Jackpot jumps to $20 million

TALEAHASSEE — Florida's Lotto jackpot pumped to an estimated $20 million Sunday after the weekly drawing pulled six numbers not matched on any single ticket.

"We hope this $20 million jackpot makes the holiday season even merrier for our players," Lottery Secretary Maria Mann said in a statement.

Had any one ticket had the numbers 8-13-19-31-36-37, it could have claimed an enhanced one-week jackpot of $10 million. Lottery officials had said earlier that all December jackpots will start at that minimum.

Saturday night's drawing produced 260 five of six tickets worth $4,809.50 each, 15,550 four of six tickets worth $93 each, and 289,280 three of six tickets worth $5 each.

An update of Santa's speed

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. — Santa and his reindeer may have slowed down a bit in recent years, but they're still about a hundred times faster than the wink of an eye, says an associate professor at St. John's University.

Santa now has about a millisecond to visit each home on his route, says Stephen Sauppe, who recently updated the calculations he created a few years ago of Santa's speed.

"I've never seen Santa Claus, but that's never bothered me too much. I never expected to see him when I was little, because I knew that Santa didn't visit our house until I was asleep," said Sauppe.

Bicentennial observance

WASHINGTON — President Bush, congressional leaders and the judiciary are marking the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights a day late, with a pilgrimage to James Madison's home in central Virginia.

Sunday marked the bicentennial of the day that Virginia became the necessary 11th state to ratify Madison's landmark and made the first 10 amendments part of the infant U.S. Constitution.

Then, guarantor of personal freedoms, including freedom of speech, press and religion, the right to a jury trial, protection from self-incrimination and unreasonable searches, and the right to keep and bear arms, became a signpost of American liberty and a model for other nations building their own democracies.

SEEDCO sued over loan

Payment overdue on train repair business

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — A local non-profit economic development agency has been sued by the Florida Department of Community Affairs to recover $342,500 of $362,000 loaned it in 1985 for a job-producing train repair business in Sanford.

According to DCA assistant general counsel Barbara Jo Finer, Seminole Employment Economic Development Corp. (SEEDCO) has not made an attempt to make a payment on the debt since October.

DCA filed the suit Dec. 9 in Seminole County circuit court. SEEDCO president Horace Orr said he was aware of the lawsuit but said he believes it can be resolved.

"Dealing with bureaucrats is tough," Orr said this morning. "They change so often. But I'll get in touch with somebody and see what we can work out."

Finer said SEEDCO's zero-percent loan was refinanced to $357,500 in February 1990 in an effort to make an easier payment schedule. Since then, DCA has received $15,000, although $58,000 was owed for 1989 and 1990 annual installments.

Finer said SEEDCO received the loan to finance a train wheel service business, American Railway Service Corp., located in the Amtrak maintenance yard at 600 Persimmon Ave. Court records indicate the first DCA loan was issued in September 1982 for $300,000. Orr also serves as president of American Railway, which was organized in 1981.

The Internal Revenue Service seized the American Railway premises this year on July 12, sealing the entrance with a padlock. The action was taken after the IRS had filed six liens against the business for failure to pay a total of $44,989 in employee payroll taxes for a period between June 1989 and April 1991.

The premises and liens were released on July 29 after the back taxes were paid, said Holder Eurlinger, an IRS spokesman in Jacksonville.

Finer said SEEDCO was issued the loan as part of the state's Community Development Corporation Support and Assistance Program created in 1981. The program awards no-interest loans to community development corporations to bolster. See SEEDCO, Page 5A.

For the birds

Zoo docents hang treats for feathered friends during Christmastime

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Due to a scheduling mix up that no one seemed able to explain, Santa did not make an appearance at the Central Florida Zoo on Saturday.

While the jolly fat man remained at the North Pole, some of his elves were at the Zoo making gifts for the feathered creatures who live on the zoo grounds.

Several zoo docents hung these gifts from the trees.

Pine cones covered with peanut butter and bird seed and orange halves filled with bird seed were decorated with red ribbons and hung from the oak trees at the entrance of the zoo.

"We've been teaching kids how to make these in the summer program," docent Bonnie Osborne said. "They always have a lot of fun, so we decided to make some ourselves."

While food is plentiful during mild Florida winters, there are many birds who have migrated to Florida from colder climates, so there is need for additional food, the docents said.

The docents said they wanted to do something special for the birds who live near the zoo since they are not fed on a regular basis like those which live in the facility.

"We just thought it'd be nice," Osborne said.

As for Santa, we can only assume that he is reading his sleigh his reindeer and his list of good children. Meanwhile, his assistants are taking good care of the birds.

Ritz Theater on agenda at city meeting

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — New life has been suggested for Sanford's old Ritz Theater. The City Commission is scheduled to discuss part of a revitalization plan tonight.

The theater, located at the corner of 2nd Street and Magnolia Avenue in Sanford, was built back in the early 1920s, and was active until the 1970s, although it has been used for a few special events, including the filming of a movie segment in recent years.

David Paulman, recently obtained ownership of the theater through a foreclosure proceeding. In a letter to City Manager Bill Simmons, Paulman said, "It is my desire to renovate the building in order to once again make it suitable for live perfor-

St. Lucia Parade a success; 8,000 attend holiday event

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The founder of Sanford's St. Lucia Festival is elated. It was very successful, said Kay Bartholomew, and we learned a lot.

Possibly as many as 8,000 persons attended the third annual day-long festival Saturday, along with the companion Christmas parade. It was the most successful of all, and was the first year during which rain didn't spoil the observance.

Bartholomew said, "We are very pleased with the success of this year's event, and we are hearing many success stories from local merchants and vendors, as well as people who participated in the various individual parts of the festival."

"We had to work with a very windy area this year," she said, "with some restrictions within the city that became necessary, but the city of Sanford was extremely helpful and did a beautiful job in helping us."

For a few of the reasons, Bartholomew reported being both good and bad response. The live entertainment was excellent during the festival downtown, especially the big bands, she said. "We're pleased by many people, but they're concerned that sand is on the feet with the music of the parade that it was just noise."

She was also disappointed about the cancellation of the Lake Monroe Christmas Boat Parade, which was to have been a waterfront spectacular featuring various holiday and St. Lucia decorated boats, lighting up the lake, and competing for cash prizes. The parade was cancelled when hardly anyone entered their boats.

One of the things that were among the most popular were the various types of Swedish foods on hand in the downtown area. Bartholomew, especially, commended on the "Dip in the Kettle" soup offered in front of the First Street Gallery by Walter and Bill Gidlow. "This was a large kettle of soup, typical of the kind offered years ago in Sweden," she said, "when people could spoon up soup rather than have to eat down to a full dinner during the holiday season." The soup was completely sold out in a little more than an hour.

Bartholomew observed, "I was surprised to find out how many out of town people came to the festival, most of them wanting to know when they could get authentic Swedish food." She added, "We are already working on next year's plans to provide an even larger offering of food, and we are making arrangements to have some Swedish cooking courses before next year's event."

What happened in governor's office?

Erosion of Chiles support raises tough questions

By Brent Kallestad
Herald Staff Writer

Sanford, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Jeb Bush's support for a controversial bill to allow the state to sue private citizens for damages caused by their negligence has eroded, raising questions about the governor's leadership.

The bill, known as the "tort reform" bill, would cap the amount of damages that private citizens can sue for in cases involving medical malpractice, product liability and other types of negligence. The bill has been a major focus of Governor Bush's campaign for re-election.

But in recent weeks, the bill has become a source of controversy. Some lawmakers and citizens have expressed concerns about the bill's impact on the state's economy and its ability to provide adequate compensation for victims of negligence.

The erosion of support for the bill has led to a series of questions about the governor's leadership and his ability to manage the state's affairs. Some critics have accused the governor of being too focused on his own political interests and not listening to the needs of the people.

Prepaid college tuition plan debated

TALLAHASSEE — As the popularity of the Florida's prepaid college tuition plan grows, top university officials worry the plan will eventually run out of money and leave the state holding the debt.

Since enrollment began on Oct. 21, 3,348 contracts have been sold, compared with 2,186 at the same point last year. Program officials attribute the increase to the 8 percent, 10 percent and 15 percent tuition hikes of the past three years.

University officials would like to see the large tuition increases continue because tuition — now about $1,450 a year — is still lower than in most other states.

But because contract prices are tied to current tuitions, the plan could run out of money if tuition continues to go up faster than the 7.5 percent a year, officials said.

Man promises moon; he delivers

TAMPA — When boyfriend Don Fialo promised the moon in his proposal to Irene Kocals, he meant business.

He drew up a deed giving her ownership of the celestial body, then properly filed the document in the Hillsborough County Courthouse.

"I can't give you any more than the moon," he said when he proposed early last week, lighted by the glow of her new possession.

Excavated Indian graves filled

ST. AUGUSTINE — Open American Indian graves at an archaeological museum were covered over and Roman Catholic and Indian ceremonies were held over the remains that were given a Christian burial four centuries earlier.

A two-hour ceremony for the dozen or more Timucuan Indians was held Saturday in a dark stone building at the Fountain of Youth Archaeological Park.

The skeletal remains had been part of a display at the park since they were unearthed in 1932.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

School board to get help filling top spot

By WENDY BOGGS
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — There's only one thing on the school board's agenda for Tuesday afternoon's 4 o'clock meeting.

The board must select the people who will help them choose the next superintendent.

In three weeks Robert Hughes, who has been the superintendent in Seminole County for 11 years, will start his new job in the top spot in Alachua County.

While the question of whether the school board has the authority to name the interim superintendent to complete Hughes' elected term which does not expire until November remains unanswered, the board must begin the process of finding a permanent replacement.

Based on a 1983 Florida Supreme Court ruling in a Charlotte County case, the school board might be able to name Hughes' replacement because the referendum dissolved the elected position and that the rest of the elected term did not have to be completed. Last year, voters overwhelmingly approved making the position of superintendent an appointed rather than an elected one.

Regardless of the outcome of the debate over who will appoint the interim superintendent, the board must appoint a new superintendent. Each board member will present the names of two community members they would like to help with the selection process.

The board must also decide how far-reaching the search for the superintendent must be. A decision must be made as to whether the search for the superintendent should be taken nationally or just state-wide.

The board will make the final decisions that will finally allow them to begin the search for a new superintendent.

The board will allow the public to give their opinions on the matter.

The meeting will take place in the school board meeting room, 1211 Mellonville Ave. in Sanford.

Longwood decides trash pickup

By BOB SPANFORD
Herald Staff Writer

LONGWOOD — All local governments have to decide on yard trash collection. Tonight is Longwood's turn.

Rather than allowing the additional collection to raise the costs, the city is expected to decide on a change in pickup schedules that will allow the rates to continue unchanged.

"This looks like the logical solution," said City Administrator Don Terry. "The people will be able to have both garbage and recycled materials picked up, plus the now-required yard trash, without having to increase the costs."

The monthly cost for the new pickup arrangement will remain unchanged at $10.85 per month.

Terry reported the members of the commission had indicated they would approve the measure, during discussion on it at a special called meeting this past Tuesday night. The commission is expected to approve the proposal tonight, for only a six month time period, then bring it back for further discussion or additional approval.

The City of Longwood utilizes the services of Industrial Waste Services for all refuse pickups.

The State of Florida has ordered all cities and counties to arrange for separate yard trash pickups, effective Jan. 1.

Rather than two week garbage pickups, there will be only one starting with the new year. The second will be replaced with a yard trash pickup once a week. Additionally, there will continue to be a recyclable materials collection on a once per week basis.

Any household that needs more frequent service will be allowed to negotiate with the franchisee for additional service, with an additional charge at a maximum of $4 per month.

The collections will continue to be three per week, for each household, but be changed to one per item classification. According to the state's mandate as well as the city's proposed ordinance, yard trash may not be mixed in with garbage or recyclables.

Just this past Wednesday, the Lake Mary City Commission approved its new pickup arrangement, with two garbage and one recyclable materials collections each week. The state mandated yard trash pickups in Lake Mary would be on a per use basis, with bags or tags to be purchased separately at $1 each.

Lake Mary also elected to try this on a six month basis then bring it back for reconsideration.

The regular Longwood City Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. this evening, in the commission chambers at City Hall. A preliminary work session will be held prior to the meeting at 6:30.

Divisions deepen over session

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Republican and Democratic battling over special-session budget cuts may have hurt chances of cooperating on bigger issues such as redistricting and tax and government reform next month.

At the weekend state Democratic convention in Orlando, and back in their districts, lawmakers talked about divisions deepened by the special session showdown.

Senate President Gwen Margolis, D-North Miami Beach, said the scrap that delayed closing of the special session until after 7 p.m. Friday marked "the end of coalition politics" in her chamber.

"This is going to carry over. I would imagine, into the regular session."

Woman helps close veterans' loophole

By JAMES MARTINEZ
Associated Press Writer

ST. PETERSBURG — Armed with only a typewriter and a telephone, Terry Cox took on Congress and closed a loophole that left her husband and thousands of other disabled veterans without military health coverage.

"I would never have thought that one person could make a difference," said Mrs. Cox. "But I've always believed that if you're going to moan and groan about something, you'd better not do it from the sidelines."

It took more than a year of writing, calling and, frankly, pestering every member of Congress before winning passage of a massive military spending bill with language that permanently plugs the loophole and restores military insurance benefits through age 65 to about 9,100 disabled vets.

President Bush signed the measure earlier this month.

"I'm happy, but I'll never get back what I lost," Mrs. Cox said. "This loophole has been devastating."

It began in 1987 when her husband, retired Army Staff Sgt. Andy Cox, fell from a ladder and suffered traumatic head injuries that left him a quadriplegic, unable to speak, or even swallow.

Costs for his around-the-clock treatment were high but his military-sponsored health insurance was good — while it lasted.

The Coxes soon learned of a little-known provision in the 1972 law governing the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services, or CHAMPUS.

That loophole says that if totally disabled patients require continuous medical care for longer than two years or reach 65, they are turned over to Medicare, the government-subsidized health care plan.

The swap left disabled vets like Cox, 54, who remains almost motionless in bed, with virtually no coverage. Medicare at best has limited provisions for home care, and none for Cox since his case is termed "maintenance."

"You get to keep your health insurance so long as you stay healthy — that's just not right," Mrs. Cox said. "My husband served his country for 22 years and was always promised his country would take care of him. I was going to see to it they kept that promise."

Mrs. Cox's fight took on even greater urgency since the cost of paying for her husband's care would eventually lead her to personal bankruptcy. She had to sell her home, move in with her mother and work full-time at her job as a travel agent to scrape together the nearly $5,000 a month to provide what care she could.

Floridians on food stamps top 1 million

County numbers jump radically

Staff and wire report

TALLAHASSEE — The number of Floridians on food stamps has topped 1 million for the first time since the Mariel boatlift, but this time the increase isn't as short-lived.

Officials say food stamp lines now include members of middle-class families who've never before received welfare and hundreds of people who moved to Florida looking for work.

In Seminole County, 5,742 households participated in the program in November. In November, 1990, only 3,144 households required assistance.

"It's growing every month," Gail Phillips, Human Services program supervisor, said from the Winter Park office of HRS.

Reggie Smith, who headed the state's food stamp program until recently, predicted in a memo to administrators before he moved to another state job this fall that the program would serve 537,000 families, or 1.4 million people, by next July.

Demand hasn't been so high since the 1980 Mariel boatlift brought 118,000 Cubans to Florida. That time the rise tapered off.

This year, in September, the number receiving food stamps reached 484,326 families, or 1.2 million people, up 54 percent from September 1990.

By November, the number was 505,000 families. That was nearly twice the 265,000 state analysts predicted two years ago would need food stamps in fiscal 1992-93.

Applications from families receiving no other forms of public assistance were up 63 percent, Smith said.

"These are middle class people who have never had to ask for help before," Sylvia McElroy, economic services program administrator in Orlando, said.

In addition, more than 800 people move to Florida each day, many of them looking for work.

Drug, firearm charges made

Kenneth Holt Krause, 51, of 3580 Narcissus in Sanford, was arrested on Thursday in the wooded area north of First and Peratimon.

He was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia, possession of a concealed firearm and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

Sanford Police said that when the car in which he was a passenger was stopped for a routine violation, Krause ran from the car into the woods.

A search, authorized by the driver, revealed a .33 calibre semi-automatic handgun and a soda can that had been converted into a crack cocaine smoking pipe.

A computer check revealed that he had been convicted of a felony in the past.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Warrant arrests

Ralph John Nixie, 27, of 258 S. Fourth St. in Lake Mary, was arrested on Thursday. He was charged with violating his probation on charges of burglary.

The arrest report said that on Oct. 26 of this year he had fled from police after being stopped for reckless driving and DUI. He had also resisted arrest without violence on that date and had committed a burglary of an occupied dwelling.

He was charged with the violation of probation at the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was charged already serving a sentence on the burglary charge.

No bond was set. Curtis Leon Butler, 34, of 1802 W. 16th St. in Sanford, was arrested on Thursday.

He was charged with failure to appear in court on charges of burglary to a conveyance.

Police report that he failed to appear in court to answer charges on Nov. 18.

He was taken into custody, transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $1,000 bond.

Grand theft filed

Greg Lowe, 51, of 2006 W. Airport Blvd. in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday.

He was charged with grand theft.

Sanford Police said that he and a sales clerk loaded $336.83 worth of plywood onto his truck at the Scotty's on French Ave. He paid the clerk $40 and told him he would return with another $10 later, police said.

The clerk reported Lowe's auto tag number to police and they traced him to his home.

He was transported to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility where he was held in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Uttered forgery leads to arrest

Kimery Audrey Hampton, 23, of 422 Rosecliff Court in Sanford was arrested on Thursday.

She was charged with uttering a forgery.

Police report that she was in possession of stolen checks and that she cashed one of the checks in the amount of $85 at the Publix on Lake Mary Boulevard with the check cashing card that had been in the purse from which the checks had been stolen.

She was later identified by the owner of the checks and taken to the county jail where she was held without bond.

Theft, dealing in stolen property charged

Eugene Samuel Leonard, 23, of 107 E. Crystal Lake Ave. in Lake Mary was arrested on Friday and charged with theft and with dealing in stolen property.

Lake Mary Police report that he had taken his cousin's guitar and told him that he was going to repair it. Instead, they said, he took it to JD's Pawn Shop in Sanford and pawned it.

He was taken to the John E. Polk Correctional Facility and held on $2,000 bond.

Man arrested for battery

Edward Wayne Dillon, 40, of 329 Springview Dr. in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday.

He was charged with battery.

Police said he had been arguing with his wife about another man when he punched her in the mouth.

He was transported to the county jail where he was held on $500 bond.

Man charged with disorderly intoxication

James Theron Dellarco, 19, of 274 Third St. in Sanford, was arrested on Saturday.

He was charged with disorderly intoxication.

Police said he was involved in a loud argument at 119 Magnolia Avenue in Sanford.

He was warned to be quiet on several occasions by police, but refused to calm down.

He was transported to the county jail where he was held on $100 bond.

Woman may join 2 others on death row

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE — A young woman convicted of plotting her father's murder could join two other women on Florida's death row if a judge follows a jury's recommendation to send her to the electric chair.

Broward Circuit Judge Charles M. Greene is expected to decide Friday whether to send Katy Telemachos to the pink wing at the Broward Correctional Institution in Pembroke Pines, where only two other women await death.

A jury found the 20-year-old Miramar woman guilty of persuading her boyfriend to shoot her dad, George Telemachos, in the head.

If she is sentenced to death, Ms. Telemachos would be given a punishment long reserved almost exclusively for men.

There are 325 men facing death at Florida State Prison in Starke in North Florida.

"It's an odd thing: women commit 10 to 12 percent of the homicides and get 1 to 2 percent of the death sentences," says Cleveland law professor Victor Stribe, who has researched women on death row for five years.

"The public image of a killer is a hulking, sinister man. Women don't fit in this picture," he said.

Historically, America has been reluctant to execute women — and the state of Florida has never electrocuted a woman.

If Ms. Telemachos is sentenced to death, her new roommates would be some of the state's most well-known killers:

—Diedre Hunt, 22, of Volusia County, was convicted for killing two men in Daytona Beach. Hunt told police she shot one of the men while her lover, Konstantinos Fotopoulos, videotaped the execution. She came to death row in September 1990.

—Judy Buenoano, 48, nicknamed the "Black Widow," has been on death row since 1985, after she was convicted of killing her husband with arsenic and throwing her quadriplegic son in a lake in Florida's Panhandle.

Florida's Death Row for women has existed at BCI since 1976, when Sonia Jacobs was sent there for shooting to death a state trooper and a Canadian constable. Jacobs has since had her death sentence commuted to life.

Buenoano has made the trip from her pink cell in Broward to the gray walls of the death house in Starke and Old Sparky twice.

Both times, she has been granted a last-minute stay — and returned to her cell in Broward.

The last time Buenoano faced death was in 1990. She was placed in the same cell serial killer Ted Bundy was confined while awaiting execution.

While Buenoano waited to die, guards tested the electric chair to ensure it worked properly for her execution. Old Sparky had malfunctioned a month before, when the state electrocuted police killer Jesse Tafero — and flames shot from his head as he died.

"Judy went through hell," Hunt told the Sun-Sentinel in Fort Lauderdale for a story in today's editions. "She could smell the machine burning as they tested it."

A few days before she was to be strapped into the large oak electric chair, Buenoano received a stay on June 23, 1990.

The two women on death row rarely leave their cells.

Hunt fears her ex-lover, Fotopoulos, who is also imprisoned in Florida for murder and has threatened to kill her.

"I was raped by my neighbor, pre-school teacher and others," Hunt says.

She has read books on sexual and emotional abuse while on death row. Once a week, a therapist comes to talk with her.

Hunt says she rarely thinks about being electrocuted.

"I wish myself dead all the time," she says. "I was a victim as much as anyone but, unfortunately, I'm alive."

Buenoano rarely goes outside for fresh air these days, her guards say, choosing instead to spend most of her time knitting.

"She makes sweaters for her grandchildren," says Sgt. Molly Mallard.

STATE OF FLORIDA
DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNITY AFFAIRS
NOTICE OF INTENT TO FIND THE
CITY OF SANFORD
COMPREHENSIVE PLAN IN COMPLIANCE
DOCKET NO. 91-NOI-5907-(I)

The Department gives notice of its intent to find the City of Sanford Comprehensive Plan IN COMPLIANCE pursuant to Section 163.3184, F.S.

The adopted City of Sanford comprehensive Plan and the Department's Objections, Recommendations, and Comments Report, are available for public inspection Monday through Friday, except for legal holidays, during normal business hours, at the Sanford City Hall, Department of Engineering and Planning, 300 North Park Avenue, Sanford, Florida 32671.

Any affected person, as defined in Section 163.3184, F.S., has a right to petition for an administrative hearing to challenge the proposed agency determination that the City of Sanford Comprehensive Plan is in compliance, as defined in Subsection 163.3184 (1), F.S. The petition must be filed within twenty-one (21) days after publication of this notice, and must include all of the information and contents described in Rule 9J-11.012 (8), F.A.C. The petition shall be filed with the Agency Clerk, Department of Community Affairs, 2740 Centerview Drive, Tallahassee, Florida 32399-2100. Failure to timely file a petition shall constitute a waiver of any right to request an administrative proceeding as a petitioner under Section 120.57, F.S. If a petition is filed, the purpose of the administrative hearing will be to present evidence and testimony and forward a recommended order to the Department. If no petition is filed, this Notice of Intent shall become final agency action.

If a petition is filed, other affected persons may petition for leave to intervene in the proceeding. A petition for intervention must be filed at least five (5) days before the final hearing and must include all of the information and contents described in Rule 221-6.010, F.A.C. A petition for leave to intervene shall be filed at the Division of Administrative Hearings, Department of Administration, 1230 Apalachee Parkway, Tallahassee, Florida 32399-1550. Failure to petition to intervene within the allowed time frame constitutes a waiver of any right such a person has to request a hearing under Section 120.57, F.S., or to participate in the administrative hearing.

Medicaid aid

State health agencies throughout the country increasingly are unable to meet the demands of Medicaid recipients. Simply stated, the problem is too many needy patients seeking health care and not enough money to spread around.

A promising remedy has been developed by University of California, San Diego, professor Robert Kaplan. Under his plan, state Medicaid programs would prioritize several hundred treatments to determine how funds should be rationed among patients. Medicaid serves poor patients under age 65. The prime merit of Kaplan's plan is that limited Medicaid funds would be used to provide the most vital treatments to the greatest number of patients.

Given that most state programs offer virtually unlimited health coverage to eligible recipients, the demand for Medicaid services is virtually inelastic. Kaplan's plan has the net effect of bringing patient demand on the system into closer conformity with available resources.

Oregon is the first state to embrace the concept of rationing Medicaid services. It did so because its Medicaid costs were rising at an alarming rate of 26 percent every two years. That meant it was able to offer health coverage to only the very poorest of residents.

In fact, only those Oregon families falling 50 percent below the federal poverty level ($5,700 for a family of three) were eligible for the state's Medicaid program. Now, under the rationing system, Oregon is able to accommodate 100 percent of residents at or below the poverty level.

Oregon's Health Service Commission has established a ranking of medical treatments from A (treatment for bacterial pneumonia) to Z (the sleep aid for sinusitis, a terminal illness). Every year, Oregon lawmakers determine just how far down the ranking the Medicaid allocation should extend.

Rationing hardly is a panacea for the multitude of problems facing Medicaid programs, but it does appear to be the most efficient way of providing the most necessary treatment to the greatest number of needy patients. It should be a component of any comprehensive effort to reform the nation's health care system.

Bankrupt date banks

With personal computers on desks in businesses and academic offices across the country, never have Americans been so prepared to use numbers to make sense of what's happening in their economy and society. Unfortunately, never in modern times have those numbers — the economic data put out by federal agencies — been more unreliable.

In early 1980, for example, the Commerce Department issued reports on the 1989 gross national product suggesting a growing economy. Using those figures, the Federal Reserve, intent on controlling inflation, kept interest rates high. Only later was it discovered that the government numbers had overstated the 1989 rate of growth by 83 percent. Lulled by that bad data into restraining the economy, the Federal Reserve may have inadvertently triggered or deepened the recession.

That, unfortunately, is not an isolated incident. Eroded by a decade of federal budget cuts, federal statistical agencies have cut back on the reliability of some reporting and have failed to come up with up-to-day methods to track a fast-changing economy.

California budget officials who relied on federal payroll surveys to track the state's economy were astonished to find out earlier this year that job losses in the recession had been far deeper than the federal numbers suggested. Frustrated by flaws in official U.S. economic data, the Japanese government has even developed its own model of the U.S. economy to track developments here.

To begin improving the reliability of government data, the Bush administration, led by Michael Boskin, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, proposed a $230 million plan for upgrading government economic data. The goal of the plan is to catch up to the standard being set by the United Nations and other international data agencies.

But Congress, caught in a squeeze of competing priorities, appropriated only $20 million toward the five-year improvement program. As a result, U.S. business and public agencies that depend on accurate economic statistics to plan for the future will be practicing guesswork for years to come.

Food aid for Soviets makes sense

I don't do a lot of writing on foreign policy because it simply isn't my area of expertise. The issues involved in international affairs are usually immensely complex, and someone who isn't schooled in their intricacies can't form a clear picture. Most times even the experts can't come to a consensus.

Yet there are a few situations that come into clear focus easily, even to the casual observer. One is the crisis in the Soviet Union now: After spending billions of dollars on a 45-year Cold War aimed at protecting the West from the dangers of Soviet Communism, Soviet Communism has collapsed and they are finally, stunningly, reaching toward democracy as a means to save themselves. Now instead of threatening to use their power to crush us, the Soviets are in danger of starving. And instead of our being in peril of them crushing us, we are in peril that they in their desperation will turn to others of our enemies for help.

Now the logical mind would assume that having wanted so long for them to embrace our philosophies of government, and having dumped so much money down the rathole that was supposed to keep them contained by spying and building arsenals, that when they finally saw that Communism didn't work and asked us to help them engage in free enterprise, we'd be overjoyed. Logic would dictate that this was a much better deal than the one we had, before, and that money to help them establish a democracy was much better spent than the funds we had earmarked for a continuing cold war.

In fact, if during the time we were learning how to duck and cover and follow the yellow signs to the school bomb shelters you had told me that someday the Soviet Union would just figure out that democracy was better government, I'd have thought you'd had your knees up under your head too long. And if you told me that when the Soviets did reach out toward democracy, that we'd be here like stumps and through our inaction leave them vulnerable to any despot who could get hands on Soviet weapons for the price of enough food to keep the Soviet people alive, I'd have said you were crazy.

Yet that's just exactly what we're doing. The Soviets are facing starvation, and starving people can get real fearful and hard to get along with. Fascism is already getting a foothold among some Soviet voters, and a few unfortunate turns of events and their whole nuclear arsenal is up for grabs. Most of our legislators are afraid to act lest they be accused of giving treats to the prodigal son instead of the faithful American siblings. Our president has proposed a plan that will give the Soviets loans they probably can't pay off to buy food they won't be able to get to people's mouths, judging by their past food distribution fiascos. And the food they're sending is feed grain, animal food. How soon can that food feed Soviet people?

We don't have the money to single-handedly solve the Soviet Union's problems, but we don't have the leisure to do nothing.

Whatever we do, we must do it and do it soon. Too much rests on it, including the personal safety we fought the Cold War to preserve.

HODDING CARTER

U.S. its own economic enemy

HONOLULU — The country is still 11 months away from the presidential election of 1992, but it seems close to consensus on at least one singularly counter-productive campaign issue. As usual, it took David Duke to put it in its crudest form. When the born-again bigot announced for the GOP nomination, he slapped Japan in the face. "You no buy our rice," he pronounced in Pidgin English. "We no buy your cars."

Also as usual, David Duke's racism is simply a crude exaggeration of a somewhat more sophisticated sentiment that lurks at the edge of mainstream politics. Having lost one devil, the Soviet Union, which could be usefully blamed for all our woes, some Americans apparently need another. For good reasons and for bad, Japan offers a useful stand-in for the "evil empire" of old.

In a time of economic vitality, few would reach for that substitute. In our current time of economic troubles, it could prove well-nigh irresistible to more than one presidential contender — from several challengers considerably more "respectable" than Duke to the present incumbent, his balanced restraint up to now notwithstanding.

There are several objective reasons for wanting to beat up on the Japanese, of course. They openly pursue a form of economic warfare, with exports as their weapon and corporation between industry and government as their strategy, which has made them the wonder of the industrialized world and the terror of their competitors. For a complex set of reasons, notably including deliberate protectionism, their markets are demonstrably difficult for foreign enterprise to penetrate. Until very recently, they were happy to function as members of an international system to which they paid minimal dues and from which they derived maximum benefits — not least being America's military umbrella.

In other words, they play by the rules that were encouraged in the days of their immediate postwar ruin. They ran a mercantilist state in an officially free trade world, an anomaly that could be justified only so long as their industries were relatively weak and untested. Today, economic infants no more, they sally forth to do battle with their competitors from battlements once built to protect them from those they now dominate.

But changing Japanese practices will not solve America's economic problems nor automatically right the trade balance with Tokyo. If the United States is to compete effectively with the industrial-government complex of Japan, it will have to rethink its own ways of doing business. To paraphrase a well-known quotation from our nation's birth, America's centers of countervailing power — industry, government and labor — will either learn to hang together or shall almost certainly hang separately. Blind ideological consistency in support of laissez-faire economics is more than the hobgoblin of small minds. It is a prescription for failure.

Further, if we cannot learn to discipline our appetite for quick profits and endless consumption, curtail our attachment to debt and encourage the rapid application of new technology to goods for the international marketplace, all the anti-Japanese rhetoric in the world will avail the United States nothing. Yelling at the Japanese because the bills are coming due from our long pig-out of deficit spending is as dumb as it is irrelevant.

To put the matter another way, our $40 billion to $50 billion a year trade deficit with Japan remains unacceptably high, but it is not responsible for our economic difficulties. The overall American trade deficit has fallen steadily for several years, but the economy has simultaneously fallen into a prolonged slowdown. Nor would a better fit in the U.S.-Japan trade relationship suddenly, after a two-decade decline, revitalize the prospects of the average American worker or middle class homeowner.

To scapegoat Japan is to take up on the economic front where we left off on the military front 46 years ago. Unlike World War II, the likelihood is that there would be no winner. The bloodletting on both sides would be prodigious, precisely because in this war each blow at the enemy would hit home as well. Two sets of statistics help make the point:

First, the United States and Japan are joined at the economic hip. Between us we account for 40 percent of the world's economy. We sell each other $140 billion in goods annually, according to The New York Times. We are each other's largest overseas trading partners. Let our economic relations cool and the rest of the world will begin to freeze.

Second, Japanese direct investment in the United States stands at about $265 billion and recent Japanese drawdowns on that investment have already had worrying effects on the availability of capital for expansion. Worry would be the least of it if our disagreements moved from jaw-jaw to fight-flight.

They openly pursue a form of economic warfare.

The White House smells few rats

WASHINGTON — Presidents come and go in the White House but the rats remain.

The vermin squatters — rats and mice — have been holding their ground despite eradication efforts by the best and brightest of several administrations. Some of this saga of mice and men has been publicized, but some is actually classified. Along the latter lines, we uncovered a report, still classified "top secret," from the Ford administration when the National Security Council was run out of the Situation Room by a rat.

The secure basement room is where the president and his brain trust gather for National Security Council meetings or during a crisis. On Nov. 25, 1975, there was no crisis, except the one stirred up by a large rat that derailed the NSC meeting.

The classified journal notes of one NSC staffer explains what happened. "Meeting was held in the Roosevelt Room rather than the Situation Room because one of the ladies saw a large rat in the Situation Room immediately before the meeting," the staffer wrote. "I looked, but couldn't find anything to club. The rat probably escaped into the wall space where the sliding map boards fit."

Assuming the rat wasn't wired, then the only damage done was to the woman who saw it. The meeting was chaired by none other than the current National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft. And he ordered the move in deference to the woman's report.

Descendants of that rat still inhabit the White House. Barbara Bush found one doing the back stroke in the swimming pool last year and George came to her rescue and drowned the offender. First dog Millie was bitten by a rat while cavorting on the South Lawn, and has since become the Bushes' premier rat hunter, although her practice of preening the kill to the First Lady is unsettling.

Our favorite chapter in the rodent war comes from the Carter administration when the president threw his full weight behind the battle. A small mouse scampering through Carter's office started it in 1977. Carter called for traps and tried to get on with the affairs of state. But the mice kept intruding. One died and stunk up the Oval Office just before the president of Italy was ushered in. Another was rotting in some unknown spot when Latin American heads of state arrived for the signing of the Panama Canal Treaty.

Carter lost his patience. The General Services Administration takes care of the White House and the Interior Department grooms the lawn, so Carter summoned officials from both to his office for a dressing down. He did not understand how he could rid a peanut warehouse in Georgia of rodents and the federal bureaucracy couldn't do the same for one little house.

The GSA blamed the Interior Department, saying all the rats were outsiders. But Carter wouldn't let the GSA off that easily. In the summer of 1977, he demanded a purge of the rodents and wanted confidential reports from the front. The GSA filled the house with 48 traps baited with nearly 10 pounds of poison. On Sept. 12, the GSA claimed a body count of 19, boasting that they believed the kill was higher because of "several incidences of foul odors."

On Sept. 22, the GSA reported that they were winning the battle, and as evidence pointed to the desperate mice that were eating roots in the White House flower pots because they were starving. On Nov. 4, the GSA declared victory. They had deployed 296 traps and 141 poison "bait stations." The enemy casualties had risen to a high point of 38 in September, then fell to 10 in October and only one in November. The rodents were beaten.

One of the ladies saw a large rat in the Situation Room.

SCC $721,000 library labs renovation nearly ready

By VICKI BOBROWICH
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Seminole Community College has spent about $721,000 to do major renovations to their library building in an effort to save money in the long term when it comes to the operation of their learning labs.

Work on the first and third floors of the library building, being done by Hembree Construction of Orlando, is almost complete.

According to Andy Vavrek, vice president of finance and administration at SCC, the job, which is being paid for with PECO money.

PECO money, authorized annually by the state Legislature, may only be used for capital outlay projects, which will prolong the life of the facility in some way.

Vavrek said a "large percentage" of the third floor and all of the first floor have been renovated. Five administrative offices have been added to the third floor and two classrooms have been built at the front of the building where there had previously been a concrete slab.

Dr. Elaine Greenwood, director of the division of arts and sciences at SCC, said the school has always maintained learning labs for tutoring in math, science, reading, writing and computers, but the new facility will consolidate the centers in one area rather having them scattered across campus.

"There are some tutors who can offer assistance in math and science, but were unable to do that before because the learning centers were spread out," Greenwood said.

In the learning labs, students work with student tutors and para-professionals who help them bring their grades up.

She added that the need for separate staffs in the labs has been eliminated, leaving only one person in charge of the clerical duties.

Temporary quarters in the old student center were less than adequate, Greenwood said, but the new facilities made the wait worthwhile.

"We were in a real ugly hole with untreated particle board and exposed beams," she said. "The new lab is very spacious and beautiful."

Using PECO money does not effect the general revenue of the school so the construction does not take away from the operating revenue.

"We needed (that work) done," Greenwood said.

Chiles

Where can Chiles find his fix-it man?

Stipanovich suggested several names, but opined that one of Martinez's leading adversaries might be the man to help the Chiles administration.

"Sam Bell, for crying out loud," said Stipanovich, a Vietnam Marine who cherishes guerilla-style politics. "He's a smart tough guy who knows the system, and has good connections."

Bell, a 52-year-old former Daytona Beach legislator who was House Speaker-designate when ousted in 1988, has a law practice across the street from the Capitol.

"I don't see it developing, but that's the kind of call anybody would have to seriously look at," said Bell. "I haven't had any calls."

Although Bell was one of the first victims in the wake of the services tax fiasco, his progressive politics might be just the thing Chiles needs in his quest for reshaping state government.

"You tell me he's (Bell) at the meeting and I'm going to spend another hour preparing," Stipanovich said. "It's going to be for real."

"The problem is fiscal," Stipanovich added. "Bell is again the guy."

"Sometimes if the quarterback isn't hitting his passes, they ought to look for additional manpower," said Bell. "The real thing is the governor himself has to decide he's going to focus on the real problems that are out there."

And, Stipanovich noted, Reed — now chancellor of the State University System — is no further than a phone call away for free advice.

"You need somebody to pace the organization and focus it on the most important things," said Reed. "Hey, it's not a 12-month mission. It's going to be four years or eight years."

Reed said: "The other part, and this is reality, you have to compromise and work to find the middle ground because all those people are elected."

enjoying local economies. They said many CDCs, which must be non-profit to receive the DCA loans, form their own profit-making businesses and then loan that business money from the DCA loan.

SEEDCO was formed in 1970 to train low-income workers to perform higher-paying tasks and to create businesses to develop the local economy. It had financed several ventures, including an ornamental plant business and a bakery, using millions of dollars in loans from the federal government.

In 1976, Orr asked then-Sen. Lawton Chiles to order a federal Government Accounting Office audit of SEEDCO after receiving local criticism. The four-month audit criticized management practices of the agency, but found no wrong-doing.

The federal government sued SEEDCO in 1983 to collect two rural development loans totaling $2.6 million they claimed were in default. SEEDCO used $600,000 of the loan to finance a seaplane manufacturing business that did not complete a working product and loaned $2 million to Dade County to build migrant housing.

SEEDCO filed a lawsuit claiming the payments were current. The lawsuits were settled in 1984 with the government receiving the $700,000 SEEDCO had already collected from the Dade County venture and taking over collection of $1.3 million still owed on the loan. Payments on the $600,000 seaplane venture loan were delayed until 1986 without interest.

manages.

The specific type of performance was not immediately revealed. Pearlman wrote that he has been "...having discussions with an organization to provide wholesome entertainment at this location."

Pearlman is bringing the project before the City Commission with a request for a waiver in a fire sprinkler system requirement.

Although the theater was apparently within the various building and fire safety codes at the time of its operation, Pearlman has suggested that with a new ownership, the building would no longer be "grandfathered in" and have to have new sprinkling systems installed.

Simmons said, "The City officially enacted the ordinance requiring sprinkler systems in 1986, and the theater had already been closed at that time."

"If I am unable to receive the required exception," Pearlman said, "I will have no alternative but to demolish the building." He added, "I am certain that the Sanford Historical Society would prefer that the building not be destroyed, however, the economic realities require that the building be allowed to become economically functional or must be taken down."

Simmons said, "At first, Mr. Pearlman wanted an indefinite waiver of the sprinkler requirement, but we have discussed the matter, and I have suggested he request the waiver for only a specific time period." He added, "Then he could probably begin operation, and determine if he could install the system to comply with the codes."

The waiver request is scheduled to be considered during tonight's meeting of the Sanford City Commission. The meeting, normally scheduled for the fourth Monday of the month, was moved to this week because of its close proximity to Christmas. The meeting will get under way at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers, with no prior work session planned for this week.

You better watch out...

The CIA is coming to town and they may be watching you

By NICK PFERFAUF
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — The CIA is checking on Lake Mary. In this case, it's the Civic Improvement Association, but it is acting like the spy agency, snooping around, looking for holiday decorated homes in the city.

A group of members from the CIA board of directors spent much of this past weekend, touring through the streets of Lake Mary, looking at various homes decorated for the Christmas season. The search will continue for much of the earlier part of this week, and is expected to conclude by Wednesday or Thursday, with a possible decision to be made by Friday.

Lake Mary Mayor Randy Morris said, "This is the second year the CIA has conducted this contest, and it was very well received and a lot of fun last year."

The decision on the three winning homes will be based on several factors including creativity, decorations, spirit, theme, and the amount of effort put into the display.

The winner will receive a sign declaring it the winning decoration of the season as well as a plaque. The second and third place winners will receive certificates of merit.

Women's club extends a helping hand

Heathrow Women's Club member, Judy Wiginton, is very excited the club has chosen to help a little boy named David this holiday season.

"David and his mother, Arlene, need all the financial aid, support, and love we can give them. Four years ago Arlene was treated for a tumor in her stomach. Five months later, David, her unexpected premature baby of six months was delivered by the same doctors who misdiagnosed her illness. As a result of treatment for the wrong condition, David was born cortically blind with Cerebral Palsy," Judy explains.

Arlene, now a single parent, is raising David at home instead of institutionalizing him. At present, David is not ambulatory.

In August, David started a pre-kindergarten class for special education children at Altamonte Elementary. He needed a Zippie wheelchair for proper seating for class as well as transportation.

"Arlene borrowed against her car to buy the needed wheelchair. Her car was repossessed since she was not able to pay back the loan. Arlene works a part-time job while he is in school from 8 to 2, but often David is sick and cannot attend school and Arlene cannot go to work," Judy says.

Arlene is a certified police officer as well as an experienced computer operator. However she is unable to use her training in the job market since David needs 24-hour care and she cannot afford help.

The Heathrow Women's Club hopes to be able to help Arlene afford care for David so she can go to work and provide for herself and David.

"Some good news!" Judy adds. "Arlene and David were just accepted at the St. Johns Village for housing. This is a privately owned center in Fern Park that helps with some public housing. The waiting list was very long and she considers herself extremely fortunate to have moved in on the 15th of November."

Sharing Center, in Longwood, acting as go-between, used the $600 donated by the Heathrow Club to give to Arlene for an electric deposit, a telephone, and some other necessities.

It's a party.

Don't forget! Lake Mary Seniors will host a holiday celebration Tuesday at 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Old City Hall.

Costumed dancers and carollers will entertain.

Seniors are asked to bring a covered dish and the recipe for the dish. A Chinese auction will be held after lunch. Please bring a white elephant item from home, wrapped for Christmas. The seniors are also accepting donations of canned goods to benefit needy seniors in the area.

Call Delores Lash at 323-1142 for more information.

Judy Wiginton displays gifts for "Adopt David" program.

Residents welcome Santa at the park

LAKE MARY — Santa Claus, in person, will be making a pre-Christmas appearance in Lake Mary Saturday. The jolly old man will arrive on his sleigh from his home at the North Pole, accompanied by an escort from the Lake Mary Fire Department.

For the second year, Lake Mary is holding a "Holiday in the Park", at Central Park, adjacent to the City Hall, at 100 W. Lake Mary Boulevard.

"In addition to Santa, with some treats for the children, we've also planned a host of entertainment presentations this year," said Parks Director John Holland.

Among the highlights will be musical performances by "Friends", featuring Stan and Joyce Welling, "Soda Pops", dancers from Miriam and Valerie's School of Dance Arts, singers from the Lake Mary High School Chorus as well as Girl Scouts and Brownie troops.

The event starts at 11 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 21, and will continue until 2 p.m. Refreshments, hot dogs and hamburgers as well as soft drinks, will be available with proceeds going to the Lake Mary Youth Program.

Lift your voice

The Lake Mary High School Choral Group filled the air of American Automobile Association building, at Heathrow, with their voices during a farewell reception for Seminole County School Board Supt. Bob Hughes. Hughes will take over as Alachua County superintendent in 1992.

Rams booters suffer first loss

WINTER PARK — After spotting Lake Mary a 1-0 lead, the Winter Park Wildcats came back to post a 3-1 victory over the previously undefeated Rams in a boys soccer match played Saturday afternoon.

Lake Mary won the junior varsity contest 4-0. It took the Rams just 10 minutes to take the lead, David Yurtek getting a foot to the ball following a scramble in front of the Winter Park goal following a Jody DeBruin corner kick.

Lake Mary continued to dominate play but couldn't come up with another goal, one of the Rams' shots hitting the post. Ten minutes after Yurtek's goal, Winter Park equalized on a goal from Wolde Harris.

Harris gave the Wildcats a 2-1 lead five minutes into the second half. Brian Magley later netted an insurance goal when his corner kick curved into the net.

Lake Mary finished with a 10-9 edge in shots on goal. Pat Reilly, the Rams' goalkeeper, made four saves while the Winter Park keeper made three stops. Each team had three corner kicks.

Now 7-1, Lake Mary will play its first home match of the season this Wednesday night against Lake Howell.

Crappiethon coming up

SANFORD — The Johnson Reels Crappiethon tournament returns to the St. John's River and chain of lakes beginning Feb. 1, 1992, and will run through March 31.

Anglers who can combine fishing skill with a little good fortune can take home a share of the more than $400,000 offered by national and local sponsors.

In order to insure more different winners, the 1992 Crappiethon will be a tagged tournament with the tagged fish ranging in value from $25 to $65,000. The lakes involved and information about the one-day team tournament can be found in Crappiethon brochures available at participating stores, tackle shops and marinas around the St. John's River and chain of lakes.

This year, there will also be special one-day tagging tournaments to help catch crappie to tag for the 1992 Crappiethon. All fish weighed in must be alive so that they can be tagged and returned to the St. John's River and lakes.

Tagging tournaments are scheduled for Jan. 18 at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp, Jan. 25 at the Lake Crescent Resort and Jan. 26 at Blair's Jungle Den.

Citrus Invitational field grows

FERN PARK — Three world class teams recently accepted berths in the third annual Citrus Invitational to be played Jan. 11 at Orlando-Seminole Jai Alai.

Hartford's Remen and Larrea, Miami's Michelen and Zarrin and Tampa's Arra II and Barrondo were added to the field which already includes Dania's Joey and Chaz as well as Mexico's Inelan and Gerardo.

The final three teams — from Palm Beach, Bridgeport, Conn., and Orlando — will be announced some time this week.

The Citrus Invitational, which carries a $9,500 purse, will feature singles competition during the matinee on Jan. 11 and doubles play that evening.

Wrestling with success

Lyman wins own tourney

From Staff Reports

LONGWOOD — Every journey begins with a single step. And for the young Lyman High School wrestling team, that first step may well have been its own Christmas Tournament.

Led by individual champions Nicky Samero (103 pounds), John Altizer (112) and Willie Campos (130), the Greyhounds outdistanced three-time defending Georgia Class 4A state champion McEachern for the tournament team championship, 165½-160½.

The Lake Brantley Patriots finished sixth (102), the Lake Howell Silver Hawks came in 11th (53½) and the Lake Mary Rams placed 12th (43½).

According to Lyman coach Rick Tribbit, the Greyhounds' success in the tournament just may be the start of big things.

"We're starting a lot of young kids this year," Tribbit said Sunday night. "I really wasn't happy with the way we were wrestling the first couple of matches. But they just really gelled at this tournament, even the new kids."

Perhaps the best example of what the Greyhounds accomplished this weekend was Samero.

"I expected him to get to the finals but I didn't know if he could win it," admitted Tribbit.

In all, Lyman placed in eight of the 14 weight classes. Jimmy Giammo was second at 152 while Ladaryl Fenney finished third in the heavyweight class. Rich Aikey (125), Vinnie Samero (135) and Shawn Whitaker (140) were all fourth-place finishers. By comparison

Tribe takes fourth

From Staff Reports

DAYTONA BEACH — Last year, when the Seminole High School wrestling team finished second from the bottom in the Daytona Beach-Seabreeze Holiday Tournament, Coach Matt DeVincenzo had a tough time convincing his team better days lay ahead.

They may be here. This past weekend, the Seminoles followed a trio of individual champions to a fourth-place team finish in a field of 12 teams at the 1991 Seabreeze Holiday Tournament.

Bringing home first-place honors were Russell Huebner (130 pounds), Jerome Pendleton

(145) and Darius Butler (220). As a team, Seminole finished behind only host Seabreeze, Palm Coast and Ocala-Forest.

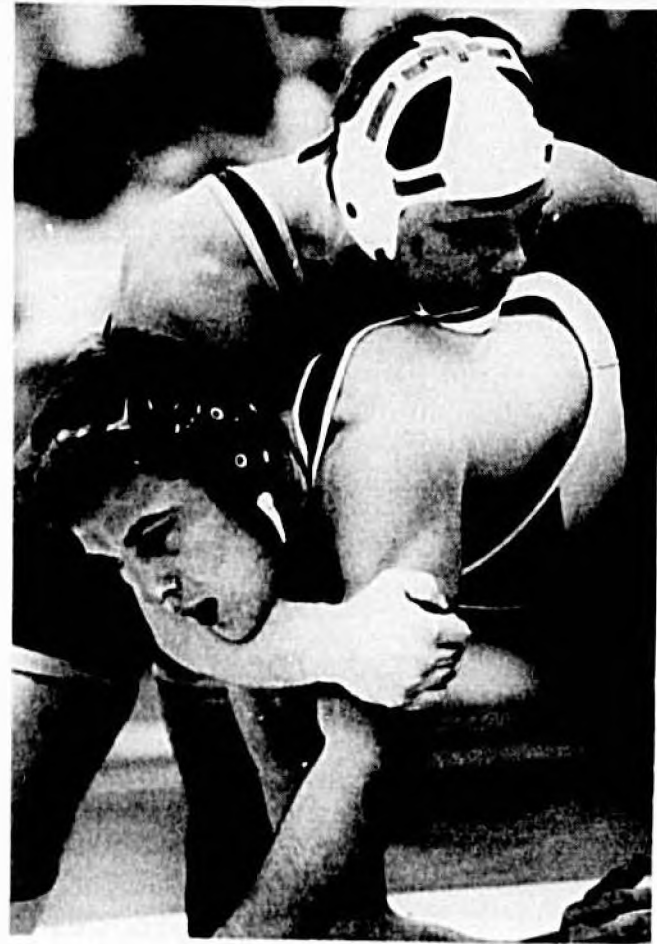

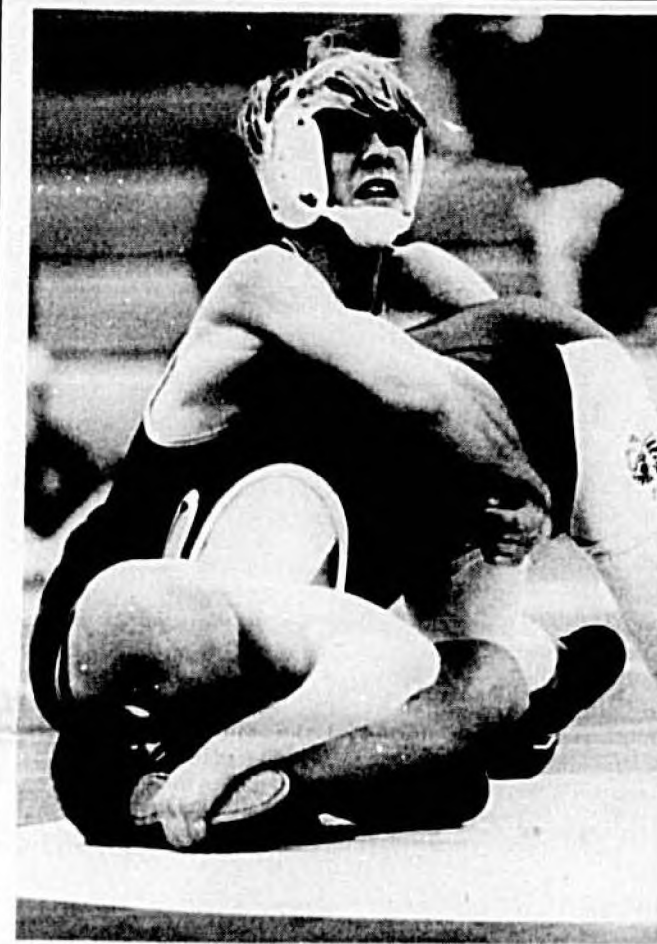

"The boys I have right now have been with me for a year," said DeVincenzo. "The three that started last year weren't that successful last year. Now they're the champions in a decent tournament."

"I feel all the hard work we did last year is starting to pay off this year."

Things didn't start off well for the Tribe on Friday night as only Huebner, Pendleton and Butler made it through the semifinals. But by the end of Saturday, eight of the 14 Seminoles who

How did you spend your weekend?

For nearly 200 high school wrestlers, the Lyman High School gymnasium was home this weekend as they competed in the Lyman Christmas tournament. In the championship round Saturday night, Lyman 103-pounder Nicky Samero (above, left and right) started the host Greyhounds on their way to the team title when he scored a 3-1 decision over Todd Lambert of McEachern High School from Powder Springs, Ga. In the finals at 171, Lake Brantley's Cuyler Davis (left, dark headgear) pinned St. Cloud's Calvin Yates (white headgear) in 1:31. In the team competition, Lyman defeated McEachern, the three-time defending Georgia Class 4A state champions, by five points.

Florida Citrus Sailfest deserving of superlatives

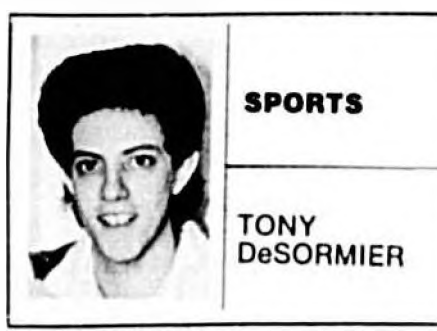

When you start talking superlatives, it's easy to get carried away, especially in sports. Somebody's always hailing something as the "World Series" of this or the "Super Bowl" of that.

The thing is, very few events or activities measure up to such qualifiers. In fact, the namesakes of these descriptive phrases often fall short of their lofty titles. Before last year, when was the last Super Bowl? And until we move off this continent, is it really a "World" series?

But the Florida Citrus Sailfest regatta... now we're talking truly huge.

How do you wish to measure such a claim? By the numbers? There were over 650 boats entered, the eighth consecutive year a record for participation was set.

How about by universal appeal? Over 30 states, Canada, England,

SPORTS

TONY DeSORMIER

Norway, Holland and Russia were represented in the 50 classes of boats.

Or how about quality competition? Among the competitors were celebrity sailors Ed Baird (winner of the Nation's Cup), Steve Benjamin (an Olympic silver medalist) and Dave Dellenbaugh (Sailing World's 1990 Crew of the Year).

Now sponsored by the Seminole County Tourist Development

Council, the Florida Citrus Sailfest is the largest sailing race in the nation. This past October, it was honored with the sport's highest honor, the U.S. Sailing One-Design Regatta Award for the best regatta in the nation, making it the only regatta to win the award twice.

Satisfied? It's hard to imagine that an event of such magnitude would be so comfortable in Sanford. Not there's anything at all the wrong with Sanford, but you'd think that Newport, R.I. or San Diego or some community on the Great Lakes would be home to the country's top sailing event.

But every year, an increasing numbers of sailors and their families make plans to spend the early part of December in Sanford. Regatta organizers are hoping for another record-setting field next year.

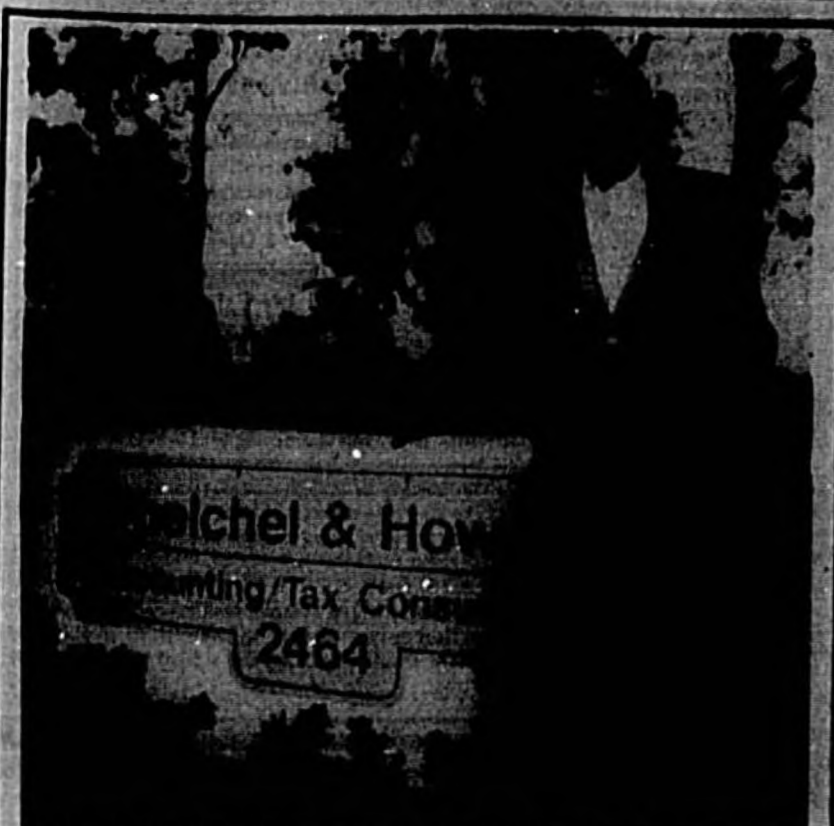

Interestingly, other than the spectators who set up their lawn chairs along Seminole Boulevard or take their own boats out near the six different courses laid out on Lake Monroe, the regatta goes largely unnoticed by most local residents.

This isn't too surprising since sailing doesn't rank up there with football or basketball as a spectators' sports. Unless you're an aficionado of the aesthetic or structural aspects of sailboats, there's not really that much to look at.

Be that as it may, the Florida Citrus Sailfest is truly unique in its size, scope and growing international reputation. There are very few other events in athletic competition anywhere that can boast similar superlatives. And it calls Sanford home. There must be something more than coincidence that links those two facts together.

Howard Welchei by Tommy Weisert

Amaryllis makes spectacular gift

Of the many gift plants associated with the holidays, probably the most spectacular flowering one is the amaryllis. And the added bonus of receiving an amaryllis as a gift is that it can continue to grow in your garden after it blooms for the holidays.

Amaryllis are normally planted in November through February so that they bloom in the spring during March to May in the landscape. Those that are received as gifts have been forced to bloom. Anyone can force an amaryllis to bloom in about six to eight weeks in the home.

To force an amaryllis, plant the bulb with at least one half to two thirds of the bulb above the soil to induce early flowering. Water thoroughly and place the pot in an area that receives bright, indirect light. In a few weeks, you will see the bud developing in the center of the leaves. Keep the soil moist but not wet. In about six weeks, a pair of flowers will open first, and a remaining pair will open in a few days. The total blooming period can last about two weeks.

GARDENING
CELESTE WHITE

You can plant the amaryllis in the garden after you have enjoyed the flowers indoors and they begin to wither. Amaryllis prefer a location with partial shade and well drained soil. Incorporate about 1 or 2 pounds of a 5-10-10 or similar bulb fertilizer per 100 square feet before planting the bulb.

Be sure to plant the amaryllis bulb high in the soil. At least 1/4 to 1/2 of the bulb should be above the ground. This is one of the major reasons that amaryllis may fail to bloom so it is very important to plant at the correct depth. Another way to look at it is that the amaryllis bulb has a "shoulder" and a "neck." Always plant the bulb at the "shoulder" depth and never cover the "neck."

Amaryllis do not need to be dug up each year and stored as some other bulbs do. Digging can be helpful though if you want to propagate the bulbs or replant somewhere else. It is also a good time to destroy unhealthy bulbs.

Fall is the best time to dig and propagate the bulbs. This is done after the leaves stop growing and start to turn yellow. At this time, the offsets of bulbs have formed. They can be removed and planted in a planting area or in flats with potting soil. These young offsets will produce flowers in two or three years.

Failure to flower is a big problem with amaryllis culture and there are many factors that can cause this. Although it is done commercially, the bulbs do not need to be dried and stored. Amaryllis bulbs really should not go through prolonged periods of dryness. Bulbs can be replanted immediately after digging. Or if you must store them, do it in dry sand or sawdust to prevent excessive drying out.

Another factor that causes flowerlessness is digging the bulbs before they are mature in the fall (before the leaves turn yellow). The flowers need time and food to develop the flower so you must allow that process to happen. Yet another reason for failure to bloom is planting in an area with too much shade which reduces plant vigor and flower size.

Last, planting in a rich soil with lots of nitrogen or overfertilizing with high nitrogen fertilizers will produce a beautiful green plant but no flowers. The amaryllis will use the food produced to manufacture new leaves instead of accumulating and storing food for the developing flower. Use fertilizers low in nitrogen, plant in less fertile soils and avoid overwatering especially late in the season when the flowers are developing.

All Seminole County Cooperative Extension Service programs are open to all regardless of race, color, sex or national origin.

Grandma sees madness in parenting method

DEAR ABBY: This is my first letter to you, although I have been reading your column for many years. I need an outside opinion.

I am a grandmother in my 70s and have just returned from visiting my daughter, her husband and their three darling children — all under the age of 5 — and I'm upset with some of their parenting methods. For example:

They lock the doors to their children's bedrooms at night because "the children might get out of their beds and roam around the house and we may not hear them."

If one child deserves punishment, all three are punished. And if one child says a naughty word, all three are given hot sauce in the mouth.

Abby, I know these parents love their children very much, but are these methods of disciplining them wise? Please understand, it is not my intention to interfere.

GRAM

DEAR GRAM: Children's bedroom doors should not be locked. Should a flash fire occur, it would be a nightmare.

Punishing all the children when only one has earned the punishment is a good way to make siblings grow up to hate each other.

Children who use "naughty" words should not be punished with hot sauce in the mouth — they should be taught the proper and acceptable word to use instead of the "naughty" word.

DEAR ABBY: I had to write in response to "A Very Disappointed Trampoline Owner" who was upset because he had to buy more insurance to cover himself if he was sued by neighbors whose kids sneaked into his yard and jumped on his trampoline.

You suggested he build a fence and put a lock on it so children couldn't use the trampoline unless they were supervised.

ADVICE

Abby, if "Disappointed" wanted to give his children a fun toy, he may as well have given them a chainsaw, because a trampoline is no less dangerous. Supervision doesn't ensure safety.

My sister is a quadriplegic today because of a trampoline mishap she had years ago. She was a trained college gymnast who had spotters watching her when she did a back flip on the trampoline and broke her neck! She never left the trampoline, or hit the side.

"Disappointed" is afraid an unsupervised child will get hurt and sue him. What happens if his own children get hurt? There will be no one to blame but himself. If he really loves his children, he'll get rid of the trampoline. You may use my name.

JENIFER WORTZEL, WELCH, MINN.

DEAR JENIFER: I am genuinely sorry about your sister's tragic accident. Because you cared enough to write, millions of readers are now alerted to the potential hazard of trampolines.

DEAR ABBY: This letter is for the Schmucks of Ormond Beach, Fla.

I am in my 60s, and all my life my parents called me a "schmuck" when I did something foolish. And when my own children didn't behave, I would say, "Don't be a schmuck!"

Last October, we went to Germany to visit some relatives. I saw a building there with a sign that said "schmucks" so I asked my cousin what it meant, and she said "jewels." Imagine my surprise! All this time, I had been calling my children "jewels" when I really had something else in mind.

I am signing my real name, which I am told means "dam" in German. You can probably guess the fun the Germans had with that name!

DEAR ABBY: We would like to pass along a family tradition we started some years ago, a few days after each Christmas and birthday, we go through our daughter Kristin's toys. With her help, we decide which toys she doesn't play with — or has outgrown — and would like to give to less fortunate children.

In addition to the obvious benefit of children getting toys they might not otherwise receive, it teaches our own child the joy of sharing.

So instead of selling those old but good-as-new toys your children have outgrown — or boxing them up to store in the back of your closet or attic — give them to your local charity.

After all, isn't the joy of giving worth far more than a couple of bucks made from a garage sale?

THE MC ALSEBEN FAMILY, CHARLESTON AFB, S.C.

DEAR MC ALSEBEN FAMILY: Hooryay for you. May each successive holiday season be happier than the previous one. You deserve it.

Could melancholy be linked to winter?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I live in Anchorage, Alaska, and would like information on seasonal affective disorder, a change of mood triggered by light deprivation. How does it affect Alaskans, and what percentage of people suffer from this disorder?

seizures can lead to serious injury, even death. In all likelihood, your sister is aware of the fact that she is abusing herself. Therefore, nothing you and I say or do will make the slightest difference. When she chooses to shape up, she will take the necessary steps to do so.

DEAR READER: Seasonal affective disorder is an emotional affliction marked by cyclic depression occurring during the winter months when sunlight is scarce. The condition is common in northern climates, but no one has yet estimated how many people suffer from it. Patients often feel normal until midwinter (earlier in the northernmost countries) when days are shortest; then melancholy takes over.

Daily exposure to sunlight or special artificial lights, administered under the supervision of psychiatrists, will relieve symptoms and even prevent the affliction. SAD is epidemic in Scandinavia and, I am certain, in Alaska, too. The cause of the condition is not known.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My sister has been epileptic since childhood and suffers grand mal seizures that terrify me. The real problem is that she drinks between one and two cases of beer a week, smokes a pack of cigarettes each day, has no vision in her right eye because of a detached retina and looks older than her years. Is she asking for trouble leading this lifestyle?

DEAR READER: Yes, she is. Your sister's disregard of a healthful lifestyle certainly puts her at risk for an early death. For example, her intake of beer is clearly excessive; in order to avoid heart and liver disease, she should stop using alcohol. Further, her cigarette consumption may lead to cancer and heart attack. I hope she is taking medicine, such as Dilantin, for her epilepsy; uncontrolled

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Phillip Alder
 I have mentioned before that at rubber bridge or international matchpoint scoring, if you make a penalty double, normally you should be doubling for at least two down. Warned that the cards are lying badly and that the trumps aren't dividing evenly, a competent declarer will usually play the hand to make at least one trick more than he would if not doubled. Today's hand is a classic example — though it is true that a good declarer would make this hand doubled or undoubled. To test yourself, cover the East-West cards and plan the play in six spades doubled. West leading a low diamond.

The auction was partly conventional. Two clubs was strong and artificial; two diamonds was a "waiting" response, showing either a bad hand or some values but no good suit to bid. After spades were agreed on, South used Roman Key Card Blackwood. North's response showed two key cards (either two aces or one ace and the trump king) but denied the trump queen. West, thinking he had two trump tricks, doubled. Declarer won the diamond lead with dummy's ace and embarked on a plan to reduce his trump length, ruffing a diamond at trick two. A spade to the king confirmed the bad news, but South continued with his plan, ruffing another diamond. South cashed the A-K of hearts and ruffed the heart queen in the dummy. A third diamond ruff followed. South cashed the A-K of clubs, reducing West's hand to three trumps, and then led his last club. West had to ruff and lead into South's A-J of spades: 12 tricks made. HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bode Oso
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 17, 1991
 You might have to shoulder more responsibility where your work or career is concerned in the year ahead. Don't let this dismay you, because new rewards will accompany your new duties. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not criticize the work of another today; it will not help this individual's performance. In fact, this person could lose interest completely and even do a worse job. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you haven't managed your resources wisely of late, you might not have the money necessary to participate in something fun with your friends. Instead of brooding, don't let this happen again.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The restrictions you might experience today will not be fully the fault of the individuals with whom you'll be involved. Don't make matters worse by blaming them. PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If the world looks a trifle gloomy today, switch your thinking to the concerns of others instead of dwelling exclusively on your own self-interests. ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you are presently operating on a stringent financial budget, don't try to keep up today with the spending habits of friends who don't share your predicament. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Meaningful objectives may not be easy to come by today, because in order to achieve them, it might require more effort than you're prepared to expend. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Jumping to conclusions today could severely impair your probabilities for success. It will not be easy to get back on track — if you start off-course. CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're presently under obligation to a friend, save yourself embarrassment today by mentioning the matter first before this individual has to remind you of it. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) People you are closely affiliated with will have a considerable influence on the outcome of events today. Be certain you do not team up with losers. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Developments that pop up today which you haven't planned for could overwhelm you. Don't view what occurs through a magnifying glass; it will only make mountains out of molehills. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In a convivial setting today, there's a chance you might run into one of your least favorite people. Don't let this individual dampen your gregarious inclinations. SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Make every effort to sidestep volatile issues today that might ignite sparks between you and your mate. If they are introduced, the day could turn into a bummer. (C)1991, NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.
