Dire Rumors Confuse Wait For Word On Missionaries

By Karen Talley
Herald Staff Writer

Wednesday's elation at word of three New Tribes Missionaries' imminent release by Colombian leftist rebels has settled today into anticipation, tinged with frustration, according to the organization's foreign minister E. Mel Wyma.

The hostages were reported dead on Venezuelan radio Wednesday, Wyma said. And an American press report said an airplane pilot had seen two of the missionaries tied to a tree in the Colombian jungle. These and other reports received by Wyma "are without validity," he said, "and make waiting for the real story that much harder."

"All we know right now is the kidnapers have agreed to a release, and it will have to be on their own terms," Wyma said.

He said the only "firm" word he has on the proposed release came Wednesday, when New Tribes field officers in Bogota told him a Colombian peace commission meeting Tuesday had resulted in the rebel's offering to free the missionaries.

Among those attending the commission meeting were representatives of the kidnapers, the mission and the Colombian government, Wyma said.

"We were not told when, where or how, just that they'd be let go. Now we're waiting to hear from Bogota," Wyma said today.

Bogota serves as location for the mission's Colombian field office, which is, according to Wyma, "our only reliable source of information."

He said following Wednesday's word of the hostage's release "all kinds of unfounded reports" have been circulating throughout this country and South America.

This makes the waiting "all the more difficult," according to Wyma, who said he spent yesterday "trying to get the real story, while trying to verify all the misinformation I received."

Four members of the New Tribes Mission were kidnapped more than three weeks ago by leftist guerrillas of the Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC). One of the missionaries, Paul Dye, 45, a pilot from Saginaw, Mich., escaped four days later. Still missing are Tim Cain, 35, of Keokuk, Iowa, his wife, Bonnie "Bunny" Cain, 33, of Alexandria, Va., and Steve Estelle, 34, of Douglas, Ariz. All four had been in Sanford prior to their journey to Colombia, Wyma said.

They were seized at a landing strip in eastern Colombia after Estelle and Dye flew to the region to pick up the Cains at the organization's mission outpost in Morcal Viejo. Cain was ill and was to be flown to New Tribes station in Villavieco for treatment, Wyma said.

Thus far, according to Wyma, the only direct word his organization has had with the kidnapers was a note demanding $130,000 for the release of Mrs. Cain and stating there would be no negotiations yet for the release of Cain and Estelle. He said Dye, who slipped away from the rebels after dark and escaped in the plane, flew over the hostage area on Oct. 17 and dropped leaflets informing the rebels the ransom would not be

Reagan Counter Proposal 'Close'

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, facing the superpower summit in 20 days, is "quite close" to responding to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's call for a 50 percent cut in offensive nuclear arms, an administration official says.

Published reports said the United States would present a "comprehensive" counterproposal to the Soviets Friday in Geneva, Switzerland, calling for a sharp mutual reduction in nuclear weapons and deep cuts in Soviet land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The Washington Post said Reagan, in a letter to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, asked for an extension of the current round of arms talks, due to end Friday, so the United States could present the proposal and the Soviets would have time to ask questions.

A White House spokesman declined comment but acknowledged he was not denying the report attributed to a senior administration official.

The president will be interviewed today by four Soviet journalists, described by White House spokesman Larry Speakes as "political commentators." The four arrived from Moscow Sunday and met with White House officials Wednesday.

Speakes said the White House approached the first deputy general of the Soviet news agency Tass with the suggestion that Reagan have an interview with the Soviet print media "in the interests of increased understanding."

The administration official, who asked for anonymity, said the Nov. 19-20 summit in Geneva, Switzerland, the first meeting between Reagan and Gorbachev, is not being viewed as "an occasion for concluding formal agreements."

A White House analysis of Gorbachev's arms proposal has been completed and the official said. "I think he's (Reagan) quite close to making a response," although the time and the place had not been decided.

The Soviet proposal, presented to U.S. negotiators at the strategic arms talks in Geneva last month, calls for a 50 percent cut in strategic offensive

'You Should Have Killed Me...'

2 Die In Woman's Shooting Rampage

SPRINGFIELD, Pa. (UPI) — A woman charged with spraying a suburban shopping mall with semiautomatic gunfire in a bloody rampage that left two dead and eight wounded said after her arrest: "You should have killed me on the spot."

Sylvia Seegrast, 24, Wednesday donned combat fatigues, drove to the Springfield Mall in suburban Philadelphia and fired with a .22-caliber rifle "at anybody and everybody who was in her path," said police Chief George Hill.

A 2-year-old boy and a 64-year-old man died during the rampage that lasted about four minutes, finally coming to an end when a volunteer fireman emerged from the whirl of terrified shoppers to tackle Seegrast and kick the semiautomatic weapon from her hands, police said.

"It's something you think you see on the TV and it could never happen here," said the volunteer fireman, John W. Laufer III, 24, who was fired at by the woman. "I don't think of myself as a hero. It was just a job that had to be done, and I was just glad I was there to do it to prevent any further harm."

A store manager said he saw a little girl who was lying bleeding among the wounded at the mall's main entrance. She apparently mistook Seegrast for a man and told him: "The man looked right at me and shot me. Why did he shoot me?"

Police said they had no motive for the attack. But a police source said it was believed the woman had a history of mental illness, and Laufer said she spoke of family problems while firing.

Seegrast, barefoot and handcuffed behind her back, snarled obscenities at a crowd gathered outside her arraignment, where she was ordered held without bail until a preliminary hearing next week on multiple counts of murder, attempted murder, aggravated assault and firearms violations.

"It's like hurry up, man. You know I'm guilty," she said to no one in particular. "You should have killed me on the spot."

Seegrast continued an obscene tirade about "communists" and a "black box." She said she was "bored, bored" and added: "My parents beat me up, of course."

"I had trouble with my parents, see," said Seegrast, a petite woman with reddish-brown hair who jerked her head as she spoke. "The police never handled my parents."

Laufer, of Media, Pa., said he was walking in the mall with his friend when he heard what he thought was fireworks or a Halloween joke. He said he did not realize a person was shooting a gun until he saw someone moving toward him with a rifle.

"She began to angle towards myself and the girl I was with and at that point I went up and approached her and she leveled the carbine at me and began to fire. I still don't know this morning how I was not hit," Laufer said on "The CBS Morning News."

Laufer said he approached the suspect because somebody had to do it.

"At the time there was just mass panic in the mall. I just felt nobody was doing anything at that time and something had to be done to arrest the individual," he said.

Hill said Laufer grabbed the suspect in front of a Kinney shoe store and threw her to the floor, then kicked the rifle from her hands.

"It makes me feel proud of him and it sounds like something he would do," said Laufer's father, John W. Laufer Jr., who de-

Men Track Youths Spotted 'Raising Hell'

2 Arrested In Wekiva Cabins Arson, Burglary

By Susan Loden
Herald Staff Writer

A Wekiva River boat captain and other men tracked down three suspects believed to have burned a cabin after burglarizing it and five others on Sunday. Two have been arrested.

The suspects were questioned by Seminole County sheriff's deputies following their capture and two were called into the Seminole County Sheriff's Department for questioning as part of a continuing investigation into the case early this week. They were arrested after questioning and charges are pending against the third suspect, Seminole County sheriff's spokesman John Spolski said.

'We've had a lot of vandalism. Thank God we could catch them this time.'

In the Sunday incident a cabin owned by John Duff near the Wekiva River Marina, near Sweetwater Oaks, was destroyed by fire after it was ransacked and burglarized. Five other cabins, all within about six miles of the marina were also burglarized and a chair and a $75 boat were stolen, a sheriff's report said.

Boat Captain Charles Dozier, who spotted the burning cabin, asked canoeists if they had seen any suspects near the scene, the report said. He was told that three boys in a small boat had been around the cabins "raising hell", the report said.

An owner of one of the burglarized cabins said today, "We've had a lot of vandalism. Thank God we could catch them this time."

Sunday, Dozier went to the Wekiva Marina and asked about the boys and another boat captain, Toll Coole said he had seen the boys around the cabin. Dozier and Gary Parnell search the area and located the suspects, the report said. They reportedly had a boat taken from the cabin of Gene Atwood and inside the boat was a chair allegedly stolen from the cabin of David Harmsworth, the report said.

The 18-year-old charged also reportedly had a cut hand and which was wrapped in a pillowcase identified as having been taken from the torched cabin, the report said.

A cabin owner said the cut on the 18-year-old's hand which was reportedly done on a piece of broken window glass at the burned cabin was reportedly the motive for the fire. He was angry because of the cut, so decided to burn the cabin, that victim said.

The suspects were questioned after their capture in the case, but Spolski said deputies needed to further probe the allegations made against them before making any arrests.

David Michael Franz, 18, of 78 Old Post Road, Longwood, was arrested in connection with the case at 10:14 a.m. Wednesday at the sheriff's department. He has been charged with arson, six counts of burglary of dwellings and petty theft. A 16-year-old Longwood boy was arrested Saturday on the same charges and the same charges are pending against another 16-year-old Longwood boy, Spolski said.

Franz was being held in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Cutting Family Planning Funds Purpose Of Pending Amendments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two members of Congress are planning a new strategy in an attempt to cut off federal money to family planning clinics that provide referrals or related information about abortions.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said Wednesday they intend to introduce amendments to the federal family planning program that would bar the use of federal funds for abortions and related services, such as counseling and counseling services.

But the organization Planned Parenthood said it would mount its own effort to fight the latest effort to restrict abortion information and called a news conference today to outline its plans.

The debate over abortion restrictions comes at a time when anti-abortion groups are urging Congress to end or severely cut back the federal family planning program, which last year distributed $140 million to 4,000 clinics.

"The wall of separation between abortion and federal activities has been more than breached," Hatch told a news conference Wednesday. "The wall has been razed. Now Congress must demand a return to the original intent of the Title 10 Family Planning Program."

William Hamilton, a spokesman for Planned Parenthood, said the Kemp-Hatch initiative would destroy family planning programs in the United States.

FBI Probes Human Organ Scam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A just-launched FBI investigation could determine whether two firms are exploiting loopholes in a year-old law banning sales of human organs for transplants, a congressional aide says.

If violations are found and charges are filed against the firms — one boasting beer baron Joseph Coors as an investor — they could be the first to be prosecuted under the new law, says Isabelle Claxton, a spokeswoman for the Senate Select Committee on Aging.

A Justice Department spokesman said Wednesday the FBI investigation was reported in letters to Sens. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., and John Heinz, R-Pa., who are committee members.

The two firms involved in the probe are the Transplant Foundation of McLean, Va., and Transplant Technologies Ltd. in Denver, Claxton said.

At issue is the National Organ Transplantation Act of 1984, which prohibits the sale of human organs for transplant or transferring organs for "any valuable consideration."

Claxton said the Virginia firm offers to sell an insurance policy for an unspecified amount of money to "guarantee" policyholders priority in receiving a human organ for transplant.

The transplant bank has several wealthy investors, Claxton said, including Coors, a close friend of President Reagan.

Socialite Calls Royal Organizer Who Posed Nude Embarrassing

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Socialite Mary Sanford says she cannot understand how a billionaire's wife who once posed nude for a magazine was picked as national co-chairwoman of a charity ball Prince Charles and Lady Di plan to grace.

The British press reported last week that nude photographs of Patricia Kluge, wife of investor John Kluge, were published in the 1970s in the magazine Knave.

Sanford, who heads the Palm Beach organizing committee for the party, Wednesday said Kluge, 36, was forced to resign as co-chairwoman. Sanford said Kluge quit just before the revelation.

"She must have known it was going to come out," Sanford said. "It certainly is embarrassing for the crown prince of England."

Kluge and her 71-year-old husband will be traveling abroad and not be attending the ball, according to United World Colleges, which is organizing the royal party.

Man Jailed In Postcard Threats

FORT LAUDERDALE, (UPI) — A former Air Force sergeant has been accused of mailing threatening postcards to House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., several other congressmen and a federal judge.

Ronald D. Davis, 62, of Fort Lauderdale, appeared before U.S. Magistrate Patricia Kyle Wednesday and was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bond on extortion charges, said Joseph V. Corless, agent in charge of the FBI's Miami office.

Kyle ordered Davis to undergo a psychiatric examination.

A complaint filed by the FBI alleges Davis mailed a typed postcard to Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, on Oct. 8, threatening him with physical violence. The postcard was intercepted prior to delivery, Corless said.

Sources said the postcards generally carried racist and anti-semitic remarks.

The complaint listed a series of threatening post cards that were mailed beginning in November 1983 from Fort Lauderdale to Miami U.S. District Court Judge Alcee L. Hastings, formerly of Altamonte Springs, a senator and about 10 congressmen.

Shuttle Crew Works In Shifts

Research Satellite Launched

By William Harwood
UPI Science Writer

Challenger's crew waded through a series of exotic medical experiments today and launched a small but controversial U.S. military research satellite in a shuttle Spacelab mission paid for by West Germany.

Working in shifts, the record eight-member crew has had relatively smooth sailing during the first two "days" of a planned weeklong mission, although a materials processing experiment has acted up and communications were scratchy.

NASA astronaut Gulton Bluford and Ernst Messerschmid, a West German physicist, took turns today peering into a disorienting "rotating dome" painted with psychedelic colored dots in an experiment to study the body's orientation.

Other experiments using a moving sled-like chair in the roomy Spacelab module were carried out to study how the lack of gravity affects the human balance system in research that could improve understanding of space sickness.

A brief report issued by the German payload control center near Munich said no crew members have suffered from "space adaptation syndrome" and "the crew is performing well and close to the timeline."

"This is definitely one of the highlights in the history of space flight for the Federal Republic of Germany," said Heinz Riesenhuber, West German federal minister for research and technology, in a message to the crew read by astronaut Sally Ride in NASA mission control.

German shuttle flier Reinhard Furrer thanked Riesenhuber for his congratulations on the shuttle launch Wednesday and replied that after his first 12-hour shift in orbit "it's nice to hear things like that."

Furrer's European crewmates for the weeklong mission are Messerschmid and Wubbo Ockels, a European Space Agency astronaut from the Netherlands. The NASA crew members are commander Henry Hartsfield, co-pilot Steven Nagel, Bonnie Dunbar, James Buchli and Bluford.

The crew is working in two shifts around the clock to gather as much information as possible from the 76 on-board experiments, most of them inside the European-built Spacelab module in Challenger's cargo bay.

The German Aerospace Research Establishment paid NASA about $67 million to charter Challenger for the mission, which is devoted primarily to materials processing research and experiments in life science.

The experiments are being controlled from Oberpfaffenhofen near Munich in a first for the shuttle program.

Wandering Juan's Cost Exceeds $1 Billion Mark

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Tropical storm Juan edged into the Gulf of Mexico today as officials in sodden Louisiana estimated that damages from high winds and water generated by the lingering system amounted to more than $1 billion.

More than 8,000 people have fled from their homes since Saturday to escape snake-infested floodwaters that reached as high as rooftops and were called the worst in a quarter century. Seven people died in the storm and at least eight others were missing.

The National Weather Service said the storm, which was downgraded from a hurricane Tuesday, could dump 2 to 4 inches of more rain in the Southeast.

Ten inches of rain had soaked southeastern Louisiana before a cold front pushed the center of the disorderly storm just south of Grand Isle in southern Louisiana early today.

Rivers and bayous receded slowly up river from New Orleans where more than 3,000 people fled their homes, but a new round of downpours Wednesday night kept water levels high and prevented most residents from returning.

Major sandbagging operations, bedeviled by snakes in the boggy swampland, continued along bulging levees that threatened rural communities with additional breaks and yet higher water.

A major crevice in a levee was reported late Wednesday south of New Orleans near Lafitte, where caskets from above-ground mausoleums floated through town.

Gov. Edwin Edwards said he would survey the damage as soon as weather permitted. He said an estimated 50,000 residences had been damaged and predicted Juan would cause $1 billion in losses to property and crops.

Edwards has declared a state of emergency in 24 of Louisiana's 64 parishes and has said he will seek federal disaster aid for 15 of those parishes.

Louisiana health officials shut down oyster fishing in the state's fertile coastal waters for at least a week because of pollution aggravated by Juan.

Hundreds of cattle reportedly drowned or had to be killed in Terrebonne and Lafourche parishes where ranchers struggled to move herds to higher ground.

Longwood Plans To Hike Developer Fees

By Jane Casselberry
Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commission has unanimously given preliminary approval to an increase in application fee schedules paid by developers. The proposed fees fall between those now in effect and a much bigger increase that was rejected last month and are more in line with staff recommendations.

A public hearing has been set for Nov. 18 on the ordinance, which would boost fees as follows: property rezoning from $100 to $400 plus advertising costs; change to the comprehensive ordinance/plan, from no fee to $400 plus advertising cost; non-conforming use request, no fee to $200; variance, $100 to $200; special exception, $50 to $200; site plan review, preliminary, $75-$100 to $500 plus $1 per dwelling unit and $10 per acre for non-residential; final site plan, no fee to $100 plus $2 per dwelling unit and non-residential, $10 per acre; conditional use, $50 to $200 plus advertising; annexation, $300 to $200 plus advertising (city commission can waive annexation fees at their discretion); Historic District application, $50 to $75 for under 10,000 sq. ft. and $100 for over 10,000 sq. ft.

A planned unit development would go from $300 to $500 for rezoning, plus $1 per dwelling unit and $10 per acre for non-residential, final master plan, $500 minor master plan revision, $350, preliminary site plan, $100 plus $1 per dwelling unit and $10 per acre for non-residential, and final site plan, $100 plus $2 per unit or $15 an acre.

Under the proposed schedule, an arbor ordinance permit would go from no fee to $100 for commercial/industrial. There would still be no fee for residential requests. Permits for right of way and curb cuts would go from no fee to $20; sewer and water connection, from no fee to $100; and water line extension from no fee to $100. Applications to vacate and abandon would cost: roads and drainage easements, $100; plats, $175; utility easements, $50.

A preliminary subdivision plat development plan, would remain at $300 for less than 10 acres, but would go to $600 for more than 10 acres. Both would require an advance engineering fee of $500. The final subdivision plat development plan would also be $300/$600 plus engineering.

In another matter, the commission voted 4-1 to award The Lake Doctors, Inc., of Longwood a contract to maintain the following lakes: Winsor, Tiberon, Pellean, Shadowhill, Coventry, Gull, Oak and Ruth plus Golden Grove Pond, Columbus Harbour Pond, and the Tiberon Cove shoreline on West Lake for a total of $794 a month for 11 months beginning in November.

The contract was approved over the objection of Mayor Harvey Smerdison and the recommendation of City Engineer Charles Hassler, who said it would save the city money if city employees took over the lake maintenance, which includes monthly inspection and treatment by an aquatic biologist and quarterly reports to the city.

Commissioner June Lormann said, "I think they've done an excellent job and one more year makes sense."

Hassler said the city has the personnel in-house to do the job with the county doing the testing. The exception he said was the pond in Columbus Harbour, which the Lake Doctors gave emergency treatment to during the past year.

Jim Williams, owner of Lake Doctors, promised to keep the Columbus Harbour pond in excellent condition. He said "Your city could probably set up its own program because most of the materials used are for non-restrictive use. The trend in smaller communities like Longwood is to have maintenance contracts because of the cost of treatment which includes buying the necessary chemicals, boat, spray guns, boats and liability insurance."

By and large any savings over the long run might be less than they originally appeared to be. Make sure your personnel know what they are doing as they can do a lot of damage with those chemicals."

Smerdison, who voted against renewing the contract, said, "When we first hired The Lake Doctors, we said that later when the lakes were under control we would go out for bids. I don't see how we can blindly go out for contract without seeing what someone else would charge. In the meantime we should have our engineer do a cost effective study on the feasibility of having city employees treat the lakes for weeds."

City Administrator Greg Manning said, "I want to have the public works employees we've got do projects we have to catch up with such as ditches, streets, and drainage."

In addition to designating the city's two floating holidays this year as Nov. 29 (the day after Thanksgiving) and Dec. 26 (the day after Christmas) the commission agreed to give the employees an extra day — Dec. 27.

Land Owner Wins Judgment Against County Attorney, Husband

A small claims final judgment has been awarded in Orange County Court to a land owner who filed a suit against Seminole County's attorney and her husband over unpaid taxes.

The $985 case, involved orange groveland in Lake County once owned by Nikki Clayton and her husband John Knight.

According to court records, neither Ms. Clayton nor Knight attended the hearing Wednesday in which Orange County Judge James Hauser decided in favor of Salvatore J. Porrello and his wife Claire. The case was filed under indebtedness Sept. 11 and settled for the amount of a tax lien. While the final judgment has been agreed upon it has not been signed, court records show.

Ms. Clayton said Tuesday the incident follows a situation in which she and her husband were heavily invested in orange groves in Lake County and after three freezes decided to get out of the business. Since the land was used as security for the loan to purchase it, the land went to the mortgage holders earlier this year, according to Ms. Clayton and court records. Apparently the taxes were not paid on one portion of land, she said.

Ms. Clayton said her husband, who handles the family's business matters, was served about a month ago with a complaint that the taxes were not paid.

She said they paid the taxes. Ms. Clayton said the suit did not bother her and that the land owners went to unnecessary expense to let them know that the taxes were unpaid.

Louis Scaglia, 44, a foreman for Florida Residential Communities reported to sheriff's deputies a $400 level was stolen from his vehicle while parked at his workplace, the FRC Building, 101 Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs on Monday.

The manager of the Quality Inn, State Road 434 at Interstate 4, Longwood, reported to sheriff's deputies a guest, Michael E. Gabriel of Baldwin, N.Y., reported to him that a pair of gold and diamond earrings worth $250 disappeared from his motel room on Monday or Tuesday.

About $2,500 worth of jewelry was stolen from the home of Lucie F. Hinson, 60, of 133 Countryside Drive, Longwood, between Oct. 26 and Tuesday, a sheriff's report said.

Golf gear and other items with a combined value of $540 were stolen from the car of Richard M. Karolewski, 61, of 231 Raintree Drive, Casselberry, while the vehicle was parked at his home on Monday or Tuesday, deputies reported.

Thieves made off with a $700 Yamaha Yzinger minibike from a garage at 1801-F Landing Drive, Sanford, according to a police report. Gwen Jerry, 34, the bike's owner, told police the incident occurred between 6 p.m. Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

SINKING FUND?

A fisherman reported to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department that he hooked a bank bag that had been tied with a clothes line to a concrete block and sunk in the Wekiwa River.

David Williams Edean, 36, of Apopka, told deputies he was fishing around 11 a.m. in the Wekiwa off State Road 46 at the Seminole and Lake county line when he snagged the bag. It contained a check book in the name of William C. Coffman, of Orlando, personal papers and a tax deposit book for Char-bet Farms, Box 6, Christmas.

FIRE CALLS

The Sanford Fire Department has responded to the following calls.

Sunday

A nine-year-old Sanford youngster suffered a possible head injury in a car accident on 13th and French Avenue at 1:05 a.m. and was transported to hospital. His mother and grandmother, also in the car, reportedly suffered no injuries.

An Orlando woman involved in a motorcycle accident at the intersection of Seminole Boulevard and US Highway 17-92 at 2:02 a.m. suffered a fractured ankle and a splintered collar bone. She was immobilized and transported to the hospital.

Parents Of Player Sue Little League

ORANGE PARK (UPI) — The parents of a Little League baseball player who has been in a coma since he was struck by lightning during a 1984 team practice have sued the team's Little League association over the incident.

William and Norma Lakin filed suit in Circuit Court on behalf of their son, William Pratt "B.J." Lakin, Jr., 13. The suit names the Orange Park Little League Association as defendant, but does not specify the amount of damages they are seeking.

The association "failed to immediately discontinue baseball practice when the approach of thunderstorms was, or in the exercise of reasonable care, should have been obvious," the suit said.

The Lakin's son suffered brain damage when he was struck by lightning June 21, 1984 while playing third base during a team practice. His father was an assistant coach, one of three Little League coaches present at the practice.

Although B.J.'s eyes are open, he remains in a coma and apparently is unaware of his surroundings, his parents said. His parents and two siblings spend 12 hours a day working with home in an at-home therapy program.

"It's a whole family thing," his father said. "He smiles now."

But a lawyer for the Lakins said there was not much hope for the boy.

"The doctors say they expect no significant improvement in the future," said William A. Haggard, the Lakins' lawyer. "He's not going to get any better, as far as we can tell."

The suit contends the Little League Association failed to properly train team supervisors in the safety procedures necessary for outdoor activities. Children should not have been allowed to practice when the weather forecast called for thunderstorms, the suit said.

James McKinney, president of the Orange Park Athletic Association, declined to comment on the suit.

"I just received notification of the suit," McKinney said. "I have not had time to review it or discuss it with the other members of the board."

Surprise Testimony In 'Black Widow' Trial

ORLANDO (UPI) — Defense witnesses raised the possibility Wednesday that the arsenic which killed Judy Buenoano's first husband may have come from chemical defoliants he was exposed to in Vietnam.

Buenoano, dubbed the "Black Widow," is charged with first-degree murder in the 1971 poisoning death of her husband, James Goodyear, three months after he returned home from Vietnam duty with the Air Force. The case is expected to go to the jury Thursday and prosecutors have said they will seek the death penalty if she is convicted.

Dr. Robert Braman, a chemist at the University of South Florida in Tampa, testified for the defense Wednesday, describing in detail the process by which arsenic deteriorates.

The defense contends that Goodyear was exposed to defoliant sprays that may have contained arsenic while he was in Vietnam.

Tim Heitz, a spokesman for the state attorney's office, said Air Force records are not complete enough to show whether the sprays Goodyear was exposed to contained the chemical.

But he said it was unlikely the defoliants caused his death, noting that Goodyear's body contained 1,000 times the lethal dose of arsenic.

"He could have been living under the trees that were defoliated, he could have eaten the leaves, and he wouldn't have gotten that much arsenic," Heitz said.

In tearful testimony Tuesday, Buenoano told the Orange County jury she did not poison her husband and had no idea how the arsenic got into his body.

"If I did it, it was an accident," she said.

She said her husband was in ill health when he returned from Vietnam.

"He was not feeling well when he got off the plane," Buenoano said. "He was nauseous all the time. He saw things. His skin started to turn yellow."

While Buenoano was on the witness stand Tuesday, an appellate court in Tallahassee upheld her first-degree murder conviction for the drowning death of her handicapped 19-year-old son, Michael Goodyear. She is serving a life prison term for killing Michael and for trying to kill her fiancé, John Gentry, with a bomb planted in his car.

The prosecution also has introduced testimony about the death of Buenoano's common-law husband, Bobby Joe Morris, in 1978 from arsenic poisoning. Prosecutors have said they suspect Buenoano poisoned Morris, but she has not been charged in Morris' death. Judge Emerson Thompson allowed the testimony because it could show a pattern of activity.

The government claims Buenoano killed Goodyear, the couple's son, Michael, and attempted to kill Gentry in order to collect on their insurance policies.

Buenoano acknowledged Tuesday she received $28,000 in life insurance after Goodyear's death, $125,000 for Michael's death and $50,000 for Morris' death. She said she was the beneficiary of a $500,000 policy on Gentry.

Initial plans to turn the case over to jurors Wednesday were delayed by the additional testimony.

New Law Helps Child Support

The federal government's new program to tighten the enforcement of child support could help many children. The government can pay an important role in insisting that parents fulfill their financial duty toward their children.

A new federal law requires states to seize, if necessary, wages or tax refunds of parents who have fallen behind on child support payments. In most cases, the offenders are fathers. The Department of Health and Human Services says more than half of the people ordered to pay child support either underpaid or paid nothing last year.

Violations occur at all economic levels. Lenore Weitzman, a Stanford University professor and author of the book "The Divorce Revolution," said fathers who earn between $30,000 and $50,000 a year are just as likely to fail to pay child support as fathers who earn less than $10,000.

Child support payments can be a touchy issue between divorced parents. Some fathers use the checkbook to retaliate against their ex-wives. Some mothers deny fathers visitation rights because of problems over the financial support of their children.

Such acrimony, however, does not excuse parents from giving their children adequate financial support. Children have basic needs for food, clothing and shelter that must be met. They should not be made to suffer deprivation because of quarrels between their parents.

The government is right to crack down on parents who refuse to support their children. A divorce or dispute does not cancel the basic parental responsibility to care for children.

End Spend Spree

We are all living beyond our means. It can't go on.

The federal government is leading the way and showing us how, with record budget deficits and a record national debt. And the most conservative American president in a generation is assuring us that all is well, even though the U.S. government is spending far more than it takes in and borrowing money to make up the difference. Now the national debt is coming up on $2 trillion.

The American people are spending and going into debt, too. The latest figures show that consumer debt has hit an all-time high of 19 percent of disposable income, topping the old mark of 17.8 percent in 1978. In September, consumer spending climbed 1.2 percent, four times as fast as personal income. And consumers saved only 1.9 percent of their income for a rainy day — the lowest figure since the government began keeping monthly savings data in 1959.

Not to worry. Our spendthrift ways won't last. Neither the government nor the consumer can keep it up. One day our checkbook won't balance and there won't be anyone interested in giving us any more credit unless we are willing to take a realistic look at our finances and to act accordingly.

The end of this spending spree is coming. We only hope it comes soon and is not too painful.

DICK WEST

You Can Be Mover Or Shaker But Not Both

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The other evening there was a high-level reception here attended by a goodly number of Washington "movers and shakers."

The trouble with the account I read was that it didn't specify which was which.

It is, as you may know, very difficult for a Cabinet member, a presidential assistant, a member of Congress or an ordinary bureaucrat to function both as a mover and a shaker.

For many, if not most, a dual role is impossible.

There are, of course, a few federal officials and lawmakers who have successfully made the transition from shaker to mover, or vice versa. But changing horses in midstream is always risky, particularly for movers and shakers who ordinarily remain ashore.

People beginning a career in government are advised to decide early whether they wish to become a mover or a shaker. Then they should stick to that goal.

My dictionary defines a mover as "a person or company that moves household effects or office furniture from one place to another."

A shaker, by contrast, is a member of a religious sect "practicing celibacy and common ownership of property; now almost extinct."

It came as a bit of a shock to me to learn that celibacy is nearing extinction, although I was aware that many people have been abstaining from common ownership of property.

The dictionary must have been referring to the sect as a whole because individual shakers are far from extinct. This city fairly teems with them. They abound on Capitol Hill, in Foggy Bottom and other power centers.

As for movers, I am using that word in the context of actuating, inciting or instigating someone or something. Which seems to make it less menacing.

Movers and shakers usually are mentioned together in that order. The formation is not based on chronology, however.

Generally speaking, you shake something or someone before you try to move them. Shaking softens them up and makes them easier to move.

I assume that movers traditionally are mentioned first because their work is considered more important.

Shaking requires very little training. You, too, can become a shaker, if you have the temperament for it. All you need, otherwise, is plenty of brawn. With movers, however, a little finesse may be needed.

Take moving legislation through Congress, for instance.

Standard operation procedure requires the movers first to call in the shakers. Shaking doesn't always work, however, and the movers may have to resort to other devices to keep a measure mobile.

That is one reason, at most high-level receptions, the guest list is likely to include, along with assorted movers and shakers, a certain number of compromisers and skid-greasers.

But that is another story.

SCIENCE WORLD

Cause Of Greece's Downfall

By Gino Del Guercio
UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI) — Toxic shock syndrome — the killer infection that often strikes by breeding on tampons — may provide a critical clue to the most disastrous and fateful epidemic in recorded ancient history.

In just two generations, the people of Athens invented or nurtured such basic pursuits of Western culture as philosophy, history, tragedy, comedy and democracy. The city's empire spanned the Aegean Sea and generated enough taxes to finance the Parthenon.

Then in 430 B.C. a plague struck the city. Tens of thousands of its 300,000 inhabitants died, including the great Athenian leader, Pericles. Left weakened by the plague, Athens was defeated by Sparta in the Peloponnesian War 30 years later.

Ever since, medical experts have attempted to match written accounts of victims' symptoms with those of later plagues. Smallpox, bubonic plague, scarlet fever, measles, typhus and typhoid fever have all been proposed and rejected. Some experts are convinced the disease is either extinct or so transformed that its symptoms cannot be recognized.

The plague of Athens is considered one of the great medical mysteries.

However, a group of historians and medical experts who met at the University of Arizona last year believe they may have identified the culprit, or more accurately, the culprits.

They studied descriptions provided by Thucydides, the Greek historian and general who caught the plague and survived to recount its symptoms in vivid detail.

The early symptoms — such as fever and violent coughing — and the plague's pattern of spread matched those of the flu. But its 30 percent mortality rate was five to 10 times higher than that of the worst flu epidemics in history.

One of the meeting's participants, Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir, noticed that some of the later symptoms, such as gangrene and amnesia, matched those of toxic shock syndrome.

"The association came up vividly and so I put the two ideas together," said Langmuir, who was chief of epidemiology at the Centers for Disease Control from 1949 to 1970.

The group worked out the details of their theory and published it in the New England Journal of Medicine. They believe the epidemic began as the flu and was complicated by staphylococcus

Lefts Fight Rights

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (NEA) — Cambridge, the home of Harvard, Radcliffe and MIT, likes to think of itself as one of America's most progressive towns. But this liberal community is sharply split by a fierce debate over an anti-pornography referendum that will appear on the Nov. 5 ballot.

At stake, say opposing sides, are women's rights, free speech and the First Amendment. The debate cuts directly across liberal lines — women's rights vs. free speech — making for unusual political theater.

The referendum, if passed, would define pornography as a form of sex discrimination and thus put it in violation of Cambridge's strict human-rights ordinance.

It would give legal recourse to anyone forced to give a pornographic performance; who has pornography forced on them at home, in school or in any public place; or who is inadvertently exposed to pornography. The measure would also open the door for a woman who has been assaulted to bring suit against a seller of pornography if it could be shown that her assailant had been exposed to the pornography.

The proposal includes a very detailed definition of pornography. It includes any depiction of a woman as a "sexual object," of women in "postures of sexual submission" or of "women's body parts being exhibited in such a way that women are reduced to those parts."

It is identical to a model ordinance drafted by feminist attorney Catharine MacKinnon and author Andrea Dworkin. The measure has been intensely debated over the last several years in a number of communities where it has been introduced, including Minneapolis;

Los Angeles; Suffolk County, N.Y.; Madison, Wis.; Des Moines, Iowa; and Indianapolis.

In only one — Indianapolis in 1983 — did the model statute become law. Last year federal Judge Sara Baker ruled that the law was an unconstitutional violation of the First Amendment.

In a 58-page ruling Judge Baker said that women do not deserve a special First Amendment exception. Proponents had argued that the court should grant the same kind of First Amendment exception that has been granted for libel, obscenity and child pornography. In August, the 7th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously upheld Judge Baker's ruling.

The referendum is sponsored by the Women's Alliance Against Pornography, a group of about 30 women who say they have about 300 active supporters working for the referendum's passage and the support of a number of feminist and women's rights organizations. The referendum is being opposed by most city officials and business interests, civil liberties organizations including the American Civil Liberties Union and even a feminist group that calls itself the Feminist Anti-Censorship Task Force.

Business interests argue that the definition of pornography is so widely drawn that someone seeing an ad or billboard featuring a sexy woman selling a product could bring suit against the company advertising the product or the store or newspaper displaying the ad. Civil liberties groups argue that the proposal abridges the First Amendment's free speech guarantees.

John Roberts, head of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts, says "We're opposing the referendum. For us it's a classic case of censorship."

Indians Scalp Bingo

LAKESIDE, Calif. (NEA) — "I-28... B-5... O-62," drones the announcer as hundreds of players pore over their bingo cards — but this game bears little resemblance to those traditionally sponsored by churches, charities and social clubs.

This is high-stakes Indian bingo for serious devotees who gather seven nights a week in a $2.5 million hall to play "Bonanza Blackout" or "Crazy Letter T" and vie for prizes often worth thousands of dollars per game.

Like many other states, California has long sought to protect bingo's amateur status through laws requiring that sponsors be non-profit organizations and limiting both the size of the prizes ($250 per game) and the number of nights per week (three) the games may be played.

But Indian tribes throughout the country have argued that the states lack legal authority over bingo games conducted on their reservations — a position upheld by federal appeals courts in New Orleans in 1981 and San Francisco in 1982.

Today, about 65 of the almost 300 federally recognized tribes regularly sponsor bingo games — and approximately 25 offer exceptionally large jackpots.

The Cherokees in North Carolina once paid $1 million in prizes in a single night. The Seminoles in Florida, the Muckleshoots in Washington and the Sycuan in California have explored the idea of satellite-linked bingo operations that would offer prizes as large as $1 million per game.

Here in California, at least a dozen reservations offer bingo, including the Morongo tribe in Banning, the Santa Ynez tribe in Santa Barbara and the Tachi tribe in Lemoore. The Calabaz reservation in Indio boasts not only bingo but also a poker parlor that operates 24 hours a day.

San Diego County alone has three separate Indian bingo enterprises — here on the Barona reservation north of Lakeside, on the Sycuan reservation near El Cajon and on the Rincon reservation near Escondido.

The Baronas entered the business in spring 1983, then moved the operation into a sprawling new 2,000-seat hall in the summer of 1984. A fleet of chartered buses brings hundreds of patrons to the reservation every evening, while a nine-acre parking lot is available for those who drive their cars.

A typical six-hour evening session includes more than 20 games, with prizes ranging from $250 to $10,000. The winner of one game once claimed a $112,000 prize.

Chinese Rat Eradication: Mastication

OH RATS! China has an estimated 4 billion rats — four of the predatory vermin for each human — so the recent recipe in the China Daily may not have been tongue-in-cheek after all. Here it is: "Catch one rat. Scald with steam and plunge it into cold water to peel off the fur. Carefully gut the bald rat and soak in brine, ginger and pepper before flattening it into a steak with weights. After drying for a day, cook in a sealed pot with rice, bran and a soupcon of sesame oil until the aroma permeates the whole kitchen. Then eat it." The kitchen, that is.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Why is the Reagan administration so concerned about guarding U.S. interests in the Caribbean? It's not, as some critics charged, to make the world safe for sun-seeking American tourists. An internal draft report prepared by the congressional Office of Technology Assessment points out that more than 50 percent of U.S. trade, including many strategic materials, comes and goes through the Caribbean. In an emergency, the area would have "critical strategic importance," the study notes, and a growing Soviet/Cuban military presence would "endanger U.S. logistical support for NATO forces in Europe as well as the delivery of strategic materials to the United States."

UNDER THE DOME: Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., has apparently studied old Jack Benny films and learned the histrionic value of the pregnant pause. In debate over the excise tax on cigarettes, the Kentuckian replied with native expertise to suggestions that tobacco farmers could be persuaded to grow other crops. "On one-half of 'holler,' there is nothing else you can do profitably," McConnell said, adding after a long pause, "and legally." Could he have been suggesting that enterprising tobacco farmers might switch to marijuana?

TAX REFORM (CONT.): Here's the latest forecast on two of the most controversial proposals in President Reagan's tax reform plan: Revenue from the elimination of state and local tax deductions is crucial if tax rates are to be cut, but the White House will have to compromise because of opposition from high-tax states. Look for elimination of about two-thirds of the current deduction. The second-home mortgage interest deduction has only the barest chance of surviving. The deduction for interest on primary residences will remain intact, though.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The Israeli Army, considered by many to be the finest in the world, has declined sharply in quality in the last couple of years. Military experts blame the fiasco of the Lebanon invasion and subsequent withdrawal, which seriously eroded Israeli soldiers' traditional self-confidence, plus the drastic military budget cuts made necessary by the chaotic Israeli economy. Meanwhile, Israel's most militant neighbor, Syria, has improved its army with massive help from the Soviet Union.

MINI-EDITORIAL: We've never been enthusiastic members of the Paul Volcker Fan Club. The Federal Reserve Board chairman has been too secretive for our taste in his handling of decisions that can make or break the U.S. economy. But we don't think Volcker deserves the Reagan administration's unseemly rush to ease him out of office. The White House has done just about everything but send Volcker the help-wanted ads to make clear he's no longer wanted. The president's advisers seem to forget that it was Volcker who engineered the economic boom that re-elected the president, and without him to kick around, whom will they blame for the next recession?

Lady Hawks Rest, Reload For Winter Park

It isn't often that the top two cross country teams in the state are in the same district but that's the way it is in the girls 4A rankings as top-ranked Winter Park and second-ranked Lake Howell both hail from District 4A-5.

Lake Howell and Winter Park will go head-to-head in the 4A-5 District Championships on Saturday, Nov. 9 at Trinity Prep, which is Winter Park's home course.

Winter Park moved into the top spot in the state by winning the DeLand Invitational over Lake Howell. The Lady Wildcats have two of the top individuals in the state in Kim Bovis and Amy Gamber. Bovis is the defending state champion.

Lake Howell has not been at full strength the past few weeks as two of its top runners, Angie Smith and Bonnie Oliver, have been ill. Another runner, Rachel Barnes, was injured in last Thursday's Seminole Athletic Conference meet. Barnes stepped in a hole and jammed her foot. Coach Tom Hammontree said Barnes would be on crutches for five days.

The Lady Hawks, as well as most other teams, will take this week off and Hammontree, for one, is glad of it. "We've got two weeks to get it together," Hammontree said. "The girls need to get some rest, physically and mentally after running five meets in 15 days."

While Lake Howell and Winter Park are expected to battle for the district crown, 4A-5 has another of the top 10 teams in the state in Lyman's Lady Greyhounds. Lyman moved into 10th position after fine showings at the SAC meet and Saturday's University of Florida Invitational.

Chris Fister

CROSS COUNTRY

Something interesting about Lyman is it has run its best team only a few times this season. Injury, illness or the SAT test have kept some of the top seven runners out on different occasions.

Lyman has a solid top three in Julie Greenberg, Tracy Fisher and Lynn Gomezperalta and three good runners after them in Tara Braheny, Jennifer Hitzges and Cris Bruen. A trip to the regionals for Lyman is well within reach.

In the boys meet, Winter Park and Colonial are the Orange County leaders while Lake Howell, Lyman and Lake Mary are tough out of Seminole County. Any of the five teams, provided it has an outstanding meet from all of its runners, is capable of winning the district.

The top six teams and top five individuals from district advance to the 4A-3 Regional Meet on Saturday, Nov. 16 at Lake Mary High.

The Track Shack Grand Prix schedule, continues with its fourth race on Nov. 9 in the Run with the Sun 10K.

Julie Lantis is looking to strengthen her lead in the Grand Prix standings. Lantis, the Lake Brantley assistant girls cross country coach, has won two of three races and finished second in one thus far with Delight Chambers winning one and finishing second in the other two.

The Run with the Sun is followed in the Grand Prix series by: Dec. 7, Citrus Bowl Half Marathon; Jan. 11, Red Lobster 15K; Jan. 18, Lady Track Shack 5K.

The Longwood Elementary School fourth annual Invitational Road Race will be held Saturday, Nov. 2 at 8:30 a.m. at Longwood Elementary.

The race is open to students of Longwood, Casselberry, Keith, Woodlands and Winter Springs elementary schools. There are four age divisions including 8 and under, nine, 10 and 11.

5A-4 Fight: Rams Face Buccaneers

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Harry Nelson, Lake Mary's sometimes amusing and sometimes confusing football coach, is wondering aloud about his team.

It's that time of the year when his football team makes its drive for the district championship. The Rams can take a big step tonight with a victory over Mainland's Buccaneers at Daytona Beach's Welch Memorial Stadium. Kickoff for the District 5A-4 encounter is 8 p.m.

Are they ready? "I have no idea," Nelson said this morning. "I have no idea how we're going to play. I haven't had an idea all year long."

The Rams have been up and down. They were flattened (like everyone else) by Apopka, 21-0. They bounced back to nip DeLand, 14-10, and then escaped Seminole, 13-12. A week later, they survived Lake Howell, 12-7. But a week later, they were upset by Spruce Creek, 7-6. Last week, they rallied to trim Oviedo, 15-12.

It's been a year of heart attacks and near heart attacks for Lake Mary followers. "We don't have close games, we have cardiac arrests," Nelson said.

Nelson and the Rams would like to see it happen tonight. Mainland is 2-1 in the district while the Rams are 1-1. The loser of tonight's game can hang it up. Lyman and Spruce Creek, who play Friday at Longwood, are each 1-1. The loser of that game is out, too. DeLand has already lost twice, enough said. With four district games, don't lose half and expect to be around for the finish.

Lake Mary's scenario, nevertheless, is simple. Its only loss is to Spruce Creek. So, if Lake Mary wins tonight and Nov. 22 against Lyman, and Spruce Creek loses to either Lyman or DeLand on Nov. 15, the Rams are the champions.

Nelson said he hopes to see some offense from his offense — for a change. Lake Mary has scored just 60 points in six games. Several of which have been provided by the defense.

The trio of quarterback Shane Letterio, slotback Ray Hartsfield and running back John Curry has put some impressive statistics on paper this year but it hasn't been too familiar with the end zone.

Nelson illustrated the lack of with a defensive player. "Ryan Lisle scored one touchdown last week and came within three yards of another one," he said about Lisle's return of a fumble for a TD and return of an interception for another near score. "If he scores the second time, he's got as many touchdowns as most of our offensive players."

Curry has three TDs for the year but Hartsfield has just two and fullback Brett Molle only has one. Letterio, though, has thrown for four scores while hitting 33 of 73 passes for 607 yards.

Defensively, though, Lake Mary has been consistent. After the Apopka blowout, the Rams have allowed just 48 points in five games, less than a touchdown and field goal per game.

Molle, the middle linebacker, has been the force with 91 tackles. Lisle is next with 57. Robb Reddington (55), Scott Ross (52 and four sacks), Marty Hopkins (48) and Shannon Porter (41) have all been steady performers from week to week.

Patriots Drown Seminoles Bojanowski, Adcock, Keeling Combine For Victories

By Chuck Burgess
Special to the Herald

Donalyn Knight's Fighting Swimmers were gasping for air after being held to just four first-place finishes in their loss to the overpowering Lake Brantley Patriots Wednesday.

The Brantley boys coasted, 117-41, while the girls won, 90-43, in Seminole Athletic Conference swimming at Altamonte Springs.

The Seminole boys, paced by sophomore Jaime Bojanowski, managed three of the four victories posted by the Tribe. Bojanowski owned the 100 breast in 1:11 — six seconds ahead of the next competitor — and also cruised to an easy win in the 500 free at 5:17.

"Jaime didn't have much competition in his events," fourth-year coach Knight said. "He just wasn't pushed by anyone."

Unfortunately for the 'Noles, that was the only time all day anyone wasn't pushed. That is, except for freshman Jay Adcock.

Swimming

Adcock, only in his first year of competitive swimming, compiled a first-place finish in the 50 free with a winning time of 26.1.

"Jay has really come along this year," Knight said. "He is probably one of the strongest and most determined swimmers we have."

The only other place for the Seminoles was a second in the 200 medley relay where Bojanowski and Adcock teamed with Kirby Swinehart and Scott Lewis which turned in a time of 2:04.

"We tried doing something different by putting Kirby (Swinehart) in the breast and switching Jaime (Bojanowski) to fly," Knight said. "It worked out pretty well. They each lowered their times by two seconds."

Because of the quality swimmers which the Patriots possess in the girls' department, the small contingent of Tribe girls had to gut it out, according to Knight.

"Lake Brantley has definitely got some great girls swimming for them," she said. All we could do was try and hang with them."

One girl who did her best to stay close to her competitors was Kristy Keeling. Keeling was the lone winner for the Lady Seminoles. Keeling splashed to victory in the 100 free, 1:08.0 and added a second in the 50 free, 29.8.

"Kristy (Keeling) is starting to come around now," Knight said. "We're expecting big things from her this weekend."

Second place finishes for the girls' team included LeAnne Sundvall (100 free 1:09.2), Alison Willink (100 back 1:55.0), Abby Whitehead (100 breast 1:32.8) and the 200 medley relay team of Keeling, Sundvall, Shawna Cole and Stasi Bojanowski which touched in at 2:32.2.

Nelson Spikes Howell

By Chris Fister
Herald Sports Writer

The past few weeks, Stephanie Nelson has had as many skull sessions with the trainer as she has had with the coach.

Oviedo High's senior leader suffered a hairline fracture of her right wrist two weeks ago and twisted an ankle in practice this past Thursday. "I don't know what's going on, but I seem to keep getting injured," she said.

It may have taken a couple rolls of tape to get Nelson ready Wednesday night, but, once she got going, there was no stopping her. Nelson returned to her devastating offensive form to lead the Lady Lions to a come-from-behind victory over an inspired Lake Howell team at Oviedo High.

"Stephanie (Nelson) was in a lot of pain Thursday," Oviedo coach Anita Carlson said. "We thought about taking her to the hospital to get it (ankle) looked at. But the trainer led it down right away and I guess it wasn't as bad as it looked because she (Nelson) looked really good tonight."

The 9-15, 15-6, 15-10 Seminole Athletic Conference victory enabled the Lady Lions to close out the regular season with a 17-3 record and a six-match winning streak.

Behind the outstanding all around play of Anita Cechowski and Joice Johnson, the Lady Hawks built a 9-1 lead. Michelle Arana continued to be the top server on the squad as she served the first five points. Cechowski served three more to make it 8-1 and Mary Kay Scott served one for a 9-1 lead.

Oviedo pulled within 9-4 before Johnson served two points for an 11-4 lead. One of Johnson's serves was an ace and the 11th point came on a hit by Christy Tibbitts.

The Lions made it 11-6 but couldn't get a rally going as Patty Rae's hit returned the serve to the Hawks and they took a 14-6 lead on Tammy Lewis' serve.

Kim Verne served three points to make it 14-9, but Rae's spike gave it back to the Hawks and Arana served the final point. While Johnson's three kills on four attempts led the Hawks, Oviedo had trouble returning serve in the opening game as six bad passes led to Lake Howell points.

Oviedo's back row play improved significantly in game two with Lisa Knapp and Cindy Wood particularly effective. With the passes on the mark, Verne put her sets right where Nelson likes them and the senior spiker did the rest.

Nelson converted on 9 of 10 kill opportunities in game two as Oviedo converted to a 15-6 win. Nelson converted on 15 of 18 kills for the match.

"This was my best game since my injuries," Nelson said. "But I think I can play better. I need to get more spikes down and work harder on defense."

The third game was side out city in the early going as neither team scored after having the serve four times each. Jaudon Jonas then popped off the bench for Lake Howell and drilled four serves that weren't returned, one an ace, for a 4-0 lead.

Oviedo got the serve back and had its best rally of the night as the Lady Lions reeled off eight Lake Mary coach Harry Nelson, left, gives quarterback Shane Letterio the next play to call. The Rams plays Mainland in a crucial District 5A-4 football game tonight.

Key District, SAC Games For Gridders

After just two games last week, the Seminole County football teams resume full bore tonight and Friday with several important Seminole Athletic Conference and district games.

●Tonight at Daytona Beach, Lake Mary battles Mainland for a key District 5A-4 encounter.

●Friday at various sites, Seminole, Oviedo, Lyman, Lake Howell and Lake Brantley all return to the gridiron.

At Oviedo, Seminole puts its modest one-game winning streak on the line against the Lions. The game figures to be a test to two good defenses.

At Winter Park or Casselberry or Seminole County or wherever Lake Howell is situated, the Silver Hawks return from a week's rest to play powerful Evans.

At Apopka, Lake Brantley has its work cut out for it with the No. 2-ranked Blue Darters of Chip Glerke.

Rambo: A Type Of Hunter To Avoid

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Hunters come in personalities as diverse as the quarry they seek.

With a few seasons under my belt, I've come to recognize some of the types who flock to the woods each autumn as soon as the leaves begin to descend.

Let's consider a few of the more easily identifiable ones you might want to avoid.

'Rambo'

Moviegoers can understand this man.

No shrinking violet, he comes armed with the biggest caliber the law will allow, one hand on the barrel, the other at the ready.

As soon as game is spotted, he unleashes a burst that makes you think he is in a firefight. The air is heavy with lead, even if a fellow hunter is close by.

Wherever he goes, the trees are cleaned of bark, the air is pungent with gunpowder, and his stand is a graveyard of spent shells.

'The Leach'

Take along some extra cash if you invite one of these on your hunting trip. He never pays his share.

This is the guy who ducks into the washroom when the bill comes due at the diner, can't find his credit card at the gas pump, and invariably runs out of shells after the first hour.

'Super Glue'

Try as you may, you'll never be able to elude this hunter, who sticks like glue.

No matter what part of the forest you pick to hunt in, you can count on him being only a step or two behind. He just isn't secure enough in his own skills to fly solo.

After waiting it out an hour or so in a secluded spot, you will hear this man barging through your area like a buffalo stomping out a prairie fire. He then positions himself a few feet away, watching, and mimicking, every move you make.

Mannix Porterfield
UPI FISHING/HUNTING

'Spit-and-Polish'

Better suited for an outdoor magazine ad or the Inspector General than a day in the field, this man shows up in perfectly creased and starched clothes.

Look closely, and you'll probably find a split shine on the boots.

His appearance is immaculate, and his gun looks factory fresh. The area he clears of leaves and brush from which to hunt will invariably be a perfect rectangle.

The question arises: when does he find time to hunt?

Mr. Alibi

When it comes to game, his bag is apt to be empty.

When it comes to excuses, his arsenal is loaded. Never mind that everyone else in his party is enjoying a bonanza. This man will come back empty-handed, except for excuses.

"It's too windy," he sighs.
"It's too calm."
"It's too hot."
"It's too cold."
"It's too dry."
"It's too damp."
Get the picture?

Bigfoot

Silence is golden to a hunter, but not to this man.

He could walk through wet leaves while the wind is kicking up and still make enough noise to give a heavy metal band some stiff competition.

Instead of gingerly pulling back branches, he snaps them off. Loudly. He can make loading a .12-gauge shotgun sound like firing a cannon.

And if you're really lucky, this kind will happen your way just at the moment a squirrel comes into range.

Barging through the underbrush, he will pop into the clearing, flash a Bob Uecker smile, and harshly inquire, "Doin' any good? I ain't seen nothin' yet. Good place, huh buddy?"

ORLANDO — The Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission will be offering a weekend hunter education course in the Orlando area Saturday and Sunday.

The course will be taught at the Orlando Game Commission office located at 5950 W. Colonial Drive. The dates for the course are Saturday and Sunday, November 2 and 3. The classes will begin at 8:00 a.m.

For additional information, interested individuals may contact the Commission's Ocala Regional Office toll free at 1-800-342-9620.

Osteen Bass Fish Sunday

Dell Abernethy, owner of the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp, said fishing was slow last weekend but he hopes it will pick up for the Buddy Bass Tournament this Sunday at the Osteen camp.

Registration is $25 and the boats go off at safeligh Sunday morning.

Abernethy said a cooling of water temperatures would help, too. "We need a water temperature of about 65 or 70 degrees," he said.

Abernethy did report a few catches last week. Cliff Cohen caught 12 specks Tuesday while the Dodson family — Frank, Cathy, Jody and Cara — had a bass a piece last week.

USFL Owners Prepare

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The U.S. Football League owners will open their fall meetings Thursday, in hopes of taking steps necessary to convince the public the league will survive until the 1986 season.

The owners enter the two-day meeting unsure of which franchises will play and in what cities, and when the 1986 season will run. Representatives of 14 franchises will plot the league's first fall season after three years as a spring league.

There has been mounting speculation that the league's future rests solely on a $1.3 billion antitrust suit filed against the NFL. The USFL has no network television deal for 1986 and cannot hope to strike one until it determines where and when its clubs will play.

"This meeting has the potential to have a little more definitive news," USFL spokesman Bob Rose said. "They'd like to identify what teams will be competing and what teams won't."

Commissioner Harry Usher and New Jersey owner Donald Trump, one of the league's most outspoken and influential owners, favor cutting the USFL to eight or 10 teams. At most, 12 teams are expected.

The USFL had 14 teams last year, along with inactive Chicago. The Chicago franchise, owned by White Sox owner Eddie Euhorn, will be represented at the meeting.

A merger between New Jersey and Houston was announced during the summer, although the consolidation has not technically been completed. Steve Ross bought the Houston franchise with the stipulation that at least eight franchises post letters of credit for the 1986 season.

It is believed six clubs have posted letters and at least two more are expected in the next week.

Other candidates to fold, merge or move are Los Angeles, Portland (which is inactive), San Antonio, Oakland, Birmingham, Denver and Tampa Bay.

Hagler-Mugabi Bout Cancelled

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — John Mugabi should start to wonder if he's ever going to get a chance to challenge for Marvin Hagler's middleweight title.

The championship bout between Hagler and Mugabi scheduled for Nov. 14 has been postponed indefinitely because Hagler has a fractured nose and possible ruptured disc, diagnosed Wednesday's by orthopedic surgeon Dr. Tony Daly.

Hagler hurt his back while training near his Brockton, Mass. home last week, and didn't arrive at Palm Springs until Sunday. He complained of having just over three weeks to train, but was committed to fighting on Nov. 14 until suffering a cut and broken nose Tuesday night.

"I'm very disappointed," the WBA and WBC champion said. "I was just getting into my training program and then this happened. I felt really good going into yesterday's workout, and then I got hurt. I've heard of this happening to other fighters, but this is the first time it's ever happened to me."

Baseball Old-Timers Weekend Returns Mantle To The Spotlight

Mickey Mantle is no stranger to the spotlight. He was usually in the center of it during his 17 years with the New York Yankees.

Mickey Mantle

Mantle, known for his intensity on the field and his care-free attitude off the field, will be in that spotlight again this weekend when the second annual Old-Timers Baseball Weekend kicks off with a Friday golf tournament.

Mantle joins 51 former players, managers and umpires for the golf outing at the Magnolia course at Disney World.

Friday night at 7:30, the Old-Timers will have a banquet at the Hilton Inn, Florida Center.

Banquet tickets are $25. Tickets to the game range from $5 to $20. A $250 charitable donation covers admission to all the events.

Herzog: Suspend Denkinger Too

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Still miffed over what he believes was a blown call, St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog says American League umpire Don Denkinger should get a suspension similar to the one imposed against Cardinals pitcher Joaquin Andujar.

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth Tuesday suspended Andujar for 10 days next season and fined him $500 for his action during the final game of the World Series Sunday night.

Andujar was punished for bumping Denkinger, who was umpiring at home plate in the 11-0 Cardinals loss, and for destroying a toilet and sink with a bat in the visiting clubhouse at Royals Stadium in Kansas City.

Herzog said he agreed with the commissioner's office on the action against Andujar.

"It's good, maybe he'll learn something," said the manager.

Monacelli Bows 300, Leads By 1

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Amleto Monacelli of Venezuela rolled a 300 game and averaged better than 234 for the first six games to take a slim 1-pin lead over Bob Handley after the first round of a $150,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament Wednesday.

Monacelli, 24, rolled games of 187, 224, 243, 231, 300 and 222 for a pinfall total of 1,407.

Handley, Pompano Beach, was second with 1,406 after games of 258, 268, 185, 231, 246 and 218.

Sam Zurich, Hernando Beach, was third with 1,388, while Darryl Bowler, Middletown, Pa., was fourth at 1,383 and Leroy Bornhop, St. Charles, Mo., fifth with 1,359.

The tournament is called the Kodak Invitational, the first step on the 1985 PBA Fall Tour.

ICBA Begins Its Registration

Signups for the Inter-County Basketball Association are taking place currently by telephone. To register for the season or for more information, contact one of the following:

South Seminole and Tuskawilla Middle Schools, Mickey Norton at 365-4040; Jackson Heights, Jim Norton at 365-6434; Milwee, Eastmonte Recreation at 830-3880; Teague and Rock Lake, Westmonte Recreation at 862-0090.

Registration is $25 for middle schools and $15 for elementary.

Buccaneers Sign A Linebacker

TAMPA (UPI) — The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, thin at linebacker because of injuries and the trade of Hugh Green, signed former Minnesota Viking Dennis Johnson Wednesday.

The Buccaneers, 0-8, list linebackers Scot Brantley and Jeff Davis as questionable for Sunday's game against the New York Giants.

Johnson, 27, started six of eight games this season for the Vikings, who waived the six-year pro Tuesday.

Johnson signed for $1 million for the 1986 season. The former Southern Cal star had 36 tackles and recovered one fumble for Minnesota in 1985. He started 15 games last season.

SYSA Registers Cagers Saturday

The Seminole Youth Sports Association will hold its second registration date for its basketball league Saturday at all Seminole County middle schools.

Players should sign up at the middle school in their school district. The registration fee for middle school players is $40. The fee is $25 for elementary schoolers.

The league will start Dec. 14. Call the SYSA office at 869-7972 for information.

McCue: 10 Years, Probation

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A federal judge Wednesday sentenced Robert McCue of suburban Upper St. Clair to 10 years in prison and three years probation for selling cocaine to major league baseball players.

Judge Maurice Cohill sentenced him Wednesday of two 10-year prison terms, to be served concurrently, and three years probation.

Nets Clip Pacers

United Press International The New Jersey Nets accomplished in seven periods what Indiana should have done in four.

With Micheal Ray Richardson scoring 16 of his game-high 38 points in the extra time, the Nets posted a 143-138, triple-overtime victory Wednesday night over the Pacers.

Indiana led 94-80 after three quarters before collapsing. "We lost our aggressiveness and let them back into the game," Indiana rookie Vern Fleming said.

The Pacers nearly won anyway. Terence Stansbury, Fleming's fellow guard, buried a 24-foot desperation heave from the top of the key with two seconds left in regulation time.

Richardson scored a "triple double," with 11 assists and 11 rebounds. He also had nine steals, equalling his career high.

At Philadelphia, Moses Malone scored 31 points, including 7 in overtime, to lead the Sixers. Malone's 3-point play with 1:14 left in the extra period gave Philadelphia a 124-118 lead after the teams were tied 113-113.

At Salt Lake City, Jeff Wilkins hit 2 jumpers and John Stockton sank 2 free throws down the stretch and Utah shut down San Antonio in the final six minutes. The Jazz' Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 33 points.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Three Released Soviet Diplomats Undergo Medical Test, Celebrate

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Three Soviet diplomats released by their Moslem kidnappers after a month in captivity underwent medical testing today and appeared to be in good health, a Soviet official said.

Yuri Suslikov, charge d'affaires of the Soviet mission in Beirut, said the three embassy officials were in good condition at the time of their release on Wednesday.

Soviet Embassy workers drank toasts and pro-Soviet militiamen fired weapons to celebrate the release of three Soviet officials held for a month by Moslem fundamentalist kidnappers who killed one of their colleagues.

Security sources said a news conference was planned today but that the embassy probably would provide few details on the kidnappers who seized four Soviets officials Sept. 30 and killed consular secretary Arkady Katkov two days later.

The kidnappers dumped the three Soviets — cultural attache Oleg Spirine, commercial attache Valery Mirkov and embassy physician Nikolai Sversky — in the Basta neighborhood and sped off. The Soviets surrendered to militiamen of the Druze Moslem Progressive Socialist Party, who rushed them to the embassy, security sources said.

Apartheid Advocate Wins Election

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — A far-right party that opposes change in South Africa's racial segregation policies defeated the ruling National Party in one of five special parliamentary elections.

The ruling National Party won four of the five parliamentary by-elections Wednesday, but political analysts said the loss in a Transvaal district south of Johannesburg overshadowed the victories and dealt a setback to President Pieter Botha.

Botha, playing down the stronger showing of his political opponents, said today the government was satisfied with the election results.

The Reformed National Party — a far-right group advocating continued white rule in South Africa — scored a narrow victory over the ruling National Party in Sasolburg, a coal-mining town gripped by a deep economic depression.

During the campaign, the white supremacist candidate, Louis Stoffberg, attacked Botha's racial policies, saying they would lead to black rule, and painted images of black domination of the white minority.

Right-wing parties made gains in elections in the other four districts as well, sending a signal to the government and international community that many of South Africa's whites opposed even the modest reforms of apartheid proposed by Botha.

West Awaits Bonner's Arrival

MOSCOW (UPI) — Yelena Bonner, who reportedly was ready to leave the Soviet Union today for treatment of a debilitating eye ailment, may not depart without her husband — exiled Nobel laureate Andrei Sakharov, dissidents said.

Soviet officials kept silent about Western reports that Mrs. Bonner, 62, was to depart for Vienna aboard an Aeroflot passenger plane today. But an Amnesty International official in Vienna said she was expected at midday.

"We have information that she will come tomorrow (Thursday) to Vienna," said Amnesty official Karl Jansch.

Mrs. Bonner was not among passengers arriving on a morning flight from Moscow and Jansch said he would return to the airport later today for the second and last flight arriving from the Soviet Union.

But Western observers said it was possible that authorities could whisk her directly to an aircraft to avoid waiting reporters and television crews.

Jansch said the Soviets may have ordered Mrs. Bonner to leave the Soviet Union for good and that she might be accompanied by her husband. But dissidents said it was highly unlikely Soviet officials would allow Sakharov — considered the father of the Soviet hydrogen bomb — to leave.

Gandhi Slams S. Africa's Policies

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi — marking the first anniversary of the murder of his mother, Indira — pledged today to continue her work and praised her as the mother India's poor and oppressed.

Gandhi also used the occasion to attack the white-minority government of South Africa, calling its policies of racial segregation the world's "worst example" of discrimination.

The 41-year-old leader of the world's largest democracy made his comments in a speech to an estimated 1 million people who gathered in central New Delhi under the eyes of thousands of armed police and paramilitary troops.

The rally marked the high point of events held throughout the country to commemorate the first anniversary of the death of Mrs. Gandhi, who was gunned down by two of her Sikh body guards in revenge for the June 1984 army assault on the Sikhs' holiest shrine, the Golden Temple of Amritsar.

Economic Indicators Show Slight Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The index of leading indicators, the government's barometer of economic trends, recorded a tiny 0.1 percent increase in September, the fifth straight monthly signal of improvement, the government said today.

The government also revised upward the figure for August, bringing it to 0.9, the biggest increase since January's 1.3 rise. The July increase was 0.7 percent. June's index rose 0.1 percent and May's 0.3 percent.

"The modest rise in September's leading index gives us a string of five consecutive gains, averaging 0.4 per cent per month and pointing to continued economic growth in 1988," Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said. "Key leading indicators directly related to forthcoming production are pointing upward."

Baldrige also said defense orders for capital goods that are not included in the leading index have been rising and also will contribute to continued strong growth in defense production.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the "level and duration of this unprecedented recovery, now in its 35th month, can only be limited by a failure of the Congress to act on its historic opportunity to balance the budget," an issue currently stuck in a Senate-House conference.

The Bureau of Economic Analysis, a section of the Commerce Department, said five of the 11 individual indicators for September will contribute to a stronger economy, led by an expansion of the money supply.

Also having a positive effect on the index were the length of the average work week, contracts and orders for factory equipment, building permits and a rise in raw materials prices.

Another five indicators made negative contributions to the index, led by a decline in the average of 500 common stock prices, the formation of new businesses, new orders for consumer goods and a decline in outstanding credit. Also on the negative side was a pickup in claims for unemployment benefits.

One indicator, the pace of deliveries, which could signal either weaker or stronger demand, was unchanged.

The increases for July, August and September, followed a near motionless April-to-June period, during which the index showed only a 0.1 percent rise.

For the third quarter, the index rose 1.4 percent.

An accompanying coincident index, designed to measure the current economy rather than the future as the leading index does, fell 0.1 percent in September after rising 0.8 percent in August.

The index of leading indicators reached 170.3 in September, compared to a base of 100 in 1967.

At the request of the American and Colombian governments, New Tribes held off discussing the incident until Saturday, Wyma said. Since then, however, he feels releasing details of the kidnapping has assisted in securing the hostages' release.

The information, and misinformation circulating since then has "put pressure on the State Department to apply pressure on the people in Colombia," Wyma said.

Tuesday's peace commission meeting being "the most positive effort we've been able to take to free them," Wyma said. Under an agreement with the FARC representatives, the hostages were to be picked up "as soon as word of their location is received," Wyma said.

Now, "We're waiting for definite word our people are finally safe." This information, he said, "should come within the next few days."

Prior to the peace commission meeting, on Sunday night Colombian Communist Party leader Alberto Rojas Puyo publicly appealed to the FARC to release the missionaries.

Colombian guerrilla groups have accused U.S. missionaries of working for the CIA. Wyma, however, said all the 1,900 New Tribes missionaries working throughout the world address the spiritual, medical and socio-economic needs of people in primitive areas and "have no political involvements what so ever."

scribed his son as "about 6-foot-2 and muscular. He lifts weights."

Lauffer, a graduate student who serves as a volunteer fireman and has considered becoming a police officer, probably prevented more people from being shot, Hill said, adding the suspect "had additional ammunition."

A hospital spokeswoman identified the dead boy as Recife Cosmen of New Castle, Del. Another hospital spokeswoman identified the 64-year-old man who was killed as Augusto Ferrara of Philadelphia.

Ferrara's wife, Antoinette, 64, was treated for chest pains and was in stable condition.

Among those injured were Ernest Trout, 67, of Springfield, who was listed in critical condition with wounds to the head and abdomen. Maryann Gervasi, 27, Ridley Park, suffered a wound to the abdomen and was in serious condition. Four others, including two children, were in stable condition. One person was in fair condition and another was treated and released.

Hill said a ninth person suffered a heart attack "because of the excitement." Her condition was unknown.

On July 18, 1984, a man opened fire at a McDonald's restaurant in San Ysidro, Calif., killing 21 people in the worst one-day slaughter by a lone gunman.

weapons of both superpowers in return for an end to development and testing of a U.S. space-based missile defense system.

Reagan will be questioned by journalists from Tass and Novosti, the Soviet news agencies; Izvestia, the government newspaper; and Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, Speakes said. Izvestia will publish the interview Sunday in Moscow.

The questions will be asked in Russian, translated for the president and replied to in English without a subsequent translation.

The official said he expected the Soviet correspondents would be more "respectful" in their questioning than American reporters "who push government officials hard."

On Nov. 25, 1961, President John F. Kennedy gave an interview to Alexei Adzhubel, editor of the Soviet government newspaper and son-in-law of Nikita Khrushchev at his home in Hyannisport, Mass., but that interchange was more of a debate than a question-and-answer session.

The official acknowledged that the summit will be partly "a get acquainted meeting" and said it would be productive for Reagan and Gorbachev to "compare notes ... to see if we can get started on a more constructive road."

"Obviously, it will not be insignificant if they get to know each other," he said. "We will try to look to the future ... to bridge some gaps."

"We really want to demonstrate we are not hostile and belligerent," he said. "We are a people of peace."

Pankhurst will hold its regular luncheon meeting at 12 on Nov. 14 at Quigley's in the Quality Inn, SR 434 & I-4. Pankhurst is open to all women over the age of 18. Each month two area high school women are honored.

At the November meeting, Megan Lane and Jennifer Tearson, outstanding students at Lake Howell High School, will be special guests. Members and guests who plan to attend the meeting should contact Mary Bell Streetman, 862-1273, for reservations.

'Great Day' Coming Nov. 9

The Oviedo Woman's Club is sponsoring "Great Day in the Country" on Nov. 9. The 12th annual arts and crafts festival will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the grounds of St. Lukes Lutheran Church on State Road 426 at Red Bug Lake Road.

The early November date affords early Christmas shopping opportunities for those interested in a variety of hand crafted gifts.

As a special feature, weatherman Danny Treanor will join the fun from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. as master of ceremonies. His commentary will accent a variety of entertainment, including the Bahia Shrine Band, Sunshine Cloggers, and the Oviedo High School Band. To the delight of young and old alike, the Shrine Clowns will be on hand.

This year's "Great Day" will be a special time for children. Many activities are offered in an area set aside just for little folk. All participants will leave with a few prizes for their efforts.

Great Day in the Country is designed to promote interest in hand crafted arts while using the profits to benefit local charities and civic projects.

BSP Chapter To Host Social

Xi Epsilon Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met at the home of Karen Hittell Tuesday night for their regular meeting.

Members brought canned goods which are to be donated to the Christian Sharing Center. Donations of medical supplies and cloth remnants were also given and will be contributed to the African Relief Project being conducted by the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.

Plans were reviewed for the Nov. 2 All-Chapter luncheon and fashion show, beginning at 11:30 a.m., hospitality hour, and luncheon at 12:30 at the Gaalight Supper Club, Sanford.

Fashions will be from Lots' Place in downtown Sanford. Other luxury items are being supplied by LaBelle Furs, Orlando, and RBI Jewelers, Sanford.

The meeting was concluded with a program called "Ways to a Successful Marriage" being given by Cheryl Burch.

Dog Obedience Classes Start

Seminole Dog Fanciers begins a new 8-week series of dog obedience classes on Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m. The classes are held at Casselberry Recreation Center, Ivey Street, and are intended for random-bred dogs as well as pure-bred dogs. Instructors will help owners solve pet behavior problems and help handlers train their dogs for obedience competition.

Conformation classes are offered at 8:30 p.m. every Thursday at the same location. The conformation classes are for pure-bred dogs who will be shown in the breed ring.

Double Ring Rites Unite Pair

Miss Bohannon Bride Of G. Troy Ray III

Mrs. G. Troy Ray III

Tammy Jean Bohannon of Lake Mary, and G. Troy Ray III of Sanford, were married Oct. 19, at 2 p.m., at First Church of the Nazarene, Sanford. The Rev. Greg Rice was the officiating clergyman for the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Bohannon, 3505 S. Park Ave., Sanford. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Troy Ray Jr., 111 Brierwood Ave., Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows, a formal Chantilly lace gown, fashioned along the Victorian silhouette. Tiers of lace ruffles formed the bouffant skirt, which terminated in a ruffles heart-shaped chapel train. She carried a cascading bouquet of white bridal roses and orchids centered with a Cattleya orchid accented with baby's breath.

Shara Post attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore an orchid gown styled with a fitted bodice, puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline embellished with ribbon and lace accents.

She carried a nosegay of lavender freesia, mini carnations and white starburst pompons showered with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Hahah Baker, Marian Darnell and Donna Whitacre. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the honor attendant's.

Mark Gentry served the bridegroom as best man. Usher-groomsmen were John Bohannon, Blaine Darnell and Lane Trawick.

Erika Oliff was the flower girl and Steven Rice served as ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the Sanora Clubhouse. Assisting at the reception were Pat Hill, Linda Rose, Linda and Jack Croach, Carol Smith, Liz Darnell and Julie Tolliver.

After a wedding trip to Mill Ridge Valley, N.C., the newlyweds are making their home in Sanford. The bride is employed as a legal secretary and the bridegroom is employed as logistics engineer by Martin Marietta, Orlando.

Cut Cost Of Having A Baby

By Jim Boffen
NEA Feature Writer

Lynn was two-months pregnant when she and her husband, George, changed jobs. She went from part-time to full-time work at a company with about a dozen employees. George gave up self-employment to work for a firm of more than 100 employees.

The job changes meant better pay, which would be useful after the baby's arrival, but the couple's health-insurance benefits remained uncertain.

Like many working couples, it wasn't until their impending parenthood that they had their first extensive encounter with major medical expenses.

"When it comes time to start a family, the more familiar you are with the benefits of maternity coverage, the easier it will be to handle the expected and the unexpected costs of pregnancy and child care," says Susan Schiffer Stautberg, the author of "Pregnancy Nine to Five."

"If you're not covered, then apply for the best policy you can afford, and hold off any further planning until you're covered."

Ms. Stautberg, director of communications for ToucheRoss & Co., serves as consultant to corporations establishing policies for pregnant employees. She says the treatment of working mothers lags far behind their needs.

"An estimated 85 percent of women will become pregnant during their working lives," she says.

Although most companies still don't have formal policies for maternity leave and benefits, Ms. Stautberg says that inevitably corporations will have to accommodate working mothers.

"A study by the Conference Board, which is an independent business consulting firm, shows that company-sponsored outlays for child care are more than offset by low turnover and high productivity," she says.

Still, the burden remains for couples to plan for the expense of starting a family without assuming that an employer's insurance — the most common source of coverage in America — is the only, or even the best, way to pay the doctor.

In George and Lynn's case, the group health plans for which each was now eligible at their new jobs carried a 270-day waiting period before covering maternity expenses. They also found that the individual health coverage they had been paying for would cover less than half of the obstetrician's fees.

The cost of having a baby — including prenatal care, delivery fees, hospital costs, nursery care, tests and prescriptions — averages about $3,200, according to the Health Insurance Association of America.

Since George and Lynn couldn't count on coverage for the pregnancy from their new jobs, they dropped their individual health plans and joined a health maintenance organization. An alternative to traditional insurance, HMO members pay a fixed fee in exchange for complete medical care. The fee is usually higher than the premium on a traditional insurance policy. But, once paid, the members face little or no additional charges.

"Pregnancy is really an ideal situation for joining an HMO," says Annette Radick, marketing director for CoMed, a health maintenance organization in Denville, N.J. "A member of CoMed would pay $5 for each prenatal visit, up to 10 visits," says Ms. Radick. The HMO would cover all delivery fees and cover pediatrician costs after birth.

Whatever plan you choose, Ms. Stautberg insists that a working mother-to-be should also make sure that her income and job are protected during pregnancy.

This kind of insurance was meant to be provided by a 1978 federal law known as the Pregnancy Disability Act, which Ms. Stautberg says "... classifies pregnancy and childbirth as temporary disabilities and that expectant mothers must receive the same health insurance coverage, income and job protection as employees who incur other types of disabilities."

But she points out that the law only applies to certain employers — companies with 15 or more employees, employment agencies and businesses that have labor organizations.

"About 60 percent of working women are not protected by disability insurance," she says.

More alarming perhaps is that 17 percent of all American women in the reproductive years (ages 15 to 44) and 25 percent of women in prime childbearing years (ages 18 to 24) have no health coverage at all. So report Rachel Benson Gold and Asta M. Kennedy of the Alan Guttmacher Institute, a non-profit research company specializing in family planning.

"It may seem cold and calculating to think of a baby in terms of the dent he or she will make in your wallet," says Ms. Stautberg. "But if you don't, you'll be letting yourself in for a great deal of worry."

Youthful Demeanor Bests Hair Dye

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a male in my mid-40s. In my line of work, a youthful appearance is desirable. For this reason I have used various hair colors for a number of years. I have tried the shampoo type, the cream-dressing type and the comb-in type. All of these have produced reactions ranging from irritation to violent sores. All have contained lead, and in each case there was a warning on the label. Is there any safe hair color that does not contain lead?

DEAR READER — I cannot be certain that you are reacting solely to the lead compounds in hair-coloring solutions; you may be allergic to other substances in the preparations. Therefore, I am unable to advise you regarding a specific product. Perhaps your pharmacist carries hypoallergenic, lead-free hair coloring and can help you to choose one. Forgive me for making another observation: A youthful appearance depends on many factors other than hair color. Wrinkles and changing facial characteristics are equally obvious manifestations of the aging process, and you can't do much about them except undergo plastic surgery. Do you want to make that extensive a commitment to "youth"? Maybe I'm kidding myself, but I believe that middle-age need not be fought hand-to-hand with tints, creams and cosmetics. A youthful demeanor, as opposed to a youthful appearance, may, in the long run, prove more successful in your area of employment.

I question whether hair color may make the man in any line of work. In my experience, an aging gentleman who colors his hair really doesn't fool anyone and may be viewed by his younger colleagues as "that vain old guy who dyes his hair." I would be interested to hear from readers on this subject.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am in desperate need of help. I suffer from severe depressions. A lab test indicated that I have no lithium in my body, so I started taking it. It helped for a few months, but it doesn't seem to have any effect any more. A black cloud hangs over me, sapping all of my strength, energy, power of concentration and, worst of all, my ability to enjoy life. Please help to release me from this living hell.

DEAR READER — In order for lithium to exert its maximal effect, it must be present in therapeutic levels in your body. Perhaps, for one reason or another, you are not taking enough or its absorption is impaired. You will certainly need a blood test to assess your lithium level.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

The bidding can often tell you that your partner doesn't have any picture cards. If you're on defense, you should still try to play him for what you need to beat the contract. That may be as little as a 10-spot.

The two-club bid by West had a special meaning: It asked partner to bid a major suit. North did not want East to have a chance to show his longer major suit, so he bid three no-trump immediately. That placed West on lead with no particular clues, so he led his longest suit. Declarer won the queen of hearts, played a diamond to the ace and a club back to his king and West's ace. West pondered over what he might find in partner's hand that could set three no-trump. He finally decided that the spade 10 with East was his best chance, so he tabled the queen of spades. Declarer won that trick, played a diamond to dummy and passed the 10 of clubs, hoping the jack would be with East. No such luck. West gathered in the club jack, cashed ace of spades and led a small spade to partner's 10. The fourth spade then became the setting trick.

If declarer had been able to see through the backs of the cards, he could have made the hand by allowing the spade queen to hold the trick when West led it. West's best play is to cash his spade ace and exit with a spade. When South runs his diamonds, West has to discard his last spade in order to guard the heart king and club jack. West can now be end played and will have to yield the game-going trick.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Tasks you perform well today will not only give you a strong sense of achievement, but will be noticed by one whose attention you've been anxious to get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're much more popular with your peers at this time than you give yourself credit for. Today, this will be more evident to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't wait for others to make social arrangements today. Put something together at your place for a select group of your most intimate friends.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your skills as a mediator may be required today to avert an altercation between two people of whom you're equally fond. You'll still be troubled waters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you have allocated your weekly budget properly, you should have a little excess now that will enable you to buy a luxury item for which you've been longing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless you break out of your shell today, you're apt to be a trifle restless. A social involvement with your most exciting pals will put you in a happy weekend mood.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) General conditions are favorable for you today. You could even reap benefits from an opportunity that will develop from a least expected source.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's to your advantage to get out and mix today, especially if you are unattached. Members of the opposite gender will find you more appealing than usual.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be in tune with people with clout and influence today. Conditions are propitious to press for a favor that could further your ambitions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Good news from a distance will be trying to get through to you today. Check your mailbox and message service. Make it a point to return all calls.

Man's 'Common-Law Divorce' Will Be Uncommon In Court

DEAR ABBY: I know in some states there is such a thing as "common-law marriage," which means people are as good as married if they live together as husband and wife for a certain length of time.

How about "common-law divorce"? I have a relative (I'll call him Earl) who drove his wife ("Myrtle") and their two children to Texas to visit her parents in 1975 and he never went back to get them.

In the meantime, Earl (who lives in Ohio) took up with a lady, and they are now living together just like married folks. Myrtle and the kids seem happy in Texas, although they haven't had any contact with Earl since he left them there.

Earl is now making plans to marry his ladyfriend, saying that after 10 years of separation, he has "common-law divorce," so he can get married without any hassle.

Is this right? I've never heard of a common-law divorce, have you?

INTERESTED RELATIVE

DEAR INTERESTED: No. But I have heard of "bigamy," which is what Earl can be charged with if he gets married to his ladyfriend while he's married to Myrtle.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice, "Never pick up a hitchhiker," supported by a column filled with horror stories, infuriated me.

I am well aware of the violent crimes taking place today, but I refuse to live in a self-made prison, double-locking all doors, putting bars on all windows, assuming that everyone out there is a potential robber, rapist or murderer. And I do pick up hitchhikers because the majority of them are good people who want only transportation.

I think your attitude ("even if one of 10,000 is a bad apple, the odds are too high") is mean and selfish. Sign me...

MORE GENEROUS THAN YOU
DEAR MOR GENEROUS: You are also more courageous. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Mad in Minnesota" on the danger of hitchhiking was exactly correct. Our son was one of those who loved to hitchhike to meet those "wonderful people." He hitchhiked all over the United States and Southern proper etiquette before I send them.

NERVOUS BRIDE

DEAR NERVOUS: I agree with your future mother-in-law. Should you be asked where you are registered, it's perfectly all right to say, but don't send the information along with your invitations.

DEAR ABBY: My heart went out to that junior high school girl whose boyfriend kept pressuring her for sex. For some reason, guys who would never actually force themselves on girls see nothing wrong with begging, pleading or just sheer persistence to get a girl to change her mind.

When I was 18, I gave in to such a person, even though I really didn't think it was right. Now I would tell a guy like that to get lost; but then I was young and "in love" and desperate to please him. I couldn't bear the thought that he had experienced sex with other girls, and thought if I had sex with him it would stop him from having it with anyone else. (It didn't.) He soon dropped me for another girl. So much unhappiness could have been avoided if I had stuck by my beliefs.

I went on to marry a wonderful man and I don't dwell on the past. I consider myself lucky not to have gotten pregnant during that brief encounter. I was young and foolish.

Please continue to tell young girls that virginity is precious, and can be given only once. I'm sorry I wasted mine.

Africa, even though he had plenty of money to travel by other means.

In the summer of 1984, at the age of 28, our son was apparently picked up by a "wonderful person" in Nebraska as he was returning to graduate school in Iowa. His decomposed body was found along the side of the freeway two weeks later with two bullets in it.

His mother had continually warned him not to hitchhike, but he wouldn't listen. I only hope that this story may help prevent the needless loss of life and the indescribable pain of grief for the families of other prospective hitchhikers.

STILL GRIEVING IN TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: When someone sends wedding invitations, how do you feel about enclosing cards that say, "Gift preferences are registered at (name of store)"? The store where I am registered gave me a supply of these cards for that purpose.

My mother thinks it's a great idea, but my future mother-in-law thinks it's tacky.

I told my mother I would ask you and would go along with whatever you said.

I've never seen this done before, and I want to be sure it's Arnold The Actor Speaks!

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) You've known him as Conan the Barbarian. Currently, his role is Matrix the "Commando." But, in reality, he is Arnold the Actor.

Arnold Schwarzenegger says he is becoming increasingly comfortable as an actor.

Nowadays, he has more lines. In his early films, he was barely able to grunt a little. Now he handles dialogue like a pro. He used to go for long minutes on the screen without saying anything more than an occasional "oof."

"I am now very competent with acting," Arnold says. "and I have complete control over the situation. I understand what I am doing enough so I can put my own thoughts into the film."

He thinks that, more and more, he will play roles that ask something more of him than just standing there and looking like a building. He looks forward eagerly to movie parts that will require him to express real emotions.

"I'm a person who likes always to get into new territories and take on new challenges," Arnold says. "I think every actor likes to do those things."

But he isn't going to make an overnight jump from films like the Conans and the Current release, "Commando," into roles like Dustin Hoffman and Al Pacino play. Schwarzenegger is a very smart man and he knows that the public still wants to see him in those mighty-muscle movies. At least, for a while more.

"At this point," he says, "what I am most known for is action-adventure movies. My physical development is obvious and imposing on the screen. So I have to go with what I know is acceptable to the audience, what they want to see, what they need to see, what is salable."

He realizes that now he has enough clout, after being in a string of box-office hits, to demand another kind of role and probably get it. But he also realizes that, if he did another kind of role — say a sophisticated love story — and it fell on its face. It would hurt his career badly.

In his early films, he was barely able to grunt a little...

So he will try to move from Point A — roles that rely more on muscle than anything else — to Point B — more human, more sophisticated roles — gradually.

"I have patience," he says. "I know I will not be doing the same kind of films in the future that I have to do today. But I can do them five years from now."

Already, he has taken one giant step down the road. He says he will not do another "Conan," nor anything in that area.

"I have stopped that," he says. "I think 'Terminator' showed that the public will accept me in a film with my clothes on. I don't have to keep taking my jacket off or my shirt off so they can see my body all the time. I think now they are just interested in seeing me. That was a big breakthrough."

So along came "Commando," which he sees as another small step in the direction he wants to go. And he's keeping on making more small steps.

His next will be "Triple Identity," which he describes as being a combination of "Three Days of the Condor" and "Dirty Harry." That will be followed by "Terminator II." And other things that are presently in the planning stage.

Arnold is in demand for roles now, and is pleased to be in that position.

General Hospital Ahead Of Pack

Soaps Battle It Out On The Nielsen Front

By Jon-Michael Reed

NEW YORK — November is one of those months when soap land takes out its heavy story-line artillery to secure audiences and win new fans. Because the results of the November Nielsen ratings set the advertising rates for soaps for the next half year (and lucrative daytime ratings fill the coffers of networks), the soaps try to out-race each other with lavish location camera work and climactic resolutions to plots that have been brewing for as long as a year.

The latest available ratings figures, from early October, show that first-place "General Hospital" was running far ahead of its nearest competitors, second-place tie-holders "The Young and the Restless" and "One Life to Live."

Following in order were "All My Children," "Guiding Light," "As the World Turns," which is moving ahead of next-placed "Days of Our Lives." Next in line are "Capitol," "Another World," "Loving" and "Santa Barbara." Tied for last place are "Ryan's Hope" and "Search For Tomorrow."

"GH" has taped on-location scenes in Vancouver, Canada, for chase sequences that will involve Robert Scorpio and Frisco Jones. "Another World" will show love and adventure scenes taped in Arizona.

"Days of Our Lives" has already shown sequences taped in Boston, which, incidentally, had to be done during the height of Hurricane Gloria's wrath in the Northeast.

Despite warnings that the hurricane might jeopardize the shoot, the "Days" crew stuck to long-planned taping and accommodations schedules. While winds in the city approached 90 mph, the crew hurriedly rewrote the script and hustled to get scenes on tape involving Pete Jannings and Melissa Anderson's escapades.

Nevertheless, four hours of tape had to be shot in the middle of hurricane-force winds and torrential downpours that streaked camera lenses and resulted in the eerie effect of virtually no pedestrian or vehicle traffic on the usually clogged streets of central Boston.

Coming up on "Days" is an extension of the Boston sequences, which lead Pete and Melissa to Miami — scenes taped immediately after the Boston adventure. Miami greeted cast and crew with sunny, warm skies that continued throughout a three-day schedule in Florida.

Weddings are always big audience-grabbers for soaps, and in November there will be several. Mindy Lewis and Kurt Corday's nuptials on "Guiding Light," taped on location on the green and arbor-abundant slopes of a private estate with almost the entire cast participating, will air this week, with a cash-strewn reception following next week.

On "Capitol," Nov. 15, the wedding date for Clarissa McCandless and Sen. Mark Dunning will arrive. But will the nuptials take place or will Jarrett Morgan step in at the last minute to declare that he is really Baxter. Clarissa's plastic-surgiced and long-assumed-dead first and legal husband?
