Florida Sets Example In Weeding Out 'Bad' Cops

By TENI YARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

While one bad apple may not spoil the whole barrel of apples, law enforcement officials say one bad cop is one too many and spoils the image of police.

But what exactly is a bad cop? Based upon a composite drawn from police officers who have been decertified in Florida since July 1, 1980, a bad cop is a white male, age 35, a high school graduate with about seven years in law enforcement as a patrolman on a city police force.

"Since the Florida legislature set up the Criminal Justice Standards and Training Commission to hear cases for decertifying police officers, who may very well have no business in law enforcement, we've been cleaning house," said Seminole County Sheriff John Polk, who was appointed to the Commission by Governor Bob Graham. "Before the Commission was established, there was no system for decertification, only certification, so now we have quite a backlog of about 200 cases to review."

The Commission also hears cases concerning decertification of corrections officers serving in area prisons.

Polk said Florida's decertification system is "one of the toughest in the nation. In fact, other states are patterning their methods of decertification after us," he said.

Polk said he knows of two cases in which officers in Seminole County were to be heard by the Commission for possible decertification.

"We had a Casselberry officer who wanted to go to work for the Sanford Police Department but there was apparently a discrepancy with his application where he had left something off," he said. "That case was shot down because no probable cause for decertification could be proven. The other case is going to be heard when the Commission meets again and I really can't comment, other than to say it involves a Sanford officer."

According to statistics released by the Commission, 79 Florida police officers were decertified in fiscal 1981-82. The Commission also suspended four officers, placed one officer on probation and denied a request by two people to become police officers. Also, six police chiefs were decertified in 1981-82.

But what could cause a police officer to face decer-

The Commission lists larceny as the biggest reason for decertification. Statistics show that 25 percent of all police officer decertifications in 1981-82 were based on larceny charges, followed by such charges as use of dangerous drugs (13 percent), fraud (11 percent), sex offenses (11 percent) violation of department rules and regulations (10 percent), assault (7 percent), stolen property (5 percent), homicide (4 percent), sexual assault, burglary and weapons offenses, (3 percent) and robbery, forgery and public nuisance (2 percent).

"The way the system is set up is that an agency, whether correctional or law enforcement, requests that the Commission hear a case for decertification of an officer," Polk explains. "A probable cause hearing is set up to see if there is sufficient cause for action, similar to the way a grand jury works, in that a true bill or an indictment is returned. Then the officer can request an informal or formal hearing if probable cause is deter-

"An informal hearing means that he agrees with the facts as presented in the case for decertification but he isn't agreeing to having committed a crime, much like a nolo contendre (no contest) plea in court," Polk said. "A formal hearing is set up if the officer does not agree with the facts as presented in the case and wants to dispute them. This hearing is not heard by the Commission but by an attorney, appointed by the state."

The 16-member Commission meets quarterly to hear cases and make judgments concerning decertification of police and corrections officers and, according to Polk, only one decision of the Commission has ever been appealed to the District Court of Appeals.

"The court upheld the commission's findings in that case in January, 1982," Polk said. "By the way, the Commission reconvenes the last week of October in Ft, Lauderdale to hear more cases."

"I'm proud of the fact that no one was decertified in this county during the Commission hearings a few weeks ago," Polk said. "It shows we can keep our own houses

"People expect an awful lot out of law enforcement officers and while I do too, you have to remember that they are humans, also," he continues. 'On the panel, the other members get upset with me because I, for instance, can't see decertifying a good cop, a lieutenant for 12 years who made a relatively small error in judgment. I can't see saying he can never again be a cop.'

"On the other hand, let me find out that a deputy or officer has smoked marijuana or taken any drug other than prescription even once and as far as I'm concerned he's gone," Polk says. "I turn a deaf ear there. I can't condone any law enforcement officer using drugs."

"I vote on each case the way I see it," he continued. "I may be the only dissenting vote, but I'll stand by it. And, I've been told by other officers not to change my ways. Besides, if an officer is decertified, he always has the right to appeal that decision."

"And now ladies and gentlemen, join us once again for another episode of 'As the Commission Turns,' with City Manager Jeff Etchberger starring as City Manager Jeff Etchberger, Mayor Ray Ambrose starring as Mayor Ray Ambrose. Tonight's episode also stars Cheney Colardo, Bob Reis, Dudley Bates and Lee Constantine."

On our last episode of 'As the Commission Turns, the Altamonte City Commission was wrestling with the problem of curb cuts on State Highway 436, requests for rezoning by a state representative and a possible garbage pickup rate hike.

Will the commission vote for more traffic hassles on 136? Will the board move to consumate a land swap with Bob Hattaway? And will city residents pay more to get rid of their dastardly garbage...?

Nobody seems too concerned about Neilsen ratings, and nowhere in Altamonte Springs' proposed $18 million budget for next year is there mention of hiring a casting director, makeup man or wardrobe consultant, but members of the Altamonte City Commission are looking forward to a first this coming Tuesday

For the past two-and-a-half months, Altamonte commission meetings have been video taped by Storer Cable Communications and shown on a delayed basis on Wednesday nights. With one flick of the switch to cable channel I. Altamonte Springs residents have been able to keep an eye on what direction the commission takes on important issues from the comfort of their living rooms.

Tuesday night will be different, however. The rehearsals are over. It's time for the real thing. On July 27, it will be, "Live, from Altamonte Springs - It's Tuesday night live."

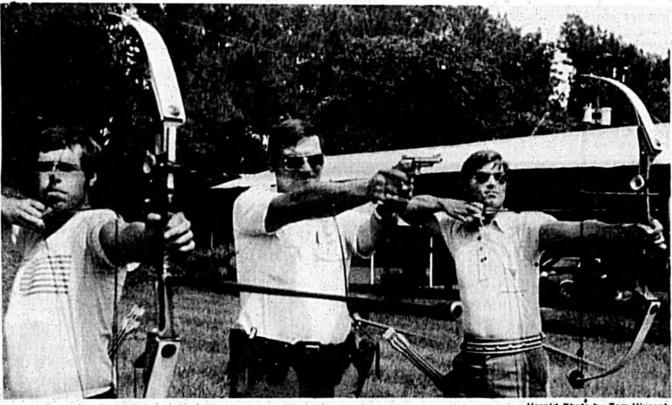

"We had wanted to go live when broadcasting the commission meetings first started," explained Storer Cable Communications producer-director Marc Grossman.

"It was a matter of getting the right equipment to tap into a two-way cable system.

Grossman said the taping of the commission meetings was part of 90 hours per month of locally produced work that Storer does. Other locally produced features include a "P.M. Magazine" type formatted "Seminole Sights and Sounds" and several other programs aimed at community information and children's programming.

Grossman says that while there's no real way of presently detecting just how many Altamonte Springs viewers watch the commission meetings, such as a Neilsen rating system, the cable vision service will be able to gather information

New Firm Locating In Sanford

A new sportswear firm plans to locate at the Port of Sanford by the beginning of 1983, a spokesman for the company said. Abe Muse, of Katrina Manufacturing Co. in Williamsport, Pa., said the new company, Sanbel Manufacturing, expects to begin operations in Sanford by the beginning of next year, "if we can find 80 to 100 people down there who want to work." Muse said Sanbel is a new firm, with new owners and management and is not affiliated with the Williamsport company. The company will manufacture sportswear for sale to brand name manufacturers, he said.

Dennis Dolgner, administrator of the port authority, confirmed that a sportswear firm is interested in moving into a 20,000 square foot building at the port's industrial park.

Dolgner said he has "been working with a prospect for a number of weeks."

At a meeting with the port authority's board of directors this week, Dolgner was given permission to continue negotiations to bring the firm to the port complex and to arrange a financing package with area banks.

Preliminary plans have been drawn up for the port authority to construct the $307,000 building near the port's entrance west of Sanford. The authority would lease the building to the

Dolgner said a special board meeting will be called within two weeks to formally announce the project if the financial package can be worked out.

Dolgner was optimistic the financial package can be arranged and the company can begin local operations by the first of the year. "The package is credible," he said.

Dolgner said the company would hire about 100 workers after it begins full scale operations. "Initially, it will be somewhat lower than that."

He credited the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce's Industrial Action Committee and the Mid-Florida Development Council for drawing the company to the area.

Housing, Gasoline Propel Inflation To 13 Percent

WASHINGTON (UPI) - With June consumer prices jumping I percent, the annual inflation rate amounts to 13.3 percent for last month, mostly due to rising housing and gasoline costs.

But despite June's figures and a 12 percent annual rate in May, officials still believe the trend of inflation is moderating.

Murray Weidenbaum, the outgoing chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told reporters Friday he expects to average about 6 percent for this year as a

A sharp increase in gasoline costs - 5-4 percent on a monthly basis alone — accounted for much of the June increase in retail prices, the Labor Department said. Gasoline prices had been falling earlier in the year, then rose 0.9 percent in May.

Housing pushed overall prices up because of a 2.3 percent rise in house prices in June, which was partially offset by a 0.8 percent decline in mortgage in-

July Car Sales Sluggish

DETROIT (UPI) - U.S. car sales lagged in mid-July, dropping 17.9 percent from last year's mid-month figures to the worst daily selling rate since 1958.

Newly profitable Chrysler Corp. reported increased sales for the middle of July, but the other four American automakers had sales drops.

Also Friday, the United Auto Workers and Chrysler Corp. wound up the first week of bargaining with a union request for a national pool of laid-off workers to fill jobs that open up at any Chrysler plant. Currently, workers are hired in each city where jobs are

The five U.S. automakers said they sold 132,538 cars in the July 11-20 period, down 17.9 percent from last year's 161,345. The daily selling rate of 16,567 cars was the worst in 24 years.

Speed Blamed In Death

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Police speculate presidential counselor Edwin Meese's 19-year-old son, described as "the best" at his Capitol Hill intern job, was driving at high speeds before the automobile crash that killed him.

But U.S. Park Police spokesman Robert Stratton said Friday investigators have found no evidence alcohol was involved in Scott Meese's accident, which happened as he was returning alone to his parents' home in McLean, Va., across the Potomac River from the nation's capital.

"Nancy and I are shocked and deeply saddened," President Reagan said in a statement. "Our hearts go out to Ed and Ursula, who with their family, are close and dear friends of ours."

Police said the younger Meese lost control of the compact car on a curve along that George Washington Parkway near McLean. It skidded more than 300 feet over a grassy median and struck a tree.

You Stop On Red

County Trying Red Arrows For Turns

By JOE DeSANTIS Herald Staff Writer

If you are one of the many Seminole County drivers somewhat baffled over a new twist in a couple of street lights along State Highway 17-92, don't feel alone.

A recent directive sent down from the State Department of Transportation has given local municipalities and counties the green light to put up lights with redlighted arrows to restrict turns from the left lane against oncoming

So far, Seminole County has just two such lights, located at the intersections of 17-92 and County Highway 427 and at 17-92 and Lake Mary Boulevard. Three more of the redarrowed traffic signals will be phased in over the next few months.

"The color of the lights still means what it always did," explained Bob Freeman, traffic operations director for DOT. "The reason behind the change is for less confusion for drivers in a left hand lane wanting to cut across traffic that's oncoming."

Prior to the switch from a solid red ball light to a red arrow, the only colored arrows drivers were used to seeing on the highways were green arrows, permitting either right or left hand turns at busy intersections. While the red arrow may be something new for drivers, Freeman says a national study has proven the lighted arrows are the safer lights compared to the standard red ball signal light.

"The switch came from a national survey. The National Manual on Traffic Devices indicated that the red arrows prohibiting a turn from a left-turn exclusive lane were safer," said Freeman.

"The red arrows eliminate the burden of the driver trying to pick a gap between on-coming traffic to cut across from the left lane."

Freeman conceded that as the red arrows are introduced around the state, they may at first cause some confusion for drivers.

"State-wide there's not going to be a great number of them," he said. "And local counties and cities have the jurisdiction as to where those particular lights will be placed depending on their specific local traffic problems.

"It's not really a change," he said. "The color of the light still remains the meaning of the light for the driver. The state decided it was time to enforce a national standard. "All the red arrow does is specify the movement of traffic in a left-turn exclusive lane," said Freeman.

"The light change seemed simple to use in the DOT," added Freeman. "We probably should have had a press release to get the word out to the public on the use of the red arrows."

Freeman said the state would be coming out with a video tape on the new twist in traffic lights and that mention of the change had been made in an in-house publication. But so far the public has had little news of the red arrow.

"That's a good point," he said. "And the state is considering making some one-minute television commercials to explain the use of the new arrows."

Seminole County traffic engineer Gary Lester said the county is currently testing the new arrows at the two intersections mentioned more are under "Three preparation for conversion," said Lester.

"Our office has had some calls from drivers about what to do at those interesections. Drivers should pay attention to the color of the light whether it's an arrow or a round ball. The color's meaning hasn't changed."

Lester said the arrowed lights will be used only at intersections that have left turn signals.

"We'll be testing the intersections for about six-months," he said.

"And we'll monitor them to see if the public feels comfortable with the red arrows. If that's the case, we'll complete the rest of the county." Lester said there is no great expense involved in changing the normal ball signal light to an arrow.

"The only expense is a little labor," he said. "No new lights have to be put in. What we do is use tape to black out the ball signal into the shape of an arrow.

Although this photo is black and white, the arrow shown in the traffic signal on the left is red, something new for Seminole County drivers. Located at the intersection of 17-92 and 427, the new, redarrowed left-turn signal is one of two new traffic lights that have recently gone up on 17-92. The other is located at the intersection of 17-92 and Lake Mary Boulevard, State transportation officials say while the red arrow may be confusing for drivers at first, it applies to left-turn exclusive lanes only and that the colors of the traffic lights haven't changed. Red still means stop whether, it's an arrow or a solid

Plenty Of Septic Tanks, But Where To Dump?

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

Thirty-five percent of Seminole County's households and businesses use septic tanks for sewage disposal.

"Yet even though the sludge in those septic tanks must be cleaned from once every 18 months to once every five years depending on use, there is no approved site in the county where septic services may dump the sludge.

"So what are we supposed to do?" asks David Gould, owner of Sun City Septic Service in Sanford. He noted that he cleans about 120 septic tanks monthly.

"My customers need the service and I'm going to provide it," he said, adding he finds vacant properties in rural Seminole and spreads the sludge there with the owners' per-

"When we dump on land, we are supposed to spread out the time to disc the sludge into the ground. But I don't have the time or a tractor and disc and most septic services do not." Russ Miller, director of environmental health section of the Seminole County Health Department, said he had been told by the county's environmental services division that two sanitary sewer plants in the county - the Altamonte Springs plant and Sanlando Utilitles plan - would accept sludge.

"That's not so," said Don Newnham, Altamonte Springs public works director. "It hasn't been done in the five years I've been here.'

Bill Mustard, executive vice president of Sanlando Utilities, said that his firm will not accept sludge either.

"We get requests from time to time but we have never accepted it," Mustard said. "The type of effluent from septic tanks is almost entirely devoid of oxygen. It would put a high requirement on the plant for treatment, it's pretty much of a tarry mess," he said.

In addition, Mustard said there is a physical problem involved. "A truck would have difficulty pumping the sludge 14-16 feet up into the plant," he said.

Ken Hooper, manager of the county's environmental services, said today that the county-owned Consumer Utilities sewer plant, off Red Bug Road and Howell Branch, would accept sludge from a septic tank cleaning service.

He said no firm has asked to use the sewer plant in some years. The sludge could be introduced into the plant through a manhole, Hooper said, adding that a fee would have to be negotiated and would depend upon how much sludge the firm wanted to dispose of.

Hooper also suggested that the Sanford sewer plant might accept the sludge. A city spokesman said Friday, however, that it will not.

Miller said there are no approved places for sludge dumping in the county. "And I know of none here which have been approved by the state Department of Environmental Services."

He sald some county areas might be acceptable as sludge dumping sites, but the sludge would have to be covered over. "A septic tank service could apply to the county's environmental services section for permission to dump sludge and then ask the county director of zoning for a special ex-

Despite the lack of a site to dump sludge, the county's environmental health section issues about 800 septic tank permits a year for new homes or businesses.

county by homes and businesses. This compares with about 60,000 homes and businesses operating with sanitary sewer service.

It's estimated that 25,000 to 30,000 septic tanks are used in the

Another problem, Gould noted is that restaurants have grease traps that must be cleaned and this is also cleaned by septic tank services. Gould added, however, that the grease from those traps cannot be spread upon the ground but must be disposed of in Hooper suggested that the septic tank services operating in Seminole combine their efforts and purchase a piece of land and develop their own disposal area.

"They would have to come up with an underground drainage system and build monitoring wells on site, but such a site could be approved," he said.

By TENI YARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County sheriff's deputies and Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) investigators are continuing their search today for two men who held up the Firstate Savings & Ioan Association in south Seminole County at gunpoint Friday.

Deputies said two men wearing stocking masks and baseball caps entered the savings and loan building, at 1980 Lake Howell Road, Winter Park, at about 1:31 p.m., pointed a gun at a teller and demanded an undisclosed amount of cash.

Upon receiving the money, the two armed robbers fled in a VW Thing, which was later reported to have been stolen from the Winter Park Mall parking lot about a half hour before the robbery occurred, deputies said. The vehicle was discovered about a half-mile from the robbery scene. Witnesses told investigators they saw two men, believed to be the suspected robbers, running from a new home construction site where the getaway vehicle was recovered, towards the Butler Plaza Shopping Plaza, behind Plantation Apartments. Witnesses also said they then heard a motorcycle engine, leaving the area at a high rate of speed.

Romeo and Charles Scannapieco, of 1600 Sandpiper Trail, filed their suit in Circuit Court, Sanford, Monday. The case is expected to be heard by Circuit Judge C. Veron Mize Jr. although no trial date has been set.

However, the suit claims that before any work was begun on the home, and six months after the firm accepted deed to the New York lot, the company claimed a 5-foot easement on the New York property decreased its value by almost 50 percent.

GOT HIS GOAT

Someone either stole or set a Sanford man's pet goat loose between 12:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Sunday.

Richard Kondracki, 42, of South Cameron Road, told deputies his 12-year-old male goat, valued at about $100 is missing from his front yard and that it appears the culprits either stole it or unsnapped the goat's collar and set him free. The goat is reportedly three-feet tall and is white with black markings, deputies said.

LONGWOOD HOME BURGLARIZED Thieves broke into a Longwood man's home between July 10 and 6 p.m. Thursday while he was away on vacation. William Tilbert, of 139 Des Pinar Lane, is expected to provide deputies with a list of stolen property. Deputies said the thieves entered the home by prying open a window. NUDE MAN INTRUDES HOME

An Altamonte Springs woman told police she and her children awoke at about 2:30 a.m. Thursday to find a man, wearing only brown-rimmed eyeglasses and a yellow cloth around his head, standing in her living room.

Betty Dumas, 34, of 230 Terrace Lane, told police she and her children were asleep in the living room of their home when she awoke and saw the nude man standing there. Ms Dumas said she screamed, frightening the man away, police said. Nothing was stolen from the home during the incident, police added.

CULPRITS STEAL CINEMAX

A Cinemax cable television box, was stolen from an Orange-Seminole Cablevision worker's van while he was repairing cable TV lines at a Sanford home.

Bruce Allen English told police he was making repairs at 207 Terry Lane at about 10 a.m. Monday when he heard his van door open and shut. Upon investigation, English said he discovered the box, valued at about $125, had been stolen from the vehicle, police said.

VANDALS PUNCTURE TIRES WITH KNIVES Deputies reported four separate incidences of vandalism to cars parked in two Fern Park parking lots between 10 p.m. Thursday and 1:23 a.m. Friday. Deputies said the tires of three vehicles parked in the Fern Park Station parking lot, 140 Fernwood Bivd., were punctured along with the tires of a car parked nearby in the K-Mart department store parking lot. The damages were reported by Patrick Levin Lydon, 22, of 109 Poplar Place, Longwood; Jacqueline Rhea Patrick, 22, of 5623 Lessler Drive, Orlando; and Kim Dinicola, 16, of Winter Park, deputies said.

$5,300 WORTH OF PROPERTY STOLEN About $5,300 worth of silver and jewelry was stolen from an Altamonte Springs man's home between 8 a.m. July 2 and 5 p.m. Saturday while he and his family were away on vacation. William F. Glover, 38, of 403 Lynchfield Ave., told police someone entered his home through the sliding glass door, stole an 8-place silver setting, a silver bar, a silver dollar, a strand of pearls and credit cards.

LONGWOOD HOME BURGLARIZED Burglars broke into a Longwood man's home between noon July 16 and 9 p.m. Thursday, ransacking it and stealing jewelry, cash, a television recorder, movie tapes and a suit-

Dennis Eugene Bay, 39, of 828 Riverhend Blvd, told deputies the thieve s entered his home through a bathroom window while he was away on vacation and stole his property.

PICKY THIEVES TAKE JEWELRY

Thieves broke into a Longwood home between 4:20 p.m. Wednesday and 2:20 p.m. Thursday, ransacking it and stealing an undisclosed amount of expensive jewelry, leaving numerous pieces of costume jewelry behind. Kelsie T. Slawson, 40, of 208 E. Hornbean Drive, told deputies that thieves entered the Longwood home through a kitchen window.

BURGLARS TAKE BOAT Thieves stole a boat, motor and trailer, valued at about $30,000, from a Maitland woman's home between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. Thursday. Sherrie M. McNeil, 25, of 1500 Westdale Ave., told deputies someone cut the chain securing her 25-foot 1980 Thunderbird Formula Liberia boat to a concrete anchor at her home and stole the boat, trailer and motor. BOY BRUISED BY BOTTLE

A 16-year-old Sanford boy was treated for bruises and released from the Central Florida Regional Hospital, Sanford, in good condition after he was injured when a passing motorist threw a bottle from the car, hitting him in the side.

Theodore Jones, 16, of 120 Drew Ave., told police he was standing along U.S. Highway 17-92, near the Robson Marina company with other youths, waiting to cross the street at about 9:45 a.m. Thursday, when a motorist drove past the group, threw a bottle from the vehicle and sped away. The bottles struck Jones in the right side, police said.

An undisclosed amount of gasoline was siphoned from school buses parked at the Pinecrest Elementary School parking lot at 27th Street and Myrtle Ave., at about 9:34 p.m. Thursday, police said.

GAS SIPHONED FROM SCHOOL BUSES

TRASH CAN TAKEN

A 30-gailon steel trash can was stolen from the alleyway behind a Sanford man's home between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

Ralph K. Jones, 62, of 1101 S. Park Ave., reported the theft of his trash can to police, adding that his neighbor's trash can was also reported stolen Tuesday night.

FIRE CALLS

The Sanford Fire Department responded to the following fire alarms Thursday:

-9:52 a.m., 2927 Orlando Drive, rescue.

-5:23 p.m., 138 Country Club Drive, shortage in power lines in alleyway behind home, corrected by Florida Power and Light Co.

United Way Welcomes Four New Directors

Four recently elected Directors of United Way-Seminole County were welcomed to the Board at its breakfast meeting at Central Florida Regional Hospital Thursday. Sharyn Dickerson, Sandy Cummings, Kay Bartholomew and Terry Duffy joined the team that will ask business firms their employees and other residents of the county to "give a fair share" of their income to help 20 agencies meet health care problems in the area.

Terry Duffy, real estate broker of Terry Duffy & Associates, Casselberry, is serving as Chairman of Special Events, one of which will be the auction that last year was so popular and was a source of funds — money given for merchandise donated by business firms.

Kay Bartholomew, well known Sanfordite, is Director of Marketing and Public Relations at the recently dedicated Central Florida Regional Hospital. Her long residency in Sanford and her wide-spread public service has endeared her to scores of people throughout the state. She is president of the state association of publicists.

From the Executive Board of Communication Workers of America to energetic Director of United Way is a "short hop," Sandy Cummings said - because she is very interested in the "people-to-people" service of both. She is in an Administrative position at Southern Bell T&T Co.'s Sanford Plaza office.

From the burgeoning field of finance Sharyn Dickerson not only came to the Board of Directors, but accepted the assignment of Deputy Campaign Chairman of the 1982 campaign. Her accomplishments as Senior Vice President and Cashier of ComBank-Seminole County and her wide acquaintance with people and business firms of the area, caused Larry Strickler, Campaign Chairman, to exclaim delightedly "she's a natural for the job — a leader."

The new Board members have been eagerly devoting time to "orientation" with the new tasks, said Dick Fess, President. "With this knowledge United Way procedures, their energetic participation in the work — and the record of accomplishment in their vocational field, we know that we have augmented the strength of what already is a vital force for community service."

Ex-Sentinel Supervisor Arrested

By TENI YARBOROUGH Herald Staff Writer

A 33-year-old Longwood man, called the "window puller" by Seminole County sheriff's deputies, was being held in county jail Saturday on a single burglary charge but investigators say he may be responsible for more than 150 area burglaries.

Bruce Robert Pedrick, of 341 Pickering Court, in the Wekiva subdivision of Longwood, was being held on $5,000 bond following his arrest at 11:40 p.m. Friday on charges he burglarized the Orlando Sentinel newspaper substation in Altamonte Springs, deputies said. He had been a supervisor there. Pedrick's arrest is the result of a 14-year investigation by deputies, in conjunction with area police agencies, deputies said.

"Sheriff's Investigator Terry Huffman has been following the case of the window puller for 18 months," said Capt. Jay Leman. "We call him the window puller because in most of the burglaries, which have been occurring in the subdivisions of Rolling Hills, Wekiva, Sweetwater Oaks, Spring Valley and in Longwood and Altamonte Springs, the windows of homes were pulled out by the burglar with a knife.

"About eight months ago we linked the burglaries with a common denominator, that is that all of the victims were subscribers to the Orlando Sentinel and had canceled the paper while they were on vacation," Leman said. "While these people were on vacation, their homes were hit."

Leman said Pedrick is the former supervisor of the Orlando Sentinel's substation at County Road 427 and State Road 436, Altamonte Springs.

"Apparently, when he left their employ in October, 1980, he kept a key giving him access to the building where he was able to get information on subscribers who were going on vacation and temporarily canceled their subscriptions. That's when the homes were hit."

Leman said the Orlando Sentinel officers have been working with sheriff's investigators over the past few months in an effort to determine who was responsible for the burglaries.

"Three weeks ago, Investigator Janice Keith of Altamonte Springs' police force, got a break in the case when a burglary victim identified some of his stolen property being sold at a Winter Park coin shop," Leman said. "She was able to trace the property back to Pedrick as the person who sold the property to the store operator."

Leman said his department has selzed "over three carloads of stolen merchandise from Pedrick's home. He added that after deputies have had time to process the items, burglary victims will be notified by the sheriff's department to claim their property.

"We can figure that the window puller committed about two or three burglaries a week and even four in one night at times," Leman said. "His income was about $3,000 per month after stealing and fencing items like video recorders, firearms, televisions, gold, silver, jewelry, Hummel figurines etc., to buyers as far away as Georgia."

Leman said additional charges may be pending against Pedrick in connection with the burglaries.

Conner Says Plane Use Was Official

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner let his children and a female friend travel with him on state planes at least 24 times during the past year, it was reported today.

Conner confirmed in a Tallahassee Democrat interview that his three sons and Laurita Woodham, a schoolteacher he described as a friend, flew with him on planes assigned to the Department of Agriculture's Division of Forestry.

But he said the travel was proper because the trips were for official state business and he was being assisted in some way by Ms. Woodham or his children. He also contended that department lawyers told him the practice was okay.

Florida Highway Patrol director J. Eldridge Beach retired abruptly earlier this month following reports that he used FHP planes for personal travel, including vacation, hunting and football trips.

The Cabinet suspended Beach's supervisor, Department of Highway Safety and Motor Vehicles director Chester Blakemore, on Tuesday, pending an investigation of Blakemore's letting his wife and daughter accompany him on

It's Justice O'Connor Style

The flurry of decisions closing out the 1981-82 term of the U.S. Supreme Court included one demanding that a state nursing school for women in Mississippi must admit male students.

Since the majority opinion was written by justice Sandra O'Connor, the court's first woman member appointed last year by President Reagan, one might conclude that her presence is making the court less tolerable of sex discrimination.

That may be true, but Justice O'Connor is a jurist first and a woman second, and we have to look beyond civil rights issues for evidence of her impact on the court.

The recent term bears out that on the general range of issues Justice O'Connor is more likely to come down on the "conservative" side than the justice she replaced, Potter Stewart.

Thus her appointment has moved the court another notch away from the liberal activism that characterized it under the late Earl Warren.

But the swing of the pendulum presumably triggered with the accession of Chief Justice Warren Burger more than a decade ago has been more subtle than pronounced.

The Burger court remains somewhat unpredictable. Some observers believe that Justice O'Connor's arrival has led the court's "swing" justices to side more often with the court's traditional liberals, Justices William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall.

The court struck a blow, at school busing in upholding California's Proposition 1, but at the same time supported a busing program in the state of Washington. Its support of an outright ban on child pornography narrowed the application of the First Amendment, but decisions on press coverage of books by school libraries broadened Increasingly, Supreme Court decisions are turning on fine points of law and procedures rather than sweeping philosophical conclusions. This may explain why the court at times seems to go off in two directions at once.

If there is one theme that seems to resound clearly from Justice O'Connor's seat on the court it is the appropriate distinction between the posers of the federal judiciary and those of the state courts.

Her roots are in the state courts of Arizona, not the federal courts, and she has not missed an opportunity to argue for a minimum of federal interference with the right of state governments and their courts to adopt and enforce their own

The tendency of the Warren Court to find federal constitutional issue in areas where none was seen before led to an extraordinary growth in the influence of the federal courts in American

This was sometimes for the better, but not always, and the new voice of Justice O'Connor on the Burger Court promises to bring federal and state judicial authority back into better balance. who headed this survey, the political attitudes This can also make the workload of the U.S.

Supreme Court more manageable. The recent term saw a new record of 5,178 cases appealed for review by the nine justices, often involving issues extensive than can be indicated in a column, once decided by state supreme courts.

Such a caseload is a good argument for judicial reform that would settle more cases in the lower courts and keep Justice O'Connor and her colleagues from spreading themselves too thin.

The fall season always ushers in a variety of community happenings that make news. And it's only natural that everybody's news is the most important item to roll off the press.

There will be fund-raisers, bazaars, luncheons, fashion shows, concerts, auctions, car washes, benefits, arts events, contests and promotions to name a few.

These items are what make the presses roll in the interest of our community. We welcome every tidbit - from the birth of a baby to the death of a loved one.

But, I lose my religion over hand-garbled copy that I cannot possibly read. Items cross my desk without a contact person's name and no phone number. The crystal ball fails to work. And then, a telephone call from an irate reader inquiring about "thus and so."

At times, the copy is interesting and timely if we only had more information for a credible news report.

And there are those accounts that nearly crack us up. Just this week, I received an item calling a kid "klutzy." But I doubt the kid or his parents would find the incident so amusing.

Peculiar Political Behavior

As everyone knows, college faculties are politically kinky, but a recent survey of the political attitudes of those who teach America's future ministers and priests nevertheless came as a bit of a shock.

The peculiar political behavior of academics has been documented again and

In their study of the 1972 election, for example, Everett Carll Ladd and Seymour Martin Lipset tell us that, despite Nixon's landslide defeat of McGovern in the nation at large, McGovern carried the professors by 56 to 43 percent, a contrary landslide.

But those figures don't begin to tell the story. According to Ladd and Lipset, McGovern was backed "by three-fourths of faculty in the liberal social sciences, by seven in ten among humanists — but by only half of the natural scientists and a third of the faculty at business schools. Further, McGovern was the choice of 70 percent of the faculty at elite institutions as compared with less than half at lower tier institutions."

I suppose this should have prepared us for the results of a new poll conducted by Roper and focusing on professors at Christian seminaries and theological schools throughout the country.

Hold your breath. Ninety-two percent of Episcopalian faculty believe the United States spends too much on its military. Only 27 percent of the same group believes the United States is a force for good in the world. Other denominations show the same split, though to a marginally lesser degree.

Eighty-five percent of the Catholic professors believe the United States "treats the Third World unfairly,"

Seventh-five percent of the Episcopalians believe "repressive regimes backed by the United States" are a greater problem in the world today than "communist expansion."

In ranges varying from one-quarter to onethird, the theology faculties believe there should be a "top limit on incomes so that no one can earn very much more than others." About half of the Episcopalian, Methodist, Lutheran and Catholic faculties believe that "the United States would be better off if it moved toward socialism."

More than half of those faculties disagree with the statement that "economic growth is a better way to improve the lot of the poor than distributing existing wealth."

According to Mr. Ladd, mentioned above, of these theologians closely resemble those of the general humanities faculty.

These poll results, and they are much more were published in a new and very useful magazine called This World, which focuses on the relationship between Christianity and issues of politics and economics.

My own impression, based on an admittedly limited sample, is that the gap between faculty political attitudes and those of the general public is actually widening.

The country moved to the right with the election of Reagan, and the polls show rightward trends on a whole range of issues.

In consequence, McGovernite opinion on the campus feels itself in a condition of siege. It fears the loss of the "gains" it made during the '60s - reverse discrimination, trendy ethnic and feminist programs, ecological

Victory Or A Defeat?

At first glance, it looked like a victory for In some school systems, it is mandated that those of us who believe that the church or synagogue—not the classroom—is the proper taught side by side. That seems a healthy place to teach religion.

It happened in New York City in late June. Three high school biology texts were rejected for use in the city's high schools because they neglected-and in one case ignored-the theory of evolution first propounded by Charles Darwin.

Two of the books were rejected for another failing. The local school authorities said that the books endorsed the biblical version of creation, which holds that species were created on earth in their present form.

Bible studies, of course, cannot be taught in the public schools.

In 17 states, local school boards cannot buy a textbook until state educational authorities have placed it on an approved list. In New York, and in most of the rest of the country, that decision is left to local boards or local administrators.

The Board of Education in New York uses three-member committees to approve books for purchase. The members of these committees are the subject-area directors for the school system along with teachers or supervisors who work in the particular subject area. A rejected book is reviewed a second time by another committee.

The rejected books in this case were biology

One of them was "Life Science," published by Prentice Hall. That book was rejected because it "(does) not state that evolution is accepted by most scientists today and presents special creation without characterizing it as a supernatural explanation that is outside the domain of science."

Also rejected was "Natural Science: Bridging the Gap," published by the Burgess Publishing Co. The book was criticized for containing the following statement: "Another hypothesis about the creation of the universe with all its life forms is special creation, which gives God the special role in creation.

the evolution and special-creation theories be attitude in view of the tenuous nature of hypothesis.'

The third book was "Experiences in Biology," published by Laidlaw Brothers of River Forest, Ill. That book was rejected because it makes no mention at all of evolution or of Darwin.

This book banning was hailed by the professional organization of biology teachers. "Every community concerned about the honest teaching of science ought to take a similar stand," said Wayne A. Moyer, executive director of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

The New York decision put book publishers on notice that one of the nation's largest school systems will not tolerate the teaching of religion in biology class. So was this a victory?

More like a defeat.

The need for action by New York City is acknowledgement that book publishers are offering school systems an Adam and Eve version of creation that is properly part of the curriculum in Sunday school and Bible class, not at Public School No. 23.

It means that children in school systems with less diligent selection systems than New York's are being taught that scientists give "special creation" the same validity as Darwin's theory-or, in some cases, that "special creation" is the sole theory of how life began. Neither of these contentions is true, of course.

No publishing company prints a book unless it is sure of some sales and profits. The existence of the three rejected textbooks means that the publishing world has surrendered to pressures from the "special," and "scientific" creationists who have haunted state legislative halls across America for more than a decade.

It means that the Bible is back in the schoolroom. That's not a victory. It's a defeat.

RUSTY BROWN Saying It With

In olden days, if a man liked flowers, people thought he was a pansy.

Flowers

Not any more.

Male flower lovers are coming out of the closet. It has to do with male-female liberation, I think, and our de-emphasis of the macho image.

Many women no longer hesitate to send flowers to men, and men accept them with aplomb.

A woman who owns a flower shop told me there are numerous occasions for picking posies for men: when a woman is invited to his place for dinner; when she wants to say thanks for a memorable evening; when she wants to say she's sorry they quarreled.

Women also send bouquets or plants for a man's birthday, his promotion, or when he moves to a new apartment or new office. The perennial favorite, of course, is the long-stemmed red rose. But the silver rose (actually, it's a shiny mauve) is a close second. "We sell 75 silver roses a week," said the flower shop owner. A single rose costs about $2.50 and most women have it delivered for an additional

She noted a sizable increase this year in women-to-men orders for Valentine's and Father's Day.

"Our big-seller Valentine," she said, "was a tube glass double bud vase with longstemmed roses and a silver Mylar balloon tied on with red ribbon

Balloons read "Kiss Me" or "I love you." The arrangement cost $15.

Popular for Father's Day were stately, orange tiger lilies in a sleek black vase.

Other florists pointed out that the trend is not limited to holidays or special events. One wife sends her lawyer husband a bouquet a week for his desk at the office. Another woman sends her boyfriend a clutch of carnations, so he can break off one a day for his lapel.

Women, the florists agree, pick flowers for men with big blooms and bold colors - lilies, birds-of-paradise, exotic orchids and the South African iris called freesia.

They select arrangments with props, too: wine baskets, coffee mugs or earthen pots.

If this trend continues, I'd like to see women become really imaginative and want to "say it with flowers" and a flair. Here are a few ideas:

- To wish Happy Birthday to an early morning jogger, how 'bout morning glories?

- For Father's Day: poppies - When he joins the clergy: canterbury

- For the bridegroom: tulips. - For the guy who can't wait: impatiens.

- When he wins the bike race, congratulate him with a cyclamen. - When he loses the marathon, chide him with creeping phlox. - If you're afraid the relationship is cooling, try forget-me-nots. - If he hasn't called in weeks, send bleeding hearts. To celebrate his vasectomy, baby's tears.

- After his divorce, bachelor buttons.

- If the evening was "yech," deliver a

Did Company Know Control Defects?

WASHINGTON — The grim statistics are not disputed: At least 47 people died and 93 were injured because faulty controls failed to shut off the gas in some gas water heaters. Only one agonizing question remains: Who was to blame?

The Consumer Product Safety Commission has pointed the finger at the Robert Shaw Controls Co. of Richmond, Va. — one of the world's largest manufacturers of controls for gas water heaters.

The commission has filed a complaint that Robert Shaw Controls withheld information that linked two defective control models to the tragedies. The faulty devices are Unitrol models 110 and 200, produced in the mid-1950s.

A Robert Shaw controls official told my associate Tony Capaccio that the company discovered the defects in 1974. Since then, he said, it has been conducting an extensive recall campaign - without prodding from the government - to find the thousands of dangerous controls still in use.

The big problem is that when the heater's pilot light goes out for any reason, the faulty control fails to stop the flow of gas. This creates an obvious danger of fire or explosion. Robert Shaw Controls has called the commission's complaint "absolutely without merit." But a secret staff memo dated June 9 paints an alarming picture of the danger. "The nature of the defect is, without question, among the most lethal ever encountered by the Commission," the staff reported. "For those consumers unfortunate enough to have Unitrol 110 or 200 installed in their liquid petroleum gas water heater, the defect is an ever-present, ever-dangerous and ever-hidden risk to life and property." The company reported the defect to the commission in 1974, stating that the faulty controls had led to one death and one injury.

Complaints also came in from several private attorneys - until the commission in 1980 asked Robert Shaw Controls for more data. A study of the company's computerized files convinced the commission staff that Robert Shaw Controls had misled them six years earlier. The secret memo states that the company's 1974 report "presented an severity of the hazard ... The overall report was misleading and tended to minimize the significance of the hazard." Specifically, the staff discovered in the company's own records five additional examples of serious injury that were not incomplete, almost benign picture of the reported to the commission. "It will never be known precisely how many deaths and injuries could have been avoided if effective correction action had been taken by Robert Shaw," the staff memo concludes.

"The severity of the risk has been amply demonstrated by the grim statistics of death and injury, with the potential for even more casualties until all defective Unitrols are replaced."

The Robert Shaw spokesman said the company feels that even bad publicity will help locate the faulty controls. He said the Unitrol models are "most certainly a hazard, and that's why we'd like to find them."

Footnote: The Product Safety Commission's figures show a disturbing decline in the number of "substantial product hazard" reports filed by manufacturers in accordance with the law. From an already suspiciously low 201 such reports in fiscal 1979, the total fell to a ridiculous 124 in fiscal 1981. This might indicate that products are getting safer every year - were it not for the grim fact that the commission still gets anywhere from 5,000 to 7,000 complaints each year from consumers reporting injuries.

My first reaction when I read the steel down a public highway, failed to certainly does not have the qualities we Miss Florida, had been arrested for drunk driving was total dismay. Then as I read the account of what happened, the first shock waves gave way to anger and disgust.

Whether or not she was intoxicated is a matter to be determined at a trial, but by her own admissions she was throwing a tantrum and behaving like a tenyear-old because of a quarrel with her boyfriend. But she didn't just throw her doll across the room or stomp her foot or slam the door as a child might have done. She hurtled a couple of tons of

Suppose it had been a human being standing on that corner instead of a mail box? Miss Pitman would now be facing charges of vehicular homicide instead of just drunk driving. But drunk or sober, she displayed immaturity and reckless disregard for the rights and safety of her fellow human beings. She has beauty, yes, but beauty is only skin deep. # Page Today Almost Same As 1814 Congressional Aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The perfect congressional page is a swift, silent runner, hustling everything from important documents to candy bars for sweet-toothed senators.

He, or in more recent times she, is also a youngster between 14 and 18, free and loose in one of the nation's not-sovery-wicked citles. Most of the time these teenage gofers, identically dressed in white shirts and deep blue trousers, escape notice - a state accepted by the congressmen and senators and almost certainly preferred by the pages.

From time to time, concerns have been raised about the living habits and academic pursuits of the pages, but very little has changed since the system began in 1814.

That is certain to change now under unfortunate circumstances.

Allegations have been made that some members of Congress and some pages are into cocaine and homosexual

The FBI, a grand jury and the House ethics committee are all investigating the allegations.

Even if accurate, the allegations seem to involve no more than a handful of congressmen and even fewer pages. Given the large population of Capitol Hill, the percentages may not even be unusual in relation to society as a whole.

In the process, however, a lot of congressmen and pages have been put under suspicion and, if no indictments are returned and no charges pressed by the ethics committee, no one probably will ever know.

If nothing else the scandal - if there is a scandal - has given new life to the page reform movement.

The focus seems to center on supervised housing for the pages that would end a lifestyle that many other teenagers might envy.

Girl pages live under one roof but boy pages have to fend for themselves, sometimes getting together to share an apartment.

The Senate Management Board, which began a study "some months ago" is in with its recommendations. One of them is that Senate should provide a single supervised housing unit for its 30 pages until Congress approves money for a page dormitory. But the board, as have others before, indicated concern that the pages are not getting the academic education they need. The page school now has to accommodate 100 pages, ranging in age from 14 to 18, grades 9 through 12.

The classes have to be crammed into a tight schedule - 6:15 a.m. until an hour before the Senate or House convenes. It is not unusual for the Senate to meet as early as 9 a.m.

There is no gym. There are no laboratories and the library is considered poor although the school is located in the Library of Congress.

To ease the situation, the board has recommended the appointment of only 11th graders who would take an "innovative academic program."

This would retain the "essential" 11th grade courses but add others emphasing Congress and the legislative process, social and policy sciences, budgeting and management, writing and the media.

Lessons To Be Learned

Medfly Confusion Lingers

By JACK D. EARLY Public Research, Syndicated, 1982

While it is perhaps still too early for the definitive post-mortem, the California medfly "invasion" appears to be well under control, and the state's $14.5 billion produce harvest appears to have escaped with little or no damage.

Still, the long-drawn-out medfly controversy has created more than its share of confusion and bitterness. It cost U.S. and California taxpayers an estimated $50 million or more, and additional millions in Florida, after an outbreak of fruit flies was discovered there. It has raised a number of important public policy considerations that must be answered so similar fiascos can be avoided in the future.

Though it was not until this summer that the medfly story started to command national headlines, the controversy began any ear earlier, with the discovery in June 1980 of an infestation of Mediterranean fruit flies in California's Santa Clara Valley.

Agricultural experts advised Governor Edmund (Jerry) Brown Jr., that the infestation could be halted quickly with a program of aerial pesticide spraying. But the Governor chose to reject this advice. In his view, the aerial spraying of malathion, a pesticide known to be effective against fruit flies, posed unacceptable danger to the public health. Instead, Governor Brown implemented a program he considered to be environmentally safe: ground spraying; tree stripping; and later, the release of supposedly sterile flies to mate with the fertile flies.

This program was doggedly pursued for many months with very little success. It was not until the summer of 1981, when threats of federal and international sanctions were made against California produce, that the Governor reversed himself and authorized aerial spraying. But by then a minor problem, limited to a single county, had spread widely and was close to being out of control. Instead of a small, inexpensive eradication job, California was faced with a mammoth problem requiring war-like measures.

There are at least two lessons to be learned from California's handling of the medfly infestation:

Some uniform federal standard for determining the safety of agricultural chemicals ought to be established. Years of practical experience combined with untold hours of scientific research and testing have led to the inescapable conclusion that malathion, if properly used, poses very little risk to human or animal life. It is intended to kill certain bugs, and it does a very good job of that.

The dangers of not using appropriate pesticides, in a prudent and careful way, can far exceed the risk of using properly approved products.

For example, if the medfly eradication program had proven unsuccessful, officials of the University of California (Berkely) Cooperative Extension Service and the Marketing Services Division of the California Department of Food and Agriculture estimated, the infestation could have cost the state (and we can take that to mean, as always, taxpayers and consumers) as much as $1.2 billion in firstyear crop losses and pest-control costs. Every year the pest remained, they reported, another $750 million could have been tacked onto the price-tag.

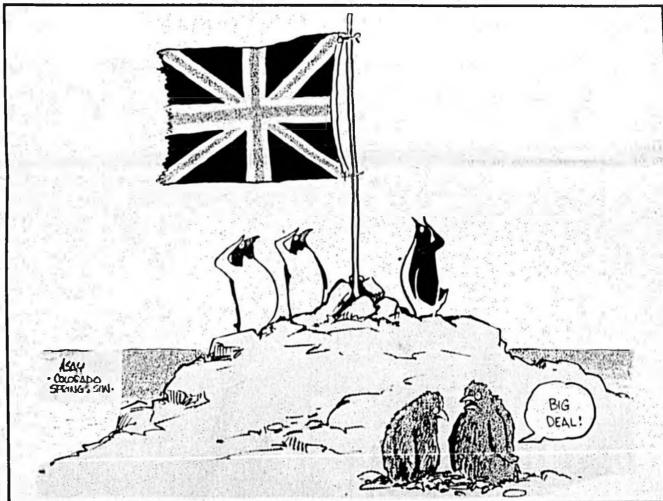

Other studies have shown that if the use of agricultural pesticides was totally discontinued American consumers would see an immediate decrease of 30 to 40 percent in the supply of food available, a corresponding decrease in food quality, and a sharp increase in agricultural prices across the board. According to figures compiled by the National Academy of Sciences, without pesticides to protect American crops, consumers would be forced to spend 30-40 percent of their income on food instead of the current 15-20 percent; farm prices would rise 50-70 percent; and farm exports would fall to zero.

These effects would be felt far beyond the borders of California or of the U.S. as a whole. World population growth is going to increase the need for food in the coming decades. It is estimated, for example, that between now and the year 2021, the food-growing nations of the world will need to double their output just to keep up with world demand. Meeting this demand will require the use of all the technological tools at our disposal, including the use of pesticides.

Insects are man's prime competitor for the food we eat, and a major carrier of disease. The entire history of civilization has been an attempt to accept nature's gifts while confronting and overcoming its threats. Scientific research in the fields of medicine and agricultural chemicals has been an unending effort to fight man's natural enemies, whether they're microbes or

If nothing else, the California medfly saga shows that the battle is far from won, and requires serious, intelligent decision-making at all levels of government.

Many Older Workers Are Out Of Work Now

Q. My husband, who is 58 years old, was laid off from work 16 months ago. He spent the first six months looking for work. Now he's very discouraged and doesn't think that anyone will ever hire him because of his age. This is a small town, and there aren't too many employers anyway.

I'm wondering whether he'll ever work again.

A. Your husband joins record high numbers of able workers 55 and older who are currently out of work. As of April 1982, 752,000 older workers were unemployed but still looking for jobs. An additional 334,000 were categorized as "discouraged workers" - those who have stopped looking for work because they believe they will never be hired.

The result is that more than a million older workers are unable to find work during this harsh economic period.

It is sad but true that workers over 45 generally remain unemployed 21 percent longer than the average for the entire work force. Of those who do find work, fully two-fifths are forced to accept jobs of lower status than their previous jobs.

While age discrimination in employment has been a most discouraging reality for many of us, your husband should be aware that it is clearly illegal. If he has experienced age discrimination while looking for work, he should file a complaint with the local office of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

New legislation — H.R. 6576 and S. 2617 - has been introduced during this Congress to strengthen protections of older workers and to put an end to mandatory retirement and all forms of age discrimination in the work force.

You may wish to write to President Reagan; Sen. Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee; and Rep. Augustus Hawkins, chairman of the Employment Opportunities Subcommittee of the House Education and Labor Committee to express your views on age discrimination in the work force.

Unfortunately, until our perilous economic condition is reversed, older workers, along with the young, will continue to face an uphill battle to find adequate jobs.

Q. I remember the good old days when the "family doctor" came to the house and treated whoever was sick for whatever alled him.

Nowadays, it's specialists for fingers and toes and stomach and ears and eyes and anything else you can think of. I'm 73 and my children want me to see a "geriatric specialist." What is the point?"

Geriatric medicine focuses on the prevention, diagnosis, care and treatment of illness or disability in Medical science has discovered that the unique health concerns of growing older can be treated more effectively with special knowledge, expanded research, greater sensitivity and understanding.

One major difference in treating older patients is that many of them have several ailments, while younger adults may visit the doctor with just one complaint. The combination of medical problems requires more care in treatment, so as to avoid negative interactions among the different conditions and treatments.

The real heart of geriatric medicine is the understanding that physical and mental deterioration are not inevitable consequences of growing older, and that there are positive aspects to the aging process.

I emphathize with your feelings about "specialists." It does seem that in medicine, as in other areas, we have become a nation of specialists. The unfortunate aspect is that we sometimes lose the sense of wholeness and familiarity that comes from one person's knowing our medical history and generally treating us for the range of health concerns.

The feeling of many geriatricians, therefore, is that all medical training should have a greater emphasis on geriatrics so that doctors in general practice will have the education and experience to continue effective treatment of their aging patients.

Both Ms. Becker and Barbara Donaghy, the other certified nurse-midwife at the center, were hospital nurse midwives before coming to the birth center.

Ms. Beck said she gave up the security of a hospital position because she believes women should have a chance to have their babies in a home-like atmosphere.

"I think hospitals are trying to get more of a family atmosphere," she said. "It's very important for the woman to feel comfortable, and some women feel more comfortable at home with family and friends."

The woman should be able to choose between the hospital or the birthing center, she

"It's not just an isolated event," said Ms. Becker, "It's not just the birth of a baby, it's the birth of a family. That's why it's called the Family Birth Center. The father needs to bond with that child from the beginning."

There is one other factor in the renewed interest of such centers — economics. The cost at the Longwood center is $1,025, which includes prenatal classes through post-delivery. Similar services at hospitals can be three times that amount.

Although cost is a factor, it is the alternative to the overall hospital delivery idea that is drawing women to such centers.

"My other two children were in a hospital," said Jean Burgess, an Orlando woman who gave birth to her third child, Patricia Ann. Monday night at the Longwood center.

"I was just looking for an alternative to a hospital and my girlfriend told me about Mary Ann. There was nothing wrong with the hospital, but I just wanted something dif-

Ms. Becker said every woman is not suited for delivering a child at a birthing center. To those, she recommends hospitals.

"The only things that go on in a birthing center are the things we are prepared to handle," she said. "We handle the low-risk pregnancies."

Excluded are women who have had previous Caesarian section birth, six or more previous births, more than 22 weeks of pregnancy without prenatal care, problems with previous births such as hemorrhaging or miscarriages. or those with a chance of multiple births.

Actor Vic Morrow, Children Killed

Women Choosing Delivery Alternatives

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Veteran actor Vic Morrow, who gained fame in the 1960s as the grimy infantryman in the World War II TV series "Combat," was killed with two child actors Friday in a movie set helicopter crash.

Morrow, 50, and youngsters Renee Shinn Chenn, 6, and Myca Dinh Lee, 7, were cut down by the rotor blades of a chartered Bell 205 military-type helicopter, carrying a five-man camera crew, in a scene for "Twilight Zone" depicting a Vietnam War aerial attack. Witnesses said Morrow, with the children in his arms, was running across open ground mined with explosive charges to simulate machinegun fire when clods of dirt and rocks flew into the helicopter blades, disabling it.

More than a hundred movie extras and production assistants witnessed the bizarre accident.

The Steven Spielberg production was being filmed at 2:30 a.m. PDT in rural Indian Dunes Park, about 30 miles northeast of Los Angeles near the community of Saugus and Magic Mountain amusement park.

Director John Landis, who directed "Animal House," was reported slightly injured. Three members of the Warner Bros. crew and the pilot, Dorcey Wingo, 35, were injured in the crash. They treated and released from a nearby hospital.

Landis was only one of three directors involved in "Twilight Zone." Spielberg and Joe Dante also were scheduled to direct half-hour segments of the feature film due for release in theaters this Christmas.

Morrow, who co-starred with Rick Jason in "Combat" from 1962-67 was a veteran of more than a dozen movies and scores of television shows. One of his most memorable roles was as the villainous manager of a Little League baseball team in "The Bad News Bears."

Morrow was a quiet, introspective man who kept a low profile. He never achieved major stardom, but he was considered a solid character actor whose forte was action pic-

He made his movie debut as a juvenile delinquent in "The Blackboard Jungle" with Sidney Poitier in 1955, later playing key roles in "God's Little Acre," "Cimarron," "Portrait of a Mobster" and such TV films as "Roots," "The Glass House" and "The Captains and the Kings" among others.

A native of New York City, the stocky, blond actor guest starred in such espisodic TV shows as "Bonanza," "The New Breed," "The Untouchables" and "The Rifleman."

In 1966 he directed the movie "Deathwatch," in which he had starred on Broadway, but it was the role of U.S. Army platoon Sgt. Chip Saunders in "Combat" that brought the actor his greatest fame.

After a hitch in the Navy, Morrow began acting as a student at Florida Southern College, thereafter moving to New York to study with Paul Mann's Actors' Workshop, supporting himself by driving a cab.

Morrow married actress Barbara Turner in 1957. They are the parents of two daughters, Carrie, 24, and Jennifer, 20. They were divorced in 1965.

on viewing habits in the near future when addressible converters are incorporated into the technical aspect of the cable vision system.

Grossman said comparatively speaking, cable vision is beginning to make itself felt in the major broadcasting markets across the country.

"Recent polls of the major markets have indicated that networks like Home Box Office and Cable News Network (Ted Turner's Superstation) are beginning to take a major share of the market," said Grossman.

Members of the Altamonte City Commission view the switch from a tapedelayed basis to live broadcasting with one of anticipated public service, while at the same time good-naturedly handling questions about television stardom and T.V. glamor.

"To be honest, it doesn't feel bad at all to be on television," said commissioner Lee Constantine, "At first the commission had to get used to the lights at city hall and I think we all had a tendency to look at the little red lights on the say yes. camera to see who was on. But after a while everyone just tends to ignore the fact that the cameras are there.

"I think we may have all been extremely businesslike when the tapings first started. But the members of the commission have lightened up a bit. It's hard to sit through two or three hours talking about sewer systems without breaking the rigidness with a little humor now and then," he said.

Constantine, a University of Central Florida communications graduate, said he felt the commission had a tendency to go into a great deal of explanation about my big moment," laughed Bates. issues on weekly agendas because viewers at home didn't have an agenda they could follow. He added that initial tapings may have been a little uncomfortable because board members were inhibited to get up for a cup of coffee or to move around a bit in order to look at items like proposed plat plans or renditions of proposed building projects within the city.

"As for being hams," said Constantine, "I think the commissioners realize we're not out there to compete with Happy Days or whatever the top rated program is these days.

"There have been a few occasions when a commissioner will do something like wish a relative a happy birthday over the air. Commissioner Colardo has done it with her daughter, I've done it with my grandmother, we've all done it on occasion.

"Overall, I think the public appreciates the broadcasts. They can associate the names with the faces," he added.

"Television brings government to the Reis. "It's an excellent means of com- of," he said.

to come out at night or some of them don't always have transportation to get down to city hall.

"Television keeps them in touch with the issues of their community, and they can read about it the next day in the paper on the results of the meeting," he said. As for the glamor and stardom of television notoriety, Reis said that each commissioner handles that differently.

"My neighbors usually watch and they'll comment the next day on some of the issues," he said.

Commissioner Dudley Bates says the switch from taped to live broadcasts won't have any effect on the commission.

"When the taping first started, the most obvious thing was the lights," says Bates. "But after a while I honestly feel the commissioners just forgot the cameras were there."

Bates does feel, though, that the lure of television may play on the political ham of the board members, even if it's just slightly.

"Without dealing in personalities, I'd "Some, more than others, may perhaps play the role of the politician when the camera goes on," he chuckled. Bates says the television exposure helps citizens connect the names with the faces of their city commissioners. "The kids watch it and say, "That's my dad on television.'

Bates added that his television-related moment in the limelight came on a weekend shopping trip to Albertson's when a teen-ager recognized him from watching the cable and asked for an autograph.

"I gave her my business card, that was

Mayor Ray Ambrose says the period between taping the meetings and going

"Initially there was the effect of unknown factors like the lights," said Ambrose. "But after awhile the commission just went about doing its duties."

Ambrose said he feels comfortable with the idea of going live because it will make the meetings more personable and that the broadcasts offer greater communication between city government and city residents.

People would rather stay home in the comfort of their living rooms with a coke and a sandwich, and some of them just can't get down to city hall for the meetings," he said.

The mayor added that going live may serve as an impetus for commission members to stay on top of every issue on weekly agendas.

"Nobody wants to be on camera and people," commented commissioner Bob talking about an issue they aren't on top senior citizens. A lot of them don't want acutely aware of all the issues and questions that come from the residents who show up at city hall," he said.

While Ambrose fully supports the live broadcasts, he also expressed hope that citizens wouldn't become complacent about issues that affect them.

"When the meetings were tape delayed, a lot of the public got the information and results of the meeting after the fact," he said. "When the information is less immediate, the people tend to stay home."

Ambrose also said that residents who view the meetings live will get a greater feel for the entire meetings.

As for hamming it up for the cameras, Ambrose said the atmosphere of a studio does have an effect on the commission.

""Politics is the kind of thing where there seems to be an air of competition. If you watch closely you can see the commission pay attention to how the feeling swings back and forth on a particular issue. I think you may see more of that with the live broadcasts which will tend to make the meetings longer."

Commissioner Cheney Colardo said the switch from taped to live meetings would be fantastic.

"I've heard a lot of people make comments about issues that have been discussed on the taped meetings," said Mrs. Colardo.

"I think the televising makes us more accountable to the public. It helps us get the issues out to the people that can't make it to the commission meetings." Colardo said she has noticed a slight decrease in attendance at city commission meetings since the taped broadcasts started. But noted that usually only residents who had a direct concern over a particular agenda item were the ones who showed up for commission meetings.

Colardo added that when Storer first live has given the commission time to get began taping, the studio-type lights did

> The lights were bothersome to the eyes," she said. "But as for the cameras, I've never been uncomfortable about talking to a group of people or speaking in public. I just talk a lot anyway," laughed the commissioner.

> As for politically hamming it up for the cameras, Colardo said she was at first concerned about that possibility.

> "You have to look at the individual members and watch their reaction to being on camera," she said.

> One possible future problem she pointed out concerned the live telecasts around election time.

"If a commissioner happens to be up for reelection, obviously he or she would have more exposure. An opposing candidate would have a chance to be on television by coming to a meeting and speaking at the podium, but that could get to be a problem," she said.

"If that happens, we'd have to look at

There's a first time for everything. Gary Taylor, District 4 Little Major League Tournament director, is famous for getting in a game under circumstances that anyone else would have abandoned within minutes. But, Friday night's District 4 Championship game between the Sanford Nationals and Ormond Beach had to be called off after no relief in the weather was in sight.

Sanford and Ormond Beach played the title game Saturday at 10 a.m. to decide which team will represent the district in the state tournament in Tallahassee which begins Monday.

You might say it rained on Ormond's parade Friday night. The bunch from the Beach seemed pretty confident after Thursday night's "incredible" 20-18 comeback victory.

In fact, they were so hyped up, that some of the players rode up to Fort Mellon Park in a white, Cadillac limosine. But with showers seemingly converging on the Park the limo was in limbo until Saturday. Taylor had defied mother nature so many times before that the gods must have ganged up on him Friday.

Ormond Beach was overjoyed about the coverage they received in Friday's Herald. "We're lucky if we get two paragraphs in the Daytona (News Journal) paper," assistant coach Lowell Lohman said.

So far, in 10 tournament games, Sanford National carries a .418 team batting average led by slugging first baseman Todd Revels and his .619 tournament average.

Herald Sports Writer

In 10 games the Nationals have scored 145 runs on 125 hits, 30 of which were homers. Revels clouted seven homers and knocked in 15 runs and is followed by Leonard Lucas (.475, 6 homers, 16 RBI and 3 pitching victories), Ron Blake (.440, 4 homers, 4 doubles, 11 RBI), Willie Grayson (.516, 3 homers, 11 RBI) and a host of other National All-Stars are swinging hot

While Sanford may send a team to the Major Little League State tourney, the city is hosting the Junior League State Tournament which runs August 2-5. Sanford's Junior League team is still in the running but must sweep through the loser's bracket to advance to state.

All games of the Junior League tournament will be played at Chase Park. Souvenir programs are now available. The cover contains a letter written by Montreal Expo all-star outfielder and Sanford native Tim Raines welcoming players and fans to the tourney. Raines won the Junior League State Tournament Most Valuable Player Award in 1974.

Although the state tournament will be held in Sanford, State Commissioner Randy Trousdell of Tallahassee told Taylor he would not be attending the tournament unless his son's team is in

Sanford has waited eight years to host the tournament so had a long time to prepare for it. District 4 Commissioner Dave Fleming also said he will not make the tournament because he will be on vacation at the time.

"You would think that eight years is enough time for someone to arrange his schedule so he could make the tournament," a disgruntled Taylor said.

Whether or not the two commissioners attend or not you can be sure that the State Junior League Tournament is in good hands. Taylor has done a fine job throughout the years and devoted a lot of his time to the city's

Showers Tease Mustangs, Broncos

By SAM COOK Herald Sports Editor

Friday's showers washed some baseball games into the gutter. Others was selected as the alternate and will be were just teased with an almost-clearing sky before the cascading downpour.

The Seminole Pony Baseball Complex near Winter Springs fell into the latter group. Officials at the well-kept complex worked feverishly Friday to prepare the Mustang and Bronco fields only to see their masterpieces washed off the

"We were within an ace of getting to play tonight," moaned Bob Mauro, coach of the Seminole National League Mustang All-Stars. "We were so close to getting started."

Mauro, who is assisted by Gregg Twiggs Sr. and Jim Mocny, won the Top Team Tournament with his Forest City Pop's Pirate's squad.

Pop's Pirates knocked off Gene Oliver's Longwood team twice to take the title, so Mauro wasn't too surprised when he drew Oliver's American League Mustang All-Stars for Friday night's first game at 6:30.

The two squads went at it Saturday morning at 10. The tournament's other two entries-Hialeah and Town and County (Tampa) — played at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The two losers meet at 3 p.m. while the winners go at it immediately after the third game of the day. The tournament will run through Sunday.

One guy he will be pitching is nineyear-old sensation Jamie Mocny, who also swings a tough stick. First baseman Gregg Twiggs Jr. will lead off and hardhitting shortstop Tommy Frank will be next with third baseman Clinton Granville, a standout for manager Dave Geiger's World Series squad of last year, is the third-place hitter.

Sanford's Mike Merthie is the cleanup man and the second baseman. Lee Ayers will bat fifth and play right field while Jayme Burke holds down left field and bats sixth.

Catcher Bobby Mauro will hit seventh, center fielder Kyle Scott is eighth and Mocny is ninth.

Reyes, also a good hitter, is sandwiched between leadoff man left fielder Donny Bryan and power-hitting right fielder Brad Black.

Livernois bats cleanup. Third baseman Todd Harrell bats fifth and Ethan Bauer, the Americans top reliever, is penciled into the sixth as the shortstop.

Second baseman Matt Tickle, center fielder Pat Newell and first baseman positions.

Reserves are Jason Spellman, Mike Boyd, Vince Hollis, Matt Eby, Allen Milwee and David Swain.

Holly Hill jumped on starter Terry with Sanford's Mike Davis sixth playing "The Cat" Miller for three first-inning runs. Victor Wallace blooped a hit to right field and Mike Ader did the same to Brian Morris then rode a Miller fastball over the right-field fence with the help of a 10-mile-an-hour wind. All three hits were to the opposite field, but Holly Hill, a 14-1 loser to Port Orange, led, 3-0.

Manager Pete Courlas' forces came right back. After Alvin Jones struck out, Dewaine Mitchell, Bryan Debose and Donald Grayson all coaxed walks.

Right-hander Morris appeared on the verge of getting out of trouble when he fanned Theron Liggons, but with one strike on Brian Ashcraft he balked home Mitchell.

Unnerved, he then unleashed a wild pitch to score Debose as Grayson scurried to third. The next pitch was in the dirt and the catcher blocked it.

It rolled just five feet away but it was enough for the speedy Grayson to race home and easily beat the tag with a slice for a 3-3 deadlock.

Rhoden Blanks Braves On 6 Hits

Raines' Homer In 13th Beats Giants

United Press International Now that Rick Rhoden has stopped trying to draw his pitches too fine he looks much better.

"He's been going 3-1 and 3-2 a lot and you can't keep doing that," Pittsburgh pitching coach Harvey Haddix said Friday night, after watching the righthander hurl the Pirates to a 6-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves. "When you are constantly behind the hitter you are constantly in trouble."

Rhoden apparently stopped trying to nip the corners and instead concentrated on throwing strikes. He fired a six-hitter and drove in two runs with a sixth-inning double.

He didn't allow a runner past second base in registering his third complete game and first shutout of the season. He struck out five and walked two. He also raised his batting average National League to .363 in achieving his seventh two-hit game of the season.

"I've been due to have a good streak sooner. or later. Hopefully it will be now," Rhoden said. "I feel like I've been letting the team

White Squeezes Brewers, 4-3

United Press International The Milwaukee Brewers thought they had their game with Kansas City locked up -

Frank White's suicide squeeze bunt delivered Jerry Martin from third base to capa four-run, ninth-inning rally Friday night and gave the Royals a 4-3 victory over the

Milwaukee had gotten back-to-back homers in the ninth from Gorman Thomas and Ben-Oglivie to take a 3-0 lead and victory was an almost certainty for Brewers starter Bob McClure, who had limited Kansas City to two hits over the first eight innings. "We are sailing along and all of a sudden it's bang, bang, bang, and that's it," Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn said, "... I don't know what happened." What happened was, U.L. Washington opened the ninth with a single and George Brett unloaded his 12th homer of the season to draw the Royals within one and chase McClure in favor of Rollie Fingers.

American League

Amos Otis greeted Fingers with a single and took second on a groundout by Hal McRae. Martin rapped another single to score Otis and took third when Willie Aikens followed with a single. White then dropped a perfect bunt up the first base line and Martin easily beat the throw to the plate to give Kansas City only its third victory in its last 12 games. Dan Quisenberry, despite allowing both Milwaukee homers, upped his record to 5-4.

Fingers fell to 5-6. "I always wondered when I was going to be the recipient of a miracle rally," Quisenberry

Seniors Lead 5-1 In Fourth Inning

The only game of the three that got under way was the Altamonte Seniors vs. West Oak Ridge in Eustis. Rain halted play in the top of the fourth inning with Altamonte holding a 5-1 lead behind the pitching of Van Golmont.

The remainder of the game in Eustis was played Saturday at 1 p.m. An Altamonte win would clinch the District 14 title. A loss to Oak Ridge would force a final game which would follow immediately after the first game.

Altamonte jumped on the scoreboard with three first-inning runs. Keith Wallace walked, stole second and went to third on a ground out.

Scott Underwood walked and stole second with Wallace holding third base. Derek Livernois snapped a post-season slump with a sharp single to left which chased home Wallace and Underwood for a 2-0 lead Livernois moved to second on the throw home, stole third and came home when the catcher's throw to third base went into left field for a 3-0 margin.

In the top of the second, the Seniors tacked on two more runs. After Steve Hutsell grounded out, Scott Morrissey walked. Alan Wing and Wallace were both hit by pitches to load the bases.

Rod Metz continued his hot tournament fourth inning Friday when the rains came. Play was resumed hitting with a single off the shortstop's

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Lee Elder's best competitive round in more than a year not only wasn't washed out Friday, he'll get four days' pay for three days work this weekend.

Elder, finishing before rain halted play, carded a 5-underpar 66 for a 4under 138 total after two rounds of the $350,000 PGA tournament at Kingsmill Golf Club.

After the second round is completed Saturday, the field will be cut to the low 70 and ties for a final 18-hole round Sunday, Tournament sponsor Anheuser-Busch Inc. will pay the entire purse, waiving the right to cut it by 25 percent for each round not played.

"We didn't want to miss our television slot on Sunday (2 to 4 p.m. EDT on NBC-TV) because we want this tournament to become established here at Kingsmill," said Orion Burkhardt, chairman of the tournament executive committee.

"We feel NBC should be able to televise the meaningful end of the tournament in the scheduled slot on Sunday. We also don't want to keep the players from winning prize money because of weather, something they can't control.

Jeff Gripper Makes Full Contact At Second Street Gym

By SAM COOK Herald Sports Editor

It's amazing the people you can meet at Sanford's Golden Lamb Restaurant. Take for example, Jeff Gripper. The 30-year-old Atlanta resident was in Sanford to work out for Saturday's Full-Contact Karate Welterweight Championship bout with Alvin Prouder. While breakfasting at the Golden Lamb, Gripper ran into Bruce Nelson, who just happens to run a karate studio. The two hit it off instantly. Gripper and a place to workout and a "live" punching Nelson had both. His Second Street (and Poplar Avenue) Gym is fully equipped for boxers or karate fighters and he had the live bait in former pugilist Victor "Taco" Perez.

And, for the past two weeks, Gripper has been beating on Perez and working

"myself into the best shape of my life." "Here's a guy who's champion," points out Perez, "and he's never been in shape. Jeff's going to knock out whoever he Perez should know. He developed a red nose and a black eye in Tuesday's workout, but still stayed with the champion pretty well in the boxing form of his workout.

"I just don't have enough sense to go down," laughed Taco, who's been keeping busy refereeing fights in Orlando and Tampa

While Perez didn't go down in 10 furious 2-minute rounds Tuesday, plenty of others have to the lightning feet and quick hands of Gripper.

His record lists 14 knockouts among the 27 victories, three losses and one tie. He won the title on Oct. 10, 1981 in Atlanta against Ernest Hart Jr.

Gripper, who reminds one a lot of Sugar Ray Leonard, became interested in Full Contact Karate Fighting in a rather unique way - he saw the movie "Chinese Connection" starring ex-karate great Bruce Lee.

"I watched that movie for eight months straight." remembers Gripper, who was stationed in Guam with the Marine Corps at the time. "That's all I wanted to do when I got out."

Now, though, Gripper has realized his dream of a championship in Full Contact Karate and desires to move on to other

"I want to open a karate studio and hopefully have a career in motion pictures," said the articulate Gripper, who is dickering with actor Issac Hayes about a possible martial arts production. "I've done a few commercials with the United Negro College Fund and the NAACP.

"I want to fight maybe another two years. I think I have two good years of 'animal' left in me," he laughed.

IN BRIEF

Sun Bank Buys Altamonte Shopping Center

Boulevard Plaza, an Altamonte Springs shopping center has been purchased by the Corporate Real Estate Fund of Sun Bank, N.A., according to Hans W. Tews, president.

The commercial complex was purchased for $1 million and is located at the intersection of Maitland Boulevard and State Road 436. It contains 15,786 square feet of leasable space and was developed by Shopping Center Development Corporation.

R. Julian Rogers, Sun Bank vice president and senior investment officer of the Corporate Real Estate Fund, said the purchase of the shopping center is a collective investment vehicle for employee pension, profitsharing and retirement accounts.

The fund invests in such Florida real estate as shopping centers, small office buildings, light industrial or office buildings, and multi-family dwellings. Rogers said these types of property have traditionally provided far more stable and greater returns than the bond or stock markets.

Atlantic Quarterly Report

Atlantic Bancorporation has announced income before securities transactions of $6,042,000, or $1.15 per share, for the second quarter of 1982. This represents an increase of 18.8 percent over 1981 second-quarter results of $5,086,000, or 97 cents per share. For the six months ended June 30, 1982, income before securities transactions was $11,758,000, or $2.24 per share, a 15.4 per cent improvement over the $10,191,000 or $1.94 per share, reported for the first six months of 1981.

B.J. Walker, president and chief executive Officer, attributed the improvement in earnings to a 23 percent rise in net interest income, resulting from an increased level of average earning assets of 27.6 percent.

The improvement in earnings was achieved despite an increase in the loan loss provision due to Atlantic's continued concern over the effects of the high interest rate environment and the uncertain state of the economy. The larger provision increased the reserve for loan losses as a percent of total loans outstanding to 1.45 percent at June 30, 1982, from 1.33 percent at June

Southeast Reports Profit

Southeast Banking Corporation has reported income before securities transactions for the second quarter ended June 30, of $11.4 million, or 66 cents per share, compared with $12.3 million, or 81 cents per share, for the second quarter a year ago.

Net income for the 1982 second quarter also was $11.4 million, or 66 cents per share, compared with $12.3 million, or 81 cents per share for the 1981 second quarter.

For the first half of 1982, Southeast's income before securities transactions was $19.9 million, or $1.16 per share, compared with $24.6 million, or $1.63 per share, earned in the same period last year. Net income also was $19.9 million, or $1.16 per share, for the first half of 1982, compared with $24.6 million, or $1.63 per share, reported for the same period last year.

"While Southeast's 1982 second quarter results are below the level reported in the same period last year, we experienced a significant 33 percent increase in income before securities transactions and a 34 percent increase in net income over the 1982 first quarter results," said Charles J. Zwick, chairman and chief executive officer of Southeast Banking Corporation.

U.S. Fishing Fleet Growth Uncertain

NEW YORK (UPI) — Six years after its creation, the 200-mile preferential fisheries zone in our coastal waters is not greatly benefitting American fishing fleets, says a new research report.

The study, prepared for FIND-SVP by Norma Zippin, concludes that foreign fishing fleets, despite the 200-mile law, are doing a great deal better than American fishermen in the coastal waters and will continue to do so unless there are a lot of changes.

This stems chiefly from the American public's consumption habits. Americans readily buy and eat only about 12 of the 500 species of fish found in American coastal and immediate offshore waters. Japanese, Russians and other Europeans will eat many varieties, so their fleets catch them.

Of course, American fishing craft are free to catch these underutilized varieties and export them, but there's a big stumbling block.

American fishing fleets are not governmentfunded as are nearly all the foreign fleets fishing in U.S. waters. Consequently, the American vessels generally are small and do not carry onboard processing and freezing equipment. Nor are there enough land-based U.S. fishfreezing and processing plants to support a hig fish export industry.

Meanwhile, catches of tuna and other kinds of fish Americans love are shrinking so much that 57 percent of all the edible fish consumed in the United States now is imported.

Miss Zippin said the 1976 law creating the 200-mile zone has benefitted the Pacific salmon fleet greatly but not much of the rest of the U.S. fishing business.

The Kennedy-Saltonstall law to promote development of U.S. fishing fleets and new processing plants for the underutilized species has not been implemented by government appropriations, she said.

fishing craft to be U.S. built also has hindered sea, either for export or consumption in the development. It makes the craft much more costly than foreign ships and since they generally are relatively small, they can't be fuel efficient. A cardinal rule in all ship operations is that the bigger a vessel is, the more fuel efficient it is by big margins.

Additionally, the price of fish generally in the United States is not presently low enough to enable fish to compete widely with meat and

The causes are not entirely economic, however, Miss Zippin said, "American fishermen are reluctant to stay at sea six months to a year at a time away from their families as the Japanese, Russians and other Europeans will do," she said.

She doesn't believe, therefore, that American fishing fleets can grow fast until there is more catching of the underutilized

An old federal law requiring all U.S. flag species and they are processed and frozen at United States. Most important of the underutilized species is Alaskan pollack. Others include Pacific flounder, Pacific cod, squid, Pacific mackerel, shark and mullet.

Miss Zippin said one interesting enterprise in the right direction is that of Nichibi Industries, Inc., of Bayou La Batre, Ala., which is making simulated king crab legs out of blocks of frozen Alaskan pollack that has been minced into what the Japanese call surimi — a sort of fish hamburger.

"The Japanese make more than a hundred edible products out of surimi, which can be made from almost any kind of fish and can be flavored to suit almost any taste," she explained.

But getting Americans to eat the underutilized species will take a lot of experimentation with processing and a lot of promotional work, Miss Zippin added.

U.S., Japan Can Be Partners In Computers

NEW YORK (UPI) - Americans, con-markets in which the American computer and cerned over Japan's huge strides forward in computers and semiconductors, should remember that Japan still has a tremendous need for American friendship and even partnership, says computer guru Charles Lecht.

For one thing, Lecht said, Japan lacks of natural resources.

The head of Advanced Computer Techniques of New York, and a prolific writer on the future opportunities and capabilities of the computer, Lecht raised the specter of Japanese emergence as an equal rival of the United States in computers as long as four vears ago.

He also for some years warned the U.S. government and U.S. industry against sharing technology with Japan, but he changed his mind about that after visiting Japan several times.

"We can trust the Japanese," he told United Press International. "In any case it's too late now to think about embargoing export of our high technology.

"I think our computer and advanced electronics industries can prosper in the years ahead only in partnership with the Japanese, who, it seems to me, are on the verge of a major and successful invasion of European electronics people long have enjoyed a big

Lecht told UPI it is primarily Americans that must be convinced of the need for partnership with Japan. "Our view of Japan still is colored to a substantial degree by the events of the first half of this century, but the Japanese have a clearer and more up-to-date view of us," he said.

The Japanese triumph in beating American manufacturers to the market with the potent new 64 K chip at prices the Americans cannot yet match has caused consternation in the U.S. semiconductor industry and among computer manufacturers.

This new chip has been called the most important development in 25 years in the electronics world. Even the biggest American makers of finished electronic products have become buyers of the new Japanese com-

Lecht said the whole world admires current Japanese technology and manufacturing, even the Chinese who suffered much more from Japanese imperialism in the past than the United States. He said Japan has been making huge strides in mainland China's markets in the past two decades.

SMH Appraisals Are Far Apart

There is a $1.8 million difference between the high and low appraisals of the Old Seminole Memorial Hospital. Perdue, Heid, Church, Smith and Weller, Inc., of Orlando, appraised the six parcels at $1,722,500. The firm appraised the hospital itself at $1.5 million, assuming it is used as a dormitory or adult living facility. They gave an appraisal of $105,000 for the parcel which has an old nursing home, suggesting that the parcel should be used for apartments. A $37,000 appraisal was given for the parcel housing the blood bank with a use as a professional office building.

The low appraisal, (negative) $321,460 was from Southeastern Appraisers of Winter Park. That appraisal was given with the suggestion the hospital be razed and single family housing be placed on the site. That would result in the $321,460 deficit. Southeastern put a $105,000 price tag on the land. The company gave a (negative) $86,460 appraisal to the entire six parcels. It suggested all the buildings be razed and the property be used for single family housing. That would result in the $86,460 deficit.

John Sauls Agency, of Sanford, put an appraisal of $851,955 on the six parcels. The firm appraised the hospital building at $500,000 if it is used for institutional purposes.

Israelis Bomb Beirut For Third Day In Row

United Press International

Israeli warplanes bombed PLO targets in west Beirut for the third straight day today just hours after artillery duels erupted in the southern suburbs of the Lebanese capital.

Lebanese security officials said the Israeli planes struck at 3 p.m., hitting Beirut's sport stadium, the Ramlet el Baid coastal road and the Bir Hassan area. Earlier, Israeli and Palestinian gunners fought artillery duels in Beirut's southern suburbs despite warnings Friday that Israel would retaliate in force against any PLO attacks. It was not immediately clear which side began the shelling. The Israeli air strike - the third straight day of aerial bombardments - came as U.S. envoy Philip Habib met in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia with King Faud as part of his four-nation shuttle in search of solution to the Lebanon standoff. Syria, in an earlier statement from Damascus, threatened to retaliate "with all weapons" against Israeli forces if tis troops in eastern Lebanon were fired on. The statement was in response to a similar Israeli statement Friday, warning Syria against

Dissidents Kidnap Group

HARARE, Zimbabwe (UPI) - A group of tourists, some of them American, was abducted in Zimbabwe's Matabeleland province by armed dissidents, diplomatic sources said today.

The multinational group of nine tourists was abducted Friday, on the road to Victoria Falls, a popular tourist attractions.

The two women in the party and the New Zealand born tour guide later were released, the sources said, and gave authorities a ransom note calling for the release of a former guerrilla commander loyal to ousted Cabinet Minister Joshua Nkomo.

The six men held by the dissidents are British, American and Australian nationals, the sources said. Zimbabwean security forces have set up a command post in the area to conduct a search for the missing men, who were not immediately identified.

Mary Dunn, right, founder of PACE School, Longwood, started the facility 10 years ago with 10 students and 10 desks that cost $2.50, 25 cents each. Today, the school, primarily for the learning disabled, has an enrollment of 100 students.

Educator Honored For 'Distinguished Community Services'

By DEE GATRELL

Herald Correspondent Mary Dunn is a modest woman who doesn't like being in the limelight. However, twice this year she's been in the limelight. In March she received a "Distinguished Alumni Award" from Stetson University in DeLand at the 1982 Homecoming Alumni Reunion, and again in May, she received a "Decoration of Honor for Community Service" from Rollins

College in Winter Park. Mrs. Dunn is the founder of PACE School in Longwood. PACE is a private, non-profit school for the learning disabled child whose needs are not being met in a traditional school.

PACE is the acronym for "Programs Adapted to Childrens Educability."

"This is my tenth year completed at PACE. We started it with an enrollment of 10 students and an investment of $2.50," Mrs. Dunn said. "One of the mothers bought 10 desks from a surplus store for 25 cents apiece."

The school began at St. Augustine Church Hall in Casselberry. The following year there were 34 students enrolled and the school moved to the First Presbyterian Church in Maitland, where it stayed until twoand one-half years ago.

"A little over two years ago we finally got enough money together to buy this property," Mrs. Dunn said. The property she refers to is two and one-half acres on Sand Lake Road. The school was a split level house that sits back off the road, maybe 110 feet, and is surrounded by a country atmosphere of rolling pasture and large, mature trees.

A wing was added and completed just before Easter of this year. The school received a grant from Central Florida Capital Funds Committee with the stipulation that the school match the funds.

Although the school is primarily for the learning disabled, Mrs. Dunn says they also take children "who for other reasons are behind in their school work, but have the potential for catching up with help." She says, "These children are just as worthy of saving as the other children."

Along with the regular classroom work, the school also offers motor movement classes. These classes are for the child who is awkward and confused about his movements. This helps to develop a child's gross motor skills and body awareness.

Before Mrs. Dunn became the director of PACE, she had taught school in Orange and Seminole counties. Later she became the remedial reading coordinator for Seminole County.

The school has 62 children enrolled in summer school, with 100 children enrolled for the coming fall semester. Mrs. Dunn's husband, William, is retired and now helps with clinical math (a one to one basis) at the

The Dunns are the parents of two sons and a daughter, and also have eight grandchildren.

Mrs. Dunn recently acquired an office all to herself and has purchased a desk she's very proud of. She says she plans on hanging her newly acquired awards on her walls to display. However modest she may be, she's very proud of her awards.

Duncan Scott, 8, Casselberry Cub Scout Pack 203, is off to a good start.

Gutter Regatta

There's nothing quite like a boat race to generate excitement during the hot summer days.

But not just any boat race.

On July 17, approximately 50 Cub Scouts, ages 8 through 10, comprising the growing Seminole District of Central Florida Council, Boy Scouts of America, participated in a Rain Gutter Regatta at the Silver Lake, Boy Scout Camp in Sanford.

Tiny boats made from kits by the boys under the direction of their parents, were propelled down the narrow rain gutters by "breath fuel" from the participants.

Preliminary races were held within the pack and winners proceeded on to the district race.

The fairly new summer event is gaining popularity. The boys can receive credit in his Wolf or Bear Book toward an achievement and also enjoy credit of participating in a sum-

Chairman Al Alexander, Pack 508, awarded trophies to the following: 8 year-olds, Billy Smith, Pack 508; first; Mike Jones, Pack 628, second; and Howard Moody, Pack 203, third. In the 9-year-old division winners were: Craig Deering, Pack 628, first; Scott Hill, Pack 203, second; and Lance Aycock, Pack 628, third.

Mother-In-Law's Warmth To Ex-Wife Steams No. 2

DEAR ABBY: What is the proper way to introduce one's ex-daughter-in-law? My husband, his mother and I were recently at a function when my husband's ex-wife (I'll call her Marge) walked in. My mother-in-law greeted Marge warmly, put her arm around her shoulder and proceeded to introduce her to everyone as "my daughter-inlaw." My husband said nothing at the time, but I could see that he was annoyed. I said nothing either, but I was steamed!

My husband and I have been married for seven years. Occasionally we run into Marge at weddings, funerals, etc., and if my mother-in-law is there too, she always falls all over Marge, referring to her as "my daughter-in-law." My husband has reminded his mother that Marge is no longer her daughter-in-law and to please quit introducing her that way, but his request has fallen on deaf ears.

What do you make of this, and how should we handle this irritating and awkward situation?

STEAMED DEAR STEAMED: You don't say how long your husband and Marge were married, but if it was a number of years, your mother-in-law may still have some strong emotional ties with her former daughter-in-

In any case, whether she's forgetful, insensitive or just plain spiteful, you can best handle the situation by ignoring it.

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years, and now I need help with a personal problem. I am an 85year-old widow, but my friends say I look 65. My husband and I lived in this town 61 years and had a host of friends. Since his death 14 years ago, when I have gone out, his male friends have been greeting me with a kiss!

Last Sunday, three of his friends kissed me on the cheek in the dining room of the country club with 200 people looking on! I am sure that each kiss was only a friendly gesture, but I do not like such a display of affection in public.

How can I put a stop to it to write an essay on the first without hurting the feelings of good friends?

LOVE SANS KISSES IN VIRGINIA

DEAR LOVE: Rejoice! To reject such well-intentioned gestures of affection would surely offend the kissers. What's wrong with letting the entire country club know that you are still considered a warm and kissable friend?

DEAR ABBY: "On the Spot," a 60-year-old college A.M., ORMOND BEACH, student, resented being asked FLA.

Skillfest Scholarship Winners

The first annual Skillfest Scholarship Competition for graduating seniors was sponsored by the Kappa Sigma Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. on July 11, at the Sanford Civic Center Annex, with Freddie Hudson, presiding. Robert B. Thomas Jr. served as the interviewer for the mock job interview.

High school graduates dressed appropriately for job interviews and displayed the kind of competitive spirit necessary to get a job.

Their behavioral skills included reciting a poem, exhibiting knowledge of interviewing skills, answering a current event question and explaining their career goals, and why they chose that specific area.

They displayed knowledge of the qualities a student must possess in order to succeed in college. They were rated by judges: Mrs. Brenda Ford, Speech Specialist-Instructor, Seminole Community College; Dr. Joan Sheppard, Coordinator of Cooperative Education, Seminole Community College; Elliot Smith, Coordinator of Seminole Youth Employment Program, Seminole County Board of Public Instruction; Mrs. Ruby D. Williams, English-Reading Instructor, Lake Mary High School; Stephen Wright, Professor in Humanities Division, Seminole Community College, and Miss Dorothy Webster, student at University of Central Florida, listed in Who's Who in Junior Colleges. Soror Juanita Harold was the monitor for the judges.

More than 150 were in attendence to witness the success of the first "Skillfest" and the winners of the "Skillfest Scholarships" were Stephanie Baker, first place; Lennie Sutton, second place; and Sentoria Burrell, third place.

Other highlights of the program were the scriptural meditations though creative movement presented by Mrs. Patricia Hitchman's group of young dancers.

They are Kchan, Kesha and Christopher Chambers, Demetria Petty, Renee Singleton, Vashaun Williams, Lisa Holt, Arlene Jones, Veronica Marion, Pameliu and Tomekia Petty and Genene Stallworth.

Mrs. Hitchman did a beautiful singing presentation of the "Lord's Prayer" and "You'll Never Walk Alone." Soror Barbara Chambers and Mrs. Sonya Cherry Thomas were Host and Hostesses were: Eric Johnson, Authur Gee Knight, Jr., Sylvester Wynn, Archie James, Cassandra Jackson, Wanda Clark, Rose Johnson, Sheryl Joseph, Talissa Thompson, Patrice Riggins and Brenda Manor.

By DAPHNE LITKE

Special To The Herald A few years ago when I first began collecting angels as a diversion from the frustrations of our hectic life, it did not occur to me that one day I would be writing this article, about these heavenly creatures.

I had, at first, only thought about the angels mention in the Bible, but I soon learned that this was not the only place to look for them. It's true, angels are mentioned quite frequently in both the Old and New Testaments, but the angels I have since learned about have been culled from many other sources outside the scrip-

"Revelations," from the New Testament has long been my favorite book, and a great fascination. Mainly, I believe because of its apocalyptic-imagery, and involvement with angels.

I leafed through the pages, and was arrested by chapter 8. verse 2: "And I saw the seven angels who stand before God;" And to them were given seven trumpets."

I wondered who are these seven holy ones, that stand before God? Has any Biblical scholar ever identified them? Are they of the Order of Seraphim, Cherubim or Principalities, Power? And are they the same seven angels who enjoy all privileges and eminence of the close proximity to the throne of "God" and glory? And why seven?

Were the seven planets the proto-type? Or did the nation derive from a well known chapter in Ezekiel 9: 2-11, which gives terrifying picture of six "men" seventh "clothed in linen" whom God summoned to Jerusalem, to slay without pity or mercy? Very challenging questions, even intimidating questions, that I felt should not go unanswered. And so I began my pursuit to further my knowledge regarding angels that I felt should be the best of my ability. Angels are powers which transcend the logic of our existence. Does it then follow that one is constrained to abandon logic in order to entertain angels?

questioned and answered to

I never stopped repeating to myself that I was pitting my personal and necessarily circumscribed experience, logic and belief (or non-belief) against some of the boldest and profoundest minds of alltimes - minds that have reshaped the world's thinking and emancipated it, to a degree, at any rate, from the bondage of superstition and

Still, I was averse to associating myself with opinions and creeds no matter how hallowed by time or tradition, or by whom-so-ever held that were plainly repugnant to common sense.

A professed belief in Angels would, inevitably, involve me in a belief in the supernatural, and that was not what I wished to be caught in.

I do conceive of the possibility of there being in dimensions and worlds other than our own powers and intelligences outside our present apprehension, and in this sense angels are not to be ruled out as a part of reality. Always remembering that we create what we believe. and I am prepared to say that if enough of us believe in angels, then angels can exist and archangel "Raziel" is

Are angels immortal? In the opinion of scholars, yes. But are angels eternal? No. God alone is eternal. Still the life span of angels is fairly long one, starting from the moment they were "willed into being" to the last crack of

And so this is how my club began to unlock realms never thought about or even existed, or suspected on earth or in heaven. So I keep trying to learn more as I continue with my collection of these gracious and heavenly

Some of our members have well over 1,000 of these beautiful creatures in their collections and many are displayed around Christmas on the Christmas tree. They come in all forms, musical and singing angels. I have harps flutes etc - even kissing angels and dancing

I don't have any special one that I collect. But I do wear a small angel pin on my shoulder most days, and I also have now a dainty teaspoon with an angel on top of the handle given to me as a gift by

> Also I have ceramic angels that I have made in my ceramic classes, "guardian" and one playing a harp, a shoe slipper with an angel on the toe, plus an angel riding a horse, and a little handmade fabric "Aboriginal" angel sent from Australia, a Hawaiian and Chinese one

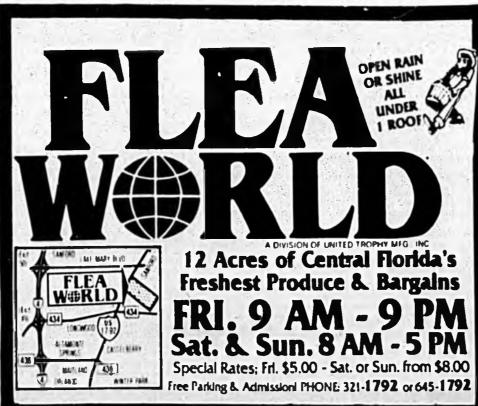

> Recently a little miniature boy and girl were added to the list of angels, somehow I've always thought of angels with lambs and harps but my chief of the Supreme quite a few playing violins, collection has all kinds of things with the angels.

> One of the most exciting things in my life was being asked by the Headquarters branch of "The Angel Collector's Club," to become their Florida State director and try to form a chapter of the Sanford area, which I did in 1980 in Lake Mary. We do not have any other chapters in Florida, so this is quite an honor for Lake Mary to be the very first to form a Florida > chapter. We now have over 300 members throughout the various chapters of the states and they range in ages from three to 93, representing 38 states, Canada, and Sweden and New Zealand.

Plans are underway for a huge convention in Dallas, Texas for 1983, Sept. 30 through Oct. 2.

Our chapter is called "Merry Angels Of the Sunshine State." Anyone who may wish further information about joining the chapter contact: president Mrs. Daphne Litke, 519 W. Plantation Blvd., Lake Mary, Fla. 32746. All new members are welcome.

Goffee, Tea, and Gornplasters

There aren't many of us left who remember Sixbey's General Store. It was more than a store; it was a gathering place, a news bureau, a bright spot in a boy's summer afternoon.

You would come in from the hot dusty street and the shaded store was cool. Immediately you encountered a tantalizing blend of scents - apples, licorice, spices and smoked ham. Grown-up conversation enhanced your teeling of excitement as they viewed and reviewed town happenings. You always took a long time to decide between a chocolate or a lemon drop, so that this exciting visit could be

Our town has changed since then. For those of us whose memories linger in Sixbey's Store, it hardly seems the same place.

Yet one thing's the same. At the corner of Elm and Main, St. Mark's steeple still points skyward. Man's need for God never changes. And the Church remains constant as it teaches the truths of God's love and presence.

The speaker for the occasion will be Rev. J.C. Shannon. The program will be held at the Progressive Church of our Lord Jesus Christ, 601 Pine Ave., Sanford. The public is invited to attend.

Family Night Supper Sunday

Vacation Bible School will be the theme of the Family Night Supper to begin at 6:30 p.m. this Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, Sanford. Crafts made by the school participants (pre-school through eighth grades) will be used to adorn the tables.

Other activities will include the awarding of certificates, singing and demonstrating what has been learned about Jesus and His Disciples, as well as being good followers.

New Hispanic Church Formed In Enterprise

On June 6, a small group of Hispanic Baptists from Deltona, Orange City and DeLand organized the Iglesia Bautista El Calvario (The Calvary Baptist Church, an independent, fundamental, premillenial congregation.

Two veteran missionary families will be helping in the bilingual ministry of this evangelistic church. The Rev. and Mrs. Otis Pinkston served in Mexico for 20 years and the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Long worked in Venezuela among the Warao Indians as well as the Spanish-speaking people.

These servants of the Lord have a great desire to share the gospel and their experiences with the residents of this area. The membership of the church is made up of people from several countries including Venezuela, Colombia, Cuba. Puerto Rico and the United States.

Sunday services begin at 1 p.m. with Bible classes for all ages in Spanish. Classes for children will also be held in English. The worship service begins at 2 p.m. The group meets at the First Baptist Church of Enterprise, 720 Lexington Ave.,

All those who wish to hear the fundamental truths of the Bible and worship in a friendly church are welcome to attend. If you need transportation or additional information please call: (904)789-4912 or (305)574-4957.

Jewish Scholars Complete Translation

Scriptures Project Takes 25 Years

After 25 years, a committee of Jewish scholars have completed work on a new translation of the Hebrew Scriptures - the first vernacular and modern translation of the Bible for Jews in 2,300 years.

The third and final volume of the project -The Writings, or, in Hebrew, Kethubim - has just been released by the Jewish Publication Society of America. The society earlier published The Torah, the first five books of the Bible, and later, The Prophets.

The Writings contains the books of Psalms, Proverbs, Job, The Song of Songs, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, and I and II Chronicles.

Among those contributing to the new translation was Chaim Potok, the best-selling Jewish novelist, who served for 16 years as secretary and project coordinator of the committee and unofficially acted as arbitrator in manners of style.

Professors Nahum Sarna of Brandeis University and Moshe Greenberg and Jonas Greenfield, both of Hebrew University in Israel, were the biblical scholars charged with the new translation.

Sunday, July 25, 1982-58

Sarna describes the new work as "the first translation direct from the Masoretic (original Hebrew) text into the vernacular by an organized commission of Jewish scholars since the Setuagint translation of the Torah into Greek completed in Alexandria during the third century before the Common Era (300 B.C.)."

Professor Harry Orlinsky, who first proposed the massive project 29 years ago, called the completed three volume version "the greatest scholarly event in the history of the Jewish community of America in the 20th century."

But it is not without its ecumenical dimensions as well.

"So pervasive has been the impact of this translation that Protestant and Catholics are revising their Bible in accordance with the philosophy of our Jewish translation," Orlinsky said.

Orlinsky, a major contributor to the first volume of the new Bible, the Torah translation published in 1963, was also the only non-Protestant to serve on the committee of 22 scholars who prepared the Revised Standard Version of Bible published by the National Council of Churches. That version is currently recognized among Christian scholars as the most scholarly and authoritative translation. A preface to the new volume underscores the ecumenical context of the translation: "The entire gamut of biblical interpretation, ancient and modern, Jewish and non-Jewish ' has been consulted, and whenever possible the results of modern study of the language and brought to bear on the biblical word."

Readers, both Jewish and Christian, are likely to find some strange and perhaps unsettling renderings of familiar passages.

The famous opening line of Ecclesiastes, for example, "Vanity of vanity ... all is vanity" in the Revised Standard Version, is translated in The Writings as "Utter futility ... all is Sarna admits it is a less literal translation but insists it is a truer rendering of the author's intention.

And in the 23rd Psalm — one of the most familiar of all biblical passages — the phrase "valley of the shadow of death" is now translated as "valley of deepest darkness."

The scholars said they sought to convey "something of the directness, the simplicity and the uniquely Israelite expression of piety that are so essential to the sublimity of the cultures of the ancient Near East have been Hebrew Bible."

Communicable Diseases Vs. Common Cup "Richard Dawson spreads

more bugs every week than a flu epidemic," writes one of my readers.

If you have ever seen "Family Feud" on TV, you know what she is referring to. Dawson, the program's host, plants a warm kiss on the mouth of every woman contestant on the nightly

The gals on the losing team also get a puckered-up goodbye kiss from Dawson before they leave the stage.

What got my correspondents spitting mad over Dawson' salivating was something about taking communion from the common cup which appeared in the May 7 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Assn.

Dr Jeffrey Harris of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control is quoted as saying, "I am aware of no studies which have associated transmission of any disease with the use of the common communion cup."

The doctor did go on to acknowledge that "Two recent studies have demonstrated the presence of bacteria on the surface of the silver chalice after it had been used in a communion service."

But not to worry, said the doctor. While it is "theoretically possible" to pick up contagious germs from the common cup, it probably doesn't happen.

wrote my correspondent. "If there are germs on the chalice, you can long enough for alcohol to catch them. Drinking from have any chemical disinthe common cup is un- fectant effect. sanitary-like kissing." Then Obviously this woman is my assumed name.

My mother-in-law always objected to my kissing my children. I suppose kissing may spread germs. But I didn't know that my motherin-law has any fewer colds than Richard Dawson or I, despite her antiseptic attitude.

And look at the fun she misses.

I come from a family where kissing is not confined just to parents and their children. Aunts, uncles, cousins, grandmothers and grandfathers all kissed each other. It was quite a ceremony on days like Thanksgiving when the clan got together.

What's more, in our family, boys went right on kissing their fathers even after they became adults. So it was pretty daring of me at the age of 12 to ask my father whether it would be all right for us to shake hands instead of kiss. He said sure, that was fine. But my mother told me years later that it broke his heart.

Saints And

A good rule-one which my correspondent would approve of, although I doubt it would satisfy her completelywould be for churches to suggest to people that they not take communion from the common cup when they have colds or other communicable

As to whether drinking from the common cup is any more dangerous than kissing, my father-who lived to be 86always drank from the common cup at communion.

He probably would have said that "God sterilizes the cup" and ignored the medical opinion. Or he may have felt that the wine sterilizes the cup-but doctors dispute this. They say that wine (14.5 percent alcohol in sacramental wine) cannot kill

Some others add that the "Not to worry indeed!" time (five seconds) elapsing woman between the use of the cup by different individuals is not

Experiments have showed she lit into Richard Dawson. that grapes and wine can kill viruses-at least in the testmother-in-law using an tube. Whether they can protect people against transmission of viruses hasn't been determined.

> Those who oppose the practice of everyone in church drinking from the common cup have come up with all kinds of alternatives-from the use of "shot glasses" passed to communicants on a tray) a practice followed in many Protestant churches) to the use of straws and plastic spoons which are made available to people as they approach the altar. Ugh!

Some congregations use intiction—dipping the bread or wafer in the common cup one Sunday and from individual "shot glasses" the other-keeping everybody

Christianity Is Only Heart Religion In The World

Farewell To Pounders Family

I am thinking about the religion of love as is revealed in these words of Jesus, "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." (John 14:21)

The words of Jesus make a message of sweetness and light. Their mission is to cure the world's heartaches and drive away shadows. He who keeps the commandments loves God and is loved by God. This does not mean that man's obedience buys up God's love. God is not mercenary and His love is not for sale. He loves whether we love or not.

This verse means discovery. The man who keeps this law has found the great secret that God is a friend.

Note these truths:

God wants our love. "Christianity is a heart religion. It is, in fact, the only heart Pastor's Corner religion in the world. It begins in the heart and moves up through the head, shaping all thought, and out through the hands, feet and lips, regulating all activity and inspiring all speech."

Jesus did not say, "Comprehend me;" nor did He say, "Adore me." He appealed to man's heart as He said, "Love me." Love is esssential to the completeness even of the divine life. We do not possess such life without loving God who first loved us.

It is love that builds heaven too. So God wants us to love him in order that we may seen, we love, in whom though now we discover that He loves us. For we, in see him not, yet believing, we rejoice."

Heavenly Deception'

He was the typical "All-American" boy-a senior in college, on the dean's honor list, president of his fraternity. He could have been the boy next door. He could have been your best friend. He could have been your son. He could have been...you! Evangelical Films' newest release, "Heavenly Deception," is the true story of Chris Elkins' journey from the college campus to the inner workings of the Unification Church. Although raised in a Christian family and attending church regularly, Chris never grew in his faith. He still had questions.

Then one day in college. Chris met a man, someone who seemed to have the answers; a man who directed him to a church of love, care, and concern-a church of unification. Chris became a "Moonie".

But it wasn't long before he sensed something wrong, a sort of deception, a Heavenly Deception, where the end justified the means. A standard that was promoted and encouraged within the Unification Church-from the kids selling flowers on the street corners all the way to the highest echelon.

"Heavenly Deception", a true story, will be presented at the First Assembly of God, Sanford, on Aug. 4, at 7 p.m.

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) -The Florida Legislature is facing its biggest turnover in 15 years, regardless of what happens in the elections.

At least 44 legislators - one fourth of the House and Senate - won't be back next year and that guarantees a high turnover.

Several legislators have decided to run for Congress or the Cabinet rather than seek reelection, so they will be replaced. Some House members are trying to move over to the Senate and several are fighting colleagues for a Senate seat.

But there is an uncommon element this year - reapportionment — and it is the reason for the turnover, All 40 senators are having to face the voters. And many legislators wound up in the same district with a fellow incumbent, so they will face each other trying to retain a seat.

At least nine of the 40 senators and 35 of the 120 House members will not return for the 1983 session, a report compiled by veteran House clerk Allen Morris and longtime assistant Senate secretary Tommy Burns shows.

That will be the most turnover since 1967, when reapportionment also was a critical factor. In a courtordered special election, 84 of 120 House members and 13 of 48 senators were replaced. (The Senate was reduced to 40 members during the 1972 reapportionment).

There probably will be more new faces than the guaranteed 44. Several incumbents, while not having to run against other legislators, face strong opponents. This is especially true in the Senate, where several members are the target of vengeance drives by Equal Rights Amendment forces.

As many as half the members of the Senate could | Clerk of the Circuit Court, be replaced although it is not | Seminote County, Florida in ac be replaced, although it is not likely the turnover rate will be quite that high.

While lots of freshmen will make up next year's Legislature, there probably will be little change in programs and policies.

Rep. Lee Moffitt of Tampa, who is to become House speaker in the November organizational session, has no re-election opponent. Neither does Lakeland Sen. Curtis A Child Peterson, the incoming Senate president.

Most of the House members who helped Speaker Ralph Haben run things will be back and will be part of the Moffitt administration. Barring an upset in this fall's elections, Panama City Sen. Dempsey Barron will be back and will continue to step in and run the Senate whenever he wants to.

Barron opponents believe there will be enough turnover so that Barron's power will be diluted, even though they concede he almost certainly will win re-election over Panama City businessman and civic leader Donald Crisp.

Of the 90 House incumbents seeking re-election, 21 are virtually assured of new terms because they had no opponent when qualifying ended Tuesday. They still could draw write-in opposition, but write-in campaigns rarely are successful.

The other 69 have opposition. Most are running in districts that were substantially redrawn through reapportionment and cut in size because of the Legislature's switch from multi-member to single-member districts. Thirty-three senators are running for re-election and eight have no opposition so far. State Rep. Carrie Meek of Miami probably has won election to a vacant Senate because she was the only candidate to qualify. She will become the first black state senator since Reconstruction Pensacola Sen. Tom Tobiassen lost his seat through reapportionment and north Florida's failure to keep up with the rest of the state in population growth. Tobiassen has decided to try to return to the House, where he resided until being elected to the Senate eight years ago.
