Alachua Official Succeeds Neiswender

Seminole Selects New County Administrator

T. Duncan Rose, 36, has been named to succeed Roger Neiswender as Seminole County administrator, Commissioner Robert Sturm announced today.

Rose, who is now assistant county administrator in Alachua County, has agreed to assume the position effective Jan. 17 at a $44,000 per year salary.

In addition to his responsibilities in Alachua County which have included both supervision of key operating departments as well as working closely with staff agencies to develop sophisticated computerized operations and management improvement systems, Rose formerly worked in the office of the city manager of Dallas, Texas, supervising the financial and management activities related to dealing with the extremely high growth experienced by that city.

Rose's educational background includes an undergraduate degree in economics and management from Grove City College in Pennsylvania, as well as a Master of Science in Planning from the University of Tennessee and Master of Arts in Public Administration from Ohio State University.

Commissioners approved Rose's appointment at today's meeting. They also appointed Assistant County Administrator Jim Easton as acting administrator until Rose takes over. Easton also agreed to stay on as assistant under Rose. He was one of four finalists interviewed this weekend by commissioners.

Rose said today from his Alachua County office in Gainesville that he applied for the administrator job here because the "rumor among the professionals is that Seminole County is a good county to work for and it has sharp county commissioners who work well as a team.

"I was looking for that kind of challenge," he said, adding that "Roger (Neiswender) has done an excellent job."

Rose said he plans to "lay low for the first six months" as Seminole County administrator.

"I plan to listen to folks and go around talking to employees about their problems and talk to each commissioner individually to work out an action agenda setting priorities for problems and opportunities," he said.

Rose praised Neiswender for the job he has done the past seven years and said Seminole County has an efficient reputation.

Sturm said the deciding factor was the "opportunity for additional leadership abilities Mr. Rose can bring to the county in the next five years."

Sturm indicated county officials judged Rose was the most innovative of the four finalists.

Rose declined an offer two years ago from the Altamonte Springs City Commission to become that city's first city manager. Instead, he accepted the position in Alachua County. At that time, he said Gainesville's progressive, college-town atmosphere was more in line with his professional goals.

Today was Neiswender's last day on the job after 10 years of employment with Seminole County, the last seven as administrator.

Neiswender, who was paid about $50,000 a year, has accepted a position with an Orlando consulting firm.

Officials Scratching, Scraping Every Cent

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — State agency managers must reduce their spending by $139 million to balance the budget, so they are trying to decide what — and in some cases, whom — to cut.

Many programs will be cut back or eliminated. Many vacant positions won't be filled. And some state employees will lose their jobs, with probably most of the layoffs coming in education and the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, which have the biggest budgets in state government and, therefore, are seeing the largest dollar reductions.

"Oh, it's tight," Pam Davis, an assistant secretary for the Department of Corrections, told the Tallahassee Democrat. "We've scratched and scraped for every little penny we can find."

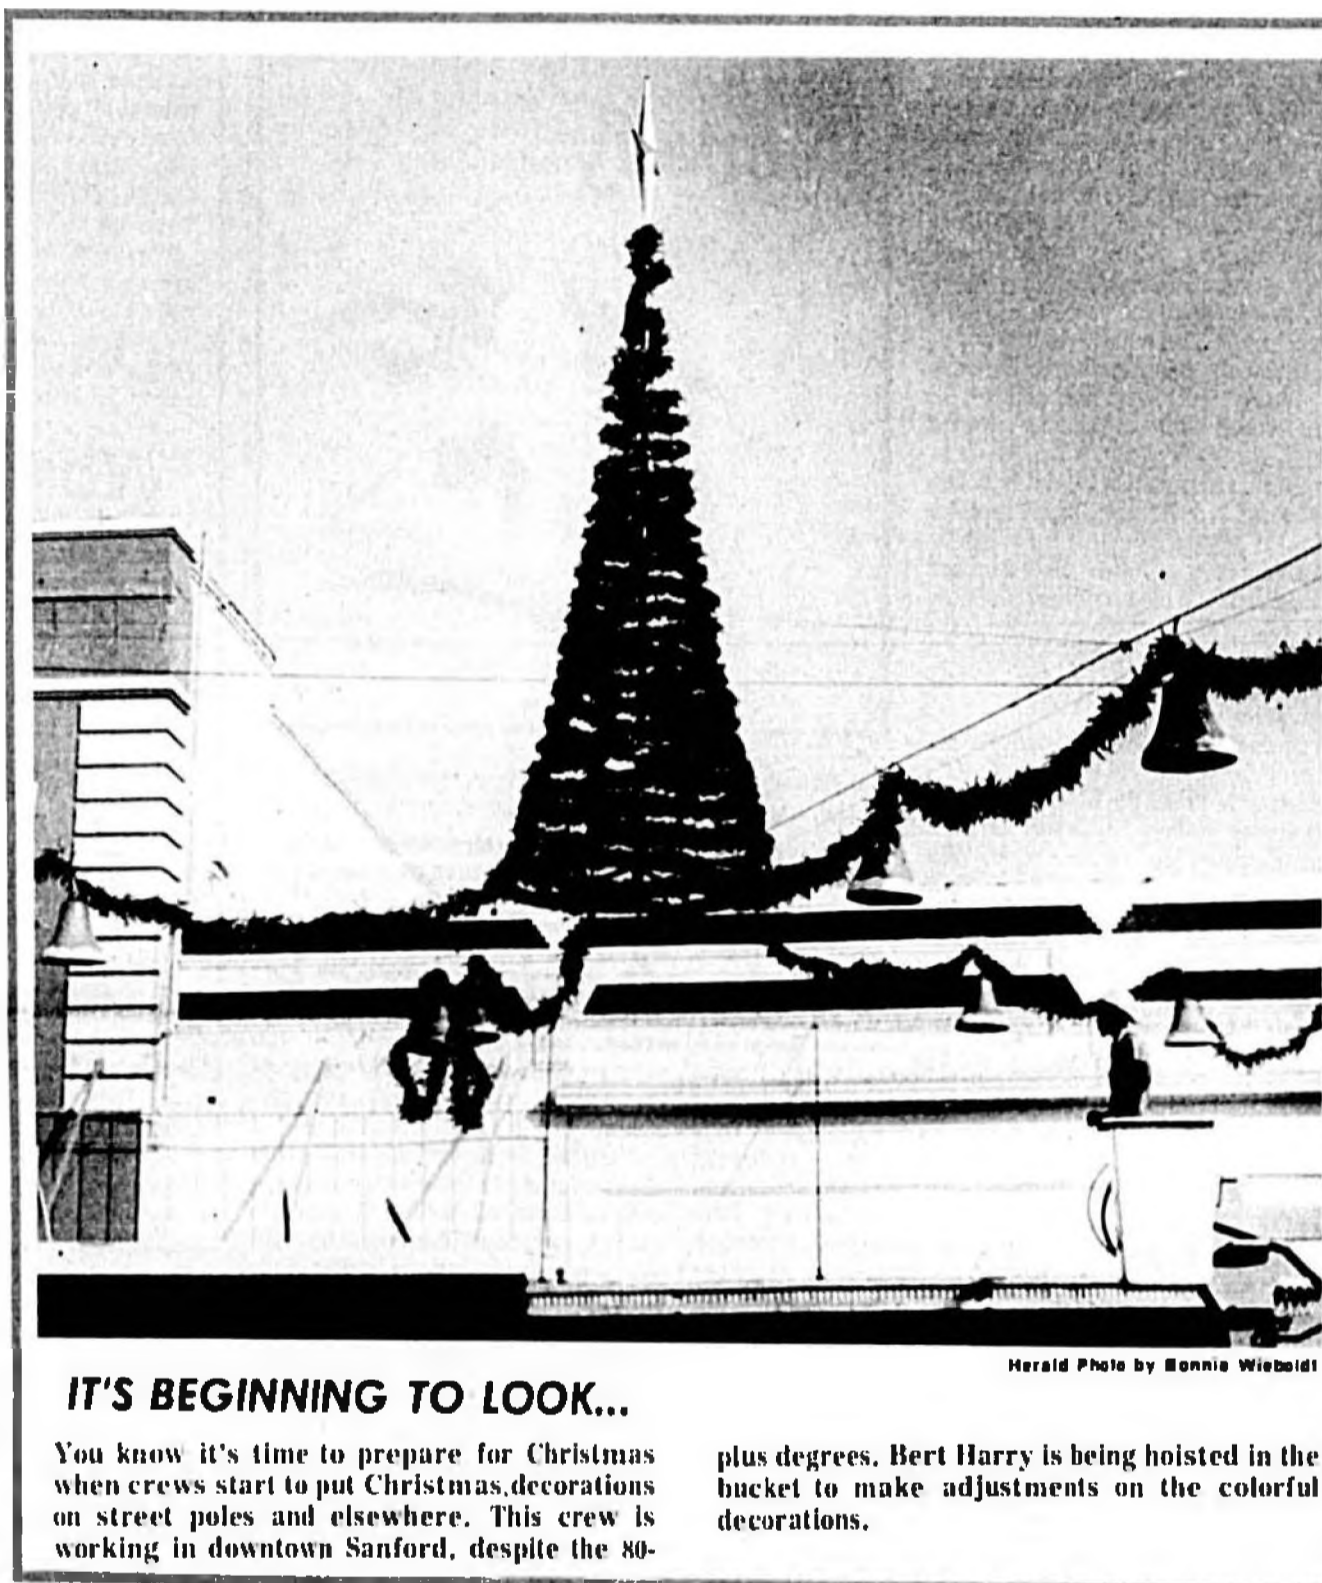

Although the cutting is creating problems, the reductions are not as severe as once seemed likely.

Up to a 10 percent cut for HRS and other agencies appeared likely at one point. That would have meant the firing of as many as 3,000 people in Florida's social services agency.

Gov. Bob Graham and the Cabinet ordered a 2.5 percent across-the-board spending rollback last week as part of a plan to offset a projected $300 million deficit in the $10 billion state budget.

The recession has lasted longer than expected, causing state taxes to lag and not produce enough to fully fund the budget.

Agency managers have to report to Graham by the end of the week on how they plan to reduce spending.

Utilities Mystery Industry To Get Sanford Water, Sewer

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

A mystery industry is "working on something very nice" for the 10 acres of industrially zoned property adjacent to Rush-Hampton off Silver Lake at its intersection with Mellonville Avenue.

And the city of Sanford is doing its part by providing water and sewer service to the site in a cooperative agreement with Tom McDonald, representing the trust which owns the property.

At the same time, City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles is searching for a site in the same area for an overhead water storage tank to provide better service and to handle future growth.

With the city's water and sewer service expansion, city officials are boasting that the city charges its customers the lowest water and sewer rates in the county. That information was found in a study of 16 public and private utilities operating in the area.

McDonald declined today to name the single industry that is purchasing 10 acres of the trust's 251 acres in the Silver Lake area. He noted the industry is planning "something nice and clean with no smokestacks."

He said it will be providing jobs for the area, but couldn't estimate how many. "They intend to build a high quality building," McDonald said.

The Sanford City Commission Monday night approved a plan to extend water and sewer service to the McDonald property. Under the arrangement, it will cost $11,334.09 for materials, $2,787.40 for labor and $1,380.60 for equipment.

The total cost of the project is $15,502.09.

McDonald is to pay the $11,334.09 in materials' cost with the city picking up the balance.

The utility service extensions will include installation of 6-inch sewer force mains and installation of 8 and 10-inch water lines.

Knowles is searching in the same general area for a site for an elevated water storage tank.

Noting the city is "prophesying future water pressure needs in the system," he said the city needs only a 100-foot-square piece of property for the storage tank.

The tank, when built, would be filled from the water main to maintain pressure, not just to have a quality of water in reserve, but also to help with fire flows.

Meanwhile, Knowles in a report to the City Commission said the city has the lowest water and sewer monthly costs in Central Florida.

Noting these statistics were compiled after a survey of neighboring utilities, Knowles based the costs on an average customer use of 10,500 gallons of water per month. A cost comparison of these 16 utilities for water and sewer service is as follows:

Greenwood Lakes, $47.06 per month; Utilities, Inc., $35.05; Southern States, $30.48; Casselberry Utilities, $30.44; Orange County, $28.87; Seminole County, $27.83; North Orlando Utilities, $27.47; City of Winter Park, $26.49; Seminole Utilities, $25.38; Central Utilities, $25.21; city of Altamonte Springs, $24.62; city of Orlando, $23.82; Sanlando, $19.43; Deltona Utilities, $19.18; city of Longwood $18.59; city of Sanford $16.98.

Of the 16 utilities, nine are publicly-owned and seven are privately-owned, Knowles said. Of the 16, the three highest charges are by privately-owned, but the next five are publicly owned.

The difference between the high and the low rate is $30.08 per month or $360.96 annually.

Reorganization

Facilities-Parks Division May Be Split

By MICHEAL BEHA
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County commissioners are studying a plan to separate the facilities, parks and recreation division into two divisions and add eight more positions.

The plan, submitted Monday by John Percy, director of public services and development, calls for the parks and recreation division and a facilities maintenance division.

The division has been troubled over the past few months with labor problems. Two workers were fired and several more resigned following an investigation into practices within the division.

Percy said the re-organization plus the addition of eight employees will allow the county to solve the problems that have plagued the division and meet maintenance needs at county parks.

Over the past three years, the number of employees working in the division, which is responsible for the county's parks, buildings and recreation programs, has declined from 96 to 83. The number of full-time employees has increased by two but 34 Comprehensive Employment Training Act employees have been cut out of the division.

"Supervisors cut corners to make ends meet," Percy said. "Frankly, we think we made a mistake."

The plan devised by Percy, Personnel Director Lois Martin and Assistant County Administrator Jim Easton calls for elimination of the facilities and parks coordinator and facilities, parks and recreation manager positions. Two new positions — managers of the separate divisions — would be created. Three new positions would be created in parks and recreation and five new posts in facilities maintenance. Several other jobs would get new titles to better reflect the type of work called for.

"I don't think the board lowered its expectations one bit after we lost a whole slew of CETA workers," County Administrator Roger Neiswender said.

Robert G. "Bud" Feather said he liked the reorganization but felt fewer jobs could be added.

Barbara Christensen was opposed to the addition of any new jobs. She complained that Percy's plan has "too many chiefs and no Indians."

Mrs. Christensen criticized the division, saying she often goes by county facilities and workers aren't doing their jobs.

Her comments angered Neiswender. "You've never once reported it to me. Vague aspersions are no help. The others come and tell me when they see something."

Neiswender said feedback is necessary to let the employees know the commissioners are concerned about the quality of the work being performed.

Robert Sturm and Bill Kirchhoff said they favor a plan to make three divisions, separating parks and recreation.

Neiswender and Acting Facilities, Parks and Recreation Manager Leonard Carswell said such a separation would cause problems in staffing.

Various county crews now do work on a rotating basis at various parks and facilities. Under the three divisions, some of the duties would be duplicated, Carswell said.

Commissioners said they want more time to study the plan and directed Carswell to bring more information on use of county facilities and staffing.

City Stands Firm On Recreation Land Rule

Construction of "The Country Place" development, a 12-unit group housing project by Gallimore Homes at 119 Upsala Road, is progressing.

But once construction is completed, the builder is going to have difficulty moving home buyers into the new structures until he pays the city of Sanford some $7,112.

City Manager W. E. "Pete" Knowles told the Sanford City Commission Monday night the city's zoning inspector has been unable to contact the development company's principals.

He said the city's Planning and Zoning Commission early in the year told the firm the recreational area in the plan for the 2.9-acre site does not meet city requirements.

The developers were informed, Knowles said, that a fee could be paid to the city in lieu of a donation of recreation land. The fee amounts to $592 per unit or a total of $7,112.

The normal process is for the developer to ask the commission in writing to accept the fee instead of land. The total of the land donation would have been about .16 of an acre.

"This is a strange situation," Knowles told the commission, adding that numerous telephone calls to the Gallimore office in Altamonte Springs, have gone without a response.

Asking the commission to permit the donation of cash, Knowles said in this fashion when the developer is ready to ask the city for certificates to allow the homes to be occupied, the staff will not have to hold up the developer by waiting for a city commission meeting.

Principals of the development company could not be reached for comment today.

Second Youth Hospitalized

Sanford Youth Dies After Wreck

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

A 17-year-old Sanford youth is dead and another Sanford man is in critical but stable condition today at the Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford following a traffic accident Saturday near Paola.

Raymond E. Palmer Jr., 17, of 204 Ridge Road, died Monday night at Winter Park Memorial Hospital from injuries he received when he apparently lost control of his motorcycle along Lake Martham Road, near Paola at about 11:30 p.m. Saturday, officials said.

In addition, Palmer's passenger, Steven Davis, 18, of 2413

Marshall Ave., was listed in critical but stable condition at the Sanford hospital where he is being treated for injuries sustained in the crash, hospital officials said.

Florida Highway Patrol officers investigated the accident, which resulted in the 31st traffic-related fatality in Seminole County this year, but few details of the accident have been released. Troopers said the crash involved only Palmer's vehicle.

Palmer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Palmer Sr. of Sanford, was a student at Seminole Community College and had six sisters and one brother, including a twin sister.

NATION IN BRIEF

New MX Plan Must Now Survive Leery Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration touts "dense-pack" basing for the MX missile as the most survivable method of deploying the weapon, but the factor most crucial to its survival today rests with Congress.

President Reagan announced the $26 billion basing plan Monday, hailing the new generation 10-warhead weapon as "the right missile at the right time" to close the "window of vulnerability" opened by the perceived Soviet ability to wipe out America's retaliatory force in a first strike.

But in Congress, there was strong reaction against the basing plan. Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said he believes Congress will support his amendment to kill $968 million earmarked for initial missile production.

As planned, the MX missiles would not be in place before 1986. The procurement and research money has been authorized, but Congress held up the funds, directing Reagan to decide on a basing system by Dec. 1.

Nixon Ordered Allende 'Hit'

BOSTON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon ordered the CIA to assassinate Chile's Marxist President Salvador Allende, killed in a military coup in 1973, and the head of the CIA lied about it in Senate investigation hearings, a magazine reported.

An article in the current issue of Atlantic Monthly, an excerpt from Seymour M. Hersh's forthcoming book, "The Price of Power: Kissinger in Nixon's White House," said Nixon gave CIA Director Richard Helms a "blank check to move against Allende without informing anyone."

Hersh quoted Navy Yeoman Charles E. Radford, who handled documents in a National Security Council office, as having been shocked to discover an internal White House memo in 1970 that ordered the assassination of Allende.

Thompson's The Winner

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Republican Gov. James R. Thompson says it's over. Democratic challenger Adlai E. Stevenson III has set out to prove it's not.

The State Board of Election issued official results Monday that showed Thompson won re-election to an unprecedented third term by just 5,074 votes in the narrowest statewide election in Illinois history.

Stevenson set the wheels in motion for a recount immediately after the results were announced.

Creationism Law Dead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A federal judge has thrown out the nation's only creationism law in a ruling the American Civil Liberties Union says proves to states "passing one of these ridiculous measures will not work."

Shocked state lawmakers who lost a power struggle with the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education over dictating curriculum said they would appeal.

The law, passed by the Legislature in 1981, required the teaching of the biblical version of creation in schools that taught the evolutionary version.

Consumer Prices Up Slightly In October

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher rent and home fuel costs pushed consumer prices up 0.5 percent in October, the Labor Department said today, but this still left inflation at a relatively low 4.1 percent for the first 10 months of the year.

The October increase in the Consumer Price Index was larger than increases of 0.3 percent in August and 0.2 percent in September and was the highest since a 0.6 percent increase in July.

Many analysts had expected falling mortgage interest rates to continue the very low inflation levels of the past two months. Mortgage rates did fall 2.3 percent, the Labor Department said. But this decline was offset, largely by a 0.9 percent increase in rents and sharp increases for home fuels and utilities, which as a group rose 1.5 percent.

Within the home fuel category, piped gas rose 3.6 percent, reflecting the continuing effects of natural gas decontrol, and home fuel oil rose 1.9 percent.

The 0.5 percent October rise in the overall CPI is a compound annual inflation rate of 5.9 percent. That shows what inflation would be if this rate were continued a full year.

That compares with inflation rates of 13 percent in 1979, 12 percent in 1980, and 9 percent last year.

The CPI for October stood at 294.1, which means that goods that cost $100 in 1967 now cost $294.1.

Transportation costs also contributed to the overall October increase, rising 0.6 percent. A 0.9 percent rise in gasoline prices and higher auto insurance contributed to the transportation increase.

Food and beverages increased a modest 0.2 percent, with prices at grocery stores rising only 0.1 percent, following a 0.5 percent increase in September.

Medical care rose 0.8 percent, slightly less than its average climb so far this year.

Analysts still believe there has been a real and fundamental decline in inflation during the past two years, though they had regarded the very low figures of the past two months as unrealistically low. These were pushed down largely by falling mortgage rates.

The CPI is constructed so the costs of home ownership are given undue weight in calculating overall inflation.

This is the mirror image of what happened during 1979 and much of 1980 when interest rates including mortgage rates were sharply rising. That exaggerated the rise in the CPI during those years, helping to push it to 13 percent in 1979 and 12 percent in 1980.

Starting with January 1983 inflation figures, to be reported in February, the Labor Department will switch to a different way of figuring home ownership costs, based on a rental equivalent concept, which is designed to correct this under-or over-estimation of consumer inflation.

A preliminary version of that system showed an inflation rate of 0.5 percent — an annual rate of about 6 percent — during September.

Sandra Shabor of Chase Econometrics, an economic forecasting firm outside Philadelphia, believes the real, or "underlying," rate of inflation is 5 to 6 percent and will stay in this range for the next several years.

Recent Chase estimates, to be updated this week, show inflation of 6.2 percent for 1982 as a whole; 5.2 percent in 1983 and 6.1 percent in 1984.

This still is a big improvement over a couple of years ago, Mrs. Shabor notes, because the two big "shocks" to the economy that pushed inflation up then — food and fuel price rises — now have abated. There now are abundant supplies of grain, and fuel conservation and the recession have produced a world oil surplus.

"There is some evidence," Mrs. Shabor said, "that we are beginning to unwind the wage-price of the '70s."

Wage rates have been rising at rates of 5 to 6 percent compared to 9 and 10 percent a year or two ago.

And the recession has pushed down prices of many raw materials including copper, aluminum, steel, plastics and many kinds of lumber.

Mood Somber At JFK Library

BOSTON (UPI) — On the screen, a film showed a young and handsome John F. Kennedy exchange barbs with the White House press corps 20 years ago. In the audience, Elsie Healy dabbed her eyes with a handkerchief.

Mrs. Healy, County Kerry, Ireland, sat red-eyed with emotion Monday in the John F. Kennedy Library on the 19th anniversary of the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination in Dallas many consider the spark to a decade of racial and political turmoil.

"We had a great following of the Kennedy regime at home," Mrs. Healy said in a lilting brogue. "There were pictures of Jack and Jackie in every house."

At the library, there were no special exhibits save for an unobtrusive bunch of 19 roses beneath the young president's portrait in the library foyer. A U.S. flag outside the building — rippling from a stiff breeze off the bay near where Kennedy often sailed his yacht "Victoria" — flew at half staff.

The yacht has been preserved and sits pointing seaward outside the library.

"We don't mark the assassination in any special way," said library Director Daniel H. Fenn Jr. "It's not a happy time for us."

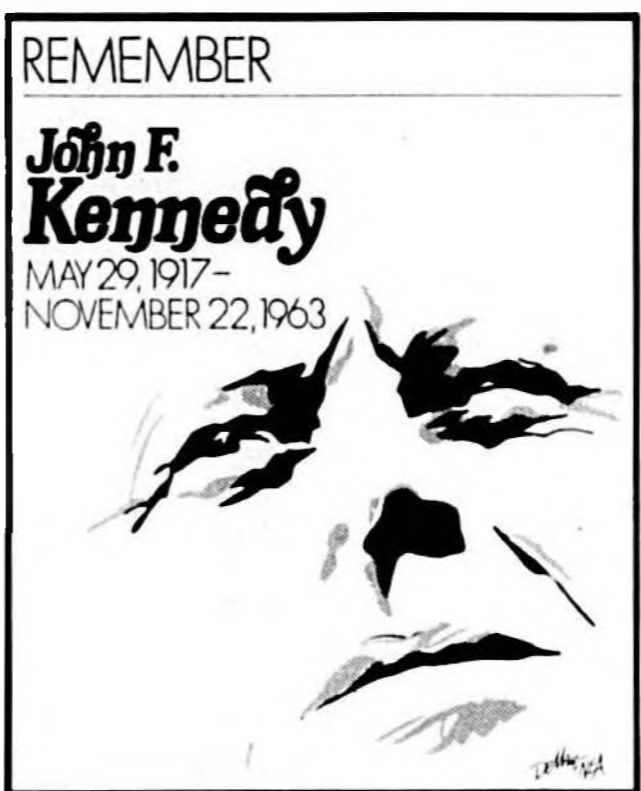

But the assassination that shocked the world found its mark with some who pondered the remarkable presidency amid the quietude of the Kennedy memorabilia.

"Of course we decided to come because of the anniversary," Frances D. Frawley of New Hampshire said after she toured the museum with her daughter.

"I campaigned for both Jack and Bobby. To me there'll never be another."

Fenn said patronage is usually up on the assassination anniversary and the mood among visitors is somber.

"People seem to be more somber and we get a higher percentage of people who come this day as a pilgrimage," Fenn said.

John Bourque of Boston was just 2-years-old when the events of that sunny day in Dallas first flashed around the world. "I've always been interested in President Kennedy and with the assassination anniversary, I wanted to come up and see the exhibits," said Bourque, 21, of his first visit.

Granny Got Her Gun...And Crook

FORT MYERS (UPI) — A 43-year-old pistol-packing grandmother who was robbed at gunpoint chased down her assailant, smacked one with her gun and took back the gold necklace that had been ripped from her neck, police said today.

Martha Kate Cross of LaBelle was on her way to visit her 2-year-old grandson at Lee Memorial Hospital Sunday when three men approached her in the parking lot of a shopping center where she had stopped to buy batteries, police said.

One of the robbers showed her a gun hidden in his jacket and demanded her purse, Mrs. Cross said today.

"I pretended I didn't hear him and kept walking right into him, stepping on his toes," she said. "Then he said, 'I'll blow your head off if you don't give me your purse.' Well, I was in no mood — I had had such a bad week — and so I swung my purse at him. He was shocked and grabbed the gold necklace from my neck. The men ran and I turned around and said to another man walking by, "They got my purse." And then I realized I sounded like a little whining woman and knew I had to handle it myself."

Mrs. Cross said she jumped into her 1979 Cadillac, reached for her .22-caliber Smith & Wesson locked in the glove compartment and began to "track them down."

Spotting them several blocks away, she said she cornered the young man who had ripped the necklace from her neck.

"He had thrown his gun to the two other men and that was his mistake," she said. "I got out of my car pointing my gun at him and he began begging me, 'Lady, please don't shoot.' I figured it was a fair fight because I had stitches in my left hand and could only use my right one."

"Well, I walked over to him and pistol-whipped him around the side of his head with my gun barrel. He fell to the ground and was, to say the least, very surprised."

Then, Mrs. Cross said, she grabbed her necklace from the man before jumping back in her car and sped to the hospital to see her grandson, William Paul Byrd III, who was seriously injured earlier in the week.

Mrs. Cross told a security guard at the hospital about the incident and police came to take her statement.

"They just picked the wrong person to pick on," she said. "I was worried about my grandson and I had cut my hand on a can of peas and had seven stitches in there and I was in no mood to play around."

Mrs. Cross said she gave police a description of the assailant who stole her necklace and a composite picture was drawn. Police today said they have identified the suspect and are searching for him.

For Burglarizing Church, Restaurant

Additional charges have been filed against a Seminole County jail inmate by Sanford police in connection with the burglaries of a Sanford restaurant and church.

Charles DeWayne Wallace, 32, address unknown, was being held in the county jail under $8,000 bond today following his arrest Monday on two counts of burglary, grand theft and dealing in stolen property.

Wallace was arrested at the jail where he is awaiting trial in connection with his arrest Nov. 11 on charges of stealing an automobile, officials said.

Police said they arrested Wallace in connection with the Oct. 28 burglary of Carlo's Italian restaurant, 1008 S. French Ave., Sanford, and the Oct. 28 burglary of the Central Baptist Church, 1311 Oak Ave., Sanford, after a man sold a stereo receiver, beer, wine and meat, which were stolen from the restaurant, to an unidentified man for $50 on Oct. 29.

In addition, police said Wallace sold a clock radio, amplifier and two speakers, which were stolen from the church, to the same man on Oct. 29.

STATE REPRESENTATIVE ATTACKED
 Newly-elected State House Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, was attacked in an Altamonte Springs restaurant Friday night and suffered a small cut on his face.

Selph told police that an unidentified man struck him on the left side of the face and kicked him in the leg in a restroom at Smuggler's Inn, State Road 436, at about 11:30 p.m. Friday.

Police said the man then returned to the lounge but was gone when police arrived on the scene. Selph did not require hospitalization but was treated at the restaurant for injuries, police said.

LONGWOOD HOME RANSACKED
 Someone broke into a Longwood man's home between 5 p.m. Saturday and 10:30 a.m. Sunday, ransacked it and stole an undisclosed amount of property.

CONVENIENCE STORE BOBBED
 A convenience store near Sanford was robbed of an undisclosed amount of money Friday after a man entered the store and demanded the clerk hand over the cash, along with the clerk's wallet.

Clerk David Eugene Steele, 63, at the Lil' Champ convenience store at 2752 Country Club Road told deputies a man walked into the store at about 7:47 p.m. Friday and told him to "Give me all your money and the money down there," pointing to the floor safe.

After handing over the undisclosed amount of cash, Steele said the robber ordered him to lie face down on the floor as he fled along Country Club Road toward Airport Boulevard, deputies said.

Lawyers Need Shove Into Helping The Poor

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Asserting that a voluntary system has not worked, a group of 58 lawyers wants the Florida Supreme Court to make it mandatory for Florida Bar members to donate their time or money in providing legal services for the poor.

In a petition filed with the court Monday, the group contended that the required service is especially needed now that the Reagan Administration has cut funds to the Legal Services Corp., which provides mainly non-criminal legal services.

The Florida Bar, which opposes the proposal, contends voluntary programs can meet the needs of the poor.

Steele told deputies that the robber did not appear to be armed.

SOUTH COUNTY HOME ROBBED
 Someone broke into a south Seminole County couple's home between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. Friday stealing about $1,818 worth of jewelry.

Richard Brooke Westerman, 25, of Apartment 2713 Red Lion Apartment in Winter Park told deputies someone broke into his home and stole jewelry from him and his wife, Leslie, 26.

Deputies said the thieves took necklaces, an antique pearl ring, a diamond and jade ring, a gold bracelet, two diamond rings, a gold watch, a silver ring and two gold crosses.

GUNS STOLEN FROM TRUCK
 Someone stole a 30-30 rifle and a .22-caliber revolver from a Lake Monroe man's truck at about 1 p.m. Saturday.

Dan C. Spivey, 61, told police he had parked his truck at 1301 W. 13th St. in Sanford and when he returned, found someone had stolen the guns which are valued at about $300.

THIEVES STEAL FROM CHURCH
 Someone stole an amplifier and a phonograph from the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses at 1562 W. Third St. in Sanford between 11 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. Saturday.

James Green, 63, who discovered the burglary, told police the thief broke out a window in the bathroom at the church and once inside, stole the equipment valued at about $800.

MORTAR MIXER MISSING
 A mortar mixer has been stolen from the storage shed of the Seminole County schools at 1613 Lake Ave., in Sanford.

Police said the mixer, valued at about $850, was stolen sometime between 4 p.m. Friday and 5:13 a.m. Saturday.

DRUG-RELATED ARREST
 A 28-year-old Sanford man is free from the Seminole County jail today after posting $5,000 bond following his arrest Friday for possession of marijuana with the intent to deliver the drug.

Linwood Barnes, of 1804 Tangerine Ave., was arrested Friday afternoon when agents purchased two bags of marijuana from a man and found another 17 bags of the illegal drug during the arrest.

IN BRIEF

FP&L Getting Rate Hike, But Not What It Expected

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida Power & Light Co. is getting its second rate increase in just over a year — but not nearly as much as it wanted.

The Public Service Commission finishes up an eight-month review of FP&L's petition for a $281 million increase today and probably will grant the company no more than $100 million.

The Miami-based utility sought a $476 million boost from the commission last year and wound up in September of 1981 with $257 million. It quickly filed a new rate case, hoping to win the difference.

Students Being Sent Home

MIAMI (UPI) — More than 10,000 students in north Dade County were sent home because they lacked proof of measles immunization, prompting officials to leave open special vaccination clinics today to combat the nation's largest outbreak of the childhood disease.

About 3,500 students lined up for vaccination shots at the clinics Monday, the last day scheduled for dispensing free shots to control the spread of the six-week rubella measles outbreak.

Four more cases of the 10-day disease were reported Monday, bringing to 169 the total number of measles cases confirmed countywide since the first case was officially diagnosed Oct. 6 at a junior high school in south Dade.

Henderson Ordered To Die

TAVARES (UPI) — Confessed mass murderer Robert Dale Henderson, already serving two life terms for murder, has received three death sentences for the slaying of a trio of hitchhikers last February.

Henderson, 36, was convicted Saturday of killing Robert Lee Dawson, 18, of Pensacola, Fla., Frances Bell Dickey, 23, of Batesville, Miss., and Vernon Odom, 27, of Clarksdale, Miss., during a beer and sex party in Hernando County.

The jury reconvened Monday for the sentencing phase of the trial and after a short deliberation, recommended Henderson be sentenced to die in the state's electric chair.

He has admitted the deaths of his wife's parents and her brother in Cherry Ford, Ohio, as well as murders in South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Andropov May Succeed Brezhnev As President

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Supreme Soviet today unanimously elected Communist leader Yuri Andropov a member of its presidium, making him the likely choice to succeed former Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in his other post as chief of state, officials said.

Soviet officials said the designation of Andropov, 68, as head of state was expected shortly, when the 39-member presidium met during a break in the daylong deliberations of the Supreme Soviet.

A new president was expected to be named at today's meeting. Brezhnev, who died Nov. 10 at 75, was both party general secretary and president.

Pumpkin Pie To Gobble Up Turkey-Day Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Thanksgiving turkey won't be gobbling up the food budget for Thursday's traditional, home-cooked harvest celebration dinner, but pumpkin pie will take a bite out of the holiday budget, a farmers' group says.

On a serving-by-serving basis, pumpkin pie will cost more than turkey — and more than any other item on the Thanksgiving menu, the American Farm Bureau Federation reported Monday.

The Farm Bureau listed the average retail price of the traditional turkey dinner — with dressing, sweet potatoes, cranberry salad and pumpkin pie — at $1.60 per person. A serving of pumpkin pie will account for nearly one-third of the total, or 50 cents, the agency said.

Retail turkey prices vary widely from one part of the country to another, but National Turkey Federation official David Goldenberg said the current price in two major East Coast cities ranges from 49 cents to 89 cents per pound.

The organization's surveys indicate prices are about 10 cents a pound above last year's levels, Goldenberg said.

But Farm Bureau Consumer Affairs Director Sue Palmore said her organization's figures indicate lower prices, generally between 2 cents and 5 cents above 1981 levels nationwide.

Profits for turkey farmers are likely to be slim, Ms. Palmore and Goldenberg agreed.

"There is an abundance of turkey, and when there is an abundance — based on the law of supply and demand — they don't make much money," Ms. Palmore said in a telephone interview in her Park Ridge, Ill., office.

Goldenberg agreed, predicting turkey producers would "probably break even with a little bit of a profit — nothing to write home about, but better than last year."

His organization has described last year as a "disaster" because some producers lost as much as $2 on each turkey they sold.

Many supermarkets are selling turkeys below cost in an effort to attract shoppers who will then spend more money on other items, Goldenberg said.

The Farm Bureau had no figures to compare the anticipated price of Thursday's dinner to past Thanksgivings, since this was its first survey in several years, Ms. Palmore said.

But she noted the cost of this year's dinner is being held down because prices of many foods are only slightly higher than they

Sanford Gets 1st Sales Tax Check

"It's called conservative budgeting."

That's how Sanford's City Clerk and Finance Director of more than 20 years, Henry Tamm, summed up the city's receipt from the state of its first monthly check from the one-cent sales tax hike.

The city's share of state receipts during October amounted to $43,079.72. The city expects to receive 10 similar checks before the fiscal year ends Sept. 30, 1983, Tamm said.

If so, the city will receive a total of $473,876 for the fiscal year, some $6,114 more than the $467,762 budgeted.

"The city budgeted a lesser amount than the state estimated," Tamm said. "Like I said, it's called conservative budgeting."

With the improvement in the economy, City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles said revenues can be expected to pick up and the city should actually receive much more money than expected from the increased sales tax.

"With the economy picking up, there will be more buying and more buying means higher sales tax returns," Knowles said.

The law requires cities and counties to designate 40 percent of the estimated revenues for property tax relief.

Bush Sentenced To Die For Killing Heiress, 18

FORT MYERS (UPI) — John Earl Bush, sentenced to death for his part in the kidnap-murder of teenage Evinrude heiress Frances Julia Slater, says he will not testify against three others charged in the killing.

Bush showed no emotion Monday when Circuit Judge C. Pfeiffer Trowbridge sentenced him to die in Florida's electric chair.

The case will be appealed automatically to the Florida Supreme Court.

Author, Columnist Commits Suicide

WEST PALM BEACH (UPI) — Steve Mitchell, author and popular newspaper columnist who lost his bid for a seat in Congress earlier this month, has committed suicide by shooting himself, police said.

Mitchell shot himself once in the head with a 12-gauge shotgun Sunday, West Palm Beach police Captain James Griffin said. A friend, Dottie Hurst, found his body about 6 p.m., police said.

The 47-year-old humor columnist for the Palm Beach Post was the author of the national best-seller "How to Speak Southern."

Cold War Thaw Possible

The death of Leonid Brezhnev and the coming to power of Yuri Andropov presents us with a rare opportunity to influence the course of world affairs in the last two decades of the 20th century.

It is an opportunity which President Reagan should seize.

He has not so far made the most of it. His immediate reaction ("It takes two to tango") has been so guarded as to convey the impression that he is afraid of any improvement in the relationship between the White House and the Kremlin.

"It's always been my belief that if the Soviets knew we were serious about maintaining our security, they might be more willing to negotiate seriously at the bargaining table," Reagan said in a radio talk.

In other words, the Reagan policy is to intimidate the Russians into abandonment of their negotiating positions by outdoing them in an arms race.

That is a simplistic policy which is not likely to work any better than the sanctions we imposed on equipment for building the natural gas pipeline between Siberia and Western Europe.

Reagan recently acknowledged that the pipeline sanctions wouldn't work. He dropped them. Secretary of State George Shultz apparently prevailed in arguing against the sanctions, while Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger argued for continuing them.

Former Secretary of State Alexander Haig had warned that the sanctions wouldn't work, but he had been overruled by the cold warriors in the White House and the Pentagon. In the event, the sanctions did more harm than good.

There should be no such fumbling policy now. President Reagan must not underestimate the deep fears of the American people about the nuclear arms race. He should not dismiss the nuclear-freeze movement as a creature of Russian agents, as he seems to be doing when he follows the Reader's Digest line. One of the moving forces behind the renewed strength of the nuclear peace movement, both here and in Europe, has been the Reagan rhetoric, leading people to believe he is not sincerely interested in arms control.

The president missed an opportunity to take the initiative when he failed to go to Moscow to attend the Brezhnev funeral. But he can follow up now with strong, realistic diplomacy aimed at solving the problems of Afghanistan, Poland and arms control that have put detente into a deep chill.

Such diplomacy may not succeed. The Kremlin may prefer to remain frozen in the ice of hostility, fear and suspicion.

And yet it would be a failure of leadership on our part if we don't give Andropov and company a chance to change course.

We like to think of ourselves as leaders of the Free World. It is time to be showing some of that leadership.

Chicago Example

For reasons that are all but forgotten, the "Chicago gangster" is a figure of modern folklore.

Felonies committed in Chicago have declined by nearly 25 percent during the last five years.

Much of the credit goes to Cook County's chief criminal judge, Richard J. Fitzgerald, who decided in 1977 to do something about the fact that most of Chicago's robberies and burglaries were being committed by a hard core of repeat offenders.

Three judges and prosecutors were assigned to deal exclusively with repeat offenders. Defendants who had been convicted previously found themselves brought to trial with unusual speed. Pleas bargaining was discouraged.

Chicago was counting 236,000 felonies a year before Judge Fitzgerald set up the Repeat Offenders Court. By last year, felonies were down to 180,000.

In a war on crime, the battles are fought with police work in the streets. As Chicago's experience seems to show, it is in the courtroom where the war will be won or lost.

BERRY'S WORLD

"I've got a WILD idea! Let's spend a few minutes and TALK about our problems as man and wife."

Pat Southward and Cliff Nelson, interim councilmen in Lake Mary, have only four council meetings left to clean up loose ends left hanging in some cases since they left city government three years ago.

Both expressed amazement recently that many of the city's problems today are identical to what they were three, five or even six years ago.

During the two meetings in which they have participated so far, the gatherings have gone past 11 p.m. But a lot has been accomplished.

A major thorn in the city administration's side for several years — the need for a job classification and pay plan — is on its way to solution. Nelson, when he served on the council before, spent numerous hours working on a plan that ended up in a drawer gathering dust.

Now a professional firm has been commissioned and for little more than $1,500 the job is to be completed by Dec. 31.

Then, there's the question of the 88-year-old Lake Mary Cemetery. Mrs. Southward gathered her forces quickly and through sheer persuasion not only got the three positive votes needed for a city takeover, but also convinced the opposition to join her on the issue.

It appears that the transfer of ownership with firm assurances that the city will do the job of maintaining the historic facility should be completed by year's end.

The latest thing Mrs. Southward is now looking at is updating the water system. This appears to be too huge a project to get completed before she leaves office in January to go back to her private foliage business and her work helping refugee families.

But she has been able to pinpoint attention on the dire condition of the nearly 30-year-old two-inch water lines in much of the city.

Her concerns, bluntly put, are that the lines are much too close to the end of their anticipated lifetimes and they could cave in or explode at any time under stressful conditions such as a firefighting situation when heavy water pressure is needed.

From her experience running the city's parks department during her previous tenure, she also tuned in to the Crystal Lake park pavilion problem.

She noted that the roof on the pavilion is rotting away and is fast becoming a safety hazard.

Mrs. Southward almost squeezed enough money out of her colleagues to repair the roof so that the pavilion can be used. The latest plan is to move the roof to a concrete pad on site, with the pad to be expanded and then the roof repaired.

Nelson and Mrs. Southward have two more meetings to work their wonders. Not telling what other problems will be solved and situations corrected.

During the nine years and three months of its existence Lake Mary has been fortunate in the high quality work and dedication it has gotten from its elected representatives on the City Council and in the mayor's office. And for two former officials to take on the thankless job for only two months is almost unheard of.

Industry Town View

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.): Today, only the breeze disturbs the sea of weeds that grows among the rail sidings, and through the shop floors of the empty United States Steel Corporation's Fairfield Works, a few miles west of here.

This giant, idle steel mill is a grim symbol of the recession that still grips this old industrial city, and the rest of the nation. More than that, it evokes the direst forebodings of the decline of America's basic manufacturing industries: steel, autos, textiles, machine tools, and the like, which once formed the heart of our economy. Currently, 130,000 American steel workers are on layoff, nearly 50 percent of the steel work force. More than 300,000 auto workers have lost their jobs. These numbers suggest a long term slump in U.S. heavy industry that will not be reversed when the next economic recovery occurs.

Birmingham is a good place to look for explanations. The city has long been tied to heavy manufacturing, and currently suffers an unemployment rate near 15 percent, the second highest in the nation after Michigan.

Despite today's bleak circumstances, the outlook is not of unrelieved despair. Conversations with several Birmingham-area businessmen reveal a philosophical attitude towards the fortunes of industry, both good and bad. Joseph Farley, president of Alabama Power Co., suggests that the problems of industry are international.

Conditions throughout Europe are terrible," he says. "Even Japan is affected." Still, he is cautiously optimistic. "The shape of our economy is changing, as we orient ourselves more towards service industries and away from basic industries. Some heavy manufacturing will never come back."

Mr. Farley believes there's potential for U.S. steelmakers and other basic industries in the developing economies of the Third World. "Our heavy industries will have to pursue opportunities in exports just as their foreign competitors do," he suggests. "But they can't do it unless they hang tough on union wage demands and featherbedding."

Herbert Stockham of Stockham Valves & Fittings, Inc., is optimistic. "October was our best month since April," he explained. "Our wholesale customers have let their inventories run down, and they're ready to fill them again."

Mr. Stockham doesn't consider foreign competition to be the cause of American industry's problems. "You can't underestimate the role of government regulatory agencies in hindering business, the EEOC, EPA, and all the rest, as well as anti-trust laws," he says. "This company now has a Human Resources Dept. that monitors who we hire and fire and why, just to keep up with government regulations."

The chief executive at Sepco Corp., Vernon W. Gibson, echoes this view. "We're heavily involved in international trade, and have our own trading company," he explains. "But several years ago we failed to dot an 'i' in conforming to some IRS specification, and we've been forced to fight them ever since."

Indian Group Target Of Shady Action

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department will apparently go to any lengths to discredit the American Indian Movement.

Congressional investigations in the mid-1970s revealed that Indian activists were among the targets of the FBI's illegal domestic spying campaign, COINTELPRO — for counterintelligence program. And last August I reported that government prosecutors used false affidavits to extradite AIM leader Leonard Peltier from Canada; the woman who provided the contradictory sworn statements later recanted, saying she had been coerced by the FBI.

Concerning the Peltier case and other prosecutions brought against AIM leaders, Amnesty International concluded in a 1981 report that the FBI "appears willing to fabricate evidence against its 'targets' and withhold information which, according to law, should have been disclosed."

Now there's another questionable case, arising from the murder last July of Clarence Tollefson at Camp Yellow Thunder, an 800-acre AIM camp in the Black Hills of South Dakota. An Indian named Collins Catch-the-Bear has been indicted by a state grand jury

ROBERT WALTERS

Space Age Pork Barrel

WEBSTER, Tex. (NEA) — Here's another depressing example of your tax dollars at work, involving one of the most famous, elaborate and expensive installations constructed and maintained by the federal government.

It's the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Mission Operations Control Room — known around the world as "Mission Control" — at the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center two miles east of this Houston suburb.

From that facility, located on the third floor of a nondescript government building, NASA's scientists, engineers and technicians operate the command post for this country's exploration of the universe.

The history of Mission Control dates back to President Kennedy's May 1961 speech committing the United States to a vastly expanded space program with the initial goal of placing a man on the moon. Federal officials immediately launched a search for a major new space agency facility and considered sites from Boston to Seattle before selecting a large parcel of swampy undeveloped land some 25 miles southeast of downtown Houston, about midway between that city and Galveston, Tex.

In theory, the location was chosen because it came closest to meeting NASA's elaborate site selection criteria — but by coincidence it also was close to the congressional district of Rep. Albert Thomas, D-Tex., an obscure yet powerful legislator whose support was crucial to NASA. He was the second most senior member of the House Appropriations Committee and chairman of its independent offices subcommittee, which had jurisdiction over NASA budget requests.

Thomas had not been especially friendly to the space program, cutting its proposed budget by at least 5 percent each year, but his attitude improved markedly after he was given the honor of announcing that the political "pork barrel" competition had been won by his home town. The 1,020 areas NASA said it needed for the facility was a gift from Rice University (among its alumni: Albert Thomas, class of 1920) which had, in turn, received the land as a donation from the Humble Oil & Refining Co., a subsidiary of what today is the Exxon Corp.

The ink was hardly dry on that contract, however, when NASA belatedly discovered that it needed an additional 600 acres. Rice and Humble were no longer inclined to be philanthropic and land values in the desolate area were spiraling upward because of the agency's premature disclosure of its site selection.

After Rice and Humble engaged in another land trade, the university insisted upon $1.4 million from the government for the additional acreage even though three real estate appraisals of the land placed its value at $720,000 to $1.2 million. Humble enjoyed an even larger bonanza because the NASA site was part of a 30,000 acre ranch it had purchased in the 1930s at an average of slightly more than $300 per acre.

The oil company formed a joint venture with a real estate firm and proceeded to develop a vast array of houses, offices, hotels, stores and industrial facilities. Home sites were soon selling for $40,000 per acre.

While everybody else involved was making money, the federal government was paying it out at a dizzying pace. When the project was announced, it carried a budget of $60 million but that rose to $90 million in less than a year.

The cost continued to soar — to $150 million, then $177 million, then $195 million, then $250 million — as NASA constructed approximately 100 buildings in a campus-like setting where about 3,500 government employees work today.

With everything now firmly in place, NASA Administrator James Beggs and Deputy Administrator Hans Mark have announced plans to move Mission Control to the John F. Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

What Returns Meant

NEW YORK (NEA) — In analyzing the Nov. 2 elections, the first thing to remember is that we needn't take them quite as seriously as the media did. Our press and television feel a heavy obligation to invest everything that happens with cosmic significance, and they had whipped themselves into a fearful state of anticipation over the events of Nov. 2. That undoubtedly helps to sell newspapers and hype Nielsen ratings, but sensible people will concentrate on the steak, not the sizzle.

Normally the party in control of the White House suffers losses in the off-year congressional elections. Just how much of a loss is "average" is subject to some dispute, but two Senate seats and 15 to 20 House seats wouldn't be far off the mark. This time the Republicans lost a number of House seats, somewhere in the mid-20s (the returns on a few close races are still not in, as of this writing), and held exactly even in the Senate — a curiously skewed result that has consolations in it for everybody. The Republicans also lost half a dozen governorships, as it had been predicted they would.

A look at the distribution of the victories and defeats indicates that the Democrats, not unreasonably, did best where the recession, and the Reagan cuts in the domestic welfare budget, had hit hardest. People whose government checks have shrunk or disappeared altogether, and people thrown out of work by the recession, obviously had a motive to vote, and to vote Democratic; whereas a great many people still employed, who believe that the Reagan program is exactly what the country needs but that it is bound to cause discomfort in the beginning, must have felt little eagerness to go to the polls and register that view by voting Republican. Labor unions and black civic organizations made a major effort to turn out their troops, and it must be assumed that they did so — to the benefit of Democratic candidates.

What will be the result of the hardly overwhelming but nonetheless substantial increase in Democratic strength in the House of Representatives? It is being said that Tip O'Neill can now block President Reagan's proposals, and to some extent that may be true. But many of the chief Reagan proposals — the sharp tax cuts over three years, and the deep cuts in domestic spending — have already been enacted into law, and these most certainly will not be reversed now. Mr. Reagan has always — both as governor of California and as president — rather enjoyed using the veto power, and continued Republican control of the Senate assures that his vetoes will be hard to override.

The failure of the Democrats to reduce the Republican margin in the Senate, let alone take control of that body, will cost them dearly in other respects as well. It means for example, that Mr. Reagan will have the votes to assure approval of his selections for membership on the Supreme Court, if (as seems likely) more vacancies occur there.

Even more important, it will make it difficult if not impossible for the Democrats to take control of the Senate two years hence.

for first-degree murder; he has pleaded not guilty.

The state produced two key witnesses at the preliminary hearing in September. Both charged that camp members and their attorney were trying to cover up the murder.

One witness, Sam Lone Wolf, also told radio and television interviewers that AIM activists were running guns into Camp Yellow Thunder and had received military training in Cuba. Camp members deny this, noting that few of them even have passports.

Lone Wolf's story was contradictory in one important respect. At the hearing, he testified that Catch-the-Bear had rubbed dirt on the door handles of the victim's car to obscure fingerprints. But in an earlier grand jury testimony, Lone Wolf identified another man as the one who had rubbed dirt on the handles.

Confronted with this discrepancy at the hearing, Lone Wolf said: "I didn't state that ... I been over the transcripts and there's a lot of things there that I did not state."

Lone Wolf's background is bothersome, to the point where AIM members suspect that he is a federal informer. At the hearing, for example, he said he had been involved with the movement for eight years, and had marched in AIM's Trail of Broken Treaties march "early last year."

AIM members say Lone Wolf has never been part of their organization, and point out that the march in question actually took place in 1972, not last year. They also question his self-proclaimed credentials claiming to be of "Oglala and Taos" descent, and identifying his tribe as part of the Navajo nation. AIM members say the Oglalas are not part of the Navajo nation; they claim Lone Wolf is Hispanic.

Catch-the-Bear also faces federal charges for allegedly escaping from a halfway house in Rapid City. Lone Wolf is a government witness in that case as well and has been paid witness fees.

Adding to the mystery of Lone Wolf is the information given to my associate John Dillon by a Colorado karate instructor and Indian rights activist, Ron Rosen. He said he knew Lone Wolf as Joseph Lee, who had entered a karate tournament organized by Rosen and paid the entry fee with a bad check.

Rosen added that he had heard from friends that Lone Wolf-Lee was claiming to have been best man at Rosen's wedding and his karate sparring partner — neither of which was true. Rosen believes Lee invoked his supposed friendship as a way of getting close to AIM members.

Lone Wolf was sent at government expense to Hawaii, where an attorney tried to get him into the federal witness protection program. But the prosecutor in the Tollefson murder case, Rod Leffholz, said the state has decided it will probably not call Lone Wolf as a witness at the trial.

At last report, Lone Wolf was in the Denver County Jail on burglary charges under the name Joseph Lee, "also known as Lone Wolf, Sammy."

Footnote: The other government witness during Catch-the-Bear's preliminary hearing was James Lee Jones, a convicted murderer who escaped from a federal prison last year. In return for Jones' testimony, the escape charges against him were dropped and he was admitted into the federal witness protection program. The federal and state governments also agreed to "assist Jones in obtaining parole as soon as possible."

Delvin Everett Takes Advantage Of Skills

By SAM COOK
Herald Sports Editor
LAKE WORTH — It doesn't get any easier for coach Bill Payne's Seminole Community College Raiders here tonight at 7:30.

Fresh from winning their own tournament, the Raiders take on Palm Beach Junior College which routed Edison Community College in Saturday's consolation game of the SCC Raiders Classic.

"They just blew Edison out," said Payne about coach Bill Hodges' team. Hodges coached Larry Bird at Indiana State before relocating at the Lake Worth junior college.

Palm Beach has three quality performers in Mike Guthrie, Randall Mounts and Danny Sheldon. Sheldon, a 6-4 guard, is an excellent shooter. Mounts, 6-7, outlets the Palm Beach fastbreak while Guthrie, who made the all-tournament team over the weekend, is a 6-3 1/2 sophomore guard.

"They really like to run," said Payne. "And they play a tough man-to-man defense. It'll be the first man we've faced this year, I hope we can handle it."

Payne figures to offset Palm Beach's speed with the Raiders' size. Rudy Kuiper, a 6-10 center, and Delvin Everett, a 6-5 forward, both made the all-tournament team. Kuiper tossed in 19 points in the SCC victory over Edison Friday and followed up with 16 points Saturday in the 84-82 victory over Miami-Dade North.

While Payne counted on the contributions from Kuiper, he was amazed at how well Everett played.

"Delvin's always had the ability," said Payne about the Apopka freshman. "It just took him time to realize what to do with it."

Everett scored 24 points in Saturday's dramatic victory. He hit 8 of 12 floor shots and dropped in 8 of 11 free throws. He also collected 13 rebounds, including eight on the offensive boards. Four of those he dropped back in for baskets.

"Delvin's an excellent jumper and he really goes hard to the hole," continued Payne. "He's been a real pleasant surprise."

It's a surprise which may not have blossomed so early except for a couple of strange occurrences involving eligibility, injury and a personal problem.

J.C. Basketball

When practice started, Everett was listed down the list of forwards for SCC. He had raw ability, he was a double-figure scorer at Apopka, but most of it was exposed erratically.

Then Kevin Jerry Smith, a 6-3 leaper from Daytona Beach Mainland, was ruled ineligible because he didn't take 10 hours at one school last year. Everett moved up a notch. Bernard Merthie, an aggressive 6-4 rebounder from Sanford, was in an automobile accident and broke two fingers on his shooting hand. Everett climbed another rung. Finally, 10 days before the first game, 6-6 Luis Phelps had personal problems. He went home to Brooksville and missed five days.

Everett was the only tall, good-rebounding forward left. He moved into the starting lineup last Friday in the Raiders' opening game and may be pretty hard to dislodge after Saturday's superb performance.

Although Everett's 24-point effort was somewhat startling to Payne, the 185-pound freshman gave an indication of what was to come in the preseason jamboree.

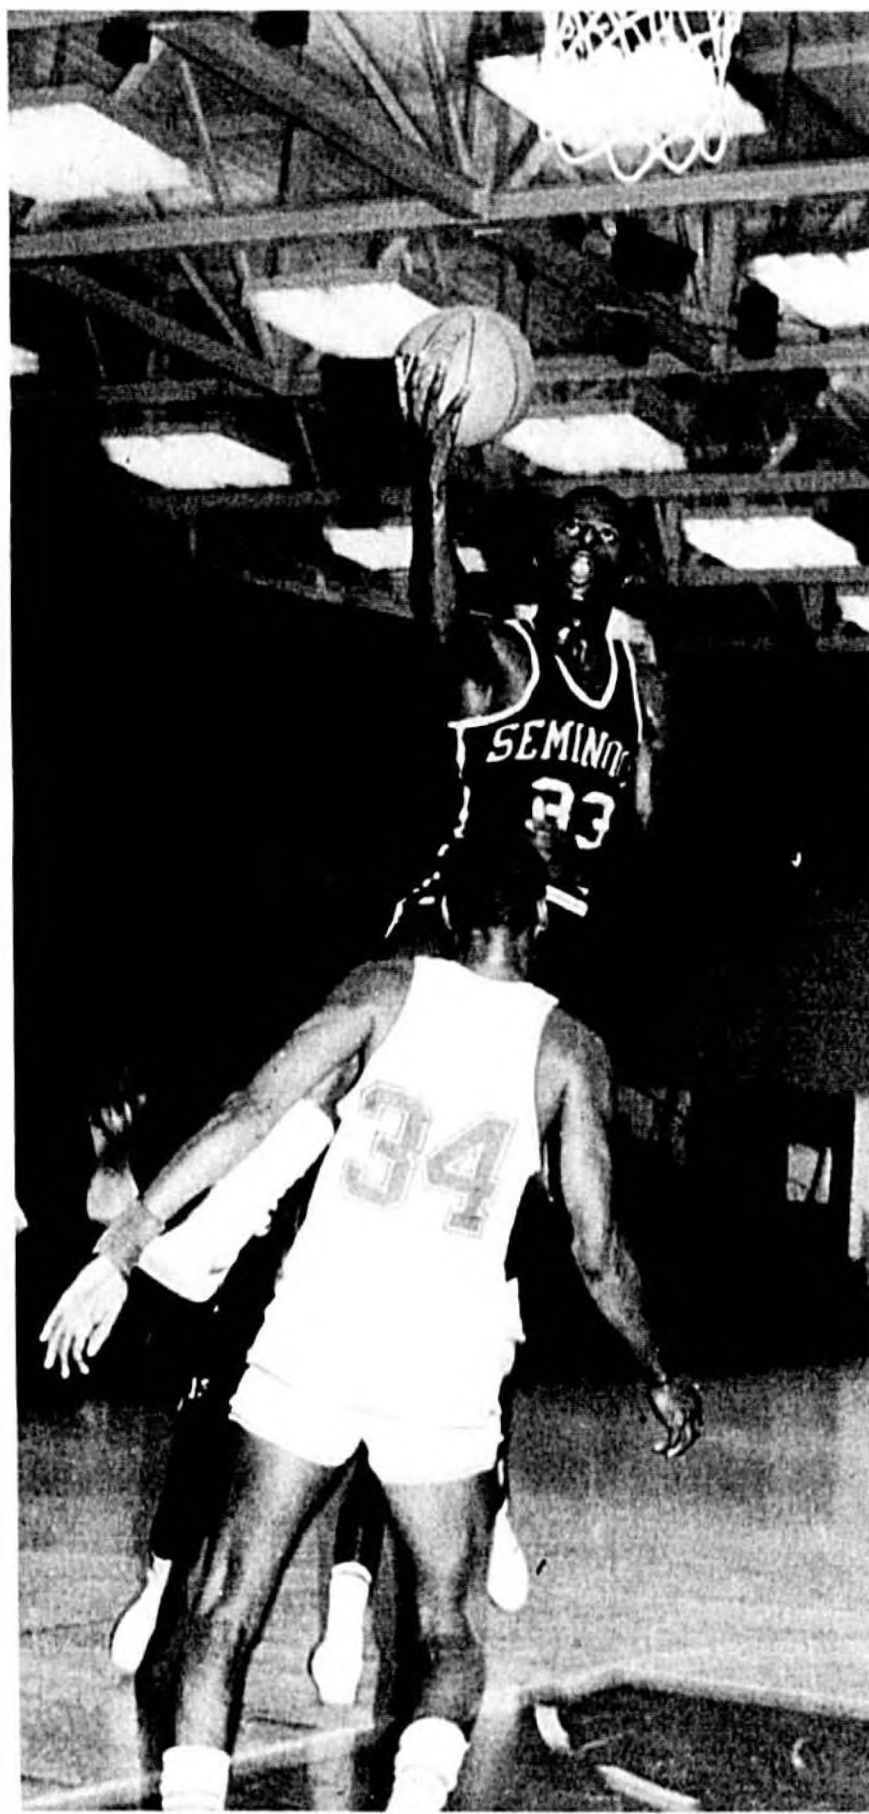

"The way he was hitting the boards in the jamboree, you knew he could rebound," said Payne. "At the beginning of the season, he was on our 'bad list.' He came all the way through the ranks to get where he is."

RAIDER RAP — Saturday's hero, David Gallagher, is a freshman not a sophomore as reported in Monday's Evening Herald.

The Edgewater graduate performed with such calm toward the end of the game — drawing a charging foul with 23 seconds left and hitting the game-winning shot at the buzzer — it belied his age.

Tonight's starting lineup features Everett, Phelps, Kuiper, Keith Whitney and Ricky Sutton. Whitney had a fine game (19 points) Friday, but hit just 2 of 10 floor shots Saturday.

The lightning-quick ex-Seminole did, however, lose in a crucial three-pointer to tie the game at 82-82 with 30 seconds to play. Sutton had another good outing, tossing in 16 points including eight big free throws.

Ricky Sutton, Seminole Community College guard, goes up and over Miami-Dade North's Malcolm Williams for two points. Sutton fired in 16 points to help the Raiders ease past Dade North, 84-82.

John McNamara has been away from the cage coaching ranks for 12 years, but he hasn't forgotten how to win. And neither have the Crooms Panthers.

The Panthers opened the 1982-83 season with a 47-38 victory over Lake Mary Monday night in the opening round of the Lake Brantley Round Robin Freshman Tournament in Altamonte Springs. It was Crooms 34th consecutive win over the past three years.

"This is tough on the stomach after being away 12 years," said McNamara about his return to coaching. He previously coached at Milwee, South Seminole, Bishop Moore and St. Leo's College. McNamara was a high school teammate of New Jersey Nets' coach Hubie Brown.

Crooms trailed the Rams, 11-10, after one quarter until the Panthers clamped on their UCLA fullcourt press to turn the game around. The press initiated a 13-5 burst which put Crooms up 23-16 at halftime.

"The press fouled them up a little bit," said McNamara who received double-figure scoring from Alvin "Chris" Jones and Robert Hill. Jones tossed in 10 points and grabbed 12 rebounds. Hill totaled 12 points and five rebounds before fouling out.

Point guard Daryl Williams handed out seven assists and tallied eight points. Mike Wright had nine points and five assists.

In other action Monday, Mark Moser and Allen Unrow broke open a tight game with several big baskets in the third quarter as Lake Brantley tripped Bishop Moore, 62-56.

Moser, a 5-10 swingman, popped in 21 points for coach Fred Little's Patriots while Unrow picked up nine points and 11 rebounds. Mike Morris totaled eight markers.

"We were scared to death that first quarter," said Little. "I bet we missed more shots in that quarter than we did the whole game."

The Hornets and Patriots were lodged at 26-26 at halftime and Bishop Moore took a five-point lead in the third quarter before the shooting of Moser and Unrow brought back the Pats. Mike Terrell had 22 points for the Hornets.

In Monday's other game, St. Cloud ripped Oviedo, 49-35.

Tribe Scrimmages

Don't come to the Seminole High School gym for a coaching clinic tonight at 7, but you may see some pretty good basketball.

Coach Chris Marlette's Seminoles will have a split-squad game with Evening Herald Sports Editor Sam Cook handling one team and Little Sentinel Sports Writer Herky Cush piloting the other.

Cush has never beaten Cook in head-to-head competition which spans two years and one game. A year and one-half ago, Cook bested Cush at Oviedo during a spring football intrasquad game.

The split-squad game will be a tuneup for Wednesday's jamboree at Lyman High School where Seminole takes on Lake Howell at 9 p.m. and the Greyhounds at 9:30 p.m.

Here's a breakdown of the action Wednesday in the Rotary Bowl Basketball Jamboree:

7 p.m. Trinity Prep-Lake Mary
7:30 p.m. Lake Brantley-Lake Mary
8 p.m. Trinity Prep-Lake Howell
8:30 p.m. Lyman-Lake Brantley
9 p.m. Lake Howell-Seminole
9:30 p.m. Seminole-Lyman

In tonight's clash, Cook will start Vernon Law, Willie Mitchell, Jimmy Gilchrist, James Rouse and Scott Clayton.

Cush will counter with Steve Grey, Calvin "Kiki" Bryant, William Wynn, Torie Hendricks and either Bruce Franklin or Tommy Stiffey.
Tipoff is 7 p.m.

Martin Holding Up Third Time Around In Pinstripes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Why are Billy Martin and the Yankees taking this long to get together again?

The answer lies with one man. Billy Martin. He's the one holding everything up.

But, sometime within the next few weeks the Yankees will call a news conference to announce that Martin will manage them for the third time next season.

You can bet he has no written agreement to pilot the Yankees yet and he isn't going to get anywhere near the $500,000 a year reported. He and George Steinbrenner have spoken only once since the season ended and it wasn't about Martin managing the Yankees.

The only hitch in Martin's getting back into Yankee pinstripes is his existing contract with the Oakland A's. It has two more years to go and calls for $200,000 a year.

Martin wants to work out as good a deal for himself with the A's as he possibly can before he signs a new contract with the Yankees. That's simply good business on his part. One thing you have to say for Billy, he has a head for high finance and doesn't like being what he considers short-changed.

Martin is aiming for a five-year contract at somewhere around $250,000 a year from the Yankees while trying to salvage as much as possible of the $200,000 a year he can get from the A's over the next two years. He's properly entitled to that even if he decides to spend all his time fishing. And right there is the rub.

The Cleveland Indians wanted Martin as their manager before settling for Mike Ferraro but wouldn't give him a five-year contract. They were willing to give him one for three years, which is about as far as the Yankees will go, although Steinbrenner undoubtedly would offer some post-managing job.

Meanwhile, Martin's attorney and adviser, Eddie Sapir of New Orleans, is faced with baseball's non-duplication rule covering managers in trying to work out some kind of settlement for his client with the A's.

The rule says a manager is entitled to full compensation from his dismissing club for the entire length of his contract if he's fired before it expires. But there are some important conditions along with that.

If a manager like Martin is hired by some other club, his compensation from the dismissing club shall be reduced by the amount of salary he receives from his new club.

There's another condition, too. The manager and his new club are duty bound to bargain in good faith regarding salary, and if the dismissing club believes that salary is not "fair and reasonable," it can appeal to either the league president if the two clubs are in the same league, or to the commissioner if the clubs are in different leagues. Whatever the decision then is, it's binding.

Now you know why there's such a delay in Martin and the Yankees getting together.

It'll be worked out, though. Martin can always rationalize he signed his contract with the A's in good faith.

Lyman Plays Vero Beach

The Lyman Greyhounds will travel to Vero Beach to take on coach Billy Livings' Indians this Friday at 8 p.m. in the Region 4A-3 playoffs. Tickets for the game are on sale for $3 today and Wednesday at Lyman High School.

The Greyhounds had to fight for their lives to come away with a 6-0 victory over Lake Brantley last Friday and earn a berth into the regional playoffs. But the 'Hounds didn't have it nearly as tough as the Indians.

Vero Beach, who finished the regular season in a three-way district tie at 6-4, had to win two tiebreakers to advance to the regionals. In a tiebreaker each team gets four plays from the 10-yard line to try and score. If the teams wind up tied, they go into overtime.

In its first tiebreaker, Vero Beach went into triple overtime with Satellite Beach before Robin Yenko's field goal won it for the Indians, 3-0. Next, Vero Beach had to get by Merritt Island. Again it went into triple overtime before Vero Beach came away with a 20-17 victory.

Last year Vero Beach was 12-1 and pounded Seminole High in the regional playoffs in Sanford. "We're not as strong as last year either offensively or defensively," Livings said. "Lyman comes from a pretty competitive area and I expect a tough game."

Raiders' Comeback Keeps Record Intact

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Raiders are virtually unbeatable on Monday night. They've compiled a 19-2-1 record in 12 years of post-Sunday football.

Victory No. 19 came Monday night against the San Diego Chargers, a 28-24 thriller after they trailed, 24-0, in their first regular-season game before the new hometown fans.

Monday night for the debut of their new NFL team, a crowd of 42,000 — drawn from a population of about 8 million people — was the fourth-smallest in the 14 games played in the nation since the two-month strike ended.

But the Raiders ignored the sparse crowd and turned in a typical thriller for the Monday night TV audience.

After watching San Diego's Dan Fouts tear their defense apart with precision passing en route to the 24-0 lead, the Raiders finally remembered it was Monday night.

After the second TD of the game by Marcus Allen — who romped on the same Coliseum for four years for Southern Cal en route to the Heisman Trophy — pulled the 3-0 Raiders within 24-21 to begin their winning scoring drive after San Diego's Rolf Benirschke missed a 33-yard field goal attempt.

Jim Plunkett completed three passes for 50 yards and with 5:34 left in the game, running back Frank Hawkins crashed into the end zone from two yards out. The winning TD capped an 80-yard march, highlighted by Plunkett's 25-yard pass to Todd Christensen to the Chargers' 35.

San Diego came right back, with Fouts directing a drive to the Los Angeles 18 with two minutes remaining. But on second down, his pass under a heavy rush was intercepted by Vann McElroy in the end zone. The Chargers got the ball back one more time and moved to the Raiders' 30, but Fouts' desperation pass into the end zone was batted down as time expired.

"I don't know what it is about Monday-night football, but we're very proud of our record," said Raiders' Coach Tom Flores. "Monday-night football just brings out the best in us."

"San Diego is a marvelous football team and I'm just very proud of the way we came back tonight. It was a very fine game. It was fine."

Forgive San Diego Coach Don Coryell for disagreeing.

"It was a bitter pill to swallow," he said. "You have to give the Raiders a great deal of credit the way they came back and played the second half."

Plunkett hit 18-of-25 passes for 163 yards while Fouts completed 25-of-43 for 357 yards as the Chargers fall to 1-2. It was the 15th time Fouts had passed for more than 300 yards in a game, tying Johnny Unitas on the all-time list in that category.

The first half belonged to the Chargers. But the game belonged to the Raiders, who showed few negative effects from the strike layoff.

The Raiders, flickie fans and all, are indeed home.

Unwed Mom Must Tell Girl The Truth

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is 4 years old. (I'll call her "Cindy.") I was not married when Cindy was born. (I'm still not.) I would like her to know the truth about what happened between her father and me, but I think she's too young to understand and also too young to keep it to herself. She's a smart little girl, very talkative, and tells strangers all our business, which should be kept at home.

She keeps saying she wants her daddy. I have told her that her father does not live with us and never will. She asks where her daddy is, and I tell her I don't know, which I don't. (He never knew I was pregnant, which is the way I wanted it.)

Last week a friend overheard Cindy tell someone that she had a daddy but he didn't live with us anymore. (Her daddy never did live with us, which I'm sure she knew.)

Out of the blue my child later asked, "Were you and my daddy ever married?" I was so shocked, I said "Yes!"

How do I handle this, Abby? I love her so much and don't want her hurt. I've already told her one lie and don't want to tell her another.

How much should I tell her? And when?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Cindy's question, "Were you and my daddy ever married?" indicates that she is much wiser than you suspect. Tell her the truth now, and stress the importance of keeping it in the family. If she talks, she talks. It's still the lesser of the evils. Children feel betrayed when they learn they've been lied to.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice as soon as possible. I have four small children. They are all right-handed except the baby, who is 22 months old. She appears to be left-handed, but my husband is forcing her to use her right hand.

When she tries to eat with her left hand, he gets mad and roughly pulls the spoon out of her little fist and shoves it in her right hand. Then he stands over her, threatening to spank her if she tries to change back to her left hand. He has her crying and upset over this every time she eats.

He says all his brothers and sisters were naturally left-handed, but his mother whipped them into using their right hands because "left-handed people are clumsy and stupid." We have had some heated arguments over this.

I just let the baby use whichever hand she wants (and it's always her left hand when her daddy isn't around), but I'm afraid this is making a nervous and confused child of her. Please put this in your column with some advice for my bullheaded husband. I need somebody to back me up.

RIGHT-HANDED MAMA

DEAR MAMA: All my consultants on child development confirm your opinion and mine. Allow your child to use the hand she prefers. Forcing children to be right-handed when they are naturally inclined to be left-handed can cause stammering or emotional problems. Your husband is not only wrong, he's cruel.

Carriage Cove Has Lots For Adults And Families

Carriage Cove, a Dreyfus Interstate Development Corporation mobile home community, has a very limited number of adult and family rental spaces still available. With the scarcity of mobile home lots in the area as well as at Carriage Cove, it is advisable that anyone interested in one of these choice spaces should see Park Manager Marlen Friedman or Sales Manager Shirley Rummy about putting down a deposit.

Now complete with 476 rental spaces, Carriage Cove is one of the largest and nicest mobile home communities in the area. It has continued to expand in planned phases over the past eight years to meet the needs of the persons who have found mobile home living the most desirable and affordable housing in today's economy, said Mrs. Friedman.

All mobile homes at Carriage Cove mobile home community enjoy exclusive use of the clubhouse and swimming pool.

Carriage Cove are individually owned and set up on roomy lots that rent for from $90 a month. This includes city water and sewer service and trash collection, use of all recreation facilities and the underground master antenna system for better television reception.

With a relaxed country atmosphere, residents at Carriage Cove enjoy city conveniences and the proximity of churches, banks, shopping centers, entertainment, restaurants and Seminole College, which are only a few minutes away by car.

New and used mobile homes are available, completely furnished.

Activities at Carriage Cove focus on the exclusive air-conditioned clubhouse with its 34-by-60 foot swimming pool. In the all-adult clubhouse, there is a party game room, lounge and kitchen facilities.

Newly equipped laundry facilities and a fenced-in clothes drying lot are also available.

The Carriage Cove office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Visitors are welcome and Marlen and Shirley will be glad to show you around and answer your questions.

For further information call 323-8160.

'We Care' Offers Cleaning Special

The holiday season with all of its entertaining and parties is the time we naturally want to have our homes looking their best. Give yourself more time for shopping and baking call the carpet cleaning specialists at "We Care."

"We Care" is offering a pre-holiday special. For only $49 they will clean the carpet in the living room, dining room hallway and two bedrooms (traffic area only - up to 600 sq. ft.)

"We Care" uses truck mounted steam equipment that is the finest available in the business. Ken Williams, owner of "We Care" has been in the carpet cleaning business since 1975. Licensed and insured, he guarantees satisfaction with his work.

They take the water through their water softener and conditioner to remove the iron, which damages carpets, and sulfur, which stains. The propane gas heater in the truck heats the water to a safe temperature so that it will not be hot enough to shrink your carpet. The water is then pumped into the house through a hose and is sprayed into the carpet. A powerful brush scrubs the carpet to remove dirt and stain. A 20 hp engine running a large vacuum then sucks the water and soil from the carpet leaving it nearly dry and looking like new.

In addition to residential and commercial carpet cleaning, "We Care" cleans upholstery, cleans mobile homes, motor homes, vans, and camper trailers. They do camper trailers at $1 a foot based on the length of the trailer (minimum of $25).

He began his business with the concept that senior citizens were being over charged by many firms for cleaning their carpets and he wanted to give them a break. "If they are willing to save us time and effort by moving the small furniture and knickknacks out of the way we could help them by charging less," he reasoned.

When Ken isn't cleaning carpets he is making Florida cypress wood products. He makes custom planters, mailboxes, window boxes, and dog houses.

For a free estimate or appointment call Ken at 668-8431.

Turkeywoman Gulch To Rotten Pumpkin Pond

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the spirit of Thanksgiving, the government searched its computer and reported Monday that turkey is the most popular of words associated with the holiday to be used in place names.

From Turkeywoman Gulch to Right Turkeytoe Branch, the U.S. Geological Survey said, there are 1,684 different places in the country that include the word turkey in their names.

Texas leads the list with 174, and Kentucky is second with 94.

The agency, a division of the Interior Department, checked the more than 2 million place name listings in its geographic names information system computer for the words turkey, Thanksgiving, pilgrim, Mayflower, cranberry, pumpkin and Plymouth.

Among the more exotic listings were: Pilgrim Wash Well in Mohave County, Ariz.; Left Turkeytoe Branch and Right Turkeytoe Branch in Pike County, Ky.; Rotte, r Pumpkin Pond in Nantucket County, Mass.; Turkeywoman Gulch in Lake County, Mont.; and Hog Wallow Cranberry Boggs, a swamp in Burlington County, N. J.

The word "Pilgrim" came in second to turkey in popularity, with 487 listings, followed by "cranberry" with 357, "pumpkin" with 237, "Plymouth" with 129 and "Mayflower" with 74 listings.

Thanksgiving came in last, with only nine listings — three of them given to bodies of water in Alaska, one a creek named Thanksgiving following the 1903 discovery of gold in the area.

The computerized names listing is used for far more than just checking on off-beat names. It was developed to aid in establishing uniform name usage in the federal government, to provide an index of names on federal and other maps, to eliminate duplications and to provide access to geographic names for research and application.

Among the place name trivia shown by the computer:

- There are 81 streams in Texas named Turkey Creek plus Left-Hand Prong Turkey Creek in Wood County.
- The largest number of pilgrim place names, surprisingly, appears in Mississippi, not in one of the founding colonies. Of the 84 pilgrim place names in the southern state, 71 belong to churches.
- Massachusetts, the nation's largest producer of cranberries, has just 19 cranberry place names. Michigan, with 54, heads the list.
- Florida and New York tie for the most pumpkin names with 16 each.

In Southeast, Fewer Filing For Bankruptcy

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta says the number of southeastern residents declaring personal bankruptcy declined this past fiscal year despite a weak economy and widespread unemployment.

The bank credited the decline to a tightening of state laws governing bankruptcies.

Fed economist Charlie Carter said the 6.4 percent drop in bankruptcies as of June 1982 reversed a two-year increase which he said was prompted by liberalized exemptions allowed under a 1978 federal law. He said individual states, however, were over-riding the more generous exemptions of the federal Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978.

Under the federal law, the states were allowed to circumvent the federal exemptions by establishing their own.

Exemptions reduce the amount of assets that a bankruptcy judge can use to liquidate outstanding debt. Therefore, the liberalized federal exemptions reduced the assets that a debtor could lose by declaring bankruptcy, Carter said.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta oversees banking activities in the six states of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and Tennessee.

The report on bankruptcies was contained in a recent bank publication, Southeastern Economic Insight.

The federal exemptions prompted as much as 72 percent of the national increase and 64.2 percent of the southeastern increase in personal bankruptcies filed in the two years after the legislation became effective, Carter said.

The number soared to 449,839 in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1981, from 196,976 two years earlier. The figure for June 1982 was 449,839.

The bankruptcy figures for the southeastern states for the fiscal year ended last June, compared to the previous fiscal year, with the most recent figure listed first, were:

- Alabama 11,326 and 12,408; Florida 8,732 and 6,049; Georgia 15,065 and 14,149; Louisiana 6,501 and 6,545; Mississippi 5,388 and 9,167; and Tennessee 15,132 and 17, 089.

The total for all six states was 61,244 compared to 65,407 for fiscal 1981.

Wide Range Of Jobs Are Seen Available

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite double-digit unemployment, job openings for auto mechanics, restaurant cooks, insurance sales agents and secretaries are available in most areas of the nation, the government said Monday.

In its monthly employment bank report, the Labor Department said 73,000 jobs in all categories were still available on Oct. 1 from a total of 191,000 listed with state employment banks during September.

The total of jobs available was an increase from the 175,000 figure for August.

The department said there were 1,384 unfilled secretarial positions paying between $7,677 and $13,943 annually and 1,130 unfilled positions as insurance agents paying $8,020 to $16,405.

Auto mechanic jobs paying between $3.71 per hour and $8.69 per hour showed 1,047 openings, and there were 846 jobs available as restaurant cooks for $3.35 per hour to $5.14 per hour.

The department's Employment and Training Administration cautioned there is no guarantee that all the jobs are still available, but said they represented occupations where there was a continuing demand during September.

Other jobs that had a significant number of openings as of Oct. 1 were electrical engineers, typists, stenographers, cashiers and tellers, waiters and waitresses, security guards and correction officers, janitors, field crop farming, real estate sales, sewing machine operators, carpenters, and construction workers.

The department said four areas — Tallahassee, Fla., Boston, St. Louis and White Plains, N.Y. — had gains of 30 percent or more in the number of openings in September compared to August.

Most major industry groups registered only modest increases or decreases in openings from August, with increases of 30 percent or more occurring only in general merchandise stores and social services.

One of the higher paid occupations listed, that of general duty nurse paying between $12,401 and $18,510, had 243 or 418 openings still available on Oct. 1, with most openings at Boston and Springfield, Mass., and in South Dakota.

In Florida, 269 of 292 openings for recreational therapists, paying $7.75 to $15,000 annually, were still available, while secondary school teachers were in demand in North Dakota, South Dakota and Buffalo, paying as high as $17,745 yearly.

Electricians, for positions paying as high as $10.47 hourly, were needed throughout Connecticut, Maine and New Hampshire, and in Orlando and Tallahassee, Fla.; Fayetteville, N.C.; Newark, N.J. New York City and Harrisburg, Pa.

The largest area of job openings in structural work was for carpenter, paying $4.29 to $9.76 hourly. Large numbers were available from Denver to the New England states, with several cities in North Carolina and Texas listing openings.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Booze A Hidden Health Factor

DEAR DR. LAMB — Both of my legs and ankles were badly smashed up in World War II. The Navy doctors told me I would probably always experience some pain and this would likely increase with age.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Are there any foods or vitamins that would do a repair job on deteriorated collagen?

Then the pain in my ankles increased. I developed pains in the calves of my legs, thighs and buttocks. My family doctor and a Navy doctor seemed to accept this as part of my arthritis and growing old.

Alcohol may cause low magnesium levels, which in turn can cause some of the symptoms you have experienced. While it is a shame you had to go through the problem, it is great that you made the change and the improvement.

It seems safe to say that some or all of my problems were due to alcohol toxicity. Incidentally, my golf game has improved too.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 14-6, Alcohol Can Be Dangerous to Your Health.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Are there any foods or vitamins that would do a repair job on deteriorated collagen?

Collagen is fibrous tissue or protein fibers that bind the cells together in your body. Notice I said it was protein fibers. It follows that you need a good balanced diet to produce normal collagen.

Vitamin C is important in the formation of collagen. We know that a vitamin C deficiency can lead to delayed wound healing.

This does not mean that taking large amounts of vitamin C will improve your collagen tissue if you already get enough from a balanced diet that contains some fresh fruit and vegetables regularly.

If a person is deficient in vitamin C then the extra vitamin C will be helpful at first, until the body catches up and restores its supplies. Smokers usually need more vitamin C because smoking destroys the body stores of it.
