'Road Warriors' Get Longwood's Attention

With the increase of violence on the area's crowded highways, Longwood City Commissioners are not only concerned about these "road warriors" and their attacks on other motorists, they are looking for ways to curb this trend. Acting City Administrator Don Terry has asked West Lake Hospital to provide a psychiatrist from its speakers bureau to address the subject at the March 7 city commission meeting and answer questions about what causes these outbreaks of violence between motorists, what to do if confronted, and how to avoid confrontations.

Mayor Dave Gunter said, "I feel the city of Longwood should do something strong about these 'road warriors' and get something started in cooperation with the state, county and other cities."

'Out-Of-Field' Teaching Cost County $650,000

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

A Seminole County school administrator said the school district lost $650,000 in state funds this year because of the number of teachers conducting classes in subject for which they are not certified to teach. However, a suggestion to start reimbursing teachers who get their certifications to teach those subjects may help reduce the losses in the future.

The suggestion that the school board should consider reimbursing teachers for the costs of becoming state certified in all subjects they teach was made by school board member Ann Neiswender. She said the board should consider reimbursing teachers for college courses they take for certification.

The board is expected to consider that suggestion at a future workshop on the problem of Seminole County teachers in "out-of-field" classes.

School administrators and teachers' representatives are heralding the suggestion as a bold step toward dealing with a complicated situation. Teachers working "out-of-field" affects not only the amount of state money the school district gets for each class it offers, but also the quality of the teaching in those classes and the relationship between the teachers and school officials.

In teaching a consensus that the problem must be dealt with, the board has given educators hope for a future solution to the problem.

All teachers in Seminole County must hold or be eligible for the general state teaching certificate, according to John Reichert, Seminole schools director of personnel. Reichert said there are other certifications for individual fields and classes that the state expects to be met by each school district.

The fields are often broken down to include subject areas, such as math, English, social studies or health, according to Reichert. He said there are many classes that can be taught by teachers with one of several certifications listed by the state.

One of the primary reasons teachers may be assigned to a class they're not certified for is that a principal may not have a certified teacher for a class and must use someone that is not certified, according to Reichert.

He said in those cases the principals often approach the teachers and ask them to take the class. He said there are also times when a teacher must take the class if the principal orders it.

"I really don't like to use the term 'force' teacher's to teach a class they're not certified for, but sometimes it has to be done," Reichert said.

Another reason for having to assign teachers to classes they're not certified for is that there are some cases where a principal

Lake Mary Manager Gets Raise

Board OKs 2 1/2 Percent Hike

By Richard Whittaker
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary City Manager Bob Norris got a 2 1/2 percent annual raise from the city commission Thursday night, but was also given the message that at least two commissioners think he hasn't performed well in his first year and the city should find someone more qualified for the job.

In a 3-2 vote the commission narrowly approved the raise, which was originally suggested as a 10 percent increase by Mayor Dick Fess. The 2 1/2 percent raise will result in an $850 increase for Norris this year.

Commissioners Randy Morris and Thomas Mahoney voted against the increase, and commissioners John Percy, Paul Tremel and George Duryea voted in favor of it.

It was Mahoney that first suggested the city might be better off looking for a more qualified city manager than Norris.

Norris began work with the city on Jan. 5, 1987. Mahoney mentioned the city manager was originally hired for a salary of $29,432.

In the past year Norris was given pay increases amounting to 12 1/2 percent. Those increases brought his salary up to $33,000 and the 10 percent raise suggested by Fess would have brought it to $35,000.

Both Mahoney and Morris criticized Norris' performance in his first year on the job. Both commissioners, who also wrote negative annual evaluations on Norris, questioned his ability to lead the city through difficult times they say are ahead for the community of about 5,000 people.

Mahoney said he has difficulty understanding why the city advertised the city manager's position for $29,432 and then gave the person they hired raises that would bring his salary up to

Mixed Reviews

In a 3-2 vote, the Lake Mary City Commission gave City Manager Bob Norris a 2 1/2 percent raise, reduced from a proposed 10 percent increase.

Opponents:
Commissioners Randy Morris and Thomas Mahoney.

Proponents:
Commissioners John Percy, Paul Tremel and George Duryea.

Arguments: Whether Norris is doing an adequate job, and whether his 12 1/2 percent raise, already awarded since he started the job, was more than adequate compensation.

Three Inmates Charged For Seminole Jail Fight

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Three Seminole County jail inmates were charged Thursday with battery on a corrections officer in connection with a Feb. 13 incident at the jail during which two guards were injured in a jailhouse fight with inmates.

The arrests were made by Seminole County Sheriff's investigator Willie Chandler at the jail. Arrested were: Earl Lee Wilson, 27; Izelle Martin Jr., 19; and Frank Lorenzo Sheppard, 32. They were being held in lieu of $1,000 bond each on the fight related charges.

The attack from which the charges stem was the first of two on Feb. 13 at the jail involving black prisoners and white guards. In the first case the fight came after guards moved Wilson from an all-black maximum security area of the jail that day.

According to arrest reports Wilson allegedly became disorderly at about 7:40 p.m. when a guard accompanied a trusty prisoner to his new cell area to bring him personal property. While a guard was trying to restrain Wilson who began to struggle, Martin and Sheppard allegedly pinned the guard's arms behind his back.

Four other guards rushed to the trapped guard's aid and helped subdue the prisoners.

One guard's back was injured in the fight and he and a second guard were examined and treated at Florida Hospital-Altamonte Springs.

About three hours later, a fourth inmate began throwing food and fighting with guards. A third guard sustained a broken hand in that fight and he too was treated at the same hospital. Wilson and the alleged instigator of the second fight were put in isolation. No charges arising out of the second incident have been reported by the sheriff's office.

Chandler began an investigation of the incident, which led to the arrests Thursday of three inmates.

Sanford P & Z Panel OKs Fast Food Chicken Service

By Nancy Simmons
Herald Staff Writer

The Quick Stop Center, 801 Celery Ave., received a green light Thursday to add fast food chicken service to its operations.

The Sanford Planning and Zoning commissioners unanimously approved a request for conditional use from the property owners for the food service.

The meeting began at 7 p.m. in the Sanford city commission chambers at city hall.

This was the first meeting for the commission's newest member, Leon Brooks who was appointed by the Sanford City Commission to replace Sheila Roberts, a member of the commission for 11 years, who recently resigned.

The conditional use request was for food preparation for off-the-premises consumption. Alex Braumand, one of the property owners, told the commission the business will be enlarged to handle the additional service.

New Member

Leon Brooks, 36, recently appointed Sanford Planning and Zoning Commissioner, attends his first meeting.

- Residence: 1405 Valencia Court, a lifelong Sanford resident.
- Occupation: Visiting teacher for Seminole County Schools for the past 11 years.
- Family: Married to Linda Gail, two sons, Leon Jr., 9, and Isaac, 2.
- Successor: Sheila Roberts, who resigned after serving 11 years on the commission.

Brooks asked what arrangements would be made to handle any increase in customers due to the new food service.

Braumand said the store is located in a residential neighborhood and many of the customers do not drive to the store. He noted that many children frequent the area, as well as many elderly people.

Braumand said he thinks offering chicken will provide an added convenience to the neighborhood.

Braumand told the commissioners that three more people will be hired to handle the new food service—a cashier, a cook and a cook/stock person. He said that while the store is open from 6 a.m. to midnight, the food service would be available from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Commissioner Brent Carl made a motion to approve the conditional use request. The motion was seconded by Keith, and unanimously adopted.

Brooks, 35, is a lifelong resident of Sanford. He is a visiting teacher for the Seminole County School Board and has held that position for 11 years, he said.

"I just want to be a representative for all the citizens of Sanford," he said. "I want to keep the city clean and on a forward move."

Brooks, his wife Linda Gail, and their two sons, Leon, Jr., 9, and Isaac, 2, reside at 1405 Valencia Court.

Married Couple Charged With Sex Crimes On Girls

A Lake Mary couple has been arrested in connection with sexual assaults on two girls. The attacks reportedly began in 1982 when the youngest victim was under the age of 12 years.

The man charged, William Blair Farrance, 40, of 568 Lakeshore Circle, is accused of having forced sexual contact with the girls on many occasions over the years since 1982. Medical exams show that the younger girl has had sexual intercourse, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The girls have also accused Farrance's wife, Carole M. Farrance, 42, of the same address of being an active participant in some of the attacks.

Farrance has been charged with sexual battery on a child under the age of 12 years, lewd and lascivious assault, and other sex-related crimes.

Seminolians Bask In Balmy Weather

By Fred H. Cooper
Herald Staff Writer

It's a wonderful day for sun-burned ducks. Or at least those members of that particular bird family who enjoys intermittent rays mixed with rain. That's how today will probably be, and also tomorrow. Right now, as you are reading, things are probably rather damp outside. Balmy also.

Balmy is a chamber of commerce-type word which can mean just about anything but is also interpreted as indicating weather which is kinda nice: Gentle breezes; soothing sun rays; soft showers. Sound familiar? That should describe today, except some of those "soft showers" may feel rather hard.

Saturday will be about the same, if you're making your week-end plans. It'll be cloudy with temperatures ranging from the low 60s up to about 80 degrees. Sunday, ditto, but those chances of rain will decrease somewhat. It'll start to cool off a bit Sunday evening and Monday's temperatures will plummet into the 70s.

These light showers we've been getting are really nothing compared with what our cousins up in the Panhandle have been receiving during the past 24 hours. The city cluster of Pensacola, Crestview and Apalachicola got between 3 and 4 inches of rain yesterday but Tallahassee top them all with a recorded rainfall of 5.08 inches. Pensacola had the distinction of having the state's lowest low temperature yesterday - 50 degrees.

The highest high? Naples, with an 84 degree reading. This qualifies the Gulf coast city for honors, not only in Florida, but in the entire nation. Now that's awesome. Lowest low honors in the country go to Alamosa, Col.

Flash flood watches were in effect for southeast Mississippi and that includes Moss Point and Pascagoula, parts of Alabama and the Florida Panhandle.

Powerful Santa Ana winds developed Thursday over Southern California, gusting to 50 mph near Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Ontario.

The winds were expected to intensify early today with 80 mph gusts possible in the Cajon Pass of the San Bernardino Mountains, and a high wind warning was in effect through midday.

Scattered power outages were reported Thursday evening along the Southern California foothills near the communities of La Canada, Altadena, Sierra Madre and into San Bernardino County. As of midnight Thursday, officials reported 3,000 area homes and businesses without power.

Hail and heavy rain pelted parts of northeastern and central Texas.

(Reports by United Press International and data provided by the National Weather Service were used in compiling this report.)

CRIMELINE Facts Wanted In Possible Murder Case

This week's CRIMELINE case comes from the files of the Seminole County Sheriff's Office, Homicide Unit.

A 28-year old Winter Springs man was found dead Tuesday morning, Nov. 17, 1987, at the Seminole Pony Baseball League field at Five Points, south of Sanford.

A Seminole County Deputy Sheriff had pulled into the parking area of the ball diamonds to write a report when he discovered the body of Eddie Gene Marshall lying next to a tree near the parking area. He had been murdered, and the cause of death was blunt trauma to the head.

According to people who knew Marshall, he was an unemployed car salesman who had worked for numerous car dealerships in Seminole County. They also said he was an easy-going kind of man—not one to pick fights.

According to Sheriff's investigators, this may be a drug-related homicide, and robbery has not been ruled out.

If you have any information concerning the death of Eddie Marshall, call CRIMELINE at 423-TIPS or 1-800-423-TIPS. You could earn a reward of up to $1,000, and you won't even have to give your name. When only you know, we keep it that way.

Afro-American History Month Observance Begins At SCC

Workshops and a special luncheon are to be held Saturday at Seminole Community College in observance of Afro-American History Month. Registration and the workshops will be held in the Fine Arts Building (Building G) and the luncheon will be held in the cafeteria, according to Dr. Lurline Sweeting, instructor and counselor at the college. The workshops are free. The luncheon is free to the first 150 students, but costs $5 for nonstudents. Sweeting said. The day's activities are as follows:

"Black Inventors," will be the theme of a workshop to be presented Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon, according to Dr. Lurline Sweeting. Teaching that workshop will be Dr. Adrienne M. Perry, coordinator of reading programs at the college.

Grand Jury Probe May Continue

The state attorney for Seminole-Brevard counties said Wednesday that he expects Gov. Bob Martinez to expand the executive assignment of the special prosecutor for the recently concluded Yankee Lake grand jury investigation in order to conduct a probe of several possible criminal acts uncovered during the investigation.

Norman Wollinger said Duval State Attorney Ed Austin will probably be kept on to follow-up on facts that came to light during a Seminole County grand jury probe of possible criminal acts in the County Commission's purchase of 2,867 acres of land at Yankee Lake in 1985.

On Feb. 8, the grand jury said they could find no criminal acts by anyone involved in the sale, but Austin said they did discover other possible criminal acts that had nothing to do with the Yankee Lake sale. Neither Wollinger or Austin would reveal any information regarding the possible crimes.

After the grand jury returned the report of its findings to Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize, Austin said he would inform Martinez and Wollinger of what the grand jury had found. He said he felt the matters needed to be looked into further, and whether he led the new investigation was up to the governor.

Wollinger said Martinez is in Spain, but he expects him to extend Austin's assignment sometime within the next two weeks.

The grand jury met eight times and heard testimony from 30 witnesses before it concluded no crimes were committed in the purchase of the Yankee Lake property owned by developer Jeno Paulucci for $7.5 million in 1985.

The commission wanted the land for a site for a new waste water treatment plant.

In its report of investigation the grand jury said it was "unfortunate" that the purchase gave the appearance of being illegal.

The Seminole County Commission voted 4-1 to approve the purchase at 2 a.m. on Nov. 5, 1985. Barbara Christensen was the only commissioner to vote against the deal.

Several critics of the deal said the commission acted improperly in approving the deal.

Authority Ripped Off By Roofer

The Seminole County Port Authority had a new roof installed on its offices in the Sanford Port Industrial park in June of 1986, but despite its five-year guarantee, has to pay almost $4,000 to have it repaired.

Port administrator Dennis Dolgner told the board Wednesday that Wayne Coating Industries, Inc., of Boca Raton, a business that had been operating for 14 years and had a good reputation, installed the urethane roof and guaranteed it for five years.

However, when the roof recently developed a leak, efforts to locate the company proved futile. Dolgner said the company has gone out of business and no one knows where the owner is. He said a coating for the foam roofing was custom mixed by the company, at a much lower cost than the usual coating used, and a leak developed.

The board authorized Dolgner to contract with another company to make the repairs, which will cost $3,968. —Brad Church

Perry said Wednesday that she will concentrate on nine inventors of the late 19th, and also the 20th centuries. She noted that prior to the Civil War, blacks were not allowed to be issued patents, so that not much is known about black inventors prior to that time.

Perry's duties at SCC include developing instructional handbooks and learning modules. Perry said she has been at the college for 11 years and received a Ph.D. from the University of Florida. She received her bachelor's and master's degrees from Columbia University Teacher's College.

She has served as president of the Florida Community College Reading Council and chairperson of the College Level Academic Skills Project (CLASP) since Jan. 1986.

The full workshop schedule will include:
Registration: 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m.

Workshop: "Ties Which Bind Africans and Afro-Americans," 10 a.m. to noon. The instructor is Dr. Mildred A. Hill-Lubin, associate professor of English and African Studies at the University of Florida, Gainesville.

Workshop: "Black Inventors," 10 to noon. The instructor is Dr.

Adrienne Perry, coordinator of reading programs at Seminole community college.

The two workshops will alternate, so that everyone may have an opportunity to attend both, according to Sweeting.

Luncheon: noon to 1 p.m. Special speaker at the luncheon will be Frederica S. Wilson, South Atlantic regional director, Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc., and principal of Skyway Elementary School, Miami. She will speak on the work of Africare, a nonprofit organization based in Washington D.C., which works to improve the quality of life in rural Africa.

Wilson received her M.A. from the University of Miami, and her B.A. from Fisk University.

Workshop: "Black Drama." The instructor is Gwendolyn Morris, Rollins College.

The Tangled Wedtech Web

What's wrong with a former government official cashing in on his experience and professional contacts by becoming a highly paid lobbyist for private interests in Washington?

A vivid answer emerges from the sordid case of the Wedtech Corp., a defunct New York defense contractor, that is the object of federal and state probes into corruption charges involving senior Reagan administration officials and members of Congress. The recent conviction of former White House political director Lyn Nofziger on three counts of influence peddling on behalf of Wedtech and other clients illustrates why the 1978 Ethics in Government Act is so essential.

Soon after resigning his White House position in 1982, Mr. Nofziger was hired by Wedtech to lead the firm's former Army contracts which it could not win on its own merits. The Army had refused to do business with Wedtech because it could not compete with more efficient enterprises.

In exchange for lucrative fees and stock in Wedtech, Mr. Nofziger lobbied his former associates at the White House, including presidential counselor Edwin Meese, to intervene in the Army's contracting procedures. As a result of such White House pressure, the Army awarded Wedtech a $32 million Army contract to build small engines.

More government business followed as, according to subsequent state and federal indictments, the company engaged in bribery and fraud to stay afloat. Ultimately, however, the scheme collapsed, after the loss of millions of tax dollars wasted on Wedtech's uncompetitive contracts.

Similarly, Mr. Nofziger used his access to top White House aides to pressure the Pentagon into buying an attack plane, manufactured by the Fairchild Republic Corp., that the military did not want.

To maintain such undue influence over government decision-making, the ethics act prohibits officials from lobbying their former colleagues for one year after leaving government. Mr. Nofziger's activities occurred during the prohibited time frame.

Former White House deputy chief of staff Michael Deaver was also convicted in December of lying to Congress and a federal grand jury to conceal lobbying prohibited by the ethics act. His clients included the South Korean government, Trans World Airlines, and a group of manufacturers seeking preferential tax treatment on investments in Puerto Rico.

Without the restrictions imposed by the ethics law, influence peddling in Washington would be virtually unchecked. The legal restraints already are so loose that lobbyists with friends in high places receive far too much preferential treatment.

One glaring loophole has been pointed out by Mr. Nofziger himself. When the ethics law was passed, Congress specifically exempted lawmakers. This means that a former congressman or senator may lobby his one-time associates, in the very same way that Mr. Nofziger did, without any fear of penalty. This outrageous inequity ought to be corrected promptly with legislation amending the act.

The tangled Wedtech scandal illustrates in microcosm that human greed and government power are a volatile mixture; it also explains why some who go to Washington to do good wind up doing well.

It's a particularly unfortunate end to the public career of Lyn Nofziger, a talented and witty man, who was a victim of an increasing emphasis on morality in and out of government.

Why Are Candidates Soft-Pedaling Jackson

MANCHESTER, N.H.—Make no mistake about it, Rev. Jesse Jackson is one smart politician. I am not sure the same can be said for his competitors in the race for the Democratic nomination.

The debate among Democrats here on the Saturday before primary day was revealing. Six of the candidates looked like young boys engaged in a pillow fight: "Dick did a flip-flop," "Paul's going over the line," "Mike has no program," "Where were you during the long hot summer, Gary?"

The seventh candidate, Jackson, was above the juvenilia. No one attacked him. He attacked no one. He even tried to calm down the squabblers. His closing statement brilliantly took advantage of his situation: "You've heard some bickering and some pain on the stage today. Someone wants to be secretary of commerce (Richard Gephardt), someone wants to be IRS tax collector (Michael Dukakis), and someone wants to direct health and human services (Paul Simon). I want to be your president." Indeed, Jackson behaved most like a president.

After the debate, I asked several of the candidates why they laid off Jackson. The question was shrugged off; one of them told me we could talk about it privately sometime. Sen. Al Gore said he surely included Jackson when he critically said that none of the other candidates agreed with him that Reagan's toughness had been a factor in leading to the INF treaty. (Fair enough; but there was still no direct criticism of Jackson, by name, as there was of the other candidates.)

What's going on? Back in 1984 it was said that one reason Jackson wasn't confronted by the other candidates was that his poll ratings were so low he really wasn't even in contention. But this time he's been at or near the top of the poll ratings, and some pollsters say it's not just name recognition that's doing it. It's said he can't win. That's almost surely so, but it's also so that he will come to the convention with a huge bloc of delegates, perhaps 20 to 25 percent of the total. The candidates may want to soothe Jackson so that if there is a brokered convention they can get his delegates. And there is the issue of race. It's said that Jackson is unassailable because any attacker will be perceived as a racist. Of course, not disagreeing with Jackson just because he is black is the ultimate racism.

I asked Jackson why no one is going after him. His answer was truly shrewd. He said he was not being attacked because, after all, "the party is moving in my direction." He said he had been for military cuts first, now everyone is for them; he had attacked greedy multinational corporations first, now all Democrats do it.

Super Tuesday is just about upon us (March 8). As Jackson says in his very own way, "Super Tuesday is not superficial."

With the likelihood of three and perhaps four viable candidates (in addition to Jackson) still in the race, with many white voters likely to cross over to vote in the hot Republican primaries, Jackson's share of the Super Tuesday delegates will be large. He may possibly be the plurality leader in delegates.

Will the other Democrats keep giving him a free ride then? What will they say then, when he maintains that the whole party is moving his way?

Is Water Safe For Drinking?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Is it safe to drink the water? How many times has that question been asked by Americans? Usually on foreign soil.

In this country, apparently, the answer may depend on which coast you are on.

According to Omni magazine, more than 81,000 illnesses have been caused in America since 1971 by bad drinking water.

It identified the "water-borne" germs as ranging all the way from those bringing on nervous ailments, birth defects, insomnia, constipation, anemia, liver and kidney disorders and hearing loss, all the way up, or down, to cancer.

Constipation? I have heard American travelers complain of having a touch of "tourista" attributed to foreign water supplies, but the opposite? Must be strange water indeed.

Anyway, the magazine reports that "nearly one in five Americans drink excessively lead-rich tap water."

Maybe so, and here is where location rears its ugly head. Omni says New York City's borough of Manhattan tops the list of the best places in the nation "to drink water."

Gee, I have been in Manhattan a number of times—at least they told me that's where I was—and it never occurred to me to drink water there. Except possibly as a chaser, which always tasted as if it came directly from the East River.

Not that I knew what East River water tasted like. Especially after seeing a "Dead End" movie. But I could dream, couldn't I?

This may be one study Manhattan officials and bartenders wish hadn't been made.

After that borough, the nation's four best—read the safest—water supplies, based on a 1987 sampling, were found in Berkeley, Calif., Hood River, Ore., Manchester, N.H., and Birmingham, Ala.

The fact that America's presidential candidates were concentrated in New Hampshire until this week or that "Super Tuesday" in the Southland provides the next big test may be only coincidental.

Don't get the idea you can avoid stomach cramps and other germs carried by lead-rich American water by moving to New York City or New England or down South.

Omni identifies another borough, Brooklyn, plus a New England village, Merrimack, Maine, as being among the five worst places in America in which to drink water.

Small wonder that the sale of bottled water has been "soaring" in the United States.

Pat Robertson's Flock

The Iowa Democratic caucuses produced no great surprises, though I treasure certain examples they afforded of how our liberal media cope with disagreeable news.

The liberal favorites in the Democratic contest were Paul Simon and Michael Dukakis—not because there is anything notably conservative about Richard Gephardt, but because Simon positively brags about his liberalism and Dukakis is known to be in the liberals' pocket.

So when the caucuses reported their percentages (Gephardt 31, Simon 27, Dukakis 22), the media obligingly declared that the three top candidates were "tightly bunched." Dukakis, appearing on a national news show the next morning, was even described by one enthusiastic interviewer as having achieved "a virtual dead heat" with Gephardt and Simon. He must have been a little staggered, but he recovered neatly, accepted the compliment and vowed to do even better in New Hampshire, which he did.

It was in the Republican caucuses, however, that the real surprise occurred. Vice President George Bush's thrashing by Sen. Robert Dole (37 percent to 19) was impressive, but—aside from its severity—not unexpected: Iowa adjoins Dole's native Kansas, and it is not overly fond of President Reagan, with whom Bush is tightly identified. Bush's identity with Reagan worked to his advantage in New Hampshire.

The truly surprising performance in the Iowa Republican caucuses was that of Christian broadcaster and businessman Pat Robertson, who shouldered Bush out of second place and racked up an imposing 25 percent of the votes cast.

Following right after Robertson's remarkably strong showing in the murky battle for Michigan's delegates, and his landslide victory in the Hawaii Republican straw poll (which local GOP leaders saw coming and tried unsuccessfully to stave off by postponing the vote), the Iowa results are a clear signal that Robertson is going to be a formidable factor in the Republican contest this year, and thereafter (at least indirectly) in the election itself.

What the Robertson showing in Iowa means is that there are large numbers of people who respond to the concerns he expresses: generally conservative concerns. It is true, but with a heavy emphasis on "social conservative" issues such as family values, old-fashioned morality and the like. Moreover, they are often people who have never participated actively in politics before, or who at least have not been lifelong Republicans (a fact that may diminish his clout in other primaries, as it did in New Hampshire, that are confined by law to enrolled Republican voters).

Such an influx of new participants into caucus or primary processes strikes establishment politicians as a distinctly mixed blessing. It upsets the existing distribution of forces, and the newcomers' policy preoccupations often unsettle longtime loyalists who would rather emphasize other issues (e.g. economic issues). The social conservatives' stress on morality particularly tends to unsettle Republican yuppies, who in turn become the object of Democratic blandishments.

On the other hand, no sane political party will turn away armies of fresh troops. Ronald Reagan demonstrated convincingly that when the forces of the economic and social conservatives are united, as they were in 1980 and 1984 (and, rather more accidentally, in 1972), the coalition commands nearly 60 percent of the votes in an American presidential election.

Mapping Human Genes

By United Press International

About 3,000 human diseases are known to be inherited, including cystic fibrosis and Huntington's disease. Scientists have identified genetic abnormalities that appear related to these disorders, but not the specific genes that cause them.

The best way to locate the culprit genes, according to a new report from the National Academy of Sciences, is through a special project to map the entire human genome—in other words, discover the location of every gene within human chromosomes.

Such a project would cost an estimated $200 million annually for 15 years, according to a special committee, or roughly 3 percent of current federal funding for basic biology.

Although the human genome has been mapped in a rough way, many of the finer points are missing, the committee said.

Not everyone agrees an all-out effort is the best way to approach the problem of inherited diseases, however. Nobel laureate scientist David Baltimore of the Whitehead Institute in Cambridge, Mass., says centralized study could create an expensive bureaucracy that will not be able to solve specific problems.

"I'm not saying we don't need to study the human genome, but we shouldn't organize it in a giant manner," he says. "What worries me is that we'll build ourselves an 'Institute of Human Genome' and divert money to it."

Women with the eating disorder bulimia are more likely than others to have a personal or family history of substance abuse, a researcher has found.

The finding was made in a study of 35 women with bulimia, and a closely matched group of 35 women who did not have the disorder. The study was conducted by psychologist Cynthia M. Bulik of the Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic in Pittsburgh.

Reporting her findings in a recent edition of the American Journal of Psychiatry, Bulik said 48 percent of the women with bulimia abused alcohol and 34 percent were dependent on drugs. Of the non-bulimic women, 9 percent abused alcohol and 3 percent were drug-dependent.

The study found that 60 percent of the bulimic women had parents, siblings or grandparents who were alcoholics, while 20 percent of the non-bulimic women had alcoholic relatives.

The Trio That Runs Domestic Policy

By Jack Anderson
And
Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON—The Three Amigos of the House of Representatives—a powerful Democratic trio whose names are hardly household words—will run domestic policy in America this year.

Forget Ronald Reagan. The lame duck president is concentrating on leaving his mark on foreign issues. And forget the Senate. Senators are quite distracted with the presidential and Senate elections.

In Washington, where no power vacuum lasts for long, the gap will be filled by House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas; Majority Leader Tom Foley, D-Wash.; and Majority Whip Tony Coelho, D-Calif.

After years of Eastern domination in the House, these three Westerners have surprised the Capitol with their ability to be a tight, cohesive trio with a minimum of ego bruising among them.

Their one-for-all, all-for-one mutualism has made them difficult to beat in a year when both parties will suffer turmoil and splits over presidential candidates.

Our sources say their big push this year will be for passage of major bills involving catastrophic health insurance, education, trade, welfare reform and clean air. They will try to clean up this year's budget by April, the biggest chunk of appropriations bills before the Democratic convention in July and the rest of the agenda before the Republican convention in August.

Coelho conceded that it is rare for a trio of representatives to hum along so well. "All of us in public life have egos," he said. "But the threesome works because 'all three of us are in positions we basically like and enjoy. Our roles are nicely defined.'"

Coelho's role is as No. 3 in the political pecking order. The 45-year-old majority whip is the implementer. He works on strategy with Wright and Foley and then garners the votes in Congress to make the strategy work.

Foley, the No. 2 man, acts as the counselor and spokesman for the leadership. An attorney, Foley, 58, questions everything the Three Amigos discuss. He looks at issues from a dozen different ways and then publicly speaks for the policies.

Evidence of the high regard for Foley on the Hill was his recent ranking in a poll of 317 senior Capitol Hill aides. Foley was rated the "most effective" leader in Congress. Second place went to Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., and third place went to Speaker Wright. Foley, Dole and Wright also ranked first, second and third in the "most respected" category.

Wright's actions suggest he is making headway as the speaker and shedding some of the good-old-boy stigma. We have criticized Wright in the past for his dictatorial leadership and his heavy-handed protection of falling Texas thrift institutions, among other issues.

But friends say Wright, 65, is going through a makeover this year, trying to evolve from an old-style, Sam Rayburnesque leader into a slicker '80s man. More persuasion, less dictum.

That has meant a softening of relations with the press. Wright hired an aide to correct what he saw as misconceptions in the press about himself. When the aide stepped out of bounds, berating reporters in shrill letters, the new Jim Wright tactfully apologized. We ourselves received a gracious apology after Wright's aide made a questionable reference to our religious affiliations.

Congress' Verdict On Budget: Chiles, Other Demos Pessimistic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, saying his $1.1 trillion budget could surpass deficit reduction goals and reshape the government, is getting only lukewarm support from Democrats who blame him for all the federal red ink.

According to calculations by the administration budget office, Reagan's plan would push the deficit down to $129.5 billion, more than $6 billion below the fiscal 1989 goal.

Reagan, who delivered his fiscal 1989 spending plan to Capitol Hill Thursday, said the plan meets the requirements of the deficit-cutting tax and spending agreement negotiated between his advisers and congressional leaders last fall.

"It's too bad this cooperation comes in the last year of (Reagan's) term rather than the first," remarked Senate Budget Committee Chairman Lawton Chiles, D-Fla. "Now we're still saddled with tremendous deficits ... and I think the message still is whoever the new president is, he's going to have to work awfully quick in the first year to do something about the deficit because all the spare time has been used up."

Babbitt, du Pont May Be Backers

United Press International

Democrat Bruce Babbitt and Republican Pete du Pont, former governors who had hoped to use their executive skills in the White House, now can expect to hear from other would-be presidents seeking not their advice but their consent.

Candidates left in the 1988 presidential race after the separate withdrawals of Babbitt and du Pont would like no doubt to pick up their public approval as the campaign progresses. While neither man was commanding a large following, there are former rivals in each party who would welcome a bit more support.

Illinois Sen. Paul Simon, a fellow Democrat also struggling in the presidential sweepstakes, empathized with the former Arizona governor first and foremost — but also suggested Babbitt's followers should turn now to him.

Police Kill Boy With Toy Gun

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The toy gun was one of the most cherished possessions of Silvelio Groabe, a mentally retarded 13-year-old who liked to chase friends and yell "Bang! Bang!"

Wednesday, in a tragedy that is recurring with alarming frequency in America, two police officers, crouched behind their patrol car, mistook the toy for a real gun and killed Silvelio in a hail of bullets.

The killing is under investigation and the two officers have been temporarily reassigned, but police Sgt. Jerome Benkir said Thursday. "By all indications, it appears the officers acted properly and with probable cause."

Moslem Fundamentalists Grilled About Kidnapped U.S. Marine

TYRE, Lebanon (UPI) — Amal militiamen in southern Lebanon questioned six Shiite Moslem fundamentalists Thursday about the kidnapping of Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, the militia's strongman in Tyre said today.

Daoud Daoud, the regional leader of the Shiite Moslem Amal, said his group detained the fundamentalists for interrogation and obtained a "clear indication" of which organization was responsible for Wednesday's abduction of Higgins, 43, the leader of the 75-member U.N. observation team in Lebanon.

Daoud would not identify the group but an Amal spokesman earlier blamed the abduction on pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem fundamentalists.

Daoud's announcement of the detentions came a day after a previously unknown group called the "Islamic Revolutionary Brigades" claimed responsibility for the abduction on a coastal road near Tyre and said it would try Higgins as "one of the CIA directors in southern Lebanon." U.S. intelligence analysts believe the group is a faction of the pro-Iranian Hezbollah organization.

Agent Charged With Arab's Death

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel, in an unprecedented move, will prosecute a Shin Bet internal security agent for allegedly causing the death of a Palestinian teenager during an interrogation in prison last summer, officials said.

The agent is believed to be the first Shin Bet officer ever to be publicly prosecuted for allegedly committing criminal acts while on duty, Justice Ministry officials and private attorneys said.

The prosecution of the agent and two others further tarnished the image of the beleaguered Shin Bet, the Hebrew initials for the agency formally known as the General Security Services.

Before Annual County Delegation Meet

Legislative Priorities Get Lobbying

By Brad Church
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County's legislative delegation heard pleas for funding of a Wekiva River Basin Resource Council on Tuesday, and gave support to special legislation increasing the size of the port authority and Sheriff's Department Civil Service Commission.

The delegation held its annual pre-legislative session at the Chamber of Commerce to hear from groups or individuals pushing for their pet legislative priorities in the coming session.

Members of the delegation are Rep. Art Grindle, Altamonte Springs, delegation chairman; Sen. Dick Langley, Clermont, delegation vice chairman; Sen. John Vogt, Merritt Island; Sen. Tom Jennings, Orlando; Rep. Stan Bainter, Eustis; Rep. Tom Drage Jr., Winter Park; and Rep. Frank Stone, Casselberry.

The only requests to get full support from the delegation were those for special legislation. A bill already has been drawn up by Vogt to increase the membership of the Seminole County Port Authority from seven to nine members, and the delegation gave the bill their unanimous support.

Dr. Marty Wanielista of the University of Central Florida asked the legislators to support a $400,000 inclusion in the SWIM (Surface Water Improvement and Management) program appropriation to fund a Wekiva Resources Council.

Wanielista said the money would be administered by the St. Johns Water Management District to be used to fund an organization similar to the Marine Resources Council, which performs studies concerning the Indian River. He outlined the Wekiva council's objectives as performing research such as hydrological studies of water runoff and recharge areas, communication of research findings and economic benefits of maintaining the quality of the Wekiva basin.

He said that several hydrological studies of the basin have been performed under his direction, and that he has permission from the university to devote 25 percent of his work time to heading the project.

In answer to a question from Vogt, Wanielista said the funding request had only recently been discussed with the water management district staff, so it was not included in the district's request for funding.

"Then it isn't in the governor's budget," Vogt said. "Well, the Expressway director Nikki Clayton leans over for a chat with Fred Streetman, chairman of the Seminole County Commission, in preparation for their turns to present priorities before the county's legislative delegation.

Requests For Action

- Changing number of members on Port Authority and Sheriff's Civil Service Board.
- Funding for a Wekiva Resources Council.
- Funding for Seminole Community College.
- Retention and strengthening of the state Hospital Cost Containment Board.
- Reinstatement of a mandatory vehicle inspection law.
- Strengthening the law concerning reserved parking spaces for the handicapped.

governor has expressed recent interest in the Wekiva, so maybe that will help to get your money," he added.

Dennis Dolgner, Seminole County Port Authority administrator, got unanimous support from the legislators for a proposal to increase the number of members on the authority from seven to nine. Dolgner said the authority wants the increase because it has a hard time getting a quorum of five at many meetings. Vogt said he had drawn up a bill making the change. Under the proposed bill, membership of the authority would increase to nine, but the quorum would remain five members.

The legislators also expressed unanimous support for increasing the size of the Sheriff's Department Civil Service Commission from three to five members.

Attorney William Colbert, a member of the commission, said the sheriff's department has grown tremendously since the commission was set up in 1970. The present commission consists of one appointee by the sheriff, one elected by employees of the department, and the third chosen by those two members. He suggested the sheriff appoint two members, employees elect two, and those members choose a fifth member.

He also suggested amending the current law concerning the requirement that members be county residents for a year, and banning deputies' participation in political campaigns. Colbert said both provisions have been superseded by other legislation or by case law.

Dr. Ned Johnson of Seminole Community College asked for continued support of the college, particularly completion of planned building projects, and carrying through on a state workload adjustment funding formula. He said the school has experienced rapid enrollment growth in the past three years.

Art Athens, representing the local chapter of American Association of Retired Persons, urged the legislators not to let the state Hospital Cost Containment Board expire in October when the law creating it sunsets. He recommended not only extending the life of the board, but strengthening its powers to review of all hospital budgets before they are approved. He urged a change in the board's membership so that hospital representatives don't make up a majority of the members.

Athens also urged the legislators to support limiting hospital increases in charges to the amount their costs increase.

SHS, Oviedo Advance To Semis

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Editor

ORLANDO — Although they opened with victories, there was something missing in Seminole High and Oviedo High's respective games in the 3A-6 District Tournament Thursday night at Jones High School.

For Seminole, the size they use to dominate the backboards was not there Thursday as 6-0 sophomore Sherri Reddicks missed the team bus and did not play and 6-2 junior Liz Long was out with a sprained ankle. Still, Seminole had too much firepower for Occola's Kowgirls as the Lady Tribe rolled to a 68-42 victory.

For Oviedo, the absence of defense allowed an average St. Cloud team to stay in the game all the way until the Lady Lions eventually pulled out a 49-43 victory.

Also on Thursday night,

Leesburg downed Bishop Moore, 55-32, and Orlando Jones out-gunned Orlando Edgewater, 74-57. In tonight's games, Oviedo plays Jones at 6:30 and Seminole takes on Leesburg at 8. The winners advance to Saturday's 8 p.m. final.

Without Reddicks and Long, Seminole coach Charles Steele called on junior Adrian Hillman to take up the slack inside and that's exactly what she did with a game-high 22 points, 11 rebounds, eight steals and five assists.

"Adrian (Hillman) had a super game," Seminole coach Charles Steele said. "She knew she would have to take up some scoring and rebounding slack and she did a good job of it."

Seminole also got outstanding efforts from guards Cindy Lyon and LaShon Cash. Lyon, who got to start with Reddicks out, hit six of her 12 points in the first quarter as Seminole built up a 19-9 lead. She also contributed good hustle on defense and came up with four steals.

"Cindy (Lyon) did an excellent job in a starting role," Steele said. "She certainly earned herself some more playing time with her effort tonight."

Cash continued her late-season surge for the Lady Lions as she popped in several baseline jumpers and finished with 12 points. Junior Aretha Riggins continued to run the show well from the point as she dished out seven assists. Lakoecia Kennon also had a good game with eight points while Chineta Gilchrist added six points and 11 rebounds and Mechelle Toombs contributed four points and five boards.

Steele hopes to have Reddicks, the team's leading rebounder and second-leading scorer, back tonight for the matchup against Leesburg. Long may miss the entire post season.

While Seminole breezed despite missing two players, Oviedo had a much tougher time in its district opener. The Lady Lions ran off the first five points of the game and looked to be in good shape, but St. Cloud then exploited some gaping holes in Oviedo's defense and pulled within 12-9 at the end of one quarter.

In the second quarter, St. Cloud continually got the ball from the key down low to the baseline and ended up getting uncontested layups or being fouled. The Lady Bulldogs out-scored Oviedo, 13-5, in the early going of the second period and built up a 22-17 lead.

After coach John Thomas called a time out, Oviedo got back into sync as Betsy Hughes hit a pair of jump shots and

Section Soccer: Rams Host Sharks

Little-known Boca Raton Spanish River is the only obstacle left for Lake Mary's Rams in their quest for a second consecutive berth in the Class 4A State Tournament. The Sharks will try to take a bite out of the Rams in tonight's 4A-3 Section playoff at Lake Mary High. Game time is 7 p.m.

Although Spanish River is not highly regarded and Lake Mary is the favorite, coach Larry McCorkle doesn't expect a let down from the Rams.

"At this stage I think you are ready for anyone you play," McCorkle said. "The kids have been here before and the experience of being there will be helpful. I don't anticipate an easy game but the kids know what they are capable of and what they have to do to win."

Lake Mary comes in with a 21-3-5 record overall after Tuesday's 1-0 overtime victory over Winter Park. Spanish River is 18-2-3 and is coming off a 3-2 victory over Merritt Island in the region playoff.

The Sharks play in a district and area that is not well-known for soccer prowess. Their claim to fame this season is they have tied Boca Raton Pope John Paul twice. Pope John Paul is one of the remaining Class 3A teams and has been ranked in the top 10 this season.

Scott Brody leads the way for Spanish River on offense with 19 goals. Defensively, the one weak spot on the team may be at goalkeeper where the Sharks start a freshman.

"They had a senior keeper who didn't make grades and the freshman has been starting the last eight games," McCorkle said. "Along with being young, he's also only 5-6 or 5-7 so we want to put as much pressure on him as possible."

Offensively, Lake Mary pumped 36 shots on goal against Winter Park but did not score until sudden death overtime. The Rams hope to finish off more of their opportunities tonight. Leading the Lake Mary offense are Ernie Broenne, Jon Brooks, Manny Roldan and John Mora while midfielders Lee Alexander and Eric Ravndal also contribute heavily to the offense.

Defensively, Lake Mary feels it has one of the best defenses in the state and is confident it can shut the Sharks down. Sweeperback Scott Schmitt leads a defense that has three shutouts in four postseason games. James Noble, Jim Spicher and Rod Bitterling are also top notch defenders and goalkeeper Pete McNally is a standout veteran.

"The defense feels as long as it keeps playing well we can't lose," McCorkle said. "The team feels very confident when the defense is playing well."

"I think the key is, even though Winter Park got shots they were under pressure," added McCorkle. "We want to try to put as much pressure on Spanish River's players as possible."

McCorkle feels the Rams are fit enough to play a high-pressure game for 80 minutes.

"The closest we've come to putting together the best game we're capable of was the win over Miami Killian in the Pizza Hut," McCorkle said. "That was a good overall game from start to finish."

Should Lake Mary gain a big to its second state tourney, McCorkle is hoping the Rams can host it again. He also feels Lake Mary has as good a chance as anyone to win it all.

DAYTONA BEACH — Lake Brantley, Lake Howell and DeLand all advanced into tonight's semifinal matchups in the Class 4A District 9 Tournament being held at Mainland High School in Daytona Beach.

Brantley upended Lake Mary, 46-34, in the opening game and will face Mainland tonight. Mainland is the top seed and received an opening round bye. Lake Howell crushed Lyman, 76-38, and DeLand ripped Spruce Creek 72-45.

Tracy Brandenburg led the Lady Patriots with a strong floor game as she pumped in a game-high 18 points, grabbed six rebounds and handed out a pair of assists.

Kim Gunderson and Krista Kranse each chipped in eight points for Brantley as Julie Billmyer and Jennifer Tufford

"We rebounded much better and were able to get them into foul trouble," Brantley coach Cindy Frank said. "We also shot the ball well, when we shoot around 90 percent or better we usually win."

Brantley had a scare right before the half when Julie Billmyer came off the floor with a deep cut to the forehead. Billmyer was bandaged up, though, and came back with a strong second half to play a big part in the victory.

The Lady Rams came out in the second half with three quick points, a hoop by Whyte and a free throw from Dawson to take

St. John's River Community College, after giving away a 5-0 lead, scored three runs in the top of the ninth inning to defeat Seminole Community College 9-7 at Raider Field Thursday afternoon.

The win improved St. John's record to 3-3 overall, and 1-1 in Mid-Florida Conference play. While Seminole fell to 3-6 and 1-1.

St. John's took a 5-0 lead with two runs in the second, on a two run double by Benson, and three in the third. Seminole scored two in the bottom of the third on two walks, a bunt single by Todd Claus, a sacrifice fly by Seminole tied the game in their half of the sixth when, after after walks to Lance Fields and Tim Bruhl, a grounder to second by Claus was booted for a two run error. Claus later scored on a ground out by Derek Rothwell to make the score 8-6.

Heartbreak Continues For U.S. Skater Jansen

CALGARY, Alberta (UPI) — An American tragedy is playing at the Winter Olympics.

Four years of training ended in heartbreak for star-crossed speedskater Dan Jansen of West Allis, Wis., and downhill racer Pam Fletcher of Acton, Mass., Thursday, giving further indication that this could be the worst Winter Olympics for the United States in 64 years.

Jansen, seemingly on his way to a gold medal performance, fell with 250 meters to go in the men's 1,000-meter event. It was his second spill in a race in five days. Last Sunday, hours after learning about the death of his sister in his hometown of West Allis, Wis., he fell on the first turn of his 500-meter race.

Fletcher, the United States' best women's downhill racer, never got a chance to perform. She collided with a hulking former bar bouncer during a training run for the downhill and broke her leg. Ironically, the race was postponed because of high winds.

That's the way things have gone for U.S. athletes in these games.

After six days of competition and 12 medal events, the United States has won only one medal — a bronze captured by figure skaters Jill Watson of Bloomington, Ind., and Peter Oppergard of Knoxville, Tenn., in the pairs competition.

Only figure skater Brian Bottano of Sunnyvale, Calif., and the performance of the women's huge team brought any cheer to the U.S. delegation. Bottano finished second in the short program of the men's singles competition and holds a slight lead over Canadian Brian Orser entering Saturday night's free skate program.

The U.S. women's team performed better than any American lugers have done in Olympic competition by placing three women among the top 11. Bonny Warner of Mount Baldy finished sixth — higher than any American ever in Olympic competition — while Cammy Myer of Lake Placid, N.Y., was ninth and Erica Terwilliger of Lake Placid was 11th.

Steffi Walter, Ute Oberholzer and Corstin Schmidt led an East German sweep of the event. Walter, who won the event at Sanjago four years ago under her maiden name of Martin, is the first woman in history to win two Olympic gold medals in luge.

Jansen's story will long be remembered as one of the saddest of Olympic competition. He had clocked the best intermediate time of 44.02 seconds as he was heading down the backstretch. Then, his right ankle buckled and he slid about 30 feet into the wall.

Jansen, escorted off the ice by teammate Nick Thometz, covered his face in bewilderment as

Williams Leads Lifters

Ray Williams had the best total of the day with 560 pounds lifted to lead Lake Mary's Rams to a 56-27 victory over Seminole High in season-opening prep weightlifting action Wednesday at Lake Mary High.

Williams, a junior, took the 181 pound weight division with a bench press of 325 and clean and jerk of 235. Williams was one of five Lake Mary lifters to take first place Wednesday.

Vicky Futch got the match rolling for the Rams as she won the 114 weight class with a bench of 115 and clean and jerk of 95 for a total of 210. Chris Spears also gave the Rams a first as he won the 148 division with a 250 bench, 230 clean and jerk and total of 480.

At 220 pounds, Dan Ferris took first with a bench of 270 and clean and jerk of 250 for 520 total pounds. At the heavyweight division, Lake Mary's Eric Swannie benched 295 and added a 205 clean and jerk for a first-place total of 500.

Seminole High had four winners on the day led by Steve Warren at 198 pounds who had the second-highest total of the day. Warren benched 325 and had a 225 clean and jerk for a total of 550.

Steve Smith gave the Tribe a first place at 123 pounds as he totaled 365 with a bench of 215 and clean and jerk of 150. At 132 pounds, Myriel Reid benched 200 and had a 160 clean and jerk for a total of 360.

Also taking first with an outstanding total was Bernard Burke at 165 pounds. Burke's total of 535 pounds was the third-highest of the match. He recorded a 310 bench and 225 clean and jerk.

The next match for Lake Mary, coached by Bill McDaniel, is a tri-match Wednesday against Daytona Seabreeze and New Smyrna Beach at Seabreeze. Seminole, coached by Greg Regalater, returns to action Wednesday at Lake Howell.

St. John's won the game in the ninth when Rick Skelton, who had thrown five innings of two hit relief, walked Reber and gave up a pinch hit single to Hughes. Chip Wallace then came on in relief and threw Painchab's sacrifice bunt attempt into left field for a two base error, scoring Reber and advancing LaBell, pinch running for Hughes, and Painchab into scoring position. The game winner came home on a sacrifice fly by Watts to center field with one out. They added an insurance run when Painchab scored on a single up the middle by Tucker.

Region Wrestling Wars

Class 4A At Lake Mary, 3A At Gateway

Lake Mary High School, which placed nine wrestlers in the finals of the district tournament, will be hosting the Class 4A Region 1 Tournament.

The Rams won their district with Lake Brantley taking second place and Lyman placing third. Lake Mary's six individual champions led all teams in the district.

Lake Mary will hope its lower weights can again perform the way they did in the district tourney. The Rams had a wrestler in the opening six matches of the finals, winning five of them, to take their district easily.

"This is our second season and most everyone is coming through," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "Our top wrestlers did what was expected of them and a couple of our unknowns came through with strong performances to help us out."

Brantley had a strong performance in the tournament also, sending six wrestlers to the finals. Unfortunately for the Patriots, only one championship was won out of the six wrestler. Brantley was very close in two other matches but only Tim Randolph could come up with a win. Lyman sent three wrestlers into the finals, and all three won. Dan Chiodo, Mike Whitaker and Mike Breen all won their matches to keep the Greyhounds close to Brantley.

Both Seminole and Oviedo will be participating in that region as Seminole qualified seven wrestlers and Oviedo four. The Lions had two wrestlers reach the finals with freshman Aaron Jordan winning in the 103 pound weight class.

Jordan's record is 19-4 and won the Seminole Athletic Conference Tournament at 103 pounds as well as the Tournament of Champions.

Oviedo's Charles Vela, 16-6-1, is having a fine season at 130 pounds as he finished second in the district. Ken Schrupp took third place for the Lions in the 119 pound division as sophomore Mike Kobla came up with a strong effort and placed fourth at 171 pounds.

Blake Handcuffs Bishop Moore

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Editor

Jeff Blake made quite a name for himself throwing footballs in the fall of 1987. In the spring of 1988, the Seminole High senior is turning quite a few heads while throwing baseballs.

Blake tossed a three-hitter and also helped his own cause with two hits and four RBIs as Seminole thrashed Orlando Bishop Moore's Hornets, 13-2, in the Edgewater Invitational Thursday at Edgewater High.

In two games, Blake has a pair of three-hit games and has allowed only one earned run. On Thursday, he struck out nine, walked one and hit two in the five-inning game.

"Jeff (Blake) was not quite as sharp as his first game but he had another good outing," Seminole coach Mike Ferrell said. "If he continues to pitch like this, we'll be a very solid ballclub."

Seminole, 3-0 for the season, will play for the tournament title Saturday afternoon. The game is expected to start around 2 p.m. Mike Senechek will be the pitcher for Seminole. Seminole plays the winner of the Leesburg-Edgewater game which was suspended by darkness on Wednesday and moved to Saturday.

While Blake did the job on the mound, Seminole pulled away early with six runs in the top of the first. Ron Cox led off with a single off losing pitcher Carlos Abreu and he then stole second. Todd Harrell followed with a walk and Cox and Harrell pulled off a double steal. Blake then drilled a single to drive in the first two runs and Blake took second when the left fielder bobbled the ball.

Blake then stole third and scored when James Joyce reached on an error. Ron Blake then singled and he and Joyce pulled a double steal. Bubba Coral then reached on an error which allowed two more runs to score. Another Bishop Moore error allowed the sixth run of the frame to score.

Seminole tacked on two more runs in the second and pulled away with five in the fourth. Todd Harrell's double and sacrifice flies by Jeff Blake and Joyce were the key plays in the second. In the fourth, Ron Blake's two-run single was the big hit.

While Jeff Blake led the hitters with two hits and four RBIs, Ron Blake was 2 for 2 with two RBIs. Cox was 2 for 2 and scored three runs and Harrell was 2 for 3 with three runs.

"It was the second game in a row we came out and had a real good first inning," Ferrell said. "And the big lead gave me a chance to let everybody on the team play and that is important."

Apopka Upends Lake Mary, 4-3

By Chris Pieter
Herald Sports Editor

Jimmy Muselwhite tossed a four-hitter and a three-run third inning paved the way as Apopka's Blue Darters edged Lake Mary's Rams, 4-3, in the Apopka Rotary Invitational Thursday at Apopka High.

The Rams, 1-1, play Orlando Evans tonight for the consolation title. Apopka and Dr. Phillips play Saturday for the championship.

Lake Mary took a 2-0 lead Thursday in the bottom of the first inning. With one out, Aaron Isarola blasted a double and he scored on Wes Weger's single. Weger took third on an errant pickoff attempt and scored on Eric Birle's sacrifice fly.

Apopka came back with three runs in the third off Lake Mary loser Birle. Brian Roney's two-run single was the big hit in the inning, while the Darters also capitalized on a pair of walks.

Apopka then took a 4-3 lead with a run in the fourth. With two outs, Apopka had runners on first and third and attempted a delayed steal. When the throw went to second, the runner on third broke for home and the throw to the plate was off line. Lake Mary pulled within 4-3 in the fifth when Derek Wolf was hit by a pitch, stole second, took third on a wild pitch and scored when Shane Stuffed reached on an error.

Muselwhite, who had four strikeouts and one walk, then set Lake Mary down in order in the bottom of the sixth and struck out the first batter in the seventh. David Pencik then singled, took second on a wild pitch and third on a groundout. With the tying run on third, Muselwhite then struck out the next hitter to end the game.

OVIDO NIPS BOONE
A four-hitter by Jody Spelman and errorless defense paved the way as Oviedo's Lions upended Orlando Boone's Braves, 2-1, Thursday at Boone. It was Oviedo's first win after three losses while Boone now stands at 1-1.

The performance by Spelman and the defense was the key for the Lions as they managed just one hit in the game. Boone took a 1-0 lead in the first inning but Oviedo pushed across the tying run in the fourth and got the game-winner in the fifth.

Lake Mary's Anita Mitchell launches a jump shot in Thursday's district game against Lake Brantley at Daytona Mainland High. Mitchell and the Lady Rams did not fare too well as they dropped a 44-34 decision to the Lady Patriots.

...Brantley

Continued from 6A a 24-21 lead with 5:42 to play in the third period.

Barb Billmyer then sank a jumper from the wing to cut the lead to 24-23 with 5:26 remaining. Franze connected on a jumper from the corner on the next possession to give Brantley a 25-24 lead with 4:25 to play.

Dawson sank a free throw to cut the lead to six, 33-27, with 7:18 to play. Gunderson then hit a basket in the middle to widen the lead to 35-27 with 5:13 remaining in the game.

Julie Billmyer then connected for an inside duce with a bucket over Whyte to give the Lady Patriots a ten point edge, 37-27, with 3:56 remaining. The bucket forced Lake Mary coach Mac Blythe to call timeout and attempt to set up a press defense for the remainder of the game.

"We had the shots we wanted, we just didn't put them in," Blythe said. "We didn't shoot well at all and did not execute on either ends of the floor."

Whyte led Lake Mary with nine points. Jackson added seven as Dawson and Tammy Liberato each contributed six.

The press attempt failed, as the Lady Patriots were able to run a halfcourt stall offense and force Lake Mary to foul late. Brantley connected on 7-of-8 free throws in the final two minutes to ice the victory.

"We played good defense and we were patient on offense," Frank said. "We hustled and rebounded much better than the last time we played them and that was the difference."

Tammy Lewis led four Lake Howell in double digits with a game-high 18 point performance to go along with 11 rebounds and nine assists as the game was only close for a couple of minutes. Lyman did manage to lead, 2-0, after a jumper by Shari Siegrist with 7:00 minutes remaining in the opening quarter. Kelly Orider then sank a jumper followed by a Jennifer Browne jumper to give Howell a 4-2 edge with 6:11 to play. Siegrist connected on another jumper to tie the game for the last time, 4-4, with 5:47 remaining in the first.

After Lewis it was Brook Burnes who tallied 11 points, Sarina Winston and Brown each had 10 as Kelly Orider netted eight. Tonya Lewis added seven points with Becky Miller adding six.

Siegrist led the Lady Greyhounds with 14 points. Dana Garrett added eight with Carol Coley adding six. "It was a long season but it was enjoyable and fun," Lyman coach Lisa Carlson said. "The girls had a great attitude throughout the year and it's nice to see that even though we only won five games."

"None of them missed practice and they are a very nice group," Carlson added. "I'm going to miss our senior Shari Siegrist and hope in a couple of years we can have a contending team at Lyman."

In the nightcap, C.C. Hayden poured in 35 points as Renee Bellamy connected for 16 to lead DeLand past Spruce Creek. Hayden scored 12 points in the opening quarter as the Lady Bulldogs took control early and led, 20-8, after the first quarter. DeLand kept rolling in the second period as it took complete control, building a 41-15 halftime advantage.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Jim Grabb, ranked No. 62 in the world, Thursday night stunned top-seed Stefan Edberg of Sweden 6-4 6-4 in the third round of the Volvo Tennis-U.S. Indoor Championships.

Edberg, the world's third-ranked player and the tourna-

Edwards, Indiana Rout Michigan St.

United Press International
Indiana Coach Bob Knight, impatient with many freshmen, sees many positives in swingman Jay Edwards.

"Edwards has great ability to flow with the game," Knight said Thursday night at Bloomington after Edwards connected on five 3-pointers en route to 24 points and Rick Calloway added 18 points and 6 assists to lift Indiana to a 85-58 Big Ten rout of Michigan State. "He has good poise and awareness. He's extremely advanced in that context."

The Hoosiers made 42 of 59 from the field for 71.3 percent, which broke the school record of 71.1 percent set against Texas Tech in the 1979 National Invitational Tournament. Indiana opened the game by hitting 20 of 24 shots — an 83-percent clip — in going ahead 44-21 at halftime.

Indiana, which used its 14th starting lineup of the season, improved to 15-7 overall and 7-5 in the conference to stay in a fourth-place tie with Illinois. The Spartans, who beat Indiana 75-74 in overtime earlier this season, fell to 8-14 and 3-9.

"We had to look at this as a really important game," Knight said. "It was a must win."

Ken Redfield scored the game's first basket to give Michigan State its only lead before the Hoosiers hit their first seven shots from the field to take a 14-8 edge with 13:57 remaining after a Todd Jadow jump shot.

Jadow missed a shot with 13:05 left but the Hoosiers then connected on their next nine to take a 34-18 advantage with 6:18 remaining on a Calloway jumper.

Indiana earned its largest lead of the half, 44-19, with 27 seconds remaining on Keith Smart's steal and dunk.

"We ran into a buzzsaw," Michigan State Coach Jud Heathcote said. "They're a hot club that seemed to make every conceivable shot. When they're shooting as well as they did, it's hard to combat that."

Elsewhere, No. 2 Arizona blitzed Southern Cal 103-68, San Diego State edged No. 7 Brigham Young 82-80 in overtime, No. 11 Nevada-Las Vegas bounced Utah State 94-74, No. 14 North Carolina State downed Clemson 88-63, No. 18 Wyoming beat Air Force 79-63, Kansas nipped Kansas State 64-63 and Notre Dame routed Dayton 59-47.

At Los Angeles, Sean Elliot scored 19 points, helping Arizona clinch a tie for the Pacific-10 championship. The Wildcats, 13-1 in the conference and 24-2 overall, took an 8-0 lead after two minutes and never trailed. The Trojans, 3-10 and

BASKETBALL

5-17, received 23 points and 8 rebounds from Ronnie Coleman.

At San Diego, Bryan Williams banked in a 7-footer with three seconds left in overtime, allowing San Diego State to shock BYU, 20-2 overall and 9-1 in the WAC.

At Las Vegas, Nev., Gerald Paddio scored 23 points and Stacey Augmon added 17 to lift the Rebels, 22-3 overall and 11-2 in the PCAA. Utah State, getting 19 from Reid Newey and 15 from Kevin Nixon, dropped to 16-7 and 11-3.

At Clemson, S.C., freshman Brian Howard collected 26 points and 9 rebounds, and Chucky Brown contributed 25 points to power NC State, 18-5 overall and 6-3 in the ACC.

At Colorado Springs, Colo., Fennis Dembo scored 24 points and Wyoming used a 13-1 run over the final 4 1/2 minutes to pull away. The Cowboys, 19-5 overall and 8-5 in the WAC, got 17 points from Eric Leckner.

At Manhattan, Kan., Danny Manning and Jeff Gueldner prevented Fred McCoy from taking a shot on the final play of the game to lift Kansas, 17-8 overall and 6-4 in the Big Eight. The Jayhawks avenged a home loss to the Wildcats earlier in the season, Kansas State, 15-7, is two games behind Oklahoma in the loss column in the league race at 7-3.

At South Bend, Ind., Gary Voce and David Rivers scored 18 points each to lift Notre Dame, 16-7. Anthony Corbitt led the Flyers, 10-14, with 13 points.

UNLV DUMPS UTAH ST.
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Gerald Paddio scored a game-high 23 points and Stacey Augmon added 17 with 13 rebounds Thursday night to lead seventh-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas to a 94-74 victory over Utah State in their battle for first place in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

The Runnin' Rebels, who appeared to have put the game away with an explosive first half, fought off a second-half surge by the Aggies to run their record to 22-3 overall and 11-2 in the PCAA.

Utah State, getting 19 from Reid Newey and 15 from Kevin Nixon, dropped to 16-7 overall and 11-3 in the conference.

UNLV ran off 19 consecutive points midway through the first half en route to a 45-22 halftime lead over the 30-percent shooting Aggies.

The Rebels pulled away from a 15-12 lead with 12:26 left in the half and opened up a 34-12 lead before Nixon broke the Aggies' drought with a free throw with 5:01 remaining.

Mets' Gooden Loses Arbitration Battle

United Press International

Now that Dwight Gooden has become a loser in arbitration, the New York Mets want him to be a winner.

Gooden, in a decision announced Thursday, lost an arbitration case that may have emphasized a club's right to cut the salary of a drug offender. However, the Mets avoided any hint of gloating.

"I think Dwight is a pro," said Mets' senior vice president Al Harazin, who argued the case. "I think he understood he might win and might lose. I think he's already looking forward to having a heck of a year."

Gooden's side sounded just as conciliatory.

Speaking through his agent, Jim Neader, the right-hander made three points: 1. The case is over. 2. Both sides handled the case professionally. 3. As far as Gooden is concerned, "The Mets are still No. 1."

Arbitrator Richard Bloch ruled Gooden must accept a pay cut to $1.4 million, instead of the $1.65 he sought through arbitration. Gooden made $1.5 million last year, a season in which he went 15-7 after failing a drug test.

According to the Players' Association, Detroit left-hander Frank Tanana won his case and will earn $1.1 million this season. The Tigers had offered $800,000. He earned $625,000 in base salary in 1987, when he was 15-10 with a 3.91 ERA.

Tanana's victory means the players have won five of 15 arbitration cases this year.

In other baseball news, left-hander Mark Langston, the American League strikeout champion three of the past four seasons, has agreed to a one-year contract, the Seattle Mariners said.

American Ski Hopes Dashed

MOUNT ALLAN, Alberta (UPI) — A string of training accidents over the past few months had already decimated the once-proud U.S. ski team, but it was left to an unemployed bar bouncer to deliver the final blow to America's chances for an alpine medal.

Pam Fletcher, the only American with even an outside shot at an alpine medal, was knocked out of the Olympics when she broke her leg in a collision early Thursday with a volunteer course worker.

The crash occurred less than two hours before Fletcher was scheduled to be the first racer down the slopes in the downhill race. Ironically, winds swirling at more than 70 mph forced officials to postpone the race after the first skier had been swept off the course.

Olympic officials hoped to run the downhill today, shifting attention back to racing and away from the weather and freak accidents. If the downhill could not be held again today, officials said the slalom portion of the women's combined event would be run.

Christian Knauth, spokesman for the International Ski Federation, said the winds Thursday were "stronger than the day they canceled the men's race."

he fought off tears.

"Sure, it's disappointing," Jansen said. "I trained four years and didn't even finish a race. I've never fallen on the straightaway before. But what's happened in the past week has put everything in perspective. And I don't feel as bad as I thought I would."

"I felt really strong the whole way. I was just really smooth. I felt very strong on the backstretch. My right skate caught the outer edge. I could not believe it."

"For some reason I don't feel as shocked as when I fell in the 500. Today, maybe, there was a slight sense of relief. I'll go home and spend the weekend with my family. They won't be disappointed."

In another strange twist to the Games, Nikolai Goulaev of the Soviet Union, subject of a steroid-trafficking controversy a month ago, won the race in an Olympic record time of 1 minute 13.03 seconds. East German Jens-Uwe Mey, winner of the 500-meter gold medal, claimed the silver medal in 1:13.11 and the Soviet Union's Igor Glezovsky took the bronze in 1:13.19.

Eric Flaim of Pembroke, Mass., fourth in the 6,000 meters a day earlier, was fourth again in 1:13.53.

The two medals earned by the Soviets gave them a total of 11, including four gold. East Germany is next in the standings with three gold and six medals. With 10 days of competition left, the United States had one medal, a bronze in pairs skating.

Goulaev almost didn't compete in the Olympics. Norwegian skater Stein Krosby accused the Soviet of handing him packets of steroid tablets at a World Cup race in Switzerland last month. However, the International Olympic Committee said it didn't have enough evidence to keep Goulaev out of the Olympics.

Fletcher, the best American hope to win an alpine medal following a season-long series of injuries to her teammates, crashed into Steve Lounds, a 6-foot-2, 220-pound volunteer course worker, about two hours before the scheduled start of the downhill.

X-rays taken at Foothills Hospital showed the 25-year-old Fletcher suffered a fracture of the right leg, and bruises to the right upper arm and right ribs.

"It was like hitting an oak tree," said Fletcher, 5-foot-2, 130 pounds. "He was 6-feet, maybe taller, so he was much larger than I was and I got the brunt of it."

"It's kind of like the (movie and book) Amityville Horror, you know where the house is saying, 'Get out.' You know you kind of feel like, 'What else could go wrong?'"

Fletcher is the 10th prominent American skier to be struck by injury this season. The wounded include Bill Johnson and Debbie Armstrong, both gold medal winners at Sarajevo in 1984, and Tamara McKinney.

Gardening

Improper Watering Can Lead To Serious Pollution Problems

Water pollution is seriously threatening the environment of this state. Yet many do not realize that they themselves could be the cause of that pollution. For example, your garden, lawn or waterfront home could be a source of pollution.

There are two ways pollutants can reach water—through runoff and leaching. Runoff is the physical transport of pollutants over surface lands. Leaching is a process whereby pollutants are flushed out of soil by water as it percolates through the ground. In many areas of Florida, where land is flat, sandy and porous, leaching is more serious a concern than runoff.

The grass on your lawn holds topsoil in place and absorbs nutrients that can pollute water. Yet improper management of turfgrass may cause water quality problems. Some home gardeners, in order to have a lush, attractive lawn, water and fertilize too much. Since most Florida turfgrass is grown on sandy soils that hold water poorly. It is easy to flush out expensive fertilizer with the lawn sprinkler.

Follow these tips to reduce pollution and save fertilizer. Remember, your objective is to keep water and fertilizer in the root zone of the grass for as long as possible.

1. Apply no more than 3/4 inch of water per irrigation. You can measure this by placing a bowl where it will fill with water from the sprinkler and measure the amount with a ruler and note the time it takes to do this with your sprinkler system so next time you won't have to measure. Just time it.

2. Make sure your sprinkling system applies water uniformly. Don't let the reach of two sprinklers overlap excessively.

3. Adjust your water to the season. In summer you may need to water a few times a week. In winter, you may want to water less. Watch the grass for a bluish-gray color. This indicates grass is wilting and needs to be watered.

4. Look for the words "Slow release" or "insoluble" on fertilizer labels. Nitrogen in this type of fertilizer will not wash away as quickly.

5. Don't be fooled by the word "organic". Some organic fertilizers leach as quickly as inorganic.

6. Increase mowing height of lawns: this increased height allows the plant to develop a deep root system. A 3 to 4 inch height is recommended.

7. After fertilizing, apply only enough water so that the fertilizer reaches the root zone. If soil is very dry, water your lawn before fertilizing, but allow grass to dry

8. Apply nitrogen at low enough rates so that the turf can absorb it readily. Generally about one pound of nitrogen per 1,000 sq. ft. per application is adequate and safe.

Pest control of lawns should be done with a great deal of care, because pesticides are often toxic. Avoid applying pesticides as a preventative measure. Instead, scout your lawn weekly for pest infestation. When a problem arises, treat it promptly. Spot treatment of a pest problem is usually as effective as treating the whole lawn. Call me at the Agriculture Center if you are unsure if you have an insect or disease problem.

Water belongs to everybody and protecting it is the responsibility of each of us. If everyone would fight pollution on their own turf, a lot could be accomplished. As the saying goes, if you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem. Be part of the solution.

Personal Question On Health Insurance Form Deals With Risk

DEAR ABBY: I had to write to you after reading your response to "A Private Person in Atlanta." It appears her company was offering their employees health insurance and one of their questions was: "At what age did you have your first sexual encounter?" She stated it was nobody's business, left it blank, and you agreed with her.

Well, Abby, that is a pertinent question for any company that takes on the health risks of women. The earlier a woman engages in sexual activity, the higher her risk for early development of cervical cancer.

It is a scientific fact that women who have their first sexual intercourse at a young age are at greater risk for cervical cancer.

I doubt that you will print this letter, but I think you should, not so much for "A Private Person in Atlanta," but for all the adolescent women who are considering becoming sexually active. They should have as many of the facts as possible before making their decision.

NICK GIANNONE, M.D., FREEPORT, TEXAS

DEAR DOCTOR: Thanks to readers like you, I am always learning. I hope your important message reaches women of every age who will share this knowledge.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am the single mother of a 10-month-old daughter. I am on a very limited budget, but "Sandra," a dear friend of mine, has a daughter a year older than mine, and she gives me the clothes her daughter has outgrown. They're as good as new.

I am grateful for her generosity, but every time Sandra sees my daughter in something she has given me, she never fails to comment to everyone who happens to be present that my daughter is wearing her daughter's hand-me-downs. I find this embarrassing. Lately, if I think I might run into Sandra, I either leave my daughter at home or make sure she's wearing one of the few outfits I was able to buy for her myself.

I don't want to lose Sandra's friendship and the clothes she gives me help a lot, but I just can't take the embarrassment anymore. Should I tell her, or what?

SENSITIVE

DEAR SENSITIVE: Even well-to-do friends and relatives welcome children's hand-me-downs without feeling like "charity cases." However, since you find Sandra's public announcements embarrassing, you could either tell her privately how you feel, or you could beat her to the punch and proudly tell your friends how lucky you are to come into such lovely things due to Sandra's generosity.

DEAR ABBY: Add this to your file of ungrateful people: Two years ago, I went to the bank where I have had my account for many years. I handed the teller two 20s and a $10 bill, and asked her for 50 $1 bills. She gave me 50 $10 bills—that's a total of $500! I started to tell her that she had made a mistake, when she said, "Please move along. I have a long line of people to wait on."

I finally was able to convince her that she had made a mistake and given me too much money. She took the money back, gave me the correct amount and turned to the next customer without so much as a "thank you" to me.

But that night, I slept soundly.
JERRY FAYNER, BALTIMORE

DEAR JERRY: Although virtue is its own reward, a simple acknowledgment of yours would have been in order. The teller was not only rude, she was probably too arrogant to acknowledge her mistake.

Staph Infections Don't Always Stick

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've heard that once people have had a staph infection, they are always carriers. Is this true?
 DEAR READER: Not true. Staphylococci, like other bacteria, are quite common in our environment. In fact, our skins are literally coated with them. Over time, our immune systems have learned to cope with staph.
 However, on occasion, the number of germs can exceed the body's capability, and infection develops. Staph bacteria characteristically cause pimples, boils and abscesses. Usually, such infections are mere nuisances, although large staph infections may have to be surgically drained.
 In people with weakened immune systems, staph germs can easily gain a beachhead and cause serious infection, particularly of bone, bloodstream, heart and lungs. Staph pneumonia often follows influenza in people who have been sick with this and other viral illnesses.
 Because staphylococci are resistant to many antibiotics, treatment can be difficult and prolonged. However, once a patient has been cured of the staph infection, he or she returns to normal; the bacteria do not necessarily remain in the body. Therefore, a person who has had a staph infection is not automatically a carrier.
 On the other hand, some people who have never had a staph infection may be carriers of staphylococcus germs. These people are otherwise healthy, but they harbor staph — especially in the nose or in skin pores — that can be spread to other, susceptible individuals. Carriers have not necessarily had staph infection; due to an immunological peculiarity, they have achieved a balance with the staph without destroying the bacteria. Carriers can pose quite a threat to less healthy individuals, particularly if the unwitting carrier is a health professional who works with the sick — for example, in hospital operating rooms or newborn nurseries. Even though carriers may not themselves be ill, they are infectious and must be treated with antibiotics.
 DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 42 and drank excessively for the last 15 years. During this past year, I've been passed out most of the time — I drank a quart of whiskey every day. I've noticed that my mind goes blank every now and again. Is this due to the booze?

 DEAR READER: In all likelihood, yes. Alcohol causes brain damage, and you are certainly drinking enough to experience alcohol-induced disorders. These include blackouts, memory loss, impaired judgment, abnormalities of coordination, personality changes — in addition to the usual consequences of alcohol abuse, such as heart, liver and circulatory diseases.

 In my opinion, you have a major problem for which the treatment is sobriety. I urge you to seek help in the form of medical attention, alcohol counseling or Alcoholics Anonymous. I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help II — Mental/Substance Abuse," which lists groups and referral sources that may be of help.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
 Defense is the most complicated aspect of bridge. The defender sees the dummy and his own cards, but he has to use his imagination to place the cards held by declarer and his own partner. Doing the right thing becomes a difficult task. So let me help you out with today's deal. You will defeat the contract if you follow a simple rule. When in doubt as to the correct defense, make the play that will prevent declarer from accomplishing whatever he is attempting.
 East won dummy's spade king with his ace and returned the spade 10. Declarer won dummy's queen and played a diamond back to his queen. Next came the king of hearts. East saw no reason to take this trick. Declarer continued with the jack of hearts. I think you see what is necessary. East held up again on this trick, thereby preventing declarer from getting to dummy. South led a spade and West had to win the jack. A diamond play from West now would be a terrible error, but West played the ace of clubs. Declarer ruffed and led a heart, but East had the fourth spade for an exit card, and so South was unable to reach dummy to play a second diamond. He had to give up the setting trick in diamonds.

 You can call it defending passively, or locking declarer out of dummy. But East simply saw what South was trying to do with his heart plays, and took appropriate countermeasures.

Israel's Resolution On Waldheim Angers

VIENNA (UPI) — Austria has protested an alleged resolution by the Israeli parliament that reportedly condemns President Kurt Waldheim as a "Nazi criminal" and urges Austrians to demand his resignation so he can be tried for war crimes.

An Israeli Embassy spokesman in Vienna said the Austrian Foreign Ministry lodged the protest Thursday with Israeli Charge d'Affaires Gideon Yarden.

The Austrian officials expressed their government's "dismay" over the resolution and described it as "an insult to Austria," said Israeli Embassy spokesman Dan Ashbel.

Officials in Jerusalem were not immediately able to confirm if the Knesset, Israel's parliament, passed a resolution on Waldheim — embroiled in controversy over his past as a German army officer and his alleged participation in the persecution of Jews and others during World War II.

Grocery Chain's First Link To Be Lake Mary

Sanford developer Stan Sandefur has announced plans for a new shopping center in Lake Mary which will have as its anchor a new chain grocery store for the Central Florida area.

The center, to be built on a 12-acre site at the southeast corner of Lake Mary Boulevard and Longwood Lake Mary Road, will have as its anchor a Food Lion store. Sandefur says Food Lion is a $3 billion corporation headquartered in North Carolina with stores throughout the Carolinas and Georgia.

The company plans to open 200 grocery stores in Florida in the next few years, including one in DeLand which Sandefur plans to build next year.

The Lake Mary center, to be called The Oaks Shopping Center, is a $7 million project which will include 700,000 square feet of retail space, including a major drug store. Sandefur said about 60 percent of the space in the center has been leased. Rezoning and the preliminary site plan for the center have been approved by the city of Lake Mary, and Sandefur said he plans to begin construction in May and open the center in January.

Sandefur, who has developed other centers, including Country Club Shopping Center at the corner of 25th Street and Airport Boulevard, said he plans to save as many of the large oak trees on the Lake Mary site as possible, from which the name of the center is derived.

He said he thinks the center and the new grocery chain will both be assets to the community. "Typically, when a Food Lion store opens in a community, the competition lowers overall food prices by 5 to 10 percent, so I think the new stores will benefit the entire community," he said.

Spring Verdict Expected For 'Ivan The Terrible'

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A verdict in the war crimes trial of retired Ohio autoworker John Demjanjuk, accused of being the sadistic Nazi death camp guard "Ivan the Terrible," is not expected until spring, court sources say.

Arguments in one of Israel's most sensational and longest trials ended Thursday after seven days of summations by defense lawyers for Demjanjuk, who could be hanged if convicted.

Two of Demjanjuk's lawyers pleaded for acquittal and his family sobbed and shouted at the court in an emotional outburst moments before the year-old trial concluded.

Prosecutor Michael Shaked had spoken briefly at the end to deny a charge by defense lawyer Paul Chumak that the state had hindered the defense. The prosecutor said the state had, in fact, gone out of its way to help lawyers gather evidence for Demjanjuk.

John Demjanjuk Jr., 22, then stood up, glared at Shaked and stalked onto the stage of the movie theater that has served as courtroom since the trial began a year ago.

Stocks Open Tad Lower

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened slightly lower today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which fell 14.58 Thursday, was off 8.83 to 1980.77 shortly after the market opened.

Declines edged advances 485-405 among the 1,384 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape.

Early turnover amounted to about 18,900,000 shares.

Stocks retreated Thursday when a final-hour burst of selling dragged the Dow Jones industrial average below the 2000 level. Traders cited profit taking and fears of a correction for the decline.

"The market had been doing a dance of death all day around the 2000 level," said Al Goldman, market strategist with A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis. "There was no conviction and no momentum. And then the Ford earnings came out, and that increased the discomfort level."

Dollar Gets Its Boost From Reagan Budget

By United Press International

The dollar, reacting to President Reagan's new budget proposal calling for deficit reduction, was higher today on major world money markets. Gold was lower.

Currency market watchers said the dollar's strengthening was attributable in part to President Reagan's $1.1 trillion budget proposal, announced Thursday, which calls for trimming the budget deficit from this year's estimated $146.7 billion to $129.5 billion in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, 1988.

Silver opened 10 cents lower in Zurich at $6.35 an ounce, and lost 8 cents in London to $6.35 an ounce.

Forecast: Slower Growth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration said today the stock market collapse and tighter monetary policy by the Federal Reserve Board will slow but not stop economic growth in 1988.

Real gross national product, the inflation-adjusted value of goods and services produced by the United States, will grow by 2.4 percent this year, according to the Economic Report of the President, which was presented to Congress.

"Fortunately," said Beryl Sprinkel, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisors, "the market system suffered minimal damage" when the Dow Jones industrial average plunged 508 points on Oct. 19, known as "Black Monday."

may not have enough students wanting to take some classes.

Reichert said if a teacher was certified to teach agriculture, but the school only has enough students to fill four classes, a fifth class for that instructor to teach would have to be found. "Sometimes the principal can find another class that teacher is certified for and sometimes he can't."

Assigning a teacher to work "out-of-field" is not something a principal does arbitrarily," Reichert said. State law requires a principal to make every effort to assign a certified teacher if it can be done.

"The principal isn't going to ask an agriculture teacher to take over a calculus class," Reichert said, but the principal might find a subject closer to the teacher's field for assignment.

If a teacher is given an "out-of-field" class the school board will normally give the individual three years to get certified in the subject, as long as they take at least six hours of coursework a year in the subject, according to Reichert.

The state requires anywhere from six to 30 hours of coursework for certification depending on the type of subject it is, Reichert said. He added that even with the courses that require more coursework than others a teacher should be able to get certified within three years.

However, he said the state doesn't allow that grace period, so that while a teacher isn't certified for a class the school system isn't getting the funds it would for a certified teacher.

However, there are questions being raised as to why teachers would want to spend the time and money to become certified in classes they never wanted to teach in the first place.

Neiswander's suggestion to reimburse teachers for the classes they have to take to become certified could go a long way towards encouraging teachers to take those classes to begin with, according to Marshall Ogletree, executive director for the Seminole Education Association.

He said there's a possibility something could be negotiated between the school district and teachers to help ease the "out-of-field" problem in the future.

Ogletree said Neiswander's idea might also help to create a better relationship between teachers and administrators when it came to having to teach an "out-of-field" class.

Ogletree said other incentives, in addition to reimbursement, could also be looked at for the certification problem, but he didn't think the school board can just implement them on their own.

"I think the board will have to negotiate something with the teachers," Ogletree said.

Ogletree and Reichert both agree that if the school district can save money by getting more of its teachers certified the board should consider Neiswander's suggestion.

The loss to the district for each class un-certified teacher is approximately $30,000-$40,000 per class, according to Carey Farrell, assistant superintendent of business and finance for the school district. He said the problem suffered by the school system because of "out-of-field" instructors gets better every year though.

"It's to our advantage to pay somebody (to get certified). It certainly wouldn't cost $650,000-a-year to do that," Farrell said.

N.Y. Post Faces Closure

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bleary-eyed New York Post negotiators, joined by owner Rupert Murdoch and the leader of the powerful drivers' union, resumed talks today as the nation's longest continuously published newspaper faced a 2 p.m. closure deadline.

Murdoch, the Australian-born publishing magnate, has threatened to close the paper if agreement on union givebacks that would allow a sale are not made. And with just four hours to go, Murdoch joined the talks for the first time since he set the sale deadline.

But Murdoch was only in the room about 10 minutes.

"They're going to sit there for the next 3 1/2 hours and see what they can work out," he said when he came out.

"Just a little movement will achieve the necessary savings," he said, explaining that the difference between management and the unions only amounted to about $4 million a year.

Murdoch said negotiations were "all working hard and with great good will."

He said he would "feel very sad" if the Post folded, but added, "I'm losing $100,000 a day — I'm not going to lose any more."

Asked if he would extend the 2 p.m. EST deadline, he shook his head. "I will not stop the clock."

Was he pessimistic? "I'm never pessimistic," he replied.

What could be the paper's last edition came out today, ironically with a headline on a murder trial that read: "Only hours to live..."

Post management and eight of its nine unions met over 13 hours until nearly midnight Thursday to keep the financially troubled tabloid operating past the deadline.

Driver's union leader Jerry Cronin said management rejected part of his package Thursday night, but "I'm hoping for some good news today."

"You can't believe anything these guys tell you," Cronin said as he arrived for the meeting. "We're perfectly willing to negotiate."

"There's been some progress but there's a long way to go," Post publisher Patrick Purcell said after emerging from bargaining with the Allied Printing Trades Council.

him (Norris) at $40,000 by next year."

Fear, Percy and Tremel came to Norris' defense. All said they feel Norris is doing a good job and deserves a salary increase.

Tremel said he does have some questions about Norris' preparedness at commission meetings and he listed those reservations on the city manager's evaluation. "I talked with Bob about it and I've already seen some progress," Tremel said.

One of the reasons Tremel said Norris may be having difficulty with the job is the working environment in the city hall. He told the commission it's very tough to get any work done in the atmosphere because of the cramped quarters and lack of personnel.

"There are probably individuals sitting here (at the commission desk) tonight that have larger single offices than the whole city staff works in. I challenge any of you to bring your work down here for a week and then take your work back to your employer and not see a drop-off," Tremel said.

Morris agreed the working environment of city hall is difficult, but questioned why the city manager hasn't done or suggested something to ease the problem.

Percy said he feels Norris is doing a fine job, and that the attack against Norris might be based on campaign promises made by commissioners that were elected last October.

Percy said perhaps one of the problems with Norris' performance is that the city commission continually refuses to let him do his job because of their constant meddling. "I think we need to learn to be city commissioners," he said.

It was Duryea who suggested the 2 1/2 percent instead of the 10 percent raise. He agreed that a 12.1 percent raise in Norris' first year is enough.

Duryea said he was undecided Thursday morning as to whether he would support a raise for Norris.

"My object is not one of merit," Duryea said of his motion to give Norris the smaller raise. He told the commission he just feels Norris already received enough for one year.

"Just because a person doesn't get a raise doesn't mean he isn't worth a flip," Duryea said.

City Planner Matthew West said the commission's vote was really sending a message to the rest of the city staff about their future with the city. "I see this vote as a direct reflection on my job. I see the vote as a signal that the majority of city staff had better start looking for other jobs," West said.

Like Norris, West said he was also hired for a lower salary because he had less qualifications than other candidates that would have applied if the city had offered more money. He said that now the commission may be looking to bring in other people all the way around.

"I've never seen such an adversarial position by a commission against its city staff," West said.

West said perhaps he and the whole city staff had better start thinking about putting out their resumes right away based on the commission's vote.

Norris said before the vote he would have to assume not getting a raise to mean a lack of confidence in his abilities by the commission. He said he thinks he has done a very good job for the city and deserved the 10 percent raise.

Brainless Baby Kept Alive For Organ Transplants

LOMA LINDA, Calif. (UPI)—Baby John, born this week virtually without a brain, has been declared brain dead and put on a respirator, becoming the first infant used in a controversial program that "harvests" organs for transplants.

Four infants were identified as potential recipients of a liver from Baby John, the first anencephalic baby in the United States kept alive so his organs can be used for transplants.

Doctors at Loma Linda University Medical Center declared the 2-day-old boy brain dead early Thursday following a series of tests that began Wednesday night to determine whether he met California's criteria for brain death.

The infant was being kept on a respirator to allow oxygen to flow through his vital organs and keep them suitable for transplant. Dr. Joyce Peabody said during a news conference.

She said the hospital, working with the Southern California Organ Procurement and Preservation Center, had identified four infants with the same blood type in need of a liver and a transplant was expected within 48 hours. Loma Linda has a baby awaiting a heart transplant, but their blood types are incompatible and no other potential heart transplant patients had been located.

Critics charge Loma Linda's program disregards the rights of anencephalic infants and strongly hinted babies were viewed solely as sources of transplantable organs. They also charged that Loma Linda, noted for infant heart transplantation, displayed self-serving interests.

But Dr. Glenn Graber, director of the University of Tennessee's medical ethics program, said he supported the decision to keep Baby John alive.

"It's a good idea for the same reason any transplant is a good idea. I don't think it sends us down any slippery slopes. I think the laws (on death) are too restrictive. Although this child was born breathing, it had none of the brain that makes a person," Graber said.

Baby John was born with a rare congenital abnormality in which a brain stem is present but the two cerebral hemispheres, the seat of all higher human functioning and intelligence, fail to develop.

Anencephalics usually live no more than a few hours, sometimes days. There are between 3,500 and 5,000 anencephalics born in the United States every year.

Peabody described the child's grieving mother as "happy that Baby John could help someone else."

Baby John was born Tuesday in Anaheim, Calif. He was resuscitated within moments of birth and transferred that night to Loma Linda, where he was put on life-support systems.

Baby John is the first anencephalic infant to be declared brain dead under Loma Linda's nearly 3-month-old guidelines aimed at maintaining vital functions while doctors search for potential organ recipients.

Loma Linda's plan basically calls for keeping such infants functioning by respirator for up to seven days, during which time potential organ recipients will be sought.

"The problem is that it takes us away from the very clear-cut guidelines (about death) we've had in the past," Graber said.

Stipulations outlined in the plan concern organ donations from anencephalics only and cannot be applied to other infants, said Peabody, the report's principal author.

"In the good old days there was one kind of death," she said, referring to heart cessation. "The baby is legally dead today on the basis of brain stem or total brain death."

She said his kidneys probably would not be used for transplant because of the limited success of such transplants involving newborns.

Dr. William Goldie, chief of neurophysiology at Children's Hospital in Los Angeles and an associate professor of pediatric neurology at the USC School of Medicine, said anencephaly "is incompatible with life."

The case revives a controversy that brewed late last year when a special committee of ethicists, lawyers and doctors at Loma Linda approved a plan to use anencephalics for organ transplants.

'Country' Designs In Applique, Tupanto

Story And Photos
By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

Barbara Woodward creates designs of applique and Tupanto

Stitchery - An Embellishment Of Life

Stitchery has traditionally been the craft of women and a mainstay, as well as an embellishment, of life.

Barbara Woodward, who grew up in the Pennsylvania Dutch area said that she has sewn all of her life, but now her stitchery is more art than craft.

Woodward now specializes in creating her own applique designs and she also does tupanto stitch.

The tupanto stitch, which is an outlining in stitch of a design on a fabric which has a backing. The design may be preprinted onto the fabric or may be an applique. In either case, as the outline is stitched stuffing is added to some sections of the design to create a relief effect.

She calls her work "soft crafts," and many of her designs are "country," which is the vogue today, because, she said, "life is so hectic and fast.

"The only way to think about old times and be more relaxed is to fill the home with it (country crafts)," she said.

However, Woodward confided. "I was raised with it. My home is glass and chrome. I don't have this (her crafts) in my home."

She does apply the technique to other more contemporary designs, such as ones featuring wild animals.

Woodward, with her work on display in rural Winter Park, may have had enough of her applique and tupanto stitchery, but that doesn't stop her from creating designs that please others.

Sanford's Linda Renfro, who works only in applique and hasn't tried tupanto, said that with applique she can choose the fabrics she wants as well as the colors to create a collage, which becomes the cover for a pillow.

Renfro said she gets design ideas from magazines and then develops her own applique designs. Her stitching is done by hand and her work has the look of an authentic, handstitched quilt pattern. Since her work is done by hand, Renfro said she doesn't have to practice to keep her stitching even as one might when sewing applique with a machine.

Woodward said a change from her stitchery of today and the old days is that today, she does her stitching by machine and stuffs her tupanto stitch pieces as they develop.

The basics of tupanto, she said, is to take a piece of fabric, with an applique or print design and back it with a piece of muslin. Between these two layers she places a sheet of fiberfill. "Then I stitch around the design, fill in as needed with fiberfill.

"It doesn't matter where you start outlining and fill in the design, except if you're working with a quilt top print. Then you have to start in from the center, or you will seal yourself out.

"I stuff continuously. The old method — you did it by hand and would completely outline the design with stitches and then make slits in the back fabric and put the stuffing in. The new method is easier," she said, although it is a break with the traditional techniques of her heritage.

Woodward, who lives in Sorrento, said her daughter too is carrying on the seamstress tradition of her family and practices the same craft.

And practice, Woodward said, is just what it takes to master this art and to learn control over the stitching and stuffing to perfect the design.

"The secret is a lot of practice. If you don't get it right it's going to stick out where it shouldn't. You'll get a big bunch here and a big bunch there. It just takes a lot of patience," Woodward said of the technique to create her padded designs.

As creative as she is with her designs — which Woodward said she prefers over factory made panels because they are always available on demand — are array of functional items to which Woodward has applied her stitchery.

In addition to making simple scenes for framing or to be housed inside hoops, Woodward also creates plumply covered sewing boxes using her tupanto stitchery.

Hassocks and hampers also are objects that she dresses up with plush designs of plump hearts, farm animals, girls in country dress as well as other scenes.

With a few changes in technique, Woodward is keeping alive the stitch witchery of her foremothers, with results that please and sooth the jaded eye of today, with a look back to the more rustic past.

'The Last Emperor,' 'Broadcast News' Top Nominees

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bernardo Bertolucci's "The Last Emperor" and "Broadcast News," a romantic story set in the world of television journalism, dominated the Academy Award nominations announced today by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

"The Last Emperor" received nine nominations and "Broadcast News" had seven. Both are in the competition for best picture, along with "Fatal Attraction," "Hope and Glory" and "Moonstruck."

The thriller "Fatal Attraction" and "Moonstruck," a story of romance in an Italian-American family, each had six nominations and placed members of their casts in the competition for best actress — Cher for "Moonstruck" and Glen Close for "Fatal Attraction."

Also in the best-actress field are Holly Hunter from "Broadcast News," Sally Kirkland from "Anna" and Meryl Streep from "Ironwood."

The best actor field was headed by two familiar Oscar figures — two-time winner Jack Nicholson from "Ironwood" and William Hurt, the shallow anchorman from "Broadcast News," who won an Oscar for "Kiss of the Spider Woman." Also nominated were Michael Douglas in "Wall Street,"

Marcello Mastroianni in "Dark Eyes" and Robin Williams in "Good Morning, Vietnam."

In addition to the best picture nomination, "The Last Emperor" was selected for achievements in directing, art direction, cinematography, costume design, film editing, original score, sound and screenplay.

A saga of the life of China's last spiritual and temporal leader, "Emperor," received wide critical acclaim.

Another historical film that became an industry favorite, "Empire of the Sun" told of a young boy's quick coming of age in the opening of World War II. Steven Spielberg, however, was passed up by his peers as best director, continuing a pattern of Oscar slights.

Industry insiders accused the academy directors of pettiness after the DGA named Spielberg best director for "The Color Purple" in 1986, and the Academy did not nominate him for the honor or the movie for best picture for that year.

Spielberg has been nominated for the Oscar three times — "E.T.: The Extraterrestrial," "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." He has never won.

Another conflict in the nominations involves best picture contender "Broadcast News," whose director James L. Brooks was not nominated for individual achievement.

In an interesting side note to the best director category, all nominees are foreign born.

The academy's 4,400 members will now vote for the winners to be revealed April 11 at the nationally televised 60th annual Academy Award presentations at the Shrine Auditorium.

Nominees are selected by each of the 12 Academy branches voting only for those achievements in their fields, except for best picture, which is chosen by the entire membership.

Season Hubley Has Arresting New Role

By Frank Sanello HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — No one can ever accuse actress Season Hubley of allowing herself to be typecast as a beautiful young woman — which she happens nonetheless to be.

Instead of walking her way through roles as a languorous beauty or an arm ornament for men, she's played everything from prostitutes to Valium addicts, rape victims to Egyptian princesses. She was even buried alive in an episode of "Alfred Hitchcock Presents."

And in between, the New York-born actress finds time to save animals from "death row" at the Los Angeles pound.

"The parts I've enjoyed most are the ones in which I could fully explore a character, a person with many different facets," explains Hubley. "I like to show the warts, things that aren't so pretty. I don't like to play someone who looks perfect."

This year, Hubley adds yet another unusual role to her resume: She plays a vice cop who busts Los Angeles' most notorious brothel in CBS's "Shakedown."

Originally, the TV-movie title was the much more evocative "Vice Queen of Sunset Strip." "Knots Landing" regular Joan Van Ark stars as the real-life operator of a ritzy bordello in Tinseltown right after World War II. In roles that are also based on real-life characters, Hubley and Perry King are the vice-squad officers who bust her. The case caused a major scandal as the madam made good on her threat to expose all her customers, many of whom were members of the city's political and social elite.

To research her role, Hubley hung out with the vice officers who served as consultants on the project. "Some of them knew my character, Audre Davis, and they told me fascinating stories about her. She was apparently a very tough lady," says Hubley. "You had to be in those days, since very few women were vice officers. The only reason they let women on the force in the first place was because they needed somebody to go undercover as prostitutes."

"Shakedown" won't be the first time Hubley has encountered life's seamier side in her work. In the 1979 feature film "Hardcore," the actress played a young hooker who helps George C. Scott find his runaway daughter. For that role, she also hung out with the real thing.

"It was not a pleasant experience, but at the same time it was a terribly rewarding role," she says.

Hubley had a much better time on "Blue Skies," an upcoming CBS mid-season replacement. The hour-long drama stars Hubley as a sophisticated New Yorker who moves to Oregon and runs a mill there with Tom Wopat ("Dukes of Hazzard").

The actress promises that despite her character's New York sophistication, "once she gets to Oregon, she becomes pretty earthy and down-home."

"Earthy" might be a good way to describe Hubley's own home life. Although she lives in ultrafashionable Hollywood Hills, she says her place looks more like a ranch than a mansion, since it's populated with six cats, two goats, two turtles and a dog named Lambchop.

"He's an m-u-t-t," she confides, spelling the word out so as not to offend the astute canine, who is within hearing distance.

The Voices Behind The Raisins

Dear Dick: I am fascinated with the California raisin commercials, and I would like to know whose voices they use. The one they had around last Christmas season certainly sounded like one of the "Olligan's Island" people. Did I guess right? — P.J.B., Pans-outaway, Pa.

Dear P.J.B.: No, and not even a cigar for being close. The California raisin people told me over the phone — and, for all I know, I could have been speaking directly to a raisin — that they use professional actors, but no big names. The Christmas one you mentioned was done by a group called The Street Corner Singers, who live and perform around Portland, Ore.

Dear Dick: Years ago there was a TV program starring James Franciscus, who played a blind detective. Would you please tell us the name of that show. — K.K., Middleburg, Fla.

Dear K.K.: That was "Longstreet," and it ran on ABC in 1971-72.

Dear Dick: I have been wondering if there was ever a movie with Gregory Peck and Trevor Howard (around 1934) called "The Missing Man." Sometime ago I had a dream and all that I recall was that title. Does such a film exist? — K.K., Houston, Texas.

Dear K.K.: Go back to sleep. I find no record of a film by that name ever being released. And, anyhow, in 1934 Peck was only 18 — his first movie was not until 1943.

Dear Dick: Is the man who plays Steven, the psychiatrist and Ashley Abbott's recent husband on "The Young and the Restless," the same man who played Sue Ellen's boyfriend, Dusty Farlow, several years back on "Dallas"? — S.B., Morris, Ohio.

Ask Dick Kleiner

Dear S.B.: No. Dusty Farlow was played by Jared Martin. Rod Arrants is the actor who plays Dr. Steven Lassiter.

Dear Dick: Years ago, Ken Murray made a movie using parakeets dressed up as firemen, etc. My grandson recently acquired a pair of birds and I would like to know if that movie is available so he can see it. — Mrs. L.W., Amarillo, Texas.

Dear Mrs. L.W.: That was "Bill and Co.," and, according to my latest list, it has not been issued on cassette.

Dear Dick: About 30 years ago, I saw an old movie with Tyrans Power in which he went back in time while he was delirious with fever. I have searched for years, trying to find the name of that movie. Please help me. — J.Y.,

Rigby, Idaho.

Dear J.Y.: It's possible the movie was "I'll Never Forget You," a remake of the classic "Berkeley Square," but I can't be sure.

Dear Dick: Some time ago there was a comedy series, with Imogene Coss as part of a cave family. They were discovered by astronauts and brought to modern times. Could you please furnish the title of that comedy. — P.A.L., Harbour Heights, Fla.

Dear P.A.L.: That was a little floperoo called "It's About Time." Joe E. Ross played Imogene's husband. It was on CBS in 1966-67.

Dear Dick: At the end of a recent episode of "Magnum, P.I.," they flashed on the screen: "This episode is dedicated to the memory of Pete Carpenter." I know he and Mike Post did the music for the show, but what happened to him? — A.L., Joplin, Mo.

Dear A.L.: Carpenter died last October. He had been battling cancer for several years.

Dear Dick: You said Bernal Kopell played the pursuer on "The Love Boat." Didn't he play the doctor? But who did play the pursuer? Didn't he run for mayor somewhere? Did he get elected? — B.J., Houston.

Dear B.J.: You're right — that was a slip of the typewriter. Kopell was the doctor and Fred Grandy played the pursuer. Grandy ran for Congress in Iowa last year and won. He is now Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa.

Movie Colony Moves South For Big Party

By Vernon Scott
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A segment of the Movie-TV colony moved to San Diego this weekend for a million-dollar party that staggers the credulity of most of the guests.

The occasion is the 100-year anniversary of the opening of the old rococo Hotel del Coronado, a centennial blowout that will play host to a flock of stars accustomed to swank soirees and fancy fandangos.

Jeanne and M. Larry Lawrence, owners of the grand old hostelry for the past quarter century, will welcome some 35 Hollywood stars along with monted visitors from all over the world who are flying, sailing in their own yachts and otherwise flocking to San Diego, which played host to the Superbowl earlier this year.

Seven hundred tickets were sold to the gala at $5,000 per couple. Many of the buyers were wealthy former guests of the hotel, along with a sprinkling of Forbes 400.

What do cash-paying celebrants get for their five grand?

Well, the outlay includes a room for two nights, all the booze and food they can consume at the endless parties, limousine service to and from the airport and room service.

Included, too, is a weekend of endless entertainment and the opportunity to rub elbows with motion picture and television stars.

Proceeds from ticket sales to the party will go to such charities as The Thalamas, Childhelp USA and Mercy Crusade.

But the real star of the party is the hotel itself, one of the world's largest wooden structures and a prime example of Victorian architecture at its most gaudy.

When it opened, the Hotel del Coronado stood out like a beacon on the Coronado peninsula across the bay from the pueblo of San Diego, which was only a small port. It was a landmark that played host to the rich and famous from the very beginning.

The hotel was built by railroad tycoon Elisha Babcock and H.L. Story. They purchased 4,100 acres for the site for only $110,000 in 1885.

The del Coronado flung open its doors for business Feb. 19, 1888, and the original five-story structure remains in use today, in addition to two other structures built nearer the beach.

At one time it was the largest structure outside of New York City to be electrically lighted.

The hotel has played host to 12 presidents of the United States (from Benjamin Har-riison to Ronald Reagan), either before, during or after their administrations. It was also a favorite of visiting European bigwigs and has always been a spa for Americans with fat wallets.

One of the high points in the history of the 700-room hotel was back in 1920 when the Prince of Wales stopped there. Rumor has it that the prince, who was later to become king, first met his American mistress, Wallis Simpson, in the hotel's grand ballroom. At that time she was the wife of a U.S. Navy officer living in Coronado.

As if to sanction its standing among the world's famous hostelries, the del Coronado has been designated by Congress as a national historic landmark.

Short Takes

- Cost: $110,000 for 4,100 acres
- Opened: Feb. 19, 1888 - building still in use
- Guest: Prince of Wales (later King of England) first met Wallis Simpson (then married to a naval officer) at the Coronado. Their love affair topped the king.
- Guests of hotel: 13 presidents, plus thousands of celebrities
- Ticket cost for party: $5,000 per couple. All sold.

The rambling, red-shingled collection of white, balconied buildings is familiar to movie and TV audiences. Producers have used it for years as a posh and colorful location site for films needing a touch of grandeur.

Marilyn Monroe was a guest when director Billy Wilder filmed footage of "Some Like It Hot" at the del Coronado. It was also the background for several sequences of "The Stunt Man" starring Peter O'Toole. TV viewers have seen the place as a locale for such shows as "Hart to Hart" and "Simon & Simon."

It will be teeming with dozens of stars attending the gala this weekend.

Among those accepting invitations to the bash were Dionne Warwick, Cliff Robertson, Dorothy Lamour, Joan Collins, Connie Stevens, Dick Van Patten, Donna Mills, Sarah Purcell, Chad Everett, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Mary Martin, Hal Linden, June Allyson, Esther Williams, Phyllis Diller, Jane Powell and Donald O'Connor.

Also expected to attend were Barbara Eden, Van Johnson, George Burns, Kathryn Grayson, Charlene Tilton, Merv Griffin, Glenn Ford, Eva Gabor, William Shatner and Anne Jeffreys.

A party this size with its celebrity tennis tournament, harbor cruise, beach picnic, grand ball, all-star show, high tea, time capsule and other activities and events were beyond the talents of any host or hostess, so a professional party-giver was hired.

Putting the whole thing together was Wendy Moss, commonly described as "Dallas' Party Queen," an energetic brunette with headquarters in the Texas city.

Moss is no stranger to show biz. She's the daughter of former child actress Jane Withers. It should come as no surprise that party guests will be kept on the run from the moment they arrive.

"The harbor cruise will be conducted by Dennis Connor who won back the Americas Cup," said Moss, "and the winning yacht, Stars and Stripes, will be on display."

"We've planned a Victorian fashion show for the ladies and a two-hour all-star show with the stars singing for their supper. I'm producing the show, which will include a laser and light display."

"We've got the U.S. Navy marching band with flags of every state lining the driveway to the main entrance of the hotel. Every guest will enter through a time tunnel that will take them back to 1888."

"One of the big events is our 10 parties in one, each party representing a decade of the past century. Every 10-year period will be highlighted by music, costumes and decor that best represent each era. We even have street scenes in three-dimensional aspects to heighten the illusion."
