

Feather Wants Opponent To Back Out Of Primary

Republican County Commissioner Robert G. "Bud" Feather has called on his opponent in the upcoming September GOP primary to withdraw from the race in the interests of unity within the party.

But Fred Streetman, who announced his candidacy for the District 3 seat on the county commission more than a year ago, declared today he has no intention of withdrawing.

"The number of supporters and contributors that have come forward to encourage me give me every reason to think I will win the nomination," said Streetman, who has been actively involved in the local Republican Party for the past 12 years or more.

Feather, who called a breakfast meeting with party leaders — James Weinberg, James Stelling and Maryanne Morse — more than a week ago, sent a letter to Mrs. Morse after calling for Streetman's withdrawal.

In his letter, Feather said, "I want to make it perfectly clear that I have no intention to slander any officeholder during the campaign as you charged at the meeting. You know that my record as a public servant over the past 12 years is impeccable from a conservative, Republican point of view."

Feather served eight years on the school board and is completing his first four-year term on the county commission.

Mrs. Morse denied she had accused Feather of using slander in a campaign. "In some remarks he implied it might be necessary to comment on other elected officials and I asked him if he felt it would be necessary to slander any elected official," she said.

Feather's letter said he reviewed actual board decisions with the three and cited the example of his colleagues "giving away for $1 per year a prime piece of commercial property for 60 years to a special interest group that will cost each of us as taxpayers over $300,000 in lost revenue over that period..."

Feather is referring to the county's 30 year lease with an option for a second 30-years of a parcel of county-owned land in the Five Points area to the Seminole County Humane Society.

Feather said another example of his colleagues' activity was scheduling the $20 million library bond issue for the October primary two years ago when it was known that the issue would pass due to poor voter turnout.

"My vulnerability, if any," Feather said, "is the number of voting conflict forms I have filed. Although legally required to file only five, my personal policy is to reveal any and all possible conflicts either real or imagined."

Streetman, however, did not take even five lightly.

"I believe someone, with the number of conflicts that Bud Feathers has, including conflicts that enabled him to make personal profit through his motions and votes, should rethink whether it is a service to the citizens of Seminole County or his party to try to continue in his office."

Feather said, "Given my accomplishments over the past 12 years it's ridiculous that a Republican, especially one who should have the well being of the party at heart above his personal ambition would promote a Republican primary election. —Donna Estes

Williams Quits School Board In Career Move

Roland V. Williams, the first and only black ever to serve on the Seminole County School Board, has submitted his resignation to Gov. Bob Graham, effective June 27 at the close of the school board meeting scheduled that day.

In his letter of resignation, Williams said he has accepted "a career opportunity with a corporation in Atlanta."

Roland Williams

Ron Boeth, SEA executive director, said today, "We are in process of working on a recommendation and will be forwarding that on to the governor."

Boeth said the SEA leadership is talking to several people about being prospective candidates to succeed Williams. He declined, however, to name any special candidate under consideration, saying the SEA will be recommending a candidate "who will continue to represent the full county including minorities."

Williams, 36, will not only be leaving the School Board where he has served for the past six years, and the Martin-Marletta Corp. where he has been employed for the past 11 years as an engineer, he will also be resigning an alternate delegate post to the Democratic Party's national convention to be held in July in San Francisco.

Williams was elected an alternate delegate pledged to former Gov. Reubin Askew in Florida's March Democratic presidential preference primary. In that primary, Williams carried the highest number of votes cast in Seminole County for any delegate or alternate.

And he was considered a shoo-in for re-election to the school board this year. No one has announced intentions to run against him. After he was appointed to a vacancy on the school board in the summer of 1978, Williams successfully ran for election later that year and for re-election in 1980.

A native Floridian, Williams and his family live in Longwood. Their two children — Elaine, 13, and Roland Jr., 9 — are students in the Seminole County district.

Williams said although he was proud of his election as an alternate delegate and had planned to attend the convention, that will not be possible because he will be in a transition stage with his new job.

Early in his career, Williams was a school teacher in the Seminole County schools.

He said he would like his replacement on the school board to be a person, "who is open-minded, willing to work hard, dedicated to the students and the public, and willing to follow through on programs initiated by me."

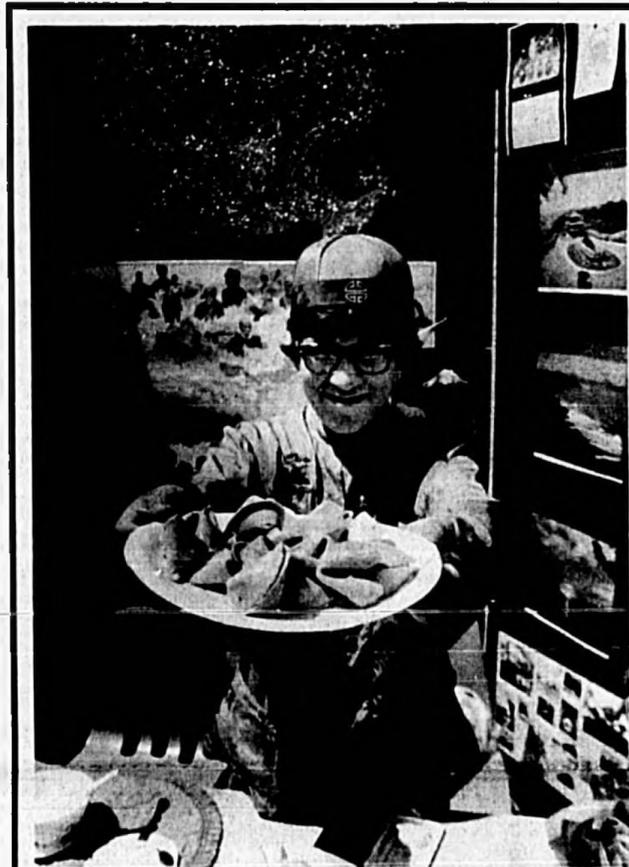

"There are many potentially good candidates out there," he said.

Williams gained support from his colleagues in asking for a commitment to work toward raising the state test scores of blacks and other under-achievers in the school system.

Williams had said that the average test scores of blacks before the latest results were issued were no better than those achieved in the segregated schools of the 1960's.

He also urged a human relations program to be undertaken so that teachers, principals and administrators could better communicate with minority students.

"I want to see 'I can' type programs in the school," Williams said. "If we put high expectations on the children we will help them develop a belief in self and self-worth achievement will follow." —Donna Estes

$10 Million Development Planned For Lakefront

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

An 11.6 acre tract of land with 1,000 feet on the Monroe lakefront in Sanford, across the street from and north of the Evening Herald building, has been sold to a group of Houston developers for $1.3 million and a $10 million commercial-residential development should begin construction there by summer's end.

Sanford attorney William Hutchison, who closed the sale on behalf of his clients, Lakefront Development Ltd., said the sellers of the tract are a group that was encouraged to purchase the property by the Banker's Committee of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce 12 years ago. After the purchase the city rescinded zoning which would have allowed a fuel tank farm there.

Mayor Lee P. Moore, who said he knew little of the proposed development today, added, "It sounds great."

The tract, on Seminole Boulevard between French and Maple Avenues with some frontage on Fulton Street, was used as a tank farm when the old Navy base was located at the Sanford Airport.

Hutchison said development plans for the property, expected to cost $10 million, include construction of 256 luxury rental apartments, 24,000 square feet of retail space and a "first class" restaurant. Preliminary plans are nearly completed, Hutchison said. The buyers, who will be developing land in Central Florida under the name of Lake View Limited, expect to present a site plan to the Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission later this month for approval, he said.

The Florida firm is a subsidiary of the Robert F. Bland Development Co. of Houston, Tex.

"The Houston area is overbuilt like hell," Hutchison said. "This company has made millions there and they want to put their money somewhere. And they have decided this is the place."

Meanwhile, the Houston firm has also purchased a 40-acre site off Hattaway Drive in Altamonte Springs for $5 million and plans to spend $25 million to develop that parcel.

Their plans reportedly are to break ground within 90 days for construction of 300 rental apartments and possibly 200 condominiums on the Lake Orienta lakefront section of the tract.

Fred Anderson, vice president of Robert F. Bland Development Co., will be heading the firm's Lake View Ltd. subsidiary in Central Florida.

Consumers Lose Milk Price Battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, voting 8-0 Monday, ruled that consumers do not have the right to challenge a Department of Agriculture system for setting the price of milk products.

The decision, a blow for consumer groups fighting to keep down the cost of milk, said Congress only approved participation of the federal agency, producers and processors in the price regulation process.

"Handlers and producers — but not consumers — are entitled to participate in the adoption and retention of market orders," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote for the court. Justice John Paul Stevens did not participate in the case.

Consumers challenged the 1937 Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act, passed to end price wars in the dairy industry.

Eustis Ex-Mayor To Seek Langley's Senate Seat

Jim Martin of Eustis, a former city council president, mayor and lobbyist, has pre-pled to run for the Florida Senate seat held by Sen. Richard Langley, R-Clermont.

A Democrat and a retired marine engineer, Martin, 56, says he will run for the senate seat because "the incumbent's voting record is not representative of the voters of the district."

Martin said he believes he is qualified to serve in the state senate because of his previous public service and because of his experience as a lobbyist for highway safety improvements.

He estimates his campaign will cost between $50,000 and $60,000 and he is gathering campaign contributions from voters in the district which includes all of Lake and Sumter counties and parts of Seminole, Marion and Volusia counties.

'Harvest Of Dust' Feared As Deserts Spread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A United Nations report warns that a rapid spread of deserts around the globe is destroying millions of acres of once-productive farm and rangeland.

Cautioning that drought is not the root cause of desert expansion, the U.N. Environment Program study, entitled "Harvest of Dust," concludes drastic measures are needed to attack the principal causes — bad farming and grazing practices, improper irrigation and forest destruction.

"We have found that a total of 3.475 billion hectares (8.6 billion acres) of the world's range, rain-fed cropland and irrigated land — an area approximately the size of North and South America combined — is affected by desertification," wrote Mostafa Tolba, executive director of the U.N. Environment Program.

Tolba's report found that each year 51.9 million acres on the planet are "reduced to a state of near or complete uselessness."

While desert expansion is most severe in Third World nations of Africa and Asia, the study said the problem is cropping up in industrialized nations, including the United States, the Soviet Union and Australia.

The Worldwatch Institute, a

Washington-based research organization, reported this year in a book-length study of global resource trends that overgrazing by cattle, sheep and goats is a major cause of desertification.

Worldwatch cited U.S. government statistics showing a third of U.S. rangeland, outside of Alaska, is in "poor condition" and another third is in "fair condition."

The U.N. Environment Program's research was done to assess the state of the problem since the agency drew up an international "action plan" in 1977 — agreed to by 94 nations — to combat the spread of deserts.

Tolba noted that nations have contributed less than $50,000 to a U.N. account that funds the "action plan" to attack desertification. Against that sum, the United Nations estimates mankind must spend a total of $90 billion during the next 20 years to stop the spread of deserts.

The report also warned of a link between desertification and the urban problems of poor nations.

"Loss of land productivity has forced villagers into the towns." It said, "It has also caused food shortages which result in food riots and other forms of unrest."

Would-Be Robber Takes Store Manager's Advice

It was not gun, nor knife, that caused the bandit's flight, just a steely woman of true grit who told a would-be-robber: "Don't even try it."

All it took was those four words from store manager Brenda Moore, 34, of Sanford, who was tending Sunshine Liquors Sunday at 4:52 p.m. to thwart a man who entered the store with robbery on his mind.

Ms. Moore said there were women customers in the 1810 W. 13th Street store when the man entered. He was a tall and slim, she said, perhaps 6-foot-3 with faded blue jeans, no shirt and a hairy chest.

She said she walked up to the counter, slammed a 32-caliber blue-steel revolver onto the counter, looked her in the eye and said, "give it up."

Ms. Moore said she looked the man in the eye and said, "Don't even try it."

The man then picked up the gun and ran from the store, she said.

He left empty handed, less for Moore. —Deane Jordan

NATION IN BRIEF

Reagan Taking Concerns To The Irish Parliament

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — President Reagan, turning from an emotional visit to his ancestral home in Ballyporeen to foreign policy, delivers a major address today on East-West relations to the Irish Parliament.

An aide said the president may make some new gesture to ease tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union, which have worsened in recent months.

After his address and a luncheon meeting with President Patrick Hillery, Reagan will fly to London to meet British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher. Reagan travels to Normandy, France, on Wednesday for ceremonies commemorating D-Day, and returns to London to attend the annual economic summit of industrialized nations beginning Thursday.

At a banquet in his honor in Dublin Castle Sunday night, Reagan said in his toast that although Ireland and the United States enjoy close relations, "There are some influences we are not proud of" — a reference to the violence in Ulster.

Nurses' Strike Spreading

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A suburban hospital targeted today to become the 16th facility hit by the nation's largest nursing strike planned to curtail services and allow only emergency surgery if its 300 nurses walk off the job.

About 300 nurses planned to picket Mercy Medical Center in suburban Coon Rapids today, joining about 6,000 members of the Minnesota Nurses Association who walked off their jobs at 15 hospitals Friday.

A strike at Mercy would also affect Unity Hospital in suburban Fridley that is owned by the same company, a spokesman for the MNA said.

The nurses are striking for improved benefits and a seniority clause in their contract protecting them from layoffs or forced reduction in working hours.

Hospital administrators say they need flexible scheduling guidelines, even if it means laying off senior nurses untrained for highly skilled positions.

Fugitives' Trail Hot?

PASCHALL, Va. (UPI) — Police tightened a dragnet around the rural Virginia-North Carolina border today, suspecting they are on the trail of at least two of the four fugitive killers from Virginia's death row.

"The adrenalin is running very high now. They (officers) are feeling very positive that they may have a firm lead on at least two of the fugitives," said Russ Edmonston, a spokesman for the 4-day-old manhunt.

Woman Fingers Pot-Growing Roommate

Casselberry police uncovered a crop of marijuana being cultivated in a closet when they responded to a disturbance at a Casselberry apartment.

The officers reported that when they arrived at 1433-B Ash Circle at 6:36 p.m. Sunday, they heard "bumping and screaming" inside the apartment. A woman answered the officers' knock on the door and said, "He's assaulting me," according to a police report. One lawman took the victim outside and a second spoke with the man inside the house.

Linda Jean Young, 25, of the above address, told the officer that the man who was allegedly assaulting her was growing pot in a closet inside the apartment.

An officer checked the closet and found "several styrofoam cups filled with potting soil and several plants appearing to be cannabis." There were additional plants on the closet shelf, the report said.

While the officers were on the scene, the suspect reportedly said he wanted to get his shoes, which he was permitted to do. Later, when the officers checked the closet garden again, the plants had been concealed in the legs of two pairs of pants and the suspect refused to come out of the closet. He was pulled out struggling and was handcuffed, the report said.

Ms. Young denied any involvement with the pot crop and said it had been planted over her objections about a month ago. She was not charged in the case.

Paul Andrew Salaniuk, 19, of 1433-B Ash Circle, Casselberry, was charged with cultivation and possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and resisting arrest at 7:50 p.m. Sunday. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond and was scheduled to appear in court at 1:30 p.m. today.

Charges related to the alleged assault are pending, the arrest report said.

GUN GONE

A Sanford woman told police someone removed a gun she had hidden in her home.

Linda Hammontree, 36, of 110 Westwood Court, told police she kept a .357-caliber handgun hidden under her sofa. It was there Thursday at 5:45 a.m. but missing at 7:30 that night, she said.

The gun was a blue steel Colt Python valued at $525.

WATER METER STASH

A Sanford man who was allegedly dealing in marijuana, which he stashed under the cover of a water meter on 13th Street, Sanford, has been released from jail on $5,000 bond.

The man was arrested at 9:55 p.m. Tuesday after a

Sanford policeman reportedly watched the man make two sales of small envelopes of marijuana to motorists who drove up and stopped long enough to buy a packet of pot, a police report said.

In addition to confiscating more than 20 grams of pot after the arrest lawmen also took about $90 from the suspect to be held as evidence, the report said.

Jimmy Jerome Washington, 19, of 109 Sterling Court, was charged with possession of marijuana and possession with intent to sell.

HOUSE VANDALIZED

The Cape Coral owner of a Sanford home reported someone vandalized the inside of the structure, doing about $5,000 worth of damage.

Richard E. Wilson, 31, a banker, told a Sanford police officer Saturday that sometime during the last six weeks someone entered an unoccupied house at 107 Whispering Pines Court and punched holes in the ceiling and walls. Wilson said tiles in the house's bathroom were destroyed and carpet was ripped up throughout the home.

He said two ceiling fans were removed as were smoke detectors.

PURSE PILFERED

While at a Sanford restaurant Saturday night, a woman had her purse stolen, suffering a total loss of $880.

Janet E. Mansfield, 28, of Sanford, told police that while at Bahama Joe's, 2508 U.S. Highway 17-92, between 8 and 11:45 p.m. someone removed her $200 designer brown leather purse which contained $160 cash. Also missing is a leather wallet valued at $20, a 14-karat gold chain with small diamond priced at $300, a $70 make-up kit, a $130 real estate calculator plus various credit cards and personal papers.

IN THE BAG

A Sanford man who allegedly dropped a bag filled with illegal drugs as he fled from police Tuesday was arrested at his home Wednesday.

Sanford detective Bill Hanson reported spotting the suspect as he approached a pickup truck with a paper bag in his hand. As the Hanson approached and recognized the suspect, the man reportedly dropped the bag and ran.

Hanson recovered the bag and found 17 small foil packets of cocaine, 14 envelopes of marijuana, and $20 inside. Hanson's report did not give the location of the incident.

Theodore J. Jordan, 32, of #47 Lake Monroe Terrace, was arrested at 12:45 a.m. Wednesday and charged with possession of a controlled substance, attempting to sell a controlled substance and resisting arrest without violence. He was being held in lieu of $5,000 bond.

POT BELLIED ROBBER

A Longwood store clerk was robbed at gunpoint after a man argued about paying for a six-pack of beer and a pack of cigarettes.

Johnathan Diller told a sheriff's deputy that he was working at 1:34 a.m. Saturday when a short, middle-aged man with graying hair and beard and a pot belly became involved in an argument with him about paying for the items.

Diller said the man stepped back from the counter, pulled a small steel blue handgun out from under his shirt and pointed it at the him. Diller said he ducked behind the counter after the man said "I'll shoot you." After Diller ducked, the man left with the items.

CEILING ENTRY

A Longwood woman told a deputy that someone entered her apartment by cutting a hole in the ceiling of a closet in a bedroom.

Sharon L. Sullivan, 26, of 181-C Springwood Village, said that between 12:45 and 9 p.m. Friday someone entered the apartment by making a hole in the ceiling of a closet in her roommate's bedroom.

Nothing was taken, according to the deputy's report.

ANTIQUITY JEWELRY TAKEN

An antique store in the Lake Howell Plaza reported at least $650 worth of gold jewelry removed during a break-in.

Jeannie S. Weber, 38, of Fern Park, and Jerry B. Smith, 48, of Winter Springs, part-owners of The Antique Market, Lake Howell Road, near Casselberry, told a deputy that someone smashed the front door between 6 p.m. Thursday and 7:20 a.m. Friday, entered their store and removed gold rings, chains and bracelets.

Brothers Who Ran Prostitution Ring Get Year In Jail

A 47-year-old Casselberry man and his 50-year-old brother who pleaded guilty in April to running a prostitution ring have each been sentenced to a year in jail and five years probation.

William Maxie Grainger, 47, of 241 Lake Griffin, and his brother, Alfred David Grainger, 50, of Orlando, were sentenced Friday by Seminole Circuit Judge Robert B. McGregor. They pleaded guilty April 24 to living off the earnings of prostitutes and offering to secure another for the purpose of prostitution.

They could have received up to five years in prison, according to prosecutor George Wallace.

Besides the jail time, the younger

Grainger was fined $4,000 fine, his brother $3,000.

They were arrested by sheriff's deputies Feb. 2 after a four-month investigation.

The probe began in November after agents received complaints that the now-defunct Seminole Referral Dating Service of Regency Square Plaza, Casselberry, was a front for prostitution. The agents were unsuccessful in several attempts to negotiate an agreement for sex from any of the 10 women who were allegedly working for the brothers.

A sheriff's report said the woman were well versed in Florida law related to procurement, so informants were used who could negotiate with the women beyond the limitations that restricted the lawmen's ability to complete their investigation.

On two occasions in January, the informants paid two of the women $150 per hour each for their services. When the women were leaving the motel rooms where they had sex with the informants, they were approached by agents. The women agreed to cooperate in the probe and were not charged because, according to sheriff's spokesman John Spolski, authorities considered the arrest of the Grainger brothers to be more critical. The brothers reportedly received half the money the women earned.

The agents made the arrest after reviewing information provided by two of the women and evidence obtained from recorded conversations between the brothers, one of the women and an informant. During the conversations they heard the brothers accepting money from the woman and describing their operation, saying it netted them between $5,000 and $8,000 a week.

One week after their arrest and release on bond, the men were re-arrested and booked back into the Seminole County jail after their bondsmen rescinded their bonds on the rumor that the pair were planning to skip town.

The younger Grainger then posted collateral for his bond and the older brother was released on his own recognition.

FLORIDA IN BRIEF

Shuttle Test An Apparent Success

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Engineers were optimistic an 18-second test firing of the space shuttle Discovery's mighty main engines cleared the way for the orbiter to make its maiden mission later this month.

"The preliminary data review is very good," shuttle launch director Bob Sieck said after the launch pad test. "We saw no indication of any leaks or any failures, certainly nothing in the main propulsion system."

The three motors exploded into life about 11 a.m. EDT Saturday for an 18-second test run designed to make sure the space agency's third and newest orbiter is ready for its inaugural flight.

Discovery's exact launch date will be set after engineers review the engine test data.

Playboy Raises Eyebrows

FORT LAUDERDALE (UPI) — An anti-pornography group has complained that the Broward County Library's collection of Playboy magazines — two issues — is too readily available to children.

The issues rest on the library's periodical racks alongside The Ladies Home Journal, the Library Hotline and the Newsletter on Intellectual Freedom. The magazines are in full view and are available to library patrons of any age.

State law prohibits retail establishments from openly displaying or having "within the convenient reach of minors" any magazine whose cover might be considered harmful to children.

It is not clear whether the covers of Playboy would be considered harmful to minors, but the law applies only to stores, said Ray Marky an assistant state attorney general.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Sakharov's Daughter Will Seek Visa To Russia

LONDON (UPI) — The stepdaughter of Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, concerned by reports the physicist had died on a hunger strike, said she would try to visit the Soviet Union to get a "truthful answer" about his fate.

Sakharov, 63, was banished into internal exile in 1980 for his outspoken stand on human rights in the Soviet Union. He went on a hunger strike May 2 in an effort to force Soviet authorities to allow his wife, Yelena Bonner, to get medical treatment in the West.

The Sunday Times of London, citing "reliable but unofficial sources in Moscow," said the Nobel Peace Prize winner died Thursday in a hospital in Gorky, 250 miles east of Moscow.

In Helsinki, Finland, Sakharov's stepdaughter was distressed but skeptical about the report, saying she would seek a visa to the Soviet Union to see what had happened to her parents.

Mideast Fighting Rages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A fierce rocket and mortar barrage today engulfed neighborhoods near the presidential palace and the U.S. ambassador's residence, leaving at least three civilians dead and five wounded.

The nightlong violence shattered plans to open two new Green Line corridors where civilians could cross between the Christian and Moslem halves of Beirut.

The corridors were scheduled to open this morning, but as the deadline passed, rival gunmen faced off against each other behind their heavily fortified barricades, police said.

"There still are many differences which the rival factions need to resolve before the two corridors are opened," said sources in the office of acting Interior Minister Joseph Skaf.

While at least 30 rockets crashed down around the palace of President Amin Gemayel and the home of U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew in the eastern suburb of Baabda, neither was hit, police said.

Peace Efforts Threatened?

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — Diplomats feared the presence of Nicaraguan rebel leader Eden Pastora, in quarantine at a Caracas clinic today, may impede the efforts of the Contadora group to avert a full-scale war in Central America.

The willing participation of Nicaragua, the best armed and only left-wing government in the region, is essential to the efforts of the so-called Contadora group which has sought contacts with all sides in the various Central American conflicts to press for a negotiated peace. It was feared the harboring of Pastora could undermine Venezuela's ability to sustain a neutral role.

Gulf War Iraqi Attack Signals Tanker War Resumption

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (UPI) — An Iraqi warplane attack that left a Turkish tanker in flames signaled a resumption of the Persian Gulf "tanker war" between Iran and Iraq.

The Turkish tanker hit Sunday was ablaze hours after the strike in Gulf waters south of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal. Iran said it rescued all members of the crew.

Iraq said it hit two "large naval targets" during the air raid, but shipping sources who pinpointed the attack on the Turkish vessel about 50 miles from Kharg Island could not confirm a second hit.

Iran's official news agency IRNA said the tanker, the 153,000-ton Byuk Hun, was hit by an Exocet missile fired from

"The tanker, which was on its way to load in the Kharg Island terminal, was hit from a relatively long distance," IRNA said.

IRNA said Iranian firemen worked late Sunday to extinguish a fire aboard the Istanbul-registered tanker. The agency said all crew members had been rescued, although earlier reports from Turkey and Gulf shipping sources said three seamen were missing.

It was the first independently confirmed strike by either side on a merchant ship since May 24, shipping sources said.

At least 27 oil tankers and general cargo vessels reportedly have been hit in the Gulf by Iraq and Iran since late March in an expansion of the 45-month war between the neighboring countries.

The United Arab Emirates' Gulf News newspaper said the attacks have caused serious disruption of shipping schedules and there have been "frequent postponements and cancellations" of vessels due to call at Gulf ports.

In another development, IRNA reported a senior Iranian diplomat flew to Moscow Sunday for talks with Soviet officials.

Diplomats in the Gulf said the visit of Muhammad Sadr, political director in Iran's foreign ministry, could be aimed at seeking a reduction of Soviet arms deliveries to Iraq.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati repeated Iran's condemnation of a recent U.N. Security Council resolution that demanded a halt to raids on neutral shipping and indirectly blamed Iran without mentioning Iraqi raids.

A statement carried by IRNA said the U.N. vote "turned a blind eye" on Iraqi reports of attacks on ships in the Gulf, providing Baghdad with "official permission to continue its attacks on the oil tankers."

Iraqi attacks have been targeted on shipping in a war zone declared by Baghdad in the northern Persian Gulf in an effort to cut off Iran's oil exports, which fund the Iranian war effort. Iran has responded with attacks on Saudi and Kuwaiti shipping outside the zone.

Search Continues For 18 Lost At Sea

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — A U.S. Navy vessel and Canadian warships searched the Atlantic today for 18 crew members and passengers missing from a British square rigger that sank in 12-foot seas during a race of Tall Ships. Nine survivors and the body of an American were recovered.

It was not known why or exactly when the 117-foot, 67-year-old Marques sank but the crew apparently knew of the impending disaster and put at least some of those onboard into life rafts early Sunday before the ship went down.

The first seven survivors were rescued from a raft about 8 a.m. EDT by the 20-foot Polish schooner Zawisa Czarny. The Polish vessel later found another survivor and one body, the Coast Guard said. A Canadian frigate, the HMCS Assiniboine, picked up the ninth survivor.

The Marques was among 42 ships that set off Saturday in a race from Bermuda to Halifax, Nova Scotia. Three other ships in the race reported trouble and two of them turned back to Bermuda. The third was repaired and continuing onto Canada.

"It is the first time we've ever had an accident like this since we started this sort of thing in 1956," said Oliver Pemberton, organizer of the 1984 Tall Ships Race.

Priority For Litigant Rights

In two recent cases involving the release of material from pretrial proceedings, unanimous U.S. Supreme Court decisions indicate that the court is more concerned with litigants' rights than with the unimpeded publication of information.

In one case, in which the leader of a religious sect sued two Washington state newspapers for libel, the high court upheld the trial judge's order barring the newspapers from disclosing information they got from the plaintiff in pretrial discovery proceedings.

In the other case — in which two gambling defendants challenged the admissibility of wiretap evidence — the high court upset the trial judge's order, granted at the prosecutor's request, closing a pretrial hearing at which the tapes were played.

Although the Supreme Court in the Washington state case upheld the order preventing The Seattle Times and the Walla Walla Union-Bulletin from publishing what they had learned in discovery proceedings about the plaintiff religious leader's financial affairs, Justice Powell noted that the newspapers would be free to publish the same information if they obtained it independently or if it was introduced as evidence at the trial.

James Goodale, a lawyer who wrote a friend of the court brief for news organizations in the case, commented after the decision that most newsworthy material came out at trial in any event — which, as he said, indicates that parties who ask that material be sealed "are just delaying the day of judgment."

Still, there is a hint of anti-free press bias (prior restraint) in a ruling that judges may order the press not to publish material it has lawfully obtained.

In the gambling case — although the press may benefit from the decision — the high court based its ruling on the Sixth Amendment's guarantee of defendants' rights to a "speedy and public trial," not on a First Amendment right of access for the media. Justice Powell, who also wrote the opinion in this case, said closure of the entire seven-day evidence suppression hearing, which involved only two hours of tape-playing, was unjustified. Although the decision properly recognized defendants' rights, it lets stand a dubious barrier against press access.

Who's On First?

The Rev. Jesse Jackson's frequent references to the Third World have generated renewed interest in the phrase. Although many voters have a vague understanding that this geopolitical classification encompasses the underdeveloped countries, there is general confusion about its origin and the nations that belong to the First and Second Worlds.

The phrase Third World first emerged during the late 1950s, following the Bandung Conference of non-aligned nations in Indonesia. It gained general acceptance during the next two decades to describe those poorer African, Asian and Latin American countries that have high illiteracy rates and burgeoning populations.

By contrast, the First World consists of highly-developed countries including the United States, Western European nations and Japan. The Second World is made up of communist states.

These world designations are sometimes inexact and confusing. Where, for example, does one place Yugoslavia, which distances itself from Moscow and is neither highly-developed nor economically depressed? Then there is Communist China, which fits into the Second or Third World categories, but considers itself a Fourth World country, even though that phrase is generally reserved for impoverished nations, such as Bangladesh and Senegal.

As though this were not enough, several years ago there was even talk of a Fifth World consisting of South Africa, Taiwan, Israel and those nations that are increasingly isolated in the world community.

Suffice it to say that the geo-political-phrase game is similar to a sporting event: you can't keep the contestants straight without constantly consulting your program.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Do ya think maybe 'The Natural' has been playing for the Detroit Tigers this spring?"

The old bromide that "No one is indispensable," is probably true. And if only a few of Sanford's officials were slated to leave office in the near future, the city no doubt could manage.

After all government goes on. But it is going to be tough. First, at least three of the city's elected officials are going to be leaving office in early January, 1985.

Mayor Lee P. Moore, a member of the city commission for 17 years, 16 of those years as mayor, has said he will not run for re-election in December.

Commissioner Eddie Keith, an eight-year veteran commissioner, cannot run for re-election unless he moves from the home he has lived in for many years. With the districting of the city for commission representation, Keith has been districted out of office, come January.

Commissioner Ned Yancey has announced he will be running for mayor, so that means a newcomer will be in his seat.

Commissioner David Farr has also said he will run for mayor, making his seat available to a newcomer.

If Farr or Yancey win, that will mean three new commissioners because the mayor sits on the commission as a voting member. If neither win, it will mean four new commissioners.

Only one commissioner, Milton Smith, with four years experience in the job, has said he will remain.

Despite Smith's denial several weeks ago that he has any plans to seek the mayor's office this year, rumors persist that is exactly what he will do.

Among the appointed officials, Sanford's highest ranking one, City Manager W.E. "Pete" Knowles, has announced he will retire on April 30, 1985.

Fire Chief W.C. Galley has said he will retire in early January, 1985, and Street Superintendent George Rufas plans to retire in March, 1985.

Another insider that the public probably doesn't know as well as they do the others and who is also slated to retire in 1985 is Knowles' secretary, Mary Harkey-Meyer.

Mary lacks one year of having been around as long as Knowles. She will have 31 years on the job when she retires in July, 1985. Of the city hall staff, she is only second to her boss in what she knows of the city's past and present and plans for the future.

She keeps tight-lipped about all of what she knows about the present, but she is a veritable fund of knowledge about times past. What she doesn't know, she can find in a hurry if she has a mind to.

Rosa Rotundo of the city's finance department is also retiring in January, 1985, after 34 years on the job.

The city of Sanford will no doubt survive. It has been around a long time.

But the city's personality will change and it will never be the same.

DON GRAFF Cries For Election Reform

Here's a prediction: Before the votes are counted in November, the land will be echoing with cries for election reform.

Here's another: There may be some legislative action to that end, but there will be no real reform, especially not where the consensus seems to be that it is most needed. That is in the staggering cost of running for major political office in the United States.

Look at the record. We've long known what the problem is but have been worse than ineffective in dealing with it. It's not that Congress won't act. It has — in 1971, '74 and '78 — with legislation designed to keep election spending within bounds. But what Congress has actually wrought is the unbridled growth of political action committees and a spending binge.

Still, we keep trying. A current study examines how several other democracies deal with by far the largest budget item in U.S. campaigns — television time.

The study was commissioned by the Center for the Study of the American Electorate with a grant from the German Marshall Fund, an organization established by West Germany in 1972 to thank us for the post-war Marshall Plan. The authors are Howard Penman and Austin Ranney of the American Enterprise Institute.

In U.S. campaigns where television plays a major role, television, with a network minute in prime time going for $174,000, takes up two-thirds to three-fourths of campaign budgets.

The more money television absorbs, the less there is available for people-involving activities. The more electronic the process becomes, the less it directly involves people.

The parties also suffer, as media advisers package candidates and campaigns.

Despite widespread awareness of the problem, unfettered access to television for political purposes tends to be viewed as inherent in the constitutional guarantee of free speech. Opposition to any restrictions may have more to do with free enterprise, but more on that later.

Of six democracies studied, Venezuela is the only one where television is as accessible, as influential and as costly a part of the political process as in the United States. If anything, the situation in Venezuela is more extreme.

Like the United States, Canada permits political advertising on television — but there are more restrictions. Only parties, not candidates, can buy time. With some variations, France, West Germany, Britain and Italy bar televised political advertising as such. All provide free time but, as in Canada, to parties rather than candidates. The countries also place restrictions on content and format.

The big question is how applicable this is to America. In the other countries, television is a government monopoly or state-operated systems are dominant.

Justice Blocked For Whistle Blower

WASHINGTON — Commerce Department lawyers have been using shoddy tactics to discredit a whistle blower who dared to stand up to her bureaucratic bosses. She encountered such harassment that it moved President Reagan to an emotional outburst when he learned of it.

The tactics of the Commerce lawyers — Irving Margulies, Gordon Fields and Thomas Conley — threaten to discourage government employees who may be thinking of exposing waste, incompetence and corruption in their agencies. In fact, their attempt to discredit the whistle blower could undercut the president's pledge to battle bureaucratic misbehavior.

For two years, my associate Indy Badwar has been following the case of Billie Garde, a young mother who exposed sexual harassment and political cronyism in the Census Bureau office in Muskogee, Okla.

About 10 weeks after starting her job in 1980, she began complaining about her boss, John Hudson, to his superiors. When Hudson found out, he first threatened her, then fired her. Also,

Reform The Olympics

The explanation usually given is that the Soviets are exacting revenge for the U.S. pull-out in 1980, and there may be some truth in that, but not much.

Of course the Soviets are furious about 1980, which they had designed as a big propaganda jamboree, and which was torpedoed when Carter withdrew the U.S. team because of Afghanistan. But the Soviet political mentality does not engage in subjective emotion. Whatever the Soviets may feel in the way of anger or wounded pride over the 1980 boycott, their decision not to compete in the Los Angeles games was the product of political calculation.

That calculation had to be that any damage inflicted on Reagan's re-election chances would be worth the sacrifice of the propaganda value of the gold medals to be won in Los Angeles.

Viewed in that light, the present Olympic boycott takes its place in a series of actions that no doubt will be continued right up until the November voting.

No doubt the Soviets were annoyed when Reagan called them an "evil empire," but that is not the heart of the matter, and indeed it is "subjective." The Soviets oppose Reagan for severely "objective" reasons.

A prime Soviet political objective has always been the dismantling of NATO and the neutralization of West Germany. That remains the objective no matter who is running the Soviet Union. Reagan has greatly strengthened NATO and has led the way in defeating the Soviet campaign against the deployment of the Pershing II missile. That neutralized the huge Soviet investment in their SS-20 missile.

In this connection it is notable that both Mondale and Hart have advocated a "moratorium" on the deployment of the Pershing II, their hope being that during the moratorium the Soviets might be persuaded to at least back out on their already deployed SS-20s. Any such moratorium would be a signal to the NATO governments of a weakening of U.S. resolve, causing political disarray and strengthening the forces of neutralism. Soviet policy goals would be enhanced, and on this the Soviets are now voting Democratic.

But Reagan has committed other highly "objective" offenses.

He is presiding over a general buildup and modernization of U.S. forces, including our seapower. This has already changed what the late Leonid Brezhnev termed the "correlation of forces" in the world — that is, the military, economic, and political equation that indicates what policies are likely to succeed. The naval buildup, for example, has already changed the "correlation of forces" in the critical Persian Gulf area, and raised the price of Soviet influence there. The positions taken by the Democratic candidates are much to be preferred.

From the Soviet point of view, Reagan is the least desirable candidate as far as Latin America is concerned. His military buildup in the area, and especially the troop concentration in Honduras, has already split the Nicaraguan satellite regime into "revolutionaries" and "pragmatists," a split that endangers policy objectives in the area. And, of course, the invasion of Grenada was an ominous sign from the Soviet point of view.

Therefore the Olympic boycott. Therefore no arms negotiations, etc. The Reagan political strategists have organized a series of events lasting all summer and leading up to the voting in November. Whatever their intrinsic merits, they are calculated to dominate the news and enhance Reagan's image as a patriot and a global statesman.

We have had the visit to Peking, the meeting with the pope in Alaska, and coming up are the Olympics in Los Angeles, not to mention the current visit to Ireland. Reagan is scheduled to attend a Western summit meeting in Europe, and we will of course have the Republican convention in Dallas. He will probably attend the World Series.

The only event in this sequence that the Soviets are capable of affecting directly is the Olympics, and now they have tried to do so. They are also hatching, in tandem with Havana, a big fall communist offensive in El Salvador. They probably know that these actions, in themselves, are not enough to defeat Reagan at the polls, but they are doing what they can do, and they will continue to do that and hope that something turns up that will bring down their most potent enemy.

WASHINGTON WORLD Fairness, Pragmatism In Collision

By Arnold Sawlank
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Gov. James Hunt of North Carolina finished work on the Democratic National Convention delegate rules last year, party officials proudly declared that the selection process had been perfected at last.

As 1984 delegate selection ends, it looks like the declarations were premature and that the Democrats, like political Ancient Mariners, are doomed to sail forever on a sea of ever-changing rules.

The obvious first order of business for the next Democratic rules revision commission will be the so-called "thresholds" that determine the level of support a candidate for the presidential nomination must have to win delegates in primaries and at caucuses.

This issue involves basic questions of fairness and political pragmatism, and the party simply has been unable since the early 1970s to reconcile the two.

The Democrats decided long ago to outlaw what were called "winner take all" contests — the candidate that gets the most votes gets all the delegates — in the nomination process. They succeeded in banning this practice in statewide contests, but it still exists on a congressional district level, as in Tuesday's California primary.)

Carrying the idea of "proportional representation" further, the Democrats tried to write rules that gave candidates the same percentage of delegates as they got votes in the primaries or caucuses.

But it became clear that a pure form of proportional representation was impractical.

First, a large field of candidates competing for a small number of delegates might produce a result that required chopping delegates, or at least their votes, into fractions. The Democrats don't like doing that.

Second, the rules writers thought there should be some minimum support a candidate needed to show so that major contenders could be separated from what are politely called "fringe" or "splinter" candidates.

So a series of percentages were worked out to act as thresholds. Those whose vote fell below the cutoff got no delegates in that contest. Over the years, the cutoffs have ranged from 10 percent to 20 percent, which was the threshold this year.

Jesse Jackson started complaining about the 20 percent early and has kept up his running objection to it. At first, little attention was paid to his complaints, but now he has won enough delegates and enough political respect to make an issue of the threshold question at the San Francisco convention next month.

It is a good bet that the convention will take some action to instruct those who write the 1988 rules to lower the threshold for the next election. Even Democrats who back the 20 percent cutoff hope that giving Jackson a victory on this issue will help keep him in the party.

willing participant in the crimes she had exposed. At a recent Equal Employment Opportunity Commission hearing, for example, attorney Fields said, "If the Commerce Department had been aware of her conduct, we would have fired her ourselves."

At one point, the lawyers tried to show that Garde had not been fired, but that her job had been abolished. Yet in an earlier statement, Fields had said, "We agree that she was fired illegally."

And in a letter dated Feb. 22, attorney Conley wrote to Mrs. Garde's lawyer: "I want to rate our sympathy for your client and our desire that she be compensated for the damages caused by the Commerce Department's employee ..."

But the lawyers had a curious way of showing their sympathy. For example, Fields told the EEOC that Mrs. Garde was trying to collect $900,000 in damages, a figure he termed "incredible."

It was not so much incredible as imaginary. The $900,000 figure was produced by a personnel consultant — in response to a letter from Conley — as the amount Mrs. Garde theoretically might have earned over a lifetime if her government career had not been illegally terminated. As the Commerce lawyers were well aware, Mrs. Garde's attorney emphasized in a letter to them that the $900,000 "figure is not a settlement demand."

On Oct. 19, 1981, presidential assistant Ed Harper wrote to Mrs. Garde: "It was your personal courage which provided the impetus to see that justice was done. ... I appreciate not only what you have already done, but also your willingness to tell others that, even while it may be difficult, the system does work."

Unfortunately, the Commerce Department's attorneys seem determined to show that the system doesn't work.

Footnote: Mrs. Garde's attorneys wanted IG investigator Don Gray to take the stand during the EEOC hearing to attest to the integrity of the IG report as well as to Mrs. Garde's credibility. But the Commerce Department's attorneys objected strenuously, and he was prohibited from testifying.

Wilks Whirls 2nd No-Hitter

By Sam Cook
Herald Sports Editor

Tom Wilks didn't share the pitching glory Saturday night.

The Sanford I hurler had combined with Tracy Turner for a no-hitter the last time they faced West Seminole.

This time, he did it all himself — except for a little help from Dee Johnson.

Wilks hurled a five-inning no-hitter as he struck out six and walked along with clubbing two home runs as Sanford I Kidd Tile Co. blasted West Seminole, 27-0, in Colt League baseball at the Seminole Pony Baseball Complex near Winter Springs.

Johnson's help came in the fifth and final inning when he preserved the no-hitter with a spectacular play. Wilks walked the leadoff hitter, who then moved up on a wild pitch. Blair Smith then slapped what appeared to be the first hit for West Seminole into right field.

Johnson, who usually pitches or is used as a designated hitter, charged the ball, scooped it with his barehand and gunned it to first baseman Roy Jensen for the putout. Jensen then wheeled and caught the runner rounding third base for a double play.

The twin-killing was the third for Sanford I, which played excellent defense behind Wilks.

The victory upped the Sanford I record to 7-0 for the season and 3-0 in the second round. Today at 5:30, the Colts take on Sanford II. Craig Dixon or Terry "The Cat" Miller is expected to hurl for Sanford II while Brian Sheffield or Johnson will get the nod from coach Mike Ferrell.

In addition to his pitching, Wilks provided the offensive spark. The Seminole High junior clubbed a two-run homer and a three-run blast to highlight a 13-run, third inning which put the game out of reach.

Sanford I blasted loser Frank Redding and reliever Ed Pickmyer for 22 hits. Eddie Korgan helped out with four singles and one RBI. Alonzo Gainey had three singles and a double while Jensen, Scott Taylor, Ricky Kidd and Johnson each chipped in two hits each. Johnson and Gainey had three RBI apiece.

The offensive outburst lifted Sanford I's team batting average to .393. It has 79 hits in 201 at bats. The opposition is hitting just .188 with 20 hits in 130 at bats.

Korgan leads the team in hitting with a .524 average. Joey Corsi and Johnson are both batting .500 while Kidd is hitting at a .462 clip and Garry Derr is batting .438. Brian Sheffield is next at .429.

Wilks, who is batting .391, has six doubles and two homers among his nine hits. The burly catcher-pitcher-first baseman has driven in a team-leading 11 runs.

Carli's Settles For 4th — ICBA Wins 13 And Under

By Chris Flister
Herald Sports Writer

Without its top outside shooter, Andre Whitney, Seminole Carli's had to settle for fourth place in the AAU/Jr. Olympics 15 and Under State Basketball Tournament Sunday at Lake Howell High. Carli's dropped the third-place game, 56-53, to Orlando.

St. Petersburg, which beat Carli's in the semifinals, was the tournament champions as they beat Tallahassee, 53-47, in the championship game on Sunday. The tournament was hosted by the Seminole Youth Sports Association.

Rod Henderson poured in a career-high 36 points and pulled down 14 rebounds to lead Carli's against Orlando and Craig Walker added nine points and 12 rebounds, but behind those two, no player scored more than two points. Whitney was ill on Sunday and missed the third-place game.

"We lost a lot without Andre

A.A.U. Basketball

(Whitney)." Carli's coach John McNamara said. "He's our best outside shooter and we had to juggle a lot of people around to fill his spot."

In the semifinal game Saturday, Carli's found itself trailing, 16-6, after the first quarter and couldn't recover in time as St. Petersburg claimed a 51-45 victory.

"The first quarter was the difference in the game," McNamara said. "We kept pecking away at them the rest of the game but couldn't come back all the way."

Henderson led Carli's with 21 points and 14 rebounds while Whitney added 12 points and Walker pulled down 11 rebounds.

Henderson, who averaged 26.5 points and 14 rebounds per game in four tournament games, was one of two Seminole County players named to the All-Tournament team. Lake Mary's Kelly McKinnon, who scored 33 points in a game on Friday, was also named to the All-Tournament team.

DAUNIC LEADS ICBA VICTORY

In 13 and Under action Sunday at Lake Mary High, the ICBA held off Polk, 49-48, to claim the championship. Willie Daunic led the way for the ICBA (Oviedo) with 12 points while Jo Jo Birdsong (younger brother of NBA star Otis Birdsong) had 12 points for Polk.

In the third place game, Tampa defeated Carver YMCA of Opalocka, 67-50.

Daunic was the tournament's Most Valuable Player and was joined on the All-Tournament team by teammate Terrero Harper, Birdsong of Polk, Paul McDonald of Ocala, Cory Hadley and Kevin Bennett of Carver, Richard Wheland and Robbie Mitchell of Tampa and Dee Jones of Jacksonville.

LAKE BRANTLEY RALLIES TO WIN

In the 11 and Under tournament championship Sunday at Lake Brantley High, Longwood, down five points with 1:20 remaining to play, rallied to claim a 35-34 victory over the Bay County (Panama City) Boys Club.

Lee Raza led the way for Longwood with 13 points while Fred Trammell had 14 for Bay County. Longwood defeated Bartow to advance to the final while Bay County beat Ocala to get to the final.

In the third-place game, Bartow rolled over Ocala, 48-19. ICBA defeated Altamonte for fifth place in the tourney.

Although Bay County lost the final, Trammell was named the tourney's MVP for his outstanding play. Joining Trammell on the All-Tournament team were Raza, Jeman Perry and Sadat Smith of Longwood, Keno Thompson of Bay County, Moses Wearing and Jerome Wilson of Bartow, Mike Fallon of Ocala and Danny Phillips and Donovan Williams of ICBA.

Bandits Bomb Generals, Earn Playoff Position

TAMPA (UPI) — The Tampa Bandits scored 40 points Sunday in clinching a playoff spot in the Eastern Conference of the USFL but the defense didn't take a back seat to the offense.

The Bandits crushed the New Jersey Generals 40-14 behind the three-touchdown passing of John Reeves, the second-highest point production of the season for Tampa.

Reeves had touchdown passes of 2 and 14 yards to wide receiver Willie Gillespie in the second period and 8 yards to tight end Wilford Morgan in the third.

Gary Anderson added to his league leading touchdown total with a 1-yard run in the first period. Greg Boone raced 36 yards for a third period touchdown and the Bandits added a safety on a blocked punt and a 44-yard field goal by Zenon Andrusyshyn, both in the third period.

The Tampa defense, which scored the safety and set up the field goal and one of Reeves' touchdowns, shut down the potent Generals rushing duo of Herschel Walker and Maurice Carthon and kept pressure on quarterbacks Brian Sipe and Gene Bradley.

Gambiers 86, Gold 30

The Houston Gambiers assumed the only way to enter the playoffs was in record-breaking fashion.

The Gambiers got 207 yards rushing from Todd Fowler to break the USFL single-game record and two touchdown losses from Jim Kelly to tie the professional record for TD passes in a season as they topped the Denver Gold 38-20 Sunday to clinch a playoff berth.

"The offensive line did a great job," said Fowler, who broke teammate Sam Harrell's previous mark of 200 yards. "You wouldn't believe the holes I had. It's a great feeling to turn the corner and see all that green. Records are great, but this one belongs to the offensive line."

Elsewhere, Los Angeles topped Washington 35-21, Arizona overpowered Birmingham 38-28 and Tampa Bay routed New Jersey 40-14. On Saturday, Oakland nipped Jacksonville 17-12 and Chicago blanked Oklahoma 14-0. Tonight, it's Pittsburgh at Philadelphia.

Magic Passes Celtics Dizzy, 21 Assists Lead Laker Rout

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — He's Magic to most, but Earvin Johnson is Buck to his teammates. Not in pass the buck, more like a buck who can pass.

Oh, can he pass.

"You feel so good, you know," Johnson said Sunday after he had 21 assists, a record for an NBA championship game, and the Los Angeles Lakers amassed 47 points in the third quarter en route to a 137-104 romp over the Boston Celtics and a 2-1 lead in the league's final series.

"But it's hard to explain. When we get it going, it happens so quick and there's really nothing to defense it."

Game 4 in the best-of-seven playoff is Wednesday night at the Forum. The series then returns to Boston Garden.

Johnson finished with 14 points and 11 rebounds to go along with his record assist total. He quarterbacked the Lakers to a commanding 104-79 lead after three periods.

"It wasn't me; it was Magic," Kurt Rambis, a member of the team on the run, said. "I just kept filling the lanes and he delivered the ball (for 17 points). It's easy with him."

Los Angeles outscored the Celtics 47-33 in the period, shooting 16-of-25 from the floor and 15-of-17 from the line. It was the most points scored in a quarter by one team in a championship game.

"We've got a lot to discuss as a team," said Larry Bird, who led the Celtics with 30 points. "We really have to get back more on defense. We played passive today. We stood around and let them push us around and do what they wanted.

"They just kept pushing the ball down our throats."

The Celtics shot a more than respectable 13-of-23 in the third period, but Los Angeles was overpowering in breaking the Celtics' record of 46 points in a period set in the 1960 series.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led the Lakers with 24 points, had 13 in the decisive third period. Johnson had 8, but more importantly, delivered 8 assists.

Bob McAdoo added 21 points for Los Angeles and Scott Wedman 16 for the Celtics.

Ahead 66-52 two minutes into the second half, Los Angeles ended any doubts of the outcome by using an inside game featuring Abdul-Jabbar, Rambis and James Worthy. Johnson led the break in surpassing his personal assist record of 19 set last year.

"This is a veteran team," Los Angeles coach Pat Riley said. "We know we have a lot of work ahead. Two wins is not the end. They know what they have to do."

Los Angeles led 57-46 at halftime. Frustrated in Game 2 when they fumbled a 2-point lead with 18 seconds to go before losing in overtime, the Lakers opened with an 18-4 run at the start. The Celtics later scored 14 straight points — the last 10 of the first quarter and first 4 of the second period.

But the Lakers, running at a furious pace, answered with an 18-0 blitz to again assume command.

Did Unfamiliarity Keep Reichle From 1st Team?

Darrin Reichle probably has the best pro potential of any of this year's graduating county seniors. The Oviedo right-handed pitcher has caught the pro scout's eyes for the past two years.

Yet, when the final votes were tabulated for the Evening Herald All-County Baseball Team, Reichle couldn't be found on either the first or second team as a pitcher.

Furthermore, the 6-5 senior batted .346, clubbed five home runs and drove in 20 runs while playing left field along with his hurling.

But he didn't make either the first or second team as an outfielder either. He deserved first-team status, either as a pitcher or an outfielder.

Where was Darrin Reichle?

That's a good question, but probably one without an answer. He is definitely a first-team talent, but he was not even close to making it. So, there must be a flaw in the system.

The county baseball coaches and two Evening Herald sports writers listed the players in the order of their worth by position. For instance, most voters had Bill Lang as the number one catcher, Steve Dennis as number two and Rod Metz as number three. Lang gets 10 votes, Dennis gets nine and Metz gets eight. Somehow, though, Reichle was overlooked.

Playing for Oviedo probably hurt Reichle's chances. Oviedo is the only 3A school in the county and only one not in the Five Star Conference. It's only natural that the other coaches are more familiar with the teams in their conference and probably lean that way in the voting.

Also, Reichle didn't get off to a great start. He tried to pitch before he was through with basketball and he wasn't ready. Some of his early defeats were attributed to his lack of control.

Still, Reichle's 6-3 record is good enough. His two shutouts were as many as anyone else. He struck out 47 in 37 1/3 innings, a fine ratio. Using first-team choice Derek Livernolis as a yardstick, Reichle had a slightly better record (6-3 to 6-4), one more shutout and a slightly less strikeout to innings pitched ratio.

Yet, Livernolis was a shoe-in pick and Reichle wasn't close. It had to be because Livernolis pitched against just about everyone else in the county. The coaches knew how good he was. Reichle didn't have the same opportunity, so he couldn't show his stuff, which is very comparable with that of Livernolis.

Another theory is that Reichle may have been too good. Funny as it may seem, if he wouldn't have done so well at the plate, he may have had a better chance as a pitcher. And, if he wouldn't have finished strongly on the mound, he could have had a better shot as an outfielder.

Being on the same team as Jeff Greene may have hurt his pitching chances, too. Coaches and writers may have been divided between Greene and Reichle and the split vote may have hurt both of them.

Whatever the reason, this was one occasion when a first-teamer wasn't a first-teamer.

Flanagan Stops Tigers On 6 Hits

United Press International
By removing his knee brace, Mike Flanagan has added bounce to his legs and spring to Baltimore's pitching staff.

Four starts ago, Flanagan decided his opponents were bunting to exploit his lack of mobility. So he took off his knee brace and has shown improvement.

The Baltimore left-hander scattered seven hits and Cal Ripken triggered a two-run sixth inning with a sacrifice fly Sunday to give the Orioles a 2-1 victory in the rubber game of a three-game series with the Detroit Tigers.

"Flanagan was throwing the best fastball he's shown in the past couple of years," Detroit coach Dick Tracewski said. "And he had good control."

After getting walloped 14-2 Friday night, the Orioles allowed Detroit only one run in two games.

"Our club was just like this last year," Baltimore manager Joe Altobelli said, citing a half-dozen examples when Baltimore lost the first game of a series and then won the remaining contests. "To me, good pitching always stops good hitting."

Last fall, the Orioles lost the first game of the AL playoffs to Chicago before winning three straight. They then lost the opener of the World Series to Philadelphia before prevailing in five.

"Give them a little credit," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said. "They got two well-pitched games."

Forster Subdues Reds With Arm, And Batting Eye

United Press International
One of these days Atlanta's Terry Forster may find himself the answer to a question in Trivial Pursuit, and before long the rest of the league may find its pursuit of the Braves downright trivial, also.

Before his career is over Forster may go down in history as the best hitter average-wise of any player who performed at least 10 years in the major leagues. The left-handed reliever singled home a run in his only at-bat Sunday to contribute to a 4-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. He now has 31 hits in 73 at-bats over his 13-year career for a .425 average.

"All I do is get up and swing my bat," said Forster, who is 2-for-2 this season. "It was a slider up in the strike zone and I was lucky. Usually, I break bats on my hits that's why I used someone else's (Gene Garber's) bat today."

"I've pinch hit eight or nine times and had about five or six hits and one stolen base. I can roll down the base line with the best of them."

More impressive than Forster's hitting, perhaps, is the play of the Braves in the last two weeks. Sunday's victory completed a five-game sweep of the Reds and was Atlanta's ninth in its last 11 games. The Braves are now in first place in the NL West, one half-game ahead of San Diego.

"I came into this series thinking maybe we will get 4 out of 5 and satisfied if we could get 3 out of 5. Then when we won the first three we got greedy and wanted to go for a sweep," said Braves manager Joe Torre.

Cubs 1, Phillies 2
At Philadelphia, Jody Davis drove in three runs and Leon Durham had three hits to help the Cubs regain first place in the East. Steve Trout, 7-3, pitched the first five innings for the victory, with Warren Brusstar going four innings for his second save. The Cubs turned four double plays.

Cardinals 1, Mets 0
At New York, Dave LaPoint tossed a six-hitter and Ken Oberkfell singled home a run in the fourth to lift the Cardinals. LaPoint, 6-6, struck out three and issued only an intentional walk in pitching his first career shutout and first complete game in 14 starts this season.

Pirates 4, Expos 0
At Pittsburgh, Marvell Wynne had three hits, scored a run and drove in another and John Tudor tossed a four-hitter to lead the Pirates. Wynne doubled to left in the third to score Tudor from first with the Pirates' first run and singled to right to trigger a three-run sixth.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3
At Los Angeles, rookie Jim Pankovits collected three hits and drove in two runs to spark the Astros in an error-filled contest. Bob Knepper, 6-5, posted his third straight victory on a seven-hitter despite the Astros committing four errors. Rafael Landestoy and Mike Marshall homered for Los Angeles.

Padres 7, Giants 5-6
At San Francisco, Steve Garvey's two-run single highlighted a four-run seventh that rallied the Padres in the opener. In the nightcap, Tony Gwynn's two-run single capped a three-run ninth that gave San Diego the sweep. Jeff Leonard, Jack Clark and Joel Youngblood homered for the Giants in the opener. Carmelo Martinez homered for San Diego and Chili Davis connected for San Francisco in the nightcap.

In And Around Longwood

Summer Fun Plans For Area Children

With summer vacation coming up for Longwood school students, the city has found a way to give the parents a "summer break." As part of a summer recreation program, area children have been provided with a well structured list of summer activities.

Available for children, 6-14, will be two 4-week recreational sessions including arts, crafts, playground activities, volleyball, softball, kickball, swimming, bowling, roller skating and movies. Special field trips to places like Wet 'N Wild, Circus World and Gatorland are planned with children paying their admission.

The "first" session will be held June 18-July 13, with registration beginning June 1 and ending June 15.

The second session will begin July 23 and end Aug. 17. Registration for the second session can be made either during the June 1-15 date, or between July 9-23.

Note: Five year olds who will turn six by June 30, are eligible for enrollment, but proof of birth date will be required.

Recreational fees are as follows for one session/one child - $50.00 for city residents, $65.00 for non-city residents. Two children - $90.00 for city residents, $110.00 for non-city residents. Three children - $120.00 for city residents, $150.00 for non-city residents. For children planning to attend the first and second session, a reduced rate will be applied for the second session. For more information, contact the recreation director, Bill Goebel, at 831-0555.

Six lucky girls from the junior branches of Central Florida Girl Scouts recently had the opportunity of a lifetime.

Karen Warner

According to Donna Ballinger, a Scout leader in the Longwood area, six Juniors from the central Florida area were chosen to take part in "Respect For Law Day," held early in May.

The day started with a special breakfast at 7 a.m. in the Holiday Inn with pre-assigned police officers. Following the meal and introductions, the Juniors spent the morning with the officers as they went through a "mock" routine day. During the time spent with the law enforcement officers, the girls learned many of the officers' daily procedures, as well as the art of fingerprinting. Following a late lunch, the Juniors were safely returned to their homes.

The experience was just one of the unique ways today's Girl Scouts work toward earning badges.

The First Baptist Church of Longwood has a children's summer activities program set for June 11 through Aug. 24. The program will run Mondays through Fridays, from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., for children in grades one through five.

Day's activities will include swimming, field trips, snacks and other activities. For more information, contact the church located at State Road 434, 1/4 mile west of Highway 17-92. Enrollment is limited.

Carrying Grudge To Grave Can Be Cruel To The Living

DEAR ABBY: "Made a Promise" asked if she should carry out Granny's request. Granny, on her deathbed, asked that Aunt Mary not be allowed to attend her funeral since they never liked each other. You advised "Made a Promise" to tell Aunt Mary that Granny didn't want her at her funeral. Abby, that's cruel and unnecessary.

Funerals are for the living. The living feel the pain and need the comfort. They need to shed tears of loss, grief and even guilt. It's wrong to deprive Aunt Mary of the chance to express her pain. What a terrible guilt trip you have condoned!

Granny wants to carry her grudge to her grave. She's asked for the living to perpetuate her hateful ways, and she has found a way to haunt Aunt Mary forever. What a power trip she's on!

Aunt Mary deserves a chance to make peace with herself by attending Granny's funeral. I think "Made a Promise" should use her better judgment and conveniently "forget" to tell Aunt Mary. What the dead don't know won't hurt them.

THE TRUTH HURTS DEAR TRUTH: I agree, the grievances of a lifetime should be buried with the dead, and instead of pro-missing Granny that she would keep Aunt Mary from attending her funeral. "Made a Promise" should have told Granny what you explained so well above. Then Granny might have reconsidered and withdrawn her request.

Dear Abby

But to make a deathbed promise, then "conveniently forget" it? Never!

DEAR ABBY: This is about the woman who complained about a sex problem. She said she wasn't getting any. She was 44 and her husband was 70.

I have the same problem, only I'm 66 and my husband is 74, and he has lost all interest in sex. Don't tell me to send him to a doctor. He is a doctor. Any suggestions will be appreciated.

DOING WITHOUT DEAR DOING WITHOUT: Doctors need doctors. Send him to a doctor. A doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient.

DEAR ABBY: Until I saw that letter signed

"Miss Virginia," who hated high school class reunions. I thought I was alone in my feelings. I attended three such reunions - my 5th, 10th and 15th - and they were enough for me.

First let me tell you that I was very popular in high school with both students and teachers, was a member of the National Honor Society and also a commencement speaker (chosen by students and approved by teachers).

The people who were pills in high school were still pills. And it's true, most of them came to show off their jewelry and furs and brag about how successful they had become. (Reminded me of those Christmas letters filled with bragging about their families, promotions and exotic trips.)

Also, the committees that work on these reunions never seem to have progressed beyond the senior prom. And those silly prizes! (The man with the least hair. Really, now!)

My 40th reunion is coming up next year, and I'm not going to that one either. Don't get me wrong, Abby, I still see some of my old classmates when I want to, but to run to a reunion and spend an evening with the rest of that bunch is sheer madness!

Town Refutes Peg As Execution Capital

STARKE (UPI) — The American town where more people have been executed than any other place since the death penalty was reinstated is fighting its image as the execution capital of the nation.

In the past five years, five men have been sent to the electric chair in the tiny north Florida town of Starke, 11 miles east of the sprawling Florida State Prison. There are still 220 death row inmates awaiting execution there in the state's three-legged electric chair nicknamed "Old Sparky."

The statistics make Florida the nation's most prolific executioner since the Supreme Court lifted its ban on capital punishment eight years ago. They also have given Starke and its 5,500 residents a bad name.

"They're calling us the execution capital of the nation," said Mayor James Crosby Jr. "But Starke's not killing anyone — the people of the state of Florida are."

"Starke is no more and no less responsible for the executions than Fort Lauderdale or Miami. We're not a bunch of rednecks up here killing people and we're not ashamed of the prison."

With 1,100 inmates to guard and an annual budget of $13.2 million, the prison provides 503 jobs. More than 2,000 additional jobs are provided by the nearby Lawley Correctional Institution, Baker Correctional Institution, Lake Butler Reception and Medical Center and Union Correctional Institution, with a combined annual budget of $31.1 million.

"The prisons are the biggest employers around," said Crosby. "They give us a strong economic base and from that we've developed a quiet, clean town. We're happy like that."

Crosby said Starke's problems began in May 1979 with the death of John Spenkellink, the first person in Florida and the second in the nation to be executed since the Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty.

Journalists, state officials, death penalty advocates and death penalty opponents poured in, landing helicopters behind the high school and jamming the few motels and restaurants.

But each of the four subsequent executions has drawn an increasingly smaller crowd.

"After so many executions, they've become routine and the media have started looking for new angles," said Crosby, a 31-year-old journalism graduate from the nearby University of Florida.

The angels generally center on the town itself and several news organizations have called it the "execution capital of the nation."

"It's not fair," said Mike Cooney, director of the Starke Chamber of Commerce. "It's a question of geography more than anything else. The prisons are important to this town but that's not all there is."

Starke also is home to the National Guard's Camp Blanding training grounds, a $10-million-a-year poultry industry and "some of the sweetest and largest strawberries" found anywhere, Cooney pointed out.

But some Starke residents say their image won't change as long as death row inmates await execution there.

Randy Rowell, a 30-year-old radiator repairman, has a quick solution.

"I say we put all those inmates on a set of electric bleachers and tell them they're going to see a ball game," Rowell said. "The image doesn't bother me at all. If justice is 'carried out, who cares?'"

The Motor Scooter Rebellion

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Folks on Block Island see their scenic home 9 miles off the New England coast as a tranquil retreat from the "chaos" of the modern world, and they are willing to secede from the state of Rhode Island to keep it that way.

The rebellion was sparked not by taxes or despotic government but rather by the encroachment of motor scooters, which summer tourists rent by the hundreds to get around the scenic, 11-square-mile island.

The result, say islanders, is massive traffic jams and, last summer, an average of one accident every day.

The hated mopeds also pose a threat to Block Island's fragile sand dunes and its rustic character, residents say.

"There are few places left in the world where it's not chaos," said Jack Gray, 73, who heads the governing Board of Selectmen in the island's main town of New Shoreham.

"It's terrible," said island resident Morton Downey, 78. "They're like bees buzzing all around. I remember coming around the bend one day last summer and there were three rows of them riding three abreast."

The secession movement — though unlikely to succeed — was sparked by frustration over the Legislature's refusal to permit the island to regulate the motor scooters.

On Tuesday night, voters at the island's annual town meeting will be asked to decide whether to keep the secession debate going by approving a formal study on the issue.

"I assume they will instruct us to proceed further," said Gray.

There are about 640 year-round residents on Block Island, although local records show about 1,000 people are eligible to vote, Gray said.

Lisa Sprague, captain of North Shoreham's rescue squad, said the scooters are a burden on the police department and the rescue squad "and create incredible traffic jams and aggravation."

Danger Of Running And Heart Attacks

DEAR DR. LAMB — I run eight miles on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and five miles on Tuesday and Thursday. I run three miles or race on Saturday.

I was kicked out of the Navy for becoming an anorexic. I've always exercised heavily. Could you please send me your Health Letter on jogging deaths?

DEAR READER — First, a number of excellent runners at the peak of their performance have died from unexplained causes. They were all very thin. There is some evidence that being too thin from dieting or from limited calorie intake and running can be a significant hazard. It may predispose fatal heart irregularities, even if you can run for miles and are a top-notch marathon runner.

The question of heart attacks and running is an interesting one. There are very few cases of deaths while running that occur in anyone who didn't have heart disease. The limited number of people who have heart attacks or die from heart attacks while running suggests it's not all that common.

A number of young men who have died while exercising already had a clot formed inside the coronary artery before they dropped dead while exercising. The point is, the damage had occurred before running, not from running.

Nevertheless, because silent coronary artery disease is common, it's prudent to watch your risk factors are under control. That means until a person's blood pressure is normal, his cholesterol levels are normal and, of course, he shouldn't smoke. Running is very dangerous for the person who has increased risk factors. But exercise helps to eliminate weight and control the risk factors. I'm sending you the Health Letter 13-4, A Perspective on Jogging Deaths, as you requested.

The other factor in many of the deaths is overdoing it, trying to run too fast. Men are particularly bad about this. A slower speed usually accomplishes the same thing without the danger. A very gradual increase in exercise is safest.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 63 years old. Please explain the drug Premarin. What does it do for me? I've been taking it since 1970, just after I had my hysterectomy.

My husband says it's a nerve pill and calls it dope. I'd like to know if I should still be taking it and why.

DEAR READER — Premarin contains female hormones. It's given to replace the loss of hormones that occur when the ovaries are removed or when they fail because of menopause. They help to prevent symptoms such as hot flashes and bone loss, which often occur in women after menopause.

If your husband has his testicles removed and required testosterone (male hormone) replacement afterward, I doubt he'd call it a nerve pill or dope.

You certainly should continue taking your medicine unless your doctor tells you otherwise. New studies suggest that taking female hormones provides far more benefits than harm.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

show an important principle of play. It isn't a difficult play, but it is often overlooked at the table.

Jim: "South starts out by receiving a favorable lead of a spade. Now he can count two tricks in each suit. The best source for the ninth trick is in diamonds. How should they be played?"

Oswald: "He should start by ducking a diamond. If anything but a spade is returned, he simply ducks a second diamond and is now sure of nine tricks."

Jim: "If a spade is returned, he ducks that also. If a third spade is led, he is in with his ace. He leads a second diamond. West plays the 20. Now East can hold no more than three diamonds. If East holds a singleton diamond, declarer is most likely to go down, so he rises with the ace and cashes his remaining tricks to make 10."

Oswald: "Actually if West held four diamonds and five spades, there is a possible heart-club squeeze against East."

Jim: "Squeezes are covered toward the end of Norma's book."
