California Town Is Rocked By Blast At Gasoline Distillery

Police Estimate That At Least 10 People Were Killed In Explosion And Flames

LONG BEACH, Calif., June 3.—A terrific explosion in a gasoline distillery rocked the famous Signal Hill oil field yesterday, tumbling houses down upon the heads of trapped residents and spreading fire through the area.

Police estimated that at least 10 persons were killed by the explosion and fire which followed.

Scores of surrounding producer wells were threatened.

Houses in the immediate area were crushed by the terrific concussion.

A young mother and her baby were the first known dead. It was feared many others met a similar fate when their homes caved in.

Cries of the injured mingled with the roar of flames shooting into the sky and deafening emergency fire crews from every part of the Bay district.

All available physicians and nurses were rushed to the scene in ambulances. Seventeen injured persons were checked in at the Seaside Hospital within a few minutes. More arrived every minute at other hospitals.

The blast shattered windows throughout Long Beach and as far distant as San Pedro, six miles along the beach front.

More than 15,000 persons gathered at the scene and hampered firemen attempting to stem the flames. Police gave warning that other explosions were imminent if the fire were not checked.

Residents of the district, an abrupt halt to their work, were alarmed when, at 10 a. m., a major earthquake shook more than 60 lives, believed at first it was another tremor.

As with the earthquake, city authorities immediately called upon the Navy for aid and 300 Blue-jackets were dispatched from San Pedro to police the explosion area.

Tom Collins, a Richfield plant employe, was the first of the dead identified. The distillery where the explosion occurred was owned by the Richfield Company.

At least 10 oil wells were attacked by the flames within a few minutes. Initial damage was estimated at more than $200,000.

The presence of stores of gasoline and crude oil storage tanks in the vicinity added to the hazard of firemen.

Seventeen men were reported at work in the Richfield plant when a minor explosion first took place. Immediately three men from Richfield "cracking" plants ran to the Richfield workers shut off valves in an attempt to halt further explosions.

Then came the rending blast. The distillery was shattered. A cloud of smoke and fire leaped into the air.

Only three bodies, those of Collins, Dick Gaughan and Ed Walker, were recovered by firemen. Charles Cape, T. Crumway and C. Brown were among those known to have been in the plant.

Authorities believe it was impossible for any of the Richfield plant to have survived.

Convict Confesses To Girl's Kidnaping

WANNAC CITY, June 3.—(AP)—Walter McGee, former Oregon convict, was said by police today to have confessed he was one of the men who kidnaped Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager W. P. McElroy, a week ago and collected $20,000 ransom for her.

James J. Higgins, chief of detectives, said McGee admitted he and Clarence Stevens, now sought by police, were the actual kidnapers. He said his brother and Clarence Clark acted as guards in the house while she was held.

McGee told him Stevens and others were in Dallas, Texas yesterday. McGee said he was picked them up and sent them up to the house.

SOLON SEEKS DAVIS' RECALL FROM EUROPE

Tinkham Says Ambassador At Large Has Been Called Dishonest By Two Courts

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—The recall of Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador-at-large, was demanded yesterday by Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, who charged during the course of an "irregular" House debate that Davis had been called "dishonest" by two courts.

The New Englander centered one of his contentions on a $15,000 profit report due to have been made by Davis and his co-promoters of a Cuban plantation.

Tinkham wound up by quoting decisions of the District of Columbia court of appeals and the supreme court and then adding: "Davis... has been denounced by two United States courts as having violated a fiduciary relationship and having taken secret profits, as having dealt in duplicity and fraud for his own benefit, as having obtained profit by fraudulent methods—in fact, as dishonest."

The court decisions said that Davis and a partner were authorized by an American syndicate to buy $25,000 worth of Cuban land and that by using an intermediary they got it for $20,000. The Ovas Company, which was cited as taking over the Cuban plantation for $35,000, was seeking ratification of a cancellation of stocks issued to Davis and his associate for promoting the transaction.

The supreme court decision, quoted by Tinkham, held that "there was no error in cancelling the shares issued to the plaintiffs (Davis was one) in error for promotion of the corporation... Obviously appellants (including Davis) were serving themselves."

There was no word from the White House as to the feeling of the President toward the amendment, but there were strong indications the House would accept the addition.

Trammell, Democrat, Florida, moved the rules suspension to permit consideration of an amendment limiting World War veterans to two-thirds margin easily. This was the first set-back for administration leaders.

Roosevelt Expected To Plea For Recall

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt is expected by Democratic leaders to make a direct appeal to states to ratify the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Congressmen from doubtful states urged him to early action, if they believe he will respond soon.

His appeal, congressmen said, would stress the party pledges during the campaign and the importance of revenue from liquor taxes.

Eight states are now on record for repeal and eight more vote this month. Speaker Rainey said experts figure repeal would mean $100,000,000 annually from tariff revenues besides $450,000,000 from the internal revenue tax.

GARNER'S VOTE STOPS REVOLT ON VETS CUTS

Amendment Aimed To Ease Contemplated Reductions Finally Accorded Approval

WASHINGTON, June 3.—(AP)—By the single vote cast by Vice President Garner to break a tie, a compromise amendment by Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, was adopted to limit to 25 percent reductions in World War service-connected disability compensations and pensions of veterans of the Spanish-American war. The vote was 43 to 42.

By the single vote cast by Vice President Garner to break a tie, a compromise amendment by Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, was adopted to limit to 25 percent reductions in World War service-connected disability compensations and pensions of veterans of the Spanish-American war. The vote was 43 to 42.

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, then had inserted a $170,000,000 appropriation to take care of the heavier expenses of the independent offices bill which was passed without a record vote.

The change is made in anticipation of a new era of activity that is expected to accompany the opening next Monday morning of the Sanford-Atlantic National bank in the banking rooms of the structure.

Accompanying Mr. Evans' announcement, made during the hearing and a battle of activity which surrounded the lower floor rooms of the building today as workmen were completing final repairs and renovation, was another expression of faith and confidence in this city and county.

"As I view the changes that are being made here," he said, "accompanied as they are by heartening expressions of optimism over the future prospects of Sanford, I cannot help but feel that we are really entering upon another and greater period of progress and advancement. The scene before us today is one which is duplicated by scores of others, and before long industry will be humming as of old. I firmly believe that this city will be among the first in Florida to be returned to the prosperous conditions of not so long ago. If I did not believe that, I would not have purchased this building nor invested so heavily in Sanford property."

When he was asked whether or not he anticipated an early resumption of trading in real estate, Mr. Evans stated that "There is no doubt but that sooner or later we will see many changes in property holdings in this section, changes that will find the prudent investor becoming the owner of lands and structures in various sections of the city and county."

"In my opinion," Mr. Evans added, "the time to buy is when prices are low. We shall not see lower prices. It follows that now is the time to buy, and when speaking of buying or investing, I am convinced that this is a good place as any in the country to make an investment."

Mr. Evans became the owner of the Atlantic Bank building some weeks ago. At that time he declared himself "soberly optimistic" as a community with vast possibilities. Since then he has busied himself with supervising minor changes and repairs to the building and its equipment. The exterior is being cleaned and parts of it will be repainted soon. The interior hallways and offices also will undergo a paint and renovation treatment that will make them the most attractive in the city.

About 10 days ago, Mr. Evans, after negotiations with Sanford-Atlantic National Bank officials, announced that he had entered into a five year lease of the banking rooms and that the building would be occupied on Monday, June 5.

Highlyman Seeks Prizes For Races Planned For Lake

S. D. Highlyman, as chairman of the Prizes Committee of the Special Regatta Committee of the trade body, today set suitable prizes for a number of suitable prizes of merchandise and other articles which will be presented to the winners of various boat races to be held on Lake Monroe Thursday afternoon, June 15.

Mr. Highlyman was one of several members of the committee who met at the City Hall yesterday afternoon to complete final plans for the regatta, one of several proposed for the summer months. He stated that he believed local merchants will co-operate with the movement to bring hundreds of persons to the city for an afternoon of racing, by donating various prizes.

Appointment of a reception committee composed of H. M. Papworth, E. N. Scott, V. A. Speer, R. F. Haines, Walter Cooper, and other members of the Sanford City Commission also was effected. This committee will be joined by the mayors of Deland and Orlando, and will board the yacht "Miss Celso" which will proceed toward the eastern outlet of Lake Monroe to welcome the parade of yachts and boats which is scheduled to enter the lake at 12:30 o'clock.

Under present plans, fully 10 boats will be entered in each of the several outboard, rowboat, sailboat and canoe races. Entries are expected from Geneva, Lake Mary, Longwood, Sanford, and Deland. Invitations were extended to boatmen at Eustis, Mt. Dora and Orlando as well.

These afternoon yesterday's meeting was held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Marmont, H. M. Papworth, W. J. Wain, Jr., S. D. Highlyman, E. N. Scott, W. L. Cooper, H. F. Nelwander, Edwin Golt, P. T. Williams, and John Bramley.

State Legislature's 24th Biennial Session Adjourns Sine Die At 1:15 P.M. Today

BANK BUILDING'S NAME CHANGED BY FRANK EVANS

Former 1st National To Be Known As Atlantic Bank Edifice

The name of the First National Bank building, this city's tallest structure, will be changed at once to the Atlantic Bank building, it was announced today by Frank Evans, pioneer resident of the Lake Mary section who recently purchased this valuable property.

The change is made in anticipation of a new era of activity that is expected to accompany the opening next Monday morning of the Sanford-Atlantic National bank in the banking rooms of the structure.

Accompanying Mr. Evans' announcement, made during the hearing and a battle of activity which surrounded the lower floor rooms of the building today as workmen were completing final repairs and renovation, was another expression of faith and confidence in this city and county.

Stock Profit Taking Sends Prices Down

NEW YORK, June 3.—(AP)—Stocks receded under a brisk profit taking today and several of the leading commodities accompanied them downward. With the tape running as much as a quarter an hour behind, extreme losses of one to two or more dollars were general for the leading stocks in a turnover of about 2,500,000 shares for the brief session.

Papal Decree Hits Spain's Government

VATICAN CITY, June 3.—(AP)—The entire government of Spain has been automatically excommunicated from the Catholic Church for signing and promulgating the Spanish State Department announcement which was made today after Pope Pius issued a surprise encyclical declaring that the new Spanish religious laws constituted a grievous attack on the church.

FAITH IN BANK IS MANIFESTED BY LARGE DEPOSITS

Atlantic Has Operated During Trying Times Of Business

Deposits totaling nearly one and one-half million dollars in the names of approximately two thousand residents of Seminole, Orange, Lake, Volusia and Brevard counties today stand as an indication of the confidence which these depositors have in the officers, directors, and personnel of the Sanford-Atlantic National Bank whose new banking room will be opened to the public on Monday morning at 9:00 o'clock.

Rendering consistent banking service through over 12 years of trying times, this bank, Sanford's only financial institution, justifies its successful and helpful existence which Edward W. Lane, of Jacksonville, predicted for it when late in 1927, after a thorough investigation of conditions in and around this community, he decided to choose it as a site for his Jacksonville institution's first out-of-town affiliate.

Through the activities of the Sanford Chamber of Commerce which, realizing the need for another bank in this city, interviewed various Jacksonville and other Florida bankers, Mr. Lane first was attracted to the Sanford section and became convinced of its possibilities.

The Sanford public was aware that forces were being directed toward bringing another bank here, but it was not until Nov. 16, 1927, that actual confirmation was made that the Lane interests were coming into this community.

On that day announcement was made that an application for charter as a National bank was sent to the Federal comptroller with the statement that the bank wished to be capitalized at $100,000 with a surplus of $20,000. The applicants were Peter J. Feitner of Ocala, head of the Ocala Cypress Co., S. O. Shinholser,

Wilcox Expresses Doubt Of Getting Aid For Growers In Fruit Fly Losses

Doubt that it will be possible to secure favorable action on a proposed bill providing for the reimbursement of Florida growers for the damage sustained during the fruit fly campaign is expressed in a letter received at the Chamber of Commerce today from Representative Mark Wilcox.

Trade body heads had written him to say that heads of the Florida Reimbursement Committee were enroute to Washington for the purpose of securing the presentation of a bill providing for relief.

In his answer, Representative Wilcox stated that "these gentlemen are here and we shall very probably have a conference with the whole delegation in the next day or two. However, I very much doubt being able to get favorable action on this measure at this session of Congress."

Continuing, Representative Wilcox stated, "As you know, this is an extra session called solely for the purpose of considering only

Debt Refunding Bill Is Killed In House By 1-Vote Margin. Tag Bill Is Passed

TALLAHASSEE, June 3.—(AP)—The twenty-fourth biennial session of the Legislature adjourned sine die at 1:15 P. M. today. Shortly after adjournment the Governor told newspapermen that "by far the major portion of the program has been put over for the people."

He declined to make any comment on the debt funding bill that failed to pass but said he would discuss the matter in a formal statement later.

Before adjourning the Legislature reached an agreement on the biennial appropriations bill, a resolution on the judicial reorganization and the five, ten, fifteen, and twenty-dollar automobile tax bill in the sessions that continued into last night.

As the sixty-day regular session ended there was a general prediction that the lawmakers will be called into extra session before the first of the year. Some legislators believed the special session will be held as early as September.

The Governor has said he will call no extra session. Today he said "As soon as I have had time to analyze all the measures passed of a constructive nature I feel the results will be far better than that of any former session."

"Automobile drivers have been given a great impetus toward sensible business operations, over-burdened taxpayers have been given a breathing spell in the passage of the Patch bill on its taxes."

With the exception of the beer bill there have been no new sources of revenue. There have been some consolidations although not sufficient. A foundation has been laid for relief of the home-owner as has that for redistricting judicial circuits."

Voting 47 to 46, the House upheld Speaker Tomasiello's ruling that it could not give further consideration to the administration-sponsored public debt funding bill on which the Senate and House failed to agree.

The vote came on a motion to table another motion by Rep. Robinson, of Dade, that the House override the Speaker's ruling and recessed from its affirmative referendum amendment to which the Senate and Governor objected and which caused a legislative deadlock after the hour sine die adjournment arrived yesterday at noon.

Meanwhile both Houses awaited clerks and enrolling rooms to complete the business of getting all the measures into the hands of the Governor so the final gavel might fall.

Clocks in both chambers remained at 11:15 A. M. Friday where they stopped yesterday.

Criminal Trials In Circuit Court Ended

Trail of criminal cases brought before Circuit Court Judge Milton B. Smith, of Titusville, at the Court House during the week concluded late yesterday afternoon when a jury found Jim Stinson, white man charged with grand larceny of a seine and rowboat, not guilty.

Annie Mae Ashley, negro, charged with the first degree murder of her day-old infant, went on trial Wednesday. Late Thursday jury announced that it was divided, and a mistrial was the result. The girl remains in the county jail to await further action.

When Judge Smith returned to Sanford next Tuesday morning he expects to begin hearing the civil suit instituted by Sam H. Law, young Sanford man who is seeking $50,000 damages of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. Kinlaw lost a foot in an accident near Rand's Sliding some months ago.

Otis Curry Hurls One-Hit 10-0 Game Against Bruins; Orlando Beats New Smyrna

Pursuing that elusive thing known as a no-hit, no-run baseball game for the third time in less than a year of play in the Central Florida Baseball League, big Otis Curry, ace of the Sanford hurling staff, yesterday afternoon pitched a brilliant performance against the Leesburg Bruins who were able to secure but one hit off Curry, and that in the ninth inning with one out.

It was Curry's third one-hit performance in this league. On July 31 last year he hanked the Deland Reds, then one of the loop's strongest teams, a 3 to 0 one-hit defeat in which Tom Phillips made the only hit. On Sept. 27 of last year, Curry, pitching against the Islanders during the post-season series, saw a no-hit contest go screwy when Olin Hutto singled with one out in the ninth.

Yesterday Curry faced a club that while not the equal of the Deland and Daytona clubs of last year, contained at least four otherwise dependable batters in Yde, Chamberlain, Dull, and McDaniel, who had hit safely in nine straight games incidentally until he fell before Curry.

Only two of the Bruins reached second during the game one of them in the first inning when Curry walked two men before Roy Harrison made the season's most sensational catch of Ivey's sure double that would have scored two runs. The second man to reach second got there in the sixth on a walk and infield out.

Thirty-one faced Curry during the game, just four more than the regulation number. Three of these men walked, one was safe on Barnes' error, and the only other man to reach first was F. Pennington, whose sudden single to right in the ninth spoiled the season's one and no-hit game.

While Curry was coasting along without a bit of trouble the Feds cut a 10 runs on seven hits, including four doubles and a triple, six errors and six walks, just to show you how completely the Leesburg infield folded up, as usual, only five of the Sanford runs were earned. Even the outfield went haywire, for at least three of the doubles scored should have been singles while Barnes' triple, played correctly, couldn't possibly have resulted in more than a double.

The Fed's faced Lefty Knowles, former University of Chicago hurler who toured Japan and China in 1930 with the university team. Knowles had pitched a six-hit ball at Cocoa last Sunday only to lose when Wall smacked a home run for the only score of the game.

Yesterday, he pitched seventh ball but his performance indicated that he was thoroughly disgusted with the collapse of the infield, and the poor work of his outfield.

The Feds score a pair of runs in the first frame. Arioli walked. Bonner hit to short, forcing Arioli. McDaniel might have completed a double play at first but instead he threw the ball to the bleachers as Bonner went to second. Barnes hit to center field for one of the few times of his life and scored a double when Yde overran the ball. Bonner scored on the hit. Abbott allowed Barnes' double with a double to right field, scoring Barnes. Maxwell and Culbreth both went out to left field.

With two out in the second, two more runs came over. Harrison drew a pass and went to second on a passed ball before Chapman struck out. Curry was out short to first as Harrison went to second and Arioli scored. He stole second and both scored on Bonner's clean looping single to left. Barnes fled out to center. Knowles settled down after that until the sixth when the fireworks began. Culbreth was safe on Herlong's error. Harrison sacrificed Culbreth to second. Chapman was safe at first when Herlong made a second error and Culbreth went to third. Curry smacked a double to left field, scoring both runners, Arioli was safe at first on F. Pennington's error. Bonner was thrown out at first as Curry scored and Arioli scored.

ORLANDO, June 2.—A slashing three-run rally in the last two frames, and a well pitched effort by Cal "Tex" Carleton yesterday gave Charley Purcell's Orlando Tigers their third win of the season over the New Smyrna Crackers at Tinker Field before a small but noisy Thursday afternoon crowd.

Carleton clinched his own game with a clean single in the seventh. The club had battled on even terms since the second frame. Carleton was scattering seven hits effectively while Joe Check, the Stetson collegian, was making his way along the route in satisfactory manner until he began to tire during the last two innings. The Tigers won the game in the seventh. Reed grounded out to open the inning. Eddie Alsbrook, pitcher, had to play shortstop because Eddie Moore went to New Smyrna from Gainesville thinking the game was to be played there, singled back to second, Neil Williamson, new Tiger receiver caught one of Check's fast balls close to the end of his club for a double along the foul line, sending Alsbrook to third.

Carleton crashed through with a single to score Alsbrook. Williamson pulled up at third with a strained ankle, and Charley Purcell, team manager, went in to run for the youth. The rally went blooie as Maltby and Powers were infield outs.

The Tigers scored two more runs with two out in the ninth on Copp's double. Reed's single, Barker's error, and Alsbrook's third single clinched the day.

The Crackers looked an improved ball club until the seventh inning. Even then it was the fact that big Check tired, not errors in the field, that beat the league trailers.

The Crackers went to the lead in the second on Cruise's single, his force out at second by Taylor who scored on Goodrich's double. The Tigers got the run back in the same frame.

Features of the game were turned in by Cotton Powers and Dan Capps, Tiger outfielders, while the Cracker infield per-

I can't praise Cardui too highly because I know it helped me."

BIBLE VERSES FOR TODAY

MAN'S WISDOM FOLLY: The Lord bringeth the counsel of the foolish to naught; he maketh the devices of the people of none effect.—Psalm 33:10.

Arthur Brisbane pleads for a Missions for America, having in mind, no doubt, William Randolph Hearst.

The Legislators stopped the stocks from striking, but they can't keep the taxpayers from doing it.

The Morgan investigation certainly drove the Mitchell trial to the "help wanted" pages of the newspapers.

Pence pacts are all right in their place, but if China had a powerful standing army, she would still own Manchuria.

The House blames it on the Senate, and the Senate blames it on the House, and they both blame it on the Governor.

Well, the peanuts and pink lemonade haven't been brought into the Morgan investigation yet, but the sidehows have been included in the exhibit.

A newspaper in Washington was sold the other day for $25,000, which just goes to show there is money in the newspaper business if, as, and when.

The Fort Myers News-Press recommends that the Legislature be permanently abolished. Or else hold the next session in Raleigh and not let anybody in or out until something is done.

Senator Long would have Secretary Woodin fired because he did business with Morgan & Co. It would be hard to find a man who hasn't done business with some banker at one time or another.

It should be of interest to Floridians to know that out of six billion dollars worth of securities which Morgan & Co. have floated during the past ten years, one of the only three issues to be defaulted, was a group of Florida East Coast Railroad bonds.

Congress is having an awful time trying to figure out how to raise the money to provide the annual interest on its huge public work bond issues, but we'll wager they figure out some way to make the two percent who are paying all the taxes now pay the new taxes too.

General Motors a Corporation which makes Buicks, Chevrolts, and lots of other things has just released its first quarterly statement for 1933. It seems that it made a net profit during the quarter of $5,700,000 in spite of the fact that its net sales were about $22,000,000 less than during the same period of last year.

Another school year comes to a close this month and thousands of young men and women are being graduated by the colleges of medicine, journalism, ministry, forestry, architecture and engineering to be turned loose upon the unresponsive public with the idea, perhaps, that the world were then a living. Now what in the world are they going to do?

Both Col. Charles Lindbergh and Col. Billy Mitchell, who know more about flying than any other two men in the country, have been invited to make a speaking tour of the country. The government's experiments with night flying are being continued. The idea of developing a flying machine that can be used to track up is as old as the hills. It would have been a long time ago if it were not for the airplane.

A Fork In The Road

It is daily becoming more apparent to everyone that the people of the United States have reached a fork in the road and that the future course of events in this country, as well as in the entire world, will depend almost altogether upon the branch we choose to take. It may be also that we will have no choice in the matter but will be forced into one highway or another by popular prejudices, selfish interests, and conflicting ideas, over which we have no control. Our delegates to the London Economic Conference seem to be leading us to the right. The various measures which have been enacted by Congress during the past few months and which are now in the process of enactment plainly point to the left. There seems to be a definite conflict between these two schools of thought, one which would lead to international co-operation, the other to economic and political isolation. President Roosevelt seems to favor the former but he is prepared to fall back on the latter.

The objectives of the London conference include more than anything else the stabilization of world currencies, but currencies cannot be stabilized unless tariff barriers and international debts are adjusted to present day conditions. Another principal objective is a concerted effort on the part of the principal nations of the world to bring about a general rise in prices. Such a goal implies a generous extension of credit and the development of credit facilities. To reach just and proper agreements on these matters in London will be no easier than the enactment of a just and proper tariff law in our own Congress. Every delegation will want tariff reductions in general but will seek to keep the tariff walls of its own country higher than the general level. Every nation present will earnestly desire stable currencies for the whole world, definitely tied to some fixed commodity such as gold, but each will want a currency ratio which will favor its own export trade.

The United States will not be different from the others in this respect. Indications in Washington are that President Roosevelt and other prominent members of his administration fully realize the importance of large concessions on the part of this country in the matter of tariffs, war debts, and American participation in European agreements to promote disarmament and maintain peace, but Congressional opposition to any concessions whatever may well be expected to prevent any concession on the part of this country toward the success of the conference.

In the event of its failure, President Roosevelt during this special session of Congress has armed himself with important powers which virtually make him in domestic affairs the most potent dictator in the world. The powers which have been granted him by these various laws do not direct him to do anything, but permit him to do extraordinary things in the event he believes them necessary in this emergency. If the London conference fails, these drastic measures may become necessary, and the country will be well upon the highway to the left.

The failure to stabilize currencies among the leading nations of the world can only lead to further depreciation. As one nation depreciates its currency, other nations will depreciate theirs a little more, in order to secure trade advantages. The failure to reduce tariff barriers will result in higher tariffs. As one nation further increases its tariffs, others will follow suit in order to keep out competitive foreign commodities.

Such an international trade war, if carried to its logical conclusion, can only mean the end of international trade. Each nation will successfully keep out all foreign goods which it does not absolutely require. Each nation will strive to make itself self-sufficient. Hence, each nation must depend upon its domestic consumers for its entire market. If imports are to be arbitrarily prohibited, exports automatically will be eliminated.

In such a war the United States will have a decided advantage. This is the richest country in the world. We produce everything here that we need with very few exceptions. Coffee, silk, sugar and rubber are at present imported in rather large quantities, but it is very probable in case of necessity that these commodities could be produced within our boundaries. So no one in this country would be deprived of food or the other necessities of life.

But many of our producers would suffer seriously from the loss of their export trade. Cotton planters, who sell fifty percent of their crop abroad, would certainly miss their foreign markets. Tobacco growers, who sell forty-one percent of their total production to foreign countries, would be seriously affected. So would wheat and rice farmers, oil and iron producers, machinery and automobile manufacturers, and other important exporters.

It is in this eventuality that President Roosevelt's broad powers would be most seriously needed. His farm relief bill would enable him to compel farmers to reduce their crops by whatever percentage he thought necessary. His industrial control bill gives him the power to force manufacturers and other industrialists into agreements limiting production. His inflationary provisions would provide him with another weapon for maintaining prices without the aid of foreign markets.

The road to the left is a strange and untried path for the people of this country. We are not used to being controlled. But if the road to the right is barred to us, we will have no alternative but to take the one to the left.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

For more than two weeks there has been more or less talk about the responsibility of an extra session of the Legislature for the purpose of passing legislation on behalf of the people against the interest of the corporations. The statement has been made several times that Governor Trammell had intimated that if certain legislation was not passed he would immediately reconvene the Legislature at the end of the regular session. However, in a statement last night the Governor emphatically stated that he had no intention of calling an extra session. The new homes of W. W. Abernathy and A. D. Zachary on Magnolia Avenue are assuming shape and will add much to that fine residence section of Sanford. E. H. Kilbee, a prominent grower and stockman of the Chuluota section, was in the city yesterday. H. H. Pattisall and sons, Bertie and Evan, of Geneva, were in the city yesterday. Evan expects to give an organ recital here in the near future and his many admirers are looking forward to a treat. The Western Union has recently moved into the building in the rear of the People's Bank, facing on Magnolia Avenue. These quarters have been fitted up with handsome oak fixtures and present a very handsome appearance. Mrs. G. P. Smith entertained the Every Week Bridge Club Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Cruse Barnes made the highest score which won for her the prize, a pretty silver picture frame. Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin was hostess of the Entre Nous Bridge Club Wednesday afternoon. Guests were Mrs. O. H. Roundlat, Mrs. G. C. Keely, Mrs. George A. DeCottles, Mrs. C. G. Butt, Mrs. A. B. Wallace, Miss Genie Wicker, and Miss Mabel Bowler.

WILL THEY PAY? BY DOBNEY RICHARDSON

DEFINITION: This is the second instalment of a complete exposition of the economic situation prevailing in the United States. It will tell you in first order language how the war debts affect YOU personally, the value of your Liberty Bonds, the price of your farm products, your business and your pocketbook. This is the most penetrating of all economic problems has given rise to.

The writer believes that it is decidedly worth while, and that there is no difficulty in finding the answer. The very simple fact is that the war debt question is a question, and its relation to world economic recovery is supremely difficult of comprehension in all its ramifications and implications. It is filled with apparent paradoxes which would baffle the ingenuity of the most astute politician to explain to an everyday audience of his constituents. The view of the revisionists is obviously not one which would strike a responsive chord in the consciousness of the man in the street, harassed by rising prices, coming and mounting taxes. What politician in his right mind would run for office on a platform which his opponent could interpret as meaning "let the foreigners off their debts and make up the money by increasing the taxes of the people of the United States"? Politically it is simply impossible.

The best proof of this is to examine the record. So far as the writer knows, no Senator or representative has publicly declared himself unreservedly in favor of cancellation or drastic revision of the debts, yet it is quite inconceivable that every member of both houses of Congress in the present of his constituents espouses this view. If so, it is the only example in history of a unanimous opinion cherished by the whole Congress of the United States. The nearest approach to public espousal of virtual cancellation is that of Senator Borah, whose permanent term of office from Idaho seems unquestioned—and even Mr. Borah qualifies his attitude with various idealistic and unattainable provisions that render it impracticable.

So, even our intelligent political leaders—of whom one may be optimistic enough to believe that a number exist—year away from a realistic consideration of the war debt question, except under some elaborate formula that will cure all the world's ills at one stroke of genius; and our economists and bankers about themselves hoarse that unless our government gets down to realities in solving this question once and for all the consequences to ourselves may well be a deepening and continuation of the depression to depths that may mean a permanent lowering of our standard of living for generations. Who is right? What is the answer?

We cannot find the answer without knowing exactly what the question is, and, thanks to the political dynamite concealed in it, the politicians and the sensational press have managed to keep the real question skillfully concealed beneath a luxurious foliage of irrelevant issues—anti-foreign jingoism, historical abductions, and other digressions from the real subject under discussion.

Embarrassing enough for our political haranguers, the naked problem has begun to emerge from the underbrush, and—however much we may deplore the necessity—something must be done about it before June 15. Xenophobia, the plight of the farmers, unemployment at home, may be used as the subject of speeches, but when the oratory will still be there—and June 15 is the deadline for some sort of action on the part of the United States.

But we have not yet defined, and described just what the question is. Judging by the speeches of Senator Johnson, and the remarks of some sections of the press, we might be deemed to be on the point of deciding whether to demand and receive payment of these debts, or (because of the skillful wheedling of foreign governments and our own international sentimentalists) be considering making the ultimate gesture of generosity by waiving the debts forever and manfully taking up the burden of "paying for the war."

These alternatives, and all the oratory and editorial writing growing out of them, have no relation whatever to the actual decision with which we are faced. It is a concrete question demanding a realistic answer. The well-known maxim, "ring in the mountains, but will not give us the answer. The facts are:

Neither Great Britain nor France (the other debtors may as well be omitted as they will ultimately follow the British and French) will pay us the full instalments due June 15 as routine payments on the existing debt agreements, nor will they make future payments on account of those agreements as they now stand.

The question is: Faced by these facts, shall we 1. Remain adamant and insist that Great Britain and France default by France, or 2. Revise the agreements downward before June 15, or 3. Before June 15, begin negotiations for revision, agreeing meanwhile to postponement of the June payments?

We are faced with a very clear decision. Shall we compromise with our debtors and make as good a deal for ourselves as possible, or shall we force them to default and pay us nothing? There is no other decision. If we can keep this steadily in mind it is possible to begin thinking intelligently about the problem. However, being any human and subject to the influence of passions and emotions, we are necessarily going to be swayed by all the considerations brought up by our politicians—and our eye will constantly tend to wander from the main issue.

The decision of the United States in this crisis will be momentous. It should be based solely on the best interests of the people of the country. Enlightened self-interest is the only justifiable basis for any governmental policy in foreign relations. Mere sentiment has no place. Amity has no place. Knowledge and the intelligent application of knowledge to the problem are essential. But, however sound a policy the government may formulate, it cannot succeed unless backed by an understanding public opinion.

Is it possible so to present the facts of the case to the public that our decision can be based on them and serve our best interests, or is the situation so complex, and an understanding of it so difficult, that we must drift on a wave of flagrant emotion into a policy of inaction and default? (To be continued.)
