At A Glance

Food costs push U.S. prices up

WASHINGTON — Rapidly rising food costs sent consumer prices up 0.3 percent in June, not quite as high as expected because aggressive markdowns on clothing and lower energy prices helped stem the rise, the Commerce Department reported today.

Analysts had been looking generally for a 0.4 percent increase.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said food prices rose 0.7 percent, led by a sharp 2 percent increase for meat, poultry, fish and eggs.

Beef prices shot up 1.3 percent in June and have risen 10.8 percent this year, despite expectations that prices would drop as drought-stricken farmers took their cattle to market early rather than pay for expensive and scarce feed, the bureau said.

In general, the effects of the drought seem not to have made their way to the supermarket.

Duck lovers go to court

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss. (UPI) — All is not ducky for a couple of duck lovers who wound up in court because of their 150 feathered friends.

"What we have here is a problem of too many ducks, too much duck poop, and too much odor," city prosecutor Foley Ransom said Judge Deryl Dryden following a hearing Wednesday night.

Dryden fined James and Shamsi Hyre $300 for violating an ordinance regulating animal keeping in the city and gave them two weeks to reduce the flock of 150 ducks to an acceptable level.

Mutt returns after three-year leave

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — A long-lost mutt that vanished from its home three years ago returned this week, as quietly and mysteriously as it departed.

"He came up to me, and put his paw on me, like, 'Oh, well here I am,'" said Jan Okoniewski, 33, a nurse at a Wilmington hospital. "I said, 'Oh my god, it's him!'"

Okoniewski said Thursday she was in her back yard when she saw a dog that resembled her long-lost Beau come into the yard and lick her son David, 5, on the face. The mixed-breed dog then came to her and placed the paw on her leg.

FBI, state join murder probe

By WAYNE NIXE
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Local police, hoping to learn more about the killer of 11-year-old Cornelia Ammons, have called in the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) and the Federal Bureau of Investigation to help with the case.

Teams from the FDLE in Tallahassee and the FBI in Orlando spent Wednesday going over every detail of the case with police.

Their job is to compile a criminal psychological profile of the killer, that will help police narrow the field of suspects, according to Police Chief Steven Harriett.

Harriett said the request for outside help is normal procedure when there is no known suspect in a murder case.

Ammons was murdered July 2 and dumped in bushes near a deserted city street. She had a puncture wound through the heart and her throat was slashed.

Police admit clues are few and evidence limited and there are no suspects.

Harriett said the role of the assisting agencies in the case is to provide the profile and a different viewpoint to the same evidence.

"It is important that they be totally foreign to the case," explained Harriett. "Then you present them with all the evidence and facts of the case. Sometimes, they can give you a different perspective of things that you might overlook when you are so involved in a case.

"They analyze it from a history standpoint for trends and patterns of people doing similar crimes. Then they point you to the type of person you are looking for."

Harriett said he contacted Dayle Human, a special agent in the In-

Yankee Lake project under way

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — With the turn of a spade Thursday morning, Seminole County officials proclaimed construction of the controversial $9.8 million Yankee Lake wastewater treatment plant will begin, although the state hasn't yet given the county permission to use the plant.

The 2.5 million gallon-per-day plant near Yankee Lake is expected to be completed in about 18 months.

Alan Cahn, an engineer with the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation wastewater permitting section in Orlando, said the application review for the plant's wastewater disposal permit is in its final stages but the county has not responded to a list of questions submitted in March.

Deputy County Administrator Jim Bible is unconcerned about the lack of the permit and said the county expects to receive it in about two months. Bible said the plant's construction permits have all been received, but does not yet have the DER permit to dispose of the wastewater.

Seminole officials were proud of the plant Thursday.

"This property was negotiated for over two months in order to obtain, in my view, a marvelous purchase price," said Seminole Commission Chairman Fred Streetman.

"This property was purchased for $4.5 million less than it was listed for on

Councilman vows charter opposition

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

CASSELBERRY — Casselberry councilman Al Harmon vowed Thursday night to ask city councilmen for funds to defeat the proposed Seminole County Charter if it can be used by the county to gain more control over the cities.

"The city is concerned about the county capability to impose legislation on cities," Harmon told members of the Seminole County Charter Advisory Committee. "I intend to ask our members of the city council to budget funds to promote the defeat of this charter if in fact, it in any way attempts to usurp the ability of the cities to legislate themselves."

Committee attorney Harry Stewart assured Harmon that a proposed change he proposes for the charter would allow the current city-county relationship to stand.

Committee members proposed a change to the current requirement under Florida law which states that in areas of conflicting ordinances, the city's ordinance would prevail to the extent of the conflict.

The state gives voters the right to change that requirement in an approved charter.

Their proposed change would make no county laws applicable within a city unless the city adopts a similar law, or the state allows the county to pass legislation throughout the county. County officials oppose the provision, saying it would severely limit their current powers.

Stewart told committee members Tuesday their proposal is unconstitutional because it addresses what happens to a county law if it conflicts with a city ordinance, raising the likelihood committee members will again change the clause to the

Longwood hikes tax, sewer, water rates

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — City commissioners agreed Thursday night to raise property taxes and increase water and sewer rates, but failed to reach an agreement with the city attorney over acceptable fees to serve in a part-time capacity.

The five-year one mill dedicated tax would go to fund road reconstruction. It would increase the proposed tax rate from $3,008 per $1,000 assessed property valuation to $4,008 per thousand. The one mill increase is expected to generate an additional $500,000. Wildmere Avenue is scheduled for reconstruction the first year under the road construction program.

The proposed $9,755,857 1988-89 budget includes a general fund budget of $5,431,410 compared to $4,628,405 in 1987-88. The tax rate of $3.15 per thousand valuation in this year's budget was rolled back by the county tax assessor to $3,008, the amount needed to raise the same amount. The gross taxable valuation is now $441,472,283, up $14,763,329 from last year because of new construction, additions and annexations.

There was also a consensus to raise water rates by 25 percent and sewer rates by 30 percent.

The commission approved budget changes made by City Administrator George DeMarie at their mandate that include $543,801 in reductions in various line items and transferring the $106,179 proposed for the full-time city attorney's office to the city commission budget to cover cost of part-time legal services. Anything not needed for the consulting attorney would go into the contingency fund, DeMarie said.

In addition to eliminating merit bonuses for city employees, a superintendent position was cut from the water division resulting in $14,000 in savings. A vacant maintenance position will not be filled, saving $12,500.

DeMarie said the effect of the reductions does not warrant a change in the recommended increase in water and sewer rates. He said he does not believe any further cuts are justified because of strict requirements of other regulatory agencies and the city's bonding covenants which call for the increase.

The budget cuts resulted in an increase of $200,000 in the reserve for contingency and $237,622 added for street reconstruction.

The commission voted 4-1 Monday night against the advice of their city administrator and city consultant to eliminate the in-house position of full-time city

Local candidates enter races

Deputy challenging Polk

By RUSAN LODEN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — For the first time in 16 of his 19 years as Seminole County sheriff, John Polk has a challenger.

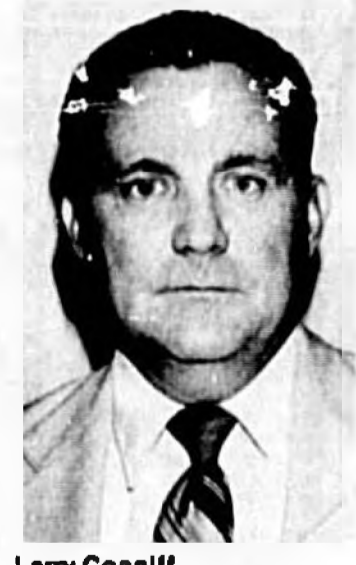

Larry Conniff, 46, of Winter Springs, who until Thursday was one of Polk's deputies, filed to seek the Republican nomination for sheriff.

"I'm qualified, and we need an administration change," Conniff said. "I have 16 years in law enforcement, with the Detroit Police Department, the city of Roseville, Mich., and the Seminole County Sheriff's Department, four years with Seminole County Sheriff's Department," he said. A Seminole County sheriff's deputy since 1984, Conniff resigned because state law requires him to do so to run for sheriff.

Conniff said he had an associate degree in law enforcement and an associate degree in general studies from Macon County Community College in Michigan. "I have a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Wayne State University, and a master's degree in public administration."

Odom seeks council seat

By JANE CASSELBERRY
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — Carolyn M. "Carol" Odom, 45, of 873 Land Ave., is the second candidate to announce for the city commission race. Odom, who has lived in Longwood for 12 years, said she will seek the District 3 seat now held by Lynette Dennis in the Nov. 8 election.

Odom said she started attending commission meetings as a result of curiosity. "It didn't take me long to determine that Mrs. Dennis was serving her personal interest rather than the interest of the citizens of Longwood," Odom said. "Clearly and without question, the news media over the past two years has verified my beliefs."

"I feel that our public servants should maintain a high degree of ethics and integrity, and Mrs. Dennis has been a terrible disappointment," Odom said. "Like the old saying, 'If you want it done

POLICE BRIEFS

Traffic stop leads to drug arrest

LONGWOOD — Longwood police reported finding marijuana in a car they stopped because it had an expired license tag. They determined the driver's license had been suspended 12 times and, in a search of the car, reported finding marijuana.

Tim Anthony Lancaster, 21, of Cocoa was arrested on complaints of charges of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and driving with an expired tag and suspended license.

Lancaster was arrested at 1:17 a.m. today on State Road 434, Longwood, and remains jailed in lieu of $500 bond.

Driving under the influence

SANFORD — The following persons face a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

—Gerald Dibartolo, 22, of 577 Remington Oak Drive, Lake Mary, was arrested at 11:41 p.m. Wednesday after his car was clocked traveling 56 mph in a 40 mph zone on Lake Mary Boulevard, Lake Mary.

—Steven Freidman, 29, of 613 Stanford Drive, Altamonte Springs, at 2:09 a.m. Wednesday after his car with headlights out was stopped on Jamestown Boulevard, Altamonte Springs.

Accused slasher arrested

MIDWAY — A 56-year-old Midway man who allegedly slashed another man with a knife June 24, is being held today in lieu of $5,000 bond on a complaint of aggravated battery.

Rufus Tarver Jr. of 2110 Dixie Ave. was arrested by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy on Midway Avenue at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

He is accused of approaching the victim in front of a store on Sipes Avenue and cutting him several times with a butcher knife. A sheriff's report said the victim was cut on the chest, hands, shoulder, and stomach and as a result has a disabled left hand.

Window shot out of car

SANFORD — The rear window was shot out of an automobile late Thursday night on Third Street, near Pecan Avenue.

The driver, Billy Chavis of Eustis, was not injured as he drove his 1984 Ford in the arer north of Lake Monroe Terrace on Third Street, according to the police report.

Police believe the shot came from an air rifle and are still investigating.

Couple accused in cocaine sale

OVIDO — An Ovido couple who allegedly sold $20 worth of cocaine to a City County Investigative Bureau agent were arrested on complaints of sale and delivery of cocaine and possession of cocaine.

William Maec, 38, and Carolyn Nelson, 34, both of 2 Rosa Ave., were arrested at their house about 8:30 p.m. Thursday. They are free today on $2,000 bond each and are scheduled to appear in court Aug. 15.

Arrested on assault complaint

SANFORD — A man who allegedly brandished a rifle and threatened a resident of a Sanford home was arrested at 11:21 p.m. Thursday at 2101 Hartwell Ave., Sanford, where the incident occurred. Reed Arvis Eden, 51, of Sanford, was booked for aggravated assault, disorderly conduct and resisting without violence.

Sanford police said they arrived to find Eden yelling and cursing. When he was arrested, he reportedly fought police. He is free on $1,000 bond to appear in court Aug. 15.

Driver arrested on drug complaint

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A man who drove his truck away as a Seminole County sheriff's deputy approached the vehicle in a known drug dealing area was followed and arrested on complaints of possession of cocaine, marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

A deputy reported ordering Robert B. Joyce Jr., of 117 Northlake Drive, Sanford, out of his truck for a weapons search on North Street, rural Altamonte Springs. The deputy said he saw a pipe on the floor of the truck and three pieces of crack cocaine on the console. A partially smoked marijuana cigarette was reportedly found in an ash tray.

Joyce is free on $2,000 bond to appear in court Aug. 15.

Driving under the influence

SANFORD — The following people were arrested on complaints of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

—Rick Wayne Stapp, 24, of Orlando, was arrested Thursday on State Road 436, by Altamonte Springs police. He was also accused of driving with a revoked license.

—Aaron Keith Rayburn, 24, of 847 George Ave., Longwood, at 2:25 a.m. Thursday after his car was stopped on George Avenue, Longwood.

—Ernest Lee Scott, 48, of P.O. Box 138, Lake Monroe, at 7:49 p.m. Tuesday after his car was in an accident on O. Avenue Sanford. He was also accused of violation of the right-of-way.

Babysitter accused of burglary

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — A Forest City woman who allegedly sold a watch she is suspected of stealing from an Orlando house where she babysat was arrested when she returned to an Altamonte Springs jewelry store to try to get the watch back Thursday.

Tammy Marie Graybeal, 19, of 1002 Bear Lake Road, Forest City, was arrested by a Seminole County sheriff's deputy after she allegedly returned to Mayer's Jewelers, State Road 436, Altamonte Springs, to buy back a watch stolen from the house of Sharon A. Mills, June 24.

Graybeal, who worked as Mills' babysitter, has also been linked to other items of jewelry taken in the burglary and pawned in Sanford and Orlando, a sheriff's report said. She is accused of three counts of dealing in stolen property and is free on $2,000 bond to appear in court Aug. 15.

Zoo begins new pavilion; receives $55,000 donation

By JOYCE MERALD
UCF Intern

SANFORD — Groundbreaking for the Central Florida Zoological Society's new multipurpose pavilion took place recently, according to Pam McConnell, the Central Florida Zoological Society's Executive Director.

The zoo also received a $55,000 trust fund from the Seminole County Federation of Women's Clubs Thursday.

The trust fund was established in 1980 when the federation sold some property, and had been donating quarterly interest payments from the proceeds to the zoo. The total amount of the gift is more than $65,000 including interest payments already received.

Pam McConnell, zoo director, said the money will be used for a particular project that can be identified as being provided by the federation.

The 4500 square foot pavilion started this week is being constructed as a joint venture between the Society and Seminole County. The county has pledged $35,000 toward the completion of this $70,000 facility. The remainder will be paid through funds previously earmarked for the addition.

"We are indebted to Board Member R. Norman Sioehr, Jr., principal at Forum Architecture and Planning for his coordination of this project," McConnell said.

"Powell Design Group of Orlando has undertaken the construction effort and is working closely with members of the construction community to solicit materials, labor, and other support. The community cooperation has been outstanding."

Planned uses of the pavilion, which is scheduled to open in mid August, include a site for education programs, meetings, and social events.

With its 250 person capacity. The pavilion may be rented for corporate functions, family reunions, and other activities. For such functions, a food concession is available on site. Additionally, a guest kitchen is available for certain functions, if requested.

In close proximity to the pavilion are numerous picnic areas and barbecue grills.

The pavilion has been designed to accommodate the handicapped.

Report items stolen from homes

SANFORD — Blandis Dean, 1505 W. 25th St., reported to police the theft of a sewing machine, a television and a video cassette recorder, total value $1,250, from her residence. According to the police report, the theft occurred sometime between Wednesday and Thursday.

John T. Pritchard, of 2861 Walker Road, Oviedo, reported to sheriff's deputies a $500 television was stolen from his house Thursday. Prescription medications with a total value of $80, including a tranquilizer and a muscle relaxant, were stolen along with a $150 camera, $400 worth of antique brass bells and a $500 set of luggage Thursday from the house of John Grenner, of 5255 Seminole St., Winter Park.

Sonya H. Williams, of 202 Twelve League Circle, Casselberry, reported to sheriff's deputies her purse containing $225, a $150 money order and two rings with a combined value of $220 was stolen Thursday from her car at Circle K, 5009 Howell Branch Road, Winter Park.

George Grant, of 221 Graham Road, Fern Park, reported to sheriff's deputies he confronted a burglar in his house at about 12:45 a.m. Thursday. Grant said the burglar dropped a purse, but got away with a $70 wallet containing $300.

Moon moves lower for conjunction

By FRED H. COOPER
Herald staff writer

All of the galactic elements are coming together to produce exciting weather for Seminole County. For example, you can look up at the first quarter moon and note it is gradually changing its position in the sky. A wondrous moment will occur in a few days, actually Tuesday, when our lunar friend will be in conjunction with Saturn, Uranus and Neptune. Now try to see that. Better you should look at Venus and Jupiter.

Down in the tropics conditions are about the same. There is a system of wind and thundershowers in the central Caribbean that stretches into the Atlantic associated with an upper level trough but conditions for development of the system are not favorable. Thus, no effect on our weather. But, conditions down there, coupled with the declining moon amid preparations for the full moon may have affected folks up in South Carolina. Bishopville to be exact. It seems they are reporting sightings of a seven-foot, green, scaly monster with red eyes lurking in swamps near the town. One person cites damage to his pick-up truck's hood ornament but investigators say it was done by a red fox. Only a declining moon and low pressure from the sea can cause a person to mistake a red fox for a green monster. They call the monster the Lizardman.

Chuck Krieble is out in Seattle training for a cross channel swim in August. He plans to swim from Dover, England to Cape Griz Nez, France, a distance of about 22.2 miles. He is practicing in the Puget Sound. If successful, maybe the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce can persuade him to come down here and swim Lake Monroe. Someone needs to do it before this decade is over. If you're planning to swim this weekend, better take an umbrella with you. The chances of rain, both Saturday and Sunday, are about 60 percent, close to that today. The late afternoon rains, preceded by clouds, has tended to keep our temperatures within the 80s the past few days but probably won't do the trick tomorrow. Look for readings in the 90s.

Soaking rains this week gave only brief pause to the ruthless drought endangering drinking water and killing crops across America, and forecasters say the dry spell isn't budging from the nation's Farm Belt anytime soon.

And adding insult to injury, heat-weary residents of the East looking for relief have only hotter days ahead.

Showers and thundershowers cooled New England, the mid-Atlantic states, the lower Great Lakes, the Tennessee Valley and the lower Mississippi Valley Thursday, and some spots in Texas, Nebraska and Colorado reported record low temperatures for the date.

Temperatures in the West soared again Thursday, hovering in the 90s across much of the area, with 100-degree readings reported as far north as Montana. A vacationer from Sanford to Minnesota returned yesterday and reported temperatures up there of 106 degrees. And this on days it didn't get over 90 here.

In Reno, Nev., the temperature hit 103, a record for the date, and a worsening drought prompted an advisory board to recommend drastic restrictions on water use starting Aug. 4, with heavy penalties of a $500 fine and six months in jail for violators.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

Mother is accused of biting son

LONGWOOD — A mother accused of biting and hitting her 9-year-old son remains jailed on a charge of child abuse.

Anna Lech Midolo, 33, of 886 Lormann Circle, Longwood, was arrested at her house by Longwood police at about 6 p.m. Wednesday.

Midolo's son, Justin, had run from the house earlier to call police from a restaurant. He reportedly said he was afraid to go home, because his parents had been fighting. His father had left, and when he (Justin) sat down on a couch in the living room, he said, his mother bit him on the left thigh and hit him on the back with her fist several times as he fled. He said his mother had been drinking alcohol, according to a police report.

Police noted a bite mark on Jason and red marks on his body. They went to his house and arrested Midolo. Jason and another child were returned to their father, on an order to police from state Health and Rehabilitative Service workers. Midolo is held on $500 bond.

FLORIDA BRIEFS

Remains of Florida MIA Identified

HONOLULU — The remains of four servicemen returned to the United States from Southeast Asia were identified Thursday by the Department of Defense as Air Force and Navy personnel killed in Laos and North Vietnam.

The were Maj. Joseph J. Karins, Jr. of Syracuse, N.Y.; Chief Master Sgt. Herbert E. Smith of Apalachicola, Fla. and Senior Master Sgt. Robert E. Simmons of De Ruyder, N.Y., all Air Force personnel; and Navy Lt. John V. McCormick of Burt, Mich.

Karins was lost March 11, 1967, McCormick Dec. 1, 1967, and Smith July 29, 1938, said a Commander in Chief, U.S. Pacific Command spokeswoman, Staff Sgt. E. M. Villeneuve. All three were lost in North Vietnam.

The remains of Smith were among 17 repatriated by the Vietnamese on March 2, 1988, she said. Karins' and McCormick's remains were among 27 repatriated on April 6, 1988.

Officer's trial starts in August

PENSACOLA — A lieutenant accused of putting his finger in his ear and continuing to talk on a telephone while a recruit drowned during a rescue swimmer class will be court-martialed Aug. 22 for dereliction of duty.

Lt. Thomas Torchia was notified of the trial date during a brief arraignment Thursday at Pensacola Naval Air Station. Torchia, officer in charge of the Rescue Swimmer School when Lee Mirecki died, did not enter a plea.

Capt. Joseph D. Kotelsky, a Navy reservist who presided over the 10-minute arraignment, told Torchia he could be tried by a judge, who has not yet been selected, or a panel of officers.

Couple rescued after 32 hours at sea

FORT LAUDERDALE — A couple who weathered intermittent battering by thunderstorms in a 10-foot rubber life raft for 32 hours is safe at home after being rescued by a Greek freighter.

James and Joy Neill, 55-year-old citizens of Australia who have lived in Fort Lauderdale for 12 years, took to the life raft when their 28-foot cabin cruiser sank suddenly at 4 a.m. Tuesday.

Neill said they only had time to get life jackets and the dingy ready, and took only a few personal belongings. Joy Neill grabbed her purse and clung to it throughout the ordeal, despite suffering a deep gash in her left leg during the rush to get off the sinking boat.

Governor to be part-time DJ

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez has a part-time job — he is going to be a radio talk show host beginning next week.

The governor will begin a live statewide radio call-in talk show next Tuesday that will be carried on 18 stations around the state. Most of the major radio markets in the state will be covered.

There will be a toll-free number that will allow the public to call in and talk to Martinez about a series of issues. The show will be aired from 6:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. on the last Tuesday of each month.

Shuttle repair options considered

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — NASA engineers are studying whether to attempt space surgery on the shuttle Discovery, cutting through its skin to reach and fix a tiny gas leak that threatens a major delay for the first post-Challenger flight.

Two other less invasive options also are under consideration, including one that calls for snaking a balloon-like plug down a fuel line to block a leaking fitting in a steering rocket system.

But the repair options may not pan out, in which case NASA would be forced to haul Discovery back to its hangar for repairs that could delay launch by six weeks or more.

"Cutting into the structure — I think that's going to have to be a decision we (would have to) make in the next day or so, so we can get started," William "Bob" Marshall, a shuttle program manager at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., said Thursday. "We have done more difficult things than this."

While Marshall did not express a preference for any of the repair options, he said. "There's still a 50-50 opportunity that we could do something that would work and we would not have to roll back. I'm not on the gloom-and-doom side."

Discovery, mounted atop launch pad 39B at the Kennedy Space Center, is being prepared for a critical unmanned test firing of its three hydrogen-fueled main engines in a major check of overall system performance.

Officials said late Thursday that the test was expected to be delayed from July 28 to around July 30 because of slow progress wrapping up work in the ship's aft engine compartment.

But the leak in the steering rocket system, which is not involved in the main engine test firing, threatens a major delay for Discovery's planned early September blastoff.

The leak, discovered July 15, is situated in a half-inch fitting in a propellant line inside Discovery's left-side orbital maneuvering system pod. The shuttle is equipped with two such pods, one on either side of the ship's tail fin, that each house 15 rocket engines used for steering in space.

The pods are crowded with fuel lines, valves, tanks and other gear, and the leak is located in an area that cannot be easily reached without first taking the pod off Discovery. And that cannot be done at the launch pad.

But space agency managers have not given up on devising a fix at the launch pad, and three options were under debate, each leading to a blastoff around Sept. 19, sources said.

One option getting serious attention called for cutting a 15-inch-wide hole through Discovery's aft payload bay bulkhead, then through the forward edge of the rocket pod to reach the leaking fuel line connector.

After repairing or replacing the fitting, engineers would patch up the holes in the orbiter's aft bulkhead area and continue with launch preparations.

Another option under study at the Marshall Space Flight Center called for snaking a balloon-like plug into the fuel line that would block off the leak upstream of the fitting. Engineers at the Alabama rocket center were practicing such procedures with a mockup of the fuel line.

A third plan called for using a remotely controlled device called a "Cobra" to maneuver a sleeve-like fitting around the connector that then would be filled with a rubber-like compound, encasing the fitting in what amounts to an airtight seal.

Settlement reached in dispute over Florida Power land sale

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A settlement has been reached in a 2-year-old dispute between Florida Power Corp. and the state over the utility's sale of land in St. Petersburg at a deflated price to an affiliated company.

Public Counsel Jack Shreve, whose office represents ratepayers before the Public Service Commission, said Thursday he has agreed to drop questions about the price of the disputed 5.5 acres on Bayboro Harbor.

In exchange, Florida Power will set a higher value on 3.2 acres it sold to Talquin Corp.

The deal means $1.5 million will be returned to ratepayers, probably sometime after the utility's next rate PSC hearing in 1990.

Although the savings amount to about $1 per customer, officials in Shreve's office said the principle was important. State law requires utilities to pass profits from land sales back to their customers.

The Hayboro deal earned special scrutiny because Florida Power and Talquin are both subsidiaries of Florida Progress Corp. and Shreve's office wanted to make sure customers received their fair share of the profit.

"This probably worked out as well as it could for ratepayers," Shreve said.

Florida Power officials told the St. Petersburg Times they were glad to resolve the dispute, but insisted the corporation had done nothing improper.

The PSC still must review the settlement next month before it can go into effect.

A 1986 audit showed the property was sold to Talquin for $2.57 million, about half its fair market value of $4.8 million.

Florida Power sold a total of 8.7 acres at Bayboro in two separate deals in 1982 and 1984, but only 5.5 acres were involved in the dispute. There was no appraisal in the 1982 sale and a Florida Power employee made the appraisal in 1984.

Register to be qualified voter

The cacophony of cheers, self-praise, and reptiliousness of the phrase "the man who" has fallen silent in Atlanta; candidates, delegates and on-lookers either have departed or will leave shortly. The standard bearers for the Democratic party have been selected and the campaigning begins.

Next month the Republicans will be in New Orleans for what will be in the eyes of most a repeat of this week's actions. Candidates will prate; delegates will cheer; the already unappointed standard bearer will be nominated and the campaigning will begin.

This has been a week of candidate filings both in the state and in Seminole County. Most were expected but a few were surprises. Today is the last day for qualifying for state or county offices so the cast of candidates for county, state and national offices are now known. What isn't known is the size of the electorate.

There were 96,276 registered voters in Seminole County as of June 30, 1988. According to Sandra Goard, supervisor of elections, registration has been quite heavy and in order to facilitate the process, she is keeping her main and branch offices open on Saturdays through August 6. Additionally, volunteer groups are canvassing the county in a voter registration drive. They are at shopping centers, stores, offices and industrial plants. Registration is so simple that all that is needed is a driver's license or other proof of county residency; even a bill from a utility company or a check from a bank showing an address in the county.

The current estimate as to total county population is approximately 250,000. If you assume that half are underage or otherwise not qualified to vote, you arrive at the conclusion that nearly 30,000 may not be able to vote simply because they aren't registered.

The deadline to register for the primary election is August 6; the deadline for the general election is October 8. The primaries will be held on September 6 with any run-off elections on October 4. The general election is November 8.

Most Americans are members of population groups which have had hard struggles during this century to obtain their franchise. It took a constitutional amendment to qualify women, and the Voting Rights Act of 1965 to secure the right to vote for blacks, Hispanics and others.

Voter turn-out in past elections involving candidates for offices "from the courthouse to the White House," has been only about 65 percent of those registered. Since only 75 percent of those eligible bother to register and only two-thirds of those actually vote, this means that less than half of those qualified actually determine the election of public officials.

Our county and nation are strengthened by greater citizen participation and there is no more important expression of that participation than voting. The supervisor of elections, her staff, and an array of volunteers have made it as easy as possible. The rest is up to the citizenry.

'Reagan Democrats' are elusive bunch

From its outset, the forces that dominated the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta have had one central strategic aim: to reclaim, as far as humanly possible, the support of those components of the old Roosevelt coalition that have strayed from the Democratic fold — Southerners, Catholics, "ethnic" voters in general, and Western whites in the lower economic brackets.

That's what was behind Michael Dukakis's choice of a very conservative Democratic senator from Texas — Lloyd Bentsen — as his running mate. That's why Dukakis was willing to risk angering Jesse Jackson, who is anathema to most of the above groups. And that is why it has been absolutely impossible to get either Dukakis or his ranking campaign officials to concede that Dukakis is a liberal, or that his policies are liberal policies.

Recent polls by The New York Times demonstrate how vital it is for the Democrats to keep away from that word "liberal." Just 20 percent of American adults describe their own political views as liberal. Even among registered Democrats nationwide, the figure only rises to 27 percent.

The delegates to the Atlanta convention, however, are something else again. Unpopular as the term "liberal" is, fully 39 percent of the delegates apply it to themselves. And when it comes to specific issues, liberalism fares even better. Sixty-seven percent of questioned delegates, for example, told The Times that they thought a tax increase would be necessary in the next four years (though 65 percent agreed with Dukakis that the party's platform should not mention this!).

Democratic strategists in Atlanta are acknowledging their need to repatriate as many former Democrats as possible, have persuaded the media to call these lost sheep "Reagan Democrats." In doing so, the Democratic leaders and the media may be kidding themselves. Alternatively, they may be kidding us. In either case, the term "Reagan Democrats" is seriously misleading.

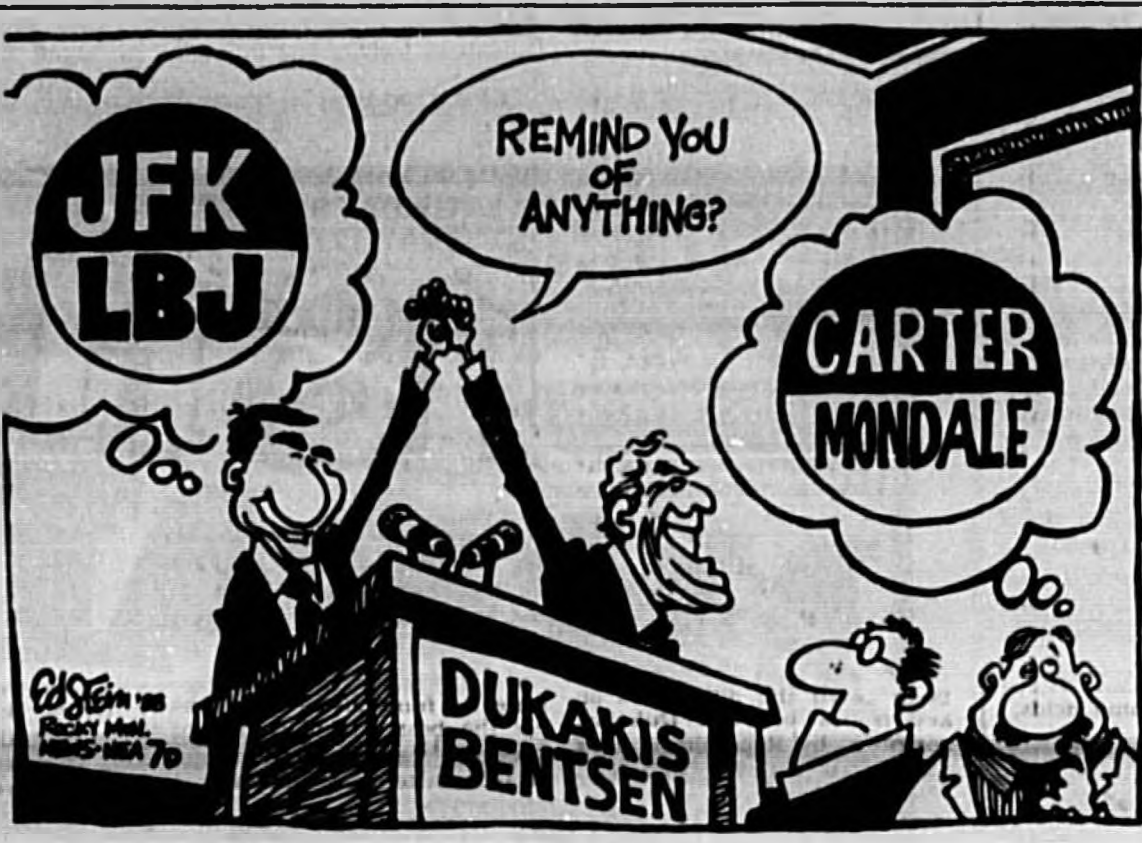

Most haven't voted Democratic in a century.

That is because it implies that the voters the Democratic Party is wooing so strenuously were loyal Democrats until Ronald Reagan came along. If so, their defection might be attributed merely to Reagan's formidable personal charm, or to the appeal of his allegedly "simplistic" solutions for pressing national problems, and it would be reasonable to hope that they might come home once Reagan's name was no longer on the ballot.

But the truth is that the vast majority of these so-called "Reagan Democrats" have been off the Democratic reservation since the mid 1960s. It was they who, by casting their votes for Nixon or Wallace in 1968, left the Democratic candidate, Hubert Humphrey, with just 43 percent of the total. And it was these same "Reagan Democrats" who in 1972 turned their backs on the Democratic Party in such numbers that George McGovern wound up with only one state (Dukakis's Massachusetts) and a mere 38 percent of the votes — slightly smaller than Harry Goldwater's percentage in 1964.

In short, most "Reagan Democrats" haven't voted Democratic as a regular proposition in nearly a quarter of a century.

Jesse's super ego showed

ATLANTA—As always, Jesse L. Jackson is making it difficult to distinguish his larger-than-life personality from the cause he represents. The man's ego has been so much on display in the maneuverings surrounding the Democratic National Convention that it has almost snuffed out the sympathy Jackson's concerns an constituency should command.

On the surface, the endless discussions between the Jackson camp and the hierarchy of prospective nominee Michael S. Dukakis's organization have focused on the role Jackson would play in bringing the convention to an upbeat, harmonious ending and in campaigning for Democrats this autumn. There was less to this dispute than met the eye, because it was so obviously in both men's interests to reach an accommodation on those questions. Dukakis wanted Jackson's support and Jackson wanted to be part of the "team" leaving for the campaign trail.

But there is a large and legitimate issue involving Jackson's constituency and cause—which has not been resolved here and which poses a vitally important challenge for Dukakis and the Democrats. It can best be understood by recalling that just two months ago, the nation was told that "America is moving backward—not forward—in its efforts to achieve the full participation of minority citizens in the life and prosperity of the nation. In education, employment, income, health, longevity, and other basic measures of individual and social well-being, gaps persist—and in some cases are widening—between members of minority groups and the majority population."

These words did not come from one of the civil-rights organizations or from Jesse Jackson. They came from the American Council on Education, the umbrella organization for the nation's colleges and universities, and the Education Commission of the States, the forum for governors and legislators on school issues.

They joined in the report because of what they called "a shared deep concern over the faltering pace of minority advancement" and the overwhelming evidence that as minorities increase toward being one-third of the school-age and adult population, their lagging performance could divide and cripple the nation.

They called their report "One-Third of a Nation," recalling Franklin D. Roosevelt's famous Depression-era phrase about the portion of Americans who were "ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished." And without saying it, they also suggested why the Democratic Party of the nation, meeting in convention here, is so torn and so ambivalent about the presence in its midst of Jesse Jackson.

Jackson has roughly one-third of the delegates here, and he has been using them to apply pressure to Dukakis to focus his campaign and his prospective administration on remedial actions aimed at closing the growing gap between haves and have-nots by "reversing" direction, after eight years of devastating Republican policies," as a Jackson platform plank put it.

Dukakis prefers that voters see him as a Democratic apostle of economic growth, rather than as someone supporting the kind of explicit redistributionist policies Jackson advocates. That is one reason he chose as his running mate Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, whose support of deep tax cuts preceded even Ronald Reagan's conversion to the cause.

Privately, many of Jackson's advisers acknowledge the political wisdom of Dukakis's positioning. Like many other interest-group and constituency leaders, they will swallow a lot of pragmatic compromises for the sake of a winning campaign. The real keynote of this convention, which sets it apart from the last two, is: We're tired of losing.

But Democrats, far more than Republicans, are the party of government, more than 55 percent of the delegates here are elected officials. And they know that if they win, they face the challenge of governing—the task that overwhelmed the last Democratic President, Jimmy Carter.

Carter first came a cropper when the left of his party, then led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, rebelled against the budget stringencies he applied in disciplining domestic spending. Today, the leadership of the left has passed to Jesse Jackson, but the incipient conflict remains the same: the fear that a middle-class, reformist, technocratic, budget-minded Democratic President will again find reasons not to tackle head-on the daunting task, defined in "One-Third of a Nation," of wiping out inequality between the races inside a generation.

That question—and not the Mickey Mouse issue of titles and airplanes for Jackson—is what troubled this otherwise upbeat Democratic convention. And it is the Democrats who must wrestle with this issue.

Bush wants momentum

WASHINGTON — George Bush may name his running mate next week. In a stroke of campaign savvy that would rob Michael Dukakis of his momentum from the Democratic Convention in Atlanta.

Bush has been advised to steal the headlines by several top Republicans, including one man he might ask to join him on the ticket, Sen. Robert Dole, of Kansas. Knowledgeable sources tell us that Dole, who spent the early primary races trying to make Bush look like a bad choice, surprisingly might accept the invitation if offered. It's felt that, Dole, a strong party man, would feel compelled to accept an offer to share the ballot with his one-time opponent.

The question of when will give way to the question of who.

Bush has been scrambling to offset the advantage Dukakis has gained in the last several weeks of the campaign. Thanks to the Rev. Jesse Jackson, the Democratic race continued to make news as Bush's own uncontested primary campaign moved to the back pages. The liberal Jackson succeeded in making Dukakis look like a moderate and a winner.

Bush's advisers have been tearing their hair out trying to come up with a way to get their man in the spotlight, making him look more decisive in the process. Hence, the notion of naming a running mate long before the Republican Convention in New Orleans Aug. 15-18.

The idea of an early pick was born in a meeting between Republican convention director Fred Malek and the four congressmen and four senators who powwow with him on convention matters. Dole co-chairs the month-old advisory committee with Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, the Republican leader of the House. (The others are Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas; Sen. William Armstrong of Colorado; Sen. Frank Murkowski of Alaska; Rep. Nancy Johnson of Connecticut; Rep. Don Sundquist of Tennessee; and Rep. Thomas DeLay of Texas.)

Sources told us that the group was debating whether Bush should name his running mate on Wednesday or Thursday of the Republican Convention week, when Dole quietly made a case for announcing the choice on the heels of the Democratic Convention. Why let Dukakis and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, leap out of the starting gate alone?

Several Bush aides are sold on the idea and have been touting it to the vice president.

If Bush agrees, the question of when will give way to the question of who. Dole is being pressured to consider the No. 2 spot by a host of party bosses, and from an old mover-and-shaker in exile — Richard Nixon.

Blossoming into his role as elder statesman, Nixon recently advised Dole in a telephone conversation to join Bush on the ballot if asked. In a stirring pep talk, Nixon told Dole that the team would not only be good for the party, but good for the country. The implication is that without Dole, Bush's chances are diminished.

In post-primary polls, Dole scored higher than Bush when pitted against Dukakis, meaning Dole was the more popular Republican candidate nationwide. But he didn't have the money or the organization to survive the primary system.

The trouble is, both men would have to swallow some hard feelings before they could envision their names together on the ballot.

The vice presidency also could prove to be a political graveyard for Dole just as he is reaching his peak.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Medical labs suspected in N.Y. pollution

ALBANY, N.Y. — Medical laboratories are coming under growing suspicion as the sources of the debris, including used syringes, that have been polluting beaches in the New York City area, the city's sanitation chief says.

Meanwhile, the state Department of Environmental Conservation today was to issue preliminary findings of its own investigation into the source of the debris, which has closed beaches during a grueling heat wave.

Environmental Conservation Commissioner Thomas Jorling emphasized Thursday that the state probe had not yet turned up enough evidence to "sustain the burden of prosecution."

But New York City Sanitation Commissioner Brendan Sexton, whose department also is investigating the pollution, as is the federal government, said his agents are closing in on between two and eight medical labs believed to have illegally dumped wastes along the coast.

"We're very hot on our investigation into suspects mishandling infectious waste found on our beaches," Sexton said. He added that several individuals have been identified, but he declined to elaborate to protect the investigation.

Several theories have been put forward about the source of the debris, ranging from boardwalk junkies discarding needles and syringes to dumping by the carting firms responsible for hauling medical waste.

The amount of waste which has washed up on shore — some 400 items since July 10 — and its nature discounted individual drug users as the culprits, and Sexton said he had abandoned his earlier theory that a carter was illegally dumping the debris off piers to cut costs because investigators had found no signs of the bags hospitals use for infectious wastes.

New AIDS test may help Third World

WASHINGTON — A quick screening test for the AIDS virus may "make a dent" in the spread of the deadly disease in the Third World by protecting the blood supply, researchers say.

Scientists from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases and Johns Hopkins University medical school in Baltimore said they have developed an "extremely rapid" screening test for HIV, the human immunodeficiency virus that causes AIDS, which on average gives results in two minutes.

The test most commonly used to screen blood supplies at U.S. blood banks, the enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay, or ELISA, requires refrigerating blood for three to five hours while awaiting results.

But in rural areas of Africa, "technical support and refrigeration required for the daily operation of blood bank screening programs is often limited," the researchers noted in an article published Thursday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Consequently, when an African needs a transfusion, the blood frequently is donated by relatives or acquaintances, and the unscrubbed blood is transfused within minutes to an hour after collection.

"Unscrubbed blood transfusions remain one of the major modes of HIV transmission in the developing countries of Central Africa, where 5 percent to 10 percent of blood donors are HIV seropositive," the researchers wrote.

In addition to speed, other advantages the new test appears to offer developing countries over the ELISA are that it requires less expensive instruments and "is simple to learn and perform," they asserted.

The test, called the latex agglutination assay, uses latex beads coated with polypeptides, or chains of amino acids, similar to those on the outside of the AIDS virus.

Study questions many heart bypasses

CHICAGO — Doctors must be more careful in ordering bypass surgery for heart patients, according to the authors of a study that shows nearly half of the operations are performed for inappropriate or questionable reasons.

Researchers from the University of California and the Rand Corp. said a study of 386 bypasses performed between 1979 and 1982 at three randomly chosen hospitals found the procedure was clearly inappropriate in 14 percent of the cases, while a clear benefit was not evident in another 30 percent.

Benefits of the surgery, among the most common performed in the United States, clearly outweighed the risks in only 56 percent of the cases, the researchers concluded in an article published Thursday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In coronary bypass surgery, irreversibly clogged or hardened arteries feeding the heart are circumvented using grafted vessels from elsewhere in the body, usually the leg.

The operation can increase blood flow to the heart, but can also cause serious complications and thus is not appropriate for all but the most serious cases, experts agree. There continues some debate in the medical community whether the operation is more effective than other therapies that are less risky.

Dukakis begins homestretch of race

United Press International

ATLANTA — Michael Dukakis brought the Democratic National Convention to a close declaring the homestretch of the race for the White House had begun.

"Tonight, with the wind at our backs, with friends by our side, with courage in our hearts, the race to the finish line begins!" the party's presidential nominee said in his acceptance speech in a packed and raucous Omni Coliseum.

"And we're going to win this race, my friends. We're going to win it," he vowed, bringing more than 12,000 listeners to their feet on the eve of his first campaign swing as the official party standardbearer.

The three-day trip beginning today through Texas, California, North Dakota, Missouri and Pennsylvania is designed to show Republicans the new ticket of Dukakis and Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is off and running toward Nov. 8.

"My friends, if anyone tells you the American dream belongs to the privileged few and not to all of us, you tell them the Reagan era is over and a new era is about to begin," Dukakis told the thousands of cheering delegates Thursday night. "We're going to forge a new era of greatness for America. We're going to light fires of innovation and enterprise from coast to coast."

The Massachusetts governor had feigned anxiety hours before the biggest speech of his life when he told a Democratic luncheon that his wife, Kitty, had fallen asleep reading the text.

But the party faithful in the Omni were wide awake and jubilant, cheering Dukakis onto the podium in an entrance that left him visibly overwhelmed, and then chanting, shouting, dancing and applauding throughout the address.

Dukakis entered the coliseum the thumping, rocking strains of Neil Diamond's "America." The music exploded in the hall as his first cousin and Academy Award-winning actress, Olympia Dukakis, cried. "Michael S. Dukakis."

His message, begun with the rarely voiced wish that his late father, Panos, could have been there — his 84-year-old immigrant mother, Euterpe, watched proudly — was a careful mix of party unity calls and attacks against his GOP opponent in November, Vice President George Bush.

"As president, I'm going to be setting goals for our country, not goals for our government working alone. I mean goals for our people working together," Dukakis said.

Speaking of his 16-month journey to the nomination, which was handed him by acclamation Wednesday night, Dukakis said he accepted every minute in working to make his American dream of economic opportunity and good jobs a reality.

"What we have done reflects a simple but very profound idea — an idea as powerful as any in human history. It is the idea of community," the three-term governor said. "It is the idea that we are in this together."

The 54-year-old Dukakis, who with the ticket balanced by Bentsen is seen as the Democrats' best chance for the White House since 1964, declared the party would reclaim the presidency after eight years of political exile.

"We're going to win because we are a party that believes in the American dream," he said. "A dream so powerful that no distance of ground, no expanse of ocean, no barrier of language, no distinction of race or creed or color can weaken its hold on the human heart."

"I know," he proclaimed, "because I am a product of that dream and I'm proud of it."

And at the end, Dukakis was joined on the podium by his family and a large group of party leaders — including Jesse Jackson, his last rival for the nomination and the other candidates for president who he vanquished. The swaying crowd joined hands to sing, then cheer, then sing again.

To Jackson, who helped assure the unity of the convention in return for a promised role in the campaign, Dukakis paid special tribute to the civil rights leader who "lifted so many hearts with the dignity and the hope of his message."

At a victory party later, Dukakis predicted "a great Democratic victory in November." But he warned, "We're going to need you all. This is going to be a tough, tight, competitive race."

Bush questioning unity of Democrats

United Press International

GREENVILLE, S.C. — In the wake of the Democratic National Convention, Vice President George Bush is questioning the depth of the Democrats' unity and the ideological differences between presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and running mate Lloyd Bentsen.

Bush, on an eight-state, five-day presidential campaign swing, is spending most of his time fund-raising and avoiding Democratic attacks against him.

But before arriving in Greenville, hometown of Democrat Jesse Jackson, the vice president could not resist taking a jab Thursday at the man who beat Jackson for the right to challenge Bush in the presidential election.

Speaking in Charlotte, N.C., Bush noted the differences on key issues between Dukakis, portrayed by Republicans as a tax-and-spend liberal Massachusetts governor, and Bentsen, the more conservative Democratic senator from Texas.

"Well, I can't wait for the debates," Bush joked. "Dukakis vs. Bentsen. It's going to be wonderful."

The candidate decided to move today to Milwaukee and then New Jersey with a campaign trip mostly made up of fund-raisers and a few airport news briefings.

"This is another fund-raising day for me," he acknowledged Thursday at the Douglas International Airport in Charlotte. "I'm trying to keep a relatively low profile the last day of the Democratic convention. We had a successful fund-raiser."

Bush dodged a number of substantive questions, including whether Treasury Secretary James Baker would be quitting to lead the campaign. Baker flew to the vacationing President Reagan in California reportedly to resign.

"I don't feel really at liberty to discuss what I think Jim Baker will do," Bush told reporters. "But I do think he'll be flying back with the president from California."

The vice president, who returned to campaigning Wednesday after a fishing trip to Wyoming, again refused to respond to Democratic convention attacks against him, saying he had seen just a half-hour of the festivities in Atlanta — but adding that he hoped to watch some of Dukakis's acceptance speech.

"You expect this. You expect the ploy, the old rhetorical shout at the convention," he remarked. "That's just the way it works."

Bush said hopping state-to-state on fund-raising trips was not the best way to campaign "because there are certain constraints in terms of spelling out differences with an opponent, but it is a good way to be doing it now."

"I don't think it would be good to look like we were frantically trying to jump in and make a lot of news during the last two days of the Democratic convention," he explained, "and so it is something I feel I have to do."

In Atlanta, however, the fourth group of Republicans to hit the Democratic convention city this week painted newly anointed candidate Dukakis Thursday as the party's most liberal nominee ever.

Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., said the "biggest deceit and distortion coming out of this convention" is that Dukakis is a Democratic moderate. Said Dornan, "I have never seen Dukakis run from the word liberal."

Reagan wants to force vote on aid to Contras

United Press International

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — The White House staff, hoping to highlight a foreign policy difference in the Democratic ticket, is drafting strategy to force a vote on Contra aid before next month's Republican National Convention.

Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis and other members of his party largely have condemned President Reagan's efforts to arm the Contra rebels to put pressure on the leftist government of Nicaragua.

But Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Dukakis's choice for a running mate, has supported the administration's Contra policy consistently and seems more in step on the divisive issue with Vice President George Bush, the certain GOP presidential nominee.

The Democratic leadership in Congress led an effort in February to cut off military aid to the Contras to promote a settlement between the rebels and the Sandinista government of President Daniel Ortega. But with the peace talks in disarray, Ortega is suppressing internal critics again and the administration is moving to seek renewed aid to the guerrillas.

Thursday, White House chief of staff Kenneth Duberstein said a Contra aid bill would be one of the president's legislative priorities when he returns to Washington Sunday from a weeklong vacation in California.

But it clearly is seen as a potentially rich political issue as well, with Bentsen saying he will vote his conscience.

"We would like to have a vote in the Congress" before the Republican National Convention, starting Aug. 15 in New Orleans, Duberstein said.

Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas, a former Bush rival for the White House now mentioned as a possible running mate, has introduced a bill to provide the Contras with $27 million in food, clothing, medicine and similar supplies and another $20.1 million in military assistance.

The proposed aid would be released on Reagan's decision that the yearlong peace process, which seemed to offer potential with the signing of a truce agreement March 23, has broken down.

While not adopting the Dole proposal entirely, Duberstein endorsed it in principle, saying, "It is something that we are going to be working with the Congress to make sure that we can get as much as possible to support the peace efforts that we have under way."

"We are going to be working with Dole and with the other leaders and perhaps with some of the Democrats when they come back to the Senate next week to see what kind of package, leading with Dole and others, that we can get through the Senate and hopefully through the Congress," he said.

The Contra policy has relatively strong support in the Senate, but Democrats have organizational control and will fight to stall action. The task will be even tougher in the House, although Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, agreed last winter to allow a floor vote on new Contra aid if there is agreement that the peace process is dead.

Virus linked to Alzheimer's disease

United Press International

BOSTON — Strong evidence that a virus may cause at least some cases of Alzheimer's disease could mean treatment and even prevention some day, but experts cautioned that the finding needs to be substantiated by more research.

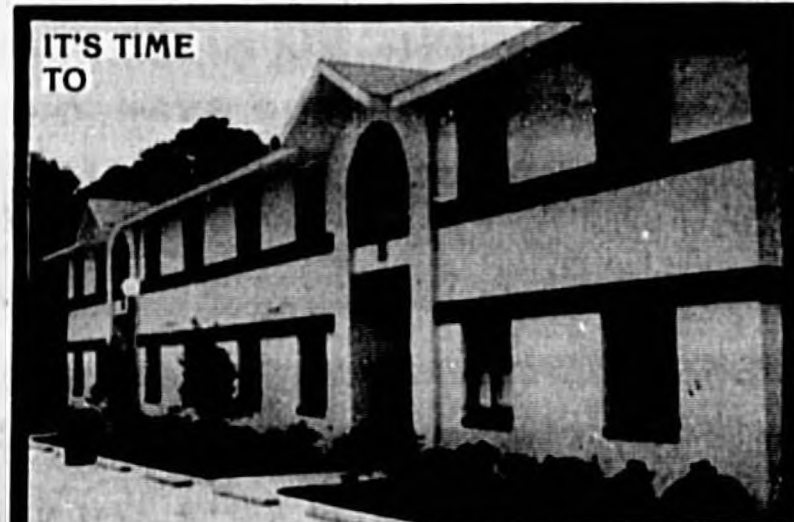

"This is an interesting but quite preliminary observation," said Dr. David Drachman, chairman of the medical and scientific advisory board of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Diseases Association.

Dr. Laura Manuelidis said Thursday she and her colleagues at the Yale University School of Medicine in New Haven, Conn., that experiments involving hamsters indicate a virus played a role in the devastating disease.

"It is the strongest evidence yet that there may be a viral cause at least in some cases of Alzheimer's disease," said Manuelidis, an associate professor of neuropathology and neurosciences who published her findings in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

Bolivian drug kingpin captured

United Press International

LA PAZ, Bolivia — Authorities say captured "King of Cocaine" Roberto Suarez Gomez, who once offered to pay $2 billion of Bolivia's foreign debt, will return to prison to complete a 12-year term and will not be extradited to the United States.

Interior Minister Juan Carlos Duran announced Thursday that Suarez was captured in a police raid on a remote ranch in the nation's northeastern plains early Wednesday and would be brought before reporters at a news conference today in La Paz.

Suarez, in his late 60s, is a fugitive from a 12-year jail sentence in Bolivia for smuggling cocaine. Duran said, Suarez, known in Bolivia as the "King of Cocaine," is also under indictment in the United States on narcotics charges.

Duran said Suarez will not be extradited to the United States because "he is a Bolivian citizen and must serve out his term in the country."

No U.S. narcotics agents took part in Wednesday's capture, although police transported Suarez in a UH-1H helicopter on loan to Bolivia from the United States, Duran said.

Suarez, a former cattle rancher, was arrested on his El Sujo ranch, 310 miles northeast of La Paz in the state of Beni, Duran said. No shots were fired.

Suarez has a legendary reputation in Bolivia, where he was considered the godfather of the nation's illicit cocaine industry in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Narcotics experts say Suarez is himself now addicted to cocaine and has been muscled out of his former drug empire by ambitious underlings, including his nephew, Jorge Roca Suarez.

Roca Suarez — who is known by the nickname "Techo de Paja," or "Straw Roof" — is now reputed to be the most powerful cocaine lord in the landlocked nation.

Even before his downfall, the flamboyant Suarez had a knack for keeping himself on the front pages of Bolivian newspapers.

A scandal exploded in Bolivia in 1984 when then top government narcotics fighter Rafael Otao admitted that he met secretly with Suarez and that the drug baron had offered to pay $2 billion of Bolivia's foreign debt in exchange for guarantees of freedom.

In a telephone interview with a local television station June 9, Suarez denied that he was the "King of Cocaine," saying he was the "King of Coca." The leaf of the coca plant is chewed or steeped in tea in Bolivia to provide relief from hunger, fatigue and altitude sickness.

In his home town of Santa Ana de Yacuma, Suarez is still revered as a benevolent drug lord who paves local roads, pays for schooling for the region's children and provides jobs.

Photos published in a local magazine in 1984 showed Suarez, draped in gold jewelry, playing with a pet jaguar cub and surrounded by scantily clad women.

China heat wave kills 466

BEIJING — Several major cities are facing serious water shortages as a killer heat wave that has left at least 466 people dead in southern China entered its fourth week, officials said today.

In Shanghai, China's most populous city, water resources reached "a crisis situation" with only five days' supply remaining of essential chemicals used to treat drinking water, the newspaper People's Daily reported.

Water supplies have been nearly exhausted as the city's 12 million residents seek to ease a heat wave that has sent temperatures across southern China soaring to between 95 degrees and 105 degrees since early July.

City officials said they were arranging an emergency shipment of chemicals by train from northern Shandong Province.

The torrid weather has caused the deaths of 466 people in several major cities. Authorities said 71 people have died in Shanghai and 290 in Nanchang, the capital of Jiangxi Province. Most of the dead were over the age of 60.

In the Hubei provincial capital of Wuhan, officials said 22 people have died and millions were suffering from fever after the mercury hit 104 degrees.

European launch a success

KOUROU, French Guiana — While the U.S. shuttle program remains nagged with problems, the European Space Agency marked its sixth straight success with the successful launching of an Ariane rocket carrying two communications satellites into orbit.

Running 16 minutes behind schedule because of heavy rain in the launch area, the 162-foot, liquid-fueled Ariane 3 rocket flashed to life Thursday evening and quickly vaulted skyward from the European Space Agency's launch complex on the northern coast of South America.

Less than 22 minutes later, the two communications satellites making up its cargo had been kicked away from the rocket's spent third stage into safe preliminary orbits.

"It means we've had six in a row," said Douglas Heydon, president of ArianeSpace Inc., the U.S. subsidiary of the European consortium that markets the Ariane boosters.

"We've had four successful launches since March giving us much high confidence that we can get off eight launches this year," he said in Washington.

Three die in West Bank violence

United Press International

JERUSALEM — Soldiers shot and killed at least three Palestinians and wounded up to 17 others in the occupied West Bank, capping the worst two-day spate of violence in three months.

For the third straight day, Palestinians took to the streets of Arab East Jerusalem Thursday and engaged in sporadic skirmishes with Israeli authorities.

Jerusalem Police Chief Yosef Yehudai told Army Radio that Thursday's end of the school year and this week's slaying of a 16-year-old Palestinian resident of Jerusalem's walled Old City contributed to the violence.

Students hurled stones at police as well as Israeli and Palestinian vehicles, raised outlawed Palestinian flags and blocked roads with piles of burning garbage and debris. At least one police officer and one civilian were hit by stones.

Police responded with tear gas, rubber bullets and nightsticks, detaining about 50 people for questioning. A police spokesman said 25 Palestinians were in custody.

The violence spread to a southeastern Jewish neighborhood of Jerusalem, where at least two residents had windows in their homes broken by stones thrown by Palestinian-flag waving children from the nearby Arab village Jabel Mukaber, witnesses said.

At least 222 Palestinians and three Israelis have been killed during the 7-month-old Palestinian uprising. More than 40 Palestinians have been killed since May 1, including six in the last two days, compared to 135 at the height of the uprising in February, March and April.

The clashes in Tulkarm and the Arab marketplace of Nablus Thursday erupted one day after soldiers shot and killed three Palestinians in the West Bank towns of Jenin and Shuyukh. It was the worst two-day spate of anti-Israel violence in three months.

A Palestinian protester in the Tulkarm refugee camp, 40 miles northwest of Jerusalem, was shot and killed Thursday night and a second Palestinian was wounded, an army spokesman said. The spokesman said the army was investigating the incident and had imposed a curfew on the camp. He had no other details.

In Nablus, soldiers opened fire on Palestinian rioters, killing at least two and wounding 17.

Pilgrimage begins with no trouble

United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Saudi Arabia, wary after 400 pilgrims were killed in Iranian-inspired rioting last year, said the first day of the annual pilgrimage to Mecca passed without incident and dismissed Tehran's claims of demonstrations in the Moslem holy city.

Saudi security forces were on alert Thursday as thousands of Muslims assembled for the first of three days of religious ceremonies marking the annual haj, or pilgrimage.

But authorities reported no incidents and dismissed as baseless Iranian reports that demonstrators chanting anti-American, anti-Soviet and anti-Israeli slogans marched Wednesday through Mecca.

In Lebanon, hundreds of members of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, demonstrated Thursday in the southern suburbs of Beirut in memory of the 400 pilgrims.

Gadhafi plays mediator in Middle East strife

United Press International

MANAMA, Bahrain — Libyan leader Col. Moammar Gadhafi, taking on the role of mediator in the gulf war, asked Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to explain why fighting has continued despite Iran's acceptance of a U.N. plan calling for an immediate cease-fire.

News of Gadhafi's new role came on the eve of today's first anniversary of the U.S. naval escort operation in the Persian Gulf. The United States began escorting reflagged Kuwaiti vessels in an effort to keep open shipping lanes in the war-torn waterway.

At the United Nations in New York, Iraqi Ambassador Ismat Kittani warned Thursday that no cease-fire could be declared with Iran before the two nations' foreign ministers meet face to face under the auspices of the U.N. secretary-general.

Kittani, whose country accepted Security Council Resolution 598 immediately after it was issued by the 15-nation body July 20, 1987, said, "The first step is a face-to-face meeting, at the foreign-minister level. This is the beginning of the end, but the end game, like in a chess game, could be the most difficult."

In Tripoli, Libyan radio said Gadhafi spoke to Hussein by telephone and asked for "explanations and clarifications" on the reasons for the continuing border fighting despite Resolution 598's call for an immediate cease-fire.

Gadhafi, according to Libyan radio, also said he would telephone the Iranian leadership in an apparent effort to mediate between the two Moslem enemies and end the conflict, which has cost an estimated 1 million lives.

International panel probes slayings

United Press International

MANILA, Philippines — An international legal panel, including prominent U.S. attorneys, voiced "utmost dismay" today at the slayings of five human rights lawyers and recommended steps to prevent further killings.

Eight of the foreign lawyers, in Manila for a two-day forum, also met for more than an hour with Defense Secretary Fidel Ramos and 12 other top officers. The lawyers said they spoke to Ramos "forcefully and candidly" about the recent killings.

Later, about 50 Philippine lawyers and human rights activists marched peacefully to the presidential palace.

Maltbie fires 64 for Hartford lead

CROMWELL, Conn. (UPI) — Roger Maltbie, who missed a 3-foot putt to lose the 1986 Greater Hartford Open, used a new putter to take the first round lead at this year's $700,000 event.

Maltbie fired a 7-under-par 64 Thursday and took a 1-stroke lead in the rain-interrupted opening round of the GHO.

Using a putter he has played with for only four days, Maltbie dropped birdie putts of 6, 8, 10, 12, 13, 18 and 20 feet and commented, "When you get out of a putting slump, they all go in."

An early downpour delayed the start of play by 90 minutes and a second shower caused a 21-minute interruption of the morning starters. The rains aided golfers by making the greens very soft and allowing the pros to hit approach shots directly at the pin on each hole.

Tied for second at 65 were Joey Sindelar, No. 7 on the money list; six-year tour veteran Donnie Hammond; and Brad Faxon, who finished tied for 11th in the British Open.

Rostagno upsets Gilbert, 6-4, 6-3

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Derrick Rostagno upset Brad Gilbert 6-4, 6-3 Thursday to advance to the quarterfinals of $415,000 Sovran Bank Tennis Classic.

For the fourth straight day, rain changed the night schedule, forcing postponement of the match between top seed Jimmy Connors of Sanibel Harbour, Fla., and No. 15 Jorge Lozano of Mexico, plus all doubles play. Connors, under no circumstances, will play two matches Friday.

The weather did cooperate in the afternoon, and for the first time in the tournament heat was no factor.

Rostagno, the No. 16 seed from Brentwood, Calif., was up one set and leading 4-3 in the second when he broke Gilbert for the fourth time. Rostagno, who beat Gilbert in the 1986 Australian Open, held serve for the victory.

Tyson richer, but suit still unsettled

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Tyson is $10 million richer today but not necessarily happier, because the lawsuit between the heavyweight champion and his manager remains unsettled.

Tyson, manager Bill Cayton and trainer Kevin Rooney Thursday were written checks totaling $10.5 million from Tyson's purse in his June 27 fight against Michael Spinks.

West Seminole blanks Seminole

By DEAN SMITH
Special to the Herald

FOREST CITY — Jeff Butler was in and out of hot water all night long, but he avoided being scalded by the Seminole Bronco All-Stars. With Buttery and Jeff Shaw combining on a two-hitter, the West Seminole Bronco All-Stars defeated Seminole, 4-0, Thursday night to stay undefeated in the Bronco State Tournament on Richard Coffey Field at the West Seminole Pony Baseball Complex.

The win moves West Seminole into a 7 p.m. contest against Hialeah tonight. Hialeah is also undefeated in the double elimination tournament, having opened with a win over Seminole on Wednesday.

The tournament will continue Saturday with West Seminole and Hialeah fighting it out to see who goes to the Southern Regional Tournament. The loss eliminates Seminole from further tournament play. Tampa was the fourth team to qualify for state, but never showed up for the tournament.

Butler pitched the first six innings and gave up only the two hits while striking out 12, but he did walk 11 to keep himself in hot water. Shaw came in and pitched the seventh and walked two, but he also struck out two to preserve the shutout.

Seminole was not without their scoring chances as they loaded the bases in the second, third, and fourth innings on walks but there was always two outs and Butler would settle down to end each inning with a strikeout.

West Seminole and Seminole were wrapped up in a scoreless pitchers' duel for three innings between West Seminole's Butler and the combined pitching of Seminole's Robbe Morgan and Mike Johnson as each team collected only two hits each. West Seminole's was gathered by Sean Goldstein and Butler while Seminole's were by Shawn Shapiro and Deon Daniels. Daniels' hit was a long double off the right center field fence.

West Seminole finally broke through in the top of the fourth when David Coalter led off and reached on a throwing error. Brian Krot came in to run and stole second. After Hunter Kemper lined out to left Tommy Wilson lined a pitch off the center field fence. Krot thinking the ball might be caught could only advance to third. Wilson stole second, and with the infield drawn in for a play at the plate Goldstein got his second hit of the night when he blooped one over the shortstops head to score Krot and move Wilson to third. Seminole brought in Todd Bradon to relieve Johnson and he struck out the first batter he faced for the second out of the inning. Seminole appeared to be out of the inning when Nate Vike grounded to short but the ball was booted allowing Wilson to score and giving West Seminole a 2-0 lead.

West Seminole added another run in the fifth when Shaw was hit by a pitch, stole second and kept on going to third on a throwing error by the catcher, and scored on an infield hit by Kemper.

They added their fourth and final run in the sixth when Vike led off with a walk, went to second on a wild pitch off throw, moved to third on a passed ball and scored on a ground out by Butler.

West Seminole's Jeff Butler lets loose with a pitch during Thursday's game vs. Seminole in the State Bronco Tournament at the West Seminole Pony Complex. Butler finished the game as the winning pitcher as he went six innings, allowed just two hits, struck out 12 and walked 11. West Seminole goes on to the finals against Hialeah. Both teams are unbeaten.

Neumann fires 67 for early Open lead

LUTHERVILLE, Md. — Liselotte Neumann of Sweden knew she could contend in the U.S. Women's Open after watching another star from the European women's golf circuit, Laura Davies, win the jewel of American women's golf last year.

Neumann went out and shot the lowest first round score in the 43-year history of the U.S. Women's Open Thursday for a two-stroke lead over JoAnne Carner, at 49 the oldest golfer in the Open, and Sally Quinlan heading into today's second round.

Neumann said she was inspired by Davies' victory in the U.S. Women's Open last year in Plainfield, N.J., and now is gunning to become the second straight European player to claim her first American victory in the Open.

"It was kind of neat to see that she could win last year. I think that gives me confidence to come here," Neumann said. "I had beaten Laura before. If she could come out here and win, I think I can come out and win, too."

Tour this year after three successful years playing in Europe, fired a 4-under-par 67 Thursday on the rain-soaked 6,232-yard Five Farms course at Baltimore Country Club.

JoAnne Carner, who won the U.S. Women's Open in 1971 and 1976 and played her first Open in 1962 — 17 years before Neumann was born, and Sally Quinlan both shot a 2-under 69 to stand in second place in the $400,000 tournament.

Neumann played in last year's Women's Open, but shot consecutive rounds of 78 and missed the cut.

"Everything was so big and a lot of people were around," Neumann said of last year's Women's Open experience. "I was just uncomfortable in the situation. I come this year was just like to come to the next tournament."

Patty Sheehan, Colleen Walker, Amy Benz, Vicki Ferguson, Dottie Pepper-Moehri and Shirley Furlong stood three strokes off the pace at 1-under 70, with Juli Inkster, Sally Little, Tammie Green, Nancy Brown, Judi Dickinson and Marlene Brodzik-Davis at even-par 71.

Defending champion Laura Davies, Nancy Lopez and Jan Stephenson were among seven golfers at 1-over par.

Britain's Davies won the 1987 U.S. Women's Open by downing Carner and Ayako Okamoto in an 18-hole playoff for her first triumph in the United States. The last three Women's Open winners — and five of the past nine — had never previously won on American soil.

Neumann (pronounced Noi-man) played nearly flawless golf in mastering a course that was playing unusually long after being drenched by heavy rains Wednesday night.

Neumann chipped in from 30 feet with a sand wedge for birdie on the third hole, then birdied the seventh, 11th and 14th holes to reach 4-under. She had a three-putt bogey from 40 feet on the next hole before reaching 4-under again with a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Play was suspended due to lightning and rain for 43 minutes in the late afternoon after Neumann had completed her round.

Neumann, a winner of five tournaments in three years on the European women's circuit, decided to test herself against the golfers on the LPGA Tour this year, but has never finished better than 11th in 15 LPGA tournaments. She has played two tournaments in Europe this year, winning the German Open on the last hole in May.

Her 67 Thursday was one stroke better than any previous first round score in the Women's Open. Donna Caponi (1978), Kathy Ahern (1974) and Cynthia Hill (1973) each registered first round 68s.

SBA to host AAU National Tournament

The Sunshine Basketball Association (SBA) will be the host of the AAU National Boys 11 and Under Tournament this Saturday through next Saturday at three Seminole County locations.

Lake Mary, Lake Howell and Oviedo high schools will serve as tournament sites with tickets $4 per day or $15 for a complete tournament pass.

The tournament, being conducted in the 100th year of the AAU, will consist of 32 teams. Teams from Ohio, Washington, Utah, Nevada, Oklahoma, Missouri, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Oregon, Georgia, Arkansas, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, California, Tennessee, New Hampshire and Florida will be on hand.

The SBA also has a team in the tourney as it finished second in the Florida State Tournament. Florida will have four teams entered in the tourney.

The tournament will kickoff this Saturday at 4:30 p.m. at Sea World with an Olympic-style parade of teams with each carrying their state flag. Curly Neal of the Orlando Magic, former Harlem Globetrotter, will entertain the 450 team members and some 600-700 family and friends with his famous ballhandling exhibition to "Sweet Georgia Brown."

Sea World will follow Neal's performance with a special basketball skill which will be followed by the official Olympic Torch Lighting. Carrying the torch into the Sea World theater for the lighting ceremony will be 11-year-old Jon Albert of Lake Mary.

After the Opening Ceremony, Sea World and Pepsi Cola will host the players and their families to a cookout and complete use of the park and all of its shows.

The SBA also announced that Paul Campbell, AAU's National Registrar, will attend the tournament. He will address the players and coaches on the merits of amateur competition, organized sports as a positive alternative to drugs and alcohol and where AAU plans to play a role in youth sports in the next decade.

SBA is currently in the process of formulating a bid for both the boys 11 and under and girls 11 and under national tourneys in the summer of 1989.

John Smith, president of the SBA, state: "We are pulling out all of the stops to be sure this year's tournament is first class and professionally run. We want to host at least two tournaments next year."

Bright: Rare feat of endurance

INDIANAPOLIS — Tim Bright attempted a rare feat of endurance at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials just to see if he could pull it off. Bright earned a spot on the U.S. Olympic team by finishing second in the pole vault, then placed fourth in the pole vault, barely missing another Seoul berth — one he would not have accepted.

Bright, a Eugene, Ore., resident who turns 28 on July 28, awoke at 5 a.m., ate two pancakes and quickly prepared for the 9 a.m. start of the final five decathlon events. He had no idea he would compete for 12 hours and 15 minutes and make 21 pole vault attempts, 12 in the decathlon.

Bright set an American decathlon record in the pole vault, clearing 18 feet, 4 1/2 inches. Gary Kinder went on to win the decathlon with 8,293 points, six more than runner-up Bright.

Bright managed to munch a snack consisting of bananas and apples before the pole vault final, which began at the same time as the final decathlon event, the 1,500 meters.

Qualifiers

Olympic qualifiers
Men's decathlon — 1. Gary Kinder, 23, Albuquerque, N.M., 8,293 points. 2. Tim Bright, 27, Eugene, Ore., 8,287. 3. Dave Johnson, 25, Azusa, Calif., 8,245.

The pole vault final was moved from Wednesday because of rain. Bright finished fourth in the vault last night, clearing 18 m.

Kory Tarpenning won the pole vault, clearing 19-3 3/4 but missing three attempts to clear 19-7, which would have broken Joe Dial's American record of 19-6 1/2.

Connie Price won the women's discus in the third final Thursday. Qualifying heats were highlighted by Mary Decker Slaney making the 1,500 meters final.

The spotlight for the final two days of competition will focus on Greg Foster, Jackie Joyner-Kersey and Florence Griffith Joyner. Foster will risk partial paralysis in his broken left arm to run today in preliminary heats of the 110-meter hurdles. Joyner-Kersey competes in long jump preliminaries and Griffith Joyner runs in the 200-meter elimination heats.

Foster, a two-time world champion regarded as one of the world's great hurdlers, faces one of his most difficult challenges in making the team for Seoul. The 1984 Olympic silver medalist will be competing with a field that includes Roger Kingdom, the man who beat him for gold in Los Angeles, world record-holder Renaldo Nehemiah and Tonic Campbell.

He has gotten stronger and more confident every day," said Bob Kersee, who coaches Foster, Griffith Joyner and Joyner-Kersey. "Greg is determined to make this team. He knows the risk he is taking. If he falls on that arm, or if someone hits him in the arm, that will be it."

Joyner-Kersey set a world heptathlon record last weekend at Indiana University Track Stadium. She established the American long jump record last year on the same track, leaping 24-5 1/2 during the Pan American Games.

Joyner-Kersey's jump equaled the world record at that time, but Galina Chistyakova of the Soviet Union leaped 24-8 1/4 last month to increase the mark.

Griffith Joyner smashed the world record in the women's 100 meters last Saturday, completing the distance in 10.49 seconds during a quarterfinal run. She went on to win the competition and finished with the three fastest times ever run by a woman. The 200 meter world record targeted by Griffith Joyner is 21.71 seconds, shared by East Germans Marita Koch and Heike Dreschler.

Perry fights eating disorder

PLATTEVILLE — William "the Refrigerator" Perry, the massive lineman of the Chicago Bears, is suffering from an "eating disorder" and will miss the start of training camp to deal with the problem.

Perry, who has fought a weight problem his three years in the NFL, weighed about 375 pounds when the Bears held their mini-camp in May. Coach Mike Ditka then ordered him to lose 50 pounds by training camp.

"William Perry has elected to enter a program for treatment of an eating disorder," the team said in a statement Thursday. "The Chicago Bears are in agreement with Perry that this is a medical matter and the Bears will have no further comment at this time."

Key cup races upcoming

NASCAR's Winston Cup teams are in the midst of preparing for two big upcoming races. The series heads to Pocono International Raceway this Sunday and then moves to the Alabama International Speedway for the 31st Talladega Diehard 500.

These next two races could play a big part in shaking out the standings, said current Winston Cup points leader Rusty Wallace. "Both Pocono and Talladega are known for a lot of lead changes and a lot of cars finishing on the lead lap. That means you're going to have to not only stay with the leaders all day, but you're also going to have to stay near the front all day. Love a lap at either speedway and you might not finish better than 15th or so. Wallace holds an 87-point lead

Boyd leads Bosox to 8th win in row

United Press International

Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd flirted with perfection Thursday night and kept his new manager's record unblemished.

Boyd retired the first 19 Chicago batters he faced and allowed one hit over seven innings, leading the Boston Red Sox to their eighth straight victory under Joe Morgan, a 6-1 triumph over the White Sox.

Boyd, who entered the game with a 2-5 record and a 6.10 ERA, was rumored to be headed toward the bullpen, but after his performance, Boyd made it clear where he thought he belonged. "I had to block out a few games," said Boyd. "I'm no bullpen pitcher. I can pitch, just give me a chance."

Morgan, who took over after John McNamara was fired July 14, improved his record to 8-0, setting a club record by surpassing Steve O'Neill, who won his first seven games as Boston manager in 1951.

"He looked like the old 'Oil Can,'" Morgan said. "That was just what we needed, too."

White Sox Manager Jim Fregosi was equally impressed with Boyd's outing. "That's got to be the best Boyd's pitched in a while and the worst we've played all year," Fregosi said.

The 28-year-old righthander had a perfect game until former Red Sox Steve Lyons singled to center with one out in the seventh, Boyd, who threw only 80 pitches, left the game after seven innings with "stiffness" in his shoulder.

"He was throwing everything for strikes," Lyons said. "He did a good job keeping us off-balance. I was looking for an off-speed pitch."

"Believe it or not, I really didn't think about the no-hitter until after it was over," said Boyd, 8-7. "There's too much going on out there to think about a no-hitter."

Bob Stanley went 1-2-3 in his second save.

Chicago, which committed four errors and allowed Boston three unearned runs in the contest, dropped to 2-5 on its current 10-game road trip.

Chicago starter Jack McDowell dropped to 4-8.

The Red Sox, who recorded their 13th consecutive triumph at Fenway Park, scored two unearned runs in the first. Wade Boggs opened the inning by reaching first on second baseman Fred Manrique's throwing error, took second on Marty Barrett's single to center and third when Daryl Boston bobbled the ball for an error.

After Dwight Evans fled out, Mike Greenwell bounced into a fielder's choice, scoring Boggs to make it 1-0. Ellis Burks followed with an RBI double off the left-field wall for a 2-0 Boston edge.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee crushed Texas 6-1, Kansas City edged New York 6-5, and Seattle edged Seattle 6-2.

In the National League it was San Diego 3, Chicago 1; Pittsburgh 3, Los Angeles 2; Montreal 3, Cincinnati 2; Houston 2, Philadelphia 0, and St. Louis 6, San Francisco 4. Atlanta at New York was postponed by rain.

At Kansas City, Mo., Kurt Stillwell singled home Pat Tabler with two outs to cap a three-run ninth inning Royals rally. New York center fielder Claudio Washington misplayed a line drive that could have ended the game with the score 5-4, but the ball sailed over his glove for a three-base error, allowing the tying run to score. Cevallo Guante, 4-6, was the loser. Steve Farr, 3-2, pitched one inning in front of the largest crowd — 41,040 — at Royals Stadium since Aug. 5, 1985.

Mariners 6, Blue Jays 2

At Seattle, Steve Halbin hit a three-run home run and Scott Bankhead and Mike Schooler combined on a four-hitter to fuel Seattle. Dave Strick, 10-7, was the loser. Bankhead, 5-4, allowed four hits over seven innings, walking three and striking out six. Schooler picked up his seventh save.

MARINERS TRADE

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Seattle Mariners, looking to shake themselves from last place, Thursday traded veterans Ken Phelps and Glenn Wilson clear across the country.

The Mariners sent Phelps, their 33-year-old designated hitter, to the New York Yankees for outfielder Jay Bulner, minor-league pitcher Rick Balaban and a minor leaguer to be named.

Wilson, a 29-year-old outfielder, was shipped to the Pittsburgh Pirates for outfielder Darnell Coles.

Phelps has averaged one home run every 13.6 at bats for his nine-year career. This season, the left-handed slugger was hitting .284 with 14 home runs and 32 RBI in 72 games. Phelps leaves Seattle as the Mariners' all-time home-run leader with 105.

The Yankees need a left-handed batter, both for designated hitting and pinch hitting. They have been attempting to get Phelps for a few seasons.

RICE SUSPENDED

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox Thursday suspended captain Jim Rice for three days without pay for grabbing Manager Joe Morgan after being removed for a pinch hitter.

In the eighth inning of Wednesday night's game against the Minnesota Twins, Rice, the designated hitter who makes an estimated $2.2 million a year, was called back from the plate in favor of Spike Owen.

According to a teammate, Rice shouted at Morgan as he returned to the dugout. He then angrily grabbed the new manager by the shoulders, but no punches were apparently thrown, witnesses said.

Pirates close in on first place

United Press International

Perhaps the only thing that kept Pittsburgh out of first place in the National League East Thursday was a little rain in New York.

While rain has washed out the Mets last two games, the Pirates have won three straight — including Thursday night's 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers — and 12 of their last 13 to pull to within one half game of the Mets. They gained a half game each of the last three nights.

"I'll take first place any way I can," said R.J. Reynolds, who had a run-scoring double and a two-run triple. "But those games have to be made up anyway. If we're watching the scoreboard to see what the Mets are doing, we can't concentrate on what we're doing."

Reynolds was in the lineup because of a .333 average against Hershiser this season, and 407 lifetime.

"I really can't tell you why," Reynolds said. "Maybe it's because Orel's such a phenomenal pitcher with such good stuff that I sit back, don't try to be too hyped up."

Doug Drabek, however, out-dueled Hershiser for his third straight win and an 8-5 record. Drabek allowed two runs on five hits, walked one and struck out seven. Jim Gott picked up his 15th save with one inning of work.

Cardinals 6, Giants 4

At St. Louis, Terry Pendleton belted a three-run double to highlight a four-run seventh inning. The victory was the third in a row for the Cardinals, who had not won three straight since a five-game streak from May 31 to June 4. St. Louis starter Danny Cox, 3-5, snapped a personal three-game losing streak.

Expos 3, Reds 2

At Cincinnati, pinch hitter Tom Foley singled home Tim Wallach to cap a three-run sixth and help the Expos snap a four-game losing streak. Montreal began the sixth trailing 2-0 against Tom Browning. Frank Williams, 0-1, was the loser in relief. Dennis Martinez improved to 11-7.

Padres 3, Cubs 1

At Chicago, Ed Whitson scattered eight hits over eight innings and Benito Santiago homered, leading the Padres past the Cubs, who lost for the 12th time in 14 games. Whitson, 9-5, extended his winning streak to six games. Chicago's Jamie Moyer fell to 5-9.

Astros 2, Phillies 0

At Houston, Nolan Ryan fired a three-hitter for his 55th career shutout — and first since May 26, 1984 — and Buddy Bell broke a tie with a sixth-inning single, lifting the Astros Ryan, 7-7, won for only the second time in his last 10 starts. Houston has won nine of its last 11.

Benes is College Player of Year

United Press International

HOUSTON — Andy Benes of Evansville, the No. 1 choice in this year's baseball free-agent draft, Thursday night won the inaugural R.E. "Bob" Smith award as college baseball's Player of the Year.

Benes, a junior right-hander who was 16-3 last season, beat out Oklahoma State's Robin Ventura and Sullivan Award winner Jim Abbott of Michigan for the award, presented by the National College Baseball Writers Association.

The 41 players chosen to try out for the U.S. Olympic baseball team were eligible for the award named for Smith, who was instrumental in bringing professional baseball to Houston.

Benes is the only athlete this decade at Evansville who has played baseball, football and basketball.

"Not in my wildest dreams did I think I would win," Benes said by telephone. "I was honored just to be nominated, and the other nominees, Jim and Robin, were deserving candidates as well. We've kidded about who would win the award during the Olympic trials."

The three candidates are participating in the Olympic trials and none attended Thursday night's presentation.

Evansville coach Jim Brownlee accepted the award for Benes.

"He came to Evansville as a football player," Brownlee said. "He was the starting quarterback his freshman year and the team averaged 300 yards a game passing. He was also a fine high school basketball player, and I think he felt he was going to end up playing Division I college basketball."

Benes, 6-foot-6, was drafted by the San Diego Padres with the first pick of the free-agent draft. He holds most of Evansville's career pitching records with 320 strikeouts, 146 innings pitched and eight shutouts. He has a career record of 27-14.

BASBALL CENTRAL

PITTSBURGH — Pennant fever is taking over in Pittsburgh but Pirates players remain cautious.

"There are 30 months to go," said Bobby Bonilla following Wednesday night's victory, the Pirates' 14th in 12 games that moved them within one game of first place. New York in the NL East. "It's too early right now to even think about things in September, if we're a game out, I can put a smile on my face and say, 'hey, we're actually in one (pennant race) and we can do it.'" This is something you work for. This is what spring training is all about, all those fundamental drills for six weeks in the hot weather. We want it."

Pirate reliever Jim Gott also is realistic. "Things are going great," he said. "But the biggest thing is confidence and that goes back to what we accomplished last year. We all believe we belong here, we believe we're able to contend. And over 162 games, all you want to be able to do is contend."

ARLINGTON, Texas — Jim Sundberg, the Texas Rangers career leader in games played, at-bats and hits, has rejoined the club after a 4 1/2-year absence.

Sundberg, who has played for Milwaukee, Kansas City and the Chicago Cubs since being traded by the Rangers in 1983, signed a contract in time for Thursday night's game.

LOPEZ PLEASED

LUTHERVILLE, Md. — Nancy Lopez, hoping to capture the only major title that has eluded her, said she was "pleased" with her first round in the U.S. Women's Open Thursday despite falling five strokes off the pace.

"I felt good out there," said Lopez, who has finished second in the Open twice, in 1975 as an amateur and in 1977 as a pro. "Each shot today was an individual shot, I didn't let anything bother me."

Thirteen former champions are playing the $400,000 event at the Baltimore Country Club, but none could match the 4-under-par 67 carded by Liselotte Neumann, a 22-year-old Swede who joined the tour last October.

GARDENING

Marigolds show their true colors, from gold to green

Marigolds are reliable, durable annuals for the summer garden. This versatile plant is highly resistant to pollution and smog, and is tolerant of a wide range of soil and weather conditions. Few other flowers provide so many blossoms through summer and fall.

Marigolds were once insignificant little weeds in the New World, but it was really modern hybridizers who caused the marigold to blossom into such an array of good garden plants.

Don't be misled by the name African marigolds. Hybridizers started with an American species, Tagetes erecta, and in early development produced generally large-flowered, free-blooming plants. Modern-day breeders have substantially reduced plant size while still retaining the large flowers.

Now there are many large-flowered hybrids with a compact growth habit. Many of these also bloom earlier than their taller counterparts. And many of the taller African marigold varieties have flowers with long stems that make good cut flowers.

French marigolds are also

Celeste White

American, springing originally from the species, Tagetes patula. These mighty midgets are generally early blooming and fairly uniform in plant size with many blooms. Many hybrids have been created by crossing plants within this species.

Still a third major kind of marigold has been developed in recent years—hybrids known as triploids. Triploids were developed by crossing African marigolds with French marigolds. The result is flowers up to 50 percent larger than those of French marigolds, a very early blooming habit and a strong free-flowering ability all summer long.

Many of the new marigold varieties are triploids including "Encore," new this year from Ball Seed Company, which bears primrose yellow flowers on plants that reach 10 to 12 inches in height and with as wide a spread.

One new, compact French marigold from Denholm Seed Company is "Bonanza Yellow," sporting clear yellow flowers on plants of 10 to 12 inches. Also new from Denholm is "Torch"—a striking combination of gold and red. "Torch" was recognized for its quality by a highly prized Fleuroselect award, the European counterpart to All American Selections.

The taller varieties of African marigolds are always spring-planted because it takes longer for them to reach their peak performance. However, the compact Africans, the French marigolds, and triploid hybrids can be planted as late as midsummer to still provide a good season of garden color.

Marigolds can be seeded directly in the soil outdoors, but for early bloom they should be started indoors. They germinate best at 70° F. Sow in a good starting mix, but do not cover because they germinate best in light. Water thoroughly, then cover with clear plastic to keep the humidity high and place in bright but not direct sunlight. When seeds have germinated, remove the plastic and grow in direct sunlight. Transplant into pots when the first true leaves have formed.

Since marigolds are one of the most popular plants for summer color, they're also widely available in nurseries and garden centers.

Marigolds are good container plants, producing faithfully and lavishly. A major benefit from the breeders' expertise is a broad color range from green and creamy white to butter cup, lemon, canary and golden yellows. The tones deepen to orange, tangerine and gold, then orange through deep bronze reds. It's difficult to duplicate the color spread of marigolds with any other flower.

When husband makes up his mind, there's no changing it

DEAR ABBY: My husband makes all the decisions in this household—major and minor. For instance, he is the only one to adjust the thermostat, car radio, windows, window shades, draperies, etc. He will not take kindly to any suggestions made while he is driving. For example, advising him that the coast is clear when he wants to pass a car or turn is a nono. Any opinion that is not his own is resented.

It is much easier for me not to make waves than to speak up and have an argument.

He doesn't like my choice of TV programs, and criticizes them to such an extent that he ruins them for me and I turn them off (which he hopes I will, of course). Fortunately, we have three TV sets in the house.

We are retired, as you have probably surmised. Hope you can help me.

ANONYMOUS IN FLORIDA

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Was he this way when you married him? By giving in to him because you didn't want to make waves, you have encouraged his tyrannical behavior. Perhaps if you had made one big wave when he first exhibited such selfish behavior, you wouldn't find yourself in this helpless position in your twilight years.

The likelihood of teaching this old dog new tricks is small. Be glad you can afford three TVs. I hope there's a marriage counselor or hear you who specializes in women and men who have kept their mouths shut for more than 30 years in order to avoid an argument, because there is a great need for one.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 20 years. My husband has an older sister who lives in another state. He and his sister keep in touch by telephoning each other.

When Sister phones and I answer the telephone, she says, "Hello, is Louie there?" I would expect something like, "Hello, this is Agnes. How are you? May I please speak to Louie?"

Abby, am I expecting too much? Sign me.

LOUSY VIBES IN JERSEY

DEAR LOUSY: No. And your sister-in-law isn't the only one who needs to see this.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were out last evening celebrating our wedding anniversary. Well, one thing led to another, and I asked him if I was the first girl he proposed marriage to. He became upset, clammed up and refused to answer.

I didn't ask him with any bad intentions—the conversation just flowed in that direction.

My question: Was that a bad thing to ask the man you've been married to for several years? My attitude is, what's the difference at this point? I don't know any of his former girlfriends.

Maybe you could throw this one out to the married men who read your column.

BUFFALOED IN BOSTON

DEAR BUFFALOED: Was this a bad thing to ask? It wasn't a good one. Why remind him of past experiences that might have been embarrassing, regrettable or possibly painful? Leave the past in the past. What was, was.

IN AND AROUND SANFORD

300 throng to family reunion

The Byrd/Brown family of the Midway area gathered to celebrate their annual family reunion over the July 14th weekend.

Family members told of the migrating of the family to East Sanford in 1923. Brothers Craven and the Rev. John Byrd and their families migrated from Lydia, S.C., near Darlington, S.C. in 1925. The Rev. Theodore Brown, the brother of Annie Brown Byrd, and his family joined other family members in the Midway area.

The Byrd/Brown family were staunch Methodists. Daddy Byrd—as he was called in the community—built Mt. Olive A.M.E. Church, where family members and others have worshipped for many years. The church is often called the Byrd church, even though there are other families in the community who are ardent members.

The recent reunion was kicked off with a fishy family picnic, and the family gathered at the home church for a worship service with the Brown family members providing music for the morning service. On Sunday afternoon, all gathered for a closing dinner before more than 300 family members departed for various destinations, including New York, Illinois, Missouri, South Carolina, Maryland, Georgia, Miami and Orlando.

The annual pre-Dual Day banquet of Morning Glory Missionary Baptist Church was presented with the theme "Christian Men and Women Serving the Lord with Gladness." This theme was carried through the evening to the Dual Day services on Sunday, July 17.

Master of ceremonies was the Rev. Arthur Graham Jr. with music rendered by the Mass Choir of Morning Glory Church. The Rev. Frank Williams read the scripture for the evening. Welcome was given by Deacon Garfield Lyons. Greetings from the city were by Commissioner Robert B. Thomas and other greetings were brought by the Rev. Amos C. Jones, Turner Clayton, President of the Sanford Chapter of NAACP.

Selections were beautifully rendered by The Shiloh Baptist Choir and Male Chorus of Orlando, the Wilson Ensemble and Dwana Glover. A special tribute to the men was given by Deacon Willie King and to the women by Doris A. Thomas. Ricky Taylor gave a creative presentation. Alzada Evans spoke on the vision of Pastor Andrew Evans to build a new edifice for Morning Glory.

Highlighting the evening's affair was a special dedication of favorite songs of praise sung by Faye Williams, chairwoman of the Dual Day event. She led the favorite songs of the following people who have done much to make their church and community a better place in which to live. Honorees were Commissioner Robert (Bob) Thomas, Pastor Evans, Doris A. Thomas, Mozell Johnson, Betty L. Williams, Deacon Garfield Lyons and your correspondent, Marva Y. Hawkins. Mr. Brian of

Marva Hawkins

Brian Construction Company was honored for his service and donations to Morning Glory Church with a plaque presented by the church and Garfield Lyons, fellow co-worker and chairman of the deacons board. Pastor Andrew Evans spoke words of thanks and appreciation. Congratulations go to the chairwoman Faye Williams and her Dual Day Committee for a successful banquet. And thanks go to musicians Mary Whitehurst and Mary L. Debose for their musical renditions.

The Elks Annual Regional Oratorical Contest of Region IV Improved Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the World was presided over by Bro. Alexander Foxe, past grand exalted ruler and grand regional director of education. The host lodge and temple, Halifax River Lodge 1723, hosted the three-day meeting July 16-18.

Other local dignitaries from the education department attending were Bro. Earl Mott, district director of education, Daughter Elaine Crumby, district directress of education.

On Sunday, July 17, at Daytona Beach the following young people were winners of the Elks Regional Contest: Florida contestant Theresa Carolina's Phillip Macadue in first place; North Carolina's Phillip Macadue in second; Eshawn Craig of Atlanta in third; and Tom Morgan of South Carolina with fourth place. Session will represent the IV District Regional at the Elks National Convention, to be held in Miami August.

Judges for the contest were faculty members Ann Retro of Seminole Community College, Grace Miller of Westridge Middle School in Orlando, Phosphoria Hill of DeLand High, Crosby Williams of Melbourne High, and Bro. Walter Butler, State President of the Florida State Association of Elks.

Market moderate, prices dip

United Press International
NEW YORK — Prices opened lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.
The Dow Jones Industrial average, which fell 24.01 Thursday, was off 8.36 to 2078.23 shortly after the market opened.

Declines led advances 645-225 among the 1,349 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 12,150,000 shares.
Shortly before the market opened, the Labor Department reported consumer prices rose a seasonally adjusted 0.3 percent in June, or at a 4.2 percent annual rate after compounding, slightly less than expected.

Analysts had been looking generally for a 0.4 percent increase.

World traders nervous; dollar, gold, silver drop

United Press International
The dollar was lower today in what currency traders described as nervous trading on major world money markets. The price of gold also fell.
In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar plunged against the Japanese yen in Tokyo, closing at 132.08 yen, off 1.42 from 133.50 yen on Thursday.
Bank of Japan officials said the dollar has begun a downward correction after a month-long advance following the Toronto summit of Western industrialized nations.

1.53 and in Paris at 6.1975 French francs, down from 6.2325.
In Zurich a trader said, "there was heavy selling by people with long positions in the dollar and who were scared that it may come down a bit further. There was no intervention selling by central banks."
In London, the pound opened at $1.7355 compared with $1.7255.
The dollar opened in Brussels at 38.815 Belgian francs, down from 39.12 and in Milan at 1,360.25 lire, down from 1,366.75.
In early New York trading, the dollar was lower against key foreign currencies in thin trading.
On the billion markets, gold opened $1.50 an ounce lower in Zurich at $443.50 and fell $2.50 an ounce in London to $443.50.
The London morning gold fixing was $443.20, off $2.80 from Thursday's close.

They said market players are convinced the Western nations are resolved to coordinate their policies to stabilize the market.

In Europe, the dollar began the day in Frankfurt at 1.834 West German marks, down from 1.8411 on Thursday.

The dollar opened in Zurich at 1.5155 Swiss francs, down from

Food costs sends June index up

United Press International
WASHINGTON — Rapidly rising food costs sent consumer prices up 0.3 percent in June, not quite as high as expected because aggressive markdowns on clothing and lower energy prices helped stem the rise, the Labor Department reported today.
Analysts had been looking generally for a 0.4 percent increase.
The Bureau of Labor Statistics said food prices rose 0.7 percent, led by a sharp 2 percent increase for meat, poultry, fish and eggs.
Beef prices shot up 1.3 percent in June and have risen 10.8 percent this year, despite expectations that prices would drop as drought-stricken farmers took their cattle to market early rather than pay for expensive and scarce feed, the bureau said.

In general, the effects of the drought seem not to have made their way to the supermarket. The costs of fruits, vegetables and dairy products actually declined in June, the bureau said.
Higher housing costs also pushed up inflation in June. Shelter cost renters 0.4 percent more in June and homeowners paid 0.5 percent more for their housing, the bureau said.
Inflation was held down in June by a 0.3 percent drop in the costs of clothing and 1.1 percent lower gasoline prices as the summer vacation season began.

current state-required wording. State laws require the city-prevalence in non-charter counties.
Casselberry Councilman Phyllis Sheppard suggested the charter apply only to the unincorporated areas, but Stewart said that could not be allowed under state laws.
The meeting ended the committee's public hearings. Thursday's hearing was attended by 21 people, more than double the nine attending Tuesday's meeting in Sanford. However, only nine of the committee's 16 members showed up

Thursday to hear the public's views on their charter proposal.
Eight people, including Harmon, presented their views Thursday, including Edith L. Duerr of Casselberry who said the committee's proposal allowing the county commission to change a voter-approved initiative one year after it takes effect was too soon.
"One year is not enough time to protect the rights of the people it is supposed to protect," Duerr said. She recommended a voter-initiated ordinance remain in effect at least two years.
Committee consultant Bill Neron said the one-year period would allow the commission the the market and $1.2 million dollars less than two (professional) appraisals."

The 2,900-acre site was purchased for $7.5 million in a post-midnight meeting on Nov. 6, 1985 by a 4-1 vote. The checkmate angered the city of Sanford, who was trying to purchase the land from owner Jeno Paulucci as well.
The purchase, made without appraisals, raised the ire of county critics, who called "foul play." A Seminole County grand jury found the purchase sloppy at worst, but not illegal.
Streetman said the plant will be environmentally sound and will replace water in the drinking-water aquifer instead of taking it out.
The county's desired plan is to allow triple-treatment water, the highest treatment available, to flow across several hundred acres of wetlands on the site towards the St. Johns River. The overland flow process would further "scrub" the water clean, county officials say.

County Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff noted the plant, which will serve Lake Mary, Longwood and other areas of northwest Seminole County, will take at least 10 small "package" wastewater treatment plants off line — with some of those lines leading to the Wekiva River.
Kirchhoff is hopeful the plant will eventually replace one or two Sanlando wastewater treatment plants, one of which has a direct line to the Wekiva River.
However, DER officials are concerned about how the Yamkee Lake plant's process will work, and if it will work. They are also concerned about whether the Wekiva River, about a half-mile west of the 2,900-acre wooded site, will be protected.

The lack of a permit was not lost on the county's most outspoken critic, Art Davis, now a District 5 commission candidate who attended the ceremony Thursday morning.
"I have nothing against a wastewater treatment plant being here," Davis said. "I'm against improper planning. It's awful funny they spend $10 million and don't have a permit to pump a single drop of water."

right, you have to do it yourself." Therefore, since I want it done right, I am announcing to run for city commission."
Dennis, who has not yet decided whether she will run for re-election, is currently the target of a recall effort that also includes Mayor Dave Gunter.

Gunter has announced he will seek re-election and has opened a campaign account.
The qualifying period in the city election is Sept. 9-16.
An administrative assistant for a Matland insurance company, Odom is a member of the Christmas parade committee and the recall committee.

investigative Support Services Bureau of the FDLE, specializing in criminal psychological profiles.
Harriett said Hinman's work is known throughout the state. "She's had some amazing results," said Harriett. "Several murderers have been arrested in other jurisdictions (as a result of her profiles)."
After contacted by Harriett, Hinman, talked to a similar expert with the FBI office in Orlando, agent Fred Brink, according to Harriett. "We're glad to have all the help we can get," he said.
Three FBI agents including

Brink, and two FDLE personnel, including Hinman, worked until late Wednesday night reviewing evidence with police investigators.
After analyzing the evidence, Hinman will use a bank of scientific data to compile a psychological profile of the criminal, Harriett said.
The profile will help police identify what kind of occupation the killer might have, what types of personal relationships he might be involved in, the amount of education and maybe even what kind of car the killer might drive.
Harriett said he doesn't know how long it will take the agen-ties to provide a criminal psychological profile to his office, but said it will not be made public once it is presented.

The reward fund for the killer of Ammons has reached $2,475 according to a Sun Bank spokesman.
The reward is offered to any person providing information that leads to the arrest and conviction of the killer.
Anyone with information should contact the Sanford Police Department at 323-3030.
Donations for the fund can be brought to the bank or mailed to the Reward Fund for Cornelia Ammons, Sun Bank, 200 W. First St., Sanford, 32771.

with you, but I feel like someone's holding a gun to my head."
Commissioner Hank Hardy suggested a $2,000 per month retainer for the first 30 hours and $50 an hour over that. Deputy Mayor Lynette Dennis suggested a $2,000 monthly retainer for the first 40 hours.
Kramer said he would not consider that because it would be working for $50 an hour, "I'm not going to take anything less than $75 an hour," Kramer told the commission. He said if negotiations come to an impasse, he would take it to court as a last resort.
Further discussion of what offer the commission wants to make Kramer was postponed until the July 28 workshop.
An orderly group of city employees, stunned by word that their merit bonuses called for in the personnel policy had been eliminated from the proposed budget, filled the commission chamber. They learned the commission is determined to stick by its decision that the employees would "have to bite the bullet" in order to provide money for road reconstruction.
A total of $128,295 had been budgeted for merit bonuses as the maximum amount that might be needed.

Workers doing manual labor in the public works and water departments were especially upset because they generally make less than other employees and said they needed the bonus to help support their families.
"We have no bargaining representative," said Russ Sopotnik, meter reader, "there are no negotiations. They just cut out the merit bonus just like that and the employees didn't like it."
Dave Torrence, hydrant inspector, said, "Sixty percent of the workers in public works have to hold two jobs to make ends meet. Most of them are young fellows with families and they are worse off than the older ones."
Salaries in the department begin at $11,537. Sopotnik makes $13,523 and his merit pay was estimated at $676.15. Torrence's current wage is $12,245 and his proposed merit bonus would have been $612.21. Like all employees he will be getting a five percent cost of living allowance and his is $612.24.

Studio says movie not for sale

United Press International
LOS ANGELES — Universal Pictures, responding to an evangelical leader's offer to buy and then destroy "The Last Temptation of Christ," said in a full-page newspaper advertisement that the unreleased movie is not sale.
In an unsigned letter to Bill

Bright that ran as a full-page advertisement in the Los Angeles Times, The New York Times and The Washington Post Thursday, Universal said Bright's attempt to block the release of the controversial film threatens Constitutional rights.
Bright last week offered $10 million for the movie, due for release in September, which has sparked a furor among conservative Christian leaders who have urged Universal to abandon the movie because of its sexual content and for its alleged portrayal of Jesus as a "wimp" with human frailties.

Filmed last fall and set for national release in late September, "The Last Temptation of Christ," was screened on July 12 service board, which offers job security and an appeals process to employees who are punished. An alternative for discipline, Conniff said, would be a trial board, comprised of about seven sheriff's employees. He said, he might bring in an outside board to consider promotions.

"I know he has heart problems," Conniff said of Polk, who suffered a minor heart attack two months ago and has since returned to duty. Polk underwent heart bypass surgery 10 years ago, and Conniff said he really does not know how serious Polk's health problems might be. He said he doesn't plan to make an issue out of that.
Conniff said his own health is fine, although three years ago while on duty he suffered a severe blow to the head inflicted by a suspect. That resulted in a partial loss of hearing, occasional blurred vision and memory loss.
Conniff said he was fired from the Roseville, (Michigan) Police Department in 1969, because he was an alcoholic. Conniff said he had a drinking problem for about a year while he was getting a divorce.
He has remarried and his wife of seven years, Shirley, is a student nurse at Seminole Community College. He has four sons from his first marriage.
As a Seminole County sheriff's deputy Conniff was a patrol deputy for a year. After he was injured, he was assigned to light duty for about a year and then went back to patrol for six months. For the next year he was assigned to the crime prevention division. He returned to patrol two months ago at his request, because he said he wasn't able to do the things he wanted to do in crime prevention.

Conniff said while in the crime prevention division he established a "mock robbery team" to demonstrate to businesses how to deal with a real robbery, and he was president of the Seminole Crime Prevention Association.
In addition to being a sheriff's deputy, Conniff has operated his own insurance business. He said his financial assets total about $100,000. The $5,000 in his campaign fund is from his own resources, he said.
Conniff will face Polk in the Sept. 6 Republican primary. They are the only candidates to qualify to run for sheriff. Polk, who has about $70,000 in his campaign coffers, qualified Monday.

change the voter's ordinance if something changed requiring an amendment to the ordinance.
Committee members will meet with county commissioners next Thursday night to discuss their proposal, then meet again Aug. 2 to make any final adjustments in their suggested charter before formally presenting it to commissioners Aug. 9. The charter is scheduled to be placed on the November ballot for voter approval.
Committee Chairman Marilyn Crotty told the audience should commissioners change the proposed ordinance in an undesirable way, committee members may oppose it.

STAR SPEAK

Talking with Katherine Helmond

By Frank Sanello
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Katherine Helmond has been acting since her high school days in Galveston, Texas. From there, she worked in theaters in Houston and Dallas before hitting Broadway, where she received a Tony nomination for her work in Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown" in 1973.

Off-Broadway, Helmond made a bigger name for herself in "House of Blue Leaves." That 1971 production earned her an Obie nomination in New York, and, when it moved to the West Coast, an award from the Los Angeles Drama Critics.

Known in the business as a dramatic stage actress, Helmond had to fight her way into an audition for the role of dally Jessica Tate on TV's spoof of soap operas, "Soap," in 1977. Her reading immediately overcame the producer's initial fears, and she became one of the sitcom's most popular stars.

From "Soap," Helmond went on in 1984 to create another off-the-wall TV character, Judith Light's free-spirited mother, Mona, on "Who's the Boss?" The hit comedy series begins its fifth season this fall on ABC.

Here, 54-year-old Helmond talks about reading for pleasure, curbing Mona's voracious sexual appetite, and the closing of the American mind.

Q: You've played two outrageous sitcom characters, Jessica on "Soap" and now Mona on "Who's the Boss?" Which is more outrageous?

A: Katherine Helmond, No, seriously, Jessica was more outrageous. I think she marched to a different drummer. But Mona is more of a free spirit. She just leaps into the middle of life. She likes to shake up the world and people.

Q: What would you like to see happen to Mona this coming season?

A: I hope she gets a job outside the house, one with vitality and energy. I'd like to see her get into politics. She'd really keep things hopping in the political arena.

Q: Do you think Angela (Judith Light) and her housekeeper (Tony Danza) will get married on the show this year?

A: If they do, it will be a radically different show, and we're going to run into a whole set of problems. It's one thing to hire somebody to cook and clean and sew. It's another thing to be married to that person. And if they get married, would Angela stop paying him a salary and just let him live off her? I can just see the letters coming in now! That would open a whole new can of worms.

Katherine Helmond

'Let's face it: Talking is the ultimate safe sex.'

Q: Do you miss the theater?

A: Very, very much. And every time I get a chance to do stage work, I do. I have to admit — although I enjoy TV, and sitcoms have been terrific for me — the stage is an actor's medium. Once that curtain goes up, it's your oyster — win, lose or draw. But you can't support yourself in the theater. That's why so many wonderful stage actors are on TV doing commercials for Tidy Bowl.

Q: You've made two films with British director Terry Gilliam, "Time Bandits" (1981) and "Brazil" (1985).

What happened to your plans to star in his "The Lives of Baron Munchausen"?

A: Terry was five months late in starting (production). I had planned to do it during hiatus. But by the time the movie was ready to go, we were two weeks away from shooting "Who's the Boss?"

Q: Were you disappointed that your spinoff, "Mona," didn't get a berth on the fall schedule?

A: Yes, I throbabyish because everything is typed on computers.

Q: What do you have planned when "Who's the Boss?" finally goes off the air?

A: I think the show will last at least seven years because we're in the top 10. After that, my husband (sculptor David Christian) and I would like to do a TV movie based on a Somerset Maugham short story we own the rights to. It's called "Plain Jane," and it's about the metamorphosis of a woman.

Stirring political fervor now, but bucks later

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

The symbols of America, — red, white and blue — Uncle Sam, Miss Liberty and the stars and stripes stir patriotism as well as the interest of collectors.

The earliest personification of North America was an Indian princess developed in the 17th Century. She wore a feathered headdress, a mini-skirt made of tobacco leaves and feathers and was barefoot. She symbolized the new world in old Europe and was often armed with a club or bow.

By the mid 18th Century she slimmed down and eventually evolved into "Miss Liberty," who carried a flag, spears or a shield. Miss Liberty wore the garb of a Greek goddess. The Statue of Liberty has picked up Miss Liberty's symbolic torch, and Uncle Sam, with top hat, chinwhiskers, and dress of red, white and blue in some circles eclipsed Miss Liberty as the symbol of the good of U.S.A., especially in posters telling potential soldiers, "I want you!"

Collectors now want Uncle Sam collectibles, as well as other patriotic items and memorabilia from our unique political scene.

In this presidential election year those who collect Americana in the form of political paraphernalia will have a field day adding to their stash at little cost. However, 1988 political paraphernalia is likely to stay low in value.

Collecting of contemporary political Americana is pure speculation, because, unless the candidate or the item is unique there's little chance of dramatic increase in value of ho-hum Bush or Dukakis buttons, caps, stickers or banners.

Contemporary interest in political collectibles grew to mass proportion during the political unrest of the late 1960s and early 70s. Some who collect are more interested in their collections than they are in politics.

This mass interest, came in the wake of the assassinations of President John Kennedy and his brother Robert, who was assassinated while running for the presidential nomination in 1968. Items related to both Robert Kennedy's New York senate campaign and presidential bid captured special interest of some political collectors because he met the same fate of President Kennedy, according to collector Debbie Humphrey, of Longwood.

By the time Lincoln was elected to office, collectors were already looking back to the era of George Washington. The favorite political item, the campaign button sometimes featuring a slogan, wasn't popularized until 1824. But, Washington buffs collected commemorative metals and inaugural breeches buttons inscribed "G.W."

As those in Lincoln's era looked back to collect, so do the serious collectors of Americana today.

Political buttons and other items that retain value, which continues to rise are circa 1920 or before. However, Humphrey said, old doesn't necessarily mean best. Rarity of an item or popularity of the candidate can enter the picture. Age counts for something. Material older than 1920, no matter what the party or candidate has more collectible value than most items since the 1970s.

No matter the platform of the candidate, losers can come up with winning collectibles. In fact, because of rarity, a find of mementos of all but forgotten candidates such as Belva

Lockwood, who ran against Grover Cleveland on the Equal Rights ticket in 1884, would command great interest, Humphrey said.

The death of perennial Socialist presidential candidate Norman Thomas, brought increased interest in collectibles related to his campaigns.

A most favored political item is the Garfield "devil doll," a goldplated, mechanical figure that sprouts a devil's tail and thumbs its nose when its foot is pressed on a hard surface. New, this novelty item cost 12-cents and today is valued at about $100, Humphrey said.

Truman items are very rare and "hole-in-the-sole" shoe items related to the campaign of Adlai Stevenson in 1956 are valued at about 20 times their original 75-cent price.

Another interesting bit of memorabilia is a bank featuring a Tammany boss on a throne who pockets coins handed over to him.

No matter what the party or political or patriotic issue, collectors seem to find something worth hanging onto from most any campaign or celebration. It's the American way.

Blake Edwards is serious about cinema sex

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Sex and nudity in movies have been touchy subjects since Mack Sennett and his bathing beauties some 70 years ago. The topics are no less touchy today, but in a much different way.

The old Hollywood decency code administered by Will Hays, the one-time czar of movie morality, forbade a bared shoulder or flash of thigh and disallowed a man and woman in the same bed.

Such Puritanism disappeared shortly after World War II with films becoming more daring and bold. Today, nudity and sexual activity have become almost de rigueur.

Moviegoers have become accustomed to films with shots of nude men and women and scenes of intimate sex, some of them fairly graphic.

But American morality seems to exercise an unspoken censorship that prevents movies featuring blatant and gratuitous nudity and explicit sex scenes from becoming major hits.

Two good examples are a pair of films starring Mickey Rourke, "9 1/2 Weeks" and "Angel Heart."

For whatever reason, it appears moviegoers are less tolerant of nude scenes and sex in drama and love stories than in comedy.

"Purky's," was a major hit among teenagers despite its R rating. It peeked at nude girls in the high school shower and otherwise capitalized on sexual hijinks among students and faculty.

But traditionally, sex and nudity have been best handled in sophisticated comedies.

Today, one of the leading directors in the genre is Blake Edwards, whose movies include "S.O.B.," "10," "The Party," the "Pink Panther" series, "Victor-Victoria," "Micki & Maude," "The Man Who Loved Women" and many others.

In "J.B." Edwards even had his own squeaky clean wife, Julie Andrews, bare her breasts in a hilarious scene involving Hollywood's movie-making hypocrisy.

For all the laughs his movies generate, however, Edwards is a serious writer-director.

His new movie, "Skin Deep," currently in production, stars John Ritter as a sexually obsessed young man whose wife and mistress are both aggrieved by his skirt-chasing.

Edwards, taking time out from a day's filming, said the changes in film attitudes toward sex have been significant.

"Nudity and sex have become much more in evidence, of course," he said. "And you can handle subjects that were taboo only 25 years ago. Directors can go quite a way, and we do go quite a way in this picture. More so than I've ever gone before. But like 'Star Trek,' there's always something out there to be explored."

He makes a sharp distinction between sexual exploitation films and comedies based on sex, the chief differences being good taste and sensitivity.

Edwards has his own standards and tries to hold to them. He doesn't photograph full frontal nudity, nor does he produce scenes of sweating, groaning bodies.

"I go by my own gut reaction," he said. "I've certainly been criticized for lapses in good taste. You're always taking a big chance when you're dealing with touchy subject matter, or subjects that people view differently from yourself."

"We all have different degrees of moral concepts. A director always walks a fine line. You inevitably have people coming down on you, and that will happen on this film. No doubt about it."

"This is more of a sex comedy than I've ever done before and I choose to do it as strongly as possible. As we get greater freedoms, I seem to go along with that we get greater restrictions — the various First Amendment things that are coming down about sex and other matters."

Why is sex — a universal activity since forever — more a taboo subject for films than politics or religion?

"It starts with religion," said Edwards. "That's the basis for sexual problems — the mores that are dictated by certain religions saying sex is wrong or should be practiced with great limitations."

"Religious no-nos have been passed along down through the ages. We haven't lived with them as long in this country as many European countries, where they are less concerned with the subject."

"There is a great deal of hypocrisy about public reaction to sex comedies. They will laugh in theaters and later profess to have been shocked or disgusted."

"I'm hoping the humor is so strident in this picture about how our hero exists in this world that even the most strict, religiously oriented Puritanically minded would almost be forced to giggle and laugh."

To Edwards, screen nudity is no longer necessarily associated with sex.

"When I first began to see nudes on screen, I said, 'Hey, isn't that interesting!' But then came sexual nudity with the camera exploring everything it could — stopping the story to do so — and that made me angry."

"It's enough to know that people who get into bed are going to have an affair, but it's not necessary to show everything. It's seldom important to do that because it stops the story. And it's no longer interesting nor necessary."

In one scene of "Skin Deep," Ritter seduces a real estate agent in an empty house. The camera shifts from the sex scene to the "For Sale" sign on the front lawn with a sticker reading "SOLD."

"It's a joke, and important that there is a certain amount of sexuality before you get to that sign," Edwards said. "I am re-shooting the scene because I looked at the dailies and saw I lingered too long on the sexuality."

"I told myself that wasn't what I was after. I'm not trying to turn on an audience with a lovely lady with a great body getting it on with Ritter."

"That's not important. I'm trying to interest the audience enough so that a minute later I've got them laughing."

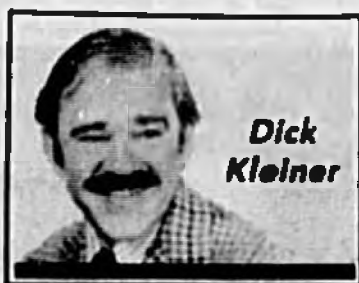

Edwards has gained a reputation as a controversial filmmaker and he acknowledges that "Skin Deep" will enhance that reputation.

"I'm delighted to assume the mantle. I think of myself more and more as a controversial writer-director because I am more aware of what my intentions are and what I'd like to do and say on the screen. And what turns me on."

Did 'M★A★S★H' stars actually serve?

Q. I am 67 and a World War II vet with three years in the South Pacific. I love to watch war movies. My favorite was "M★A★S★H." Did Alan Alda and Mike Farrell have any actual armed service experience, either during the Korean War or in peace time? — A.H.B., Williamsport, Pa.

Dick Kleiner

A. Alan Alda, 52, was in the Army reserve for six months after he graduated from college. Mike Farrell, 49, had more extensive experience — two years as a Marine, serving in Japan and Okinawa.

Q. On "The Facts of Life," I know that Jo (Nancy McKeon) is supposed to be from the Bronx and Tootie (Kim Fields) from Washington and Natalie (Mandy Cohn) also from New York. But where is Blair (Lisa Whelchel) supposedly from? — J.H., Bristol, Va.

A. She's another New Yorker. The original script describes her character as "an Upper East Side snob."

Q. Could you give me some information on Avery Brooks, who plays Hawk on "Spenser: For Hire." — A.L.L., Virginia, Miss.

A. During the "Spenser" run, Brooks was on leave from Rutgers University, where he taught acting for 13 years. Brooks, who is married and the father of two children, has worked for the Shakespeare Festival in New York, and for the Negro Ensemble Company. He performed on Broadway as Paul Robeson in "Are You Now Or Have You Ever Been." Now that "Spenser" will not return, Brooks is currently in production for "Roots Christmas," an ABC made-for-TV movie set to air during the 1989 season.

Q. I remember a movie from the late '60s in which Peter Sellers is at a party. It had a funny bathroom scene where Sellers is sitting on the toilet and all the toilet paper unrolls. What is the name of that movie? — C.H., Nacogdoches, Tx.

A. I don't remember that scene (mercifully), but it could be from "The Party," a Sellers movie full of all kinds of slapstick goings-on at a party.

Q. Please settle a little bet we have going in our family. Recently, we watched the movie "Bring Me the Head of Doble Gillie." My mother says the boy who played Little Georgie is the same boy who was the redhead on "The Partridge Family." I say it is not the same boy. — S.N., Riceville, Tenn.

A. You win, going away. "The Partridge Family," remember, started in 1970 and ended in 1974. So the little boy on that show — Danny Bonaduce played Danny — is a big boy now. Scott Grimes played Georgie.

Q. We are having withdrawal symptoms. Where is "St. Elsewhere"? Where's a doctor when we need one? We miss Dr. Craig. We're MAD!! — K.C.W., Gering, Neb.

A. This was always to be the final season for that NBC show. The final new episode was aired on May 25. The producers are busy with a new show — "Tattinger's" — which they hope will become as big as "St. Elsewhere."

Q. Recently, I noticed that an assistant director of "Magnum, P.I." was named James Lansbury. Is he any relation to Angela Lansbury of "Murder, She Wrote"? — T.R., Carl Junction, Mo.

A. Yes, he is her nephew.

Computer kids
The use of computers in education, The World Almanac reports, is expected to double every year for the next five years.

Black soldiers
Approximately 5,000 blacks served in the Continental Army during the American Revolution, mostly in integrated units, some in all-black combat units. Some 200,000 blacks served in the Union Army during the Civil War; 38,000 gave their lives; 22 won the Medal of Honor.

Boob tube doesn't produce booblings

By JOAN HANAUER UPI Feature Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The child who watches the boob tube will not necessarily have an IQ to match.

Television does not hypnotize, stupefy or retard the intelligence of children. Absence of television will not transform non-readers into library freaks nor will the family that abstains together frolic together for any length of time.

Television can, however, be a waste of time.

That is the view of Daniel R. Anderson, a professor of psychology at the University of Massachusetts, who, with graduate student Patricia A. Collins, has completed a paper for the Department of Education with the imposing title "The Impact on Children's Education: Television's Influence on Cognitive Development."

"We were asked to do a study by the U.S. Department of Education because they were interested in determining whether television was having an impact on education and trying to assess whether the impact was as bad as many popular reports held it to be," Anderson said in an interview.

"The bottom line is that much of what has been written about the negative impact of television on intellectual development receives no support from the scientific literature."

"The best we can tell is that it has no particularly harmful effects on intellectual development and probably has no positive effect either."

He said children who watch a lot of educational television learn a lot that is of educational value, while kids who watch a lot of entertainment television probably do not.

The project involved no original research with children. Instead Anderson and Collins reviewed some 225 scientific works on the subject.

"We reviewed all the research that had been done, covering the child from infancy to adulthood," Anderson said.

The first myth to fall under Anderson's investigation was that television has a mesmerizing, hypnotic effect on children.

"One of the things we found was that the popular characterization of children's television viewing — that they sit in front of the TV like zombies for hours on end — is just inaccurate," Anderson said.

"Sometimes they pay a lot of attention and sit quietly, but typically they are much like adults, going in and out of the room, leaving during commercials and so on."

Another myth to hit the dust was that television interferes with children's reading.

"Children who read a lot were in the minority before television and they are still in the minority. The best indications are that children didn't read very much before television came along and they still don't read very much. Probably they read about the same amount as before," he said.

Anderson said that families who support children's reading by providing books, reading aloud and setting an example as readers will have children who read more than others.

"As for children who watch large amounts of television, the best indications are that if you took television away from them they wouldn't necessarily be engaged in intellectual activity. The best evidence is they would turn to comic books," he said.

He also has a skeptical view of projects in which groups of families and whole towns give up television for a period of time and report on all sorts of family fun they would not have had while the tube was turned on.

"Systematic studies indicate that lasts a month to six weeks after television becomes available again," Anderson said. "Then they pretty much go back to the way they were."

Anderson also came to the defense of "Sesame Street," whose critics have objected to what they consider the show's frantic pace, which they fear shortens a child's attention span.

"We found no evidence that children were negatively affected by 'Sesame Street,'" he said. "Children's attention spans may even be increased by watching 'Sesame Street.' There's a bit of evidence that watching a lot of violent action-type programs was associated with marked impulsive behavior and less ability to maintain attention."

"Fast-paced programming is probably the ideal format for the 3-to-5-year-old."

Defenders of commercial television have claimed over the years that their brand of television was educational.

"That's a tough one to pin down," Anderson said. "There is no really solid evidence that children learn that much from commercial entertainment TV."

"On the one hand, when children are asked why they watch, one of the very common reasons they give is that they learn about the world. On the other hand, children who watch a lot of television don't have that much more knowledge about the world than those who do not."

- Spill tickets
Only twice have a president and vice president of the United States been elected at the same time from two different parties, notes the "World Almanac of Presidential Facts." It happened to William Henry Harrison and John Tyler, in 1840, and Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson, in 1864.
