CARNES TO GET BRIEF DELAY IN SERVING TERM

Convicted Embezzler Will Be Allowed To Help Clear Affairs Of Mission Society

10 Days Granted To Finish Work

Former Secretary Of Board Will Spend Term In State Jail

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 6.—(INS)—Clinton S. Carnes, the ex-jailbird whose meteoric rise to the treasurability of the southern Baptist home mission board ended when he was accused of embezzling nearly $1,000,000 church funds, will not begin his sentence for a week or 10 days yet, if he learned today.

Although he was sentenced yesterday to serve from five to seven years in the state prison at Milledgeville after he entered a technical plea of guilty to one indictment charging him with $80,000 embezzlement, Carnes will spend the next week or more in the task of untangling the long skein of muddied-up affairs of the board when he disappears last Friday.

The amazing story of Carnes' life, which parafels anything in fiction, will have its endgame at Milledgeville State Prison, where the swave, silver-tongued embezzler who stole from church funds to finance the movie careers of two Atlanta girls, must spend from five to seven years.

Carnes was scheduled to go on trial here Feb. 12, but this was unexpectedly forestalled yesterday when state and defense counsel came to an agreement and permitted the gruffly-eustonian of mission funds to enter a concurrent verdict, carrying with it a sentence of from five to seven years.

This sentence was for one specific indictment charging Carnes with embezzlement of $80,000 funds, so the state inserted a provision which will thwart Carnes from attempting to make a pardon or parole under the penalty of having 19 other embezzlement indictments against him pressed.

It was disclosed that officials of the mission board approved of his sentence, as the board will receive $250,000 from Carnes' estate, and the officials were not anxious to incur the expense of prosecuting the case further.

Auto Drivers Must Have Tags Thursday

Sheriff Jim McClelland today warned Seminole County motorists that beginning tomorrow morning the drivers of every machine without a 1928 license tag will be subject to arrest. The Sheriff made public this announcement simultaneously with the issuance of instructions to his deputies to begin a rigid enforcement of this law on Thursday.

Sheriff McClelland said local motorists had ample time to procure their tags. He pointed to the fact that two extensions had been granted by state authorities and that his office had waited another week before taking steps to enforce the law.

Coolidges Express Thanks For Celery

President and Mrs. Coolidge are the only appreciative of Sanford's gift of three crates of choice celery, presented to them last Friday when they stopped briefly enroute to Mount Lake. The Sanford Chamber of Commerce, in whose name the celery was offered, is in receipt of a letter from Edward T. Clark, secretary to the President, expressing thanks for the gift. The communication was as follows: "The President has asked me to thank you on behalf of Mrs. Coolidge and himself for the fine celery presented to him by your organization. It will be thoroughly enjoyed and is a further evidence of the friendly and generous feelings of the people of Florida."

Clinchfield Party Is Taken On Tour Of Local Celery Delta

Sanford substantially came in for another boost yesterday upon the occasion of a visit by a party of officials of the Clinchfield Railroad Company. The visitors, who were escorted through the celery delta by a group of Chamber of Commerce representatives, were loud in their praise of the agricultural background which Sanford boasts and commented favorably upon the community's central location and close proximity to all of the leading cities of Florida.

Speaking of the celery industry, and the large income which the City derives from other vegetable products, L. H. Phetteplace, general manager of the Clinch Field road, said: "Sanford is one of the very few places in the southeast which has nothing to fear from the future as long as we can produce vegetables."

Refreshed after a good night's sleep, Captain Hawks and Grubb arose early this morning, and expressed themselves as pleased with the reception accorded them by aviation enthusiasts here, and the interest of the general public in their flight.

"Are you going to fly back to the Pacific Coast in an attempt to break your own record?" Captain Hawks was asked. "No," he replied. "I'm satisfied for the time being. What I wanted was a shot at the record."

In spite of storms more than half the way, Hawks in his Lockheed Vega air express, battered by about 37 minutes, the record established last August by Arthur Goode and the late Harry Tucker in another Lockheed, the Yankee Doodle.

The weather was perfect until Hawks and Grubb struck over Roswell, N. M., there, while speeding at almost three miles a minute, they ran into terrible winds, snow and intermittent rainstorms.

Up they climbed—over the storm area, and, sticking to their course, thundered onward. They went higher and higher, going up eight, 10, 12 and then 11,000 feet.

Above cloud peaks, and beneath a star lit sky, they soared.

In one great leap they shot over a thousand miles of storm, crossing a part of Texas, swinging north over the edges of Oklahoma and Missouri, skirted Illinois and Indiana, and then over Ohio where strong winds blew them south of their course.

"Shortly after daylight, the clouds broke and we came down to a lower altitude," said Hawks.

"A 'sleet storm developed and I noticed that some ice was forming on the wings. This did not make us feel any too comfortable. We headed over West Virginia, and then over the mountains of Pennsylvania.

"We couldn't talk to each other but we did pass messages through a hole down by my feet. Presently I knew I was over New Jersey and I opened the throttle a little

The tentative program for the annual dinner to be given Friday night by the Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Forrest Lake was made public today by Col. J. Holly, director. At the same time it was stated that 150 of the 250 available plates have already been reserved. The remainder of the plates are expected to be engaged tomorrow.

Clyde A. Byrd, president of the trade organization, will open the meeting and present R. J. Holly Sr. as toastmaster. Dr. E. D. Brownlee, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, will preside over the induction ceremony.

The beauty of Sanford and Seminole natural scenery will be exhibited to the world in a book, "Florida Beautiful," which will be published soon by Wallace Nutting, author and naturalist of Framingham, Mass.

At the request of Mr. Nutting, whose works are well known to many people here, the Chamber of Commerce has supplied the author with photographs, a several permanent representative of the Postal Telegraph, and J. H. Cutham, state superintendent of the Western Union.

The views were taken on the St. Johns River and nearby lakes and also include wooded scenes.

Sanford will also be represented in a new 16-page folder, which is shortly to be published by the State Department of Agriculture.

Local photographs have already been sent to Tallahassee for this purpose. E. J. Trotter, secretary of the Board, has announced.

A short recast will be given by a visiting official of each company. A short musical program will be given, followed by a brief talk by Mr. Trotter on Sanford and its activities. Mr. Shultz' address will conclude the program.

Among the visiting officials who will be present are George W. Shultz, publicity director for the Florida Power and Light Company; V. T. Price, district manager, and David Laird, state manager of the Southern Bell Telephone Company; H. A. McCrane, assistant general manager, James M. Sims, freight traffic manager, and H. B. Fuller, traveling passenger agent of the Atlantic Coast Line.

Private Jones

People sometimes tell stories so long and so well that they finally believe their yarns themselves. Such a man is Nicholas B. Jones, an eighty-seven year old Civil War veteran who lives in Oklahoma. He has a fascinating narration about Abraham Lincoln, often described as the savior of his country. And Private Jones of the Grand Army of the Republic ought to know whereof he speaks. Wasn't he alive at the time and didn't he know Honest Abe?

He says Lincoln fought a duel during the year he became president of the United States. He says that the duel was fought with muskets, although historians aver there was some little dispute with a man named Shields which was settled via the less dangerous route of broadswords. Lincoln arranged to meet Shields on the bank of a river. At dawn Lincoln rode up on horseback, dismounted, and stood back to back with his hated adversary.

At a given signal they began to walk away from each other with their guns on their shoulders. After twenty paces, they stopped, turned, and Shields fired. But he had flinched. The bullet went wild. Lincoln drew a careful bead. Not a muscle quivered. He squeezed the trigger. Shield's face turned ashen. He hesitated, then toppled. There was a splatter of scarlet on his shirt front directly over his heart.

But there was no burial, according to Private Jones. Spectators, at first chilled at the sight of death, soon began to laugh. Shields returned to life. There was no blood where the scarlet spot appeared on his shirt, only a mess of berry juice. Lincoln, confident of his opponent's weaknessness on the firing line, had loaded his own gun with mushy pokeberries, and his unerring aim had sent them home, only to be stopped by the thin cotton shirt of his opponent.

Private Jones tells this story as if he believed it. It is probably as true to him as any event of his own life. But he says it happened in 1861. Historians find that the Lincoln-Shields affair actually occurred in 1842. Private Jones says he was an eye-witness. If he was, he was an extremely youthful one. At the time he was only one year old.

But what does it matter? It makes a pretty good story, as good as the Cherry Tree.

Advertising Which Can't Be Bought

We doubt if many persons in Florida realize the tremendous amount of publicity this state is receiving at the present time. With such celebrities as Hoover, Smith, Dempsey, Stribling, Edison, Firestone, Babe Ruth and countless others wintering here, and with Coolidge, Lindbergh and most of the rest of the world here for at least short stays, almost every news article in northern papers must carry a Florida dateline. Here is just one of the innumerable editorials which have been written about events in Florida this winter, this one taken from the New York Herald Tribune:

"If young Calvin Coolidge, driving the cows home at quaking time in Plymouth, Vt., had been told that someday he, as President of the United States, would dedicate a bird sanctuary in Florida, he might have laughed almost as heartily at the thought of a bird sanctuary as at the idea that he would ever be President. Passenger pigeons still darkened the sky in the '70s, and bison still roamed the plains. To talk of game refuges and forest conservation would then have seemed a little like campaigning to save the sand on the seashore."

The "bird sanctuary" at Mountain Lake, Florida, may turn out to be more of a sanctuary for men than for birds. It would be very lovely if the cardinals and mockingbirds should learn to imitate the rich tones of Mr. Bok's carillon (if Mr. Coolidge stays long in Florida he will learn not to speak of "the song of the nightingale" there), but they may prefer to move away from such rivals and from the thousands of people who will come to visit the tower. Parks for birds and parks for men work best at long distances from each other. But it is none the less significant that a President of the United States made the long journey from Washington to dedicate a bird sanctuary, and in doing so enlightened his predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt.

"For it was Roosevelt who gave popularity to the idea of bird refuges. Fifty of our seventy bird refuges were established during his administration, and he was never too busy to take an active interest in photographs of a heron rookery or a flamingo colony which might be saved by an executive decision. The tide turned in his day, and in considerable degree because of his interest. The egret seemed doomed to early extinction; the flamingo's seemed to be a lost cause; the absurd great ibises and pelicans were dwindling in number annually when he set the precedent of Pelican Island, Florida, in 1903. To-day there are duck refuges in the Northwest, where the wildfowl breed in peace; tern islands off the New England coast, egret rookeries in the Southwest and bird colonies in the Louisiana swamps, all dedicated to birds, which would else have disappeared as the aggressive human population grew."

"And, despite the desperateness of some of the efforts—the Florida hurricane almost wiped out a flamingo colony, and every year the little colony of heath hens on Martha's Vineyard hangs in the balance—several species of birds which had become rare have begun to "come back." There will be hints in a century hence, in the national parks and bird refuges, of the wild life that stirred the pulses of the early travelers in America; and it is fitting that the President of the United States should give his endorsement to the movement to save them."

THE OKEECHOBEE PROJECT

FT. MYERS TROPICAL-NEWS

The long awaited formal report of the water department on the Lake Okeechobee flood control project was submitted to Congress by Gen. J. D. Jowett, chief engineer. The report recommends that $10,760,000 be spent on the improvement and recommends a division of the cost by which the Federal government would pay only $4,000,000 with the remainder to come from state taxes and with consequent benefits to navigation. If the whole improvement is made a flood control project the government can be called upon to assume the burden while if it is a navigation or reclamation project the policy of congress would be to require state participation as least a part of the cost.

The deposit will have to be made in the flood control committee of the house and the bill will be introduced in the Senate.

Honest words come from the ordinarily amiable Editor Leach of the Leesburg Commercial for that portion of Sanford which he charges, fails in fully honoring the notable civic accomplishment of Roland Dean and his Sanford Herald. "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," Editor Leach quotes, calling attention to the country wide recognition of Editor Dean's coup d'etat in Sanford last year. Our own impression is that the portion of Sanford which does not appreciate Roland Dean is so small that we risk no unpopularity at all in a hearty second to Editor Leach's motion.

To print and sweet to fight, the American Sugar Institute is said to be making no attempt in its present nation wide advertising campaign to combat the now famous tobacco advertisements which appeal to smokers to avoid sweets and smoke a cigarette instead.

What (if anything) is wrong with this sentence from a recent editorial in the Washington Post?

The Republican South wants higher duties on many products and is entitled to them?

On the basis of the following headings we nominate as the Playboy of the Western World—Calvin Coolidge: "President Coolidge Plays Hide and Seek with Secret Service Men in White House," President Coolidge, Engrossed in a Wild West Motion Picture, Keep Secretary Kellogg Waiting Twenty Minutes at Station, "Coolidge and Coffin do Comedy Dialogue Side by Side for Movieland."

What had you rather be than what you are now? "I can honestly say, with my hand on my heart," says Ruth Bryan Owen, "that there is not anything I would rather be than Congressman from the Fourth Congressional District of Florida."

Southern Democrats need not blush at all in subscribing to the plea of Congressman Wittigton of Mississippi for tariff protection of cotton. Burdened with no such high cost of living and producing as the American tariff system imposes on American cotton planters, Egypt and Peru are given an unfair advantage over these American planters in the American market. Protection against the evils of protection is what Congressmen want.

Senator Simon, high priest of tariff protection, is at Bell's.

Telling Mr. Hoover that this country needs a high tariff in order to maintain American wages at a scale which will make it possible for American wage-earners to pay the prices which the American high tariff causes. Not that he will express it in exactly these words.

We will thank Editor Lambright of the Tampa Tribune, who knows well the strange fads and art of Tampa politics these days, to express them for us in a mathematical formula, as Professor Einstein has done with his own almost equally difficult discoveries. Is Mayor McKay, for example, to be subtracted, divided added or multiplied? And what is the square root of Peter G. Knight?

provision we might just as well abandon hope of early protection for the inhabitants of that region. The state hasn't the money and there is no feasible way to raise it. If the Martin Everglades drainage plan had gone through, the state would have its ante in the pot and the government's $4,000,000 would be called for. But the Martin plan is apparently a dead issue and there is no hint from Tallahassee that the government has anything else in mind.

The deposit will have to be made in the flood control committee of the house and the bill will be introduced in the Senate.

It is in the human order?

In other words—we can abolish poverty forever and make hunger and want unknown things! In what former age could a man say that without being laughed at as visionary?

He continues:

"Our experiences are coming faster than ever before, both in our industrial world and in our domestic life. Many people see in these changes a world constantly growing worse. I do not believe this; I think we are headed in the right direction and that we should learn to interpret our new life rather than protest against it. We are entering a new era. Old landmarks have disappeared. Our new thinking and new doing are bringing us a new world, a new heaven and a new earth for which problems have been looking from time to time, so that we can make sure that the new age will shape itself so as to bring us those great immemorial. Much of it is here already. But I wonder if we see it."

Ford, for instance, believes more than any other man in century, that we should mold the world to fit our own desires.

"Our fathers thought that life

was hard, but we are beginning to see how preventable some of the hardships are," he writes. "We have come to believe that there is opportunity for economic distress

and for sudden financial

success."

STILL GOING THROUGH THE MOTIONS

VALUE OF A NEWSPAPER

SARASOTA HERALD

Someone has said that "the best guarantee of freedom and the protection of individual rights that has ever been devised by the people of any community is the publishing of a newspaper of intelligence and civic conscience." We were impressed recently with the statement on the editorial page of Editor and Publisher, the trade organ of the newspaper fraternity. At times we wonder whether people generally appreciate the extent of the service rendered by their newspapers. Newspapers, like many other invaluable agencies in modern life, are very largely taken as a matter of course. The public is accustomed to receiving their newspapers regularly and having the advantage of looking through them. They reflect little, if at all, upon the prodigious work involved in the production of their newspapers or the great service these papers render the communities in which they are published. To them, newspapers are simply newspapers.

The production of any issue of the Herald, and of other newspapers, involves the service of a score or more people who spend many hours during the day scouring the local community to gather the news, to write it up in good form, to let it up in type to prepare it for the printing press and print it, and then distribute it to the homes and offices of the city or send it through the mails to distant points. It is because this elaborate and extensive system of news gathering and printing is carried on that such a thing as a community atmosphere is created, a civic conscience is developed, public enterprise is stimulated, moral responsibility is enforced and good order preserved. Who would want to live in a community in which there was not in circulation a newspaper of intelligence and civic conscience?" It is a newspaper of its type the management of the Herald seeks to produce for the people of Sarasota, a newspaper that, while it brings to them the news of the world and keeps them informed upon matters of the earth and who are ready, when anything happens of interest to American readers to send it in. The Associated Press has its telegraph lines running everywhere and nothing occurs of interest that is not immediately sent over the wires to division headquarters and

THE VISION OF FORD

PALM BEACH POST

It is always interesting to hear what Henry Ford has to say about modern American civilization. Few men have influenced it as profoundly as he has; consequently his impressions of it and predictions about it are bound to be worth hearing.

We will thank Editor Lambright of the Tampa Tribune, who knows well the strange fads and art of Tampa politics these days, to express them for us in a mathematical formula, as Professor Einstein has done with his own almost equally difficult discoveries. Is Mayor McKay, for example, to be subtracted, divided added or multiplied? And what is the square root of Peter G. Knight?

The first carload of cabbage rolled from this section Tuesday and from all indications cabbage is going to be a money crop this year. Budget Distributing Company, handled the shipment, and also shipped a solid carload of cauliflower from their own farms.—Hastings Herald.

provision we might just as well abandon hope of early protection for the inhabitants of that region. The state hasn't the money and there is no feasible way to raise it. If the Martin Everglades drainage plan had gone through, the state would have its ante in the pot and the government's $4,000,000 would be called for. But the Martin plan is apparently a dead issue and there is no hint from Tallahassee that the government has anything else in mind.

The deposit will have to be made in the flood control committee of the house and the bill will be introduced in the Senate.

It is in the created order of things;

it is the human order?

In other words—we can abolish poverty forever and make hunger and want unknown things! In what former age could a man say that without being laughed at as visionary?

He continues:

"Our experiences are coming faster than ever before, both in our industrial world and in our domestic life. Many people see in these changes a world constantly growing worse. I do not believe this; I think we are headed in the right direction and that we should learn to interpret our new life rather than protest against it. We are entering a new era. Old landmarks have disappeared. Our new thinking and new doing are bringing us a new world, a new heaven and a new earth for which problems have been looking from time to time, so that we can make sure that the new age will shape itself so as to bring us those great immemorial. Much of it is here already. But I wonder if we see it."

Ford, for instance, believes more than any other man in century, that we should mold the world to fit our own desires.

"Our fathers thought that life

was hard, but we are beginning

to see how preventable some of

and for sudden financial

success."

JACKSONVILLE JOURNAL

It will be well to see just what the city has accomplished. From what we might be compelled to do more achievement Week of the chamber of commerce is present in Jacksonville in a show of merchants in type and in spoke, and the remarkable strides Jacksonville has made.

It is our guess that we all will be amazed. During the past few years Jacksonville has stepped forward as a city of speed, which we are not likely to match. The convention is to be held with tall buildings.

There have been hundreds of new buildings built. Streets have been made larger. Streets have been paved. New industries have started. All this has been done within a short space of time. If we were to go over we could take weeks to account the progress that we have made for ourselves. It is everybody's self-pride to minute to think he can bring to mind something which Jacksonville in recent years to fill a book.

The most of Achievement Week is to be a mirror to our mirror, often to see that well we are still farther in the road to national greatness and prosperity. It will fail in its purpose if it does not inspire patriotic sentiment a pride, and that such will be of little account if it is not translated into a renewed determination to enable the city to look back five years in 1934 to another period of expansion and growth that we are now reviewing.

One of the best times for the review is to see how well off one's community can become, giving itself to advancement by the same method.

It doesn't matter so much that we haven't done everything we might have, as it does that we have done something and are awake to the necessity and opportunity of doing still more.

Jacksonville is getting ready for another big one, not one of world-wide prices but a steady forward advance. We are starting by looking back at what we have done. From it we will gain the inspiration to push ahead.

Everybody can help Jacksonville during Achievement Week by taking the time to see how the city has grown. That is an urgent civic duty of the moment.

The year just closing has been very flighty. —Atlanta Constitution.

Carnival Of Sky To Be Gorgeous Event Climaxing Program

CHICAGO, Feb. 6—(INS)—The Carnival of the Sky Association of Chicago, organized under the auspices of the leading moving picture theaters throughout the United States, in connection with leading newspapers, will sponsor what promises to be one of the most entertaining events in aviation in 1929.

Early in March, each of about 120 cities will conduct a popularity contest among the young women of their locality. The contests will be organized in connection with the motion picture houses in each community. The winner of each local contest will represent her city at the Carnival of the Sky.

Fly To Carnival
In the early days of June, the winner from each city will fly by plane, accompanied by two ladies-in-waiting and a matron, to the Carnival city. Over sixty planes will be used in transporting the contestants and returning them to their homes.

Kansas City, Mo.; New Orleans, La.; Wichita, Kan.; St. Louis, and many other cities are now using consideration for the honor of entertaining the contestants during selection of a "Goddess of the Sky."

The pageant will be the of the largest ever held. It will be built around the life of Zeus, Greek god of Gods and his queen, Hera, Goddess of the Sky. It will continue for three days and nights, during which period every possible aeronautical activity will be introduced.

The first night's entertainment will present the old King Zeus and his Queen, who, after having won the favor of the Greeks, now stand ready to meet them. The second night, Air Transportation will replace the old Greek chariot; The Spirit of the Air Industry to replace old industrial methods; The Spirit of Radio to replace the old Courts of Justice and Herald; The Spirit of the Air Corps to replace the old methods of defense and the Spirit of Air Express to replace the old methods of transporting food and ammunition to the armies. These conversions will be shown in tableau form and in pantomime.

The old King Zeus is amazed at the great progress made in 3,000 years and decides, upon the recommendation of the Genius of Aviation, to abdicate his throne and allow a new King Zeus and a new Queen of the Sky to occupy it.

Genius New King
The Genius of Aviation, with his escort, then takes possession of the Kingdom of the sky and through the Spirit of Radio, announces to the fairest ladies of the land that a new Queen will be selected for the new King Zeus on the following night.

Upon receiving the word of the Genius of Aviation, through his courier, the Spirit of Radio, the airplanes carrying the contestants from the different cities will proceed to the carnival city arriving the following day. There they will be received by the court of the old King Zeus and a delegation of fifty nobles, and escorted to their hotel.

In the evening of this day the contestants will be entertained. The Genius of Aviation is in command of the Kingdom of the sky when the new King Zeus, a high scientist for his physical development, enters the Hall of Kings and demands his right to the throne. The admission of the new king thus takes place.

Contestants
The invited contestants from the different cities will be presented to the new King Zeus. Those that have been chosen Queen here will be the Queen here. Half of the contestants will be chosen Queen here.

The remaining contestants will be chosen Queen here. All the contestants will be presented to the new King Zeus.
