McDonald's robbed

SANFORD — A search continues for two suspects who robbed the McDonald's Restaurant on S.R. 46 at Hickman Road shortly after 6 a.m. Sunday. According to sheriff's spokesman Ed McDonough, two men, wearing masks and gloves, and carrying black-colored pistols, confronted the manager just as the restaurant was opening for business. McDonough says the two forced the manager at gunpoint to open the safe and put all the cash in a bag. The suspects also took money from the cash register at the driveup window.

McDonough said no shots were fired, and the manager and four employees in the restaurant at the time were not injured. No estimate was given on the amount of money which was stolen.

One of the suspects is described as a black male, 20 years of age, five foot seven inches tall, 155 pounds, with brown hair and black eyes. The second, also a black male, 20 years old, was described as being five feet tall and 140 pounds with black hair.

The two reportedly escaped in a white Nissan Stanza.

Deputy shooting

SANFORD — Investigators from the sheriff's office Violent Crimes Section are following up on an incident early Sunday in which a burglary suspect fired to shotgun blasts at a Seminole County deputy.

Spokesman Ed McDonough said Sgt. Mike Weippert was on patrol at approximately 1:30 a.m., and began chasing a blue pickup truck and brown Mazda. Two men in the truck and one in the car were suspected of burglarizing the Bicycle Castle on S.R. 438 in Casselberry.

During the chase, McDonough said one of the men fired two blasts from a sawed-off shotgun at Weippert's patrol car. One struck the light bar. The deputy was not injured.

McDonough said the men jumped from the pickup truck on Marquette Avenue into the Mazda, and escaped into Volusia County.

Fall from truck

DAYTONA BEACH — Thomas Christopher Moore, 23, of Tanaka Farms Road, Daytona Beach, was killed Sunday. The Florida Highway Patrol said Moore was riding in the bed of a 1987 Ford pickup truck on Interstate 95 at approximately 6:15 Sunday afternoon, when for some unknown reason, he fell out of the back of the vehicle and was killed.

The FHP incident report says the case is believed to be alcohol related, but no charges have been made pending a further investigation.

Kids safety day

LAKE MARY — Area law enforcement officers and fire and rescue professionals will mix safety education with fun at the Lake Mary Center Saturday. The event is called Kid's Safety Day.

Displays by the sheriff's department and Seminole County fire and rescue squad will be featured along with free fun for the children including a moonwalk, kid's train, the Kidstuff video tent, pony rides, food booths, and much more.

According to shopping center spokesman Rob Newton, whose company is helping produce the event, "Kids will have a chance to learn personal, bicycle and home safety from the experts one-on-one, while having a chance at some free fun."

He added, "This is an opportunity to see the latest in law enforcement vehicles and the life saving equipment from the fire and rescue department."

At 12 noon, Seminole County Sheriff Don Eslinger will be given a special presentation of the Lake Mary Centre Public Safety and Service Award.

Lake Mary Centre is located just east of the Lake Mary I-4 interchange, on Lake Mary Boulevard.

For additional information, phone Rob Newton at 530-5529.

County's lead employer Government employs 7,000 in Seminole

From staff and wire reports

SANFORD — Government continues to be a major source of employment in this area. Over 7,000 people are presently employed by Seminole County and the local school system.

The figures are in keeping with the employment picture on a national level as well, with the nation's cities and counties presently offering over four million full-time jobs.

Across the nation, county jobs topped the 2 million level for the first time, reaching the equivalent of 2.03 million full-time workers as of October 1992, the Census Bureau has reported. That was up from 1.98 million a year earlier.

At the same time, cities employed about 2.33 million full-time workers, up from 2.30 million. Local government employment is measured in terms of full-time jobs, known as full-time equivalent positions. That is the number of people, working full time, needed to work the total hours of full-time and part-time government workers.

Seminole County has 2,009 authorized positions.

In the City of Sanford, Personnel Director Tim McCauley says the city has authority to have as many as 417 total employees. "The lowest pay scale is for Maintenance Worker I," he said, "which is $12,372 at entry pay. That position can max-out at $18,602."

"For secretaries," he continued, "there are three levels. The lowest, for Secretary III, is $16,452 per year, with the highest secretary level at $24,738."

McCauley said department heads salaries range from $38,555 to $57,972 in Sanford.

The City of Lake Mary currently employs 80 people. Finance Director Randy Knight says the lowest annual wage for a city employee is $10,920. "Salaries for department heads," he said, "range from a low of $31,762 to a high of $54,600, but that is the pay level, it doesn't mean we have anyone presently at the bottom or top of that level."

For both Sanford and Lake Mary, only department heads were calculated for this report, not the City Manager, which is at a higher pay level in both cities.

The City of Longwood has 122 full-time employees, finance director Jim Coleman said. Salaries for workers range from $6.31 an hour workers who gross $13,124 annually to depart-

SANFORD — Dedicated volunteers and workers who provide services for low-income families in a six-county area were honored for their work at a Friday luncheon in Sanford.

Central Florida Legal Services Inc. provides civil (noncriminal) legal assistance to persons who can't afford to hire private counsel. The agency serves individuals in Putnam, Volusia, Flagler, Seminole, St. Johns and Brevard counties. About 150,000 people are eligible for services. The organization offers free legal services to those who qualify in areas such as housing, public benefits, consumer, employment, health, family, education and individual rights. Many legal services' clients are working people or people on fixed incomes such as

Homeless have few options

By WICKI DEBORNER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — According to official figures, there are only a few homeless people in Sanford and only a few more than that in Seminole County.

A visit to Sanford's Rescue Outreach Mission on 13th Street or to makeshift encampments in woods all around the county will show that the number is much higher than the official count would indicate.

According to Charles Rowe, director of community development for the City of Sanford, the numbers of homeless people are based on U.S. Census Department figures. Not too many homeless people fill out census forms, however, he points out.

"Not only that," he said, "they run from the census takers. We know there are hundreds more than we have on officially, but they don't count (for federal funding purposes) unless they are officially counted."

There are not too many options for homeless people in Seminole County, Mother Blanche Bell Weaver, who runs the Rescue Outreach Mission, points out.

As a matter of fact, her mission is the only choice they have if they want to spend the night indoors.

"We are it," she said. "There are no other shelters in Seminole County anywhere. They don't have any other choice."

That's just the point, Carolyn Irwin of Sanford said.

Her brother David was homeless and living in the woods near a hotel in Brevard County before he died last week.

She said that when she sought help for her brother when he was living on the streets, she was told that he and others like him were homeless by choice. He could have lived with her

Sanford's all wet Rain continues above normal

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Continued above-normal rainfall has almost pushed Sanford into the wet category.

A surplus of 2.48 inches in July helped Sanford reach near-normal annual rainfall for the past 12 months — and probably, grass to grow a bit faster than reluctant mowers prefer. A total of 8.7 inches was recorded at Central Florida Regional Airport last month, well above the normal 6.22 inches for the month.

ground water conditions are monitored by the St. Johns River Water Management District.

During the May-to-July period, Sanford received 4.82 inches of above normal rain. For the past six months, 3.09 inches more than normal was recorded. For the past 12 months, Sanford was still 3.71 inches below normal. Only Ocala had a greater deficit of rain in the district for the past year. That area has received 9.21 inches less than normal.

The district normal rainfall is established by the average monthly rain for the 1961 to Hearing set on purchase of building in Longwood

By SANDRA ELLIOTT
Herald Staff Writer

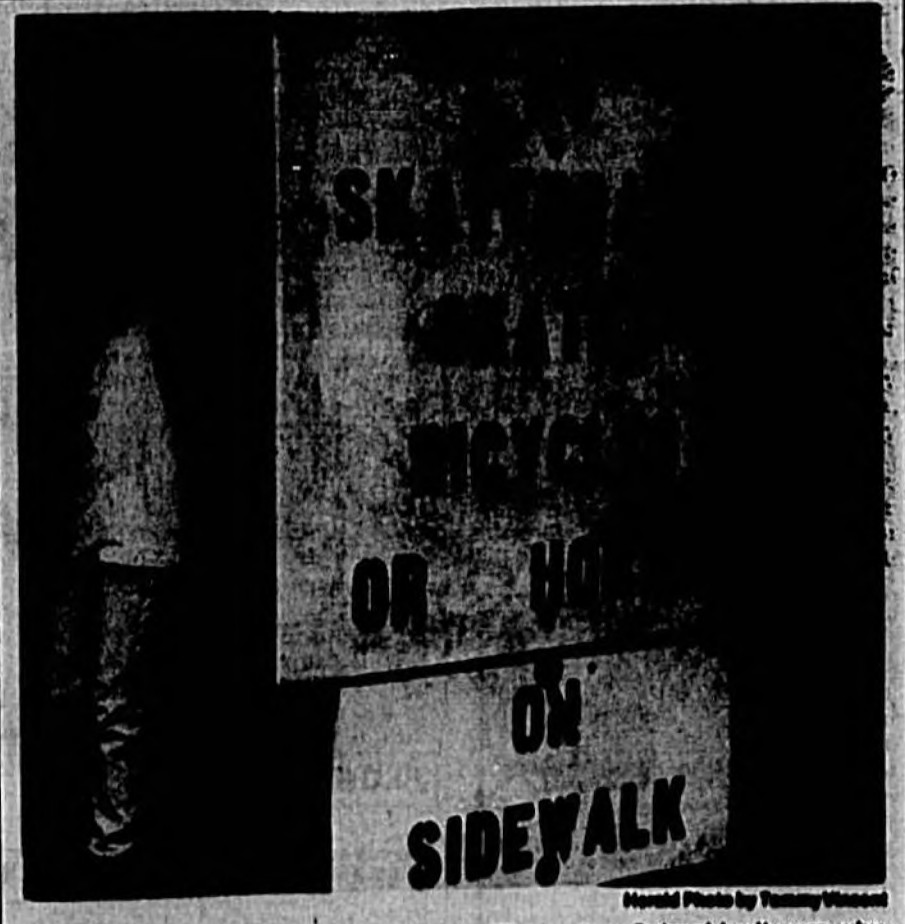

LONGWOOD — City commissioners will conduct a public hearing tonight on the purchase of a building at 305 South Millwee Street for expansion of the fire department.

The city plans to spend $195,000 for the building adjacent to the main fire station to be used for offices and training rooms. About $112,000 of the purchase price is coming from money saved on asphalt in the street paving program. The remainder will be paid from city reserves.

A few months ago, the commissioners agreed to allow the use of paving material containing recycled

No horsing around at school

Jason Walters, a fifth grader at Geneva Elementary School isn't sure why, but the school officials have found it necessary to ban horses from the sidewalks at the facility. Equine intrusions aren't a problem at most schools in the district, but there are quite a few horses in the neighborhood of this rural school who might want to take a stroll through the halls.

More prison escapes

PUNTA GORDA — Five prisoners broke out of the Charlotte County Jail after kicking out a window, but were recaptured 13 hours later at a nearby motel.

The inmates escaped late Saturday from a trailer being used to ease crowding at the crowded jail.

Shortly before noon Sunday, Charlotte County investigators got a tip that the five might be at the motel.

They discovered the escapees, who attempted to run, but were caught within five minutes. Some had bad cuts from scaling razor-wire fences at the jail; a medical team was standing by to stitch them up.

Michael W. Lacroix, 19; Timothy Ray Wright, 32; Robert Lee Whitworth, 22; James John Rouches, 31; and Timothy Joseph Mace, 21, will be charged with escape, which could mean up to 15 years in prison, said spokesman Chuck Ellis. Two also will be charged with resisting arrest.

Most had been serving time for misdemeanors, but two had been convicted of armed robbery.

Teenager survives after speared by rail

GREENACRES — For a few moments, rescuers thought Billy Hungerford was just trapped after he lost control of his car and hit a guardrail. Then they noticed a pedestrian railing had impaled him, 14 feet of its 21-foot length passing through the 16-year-old's abdomen.

Last week, Billy became a medical miracle. After 54 days in Delray Community Hospital, he walked out, a testimony to his will to live and an innovative and well-coordinated rescue system.

"God was watching over him," said firefighter Randy Mosher.

He said the galvanized steel pipe that adjoins the guardrail had speared the front of Billy's 1990 Dodge Shadow, then pierced the radiator, firewall and dashboard. After passing through Billy, the pipe bored through his seat, the back seat and the rear of the car.

Billy's ordeal began June 15 when he was headed for school. Witnesses said his car struck the tip of a half-mile section of guardrail.

He had to be cut from the pipe with a special tool. Once freed from the car, Billy was placed sideways on a backboard, the pipe protruding about eight inches from his front and eight inches from his back. He was then flown to the hospital.

Two elderly men stop burglar

MELBOURNE — Two elderly men tossed a burglar out the front door of their apartment though he had a knife. The man was arrested 10 hours later because of clues he left behind.

He was picked up at a marina where worked on a shark-fishing boat. Police say fishing equipment he left behind at the scene and fishing boots he wore during the robbery gave him away.

Claude Edward Smith III was being held at the Brevard County Detention Center.

"One of our officers stopped the guy about an hour before the incident happened around 1 a.m. Friday," Rockledge police Lt. David Andrews said Saturday. "He was wearing worn fishing boots and carrying several items he later left sitting outside the apartment when he burglarized it. The cop remembered the items."

Even though the officer took down all of Smith's personal information — including his Social Security number and description — he broke into the first-floor apartment, climbing in through an unlocked kitchen window, police said.

Apartment residents Attilio Pansanero, 83, and John Zito, 72, subdued Smith and tossed him out — but not before noticing his white fishing boots. They included those in their description of the man, which officers remembered.

Toddler killed when car rolled into pond

NAPLES — A 2-year-old Naples boy was killed when the car he was sitting in rolled backwards and fell into a pond.

Joshua Benjamin Anselon died shortly after noon Saturday at Naples Community Hospital.

Collier County sheriff's deputies said the car was not running and was in park. It was impounded for further investigation into how it started rolling.

Paulette Anselon, 44, had taken her three children two boys and a girl to visit a friend. When she decided to leave, she put the children one by one in the car.

A witness said that as she went to get the third child the car began rolling back. The boy had apparently been strapped in a child restraint seat, a witness said.

The second boy was able to get out of the car.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Medicare fraud uncovered Phantom firms costs state $1 Billion

By The Associated Press

MIAMI — If Medicaid authorities had checked one address into which they poured thousands of claims dollars, they would have found nothing but a sand pit — at the Fontainebleau Golf Club.

If there were an office at the corporate address of Whope of America, which has billed Medicare for thousands of dollars, it would be between the Blue Grotto Apartments and a Farm Store in Miami.

But the only thing there is an alley leading to the sand trap on the Fontainebleau's 10th hole. Whope has no phone listed, just a beeper number that nobody answers. The Miami Herald reported Sunday.

The newspaper said an investigation showed that cheating Medicare is as easy as filling out a form asking name, address, phone number and a statement saying the operators haven't been in trouble with Medicare.

"What we have seen is a series of health care providers come into existence solely on paper," said Joseph A. Birdsong, a U.S. Department of Health and Human Services investigator assigned to South Florida.

"The company submits a series of claims, usually between $200,000 and $1 million.

By the time Health and Human Services becomes aware of the scam, the company and John Doe have vanished," Birdsong said.

"It is pathetic," said Sen. Bob Graham, a member of the U.S. Senate Special Committee on Aging. "If nobody is checking, they don't know a sand trap from a downtown office building."

The consensus at an April hearing the Florida Democrat held in Miami was that about $1 billion a year is lost to Medicare fraud in the state, about 10 percent of the Medicare money paid in Florida.

Graham said he pressed the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and its Medicare arm, the Health Care Financing Administration, to tighten controls. "We have not had a great response," he said.

The government relies largely on private companies like Blue Cross/Blue Shield that collect about $1.50 a claim to process bills, he said.

Medicare said it adopted a tougher review process last November, but it took until July 1 to get started in Florida.

Faye Baggiano, associate administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration, said billing contractors recently have hired 500 inspectors across the country to check for fraudulent billings.

Nobody checked Whope, confirmed Valerie Moorer-Murph, who signed the letter approving the company's March 18 application. Moorer-Murph works for Blue Cross/Blue Shield of South Carolina, which processes Medicare claims from Florida medical suppliers.

"As long as the application is complete, and has a signature at the bottom, it is approved," she said.

Doing more to protect Medicare money — $158 billion this year — is a huge challenge, according to the Health Care Financing Administration. Nationwide, 1.6 million providers bill Medicare for 36 million patients.

Under the new system, a sample of companies is checked before approval. "Right now, we are checking 10 percent of them," said Winston Wise, director of the national screening program.

"By the time we get involved, it's often too late," said Kendall Coffey, U.S. Attorney in Miami. "The taxpayers' money is gone."

Coffey's office has filed cases against four companies in the last two months accused of using phony addresses and mail drops to cheat the government out of more than $3 million.

Audubon denies program

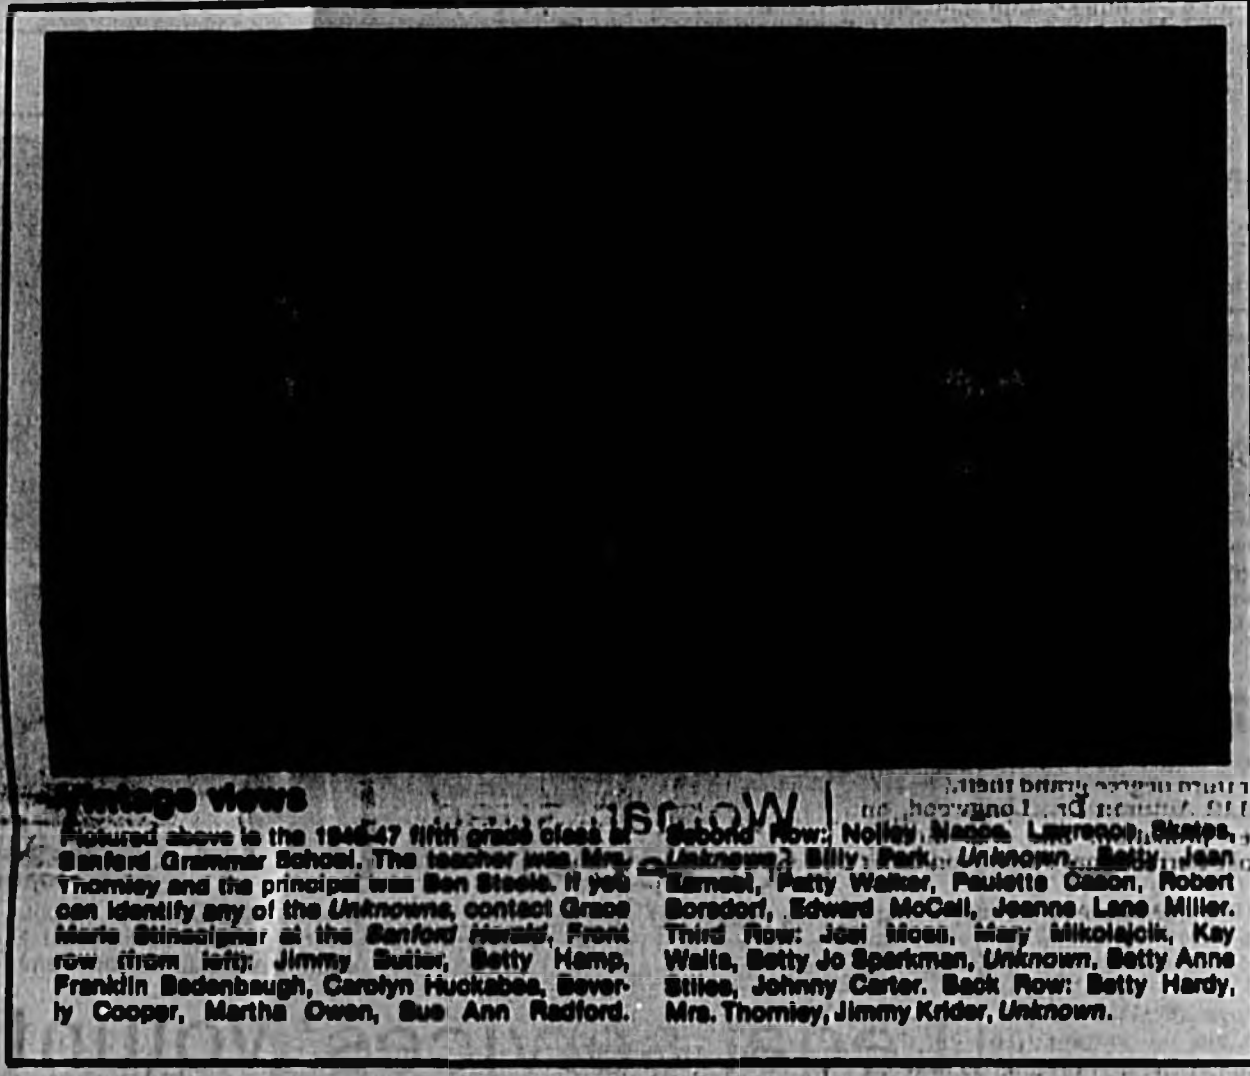

By The Associated Press

WEST PALM BEACH — The National Audubon Society says it has nothing to do with a group out of New York state that uses the Audubon name and runs an environmental program aimed at golf courses.

But golf courses across the state are proudly signing up to become Audubon Cooperative Sanctuaries. They say it's prestigious and image-enhancing.

The program encourages golf courses to build bird houses, nurture native vegetation and perform other ecologically beneficial tasks, is sponsored by the Audubon Society of New York State Inc. More than 100 Florida golf courses paid $100 each to enroll in the Audubon Cooperative Sanctuary Program.

But the National Audubon Society, the environmental group most people associate with the Audubon name, has no ties to the New York State group.

Depression heads toward Florida panhandle

By The Associated Press

CORAL GABLES — A tropical depression headed to the Panhandle increased strength overnight and could become Tropical Storm Beryl later today, forecasters said.

The system remained motionless for several hours overnight at latitude 29.8 north and longitude 85.9 west, or about 40 miles to the southwest of Panama City, according to a National Hurricane Center bulletin issued at 4 a.m. CDT.

The system was expected to head north northeast.

The system's winds — measuring 35 mph early today — were expected to accelerate throughout the day, transforming the depression into a tropical storm, said David Roth, a meteorologist at the hurricane center. A tropical storm has winds measuring 39 mph or more.

But Beryl isn't expected to be as destructive as Alberto, which last month killed at least 28 people in Georgia and caused severe flooding.

"Alberto had winds of 65 miles per hour when it hit the coast. Indications are that this thing would have winds of 40 miles an hour when it hits the coast," Roth said.

Beryl is expected to reach the shore sometime Tuesday, Roth said.

Beryl is expected to pour between 3 and 5 inches of rainfall in Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia and North Florida, Roth said. Local rainfall amounts could vary between 5 and 10 inches, he said.

"There's no break for the poor people up there," said National Weather Service specialist Bill Locke. "It's moving in the same general direction as Alberto."

Flood watches were issued Sunday for all of the Big Bend area of Florida: Jackson, Calhoun, Liberty, Gadsden, Leon, Wakulla, Jefferson, Madison, Taylor, and Dixie counties, in southwest Georgia, residents of Seminole, Decatur, Grady, Thomas, and Brooks counties were cautioned.

Jerry Russell Horton Jr., 31, 3301 S. Sanford Ave., Sanford, was charged with disorderly intoxication and possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana by Sanford Police.

Police reported he was seen slumped over the steering wheel of his car at First Street and U.S. 17-92 on Saturday morning. When they tried to awaken him, he became belligerent.

During a search, police found a small amount of cannabis in a baggie in his possession. He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $500 bond.

While his car was at the impound lot, officers said they saw a camera and a checkbook with the name of the person who had reported the items missing from the car at the theatre.

Grace was arrested on the burglary charges at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility.

3 arrested for stealing $2 million from airplane

By Associated Press

TAMPA — Two young baggage handlers seized an opportunity at the airport here last week when a last-minute gate change allowed a Federal Reserve Bank shipment of $2 million to go unprotected.

The gate change meant some fast footwork for the armed guards waiting to meet the money. It took only 10 minutes for the guards to reach the Continental Airlines plane at its new gate.

By that time, though, the baggage handlers seized the cash, the FBI says.

About 30 hours later, authorities found the first of their suspects in Tampa, and they didn't have to look far to find the stolen loot.

It was spilling out of a bag in the back seat of the 18-year-old suspect's Mazda RX-7 cruising down a road near the airport.

Airport workers Santiago Mora Santa and Esequiel "Ziggy" Cuevas III, and Mora Santa's brother-in-law, Carlos Gusman, were arrested Friday and charged with the heist.

"Was it temptation that overtook people?" asked Allen H. McCright, special agent in charge of the FBI's Tampa office. "It could have been a crime of opportunity. We're not sure if it was planned."

Mora Santa, 22, and Cuevas, 18, work for International Total Services, a company that contracts with Continental Airlines to provide various ramp services, including baggage handling.

Gusman, 18, works as a truck supervisor for Gator Go-Karts, in northwest Hillsborough County. FBI officials say Gusman attempted to hide the money Mora Santa and Cuevas stole.

Cuban refugees keep arriving
Repeat of 1980 Mariel boatlift raises concerns

By Associated Press

MIAMI — As wave after wave of Cuban refugees washes ashore in South Florida, Mariel preparedness has replaced hurricane preparedness as a prime activity this summer.

An increase in refugee activity from the communist island has raised concerns about a repeat of the 1980 Mariel boatlift in South Florida, which was overwhelmed then by the arrival of 125,000 Cubans.

"June set a monthly record," Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer Dan Waldschmidt said Sunday. "Then July broke that record by a few, and through half of this month it looks like another record month."

In Monday's editions, the Miami Herald reported a rumor circulating in Cuba: anyone who can make a raft or find a boat rather than steal or hijack one will be allowed to leave for the United States.

"Fidel said we wouldn't serve as coast guards to help the United States control immigration. So now the Griffins (patrol boats) won't bother you. If you want to leave, go ahead and get out," Fernando Mayor, who rents fishing boats on the outskirts of the Cuban capital of Havana, told the newspaper.

At 10 p.m., 149 Cubans had been picked up in 12 incidents, the Coast Guard said. Saturday's total was 156 in 25 cases.

So far this fiscal year — which began in October — Coast Guardsmen have found 7,076 Cubans, compared with 2,824 in fiscal 1993.

The Coast Guard has begun Operation Town Crier, in which boaters are warned that it's illegal to travel to Cuba and bring back refugees not cleared for entry by U.S. immigration authorities. In 1980, many boats left Florida for Cuba and returned packed with refugees.

Patrol boats from the seven Coast Guard stations in South Florida are plying local waters, talking with boaters and giving them written statements of the penalties for ignoring the warnings.

Anyone convicted of illegally bringing someone in from Cuba faces a fine of $100,000 and a year's imprisonment for each person brought in — unless officials determine they transported Cubans for profit. In that case, the punishment increases to $250,000 and five years per person.

For profit or not, any vessel used to bring in Cubans illegally will be forfeited.

Windy, rainy weather in the Florida Keys held down the number of arrivals on Sunday.

"In weather like this, we count the people who arrive, but we have to worry about the people who don't make it," said Arturo Cobo, head of the Cuban Transit Center, located on Stock Island just off Key West, which receives refugees after they are processed by federal officials.

College denies charges
Woman sued for sexual harassment

By Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — Three men allege that a female Broward Community College supervisor demoted or fired them after they rejected her sexual advances.

The accusations came in federal lawsuits by engineering instructor Ronald Chilluffo and computer sciences teachers Halland Yearwood and Joseph Ciampi.

The three claimed Sandra Sanders, chairwoman of the computer sciences and engineering department at Broward Community College's Coconut Creek campus, insisted at different times that each "maintain a sexual relationship with her as a condition of employment."

Sanders couldn't be reached, but the Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale reported Sunday that the provost of the Broward Community College north campus, Larry McFarlane, called the allegations unfounded.

"Obviously, the college takes this very seriously. We have looked into these charges," said McFarlane.

In a March report on the accusations, he had concluded, "No evidence was found to substantiate any of your allegations as constituting sexual harassment."

Ciampi said the report was a whitewash, and Yearwood also disputed it, saying investigators didn't interview him. Chilluffo declined to comment.

In his lawsuit against the college's District Board of Trustees, Ciampi said Sanders frequently used sexual innuendo and told him she was lonely. Yearwood said in his suit that Sanders told him the same thing.

Ciampi said Sanders grabbed his crotch when they were on the dance floor at the Holiday Inn in Coral Springs, a hangout for instructors from the community college.

Ciampi, who is not married, said he felt vulnerable because he wanted a job as a full-time instructor but needed Sanders' support to get it.

Yearwood alleged he was not rehired after the past academic year because he rejected efforts by Sanders to get him to date her or academic Dean Marie Foster, "because she wanted influence in Dean Foster's office."

Planning now for fireworks

It's time to begin planning ahead. In this case, ahead by 11 months.

The Sanford Downtown Historic Waterfront Association, SHDWA, is holding a meeting Tuesday morning in downtown Sanford. The main subject is scheduled to be SHDWA's involvement in the 1995 Independence Day holiday. Primarily, work to return the July 4th fireworks display to the city.

At the beginning of July of this year, SHDWA announced it would support fireworks for next year. Because of the time required to obtain financial donations and order fireworks, it was too late to have such a display this year.

During Tuesday's meeting, members of SHDWA will be asked if they will be willing to act as the main sponsor of the 1995 event. We hope they approve the suggestion.

When Steve Alford announced he was pulling out of the fireworks fund raising earlier this year, there were much talk about how to go about getting the rockets red glare to resound over the Lake Monroe waterfront.

Many people wrote letters to the Sanford Herald saying they would be glad to support anyone who stepped forward as the leader in this project. Much other talk was generated over who should be responsible for this leadership, and of more importance, the supplying of funds.

Additional dismay over the lack of fireworks came the night of July 4th, when many people drove to the lakefront, not knowing the fireworks would not be held. Many reported they and their children were greatly disappointed.

With SHDWA looking into whether or not to support this next year's drive, we believe it's time for all of the people to come back to the forefront.

Attend Tuesday morning's SHDWA meeting. One does not have to be a member of the organization, or even a resident or business person from downtown Sanford to be on hand for the discussion.

If SHDWA's leadership and membership knows they will have support from the people, we have no doubt they will vote in favor of the sponsorship and fund raising efforts.

If people don't show up, we wouldn't blame them if they voted against it. After all, Steve Alford called it "People's Fireworks," and if the people only want to see it, without helping to arrange it, it simply will not work.

Tuesday's SHDWA meeting will be held at the Colonial Room Restaurant in downtown Sanford beginning at 9 a.m.

If you want to see fireworks return to the Sanford lakefront for July 4th, 1995, be there.

America: What's right

We live in a time in which we hear so much of what is wrong with our country and its people, so much that is cynical and pessimistic, that we wonder sometimes if there is anything right with America. Too often we emphasize the negatives, we completely overlook the positive aspects of our national background and heritage.

Our American heritage has been one of courage, initiative and imagination, in forging out of an uncivilized wilderness, a great nation — the richest, most powerful and magnanimous in this world's history. Scientific achievements have moved its people from the frugality of a frontier existence, to the abundance and prosperity of a technological civilization.

While we are apt to criticize the imperfections of our tribune political system, yet it has granted a full measure of freedom to more people than any other system man has devised — past or present. While her boundaries expanded, her shores embraced untold millions seeking escape from oppression in many lands. They were seeking refuge and a new way of life in this land we call America. Our "minorities" have seen such a marked degree of improvement in their economic, political, and social status, that they are now far better off than the citizens of most every nation on the face of the earth.

In a period of unresolved internal tensions of many kinds, America still has the fortitude, courage and initiative to recognize her weaknesses and failures, and then take steps within the framework of democratic government, to correct, to improve, to develop, to mature as a nation.

While we must take measures to correct our faults and errors, we also need to take time to re-emphasize those things which are right with America, those things which have given her people the full measure of freedom, those things which have made her great in courage, in compassion, in humanitarianism, in defense of human rights and dignities.

Is the GOP abandoning pro-lifers?

New York Democratic Gov. Mario M. Cuomo is in trouble. First elected in 1982, he may not survive this year's challenge from Republican George Pataki. If $100 bills were to be offered to the first 50 New Yorkers who could name five of Cuomo's achievements in the past 12 years, there would probably be no winners. As his spinners admit, the great speechmaker has not been good at communicating what he has actually done between speeches.

Until a couple of months ago, George Pataki, with no statewide identity, might have appeared to voters as maybe an outfielder for the Minnesota Twins. Yet, because of Cuomo's vulnerability, Pataki is now seen as a real contender.

But Pataki is in trouble too. A candidate's position on abortion is a litmus test for large numbers of New York voters, and Pataki is trying unconvincingly to be credible to both sides. Cuomo also used to do a soft shoe dance on the issue, repeating, like a mantra, that as a Catholic, "I personally oppose abortion, but I would not impose my views, as governor, on anybody else."

Cuomo seldom has to say that anymore because he has become as strong a paladin of abortion rights as Gloria Steinem.

Although Pataki, once regarded as pro-life, has now made some pro-choice pledges, the pro-choice voters do not trust a trimmer. Despite what other quaffs they may have about Cuomo, they are sure of his views on abortion.

On the other side, many pro-lifers feel betrayed by Pataki because, as one of their leaders told me, "he flip-flopped." But where will they go rather than vote for Cuomo?

There is a Right-to-Life Party candidate for governor this year, and it is useful to remember that two years ago, when Sen. Alfonse D'Amato (R-N.Y.) was re-elected, a decisive part of his victory margin of 80,000 came on the Right-to-

We regard the nation's one and a half million annual abortions as a great tragedy.

Life line. This year, in a close election, the pro-lifers could end Pataki's hopes.

The New York State Republican Party seems so forgetful of the D'Amato lesson that a vigorous pro-choicer, Elizabeth McCaughey, is running as lieutenant governor on the ticket. She has achieved national attention — and the ire of the White House — as an exuberant critic of the Clinton health care plan.

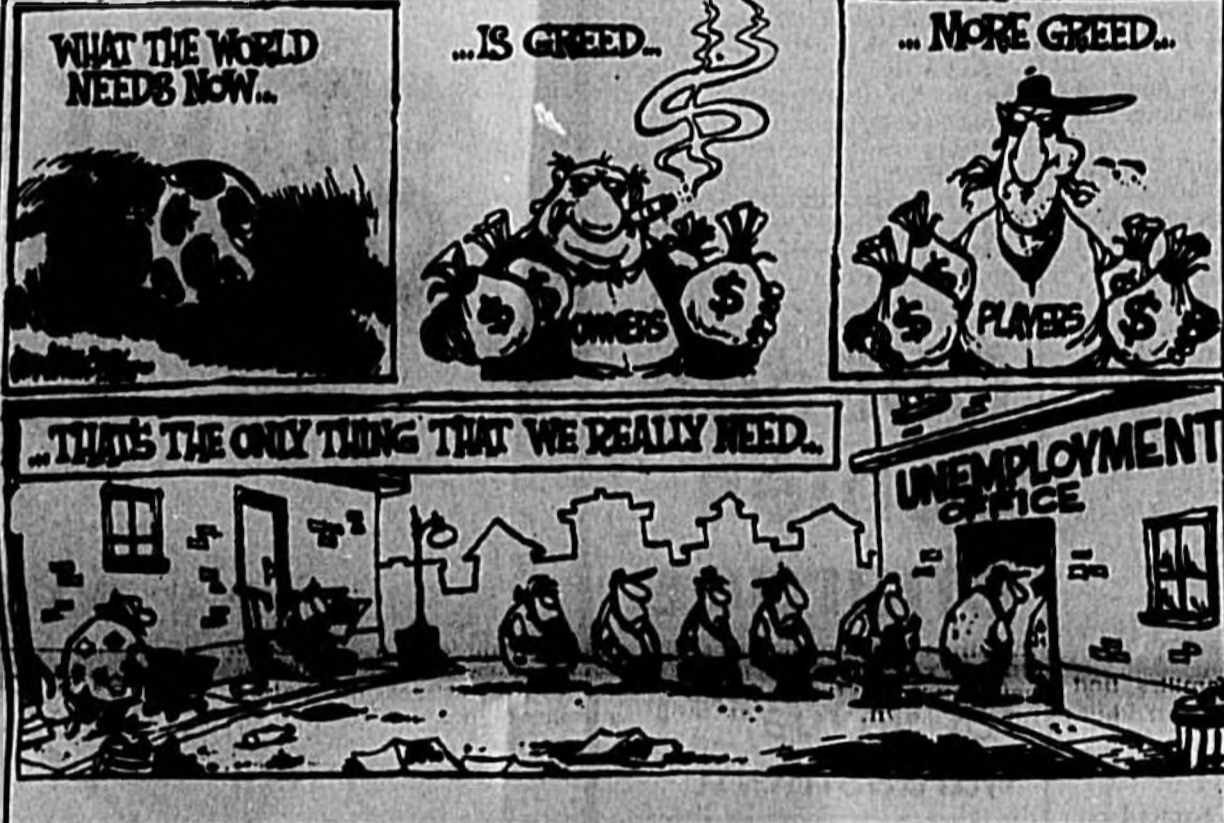

In national politics, there is much pressure on Republican leaders to soften the party's platform language on abortion in order to implement the late Lee Atwater's "big tent" vision of a more inclusive party.

The debate is focused on a pronouncement by William Kristol, head of the Project for a Republican Future, and George Weigel, director of the Ethics and Policy Center.

Their proposal is modestly titled "A Comprehensive Pro-Life Strategy for Republicans." It omits any mention of a constitutional amendment barring abortion — a regular controversial element of previous Republican platforms.

The Kristol-Weigel blueprint does include much language to assure Republican pro-lifers that they have not been orphaned: "We are a pro-life party. We regard the nation's one and a half million annual abortions as a great tragedy."

GOP enlists the politics of fear

The end game is now under way in the campaign for a national health care system, and the opposition's case turns out to be an old story. It's the have-nots against the have-nots, fear against hope. The reason that the odds are so long against passage is that the familiar message has been falling on receptive ears. There are apparently more people who believe that change is their enemy than who hope it is their friend.

In the past, major social welfare legislation was implemented not because it lacked implacable enemies but because of a mobilized majority who thought it was in the national and/or its own self-interest. Social Security, the cornerstone of FDR's New Deal, was passed by Congress on Aug. 14, 1935, in the face of near-hysterical opposition. It would usher in communism and worse, its enemies said. But most Americans knew from firsthand experience that they needed some form of guaranteed protection from the economic ravages of old age.

Almost exactly 20 years later, Congress passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964, a sharp break with the past. What it said basically was that no one should be denied equal access to public facilities because of race. What that meant in practice was that the historic right of private property owners to deny service as they saw fit was sharply restricted.

Conservatives, not all of them overt segregationists, predicted the end of individual freedom. A clear majority of the people and of Congress decided otherwise. As they saw it, the nation would benefit from the expansion of constitutional rights to those long denied a fair chance at "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

This brings us back to health care. For years, organized medicine and its allies managed to be on the wrong side of the issue. They died in the ditch trying to defeat Medicare. "Socialism," they screamed. "Overdue," replied the American public, well aware of Europe's advanced health care systems.

On its face, this should be a winning gamble. The idea makes political and moral sense. The polls show large majorities in favor of some form of national health insurance. Its most intense enemies are those who fatten off a system that excludes almost 40 million Americans from its coverage.

The polls, however, do not exist in a political vacuum. The problem for the president and other supporters of sweeping reform is that most Americans already have some form of health insurance, unlike the case of retirement insurance before the passage of Social Security. Further, a majority has not yet been convinced it should give up anything of value in order to achieve a greater good, as a majority had come to believe before the passage of the Civil Rights Act 30 years ago.

What has added to the odds against passage is that the president and Hillary Clinton wasted months trying to explain their devilishly complicated original plan, about which the less said the better. Because it was conceived in secret and hatched by people who seemed to have an inordinate love of bureaucratic flow charts, it provided a plump target for those who had had most to lose from real reform.

More importantly, because it was a most incomprehensible to you and me, it never enlisted widespread public support. Turning conventional wisdom on its head, something turned out to be worse than nothing.

The opposition capitalized on the public's confusion. While much of their creative propaganda was an expensive fig leaf to cover naked self-interest, it succeeded in further confusing millions of Americans. The congressional Republicans' instinctive negativism should have been politically untenable. In the face of administrative fumbling and political uncertainty, it has turned out to be smart politics.

But the fundamental hurdle facing those who support national health care legislation is that there are currently more people who, while theoretically in favor of change, feel threatened by what they understand is on the table. Many know all about the shrinking safety net. They are well aware that many working Americans, including friends and relatives, have no health coverage. But they just aren't sure that guaranteed access and universal coverage won't do more harm than good to their own family.

If health care loses, it will be a significant but not conclusive event. In one guise or another, national health insurance is inevitable. But in our form of divided government, fundamental change requires either a passionate majority or a neutralized opposition. Despite 18 months of effort, those who support universal coverage have not been able to create either.

It's the have-nots against the have-nots, fear against hope.

As clouds gather, focus on water

FALLS MILLS, Va. — Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy came to this depressed former coal-mining town as a conquering hero — not as another member of the Clinton team under an ethics cloud.

Just four days before the Justice Department sought an independent counsel to investigate Espy's ties to Tyson Foods Inc., Espy picked this tiny town in the Appalachian foothills to launch his drive to bring clean, running water to every rural home by the year 2000. As Vice President Al Gore lobbies for the "information superhighway," Espy is lifting 500,000 American households without drinkable tap water out of 19th century poverty.

His 340-mile trek was a blessing for 263 families here who had previously relied on contaminated water from private wells or were forced to haul water from nearby streams. But now have clean water piped in from a neighboring town. It was also a balm for the embattled Espy, evoking his humble origins as a congressman representing the poorest of the poor in the Mississippi delta.

"I've never been to Falls Mills before, but in a sense I have been here before," Espy told locals at a day-care center that didn't have safe water for its 30 children. He described how he helped bring running water to a dirt-poor town in his congressional district five years ago.

"So in my office in Washington, overlooking the Washington monument, I have a photo," Espy said. "I'm holding a 4-year-old girl, and her grandmother is beside me, and we're all smiling because that young girl in Blue Hills, Miss., has her hands under her own tap. And out of her tap comes running water for the first time in the life of her grandmother and herself. They didn't have to go to a creek to take a bucket full of insect-infected water anymore."

But Espy's mind never strayed far from the shark-infested waters of Washington. During his first interview about the federal ethics investigation, Espy didn't try hiding his resentment.

"I'm caught up right now in an episode that I think is perfectly ally," Espy told our associate Ed Henry. "You know, whether or not we favor poultry over red meat. The fact is that we are making progress on both fronts. And they're accusing me of favoring Tyson Foods. I know (Don Tyson) has never asked me for anything, and we haven't done anything for him."

"It's just that this is an Arkansas corporation, and it is something to be seized upon for those who want to criticize the president," he continued. "So I'm not the target here, and I understand that. I know what's going on, and I think it's perfectly ally." Does that mean there would be no Tyson investigation without Whitewater? "I'm saying that if Tyson Foods was a Massachusetts corporation, I would not be having this problem. I have no doubt about it."

While Espy has been accused of accepting tickets to sporting events and a trip aboard the luxurious Tyson corporate jet, his journey to Falls Mills began with a 9 a.m. coach flight from Washington to Charlotte, N.C. Then he boarded a propeller plane for a flight to a tiny airport in West Virginia.

A school bus shuttled him across the border into Virginia to the home of Brenda and Russell Lamastas and their three children. The family's well dried up last year, so for the past 11 months they've accessed water by walking nearly one mile up the road to a dam. Once a week, they would use a hand-pump to fill eight six-gallon jugs.

Espy is lifting 500,000 American households without drinkable tap water out of 19th century poverty.

President's lawyer accused of intimidating counsel

By RON FOURNIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Senate Minority Leader Robert Dole accused President Clinton's attorney Sunday of trying to intimidate Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr, hoping the Republican lawyer will step down.

Bob Bennett, representing Clinton in two separate legal cases, has led a Democratic assault against Starr, who was appointed by a federal court panel of three judges. He says Starr should step down.

"My view is that Bob Bennett, the president's lawyer — they're trying to intimidate Starr, trying to make it impossible for him to do the right thing. I hope he stays," Dole said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"That is partisan nonsense," Bennett responded in an interview. "All I want is fairness for my clients, whether they're Republicans or Democrats."

It was unclear whether Dole directed the remark only at Bennett or at Democrats and administration officials who have criticized the appointment. In a related matter, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said Deputy Treasury Secretary Roger Altman damaged his credibility with his congressional testimony on Whitewater. Asked whether Altman should resign, Mitchell told NBC, "That's a decision for him and the president and the secretary of Treasury should make."

An administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity Sunday, said Altman is expected to resign sometime after he returns from a family vacation Monday. The official, who stressed that Altman has not made a final decision, said Senate Banking Chairman Donald Riegle, D-Mich., and his likely successor, Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., have told the White House Altman should leave.

The New York Times reported in Monday's editions that administration officials are saying Frank N. Newman, now the Treasury undersecretary for domestic finance, is an early favorite to replace Altman. The report did not identify the officials.

Starr is replacing another Republican, Robert Flske, who had cleared the White House of any criminal wrongdoing in its contacts with the Treasury Department over the confidential Whitewater inquiry involving President and Mrs. Clinton. The court said Flske's appointment by Attorney General Janet Reno raised the appearance of a conflict because she was appointed by Clinton.

Starr is an active Republican and was U.S. solicitor general in the Bush administration. He publicly criticized Clinton's claim of immunity in a sexual harassment lawsuit being handled by Bennett, and had agreed to donate his time to a conservative woman's group to prepare a legal brief on the issue.

"I want to know why Flske was removed," Bennett said. "The only thing Flske has done is he's made some preliminary findings that were helpful to my client, the president. Then, at great further expense and at great delay, he's been yanked."

He said it did not make sense to remove Flske for being appointed by Reno or for being a friend of former White House Counsel Bernard Nussbaum, given Starr's close GOP ties and the fact that Reno had considered Starr for the job.

An update on the beautification of SR 434 is also scheduled. The project is still on the list of qualified projects from the Metropolitan Planning Organization. If approved, the city could receive funding for landscaping medians along the major highway through the city.

City administrator W. Shelton Smith will also advise the commissioners about a special meeting and public hearing Aug. 25 on proposed improvements to Rangeline Road. The engineering firm working on the project has developed plans based on public input gathered at a meeting last month.

Further, the commissioners are expected to issue a proclamation that the city's general election will be Nov. 8.

In a special recognition, the commissioners will honor Jody Mills, Mike Hefley, Ray Sweat, Jeff Hefley, Linda Sweat and Glenda Stanley for assisting in the rescue of four people who capsized their boat on Lake Fairy.

Statewide, county governments employed 1.87 million full-time and 378,838 part-time workers. For cities, the figures were 2.19 million full-time and 468,368 part-time employees.

Employment by local governments has risen steadily over the years, with annual increases from 1987 to 1992 averaging 2.7 percent for counties and 1 percent for cities.

As of October 1992, monthly average pay was $2,723 for full-time city employees and $2,356 for county workers. Teachers averaged $3,299 in cities and $2,723 from county governments.

Elementary and secondary education was the biggest job category for county employees, while police protection provided the largest share of city government jobs.

VISTA began 30 years ago and was dubbed a "domestic Peace Corps" where volunteers worked in various projects in the United States to improve living conditions and the lives of low income Americans.

Five VISTA Volunteers honored Friday for their work with the Parent Education Project (P.E.P.). Seminole County P.E.P. volunteers Robbie Nelson, Patti Bullen were honored along with Ann O'Neill, Brevard County and Evelyn Green, Putnam County. The P.E.P. program is designed to assist low-income parents whose children are experiencing problems at school.

One-on-one meetings with parents plus weekly support group meetings and work shops train parents to help their children with homework and projects as well as establishing good study habits. The meetings also deal with topics such as parenting skills and self-esteem. The program also encourages parents to enroll in programs to further their own education.

Seminole County VISTA Volunteers Janie Rouse and Floesie Gilbert were recognized for their work with the Center for Affordable Housing. The project helps low-income families find affordable housing or money to fix up their existing residences.

Attorney Patty Steel, an attorney for Catholic Volunteers in Florida, was honored for her work with Central Florida Legal Services, Inc. Under the program, individuals volunteer one year to service in Florida, helping people to help themselves.

Rainfall

All the extra rain for the past three months has caused the level of the Wekiva River to remain above the seven-foot average level. A drop below normal levels led the district Governing Board to impose strict watering restrictions in the river basin west of Interstate 4 in June 1993. They were removed this June after the river level recovered.

All that rain is beginning to reach the Floridan Aquifer which provides drinking water for most of the state. In Geneva, a district-monitored well recorded a 0.69-foot increase during July, more than half the 1.29-foot improvement recorded during the past 12 months. In Longwood, a well level moved up 2.21 feet, about two-thirds of the total 3.99-foot increase for the year.

Knoxville whips O-Cubs

ORLANDO — Chris Stynes went 4-for-6 with four runs batted in and led a 20-hit attack as the Knoxville Smokies defeated the Orlando Cubs 17-8 Sunday in Southern League play.

Brooks Kieschnick went 3-for-5 with three RBIs for the Cubs.

Prime Time in Miami?

DAVIE — The Miami Dolphins officially joined the Deion Sanders sweepstakes Sunday when head coach Don Shula said he'd welcome the addition of "Prime Time" to his already star-studded roster.

Sanders, a three-time Pro Bowl cornerback and outfielder for the first-place Cincinnati Reds, has been shopping his football services since being waived and declared a free agent by the Atlanta Falcons in the offseason. He has said he won't play football until the baseball season is over, but because of the strike, that may be sooner rather than later.

"Any time an athlete like Deion expresses an interest we're going to explore that the best way we can," Shula said Sunday at his weekly press conference. "If something could be worked out (salary cap), we want to be in the competition."

AROUND THE NATION

Suns rally by Greenville

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Until the eighth inning it looked like the Greenville Braves were going to eke out a win over the Jacksonville Suns in Southern League action Sunday night.

A double, a triple and a home run put an end to that.

The Suns earned a 5-3 win, thanks to four runs in their big inning. With a runner on first, Arquimedes Pozo doubled, Reuben Santana tripled for two RBIs and Tony Barron hit a two-run home run.

Martin repeats at Watkins Glen

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Mark Martin recaptured his Watkins Glen magic with a dominating victory Sunday in the Budweiser at the Glen NASCAR stock car race.

Winning from the pole for the second straight year on the 2.46-mile, 11-turn road course, Martin also gained his first victory of the season and the 13th of his Winston Cup career.

Martin, driving for Roush Racing, led 75 of the 90 laps and easily fought off a late challenge from Ernie Irvan, winning the battle of Ford Thunderbirds by 0.88 seconds.

Penke sweeps Miller 200

LEXINGTON, Ohio — Al Unser led a Team Penske sweep of the first three positions in Sunday's Miller Genuine Draft 200, which turned on a stop-and-go penalty against his teammate Paul Tracy.

The third Penske team member, Emerson Fittipaldi, who won here in 1992 and last year, was third. Robby Gordon finished fourth and Michael Andretti fifth.

Tracy, who had led all but one lap, was penalized by CART officials for passing Gordon under a yellow caution flag on lap 53.

Tracy held the lead until he made a regular pit stop on the 87th lap, when Unser took first place. Unser pitted one lap later, and Tracy made his penalty stop at the same time, allowing Unser to hold a seven-second lead.

Price near-perfect in PGA

TULSA, Okla. — Nick Price, playing to perfection, overpowered Southern Hills Country Club and outclassed all challengers Sunday to win the PGA Championship in near-record fashion.

Price closed with a 3-under-par 67 and finished at 11-under-par 269 for 72 holes, six strokes ahead of Corey Pavin. It was the lowest stroke total ever in an American major event.

A missed 4-foot par putt on the last hole cost Price a share of the PGA record of 12-under-par set by Jeff Sluman in 1988 and tied by Paul Azinger and Greg Norman last year. His 269 broke the PGA stroke record of 271, 9 under par, by Bobby Nichols in 1984.

Chang defends ATP title

MASON, Ohio — Michael Chang won his second consecutive ATP Championship on Sunday, routing his former nemesis, Stefan Edberg, 6-2, 7-5 in a reprise of last year's final.

Chang, a five-time winner on the ATP Tour this year, is the tournament's first repeat titlist since Mats Wilander won in 1983 and 1984.

Edberg has an 11-6 career record against Chang, but Chang has won the past three meetings dating to last year's ATP final.

Runners of all ages invited to LM jamboree

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — What better way to head into the new school year than with a running start?

Towards that end, Lake Mary High School will host its annual Summertime Cross Country Jamboree on Saturday, Aug. 27.

While the meet serves as an unofficial start to the high school harrier season — clubs from schools as far away as Tampa will make the trip to get in a good run — runners of all ages are invited to participate.

Also designated as a U.S. Track and Field Developmental meet, there will be four races that encompass the following age divisions: 8-and-Under, 9-10, 11-13, 14-18, 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50-and-Over.

Runners in the 8-and-Under, 9-10, and 11-13 divisions will compete in a 1-mile race scheduled to start at 8 a.m.

That will be followed at 8:30 a.m. by the 14-18 girls' club team (high school) 2-mile race. The 14-18 boys' club team 3-mile race will take to the line at 9 a.m.

Wrapping up the day's competition will be a 3-mile run for those in the 19-29, 30-39, 40-49, and 50-and-Over divisions.

The top 15 finishers in both the 14-18 boys' and girls' races will be awarded medals with the 16th through 50th finishers receiving ribbons. There will also be a championship and runner-up trophies for the top-scoring 14-18 boys' and girls' club teams.

In the other age groups, the top five finishers, male and female, will receive a ribbon. There will not be a team competition in the other age divisions.

Registration before Tuesday, Aug. 23, is $3. Race day registration, which will be available beginning at 7:30 a.m., will be $5.

For additional information, contact Lake Mary girls' cross country coach Mike Gibson at 333-2370.

While not considered an official high school cross country meet, the Lake Mary Summertime Jamboree always attracts some of the state's top prep harriers. In 1992, Palm Bay's Dwayne Giscombe won the 14-18 boys' race.

Chamber lays plans for annual golf event

From Staff Reports

SANFORD — There's just four weeks left until the 19th annual Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce golf tournament, which will be played at the Heathrow Golf and Country Club on Monday, Sept. 12.

Play in the 18-hole tournament is scheduled to tee off at 1 p.m.

The entry fee is $90 per player, which includes greens fee, golf cart, and dinner. Anyone wishing to contribute but able or willing to play may designate a player he or she wishes to sponsor. Guest tickets to the dinner are $15.

The tournament field will be flighted with prizes going to the three lowest net scores in each flight.

Also, the lowest gross scorer will be designated the tournament champion and receive a prize plus the tournament's traveling trophy. His or her name also will be added to a plaque on permanent display at the chamber of commerce's office. The low gross winner will not be eligible for low net awards.

There will be a prize awarded for the tee shot closest to the pin on all par three holes as well as a putting contest, door prizes, and a grand prize drawing.

Other tournament amenities include a cash bar and a beverage station of the course.

Foursomes will be assigned by the tournament committee. Players wishing make up their own foursome must register by Wednesday, Sept. 7.

For additional information, contact the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce, 322-2212.

Lake Mary couple catch, release

Lillie and Marion Spain of Lake Mary enjoyed a very successful fishing trip aboard Capt. Joe Mercurio's Jolly Roger II. Competing in the annual Key West Fishing Tournament, the Spains each earned a sportsmanship citation for catching and releasing a blue marlin on 30-pound tackle. Marion also caught and released a sailfish during the same excursion.

Dream II completes world waltz

By BILL BARNARD
 AP Basketball Writer

TORONTO — Not even the original Dream Team had a performance like this.

Dream Team II scored 42 points in the first 10 minutes and 73 in the first half on the way to a 137-91 victory over Russia in the gold-medal game of the World Championship of Basketball.

Scoring 137 points in a 40-minute game — which was 10 more points than Dream Team I ever managed — is the equivalent of 164 in a regulation 48-minute NBA contest. Sunday's outcome gave the Americans a 120.1 scoring average for the tournament, eclipsing the original Dream Team's 117.3 in the 1992 Olympics.

But Dream Team I was more consistent, winning by at least 32 points in every Olympic game. This year's team had three lackluster performances, although the closest margin in eight games was 15 against a weak team from Spain.

"The U.S. has the best players in the world, regardless of whether it's Dream Team I, II, III, IV, V, VI or VII," said Derrick Coleman, who led the big early burst that gave the Americans a 26-point advantage. "Comparing Dream Teams means people are just trying to divide us."

Shaquille O'Neal, who averaged 18 points and 8.5 rebounds for the tournament and was named Most Valuable Player, said the teams are hard to compare because their makeup was so different.

"We're different," O'Neal said. "They were older and more experienced. But I still think we'd beat them."

Dream Team II trailed early in one of the previous seven games, and all were close after five minutes. But the Americans scored the first nine

'Thank you' insufficient for telephone troopers

Have you met my co-workers. "From Staff Reports" and "Special to the Herald?"

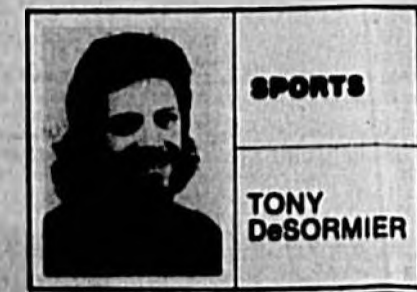

Because of the physical impossibility of being in two places at the same time, we — Dean and I — do a great majority of our reporting in absentia, relying on concerned individuals to call in results.

That's how PSR and STTH came to be key members of the Herald sports staff. Like old-time radio baseball broadcasters who couldn't make road trips, we take information provided to us by coaches, scorekeepers, or whomever and try to recreate what happened in the game.

By extension, we're only as good as the people feeding us the details.

This past summer, we've been exceptionally fortunate to have several adults who have been diligent in getting us everything we needed to help keep you abreast of what's going on.

Given that they help us meet the goal of filling space with locally pertinent copy, we try to make it a point of thanking them every time they call in. But before we head into the fall, I'd like to thank them one more time here and share what they did for us (you and me).

SPORTS

• From Longwood's Candyland Park and Westside Park in Gainesville, Mike Bono chronicled the exploits of the Longwood Bambino (11-12) All-Stars as they won the state championship and came within a game of advancing to the national championship tournament.

• While his son was busy pitching for the Oviedo High School summer team, Pat Metcalf was leading the Oviedo Little League Junior All-Stars to district and sectional titles on the way to a berth in the state tournament, calling in updates from wherever they were playing.

• Even though he wasn't a coach, Pat Nass suffered late calls searching for results from games played at Altamonte Springs' Eastmonte Park. And even when he wasn't called, Pat would call to make sure everything had been reported.

• The Seminole Softball Club's Eagle (14-and-Under) All-Stars won their way to the National Softball Association's world championship. From results to a team photo, Pam Barney had all the bases covered for them and us.

• The travels of the Seminole Pony (14) All-Stars took them from Pembroke Pines through Marietta, Ga., to Tampa. And John Melasus called in every night (often very late at night) from every stop on the road.

• Once again, Pam Knapp played a crucial role early in this summer's youth baseball and softball all-star coverage of the Sanford Herald, providing rosters, schedules, and other details on all of Oviedo Little League's teams as well as a couple Seminole PONY Baseball League squads.

While I'm at it, there were four men involved with high school summer baseball teams who kept us up to date when the youth league all-star teams occupied our time.

A collective thank you goes to Lake Brantley's Karl Krot, Sanford Post 53's Larry Holbrook, Oviedo B coach Eddie Norton, and an individual known only as "this is Lake Mary baseball calling in."

And thanks also to those individuals who called in the occasional game or tournament. Every call was important and greatly appreciated, by the players concerned, by their family and fans, and by Dean and I.

It would have been a long, lonely summer without you.

Strike's 3rd day passes with little being done

By RONALD BLUM AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — There was no rush to settle the baseball strike on a lazy summer weekend.

Management leader Richard Ravitch played tennis and listened to music on Sunday.

Union head Donald Fehr went to his office and answered mail.

"It's a sad, lonely but peaceful weekend," executive council chairman Bud Selig said.

No new talks were scheduled for today, the fourth day of the strike.

The sides, which met separately with federal mediators on Saturday, said they intended to speak by telephone today.

"No communication across the planetary space," said Eugene Orza, the union's No. 2 official.

Forty-two games were wiped out on the first weekend of the baseball players strike.

Ravitch repeatedly says he will "leave no stone unturned" in an effort to arrive at a settlement.

Speaking of Stones, Mick Jagger even took time to comment on baseball's eighth work stoppage since 1972.

"We're the only stadium act that's not on strike," he said as the Rolling Stones played Sunday night at Giants Stadium.

Players, meanwhile, fanned out across the country. Many went to golf courses over the weekend.

"I'd say the chances are better of me breaking 90 today than hitting 400," San Diego's Tony Gwynn said.

Organizers of a celebrity tournament next weekend in North Falmouth, Mass., said Cincinnati Reds manager Davey Johnson would play and hoped they'd be able to get Roger Clemens and Tom Glavine, too.

"It's a mixed emotion, because it would be better for baseball if there wasn't a strike situation, but it is nice to have my husband home," said Tina

Strike's 3rd day passes with little being done

Montgomery, wife of pitcher Jeff Montgomery. "We're just trying to wait it out and see what happens."

In Springfield, Ill., for a horse auction, New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner backed off from his statements earlier in the week that owners should join Ravitch at the bargaining table.

Steinbrenner praised McMorris as one of baseball's best new owners and said he should be on the negotiating team if owners are included.

A former owner, Charlie Finley, predicted owners won't get the salary cap they're demanding from the union.

"I foresee enough owners to be concerned about making payments on their clubs that they're going to have to give in at the end," Finley said.

In Washington, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said he doesn't think the Senate should consider stripping the sport of its antitrust exemption.

The Senate Judiciary Committee in June voted 10-7 against a bill that would have removed baseball's antitrust exemption in labor matters.

Mitchell, a Maine Democrat believed to be the favorite to become commissioner, was asked on NBC's "Meet the Press" if the Senate should reconSIDER.

"No, I don't believe so," Mitchell said. "We're dealing with health care and crime, which we're going to have to deal with, which will take all of our time."

"I believe this is a matter to be resolved by the parties in collective bargaining. That's what the collective bargaining process is. That's what it should be. I'm not involved in it in any way, despite all of the speculation. But I think it's fair to say both sides are losing financially as a result of the strike, and it ought to be settled between them in their own collective bargaining."

With 10:41 left in the first half, it was 42-16 and the U.S. team was 16-for-17 from the field.

"We wanted to play our best early, and it was no contest," coach Don Nelson said.

After scoring just 40 points in the first half of Saturday night's 97-58 semifinal victory over Greece, Dream Team II matched that just 8:19 into the final.

Russia, which lost to the United States 111-84 Friday night, was coming off an emotional 68-64 semifinal victory over favored Croatia, a game that ended just 15 hours before tip-off Sunday.

The Russians also played without their best big man, Andrei Fetisov, who was not in uniform because of an injured right ankle.

"Last night's victory took everything out of us," Russia coach Sergei Belov said. "The desire was there, but we couldn't do it. Fatigue took away our strength, which is defense. But staying with these players for 10, 20, 30 minutes is an achievement."

Coleman, starting for just the third time, got the Americans going with a 3-pointer and a three-point play in the first minute of the game, and Joe Dumars followed with another 3-pointer for a 9-0 lead.

Coleman scored all of his 13 points during the 42-16 burst that started the game. After shooting 37 percent in the first half against Greece, the United States shot 71.8 percent (28-for-39) in the first half and led 73-40 at halftime.

"We got on the fast break and pushed the ball upcourt," Coleman said. "Rusia played great against Croatia, but against us they were a little tired. I was really enjoying myself out there."

Coping with an irritable bowel

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 36-year-old recovering addict. I suffer with irritable bowel and lactose intolerance. Multivitamins have helped firm my stool, but surgery six months ago for flatula repair and sphincterotomy have resulted in partial incontinence. Sneezes and coughs are potentially disastrous. The loss of control is devastating. Is there help for me?

DEAR READER: You have a complicated medical/surgical history. I suspect that your bowel incontinence is a direct consequence of the anal surgery you required. If so, as healing progresses, you should regain bowel control. Nonetheless, you should ask your surgeon about this.

I gather that you may also have frequent loose stools that contribute to your incontinence. By adding bulk to your bowel movements, with products such as Metamucil, you may be able to exert more control over your evacuations.

Finally, you may be helped by retraining your bowel to function at set times, so that your bowel movements become more predictable. Try to go to the bathroom at the same time each day. In this way, you may be able to avoid unpleasant surprises when you cough or sneeze.

To give you more information I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've suffered from mouth sores for most of my life, as has my 91-year-old mother. Several doctors have indicated this is viral-based and there is no cure and little in the way of prevention or relief. I do use Zovirax, swish with peroxide and use Aspergum. What are your thoughts on the effect of tension precipitating this problem?

DEAR READER: Tension and stress clearly do play a role in activating viral (herpes) and non-viral (canker sores) mouth ulcers. In most instances, these ulcers are contagious during the time that they are present and active. You may wish to investigate the stress relation by undergoing counseling. Meanwhile, the program of therapy that you have adopted should also help.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder

As you know, there used to be Mississippi riverboat gamblers who made a living from cards. But you might not know that the best woman player was called Hontas. And she, unlike many of the men, didn't need to cheat to win.

Bluffing is an integral part of poker. In bridge, though, bluffing is rare. True, occasionally a player will psych: make a bid that overstates the strength of his hand, or the length of the suit bid, or both. But since partner, taking the bid at face value, might raise the auction to a suicidal level, psychs carry a high risk element.

Gaylor Kaale produced a beautiful bluff that wasn't a psych per se at the Cavendish Invitational Pairs, held last May at the Loews Hotel in New York City.

Look only at the West hand.

After South opened one spade, you would probably overcall with three or four diamonds, but West bid only two. North's four diamonds was a splinter bid, showing at least game values in spades with at most one diamond.

What is your opening lead? When he jumped to seven spades, Kaale hoped West would assume he had a diamond void, not a singleton. (Although, a priori, a singleton is almost seven times more likely than a void.) And it worked — West, a multi-time world champion, led a heart!

True, East's four-heart bid was ill-advised: A simple five diamonds must be better. But it took courage by North to call seven spades. Bids like that deserve to succeed. The female gambler called Hontas? To her friends she was known as Poker Hontas.

HOROSCOPES

By Bernice Bode Ouel
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Aug. 16, 1994

In the year ahead, conditions look more favorable than usual where your material interests are concerned. Money from a second source is possible, as well as a raise from your primary work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Subordinates might resent it today if they feel they're being unduly pressured by you. Instead of doing what you demand, they may do the exact opposite. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 4485, New York, N.Y. 10163.

VIROO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be optimistic today regarding your hopes and expectations. Conditions are good, but they might not be optimal. Don't let small setbacks disappoint you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There's a possibility you might tackle some type of endeavor today that turns out to be tougher than you initially suspected. This may cause you to quit in the middle of your task.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to involve yourself today with persons who are supportive rather than those who are always critical. Encouragement inspires; discouragement disheartens.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) When managing your own resources today, you're likely to do a commendable job. However, if you attempt to handle the affairs of others, it could be a very different story.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Just because someone is loud and forceful doesn't mean this person is a wise decision-maker. In fact, the opposite may be true, so don't be unduly impressed by windbags.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Co-workers might be more disagreeable than usual today. Yet if you seek ways to compliment them, rather than correct them, you may produce smiles instead of frowns.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to be demanding of friends today, even pals who are indebted to you for past favors. Reminders could generate resentment.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Success is a strong probability today in a situation where you are unselfishly motivated. Conversely, failure or setbacks are possible where you are too self-involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't wag your tongue today before your brain is engaged. Blurring out provocative comments could end up producing both hard feelings and an argument.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If a friend wants to borrow something you treasure today, make it clear that you expect it to return in the same condition in which it was loaned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a possibility that both you and your mate might not make an effort today to show one another the same consideration both of you shower on outsiders.
