeling, keeps it up, so it's really more like ours.) Anyway. all those years. Grandma said she didn't need a man: but all of a sudden, she found this guy and everything changed. She's happy and just like a kid again.

Her new husband moved into our house and is sharing Grandma's room. He claims he has heart trouble, so all he does is eat, sleep and watch TV. Meanwhile, Grandma walls on him like he's a king. He loves her desserts, so now Grandma spends her time cooking and baking which is the only good part because the rest of the family is getting lots of good cats now. She used to mend and iron our clothes and even clean our rooms, but not anymore!

Both my mom and dad work, so we kids are left with the housework to do after school. I am sorry Grandma ever found this lazy old food. Why don't old people who are nearly 60 settle down to being alone instead of wanting to be young again? DOWNHEARTED

AND OVERWORKED DEAR D. AND O.: You are overlooking one small detail. It's Grandma's house! And as I see it. Grandma has been the live-in cook, housekeeper and baby sliter for the last 12 years. Sixty is not old, honey. And the older you get, the better you will understand it. Cheer up, and thank God for Grandma's newfound joy. It should happen to everybody. DEAR ABBY: I am a single mature young woman who met a middle-aged bachelor. Within a month, he proposed marriage. I though we should know each other better, so I suggested we wait a while before making any commitments.

He kept telling me he couldn't sister's 300 miles away for a vacation.) I told him there should be no letters or phone calls because I wanted to really think clearly about it.

Well, you've heard the old saying, "Absence makes the heart grow fonder." It must have worked, because I really missed him and, when I got home. I told him I had decided to marry him.

Then he told me he wanted a week to think it over. He didn't leave town but suggested we not see each other or talk on the phone. After the week was up.he asked for another week. I was hurt but gave him another week. Now he tells me he is still not sure and wants a little moe time to make up his mind!

Do you think he is pulling my leg or trying to get even with me? I want to marry him, but how do I get him to ask me now? PUT OFF

DEAR PUT OFF: I'm afraid you blew it when you left him for a week. You know that old saying. "Out of sight, out of mind?" Well, that's what happened. Your friend doesn't sound like he's ready for marriage yet. At least, not to you.

(Problems? Write to Deer Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, live without me and had to have my answer, so I told him I wanted to go away for a week to think things over. (I went to my

the Tabernacle Church, Atlanta. The speaker of the hour was presented by Elder Gradey Roberson. After the selection, Elder Ronnie Richardson, pastor of the Tabernacle Church of Deliverance, Atlanta, brought the message of the morning, "Unity in Love." His message reinforced the theme chosen for the family reunion. "Unity Brings Togetherness." The words of joy, love, and praises will forever remain in the hearts and minds of those present.

The honorary awards were presented by co-chairman of the reunion, Rozland H. Tillman. Special honor was given to William Hosea Tillman (Bubba). the patriarch of the Tillman family who is now in a local nursing home: he received a standing ovation. Uncle William. as he is affectionately called, is the living example of love in the Tillman family.

Another of the Tillman patriarchs honored was Marie Tilliman, wife of the late Angua Tillman, affectionately called "Jew." Josephine Banks, a sister, was honored for having come the farthest to attend the reunion. She is from Philadelphia. The other cochairman of the 1994 reunion. Benita Tillman Brown, gave closing remarks and words of gratitude to the attendees, volunteers, family and extended members.

The Tillmans are a praying family. They are the ones that always remember to put God first., "Prayer." said Mrs. Tillman, is the key to the strong faith in God. He has and will be their director. He has granted health, strength and long life to the Tillman family members, and he has promised to never leave them alone. The Christian family of Tillmans share the word of God. It is the fruit of the Spirit. Remember these thoughts: Love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meckness. Always be temperate. Yes, the Tillmans are still making this world a better place.

Tillmans attending came from Atlanta and Savannah. Ga., Virginia, Philadelphia, Tampa, Jacksonville and Tallahassec.

they have not given up. Seminole County STOP Chair Gary Jennings explained that a new petition drive will be under way as soon as the petition has been rewritten. STOP attorneys are currently doing just that. Once STOP has 43,000 signatures on the new petition, it can be brought up for review by the Florida Supreme Court. If the petition is approved as written. STOP will then have to gather 430,000 signatures to get on the ballot.

STOP will be putting the names of people who signed the old STOP petition into a database. These people will then be contacted to sign the new petition. To get new signatures. STOP will be sending volunteers to events like the Seminole County Fair in hopes of reaching a lot of people in a short amount of time. STOP is endorsed by the State Attorney's office, the Flor-Ida Prosecuting Attorney's Association, the Florida Sheriff's Association, Strikeforce, and MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving). The next Lake Mary STOP meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Sept. 14 in the Lake Mary Commission Chambers.

The STOP speaker for the evening was Florida State Senator Gary Siegel. Senator Siegel. a supporter of STOP. recounted some of his experiences as chair of the Senate Corrections Committee. One month after the senator was elected, Donald McDougall, the killer of 5-year-old Ursula Sunshine Assaid, was scheduled to be released early from prison based on gain-time credits. (Currently, for every 30 days served, 60 days comes off the sentence.) The statutes are supposed to prohibit this gaintime for murderers and criminals who commit a sexual offense. Due to Siegel's efforts in uncovering this fact, McDougall and approximately 1,500 other convicted murderers lost their gain time.

Siegel was also instrumental in the reform of the Juvenile Justice system. The new system, scheduled for implementation in October, will use half its resources for prevention and half for rehabilitation. The new system will also take HRS out of the Juvenile Justice system. Under the new Juvenile Justice system, five new boot camps will be opened. A program to provide two months of aftercare to juveniles who go to boot camp will be implemented. Juveniles can be kept three years or until they are 21. Under HRS. a teen could beat up their parent, go to court, be released to that same parent two hours later, even if the parent didn't want them re-

The world of competition and winning is not foreign to Mike Akerson. Mike talks of being small and being a freshman at Lake Mary High School and wanting to play football. "I wanted to play so bad and just started training for it and I made it." This led to competition on the weight lifting team and by the time that Mike was a senior he was the captain of the weight lifting team and a state finalist.

Asking Mike how he came to be so disciplined, he explained that his parents are very disciplined and they raised him to "think in terms of goals, plan how to attain that goal and do it: they always encouraged me and supported me. It's a package deal ... everybody helping each other.'

As his parents instructed. Mike has his long range goals and his short range goals in place and he's not afraid to claim them. At Florida State University Mike is majoring in nutrition and fitness and would like to become a professional athletic trainer for the NFL. He is currently training for the title of "Mr. FSU" a school-sponsored body building competition to be held in March of 1995. Michael A. Akerson is the son of Linda M. Akerson and Steven J. Akerson of Longwood.

Diabetes: symptoms and treatment It is a serious, but manageable disease

By RENEE KEITH Herald Columnist

SANFORD — According to the ADA (American Diabetes Associ-ation), the fundamental problem in diabetes is the body's inability to metabolize glucosc, a com-mon form of sugar, fully and continually. This is a vital pro-cess in creating body cell energy. Glucose is a chemical derivative of the carbohydrates in food after they have been ingested. Carbohydrates are mostly of plant origin and may be called starch, saccharide, sucrose or simply sugar. Glucose is stored under normal conditions in the form of glycogen. or animal starch, in the liver and muscles for later use at which time it is reconverted to glucose.

Much of this might sound very involved and confusing for most people until you have a conversation with someone who is currently experiencing the dis-case as is the case of Melina Magner. She has battled with diabetes since the tender age of 7. The ADA explains that diabetes is ordinarily not a difficult disease to diagnosis, especially in children. This is because the symptoms, and the changes that occur, are so much more noticeable in a child. In Magner's case, she had all of the symptoms. The rapid weight ions, extreme hunger, general-ized weakness, and frequent and copious urination, and insatiable thirst made the diagnosis very recognizable for her then. San-ford physician. Dr. Charles Hardwick. He started Magner on one injection of insulin a day which in layman's terms and, in the case of Magner, is called being insulin dependent. Magner has gone through life having to face extreme struggles having to face extreme struggles due to her disease. Her mother, Diane Magner, recalls all of the hospital stays and the fearful days and nights waiting for Magner's condition to stabilize to where she could come home and once again resume her life. "We started out with Dr. Hardwick here in Sanford, however, the diabetes was getting so out of control that he referred us to an endocrinologist in Orlando by the name of Dr. Samuel Crockett," said Magner's mother. Currently, due to changes in her insurance plan. Magers is under the care of Dr. Berry Cook, a general practi-tioner in Lake Mary. He has her on her current daily dose of Lente and regular insulin three times a day.

Magner's most recent scare was just this last May. Her blood sugar level was at 400 and it would not descend to the normal range of 80 to 120 or even below 300 which would have been a alight improvement. She was hospitalized for four days. "That is all part of having to live with diabetes," she said. Magner goes on to explain how she carries a small insulated bag with her medications, her syringes and her One Touch blood glucose machine. "I give myself three injections a day, one after breakfast, one after lunch and one after dinner." Sometimes I might have to give myself a fourth injection just before I go to bed depending on how my sugar levels are and if I'll be able to bed depending on how my sugar levels are and if I'll be able to maintain a safe sugar level until morning." Magner said. Magner knows her limitations and still manages to live a full and productive life. At the pres-ent time she is working at (Certified Nurse's Aide). Magner also happily adds. "I'm getting married next year in July." During the past year, the "coronary-flow velocity guidewire" has been used successfully to pinpoint the best treatment for patients with heart trouble at the Shands Cardiovascular Center at UF, one of only two Florida medical centers where it is available. The other is JFK Medical Center in Lake Worth. Like a police officer who uses radar to track the speed of cars on a road, the catheter emits sound waves that help physi-cians calculate blood velocity on either side of an arterial blockage. Blood velocity can register at abnormal levels in a variety of medical conditions.

In heart disease patients, that information has been used to angioplasty to widen a narrowed coronary vessel, laser surgery to remove buildup of fatty deposits on blood vessel walls or bypass surgery.

"The information can be used immediately to make an as-sessment." Wargovich said. "That can save the patient and the physician time and extra expenses."

The procedure can be repeated periodically to determine whether heart disease is regreasing in response to therapies such as the use of blood pressure medication, he added. Dr. Kishida, a leading authority on the immune system, explains the im-portance of his discovery: "Preliminary clinical studies suggest that con-sumption of Labre, isolated from the suguki pickle, may enhance the body's natural capacity to produce alpha-interferon, one of the body's front lines of immune defense.'

Academy ready for students again

By Line Berger Horald

After the debut of the Academy of Health Careers Barbecue last year, it has become an annual event. Well...at least it was held again this year. This is an event that celebrates the arrival of the incoming freshmen of the Academy. It also gives everyone the chance to meet some of the other atudenta.

This year's barbecue was held on Thursday, Aug. 11. Some of the returning building of the Academy build-ing which is now underway.

Academy students helped to get the event off by setting everying up and getting prepared.

The assembly was opened with a few remarks and welcomes by the returning students.

Then, speakers such as Dr. Pauk Hagerty, superintendent of schools; Gretchen Schapker, principal; Nancy Julian, director of the Academy of Health Ca-reers and Sally LaGoy, guidance counselor for the Academy of Health Careers, got the chance they are the first influences over to talk to the many guests.

awaited barbecue.

This was not only a chance for people to relieve their hunger. but also to meet their teachers. The biggest stiraction was the school board members and to ask some of the returning students some questions.

The returning students acted as problem solvers, acted as hosts and hostesses and tried to be a friend to some of the people who knew no one clac.

This is an event that everyone looks forward to, especially the returning students. They get their first peek at all the new students, but most importantly, them.

Like all teens, we like to make them think a little bit. Maybe kid them a little and, we admit it, maybe scare them a little.

It's all in good fun. It is not too bad. They will get used to it.

After all, who else will be there to teach them how to do it to next year's incoming class.

I would like to welcome the Academy of Health Carcers' class of 1998.

I wish you the best of luck, in not only succeeding, but in following the class of 1997. We are going to be a hard class to follow.

All kidding aside, Good Luck.
