Gas Tax-McCollum Votes With Majority; Benefits Unclear

By DONNA ESTES

Herald Stall Writer U.S. Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte

Springs, was among the 236 members of the U.S. House of Representatives who voted for the 5-cent increase in gasoline taxes Monday and he had two major reasons for supporting the legislation.

"First, Florida, under this bill, will receive more money back from the tax than it pays in and secondly, Florida has interstate highways which must be completed," McCollum said.

He said that U.S. Secretary of Transportation Drew Lewis estimates the state of Florida will receive $1.42 in revenue for every dollar collected from the tax.

While the state estimates its motorists will pay about $250 million in new taxes because of the legislation, estimates of returns under the bills to the state are as high as $443 million.

Some portions of the federal money federal money returned compared to must be matched by the state on a 70

McCollum said in considering the federal gasoline tax increase, the pros outweighed the cons. And part of the additional revenues might be channeled by the state into meeting road needs in Seminole County.

State Starts Work To Widen S. R. 436

By MICHEAL BEHA Herald Staff Writer

The rush hour crawl along State Road 436 in Altamonte Springs will get worse before it gets better - it if gets better at all, a Florida Department of Transportation official said.

A project to construct two additional lanes on S.R. 436 between Boston Avenue and Wymore and Douglas Roads in Altamonte Springs is scheduled to begin in June 1963, DOT engineer Bill Gray told Seminole County commissioners Monday. Condemnation suits are now being prepared to acquire the additional right-of-way and construction should begin by Fall.

The project is expected to take from 18 months to 2 years to complete, Gray said. "We don't envy the contractor or the public when this thing gets started."

The work will continue through at least one $500,000 and construction costs will hit $4 Christmas shopping season, Gray said.

Gray said the additional lanes probably won't help solve the congestion on S.R. 436, which already has in excess of 50,000 vehicles per day in some sections. The additional lanes will increase capacity on the highway to nearly 40,000 vehicles per day.

When the additional lanes are constructed, drivers who have been using alternate routes will begin using the highway, Gray said. Gray is hopeful that two other projects in the planning stages for Seminole County will help to alleviate some of the traffic problems on Construction on Forest City Road and State Road 431 (soon to become part of State Road 434) is expected to be completed by 1968. Right-of-way acquisition will cost about million, Gray said. Construction of four lanes on Maitland Avenue West is expected to be completed by 1987. Rights-of-way will cost $3.2 million and construction is estimated to cost $5 million. Gray told commissioners that several minor construction projects to improve traffic flow at intersections are being funded this fiscal A new left-turn lane will be constructed on U.S. Highway 17-92 at Seminole Boulevard; the left-turn lane will be extended on U.S. 17-92 at S.R. 434; a dual left-turn lane will be made at S.R. 436 and Red Bug Lake Road and signal work and a left-turn lane are planned at State Road 46 and Park Avenue in Sanford. Gray said the overpass on S.R. 48 west of Sanford will be completed by January 1964. said.

The $2.5 million project will go over Seaboard

Coastline Railroad tracks. DOT also will begin work this year on $250,000 in electrical system improvements to the Lake Monroe bridge on U.S. 17-92. That work will cost $250,000 and is expected to take more than a year, Gray said.

Gray held out little hope for additional funds for new construction in Seminale County. The state has about $40 million in projects needed in Seminole County according to a county study. The same study showed construction needs in excess of $110 million for county highways.

Unless new funds are approved, most of the state's efforts will be directed at maintaining the existing network of highways, Gray said. "Seminole County is not in bad shape," he

Vote Turnout 'Steady' In Four Cities; Polls Open Till 7

Voters in Sanford, Lake Mary, Longwood and Casselberry were going to the polls this morning in a steady stream. And at the Lake Mary, Longwood and Casselberry polling places at the respective city halls, persons were in line before the 7 a.m. opening waiting to vote. Lake Mary City Clerk Connie Major said the turnout of voters was not as large as she expected this morning. By 8:45 a.m., some 86 persons had cast ballots.

She said she expects a large number of voters to cast their ballots after work from 4:30 p.m. until the polls close at 7 p.m. In Casselberry, Mayor Owen Sheppard said more than 400 voters had gone to the polls there by 8:45 a.m. While City Clerk Mary Hawthorne predicted a 28 percent turnout of the city's voters today, Sheppard said poll workers saw a heavier than expected turnout this morning and believe a 30 percent to 50 turnout will be recorded by the 7 p.m. polis closing.

If the County Commission refuses to compromise on the issue the county's seven cities have agreed to take the matter to court. In the past the County Commission has denied that double taxation exists.

Identical resolutions have been adopted by all seven cities now. ## Texas Executes Man; Is First By Injection Method

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (UPI) - Convicted killer Charlle Brooks prayed, told his girifriend "I love you" and died strapped to a hospital cart today in the Texas death chamber, the nation's first prisoner executed by injection and the first black put to death since capitol punishment was resumed in 1977. "I've never seen a person who died so peacefully," said Larry Sharreiff, an Islamic minister who shared Brooks' final hours. The execution ended a desperate day of appeals from Brooks' lawyers who lost their final plea only 14 minutes before the lethal dose of drugs was injected into Brooks's arm.

Brooks, 40, was convicted and sentenced to death for killing an auto mechanic during the theft of a used car in 1976. He was the sixth person put to death in the United States since executions were resumed with the death of Gary Gilmore before a Utah firing squad in 1977 and was the first person executed in Texas in 18 years.

Brooks, wearing his white prison uniform, was wheeled into the red brick execution chamber that once housed the state's electric chair shortly before midnight.

"His last words were "I love you" to his girliriend Vanessa Sapp, said Darrell White, the Walker County sheriff who was one of the Another witness, Terry Scott Bertling, editor of the Huntsville Item, describing Brooks, said, "He was rolled in and was looking back at his girlfriend, Vanessa Sapp. He recited some prayers.

"He looked at Vanessa and said, 'be strong," Mrs. Bertling sald.

An executioner working out of night of witnesses, administered a neutral saline solution through a tube to his right arm at 11:30 p.m. and 11:35 p.m., Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Rick Hartley said. The three lethal drugs were injected into the tube at 12:09 a.m.

IN BRIEF

House Countdown Near On MX Missile Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A massive administration campaign to save the MX missile roared to a climax today with President Reagan pleading for the House to approve production funds for the new intercontinental nuclear weapon.

Reagan and his top aides, warning an effective nuclear deterrent hangs in the balance, pushed hard for House approval today of $988 million in MX production funds contained in a $231 billion defense appropriations bill.

'They're going all out," said House GOP Leader Bob Michel. "There will be lobbying up to the last minute." He declined to predict the outcome of the vote, but foes of the project were hopeful of hanging on and dealing Reagan a major defense setback.

But even if the vote goes against the president, the MX would not necessarily be dead. Research and development work on the missile probably would continue and the Reagan administration could seek production funds again next year.

A similar measure was passed by the Senate Appropriations Committee and is now awaiting action by the full Senate. Both chambers must approve a measure for final passage.

Clark Listens To Music

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) - Small leaks in the lungs of artificial heart recipient Barney Clark have healed, allowing doctors to remove a drainage tube from his chest for the second time.

Doctors say Clark, 61, a retired Seattle-area dentist, is responding well to an exercise program designed to help him regain strength and fight off pneumonia and other post-operation problems.

Clark remained in serious but stable condition late Monday in a special recovery room at the University of Utah Medical Center where he received the first permanent artificial heart last Thursday.

Clark felt well enough Monday to listen to a recording of Handel's "Messiah" performed by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir. Nurses also changed the recovery room routine to give him more sleeping time.

"For the first few days, he never got more than a couple of hours sleep at a time," said intensive-care nurse Jane Stetich. She said Clark showed his appreciation for the extra sleep by starting to snore.

Zia Meets With Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Pakistani President Mohammad Zia ul-Haw, having set up a commission with the United States and resolved an arms dispute, today sought to further strengthen relations in a meeting with President Reagan.

Zia, on an eight-day visit to the United States, was to confer with Resgan at the White House, then have a lunch meeting with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. Afterward, he planned to hold meetings on Capitol Hill.

His meetings with administration officials were expected to focus on aspects of a $3.2 billion aid package Pakistan received from Reagan last year. A disagreement over part of that package was resolved Monday just hours after Zia arrived.

Without elaboration, the State Department said Pakistan was now natisfied with the first of six F-16 fighter jets it is to receive. Zia initially had refused to accept the planes because they lacked standard electronic gear.

The swirling Meramec River rose relentlessly today, sending another 2,000 Missouri residents fleeing devastating floodwaters that have wrecked 13,000 homes and turned cities into ghost towns.

Northern Illinois residents forced from their homes were warned the worst is not over.

The December rampage, triggered by record rains and tornadoes last week, has caused millions of dollars in damage across the Midwest and South. Sandbaggers in St. Louis gave up fighting the rising waters and the landmark Gateway Arch stood as a high water mark. The advancing Meramec washed away two days of work by hundreds of volunteers - including prison inmates - who tried to shore up the

"This is the worst flooding we have ever seen on this river," James White of the Office of Civil Preparedness said on ABC's Good Morning America.

In Arkansas, Gov. Frank White toured the tornado-scarred state and predicted damage would total hundreds of millions of dollars.

"This is devastating," White said as he toured a mobile home park south of Little Rock that was leveled by a tornado. "It's a lot worse than I had thought. And with the flooding, the damage is going to be in the hundreds of millions of dollars."

Arctic winds pushed south from the northern Plains Monday. Snow dotted Wyoming, Nebraska, Minnesota and Michigan and threatened to cover flooded areas in Illinois with ice.

Los Angeles International Airport was closed early today because of heavy fog, and the eastern heat wave cased as a cold front gradually moved into New England. New York's high of 68 Monday shattered a 1960 record.

Authorities said nearly 25,000 Missouri residents have been forced out of their homes, including 2,000 in the town of Arnold who were evacuated Monday when the Meremac burst through levees. Preliminary damages totaled at least $150 million.

At least 13,000 homes have been destroyed or damaged by the floods, including an estimated 10,000 in St. Louis County along the Meramec. Authorities and volunteers abandoned sandbagging operations along the river when they realized their efforts would be futile. The Meramec was expected to crest at a record 44 feet - about 20 feet above flood stage. Floods overflowed sandbag dikes in St. Louis as water crept up the steps of the city's landmark arch.

Volunteers threw sandbags on dikes and levees in the fight with the chilly waters of the bloated Illinois River to stem the worst flooding in the Peoria area in 40 years.

Gov. James R. Thompson told Good Morning America that he will declare six northern Illinois countles disaster areas and cautioned that the worst was not over.

"The Illinois River, which bisects our state, is cresting at record levels. It will roll south toward our friends in Missouri. The crest today 50 miles north of Peoria. Kaskaskia Island has been completely evacuated," he

Ted Kennedy, Wife Joan Agree On Divorce Terms

BARNSTABLE, Mass. (UPI) - Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and his wife, Joan, have agreed on a divorce settlement that proposes they share custody of their youngest child and split their property.

Mrs. Kennedy, 46, Monday disclosed terms. of the settlement submitted in the Family and Probate Court of Barnstable County. She described them as "very generous." The divorce will be official in one year, ending their now 24-year marriage.

The proposed settlement was announced nearly a year after they announced plans to seek a divorce and, five days after Kennedy, 50, citing the "painful" divorce and obligations to his three children, said he would not run for president in 1984.

A statement was issued by Mrs. Kennedy through her New York attorneys saying she and her husband would share custody of their son Patrick, 15. There was no mention of the couple's other two children, Teddy Jr., 21, and Kara, 22, presumably because they legally are adults. Mrs. Kennedy said she will receive an spartment and the family's residence in Hyannisport, as well as child support, an

She said she and the senator appeared

"Because the agreement is before the court for approval and because the financial arrangements made between the senator and myself should, in my view, be a private family matter, I believe it would be inappropriate to disclose the specific terms," Mrs. Kennedy said. "However, I should acknowledge the provisions we have agreed upon are very

"Finally, I would like to say I share with my husband a strong sense of dedication to our children who have been the greatest joy of both our lives," she said.

"Their well-being, happiness and fulfillment will be our common bond."

Kennedy, in announcing last week he would not seek the presidency in 1964, said the pending divorce was putting pressure on his family he did not want compounded by a presidential campaign.

Personal problems have long haunted Kennedy's political career - most notably the car accident at Chappaquiddick on July 18, 1969, that claimed the life of aide Mary Jo

Sea World Announces $100 Million Expansion

ORLANDO (UPI) — Sea World officials have announced a $100 million expansion project that will include a marine mammal stadium and research complex, a family entertainment center and an $80 million luxury hotel.

John Rutherford, a spokesman for the marine park west of Orlando, said Monday the 780-room hotel and $13.5 million whale show stadium are scheduled for completion in mid-1984.

The hotel will be built on a 21-acre site directly across from the facility.

All other projects, including a $2 million family entertainment center called Nautilus Theatre and a $2 million renovation of an existing theater, will be completed in early to mid-1983, said Rutherford.

7 Die In Auto Crash

WEST MELBOURNE (UPI) — Seven people died when a sleepy 17-year-old motorist with "night driving syndrome" apparently lost his bearings and plowed headlong into a parked tractor-trailer truck, police said.

Marty Holmes, of Townsend, Ga., died in the crash, along with his 26-year-old brother Edward, 24-year-old Barbara Barrett of Miami, and four of her children, Kenyondar Barrett, 7, August Nelson, 6, Edward Thompson, 112, and Calvin Thompson, six months.

Kenyondar's twin brother Kenyon, the only survivor of the crash, was rushed to Holmes Regional Medical Center in Melbourne, where he was listed in "extremely critical" condition.

The accident occurred shortly after 1:30 a.m. when Marty Holmes apparently fell into a trance-like state known as "night driving syndrome — when a driver becomes drowsy, half asleep and he locks onto a set of lights ahead of him," said Lt. W.R. Stringfield of the Florida Highway Patrol.

'Weekend Rapist' Gets 40-Year Sentence

By TENI YARBOROUGH
Herald Staff Writer

An Orlando man dubbed by police as the "weekend rapist", who is suspected of committing numerous burglaries in Seminole and Orange counties has begun serving a 40-year prison sentence after a Seminole circuit judge agreed with prosecutors that he is a habitual criminal offender.

Allen Leon Frazier, 34, was sentenced to 40 years in prison by Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor Monday. Frazier was convicted in October of burglary and grand theft after Theresa Nursey told Altamonte Springs police that she woke up and saw a man in her apartment at 617 San Sebastian Court, near that city. The thief stole $2,500 worth of jewelry from her home on April 26 during the burglary.

Orange County deputies later notified Altamonte Springs police that they had arrested Frazier and that numerous pieces of suspected stolen jewelry were found in his possession. Ms. Nursey later testified that some of the items found by Orange County depties were stolen from her home. "I'm pretty excited about the ruling," prosecutor Steve Brady said. "We had asked that the judge sentence him as a habitual offender which would allow the normal, maximum prison sentence he could have received, to be doubled. The judge agreed with us and sentenced Frazier to 40 years."

Brady said Frazier has previously been convicted of charges including burglary, larceny and escape. He has also been arrested on charges of burglary, larceny, sexual assault and a rape charge that was dismissed for lack of evidence, records show

Curtis R. Palmer, 61, of 212 Royal Oak Circle told deputies someone entered his home through a bedroom window, searched the rooms, ate the pickles and drank the orange juice then fled with the items.

Among those items reported stolen were .38 caliber ammunition, a pocket watch, a wrist watch, two guns, two gold chains, stick pins, silver dollars, a can of coins, coin books and a pen and pencil set, deputies said.

Eagle Football Player Sentenced

A Philadelphia Eagles football player has been sentenced to 90 days in jail and one year probation after pleading guilty to battery of a Sanford woman.

John Henry Anderson, 27, of 95 Castle Brewer Court pleaded guilty July 6 to battery against his girlfriend, Willie Bell Cotton, 18, of Lake Monroe Trail in Lake Monroe on April 11, prosecutors said. A charge of kidnapping was dropped, prosecutors added.

Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor Monday sentenced Anderson, who is on the injured player reserve list with the professional football team, to 90 days in jail, although suspending 75 days of the jail term, and ordered him to be placed on one year's probation. Anderson, was arrested in April after Miss Cotton told police she was taken by Anderson from her sister's home at 21 Lake Monroe Trail in Sanford then dragged across railroad tracks and through a wooded area to an apartment at 95 Castle Brewer Court. At the apartment, Anderson hit her in the face, injurying her nose and also threatened her with a knife and gun, Miss Cotton said.

threatened her with a knife and gun, Miss Cotton said.

Later Miss Cotton told Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor she went with Anderson willingly but that she did not give him permission to hit her. Subsequently, prosecutors dropped the hidnerson with safe.

Prosecutors said they had no choice but to drop the kidnapping charge after Miss Cotton admitted to leaving the apartment willingly with Anderson, although witnesses testified Miss Cotton was dragged "screaming and howling" from the home.

Prosecutors charged that Anderson came to the Lake Monroe Terrace apartment and that after being refused entry broke into the home by tearing a screen off of a bedroom window. Once inside, Miss Cotton tried to call police on the telephone but was prevented from doing so by Anderson. Anderson then dragged her from the home, dragged her through a wooded area to an apartment at Castle Brewer Court where he assaulted and threatened her with a knife and gun, prosecutors said.

The victim's mother went to the Castle Brewer Court apartment and demanded that her daughter be set free, prosecutors said. Miss Cotton was allowed to leave the apartment and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

Anderson, who attended Seminole High School, played college football for Bethune-Cookman College. He later attended the University of Central Florida from 1930 to 1931 but was ineligible to play football there because of his prior participation in the sport at Bethune-Cookman College.

Pursuing Probe Of 'Yellow Rain'

It could only happen in the wonderful world of the United Nations. A Russian member of the U.N. Secretariat has been put in charge of an investigation of the "yellow rain" reports involving the Russians and their allies.

Not surprisingly, the U.N. investigation has so far produced no substantive report. Another report is due by the end of December. We are not hopeful of any significant findings.

Meanwhile, Secretary of State George P. Shultz has issued a 12-page special report to Congress and the United Nations on chemical warfare in Southeast Asia and Afghanistan.

It is a follow-up on the 32-page special report on the same subject which was issued in March by former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

These U.S. reports are detailed. They are not mere unsubstantiated charges. Dates and places of particular incidents involving the use of poisons

But the Soviet Union calls the reports a hoax produced by a State Department propaganda machine which circulates lies and slanders. None of this, says Russia, will make one forget the consequences of the "orange rain" of U.S.-made dioxin which really fell onto Southeast Asia.

A report filed by the U.N. investigation team last year said it was "unable to reach a final conclusion as to whether or not chemical warfare agents had been used." The General Assembly ordered the investigation to continue.

The U.N. team has dutifully complied, but it will be a miracle if they find any conclusive evidence, so cautiously have the team members proceeded.

A big part of the problem is that the warfare is occurring in combat areas where the U.N. investigators are not welcome. They cannot make an on-the-spot survey without official permission. Such permission is never going to be granted by the Vietnamese and their puppets in Laos and Cambodia or by the Afghan puppets of the Soviet Union in Afghanistan.

It is hard to conduct a scientific investigation from a distance. There is always a question about the reliability of secondhand evidence. It could be tampered with, somewhere between the site where it is found and the site where it is turned over to investigators. The evidence should be collected at the scene by the U.N. experts themselves. But that is impossible. So there will continue to be doubts and arguments.

The poisons involved include mycotoxins derived from molds that frequently invade hay and grain. Are these chemical weapons, outlawed by the Geneva Protocol of 1925, to which all major nations are now parties? Or are they biological weapons, outlawed by the Biological Weapons Convention of 1972? In either case, their use as weapons of war is clearly a violation of international law and therefore a matter which should be of concern to the United Nations.

Is the Soviet Union actually using sophisticated poisons against the Afghan rebels and furnishing such poisons to their Vietnam allies for use in Southeast Asia? The suggestion is offensive to common decency and to our notion of civilized behavior. Yet we must not turn away on that account. We must be realistic, seek the facts and face them, straight on.

The United Nations should be pressed to continue and intensify its official investigation. The investigation should be put in the hands of independent scientists who are impartial and have no ties to either the United States or Russia.

But, no matter what the U.N. does or fails to do, the United States, in any case, must pursue the matter vigorously on its own, seek the best evidence, strive for independent scientific review and publish findings as they accumulate.

Death Dictator

By JANE CASSELBERRY

By JOHN P. CREGAN

(Editor's Note: John P. Cregan is a graduate of the Institute for Soviet and Eastern Studies, John Carroll University, Cleveland, and a former aide to the late John Ashbrook, Republican Congressman from Ohio.)

Those who put out shingles advertising their credentials as Kremlinologists were long prepared for the expected boom in business. The obituaries that had gathered dust in the files of Western communication centers were ready at a moment's notice when the announcement of Brezhnev's death came. The faded Soviet ruler had for years staved off the unavoidable in that peculiarly dictatorial manner - of Mao and Tito and Franco. In the end, the years of speculation that preceded Brezhnev's death simply gave way to further speculation. Perhaps the only thing more foolish than the hope for answers, were the questions themselves.

Would the successor be hardline or moderate? Reformer or conservative? Enlightened or insecure? How would the United States respond? And more incredibly. how could we influence the new leadership's course? They were familiar questions. When Lenin died, the West hoped for a reformer. They got one in Stalin. During World War II. Stalin became "Uncle Joe" whose troops would help defeat Hitler; whose troops have never left the Europe they "liberated." After Khruschev denounced Stalin as a murderer, the "Thaw" was heralded - and the "Wall" was bullt.

The new Soviet party chief, Mr. Andropov, is exciting those analysts in the West whose speculations are based more in hope than in history. That Andropov reads the New York Times and Jacqueline Susan novels is an indication to some that the new Soviet boss may be a "closet liberal," and an innovator. In his spare time he ruled for 15 years as head of the KGB, instituting such innovative concepts as sending dissident intellectuals to insane asylums.

In a sense it is natural for Western analysts to be fascinated with the human characteristics of those who control Soviet society. It is fascinating, but of little help in formulating policy. As the Czechoslovak experience so brutally informed, there is no such thing as Communism with a human face. The Brezhnev who took Richard Nixon on a joy ride in his new Lincoln at Camp David was not the same Brezhnev whose Vietnamese proxies would use poison gas in Cambodia. Brezhnev the man was motivated by human caprice; Brezhnev the communist was compelled by Leninist dictate.

Harrison Sallsbury, the former Moscow correspondent for the New York Times correctly pointed out recently the severe limits to which even the most intelligent bureaucrat can "change the ground rules of communist politics." The critical thing to keep in mind in evaluating Mr. Andropov is that the new Soviet President is less of a successor than a survivor. As one thoughtful commentator has observed, there are no "hawks" or "doves" in the Soviet leadership, no liberals or conservatives.

Bomb And The Bishops

NEW YORK (NEA) — America's Roman Catholic bishops are being edged into unfamiliar and dangerous territory by the draft pastoral letter on nuclear weapons that is now being circulated among them and which they may formally approve next May. Liberals who have lately been concerned that the Moral Majority is endangering the constitutional separation of church and state have fatien unaccountably silent before this proposed massive intervention in defense affairs on the part of the bishops - for the good if not terribly logical reason that they agree with the draft letter.

My own position is the reverse, and rather like Voltaire's: I disagree profoundly with the letter, but see no constitutional problem with it whatever. Both the bishops and Jerry Falwell have a perfect right, perhaps even an obligation, to speak out on public issues that are of moral concern to them as Christians. What perturbs me about the letter is what it says - and, far worse, what it leaves unsaid.

The letter's four specific recommendations are comparatively unobjectionable: "support for immediate, bilateral verifiable agreements to halt the testing, production, and deployment of new strategic systems;" "support for negotiated bilateral deep cuts in the arsenals of both superpowers;" "support for a Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty:" and "removal by all parties of nuclear weapons from border areas and the strengthening of command and control over tactical nuclear weapons."

The chief problem with these proposals is getting the Soviet Union to agree with them. President Reagan must be sorely tempted to appoint Archbishop Bernardin as a special envoy to go to Moscow and negotiate the removal by the Soviets of the 200 nuclearequipped intermediate-range SS-20's they have deployed in the border areas of their satellite states. (The Western response — the Pershing missiles — won't be deployed for another year.) There is also the difficulty that one of the bishop's proposals - "verifiable agreements to halt the ... production ... of new strategic systems" - is beyond the capacity of modern man to achieve, unless the bishops know something about verification procedures that Washington doesn't know. More disturbing, however, are some of the hints tossed out in other sections of the letter. The United States, for example, is called on "to take some independent initiatives, beyond those already taken," to get mutual arms reductions rolling. As the last four words quoted concede, the United States has already repeatedly made unilateral gestures in the direction of arms reduction, and the only Soviet response has been an immense buildup of their warmaking power.

Again, the draft letter sharply condemns "a form of anti-Sovietism which fails to grasp the central danger of a superpower rivalry ... and the common interest both states have in never using nuclear weapons." This seems to be saying that any interpretation of Soviet motives which concludes that the Soviet Union will, if necessary, use nuclear war, or the threat of such a war, to achieve Soviet objectives is "a form of anti-Sovietism" and an unacceptable form at that. But what if such an interpretation is the correct one? Here we are very close to the heart of the problem. Although the draft letter expressly eschews unilateral disarmament ("we do not advocate a policy of unilateral disarmament"), it buries that assertion in a dependent clause of a sentence about something else, while the unstated implications of certain parts of the letter seem to point inescapably in that direction.

For example, directly addressing workers in defense industries, the bishops acknowledge the possibility that they may someday conclude (although they haven't done so yet) "that even the temporary possession of nuclear weapons may no longer be morally tolerated." What would such a conclusion amount to, if not a call for unilateral disarmament?

If that is what is on the bishops' minds, they have an obligation to say so frankly. And if they are not prepared to go that far, then it seems to me that they are equally obliged to acknowledge that free peoples have a right to defend themselves with the weapons that freedom's enemies are preparing to use

On The GOP And Insensitivity

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (NEA) - If President Reagan had been present during an extraordinary meeting of the Republican Governors Association here last month, he might have been spared the humiliation he endured less than two weeks later.

"Republicans do not depict an attitude of caring for the average person," Washington Gov. John Spellman told his colleagues during the RGA's annual conference in mid-November.

"We, as Republicans, have an image we do not deserve," complained Oregon Gov. Victor Atiyeh. But Republican campaign consultant John Deardourff warned the GOP state executives that good cosmetics cannot disguise bad policy.

"We have a very serious perception problem among blacks, among the poor and among women," Deardourss reportedly told the governors at a private breakfast meeting. "But the reality has to change before the perceptions change."

It's not surprising that there was considerable hand wringing and self-flagellation at that closed-door session - characterized by Illinois Gov. James Thompson as "a cleansing of soul" - especially because it was held in the wake of an election in which the GOP suffered considerable losses. But the extent to which the frustrated

Republican governors also engaged in a protracted round of very candid soulsearching at an ensuing public session was highly unusual - and certainly should have been noted at the White House.

None of the participants was more outspoken than South Dakota Gov. William J. Janklow. "Every day, somebody (in the GOP) is coming up with a new screwball plan to scare the hell out of everybody," he complained.

"If I was an elderly person dependent on Social Security to live," he added, "I'd be scared to death at the way this rhetoric is flying around from the Republican Party."

The governors had barely enough time to unback their suitcases after returning to their respective state capitals when Reagan's staff produced yet another "new screwball plan to scare the hell out of everybody" - a proposal to tax the meager unemployment compensation benefits received by jobless workers.

The current ceiling of $12,000 allowed in annual untaxed benefits might be too "lucrative" for some people, explained one callous White House aide. Increased taxation would "make it less attractive" to be unemployed, said another.

That indefensible scheme was scrapped within hours after it was unveiled, amid defensive explanations that it was only a tentative formulation and that the president had no personal knowledge of it.

But such concepts are not conceived and developed in a vacuum. In this case, the idea came from a White House with a 22-month record of insensitivity to the needs, hopes and aspirations of not only the nation's underclass but also its working poor and its middleincome citizens.

Zia Expected To Be Grilled On Cruelty

WASHINGTON - Pakistan's President Muhammed Zia ul-Haq will face some tough questioning on his military regime's dismal human-rights record when he meets with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today. As the overseer of billions in aid to Pakistan, the committee is entitled to some answers.

One subject that's sure to come up is the shocking case of Nusrat Bhutto. She is the seriously ill widow of Zia's political rival. Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, whom he had executed in 1979 after a mock trial on a charge of conspiracy to murder.

Mrs. Bhutto is in a private German hospital, awaiting the results of tests to determine if she has lung cancer, as her Pakistani doctors feared. After repeated appeals from various governments, including the United States, Zia finally let Mrs. Bhutto leave Pakistan last month for medical treatment. I am pleased that my report on her plight last October may have played a part in Zia's decision.

Mrs. Bhutto is an angry, embittered woman. It's obvious that Zia's years of vengeful persecution contributed to her present poor health. My associate Lucette Lagnado tracked Mrs. Bhutto down in a Munich hotel and spoke to her by phone.

"I don't think Zia had any intention of letting me leave," she said. "I am thankful for your column. It put pressure on him."

Mrs. Bhutto described her life since her husband's execution as sheer hell. Why didn't she flee the country when she had the chance after her husband's death? "I made a vow to Mr. Bhutto," the widow explained. "I said, 'I shall not rest until I prove that you are innocent.' I promised to continue with the struggle."

The decision to stay and speak out against Zia's dictatorship cost Mrs. Bhutto dearly. Security police followed her every move. "I sometimes had two police cars, sometimes one, watching me," she said. She came to recognize the "little blue van" that trailed her everywhere. Her phones were tapped.

Even when she checked into a hospital in February 1981, Zia's goons stationed themselves outside her room. Suffering from bronchial spasms, painitations and difficulty in breathing, Mrs. Bhutto was given various tests and sent home with instructions to return a week later for a biopsy and bron-

Instead, she was arrested the night she got home from the hospital.

For five months, Mrs. Bhutto was kept in a dark, filthy cell in the Karachi Central Jail. An open sewer ran through the room. She felt sick all the time and often fainted. "I was always very tired," she recalled. "I couldn't eat. The cell was terrible." When she was finally released from solitary confinement, she was pitifully frail. Her blood count was dangerously low. She had to reenter the hospital. Her doctors began to suspect she had lung cancer.

State Department sources said Mrs. Bhutto's doctors put off telling her of their fears; when they finally did earlier this year, they told her she would have to go abroad for proper diagnosis and treatment.

Mrs. Bhutto wrote to the interior minister requesting a passport. "It took two-and-a-half months for him to reply," she said. The authorities continued to stall; Mrs. Bhutto's condition continued to deteriorate. Finally, after International pressure. Zia allowed a medical board to examine her. The experts took blood tests and X-rays, and confirmed that a lesion in her left lung was growing. The board urged that she be allowed to leave the country.

Though Mrs. Bhutto is at last free and getting proper medical treatment, her daughter remains at Zia's mercy. As politically active as her parents, Benazir Bhutto was imprisoned by the regime and is now under house arrest.

Gen. Zia will find that the Foreign Relations Committee has more than just questions for him today. Sen. Clalborne Pell, D-R.I., a member of the committee, previously authored an amendment to the Pakistani aid bill specifically tying further largesse to improvement in the regime's human-rights record. In the past, however, Zia has been disdainful to the point of arrogance when the United States tries to attach conditions to its

Every Buddy Wants Bell

HONOLULU (UPI) - If you had to pick out the prime plum here in this pineapple paradise, the one ballplayer everyone would love to have, and has a chance to get, it would have to be Buddy

Why wouldn't everyone want him? He's one of those consistent yearafter-year producers, a clean-cut All-American type not afraid to dirty his uniform, who was one of the relatively few bright spots with the Texas Rangers this year.

They finished sixth in their division. 29 games back, and they can find dozens of reasons for that, but Bell certainly wasn't one of them. Not with that conscientious hard-nosed attitude of his and that solid .296 batting average that included 67 RBI and 13 homers.

Joe Klein, the Rangers' new general manager, reveals "I've talked to eight clubs since I got here and seven of them have asked me about Bell."

The only reason why Klein is even listening to any of them revolves around where the Rangers finished and the general disappointment Bell has expressed more than once over never having been with a winner in his 11 years with Cleveland and Texas. That's why there is a chance the Rangers might make a deal for him with the Yankees, Orioles, White Sox, Cubs, Cardinals or Padres before the week is

"We didn't come to Hawaii to trade Buddy Bell, but when you lose 98 games like we did, you have to be alert to the fact somebody might be prepared to overwhelm you with an AllStar. So far, no one has. I think the chances are less than 50-50 I'll be overwhelmed. I've had several conversations with Buddy since I became general manager the day after the season was over and he never asked to be traded."

Maybe Bell didn't come right out and ask, but I'd have to say he wants to go for the same reason Rod Carew ultimately wished to leave the Twins. Carew wanted to know how it felt to be with a winner.

Doug Rader, the Rangers' new manager who's attending his first big league meetings in that capacity after plioting Hawaii in the Pacific Coast League the past three years, would like to know that feeling also. Before naming Rader as the Rangers' new manager, Klein sifted through a bushelful of candidates and although Texas hasn't won any games since the end of the season, you can tell how happy he is with his choice.

"Doug and I are on the same wavelength," Klein says. "When I talk to him and then hear what he has to say, it's like I'm listening to myself. His ideas on player development are very similar to mine. I think he's going to carry out the overall plan we came up with. I have a very good feeling of success."

Rader is exceptionally candid regarding the reasons he took the Rangers' job. He didn't consider it "pivotal" in his life, he says, because he felt he'd eventually get a chance to pliot the Padres, for whom he managed successfully in the minors and for whom he had once played.

"What really sold me on the job in Texas was Joe Kiein," says Rader. "I knew I wouldn't be hitting my head against the wall every day and I knew we'd be channeling our efforts in the same direction. We're about the same age - I'm 38 and he's 40 - and our philosophies are the same."

During his active career with Houston, San Diego and Toronto, Rader played for such managers as Grady Hatton, Harry Craft, Leo Durocher, Preston Gomes, Harry Walker, John McNamara, Alvin Dark and Roy Hartsfield and he insists he liked them

"That's right," he says. "You've heard of a 'player's manager?' Well, I was 'a manager's player.' I appreciated the job they had to do and I tried as hard as I could every day to help them and to help myself.

"I learned from each of them. Durocher taught me how important it was to treat everyone the same. He didn't. He treated the starting players very good but he was unnecessarily hard and critical on people in vulnerable positions — the pitchers and the extra men.

"John McNamara showed me something else. He taught me what a good human being you can be and still be a good manager."

Kuiper's 34 Points Shoot Down Falcons

By SAM COOK

Herald Sports Editor Seminole Community College coach Bill Payne has urged his 6-10 center Rudy Kuiper to take the ball to the basket all year.

Kuiper followed his coach's orders to perfection Monday night, scoring a career-high 34 points as the Raiders knocked off the seventh-ranked Florida College Falcons, 89-74, at SCC.

"We got the ball inside better than we have all year," said Payne about his 5-3 club. "Rudy was fantastic. He really took it to the hole."

The victory was the second straight for the Raiders who entertain the state's number-one ranked team, Indian River, Wednesday night at 7:30.

"They've got a super team," said Payne about Indian River which inflicted one of the three SCC losses. "But we're playing well now. It should be a great game."

Seminole put its best game together Monday night as it moved to a 34-30 halftime lead and kept the margin at six to eight points most of the second half. In the final two minutes, SCC blew the lead up to 15 points.

"We got a lot of breaks," said Payne. "A lot of balls fell into lap. They missed some three-point attempts at the end and we edged away.'

Payne credited quick guard Keith Whitney with an excellent defensive lob on Florida College guard Darryl Patterson. Patterson hit just 3 of 14 field goal attempts and finished with 11 points.

"Keith did a real good job on Patterson," said Payne. "Keith's offense

Patterson, who played on the Tampa Robinson team which beat Seminole in the state playoffs while Payne was coaching the Tribe, hit just 1 of 7 threepoint tries.

Kuiper, meanwhile, was hitting everything. The Armhem, Sweden product hit 14 of 22 floor shots and added 6 of 8 from the foul line for his 34 points.

"We've been on Rudy to go to the basket more often because he's such a good free throw shooter," continued Payne. "He hit from everywhere. He even threw in a couple of bombs when the shot clock was running out."

While Florida College was having trouble with its three-point attempts, SCC's Jimmy Payton wasn't. The Spruce Creek High graduate dropped in all three tries from the three-point area.

The Raiders hit 33 of 73 shots for 45 percent and 20 of 25 free throws for 80 percent. Florida College made 29 of 60 field goals for 48 percent and 14 of 26 free throws for 54 percent.

The Pioneers came back with seven straight points, the last coming on a desperation bank shot by Laura Coats with two seconds left in the quarter and Oak Ridge led, 35-34 going into the fourth quarter.

Midway through the final period Oak Ridge held a slim 41-39 lead. Then Benton took control of the game. The 5-7 guard scored eight consecutive points to give Hillery's rebounding and 10 first-half the Tribe a 47-41 lead, a lead the 'Noles

Four Unanimous Picks On All America Team

NEW YORK (UPI) - What do Don Mosebar, Bruce Matthews and George Achica have in common?

If you guessed they are all lineman who play for Southern California you would be right. If you guessed they were named Monday to UPI's 1902 All America college football team, you would be right

Junior running back Herschel Walker, the player most responsible for leading top-ranked Georgia within one victory of its second national championship in three seasons, joined the trio and was a unanimous selection.

Walker, making the team for the third straight year, heads an offensive unit that includes Stanford quarterback John Elway and running backs Eric Dickerson of Southern Methodist and Mike Rozier of Nebraska.

Walker is one of two Bulldogs named to the first team. Terry Hoage, the nation's leader in interceptions with 12, led the

In balloting by 120 sports writers and sportscasters from around the country, Walker was the only unanimous selection among the 24 first-team players, while Rimington, who also made the team last year, was named on 111 ballots.

Fall Football Loss Winner For Wives

DEAR ABBY: I would like to express a big "thank you" for the football strike!

Wasn't it wonderful to have our men free to be with us this fall? Not to mention the money saved from the bets at the office?

I certainly enjoyed it while it lasted. MINNESOTA WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Welcome to a very large club of women whose men returned to them during the football strike. It's been said, "We never appreciate what we've lost until after it's gone." To which can be added, "Nor realize how little we needed it in the first place." DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, John (fake name), rents a house from his parents. They own several, and John pays rent like everyone Last Sunday while I was there, John's mother dropped in. The instant John stepped outside to look at something, she started opening his closets and drawers. I couldn't believe my eyes! John is 25, independent and

After she left, I told John about it and he said, "she probably thinks we're living together." (We aren't.) Then I told John that since other tenants get a 24-hour notice of inspection, he should demand it, too. He disagreed. Please give John some advice on how to nip this in the bud before it gets worse.

JOHN'S GIRL DEAR GIRL: John didn't ask for any advice, but since you wrote, I assume you need some. John's mother was not making an 'inspection tour' as a homeowner, so the 24-hour notice rule doesn't apply here. I agree that John's mother was out of line to let it go.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a partner in a very successful company. He runs the field work, and the other three run the office. They have a well-paid secretary-receptionist.

The problem: If someone tries to contact the office between 12 and 1 p.m., there is no one there — everyone is out to lunch! I get a lot of phone calls (we are the only ones with a listed phone) when customers can't reach the office.

I contend that a business should have someone there to answer the phone at all times during the business day. It would be different if this were an occasional occurrence, but it happens almost every day. I think that with four people in the office, lunchtime should be staggered so that someone is always there. Your comments, please.

ANNOYED DEAR ANNOYED: I agree, lunchtime should be staggered so you wouldn't be bothered at home. However, a "very successful business" should be able to afford an answering machine to take calls 24 hours a day. You don't mention the name (or size) of the town, but it must be a very small town with no competition.

CONFIDENTIAL TO HAD IT UP TO HERE snoop in John's closets and drawers, but now IN WINNETKA, ILL: Move on. A good artist that he's aware of it, if he doesn't call her on it, knows when a painting is finished.

Sports Ads Big Business

NEW YORK (UPI) -Sports is big business in the $50 million for broadcast United States and so is sports rights to the Moscow Olympic advertising tled to both professional and amateur events.

It is difficult even to approximate total expenditures but a spokesman for NBC estimated 20 percent of the annual $6 billion network television advertising outlays, or $1.2 billion, is tied to sporting events. On top of that come large expenditures on local TV stations, network and local radio and substantial sums spent on print media, souvenirs and premiums. Moreover, that $1.2 billion figure is for TV network time only. Often the fees of announcers and many other expenses are extra.

Out of these receipts, the networks and local TV and radio stations pay upwards of half billion dollars a year for game rights to professional and college football, baseball, basketball, hockey and big events in tennis, golf and other sports. NBC was games before the United States pulled out. An indication of how the advertisers' concept of the value of sports marketing has grown lies in the experience of the Gillette Co. of Boston. In 1939, Gillette President he was gambling when he spent $203,000 to sponsor radio broadcasts of that year's entire baseball World Series to promote the sale of Gillette razors and blades. Today, the $203,000 would barely cover the cost of one 30-second TV spot announcement during a World Series game.

Collectively, forecasts by economists were somewhat better and on some individual topics, even the individual forecasts were not terribly off the mark. The fields in which hest were unemployment and outlays for new plant and equipment.

If the trained economist can't see far ahead successfully, how is the businessman to look ahead longer than six to 12 months, they asked.

Ahlers and Lakonishok do not claim to have discovered anything terribly new. They cite comparatively recent articles in Business Week and the Harvard Business Review the individual forecasts were concluding that the professional economists have oversold their ability and consequently fallen into the trap of creating a gap in their own credibility.

GI Bill this Fall. St. Petersburg VA Regional Office Director Carlos Rainwater says his office, VA hospitals and national cemeteries can hire veteran students under VA's workstudy program.

According to Rainwater, GI Bill students can work up to 250 hours per semester for the VA and receive more than $835 in addition to regular education assistance allowance.

Preference for participation in the workstudy program is given to veterans who have a 30 percent or greater service disability and consideration is given to financial need, work.
